How golf courses helped townships' budgets in '82

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

December showers have brought unhappy moments to skiers and sledgers in the area, but golfers have been in ecstasy this year since the beginning of this extended fall weather.

The two municipally-owned golf courses in the area, Hilltop Golf Course and Fellows Creek Course are both operating presently. And if extended warm weather means an extended golf season, then it also means increased profits for Plymouth and Canton townships.

Both Hilltop and Fellows Creek are township-run golf courses. Hilltop is owned by Plymouth Township; Fellows Creek is presently being purchased by Canton Township under a 15-year-bond plan.

Although the courses are both 18 hole links, both Plymouth and Canton township officials are quick to say that a comparison of the two is difficult due to the variety of conditions under which the courses were established.

The profits which these two courses have brought into their respective townships are only roughly comparable.

Fellows Creek, located at 2936 South Lotz Road in Canton Township, was first purchased in the spring of 1978. Canton Recreation Supervisor Mike Gouin said that although the township received a lot of negative publicity about the purchase, the course has paid for itself.

"It should be stressed that not one tax dollar has ever gone into the course," Gouin said. "Improvements have been paid for with funds collected from green fees and cart rentals," he said.

Canton Township will have paid $1,000,000 for the course when its bond payments are complete in 1993. Finance Director for Canton, Mike Gorman, said that the township received a $200,000 grant from the state to help pay for the course, so the township's cost will actually only be $800,000.

Payments on the course are made annually and are approximately $75,000. An initial downpayment of $250,000 was placed on the course in 1978.

Murder victim found

CANTON POLICE REPORTED THAT the body of an Inkster man was discovered Dec. 26 by a rabbit hunter seeking game in a field between Van Born Road and Michigan Avenue, off of Haggerty Road. The victim was identified through fingerprints by the Michigan State Police as James Earl Belcher, 33. Belcher had been missing since July 4, according to state police reports.

Lieutenant Larry Stewart of the Canton Police Department said the victim's lower right jaw bone was broken. There was also a single, small caliber gun shot wound in the head. Stewart said the shooting could have been an execution-style murder. Police are unsure whether Belcher died at the scene or was transported there and dumped.

Police estimate that the body had been in the field for at least 60 to 90 days. Stewart said that police investigators are presently trying to sort through at least 50 possible motives for the slaying.

Police talked to suspect just before fatal crash

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

The man charged in a Dec. 17 Canton accident which claimed the life of a 34-year-old Canton mother was brought to the attention of police just an hour and a half before the Cherry Hill Road crash.

According to Plymouth Police, they were called to investigate a robbery suspect who turned out to be William Matney, 25, of Alamo Court in Westland at 3:53 p.m. Dec. 17. (Matney was not wanted for robbery, police said.)

In response to a caller who reported, "A man in the driveway is wanted for robbery," Plymouth Police said they sent several squad cars to 1135 Starkweather. There, they said, they found Matney parked in the drive by the apartment of his former wife. The call and the activity at the scene appeared to be the result of a domestic dispute, police said.

Matney's former wife told police that he was drinking in his car. Plymouth officers then checked a container of orange juice and his breath and found no suspicion of alcohol, according to Plymouth Police Lt. Ralph White.

Police said that Matney did not appear intoxicated and that he was allowed to leave at about 4:10 p.m. Two Plymouth officers followed him a short distance and saw nothing erratic about his driving, White said.

At approximately 5:30 p.m., a three car crash on Cherry Hill at Sheldon claimed the life of Madonna Tharp, of Sincoc Street, Canton, who was the passenger in a car driven by her son.

Matney has been charged in that accident and, according to Canton police, was found to be intoxicated when given a breathalyzer test. A witness, who followed Matney after he allegedly left the scene of the crash, told police that Matney was driving without his headlights on.

Plymouth Police, upon learning of the fatal crash, filed a report on their having met Matney, although "We wouldn't normally have had a report," White said.

Out on bond, Matney skips manslaughter court date

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

William Matney, 25, of Alamo Court in Westland, failed to show for his 9 a.m. arraignment at 35th District Court in Plymouth Monday, according to the court.

