School taxes down by .6 mill, but SEV up 24%

BY PATRICIA BARTOLD

In December, when tax bills are mailed, Plymouth-Canton homeowners will notice their school taxes have decreased by six-tenths of a mill for 1980.

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education authorized the tax rate at 38.38 mills at its meeting Monday night. The 1979 tax levy was 38.98 mills.

The six-tenths of a mill reduction represents a decrease in the debt levy for bonds from 3.72 mills in 1979 to 3.12 mills in 1980. The district's SEV (State Equalized Valuation) for operation remained constant at 35.26 mills.

Even though the total number of mills has decreased, Plymouth-Canton homeowners may pay higher school taxes in 1980. The district's SEV (State Equalized Valuation) went up by 24 per cent from 1979 to 1980.

This means that higher assessments on homes have resulted in a higher SEV factor. The SEV is multiplied by the number of mills authorized in the district to yield the tax revenue. The SEV represents 50 per cent of the market value of your home and is used to compute taxes.

In 1979, the district generated $26,265,460 in tax dollars by multiplying the SEV times the millage rate. In 1980, the formula -- which has been decreased by six-tenths of a mill, but is based on a higher SEV rate for the average homeowners -- will produce $32,063,402.

The higher SEV rates place more the financial burden of operating the school district on the local taxpayer rather than the state, commented Supt. John M. Hoben. As the district's SEV figure rises, state aid decreases, he added.

The school board will soon consider its budget, estimated to be at about $38 million by Hoben. Of that, more than $32 million is generated at the local level.

Moved by Treasurer Glenn Schroeder and seconded by Trustee Sylvia Stetz, the resolution received unanimous support. Board President Carol Davis was absent.

No hike for Canton's fire, cop millage

BY DAN BODENE

Canton's fire and police millage came up for public debate last night, and township officials were predicting no increases in either.

A public hearing to discuss each was scheduled within the regular Board of Trustees meeting Tuesday. Fire millage was open for discussion between 7 and 9 p.m., and police millage from 9 to 11 p.m.

Supervisor Noel Culbert said earlier, "By law all fire and most police (operations) are funded by a special levy. Right now, the police millage is 3.25 and the fire millage is 1.25 plus another 2 mills from the general fund."

Culbert added that the fire millage would be changed this year in an accounting trade-off. Although the actual fire millage would be increased by 2, the general fund portion of Fire Department funding would be dropped.

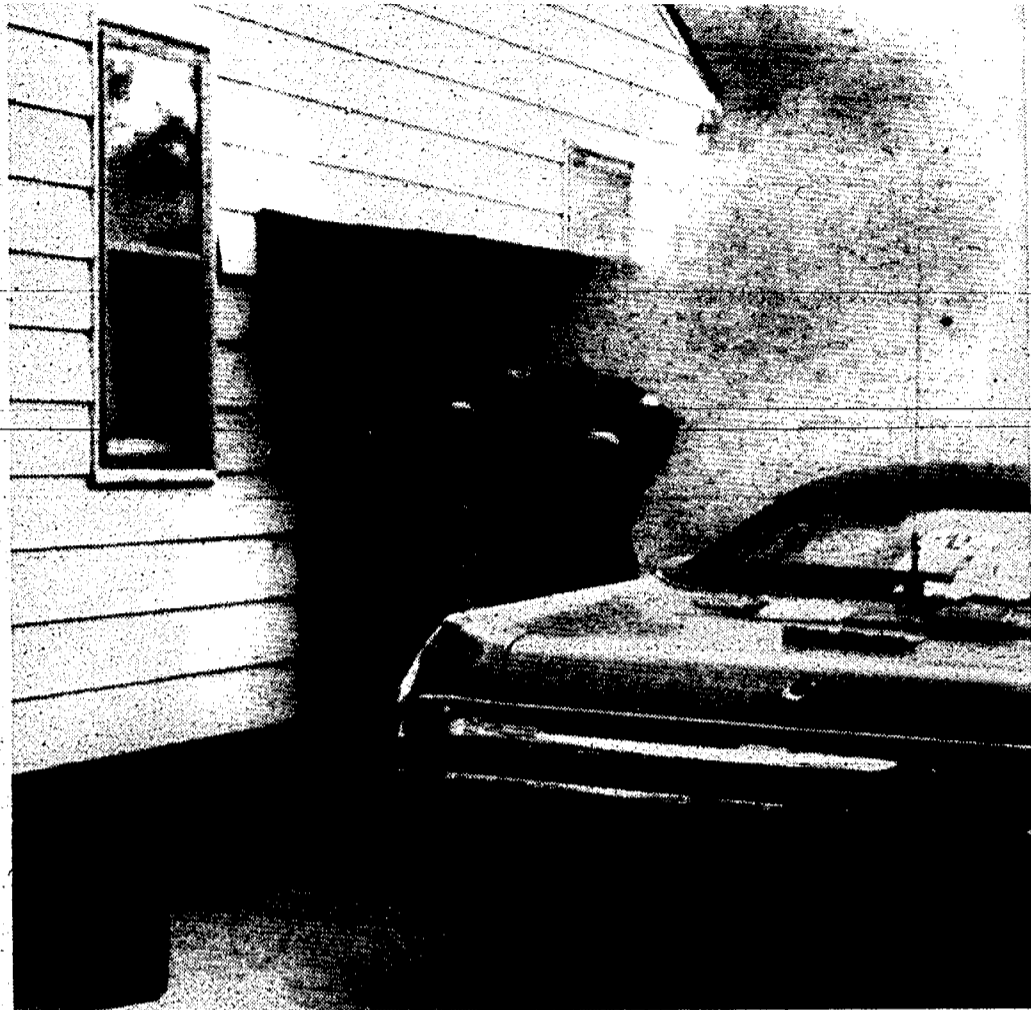

Fire Chief Melvin Paulun said he did not expect any great changes in his department's recommendations for funding. He added, "It isn't exactly what I turned in, but it looks okay. You always want more, but you compromise in the end."

Police Chief Jerry Cox concurred with the general sentiment. "I'm a taxpayer, too. I'm not necessarily in favor of a millage increase, but in the future we may have to go that way. I just don't think a big increase is possible now with conditions in the township as they are."

Culbert added, "The consensus of the board is not to increase the millage -- we did increase it 1.25 mills last year and we took a beating for it."