As a result of his actions, a bench warrant has been issued for his arrest, Canton Police said.

Matney was arrested Dec. 17 on a charge of manslaughter after Canton Police reported that the car he was driving struck another broadside, killing one of the occupants of the car he hit.

Police said Matney was intoxicated when he was arrested minutes after he fled the scene of the accident.

Killed in the collision was Madonna Tharp, 34, of Sincoc Street in Canton. Her son, Eric, was driving when Matney allegedly smashed into the side of their vehicle.

The younger Tharp was slightly injured in the accident, but he was treated and released.

Matney, meanwhile, was transported to 17th District Court in Westland where he was arraigned and released after posting 10 per cent of a $10,000 personal bond.

Fire leaves Twp. family homeless for Christmas

IT WASN'T A merry Christmas for the Richard Aldrin family because an electrical fire confined to the basement of their Clemmons Street Plymouth Township home caused $20,000 worth of damage to the dwelling last Wednesday. The Aldrins spend Christmas at the Plymouth Hilton Inn, and township fire officials speculate it'll be close to six months before the family can move back in. At right, Fire Chief Larry Groth heads back into the Aldrin residence to check out the damage. (Crier photos by Mark Constantine and Cheryl Eberwein)

Until Attorney General rules

Flodin keeping 'Sterlini tapes' under his bed

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Canton Township won't experience any foul tape play -- ala Rosemary Woods -- as long as Clerk John Flodin is in office.

Flodin said Monday that the debated Canton Township tapes which record conversations held between the Canton Township Board and Canton Treasurer Maria Sterlini are stored at his home "for safekeeping."

The tapes are official recordings of the events which took place during closed session hearings which the board held with the treasurer over personnel problems earlier this year.

Flodin will keep the tapes at his home pending an opinion from Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley on whether or not they are public information which must be released.

Kelley has been asked to render a decision on whether or not the contents of the tapes should be released in a joint request by the Canton Board and The Community Crier.

"As far as I'm concerned, they (the tapes) are my responsibility," Flodin said. "I have a vault at work, but someone may have a key to it. As long as they are at my home, I know where they are and that they are safe," he said.

Christmas past remembered by P-C residents

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Ah, Christmas, how you have changed in the past 50 years. No longer is your flowing cloak of holiday cheer embroidered with family celebrations and religious significance.

Today, it's the commercialism of Pac Man video games and E.T. dolls which winds its way across your seams.

"The meaning of Christmas has changed for people today. There is no closeness in The Community like there once was. I remember feeling far closer to people years ago," said Dorothy West, the former president of the Canton Historical Society.

Recently, several Plymouth and Canton residents recalled Christmas celebrations from years past. Their memories were filled with fond thoughts of what Christmas once meant to them. These thoughts were highlighted by the changes they saw in the holiday.

Fifty years ago, the Plymouth-Canton

Community was a sparsely populated farm area. Christmas traditions were based firmly upon the family, West recalled.

"We did many, many things around Christmas which brought us together. There were ice skating parties, pot luck dinners, dances, quilting bees, nativity plays, caroling parties and box socials to name only a few," she said.

The decorating of the community church was always a big affair "because the religious significance of Christmas was very important back then" West recalled.

Huge pine trees were dragged into the churches by the men of The Community. Sometimes the trees stood 20 feet tall and went from the ceiling to the floor of the church. Paper chains, pop corn and cranberry garlands and candles gave the tree holiday glimmer.

"The candles were never lit for very long because of the danger of fire," West said, "But while they were lit, it was a beautiful sight."

Sanford Burr, president of the Plymouth Historical Society, mentioned that paper cones were a popular holiday tree decoration. "They were hung on the tree the night before Christmas, and were filled with sweet treats of some kind," he said.

Unlike holiday celebrations today, which are firmly based upon the idea of receiving numerous gifts, both Burr and West mentioned that Christmas presents were a rarity back then.

"If you received anything for Christmas, it was usually a very utilitarian gift-like clothes or food," Burr said.