Cox, however, did point out that although he did "expect to walk out of the hearing with the current millage," some other type of funding would soon be needed to adequately staff the department. "With the current millage, we'll be able to keep the current staff -- which is about 75 per cent under

THE BASEMENT OF THIS HOME at 574 Sunset was set afire last Wednesday, apparently when a lamp a 12-year-old boy had set on a chair to keep his dog company was knocked over, according to Plymouth Fire Department officials. The boy and his friends, who had been upstairs, tried to extinguish the blaze, but it spread throughout the basement. Damage was estimated at $15,000. Firefighters were later called back to extinguish a smoldering cushion. (Crier photo by Patricia Bartold)

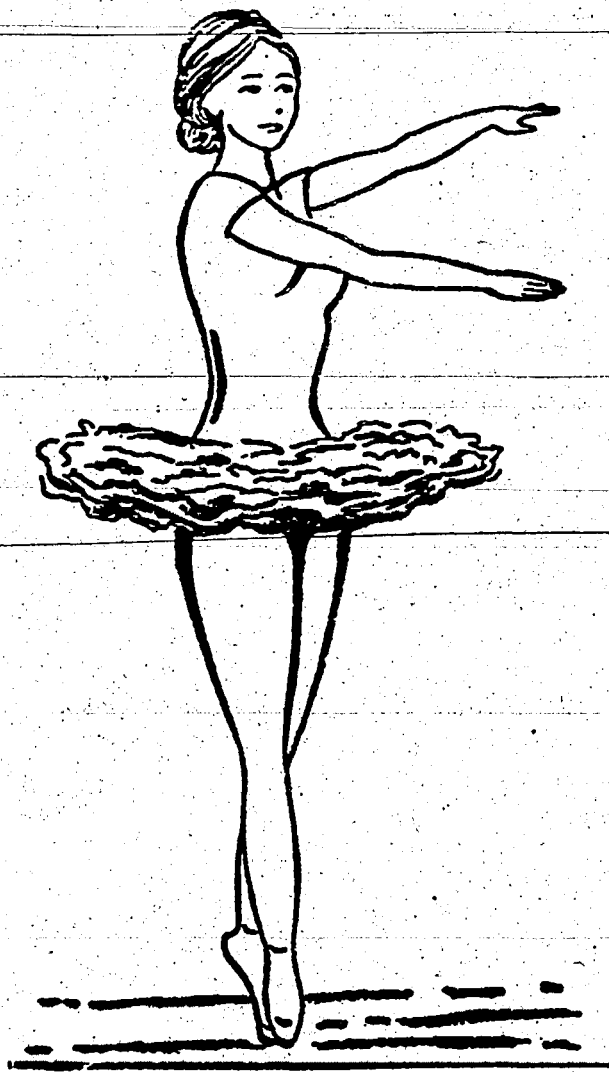

THOMAS FOLEY lies injured last Wednesday about noon after a collision with an auto driven by Carole Ann Carson of Canton, according to City of Plymouth police. Foley, son of Wayne County Assistant Prosecutor Patrick Foley, is in fair condition at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. Police said Foley was crossing Sheldon Road on Bocch in Plymouth when the accident occurred. Carson was northbound on Sheldon, said police. Carson tried to avoid the boy by braking and swerving, said police. No citations were issued, said police. The boy was transported to the hospital by Plymouth Township's rescue unit because the city was covering a fire at Sunset. (Crier photo by Robert Cameron)

Brace yourself, Fall Fest is coming Sept. 4-7

BY CHAS CHILD

Brace yourself, folks, Fall Festival is coming. The annual festival, featuring dinners, music, arts and crafts, and entertainment is only a week away. The 1980 fest is set to run from Thursday, Sept. 4 through Sunday, Sept. 7.

More than 100,000 visitors are expected to attend the festival, if the weather is good. The multitudes will crowd downtown Kellogg Park, the center of the festival, as well as stretches of Main Street, Penniman Avenue, and Union Street.

The fest's climax, the Rotary Club's chicken barbecue, is again scheduled on Sunday, Sept. 7. Saturday night's main dinner is barbecued beef ribs, prepared by the Plymouth Jaycees.

The Kiwanis club will man the pancake griddles most of the day Saturday in Masonic Hall. On Friday is the Lions Club fish fry, while the Colonial Kiwanis will cook spaghetti on Thursday evening. The Plymouth Grange will kick off the fest meals with an American-style lunch Thursday.

This year's fest will feature a number of new events. Among these are a Big Band dance, starring Carl Battishill and his orchestra, scheduled Saturday evening in Kellogg Park.

Also, the Plymouth volunteer firemen have organized an old-fashioned waterball contest, set for Saturday around noon on Penniman Avenue. Many area fire departments will battle each with squirting hoses, trying to push an overhead ball mounted on a cable past a certain mark.

Besides these new events, the old favorites will be back from previous years: two arts and craft shows, for example, sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council, and the Plymouth Historical Society and the Plymouth Symphony League's Antique Mart.

The antique auto show will also be back from previous years, as well as an art show by the Three Cities Art Club.

A full slate of entertainment has been scheduled, including such groups as the Plymouth Community Band, the Community Chorus, and the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps.

There will also be a number of contests. Residents and merchants will vie for honors in the Marigold Decor contest, new this year. Other old favorites like the pet parade and the window-display contest will be back.

Many groups will be manning booths along Main Street, peddling everything from cookies to yaki-tori.

For complete details of all Fall Festival events, entertainment, and meals, please see next week's exclusive Fall Festival Crier edition.

With eyes aglow, Mark waits for school to start

BY PATRICIA BARTOLD

Thursday, Sept. 4 is the first day of school for five-year old Mark Johnson of Plymouth Township.

He's counting off the days in preparation for his advent into the world of schoolmates, homework, and school buses.

Rather than frightening, the arrival of Mark's first day at school excites him. His mother, Mary Lou Johnson, says she's put up a calendar this week so Mark can count off the days until "his big day" arrives.

The best part about going to school, says Mark, with his eyes shining, is "going to see my brother." Big brother Tom will be a fifth grader at Allen School.

Mark's been waiting to go to school for years, reports his mother. He asked when he could go to school several years ago and wasn't satisfied when he found out last March -- when he turned five -- that he'd have to wait until this fall. Mark was disappointed.

In preparation for kindergarten, Mark has been taught how to cross the street in front of his home safely, says his mom. This summer marks the first time that he's been able to do it alone. He's also been warned about the dangers of riding in cars with strangers.

With his name tag pinned on his shirt along with his address and phone number, Mark's ready for classes. He'll wear his name tag on the first day, and probably the second and third days, to aid teachers and staffers at Allen. They'll direct him to his classroom as well as probably ride the bus home with him at noon -- just to make sure he gets off at the right stop.

Mark seems confident, particularly since attending Kindergarten Round-Up last spring, a day in which he toured his classroom, met his teacher, and principal, Tom Workman, and even got to ride the bus. "I liked it all," he says, brightly.

As for skills, Mark can tie the ribbon around his green, stuffed elephant's neck -- but not his shoes -- yet. He can recite his name, address, and phone number, knows his ABCs, colors, numbers, and bus manners.

Waiting for school, it seems to the blond haired boy with wide eyes, is the next best thing to being there.

Cheerleaders win 2nd place, capture excellence ribbons

Canton High's Varsity Cheerleaders placed second this year at the International Cheerleading Foundation Camp at the University of Michigan.

Matching last year's performance, the Chiefs placed second in Grand Champ competition among 15 varsity squads, between first-place Fenton and third-place Grosse Pointe North.

The Chiefs squad received superior ribbons for "sparkle and shine" and "entrances and exits." In addition, they were the only squad to receive an overall excellence ribbon on the second night of their camp, and one of only three squads to do so all summer.

Awarded overall excellence ribbons on the third and final days, the Chiefs were selected to compete in the Grand Champs competition, where they placed second.

Other awards won at the camp were the "spirit frisbee" three days running, and the "dynamite stick" for most spirited squad at the week-long camp.

Members of this year's Chiefs include seniors Captain MariAnn Mortensen, Marilyn McKendry, Beth Berbetet, Danette Crawley, Mary Hogan and Jeri Tomalak; and juniors Patty Osborne, Debbie Rogers and Suzanne Taylor. The Chiefs are coached by Mary Griffith.

A honeymoon to remember

Like most wedding nights, it was a night to remember -- but for a different reason.

Diane and John William Clark of Taylor were checking into the Plymouth Hilton for their honeymoon late Sunday night. The groom was getting their room keys while his wife returned to the car to bring in their luggage, said Det. Jo Price of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

While carrying the bags into the hotel, two men offered to assist the bride, said police. When the groom saw his wife with two strange men, he accused them of trying to pick her up, called them several unsavory names, and a scuffle ensued, said Price.

Sheriffs were called, and while trying to stop the fight, Officer Robert Wallace's shirt was torn and, afterwards, he was taken to the hospital with a possible fractured

The groom spent his wedding night at the Wayne County Road Patrol headquarters on Henry Ruff and Michigan Ave. Charged with malicious destruction of police property and assault and battery, Clark was scheduled to be arraigned in 35th District Court Monday. If convicted, the felony could bring a four-year maximum sentence, said Price.

Dogs, beware

Plymouth Township dogs, beware.

Parents seek to change kids' transfer

BY PATRICIA BARTOLD

Parents whose 23 kindergarteners were transferred from Gallimore School to Miller School last week flocked to the school board meeting Monday night to protest the action.

They presented a petition signed by the parents, however the board did not change the administrative action. "We're very upset with the administration (for doing this)," said Francis Dajnowicz, a spokesperson. "It is very disappointing for our children (to change schools) after they had met their teacher and were told they'd be attending school at Gallimore."

The principals at the schools and other administrators defended the move, saying that the kindergarteners had been transferred because there isn't a classroom at Gallimore to house the students.

"We considered splitting up the students among other tracks, but it would have meant 31 in a class," commented Shirley Spaniel, who until recently was the Miller School principal.

There isn't sufficient space at Gallimore, said Mike Homes, assistant superintendent for curriculum in the district. Miller has the space and so they were moved, he added. "This class was picked because it caused the least disruption to the smallest number of students." He added that the district hopes to return these students to the Gallimore attendance area after kindergarten, although the district will undergo boundary shifts for the 1981-82 school year.

The students on Track B were scheduled to start classes soon after Labor Day and parents also complained about the lack of notice earlier.

However, school administrators said enrollments fluctuate and parents hadn't been informed earlier because the overloaded situation was not known until recently.

Parents asked the board to consider moving the portable classroom currently used as a clothing bank at Central Middle School to Gallimore to use as a classroom for the students. The idea wasn't supported by Supt. John M. Hoben. The portable is too old and "isn't suitable for a classroom," he said. In addition, it would cost about $5,000 to move it there, he said.

"As long as we've got space available, we'll use it rather than incur more costs," he said.

In the transfer, the students were moved from a morning class at Gallimore to an afternoon class at Miller.

No contract for teachers

BY PATRICIA BARTOLD

With school scheduled to start right after Labor Day, more than 800 Plymouth-Canton school teachers are still without a contract.

But chances are slim that teachers will stage any kind of protest or walk-out, according to John Ryder, past president of the Plymouth-Canton Education Association.

Last fall a new three-year contract was apparently agreed to after a nine-day strike and the school board and teachers accepted a state fact-finder's report outlining a settlement.

According to his report, teachers received a 25 per cent increase over the three-year contract.

However, disagreements on how the compounding factor was to be applied to the teachers' salary scales erupted after the apparent settlement, sending both bargaining teams back to the Michigan Employment Relations Commission (MERC).

MERC hearings have been stalled since last fall. In November, teachers filed in the Ingham County Circuit Court, seeking a ruling to permit the fact-finder to testify at the hearings. To date, the teachers are still seeking a favorable ruling on that case which has caused the postponement of numerous hearings scheduled before MERC.

MERC hearing dates were scheduled for Aug. 12 and 13, however they were postponed because there hadn't been a ruling on the case in circuit court, said Ryder.

New hearing dates have been scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 15-16, he said.

Meanwhile, these postponements have confused the orderly transition of power that normally takes place each spring when teachers elect new officers for the union. There's "a quirk in our constitution," said Ryder, which says union officers must remain in office until a new contract is ratified.

Since the contract remains unratified the new union officers couldn't take office.

New elected officers are: Mickey Edell, president; Charles Portelli, vice-president; Sharon Belobraidich, secretary; and Judi Krieman, treasurer.

They have replaced John Ryder, president, and Tom Cotner, vice-president. Belobraidich and Krieman have retained their positions.

To solve the constitutional problem, the old officers have kept their responsibility for ratifying the new contract, said Ryder, and the new officers will take over the other respective duties.

Asked when the contract would be ratified, Ryder said, "I don't know."

"I certainly hope that it's done by Christmas."

Principals named

Two principals were appointed to elementary schools by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education Monday night.

Joyce Reefer, former assistant principal at Miller School, will take the helm at Gallimore School. Sam Barresi, assistant principal at Field School, will be the principal at Bird School.

Also, George Dodson, former principal at Gallimore School, has been transferred to Smith School to replace Ron South, who has taken a leave of absence to teach in Germany.

Several weeks ago the board OK'd the transfer of Lolly Buikema to Miller School. She had been the chief administrator at Tanger School. Former principal at Bird School, Carol Nichols, has been transferred to Tanger School.

Shirley Spaniel, former principal at Miller School, was hired recently as the district's executive director of elementary education.

School board must settle contract, hire 2

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education needs to tackle -- and solve -- three problems immediately. These situations must be rectified soon; otherwise the board will be faced with the mammoth decisions involving boundary changes in the 1981-82 school year and these problems will be shoved to the back seat, where they've been left for months already.

First, the district must hire a community relations person. Second, the district must hire a director for the Talented and Gifted (TAG) program. Third, the contract for more than 800 teachers in the district must be settled.

Hiring both a community relations person and the TAG director should take top priority. The school board must assert itself over the position taken by administrators. These administrators seem to believe in a "wait and see" approach to hiring. But two facts remain clear: Richard Olenchak resigned from the TAG directorship early last spring and Florence Beier left the school district's P.R. post in June.

Precious time is lost by waiting -- even though administrators defend the practice by saying the district saves money in salaries by not hiring immediately after an employe resigns.

The disadvantages far outweigh the money saved. The savings doesn't offset the frustration felt by TAG parents who have waited months for a new director. Nor does it offset the problems incurred because these positions remained unfilled.

Simply put, the practice is archaic. And, since six elementary schools and one middle school are on a year-round calendar, the practice borders on irresponsible.

Administrators seem to think other employes can "fill in" until new employes are hired. In reality, though, problems simply mount up and the new employe faces a barrage of problems that need immediate attention when he or she is finally on the job. Coupled with the challenges of getting used to the new position, the replacement is faced with an onslaught of tasks that have piled up over the months since Beier and Olenchak resigned.

The school board should act now in stopping this practice and demand that its administrators hire replacements more quickly. Granted it takes time to post the positions and then sift through applications, however deadlines should be imposed. The school board's credibility lies within its power to create and continually re-establish an adversary relationship between itself and school administrators.