Occasionally, a child would receive a toy for a gift-- perhaps a doll or a toy fire truck-- but these were very rare Burr said.

Sleigh rides and horse and buggy rides were the only way to travel in those early days when few people had cars. "I use to ride in a bobsled to school on very cold days," West said.

One thing which hasn't changed dramatically in fifty years, is the holiday emphasis on feasting and good food. Pantries groaned under the weight of freshly baked pies and cookies and smoke cured hams. Holiday treats like onion pies and sweet taffy for the children were always a part of the family's holiday celebration.

Burr and West mentioned that the greatest holiday gift a child could receive in those days is, today, a standard part of many holiday menus.

"Oranges, huge, juicy ones from California were a real holiday gift. We didn't have many oranges back then and when you got one-- boy were you lucky!" West fondly remembered.

"Things have really changed alot since those Christmases. The Community just doesn't celebrate with the same ideas it used to. Families and friends are further apart today, and traditions just don't emphasize the things which Christmas once represented," West said with a hint of regret in her voice.

Fellows Creek, Hilltop courses post record years

Canton's course agreement calls for an annual township collection of 50 per cent of the courses green fees and cart rentals. The township profit from the course depends upon how the course has done for the year.

The township is guaranteed a minimum annual profit of $100,000 from the course. If green fees and cart rental fees are in excess of this amount, Canton will receive 50 per cent of this revenue.

Gouin said that the township has made in excess of the minimal $100,000 annually on the course since it opened. In 1978 the township's share of the profit was $123,779. In 1979 this amount rose to $128,389; in 1980 township profits were $134,921; and in 1981 the profit rose to $156,492.

Gouin said that the township profits for 1982 are the highest the course has seen. The course brought in $184,804 for 1982.

Hilltop Golf Course, located at 47000 Powell in Plymouth Township, has operated under a different plan. According to Township Supervisor Maurice Breen, Plymouth Township owns the golf course outright. It received, until 1982, 50 per cent of the green fees. In 1982, the township signed an agreement with the golf course manager, John Jawor, to also receive $5,500 from golf cart rental fees from the course.

Hilltop was a nine hole course until 1981. In 1981 the links were expanded to 18 holes. This expansion is reflected in the profit figures which the course shows for the past five years.

Township profits for Hilltop in 1978 were $6000. Profits in 1979 rose to $28,000; in 1980 they dropped to $22,000. This drop, Breen explained, was due to construction of a new club house.

In 1981 township profits went up to $39,295; and in 1982, the first year the course opened with 18 holes, profits for the township rose to $116,843.

Breen said that in the past five years, Plymouth Township has invested $1,400,000 in capital improvements into the course. These improvements include such things as landscaping and the construction of the club house.

Breen said that township tax dollars were used to finance improvements on the course.

Gouin said that Canton Township shares 50 per cent of the maintenance and equipment responsibilities for its course with Dan Ross, its manager. The cost of this maintenance and equipment, however, is funded through revenues which the golf course itself generates.

Canton is currently examining the possibility of expanding its course to 27 holes. "The current course club house is very old and we would like to build a new one," Gouin said. "The best way to finance this venture is to expand our course to 27 holes." The Canton Board of Trustees has given formal approval to continue investigation of land acquisition for the expansion.

Revenues from the Fellows Creek course have provided money for other recreational facilities in Canton, Gouin said. Approximately $35,000 in golf course revenues were used to help landscape and provide park equipment for Flodin Park last year.

Breen said that $500,000 of Hilltop's township revenues was used to expand Hilltop from nine to 18 holes. "There was some debate about whether the revenues should have been used to renovate township hall or put into more recreation facilities," Breen said. "The money was used to expand the course, however."

New inmate hangs self at DeHoCo

A Detroit man hung himself on the first day of his term in the Detroit House of Correction in Plymouth Township, according to the State Police.

Michael Montgomery, 19, of Detroit, was found hanged by his bedsheet in a ward at about 11:10 p.m. on Dec. 20, say police. Although there were 27 other inmates in the ward, he had moved his bed into the shower room and hung himself from a shower head after lights were turned off, said police.