Finally, the teachers' contract must be settled now. The school board and teachers' union are arguing over relatively small monetary amounts compared to the frustration involved -- on both sides -- of not having the contract ratified.

No dollar amounts can be tagged onto that feeling of frustration, but priorities must be realigned so that settlement -- above the argument over who wins -- is most important.

Who wins the final argument over the compounding factor is really a minor point. Even though an apparent agreement was reached one year ago over Labor Day weekend, the two teams are still haggling. Both sides are bogged down by their egos: The school board is determined that it won't back down; teachers are just as strong in their convictions. Both sides are bullheaded, and, when it comes down to the final wire, the argument revolves around egos to see which side can persevere the longest.

Plymouth-Canton citizens must put the pressure on both sides to settle their disagreement and ratify the contract.

On a more positive note, three school board members and several teachers from the union met recently to improve relations and hash over some ideas. (Only three board members attended because four or more school board members would have been in violation of the Open Meetings Act.)

We're pleased to see these two groups getting together informally. Let's hope these meetings help improve relations and prove to be productive.

'Don't wait until a child is hurt'

Schools must reverse busing policy

EDITOR:

The School Board of Plymouth-Canton has recently voted to discontinue safety busing for children in kindergarten through second grade who live less than one mile from school. Children in our neighborhood, who will have to walk to Bird School starting Sept. 4, are just under the one mile cut-off.

We are distressed at the board's action, at its apparent lack of concern for the safety of individual children who are expected to cross numerous major residential and industrial streets. These young children are expected to walk approximately 30 minutes to school by themselves at times of the day when the older children are not available to walk with them.

This situation occurs with the four and five year old kindergartners who come home after the morning session alone and the afternoon group which goes to school alone. We consider this an unsafe situation and transport these very young and immature students.

We understand that the decision to discontinue this service is motivated by a need to cut back expenses but please reverse this decision; don't wait until a little child is seriously hurt or worse.

FRED AND KATHRYN SCHMITZ

With Malice Toward None

All we need is to have warring police agencies. Plymouth Township, which has contracted with the Wayne County Sheriff Department to provide police services, has recently seen Michigan State Police troopers pamphleting to solicit calls for their agency.

It's great to see such enthusiasm among the troopers, but since the township has chosen to go with the sheriff, and more importantly, SINCE THE SHERIFF IS BEING PAID FOR THE SERVICE, it'd seem more logical to call the deputies.

Ideally, both agencies would help each other. That way, one could cover for the other in the event units were tied up or if a serious call came in which mandated extra attention.

Had the state government seen its way clear to contract out its police services to townships instead of concentrating on expressway patrols, maybe the troopers would be busy today in Plymouth Township.

However, the state ignored the idea and the Plymouth Township police levy is being spent on the sheriff protection -- so call them first.

THIS CITATION was presented to The Crier by the Massachusetts Republican delegation in recognition of the cooperation between The Crier and Bay State convention-goers. Massachusetts delegation members enjoyed their stay in Plymouth according to PR coordinator Rich Silvia.

Heartfelt thanks to City

EDITOR:

Thank you for your hospitality! As an alternate delegate to the recently-held Republican Convention, I wish to express my heartfelt thanks to all the Michiganders who contributed to a fine convention.

My "special thanks" goes to the hospitality of the residents of the City of Plymouth and the staff at the Plymouth Hilton Inn who outdid themselves on our behalf.

The slogan "Detroit Loves a Good Party" is truly appropriate -- I will attest to that! I look forward to the day when I can return to your area and really do some sight-seeing.

Fall Fest no easy chore

Although I've lived in this area on and off for almost 15 years, this is my first Fall Festival from the working end of the affair. If only I'd known . . .

You see, up to now, Fall Fest meant about 10 different kinds of food, sidewalk sales, wall-to-wall people in Kellogg Park and a ride on that double-decker bus.

This year, it's meant months of ominous warnings like, "If you think -- (insert item) -- is bad, wait till Fall Fest." Months of watching advertising staff begin to chain-smoke. Months of hearing about the vacations everyone has scheduled when "it" is over.

Lately, the effects have become more evident. I've been in the office so long my chair never gets cold. I've got cauliflower ear from using the telephone so much. My coffee cup is crusty.

And they tell me I haven't got it so bad. Some of the organizing committees have been doing this for years. Some of the staff here have, too. They take a couple days off in September and then start figuring out how it's gonna be next year. Dedication, or what?

I really don't mean to snivel, but today I asked an editor to loosen the restraining straps on my chair, and I was told they're tight for a reason. Was it too much to ask?

Supposedly by Friday things will calm down. A long weekend, hot shower, and I'll be all right, they tell me. And in the next breath, the word is, "If you think Fall Fest is bad, wait till the Christmas issue . . ."

Letters TO THE EDITOR

The Community Crier welcomes letters to the editor. To insure space for as many opinions as possible, we ask that they be to the point and concise. Letters must be signed, although we will withhold names upon request.

A salute from GOP

EDITOR:

On behalf of the Massachusetts Delegation we wish to commend the state of Michigan, Governor William G. Milliken, the City of Detroit, Mayor Coleman Young, the host committee and the countless residents of the Greater Detroit Area for the warmth, hospitality and many courtesies shown to the Massachusetts Delegation as well as those from the other 50 states.

As we watched and read about the recent convention in New York, we realized that all do not agree on every plank in the Republican Platform but we have unanimity in "We Love Detroit" and hope we can return to your great city and see all our many friends in 1984.

We from Massachusetts especially want to cite John Dithmer, general manager of the Plymouth Hilton and his staff, the City of Plymouth, its mayor, Mary Childs, the City Manager, Henry Graper, the Mayflower Hotel, the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps, the Plymouth Community Chorus and the countless Plymouth residents that extended so many kindnesses to us during our stay at the 1980 Republican National Convention.

We all thank and salute Detroit -- and Plymouth, Michigan.

Salvation Army expands community focus

Plymouth's Salvation Army Corps will soon finalize plans to move into new, expanded quarters.

Lt. William Harfoot, the Plymouth Corps' commanding officer, said the local advisory board will meet in September to discuss final details for the sale of the present building at 290 Fairground. Harfoot also said fundraising for the project will be completed this fall.

The new structure, presently the site of the Main Street Baptist Church, will be expanded for the needs of the Salvation Army. Costs for the renovation of the existing building and a proposed addition are estimated at $590,000.

"It will be a different kind of program once we move into the new building," said Harfoot. "Presently, the Salvation Army in Plymouth offers a very limited program of activities. This (new building) will allow us to expand programs and facilities to become more of a community center."

Goal for beginning construction on the project is early spring, according to Harfoot. More plans are needed, in addition to consolidation of funds for the new center.

Financing for the new location comes from a variety of sources, according to Harfoot. He said 65 area contributors donated money for the project, as well as grants from the Kresge Foundation and two other smaller organizations. In addition, there were donations from the Plymouth Rotary Club, and Community fund and various legacies from citizens. "The vast majority of the funds were locally raised," said Harfoot.

Chairman of the Capital Funds Campaign Steering Committee is Kal Jabara, a local developer. In a message to local residents, Jabara stated, "Even as facilities grow old and worn under the volume of usage and the ravages of time, demands for Salvation Army services in Plymouth continue to increase. While many services are already provided in our existing building, demands for expanded services require that we move to a new building."

To date, a total of $425,000 has been raised. Harfoot says more fundraisers are planned, and more contributions can hopefully be solicited.

"It will be a nice facility, because it will have a lot of office space," said Harfoot, referring to the "expanded services" mentioned in Jabara's message.

"Counseling and interviews and other things that need privacy are difficult right now," concedes Harfoot. "The new building will have space for those. There will also be a nice elementary-size recreation room, another multi-purpose room and crafts and work rooms. On any given night, we could have four or five activities going on at once." Stressing the new facility will be community-oriented, Harfoot added, "It will be accessible to old, young, and handicapped."

He also said the idea of a Salvation Army community center is not new in the Detroit area. "There is a number of community groups in the metro area -- Dearborn Heights, Warren, Royal Oak and Wyandotte all have them. There are 13 or 14 Corps community centers in the area."

And what is the formula for success in undertaking a project this size? "We have a very fine advisory board -- they have been part of the community for a long time," says Harfoot with a smile.

When is a vacation not always a vacation?

What I Did On My Summer Vacation, by the mother of two adorable kids.

After trying unsuccessfully to come up with a time that was convenient for everyone, I finally picked a week and informed everyone "this is when we're going on vacation."

Renting a cabin on a lake for a week is a great way to enjoy a relaxing vacation. I like nothing better than to sit back, prop my feet up, and read a book; or sit on the beach and make sand castles. Unfortunately other members of the family have other ideas of how a summer vacation should be spent.

Fishing isn't a bad sport. I might even learn to like it if I didn't have to touch the worms or fish. Then there's another little problem -- for some reason as soon as we get out in the middle of the lake, I have to go to the bathroom. Have you ever tried sitting with your legs crossed for three hours?

According to my kids, vacation wouldn't be complete without an afternoon of horse-back riding. That's just great if you get along with animals and get a thrill out of riding on the back of some beast. Some people know how to ride with a horse, then there are those of us who ride against it.

Canoeing can be lots of fun if you're in the mood. However, swimming downstream instead of paddling isn't quite as much fun. Thank heavens I wasn't in the canoe when it tipped over, so don't blame your wet soggy jeans on me.

Sleeping Bear Dunes is a great place to spend an afternoon. I accepted the challenge and huffing and puffing I climbed all the way to the top. I may not have won the race to the top of the dunes, but at least I proved that I could still make it.

One of the best parts of vacation was floating on a raft in the lake, reading a book. Whenever I drifted too far out of the swimming area, one of the kids swam out and pushed me back in. Someone has to look after their mom and take care of her.

Now that vacation is over, it's back to the grind of dirty socks and a typewriter that still doesn't know how to spell. It must be time to plan the next vacation.

Joy Grotjohn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Grotjohn of Cranberry Drive in Canton, has been selected to receive a Lutheran Brotherhood Senior College Scholarship in the amount of $500. She is one of approximately 530 Lutheran students to receive the award. She plans to attend Capital University in Columbus, Ohio this fall.

Stephen and Jennette Zampardo recently celebrated a belated 50th wedding anniversary at a party given by their son Stephen John Zampardo and his wife Valrie. The couple were married June 18, 1930. The dinner party at Camoren Hall in Taylor was held on July 12. Son Anthony and his wife Eva of California were unable to attend the party.

The Zampardo's have 12 grandchildren; Janice Blackney, Dennis Thompsett, Jim Jr., John, and Stephen Thompsett of Westland; Stephen, Ann Andrew, and Stephanie Zampardo of California; and Pamalia, Laura, and Stephen Zampardo of Saline. They have three great grandchildren; Jennifer and Christopher Blackney, and David Adam Thompsett.

Members of the German-American Club of Plymouth attended the German-American Festival in Maumee, Ohio on Sunday, Aug. 24. Kiwanis unveils permanent exhibit

Hall of Fame-ous Plymouthites

Sixteen initial members of the newly-created Plymouth Hall of Fame were inducted at a dinner at the Cultural Center last night.

The Hall of Fame, sponsored by the Plymouth Kiwanis Club, will be a permanent exhibit in the Cultural Center and features plaques of the 16 bearing likenesses and a short biographical sketch.

Members of a selection committee picked the initial 16 on the basis of several guidelines. Candidates to the Hall of Fame "must have been a resident of the Plymouth Community for at least 10 years; be at least 30 years of age; and have made recognizable contributions to the community in terms of time, money, or effort in the building or rebuilding of the physical or political well-being of the community."

The first 16 members of the Hall of Fame are:

*William and Keziah Starkweather, who walked from Detroit in 1825 to become the first settlers in the area;

*George A. Starkweather, their son, born in February, 1826 as the first white child in what was the original Plymouth Township, later becoming president of the village in 1898;

*Ebenezer J. Penniman, the first resident to serve in the U.S. Congress, from 1851 to 1853, later joining a conclave in Jackson which was to become the Republican Party;

*William F. Markham, who established an air rifle plant in the city which later became one of Plymouth's premier industries;

*Clarence J. Hamilton, who patented an inexpensive all-metal air rifle and converted the Plymouth Windmill Co. to manufacture the rifles;

*Charles H. Bennett, who helped parlay the infant air rifle company into the Daisy Manufacturing Co.;

*Edward C. Hough, one of the chief operating officers in the Daisy Company;

*Kate Penniman Allen, daughter of E.J. Penniman, who built the city's first movie theater, the Penniman-Allen Theater, and also owned a dance hall in town;

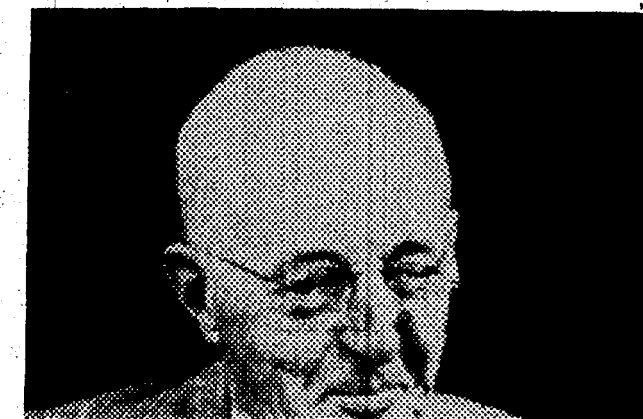

*Phoebe Patterson, elected Justice of the Peace in 1919 at age 62;

*Sidney D. Strong, the second manager of the Village of Plymouth and president of the Historical Society in 1963;

*Ruth Huston Whipple, Mayor of Plymouth from 1940 to 1942, eventually serving three terms;

1 arrested in money scam

One of two suspected confidence men has been arrested by State Police in connection with a scam played out on several local businesses.

According to State Police, Larry Eugene Gammons, 31, was arrested at his home in Pinconning Aug. 14. He is believed to have an associate in the confidence scheme, who is still at large.

strength. Based on the population, 48,000, we should have 96 police officers. We now have 19. The growth of the department has not kept pace with the growth of the township."