Montgomery had just been admitted to DeHoCo for a one-year term for receiving stolen property. He had been released from DeHoCo about two months ago, police said.

Reistration for this program will begin Thursday, Jan. 13 at 10 a.m.

The final segment of the "Back to Books" program deals with young adult literature. Mrs. Kay Grabbe, a Wayne County Young Adult Librarian, will explore the question of what young adults are reading and why. Registration for the program begins on Thursday, Jan. 20 at 10 a.m.

Thank you, Starkweather

EDITOR:

Starkweather School is to be highly commended for doing an outstanding service.

On Dec. 14, Starkweather, under the leadership of their principal John Howe, held its fifth annual Christmas dinner party for a senior citizen group called the "Crediters," sponsored by the Plymouth Community Family Y and the Community Federal Credit Union. Seventy five senior citizens arrived at the school at 1 p.m. for the gala event.

A delicious turkey dinner was served under the direction of Ernestine Reddmann, head of the Starkweather kitchen staff with assistance from Elanor Nelson and volunteers Lynn Hoehn and Ann Sheardown. Richard Johnson's fifth and sixth grade students did a professional job of waiting tables, pouring coffee and tea, and making sure everyone's desires were taken care of.

Following the dinner, Johnson's students entertained the group. Piano pieces were played by Lori Roe, Amy West and Dylan Spratling. A beautiful tap dance was performed by Linda Potvin. A square dance demonstration was performed by the whole class with Howe, himself, doing the calling. The party ended with group participation in singing Christmas songs led by the fifth and sixth graders.

We truly appreciate the grand effort by the whole school to bring about this event and the interaction between the youth and senior citizens was a wonderful happening.

Note JV wrestlers' tourneys

EDITOR:

As the 1983 wrestling season begins, I would like to make a suggestion which I feel would make the Junior Varsity teams of Salem and Canton happy.

Please give these boys some mention in the paper.

During the 1982 season the JV was ignored, none of their meets or tournaments were even given honorable mention.

There boys work just as hard as the Varsity, some of them, at various times, even wrestle varsity, and yet it is as though they do not exist.

I am sure that some mention of the JV would make these boys very happy.

Want to throw a monkey wrench into Plymouth Township government?

The township board has left itself wide open for getting caught red-handed trying to explain how taxpayers' dollars are used. Expense accounts for township officials are not being backed up with receipts detailing how the money is spent.

No one is saying that the expense allotments are too large, it's just that the board is not requiring that the money be accounted for. Thus, while Township Supervisor Maurie Breen may legitimately spend the $3,000 in expense money allowed by the board (actually he spends more than he's allowed by digging in his own pocket), he doesn't necessarily have to turn over an accounting of the way it was spent.

Those taxpayers who must careful detail expenses to the Internal Revenue Service probably find this appalling and any citizen who wants to track down how the township expense accounts are used might be out of luck.

Certainly the money should be accounted for.

Now back to the original question - monkey-wrenching township government. Any citizen who waited a few months for township expense money to be spent without the morally-required, but township-board-ignored receipts, could file for an accounting under the Freedom of Information Act and require the township to dig back and reconstruct expenditures.

Wouldn't it be easier - and certainly healthier for the taxpayers - to keep the receipts in the first place?

Without requiring them, it simply appears that the township board is trying to hide who Maurie takes out to lunch.

Take school finances off property tax bills

EDITOR:

I'd like to comment on the (Dec. 22 Crier) article on the city fire chief's taxes.

As you can see, nobody can escape the high cost of owning or buying a home these days by means of taxes and assessments -- let alone payments or utilities.

Everybody is getting the short end of the stick nowadays on property taxes they have to pay, but if one looks at the breakdown of property taxes, they would see that the school system eats up just about all of the taxes that are paid in.

I think somebody, somewhere could think of a different way of financing education other than the property owner. Possible alternatives could be sales taxes and state income tax increases.