Trustee Robert Greenstein, long a supporter of increased fire and police services, agreed. "I don't think we dare increase the millage. The problem is, more money than is coming from the millage should go to the police department. I would like to see the millage stay the same, but a commitment made to the police department to increase general fund support, and a reduction of the frivolities coming out of that fund."

The scam typically involved a suspect entering a business and pleading for cash to travel to an ill relative outstate.

Gammons was arrested by State Police in Bay City, assisted by troopers from the Northville Post. In addition, several other police departments, including Plymouth's, were involved in the investigation.

At his arraignment Aug. 15, Gammons pleaded not guilty to obtaining money by false pretenses, a felony. Bond was set by 35th District Court Judge James Garber at $25,000. Gammons is currently in Wayne County Jail pending a preliminary examination.

Rock gridgers work toward regaining Suburban 8 title

BY KEN VOYLES

After last year's 7-2 record, the Salem football squad is clawing at the chance to regain the Suburban Eight League title and improve its record.

Salem expected to be a contender last year and they expect to be one this year. Coach Tom Moshimer has a young team under his guidance but at the same time there is depth and quality in the key areas.

The Rocks returners are co-captains Joe Garcia and Brian Lewandowski. Those two played quite a bit last year and they head up a list of seniors and juniors with little to no experience.

"We feel you have to have a solid base of seniors with which to build the nucleus of your team. We are bigger than normal this year -- we're normally rather small -- and our team speed happens to be pretty good," said Moshimer.

Salem will average about 200 pounds where it counts, in the interior lines.

Among those working for a position on the offensive line are tackles Marty Piper, Greg Staron and the injured Rob Hanschu. Piper is a 215-pound junior, while Staron is a 210-pound senior and Hanschu, a 210-pound senior.

Seniors John Penders and Steve Szilagyi along with junior Ed Shotzke look to be the key personnel at the guards and center position. Penders and Szilagyi weight in at 190 and Skotzke is at 165 pounds.

Salem is looking for a strong backfield to run the wish-bone offense, that has been its mainstay for about eight years. Four players are candidates for the quarterback position.

Co-captain Garcia, and juniors Geoff Baker, Jeff Hubert and Kirk Soluk are the leading candidates for the position.

Moshimer said that he will likely cut it down to three and then use all three during the year.

"They each have their strong suits. They can run and even pass. We are going to throw the ball more this year. Last year it was maybe eight times a game. This year we might throw 12 times a game," said Moshimer.

Of the quarterbacks, Hubert is the one with the strongest arm, but he may not necessarily be the best passer, according to Moshimer. Garcia and Soluk can throw with more accuracy, said the coach.

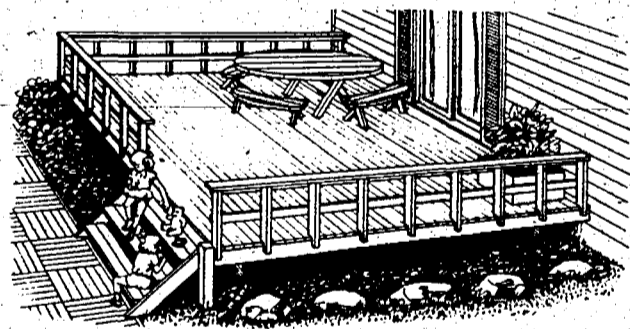

Not only is the quarterback essential to the effective running of the wish bone but a solid group of halfbacks and fullbacks is also very important.

Salem doesn't lack in numbers in that area. Lack of experience is predominate but hard work can offset that hazard.

Lewandowski and senior Dave Skone are the leading candidates for halfback posi-

CANTON SENIOR TRI-CAPTAIN Craig Gears dives for this pass in the Chief red-white scrimmage played Saturday morning. New-look Chiefs gear up for season

BY MIKE HENSHAW

Under the direction of first-year coach Rich Barr, the 1980 version of the Canton football team has undergone many changes with the goal of trying to improve upon last year's winless season.

"We have an average size football team, were not overly big, so we'll have to rely on quickness quite a bit," said Barr, formerly an assistant to Salem coach Tom Moshimer. Barr was selected from a number of candidates for the Canton post following the resignation of Dave Schuele after the Chiefs went 0-9 last season.

A major change Barr will implement into the team is the running of the triple-option wishbone offense, the offense used by Moshimer's Salem squads, replacing the previously used veer offensive attack.

Billy Childs, a senior, will likely run the offense from the quarterback position, backed up by junior Chris Susock and sophomore Pat Murphy.

Childs was a possible starter last year as a junior, but suffered a fractured collarbone in a pre-season scrimmage and missed the entire season.

"With the triple-option offense we obviously are trying to develop a strong running game," said Barr. "We won't be passing a lot, but we should be able to execute on the passes we want to throw."

Senior transfer student Scott Brookhouse will be one of the players Childs will be giving the ball to at fullback, backed up by junior Tom Wennerberg.

At the halfback position, juniors David Simms, new to the district, Steve Hamblin, and Mike Clayton and sophomore Chuck Davis are all fighting for starting positions.

Tri-captain Craig Gears will be one of Childs targets when he drops back to throw, at the tight end position. Gears, a senior, played in the offensive back field last season.

Helping Gears clear the way for the Chief runners will be fellow senior tri-captain Mike Dupuis, at the center position, pushed strongly for the spot by Dennis O'Flynn.

Jeff Couineau, Eddie Peirangeleno, Fred Rumberger, Todd Roberts, Bruce King, and Chuck Farden, Ted Gallardo, and Dave DesAutels are all battling for the remaining positions on the offensive line.

Vying for playing time at the split end position are seniors Todd Abrams, Rob Reed, and Ryan Smith and junior Jamie Chilcoff.

Defensively Canton will line up differently this season also. "We're going to run a 4-3 defense as opposed to a 5-2," said Barr. "This way we'll be able to stop the pass as well as the run. It should give us an advantage going in as most teams plan to work against the 5-2 defense."

Tri-captain Chris Koch will help anchor the Chief defense, at one of the three line-backer positions. John Gray, Rumberger, Cousineau, Brookhouse, and Dupuis are all candidates for the remaining spots.

Jr. baseball program a victim of no local support

BY KEN VOYLES
WHERE IS THE SUPPORT?

At the conclusion of the 1980 season of the Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League, the program, which has been hampered by various problems in the past, once again faces the task of reorganizing and electing new board officers -- those with the task of sailing the local program through stormy waters.

League president Jim Schols will be leaving office after two years of fighting a battle with a heavy ship in rough seas.

With election nominations scheduled for Sept. 10 and the final election in October, the situation Schols leaves behind is one of continuing headaches.

"Where is the support?" Schols says of parent participation in the administration of the 135-team program. Lack of parent involvement and participation has forced the burden to fall heavily on the league's executive board.

League secretary Sandra Netts was the first to spell out the situation as faced by the outgoing board members after ending a full year in office, two for Schols.

Netts mailed some 2,000 letters addressed to the boys and girls of the program and aimed at the parents telling of the upcoming election.

Netts sent the letters out before this month's meeting and response was typical. Two people showed up at the board meeting.

A HISTORY OF NO SUPPORT

Two years ago the president of the Junior Baseball League was Jerry Stevens. When it came to the end of his term he was totally fed up with lack of cooperation and minute response from some 2,600 youths (1,300 youths were in the program).

Stevens appeal reached the local media, and although it came out that he had a legitimate complaint, no more than 80 people showed up for the officer nominations that year.

Nine people showed up at the meeting for the final election and as it turned out they all stepped into positions on the league's executive board.

Schols then took the reins and has held them for two years. His message is the same, lack of parent support, and the additional complaint of too few, and, too poor, baseball diamonds.

"This problem of no parent cooperation has been a problem before I was in charge and it continued when I was the president," said Schols. "If we tried to set up a maintenance detail for example or get parents to help repair the diamonds there was talk and no turnout.

"Nobody would show up, five or six would show up, and many times they were managers or league directors," Schols continued.

Schols put out a plea for assistance last year but the call was largely unheard. In many cases, the response was one of complaint about the league or a team that a son or daughter played on.

Schols has become a somewhat frustrated man in the past two years and yet he feels that his second year in office was more productive than his first.

"Actually I feel sorry for the president coming in. He is going to have a tough task," said Schols.

SCHOLS' YEARS

The league has increased in size. In 1979, the league had gained some 700 youths as the figure jumped from 1,300 to 2,100. This past season the figure settled to 2,000 youths.

This year Schols worked with an operating budget of $50,000. The money coming from registration fees of $14 or $18.

Last year the league obtained some funds with a candy sale and a raffle draw. This year the candy sale was repeated.

DIAMONDS AND DIAMONDS

Besides the ever present lack of support from parents, Schols' other complaint hinges on the lack of baseball diamonds and the poor shape of the existing ones from grade school level to community park level.

"When I go to Wayne or Westland or other small towns it makes me sick to look at their beautiful diamonds," says Schols. "Why can't we have diamonds like that?"

"Well it costs money to start with. We need heavy-duty equipment to strip the existing ones, clean and redo them. Then we need to enlarge our numbers."

There are 67 baseball diamonds in Plymouth-Canton and some of those are in very poor shape. It is a matter of keeping the existing diamonds in repair, with parent and business support, and adding to the 67, to make 100.

Parents are needed to help by doing grounds maintenance and helping with the clean up. Again, even with that small thing it is hard to produce any response.

"The schools obviously can't afford to do it. Though why I can't figure out just yet," said Schols. "Even if they said go and do it, it would have to be done in the summer and where do we play ball."

"What we need frankly is community effort. We can't increase registration costs and still come out fairly. That would hurt somebody and our object is to get the kids playing baseball especially those that want to."

"We can always figure out how to get somebody in the program. We should pool our financial resources for a one-shot deal. That would be to get all the ball diamonds and make them perfect."

"Then to insure good upkeep, hire several people to handle that task," said Schols.

For expenses, at least $10,000 would be needed. In fact, Schols just recently sent out notices to local construction companies that bids are being taken to improve some of the diamonds. The league has the funds to do the job but not completely.

"The funny thing is we haven't got a single response from those companies and it has been some time," said Schols. "I'm not sure what we are going to do."

This really isn't funny."

The Salem High diamond was constructed by a businessman from Pontiac after Schols contacted him. The three-man crew did the job rapidly and they did it well, and it didn't end up costing a cent.

"It just shows, we had to go outside of Plymouth to get help of any kind," Schols said. "It just breaks my heart to see a kid having to play on a diamond that is barely fit for practice."

"The kids deserve better. Even the grade school diamonds are really only good for practice. What we have to do is get the baseball diamonds in top shape any way possible."

PARENTS AND PARENTS

Once a son or daughter registers for the league, the parents become a member of board and have a right to be heard. The major issues are voted by the executive board but Schols said that any contributing parent is recognized.

The biggest response from parents is with the 9-10 year old boys' and the 9-13 years old girls' leagues. Still the average participation is 50 per cent or less.

"This baseball league is just a baby-sitting organization to many of the parents. This is a local program and the parents barely recognize their children and what it means to them," said Schols.

No more than 15 people run the administration end of the program (and do the dirty work) and that is out of some 4,000 parents. "It's unreal," said Schols.

MONEY MATTERS

Like stated early, the league's budget was almost $51,000 for this year and yet costs continue to climb.

Some examples of what the league does with its money may provide a clearer picture.

For example, this year, the league bought 37 new home plates costing $35 apiece. Within three weeks, nine had been stolen. By the end of the year, the figure was half. That means that the league must buy more this year to replace stolen plates. They also have to replace equipment such as home plates as a shortage occurs during the season.

Equipment costs for this season ran $12,000 and Schols isn't sure if the league will have enough for next year. Again more purchases have to be made to replace missing material.

The league also buys uniforms for all its players. A uniform includes shirt, pants and socks. Cost is $17 per youth. Again, many of those uniforms have to be replaced either completely or partially. Schols said that about 60 per cent of the shirts come back to the league.

The league cut back on trophies this year, yet the costs for trophies was $2,800.

Schols budgeted some $16,000 for the ever-expensive umpires this year. The cost came out to be about $15,600 and most of that money goes back into the community since local people do a lot of umpire work.

That cost could go up to $18,000 or even $20,000 by next year.

"This is another thing. A lot of people just don't understand that safe, good equipment is astronomical and that umpires don't come cheap," said Schols.

Gearns and Paul Furioso will hold down the tackle positions with Dan Jarek and Ken Jayroe at the ends.
Clayton, Hamblin, Davis, Abrams, Susock, and Jerry Miles are battling for the cornerback positions while Stimms, Childs, Reed, and Murphy all have a shot at the defensive back positions.
"We started practice very early this summer, worked hard at the Midland camp and have had two practices a day and everybody has been putting out hard," said Barr.

"We're just going to plan for each game, take them one at a time, and see what develops. Canton opens its season on the road against Livonia Bentley Sept. 5 at 7:30. The Chiefs begin Western Six league competition at home Sept. 19 against Farmington Harrison.

Basically by Ken Voyles

Two weekends ago the Canton Open Tennis Tournament was to have been held. The event had been rained out from its original Aug. 1-3 date and was rescheduled for the weekend of Aug. 15-17.

Something happened, however, in between those dates and enthusiasm for a tournament could not be mustered, unlike its counterpart in Plymouth, and the event was scrubbed on the grounds of a lack of interest.

More than 50 persons had signed up for the competition, but, because of the rainout and because of conflicting tennis tournament at Schoolcraft College and in Westland, most of the players cancelled.

According to Canton Parks and Recreation Mike Gouin, a lot of people were committed to the tourney but ended up withdrawing.

"It was just a bad weekend, we could have played several divisions and had a tournament," Gouin said. "As it was, circumstances, were just not right for that weekend."

Gouin also said that pre-tournament publicity wasn't as good as it could have been from the Parks and Recreation end. "Publicity is obviously very important to any event. If a large number of people get word of an event you usually can fill it to a decent size," Gouin said. "We were disappointed by the circumstances, but we still try and hold two tennis tournaments during the summer. At least that way maybe one of the two will fulfill the community's need."

As for the future, Gouin has tentative plans for a bicycle competition including races of various lengths either for this fall or sometime next spring.