By eliminating these school taxes on property owners, it would make tax statements a little easier to swallow. As an example, my tax bill was about $1,200 on my house and property, but the schools' share was about $825, leaving $375 to divide up into township tax, county tax, community college tax, intermediate school district tax, metro parks tax, fire and police protection and the water-sewer department. Eight other units have to split $375 while the school district takes $825.

Then, when, for example, the fire or police ask for a one or two mill increase, everybody yells, "My taxes are high enough," but don't know the increase is only about $20 per year.

If school taxes were taken off the property owner, maybe everybody could afford to pay taxes without complaining, because, as an example, my taxes would be only $375. That's a lot easier to pay than $1,200.

I don't know what (Plymouth Fire) Chief (Roy) Hall pays in school taxes compared to the rest of his property taxes, but I'm sure it would be $2,400 to about $800 (other taxes) by estimate.

I am also sure the appraisals are way overboard, because of the poor economic climate these days. All we can do is holler to get them reappraised, but by eliminating the school tax on property owners would be a real relief.

A PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP PROPERTY OWNER

Will assessments lead to 'Boston Tea Party'?

EDITOR:

Most of the homeowners in the Plymouth area are aware of the rapidly escalating tax assessments over the past two to three years.

We are being victimized by, in some cases, less than qualified tax appraisers and high assessments because the trend has always been to raise the tax assessments. Their thinking seems to be that, because of inflation, the value of the home must automatically increase and we should be happy to know that it has become so valuable.

To this, I say, "Humbug."

The current law states "establishing a TRUE CASH VALUE." We are seeing appraisers completely disregard this principle and raising assessments on what they think a home will sell for. There appears to be a blatant disregard for the real market value.

The City of Plymouth has hired Great Lakes Appraisal Service to reappraise homes and they are coming up with unrealistic appraisals with discrepancies as high as $60,000 above true value. This certainly keeps the city and county tax coffers filled while many home owners are desperately trying to pay these over-inflated taxes. In other cases, home owners are not able to pay.

I have made two trips to our City Hall to the second floor chambers and have been appalled at the situation where thousands of home owners and our senior citizens, in particular, are being forced to wait in long lines for hours to try to show how unfair and unrealistic these escalated appraisals are. This is almost the same as the automatic rate increases for the utilities.

This whole situation is reminiscent of the Boston Tea Party, not so many years ago -- taxation without proper representation. I urge all of our citizens to fight this blatant disregard of real values and our rights.

If necessary, have an honest appraisal made of your home and present it at these hearings. In many cases, the appraisals being prepared by the city and state are overvalued "guesstimates" based on the highest valued home that may have sold in your area. We cannot tolerate this situation any longer. Call a local real estate appraiser now, and get armed with the facts.

On murder and mortality

Sometimes, I suspect, we all tend to refuse to face our own mortality.

Death and dying is something that happens to someone else, not to us.

Violent deaths, particularly murders and highway fatalities, are happenings we read and hear about all the time in newspapers and on the TV news.

Yes, there are those times when a loved one or a close friend dies and we have to admit death is as much a part of life as birth.

But walking into a funeral home and paying our last respects to Uncle Bob is almost like going over to his house and looking at him asleep on the sofa.

His death isn't really driven home until we depart from the cemetery, leaving his mortal remains behind to be interred in the ground.

But, then, out of sight is out of mind and within a couple of hours, after a few drinks at his wake, Uncle Bob becomes yesterday's news. Hey, he was a nice guy, but he's gone and life goes on.

Sunday afternoon I faced my own mortality for the first time in my life, and I don't mind saying I was a little shook.

A body was found out in a field off Haggerty Road between Michigan Avenue and Van Born Road in Canton Township, and I was on the scene to record the event on film.

I waited off to the side a good 25 yards away from the body for about 30 minutes while the Michigan State Police Crime Lab people went over the scene looking for clues. When they were finished, I was allowed to come over and see what all the fuss was about.

I didn't have to be an expert to tell the body had been there for at least 30 days. To say the scene was gruesome would be an understatement.

I'd like to act real macho and flippantly say the sight of that unfortunate soul laying on the ground didn't bother me at all. But I can't.

Don't get me wrong, I wasn't about to toss my cookies. I just kept thinking about the man and his family and the person or persons who killed him and dumped him in the field.

(Personnel from the Medical Examiner's office told the police on the scene foul play was definitely involved because there was a bullet hole in the head of the body and the skull was cracked.)

Plus, I'd never seen a body outside a funeral home setting, and believe me it's a lot different than walking in and paying your last respects to Uncle Bob.

I suppose I'm just not as cold and callous as the police and Medical Examiner's people appear to be.

It's my guess, however, that they are affected just as much as I was by a scene like the one out in that field Sunday, only they have to mask their feelings because they encounter situations like that one all the time.

As for myself, I want to live forever. And with all the strides doctors and researchers are making in the field of medicine maybe I will. But, after seeing that body Sunday, I'm not betting on it.

Appraisals maintain City Hall living standard

EDITOR:

I read the story of the Plymouth Fire Chief's tax ripoff with sympathy and interest.

There are many others of us who are on fixed incomes and who are being similarly victimized by City Hall. The recent appraisal by Great Lakes Appraisal Co. was a boondoggle perpetrated on the citizens who naively expected an appraisal that did truly reflect market values.

Instead we received appraisals that were conceived and calculated to maintain the standard of living that the City Hall bureaucrats and the unconceding unions have become accustomed to and which they intend to continue to enjoy -- regardless of the conditions out here in the real world.

Plymouth is presently known as the City of Homes; I predict that unless City Hall acts with integrity and honesty to its taxpayers, it will be known as the City of Renters and Phantom Property Owners -- or C.R.A.P.P.O. City for short.

Who do the city commissioners represent? Is it the taxpayers? Evidently not.

Woodman-spare my trees!

EDITOR:

This is to the THIEF, who, year after year, cuts my trees for the Christmas holiday.

A tree is a symbol of love and goodness, neither quality which you possess. Taking something that belongs to others is just plain stealing.

I am an avid gardener and feel very badly about your sub-human behavior and the nerve you display in trespassing on someone's property.

You know where I live since you have stolen from me two years in a row; next year (if you are so poor) please leave a message and I will buy you a tree for Christmas. At least I can write it off as a charitable contribution and not have to take $100 out of my pocket to replace my tree.

Mr. Thief -- I hope you have a lousy 1983.

Just a thought...

by Rebecca Beach

This is goodbye

I'm writing this column under protest.

All my life I've been what is politely referred to as "an extrovert," which means that I can't keep a secret or my mouth shut.

Being an extrovert is not cool. Cool people are quiet and slick, I think it perpetrates an air of mystery for cool people to slide in and out like that.

One thing that cool people do is never tell anyone what they are up to. They always sort of "forget" to tell you that they're getting married or that they're four months pregnant or that they won the lottery.

I, on the other hand, always end up boring everyone around me with up-to-the-minute details of my life.

If I were cool, for instance, no one at The Crier would have known I was quitting until I was gone. But all my fellow employees knew about it from the start.

If I were cool, I would have slipped out and never felt the need to mention some of the wonderful people I've had the pleasure of meeting during the last six months. People like Plymouth police dispatcher Johnny Lodge, Chief Carl Berry and the rest of the force (that seems to work considerably more often than eight hours a day). City Manager Henry Graper, Jr., Mayor Bud Martin, City Engineer Ken West and DPW supe Ken Vogr (the editorial about you prompted my first law suit threat).

Do-ers like Sharon Thomas of the Plymouth Housing Commission (awe-inspiring for those who think they lead a busy life); Sarah Delmore of the Council on Aging (if it were up to me, this woman would be knocking them dead at the Uris) and all the volunteers of all the teams, charitable groups, senior citizen projects and community betterment ideas that have made The Plymouth-Canton Community incredibly aware and active.

I wouldn't take the time to thank the Plymouth Township people I've known, like Joe Attard, township building official (you were my very first set of quotes); Supervisor Maurice Breen (I never called you Maurice); Shirley Rumberger (you know EVERYTHING!) and Cathy Broadbent (ok, ok, I SWEAR I won't quote you, NOW will you tell me if Breen's out to lunch?).