"We still have to check some details out before we know which way to go with this," said Gouin.

games, what we do on the board," said Schols. "It's total business and you have to put into it and recognize that point."

"You'll always have a critic and you can always expect the unexpected," he continued. "You are given a small amount of cash to work with and you must adjust and work with that, like any small business."

The executive board of this business (the baseball league) gets the biggest workload. The five members include Schols, two vice presidents, a treasurer and a secretary. They make most of the decisions because of logistics.

There is also another board which is 90 per cent managers. They are the general board and yet because of the difficulty in keeping in touch with managers, who spend time with their teams, the executive board makes the decisions on everything.

"Of course we try to inform everybody of every vote. Sometimes we can't reach more than five or six of the board and we take their votes in as a part of our voting tally," said Schols. "The executive board is the side the public sees and also the side that does the work."

Board members are not paid for their efforts and although it is a thankless job, Schols is not bitter. "I know I sound bitter but it's just disappointment with the people of this community in respect to junior baseball," he said.

"Everything we do is for the kids. It is important to us that the kids get to play at a decent hour and on a decent diamond. That takes money and support.

"It is important for us to keep in contact with the teams, but it is difficult when you can't be personally involved with a team and on the board. There is a supposed conflict of interest and that just pulls us further from the teams," Schols said.

CONCLUSION

Thus the business of Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball seems beset in a torrid storm. To many, the surface looks smooth and calm but the storm is coming and it may leave the program in a shambles.

Only the addition of local support and a strong new executive board will stabilize the situation.

Once again the nomination night is Sept. 10 at 7:30 p.m. in room 128 at Canton High. The election meeting will take place in mid October.

The Crier sports staff has been working on compiling information for a feature on the scholarship-winning athletes of Salem and Canton for the past three weeks.

We have asked for assistance in our efforts and seeing that the piece will not be done when originally scheduled (Aug. 27) but will be complete for the Sept. 10, we still ask for anyone with information about awarded athletes to give Ken Voyles or Mike Henshaw a call at 453-6900. If we're not in, leave a message and the call will be returned.

After seven weeks of league play in the Canton Parks and Recreation Fox Hills Men's Golf League, there is a two-way tie for first position between Larry Slade and Steve Moraca and the pair of Dick Kraft and Tony Valenti. Each team has a total of 24 points.

Slade and Moraca scored four points from Merph Eminger and Charlie Sheets, while Kraft and Valenti took four and a half points from Paul Oberhelman and Mike Moggio. Valenti carded the best round of the week as he turned in a 37 score. Moggio posted a 38, while Jack Koers, Kraft and Jake Dingeldey all had 40s.

The Plymouth Jaycees are sponsoring a double-elimination softball tournament Aug. 29-31 at Massey Field with proceeds for sodding the field and installing a watering system.

The entrance fee is $75 for the first 16 B and C teams to enter, with league rosters only.

The first place team will receive a team trophy and each member will also receive a trophy. The second-place team will be awarded a team trophy.

To enter the tournament or for more information, call Randy Shoemaker at 937-1400 until 5 p.m. and then at 455-2248.

Salem prepares for season opener against Franklin tions, while senior Bob Pittaway, junior Pat Tortora and sophomore Dave Slavin will fill out the halfback list.

Fullbacks include junior Darrel Bartkowiak, senior Ron Brewer and junior Andy Crook. Skone could also be switched to fullback, said Moshimer.

Salem is one of the few area schools that really puts an emphasis on the defensive side of the sport. The Rocks spend no less than half their practice time studying defense.

"We emphasize defense like crazy. We'll have to rely on our defense because as I said we aren't a catch-up type team, mainly because we run from the option," said Moshimer.

Defensively, Moshimer is looking at senior Richard Wooley to lead the interior line. Hanschu will also be top man up front when he returns from his injury.

Along with Wosley, Staron and Piper, at tackles, additions are senior Dan Gannod and juniors Matt Rulmann and Doug Bemiss. Senior Wayne Craig will also find a spot in that defensive front line.

Penders and Szilagyi will be in action, at linebacker positions along with Bartkowiak. Senior Jeff Scott, junior Joe Roberts and Skotzke also will help anchor the line-backing department.

Defensive ends will include Kitz, Pittaway, Workman and Slavin, while the secondary unit has a large number of potential starters.

Broken down into two groups they read, Skone and Garcia at the corners, Lewandowski at the strong safety and Soluk at the free safety. The second group includes Geoff Baker and Hubert as strong safety and free safety and Brewer and junior Jeff Swanson at the corner positions.

"We are going to have to rest people this year so we will be using a lot of personnel. We think we have some depth and we're just trying to find out how much and where before the season starts," said Moshimer. "The team attitude is real good and, although we are short on experience, this is a strong group and we can be competitive.

"The only thing I see right now hurting us is that we have thrown a lot at the team, more than ever before, and therefore we have had to sacrifice on execution," the coach continued. "We now have what we need, the rest is polish."

"We have a lot of kids in a lot of positions and in some cases it's too equal to tell right now. We'll have to wait for the season," said Moshimer. "Our type of offense can be explosive but most of the time you have to be patient with it. We don't run a catch-up offense so we will depend on our defense, as we have in the past."

Finally, the offensive receivers include seniors Mark Kitz and Gary Workman fighting for a tight-end position. Juniors Doug Galliers and Dan Fisher are also among the possible Salem receivers.

Senior Jim Spooner also looks strong for a split-end spot. Spooner was with the team last year but didn't start.

Moshimer said that two things give Salem an edge this year. "First is the overall strength of our defensive unit and second is the better balance we can have between our passing and running game. We will throw more and as usual depend on our defense."

"We have the base to say that we have a good football team. Obviously our foremost goal is the league championship," Moshimer said.

Among the tough teams in that Suburban Eight League will be Trenton, Dearborn and Dearborn Edsel Ford.

"The Sub Eight is always a four-team battle or at the least a three-team fight," said Moshimer. "We expect to be in that fight."

The Rocks open their year with a home game against Livonia Franklin on Friday, Sept. 5. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

First Edition wins Massey

First Edition from Westland won the Massey Tournament of Champions last weekend going 4-0 in the tourney that involved two top squads from Plymouth, Garden City, Wayne, Redford, Westland and Livonia.

First Edition won four straight games while Jamie's of Westland went 4-2 to finish second. Massey of Plymouth ended the tourney in third with a 3-2 record.

Massey opened up action with a 18-14 victory over Russ' Army from Garden City. The squad then fell to First Edition 28-10, came back and beat Richard's of Livonia 21-11, defeated Johnson's Carbonic 6-5, and lost to Jamie's 14-13.

In that contest, Jamie's tallied six runs in the seventh inning for the win.

Johnson's Carbonic of Wayne was fourth with a 4-2 record, while Richard's and Silver's Bar were next at 2-2 and 1-2, respectively.

Finland of Plymouth was also 2-2 and Russ' Army was 1-2.

The final four teams were defeated in their first two games: Carriage House of Redford, Oldtimer's Bar of Livonia, Pitman's of Wayne and Fisher's of Redford.

Finland started the tournament with an 18-4 victory over Fisher's. They then lost to Silver's 9-5 and defeated Carriage House 23-5. Richard's finally knocked Finland out of the running with a 13-10 win.