If I were slick I wouldn't bother to thank some of the people that really made my job a joy, people like Ernie Archer and his magnificent marigolds; Kathy Bove and her horses; Clarence DuCharme and Don Skinner from the Community Fund; Marge Mitchell and Ruth Jacobs from the Plymouth Historical Museum; William R. Joyner and Natalie Carroll.

And if I were really hip, people that I work with wouldn't even get a handshake. People like Mark Constantine, who turned into a great friend and compadre (and is working on becoming a half-way decent feminist); Bob Cameron (who snarls a lot but is a big puppy); Phyllis Redfern (I STILL don't know how she does it), Haggerty, Bobbi, Arnie, Michelle, Valda, Gail, Fran, Jackie, Nancy, Cynthia, Karen, Gwen, Kathy, Chris, Ann, Ardis; Joe and Cheryl Eberwein, who is learning the ropes so fast it's embarrassing.

That's IF I were cool.

But...

It was just a small jaunt to Hong Kong weekend

BY MICHELLE WILSON

Four-day weekends don't usually leave much time to do anything, much less visit any exotic locales.

Usually,

Emily Guettler, of Emily's World Travel, Inc., however, is an example of what a smart traveler with the right connections can accomplish all in the space of 96 hours.

She recently jetted off to Hong Kong for a whirlwind tour of the Asian port, leaving Thursday morning and returning home Sunday night.

"I'm very fortunate to have never experienced jet lag," said Guettler, a 28-year veteran of the travel business.

And, if she was ever going to come down with a case of jet lag, this recent junket to the land of the rising sun would have been the time, after all, the flight was only 19 hours one way.

But wait, there's more. Since the Hong Kong is situated on the other side of the international date line, she had a 13 hour-plus one day time difference to adjust to.

"I find riding an airplane a relaxing way to pass time," she insisted. "I read books -- one there and one-and-a-half of another on the way back. I also slept a lot."

Guettler couldn't beat the price -- it was free. One of her customers booked 30 flights on Northwest Orient Airlines and, as a result, both he and Guettler received a free ticket.

After the long flight to the Orient, Guettler had two nights and one full day to explore the wonders on the ancient city on the shores of the China Sea.

She left Hong Kong Sunday morning and lost a day when she re-crossed the international date line, arriving in Seattle Sunday morning.

"I highly recommend it as a great thing to do for the weekend," Guettler said with her tongue planted firmly in her cheek. "When I could go anywhere in the world with only 24 hours to spend there, I couldn't think of a place that would be more fun."

Guettler's place is located at 708 S. Main and will be celebrating its first anniversary in January of 1983.

Real Mandarin menu graces new Pagoda Inn

"Real" Chinese food, not just its Americanized version, is offered at the Pagoda Inn, The Plymouth-Canton Community's newest eatery.

"Chinese don't eat chop suey, it's American-Chinese food made to suit American taste," said Maria Leung, co-owner of the Pagoda Inn.

Most Chinese restaurants in the area serve Cantonese food like chop suey. The kind most Chinese eat -- Mandarin -- isn't served because many owners are afraid Americans won't like it, according to Leung.

Mandarin food is prepared from ingredients available only at Chinese groceries. The Pagoda Inn also features Szechuan, which is spicy hot and from the north of China.

Staniforth promoted

Information from the Fruehauf Division of the Fruehauf Corporation will soon be coming from a new source.

Plymouth's James Staniforth recently was named the Vice President for Information Services, according to Fruehauf Division President George Malley.

A 14-year veteran with Fruehauf, Staniforth comes to his new position after six years as Director of Management Services for the Fruehauf Corporation.

Planning and developing the Fruehauf Division's information systems will keep occupied, and he will be based at the Fruehauf Corporation's World Headquarters in Detroit.

Staniforth lives in Plymouth with his wife Barbara and their three children. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree for Loyola University and a MBA from the University of Michigan.

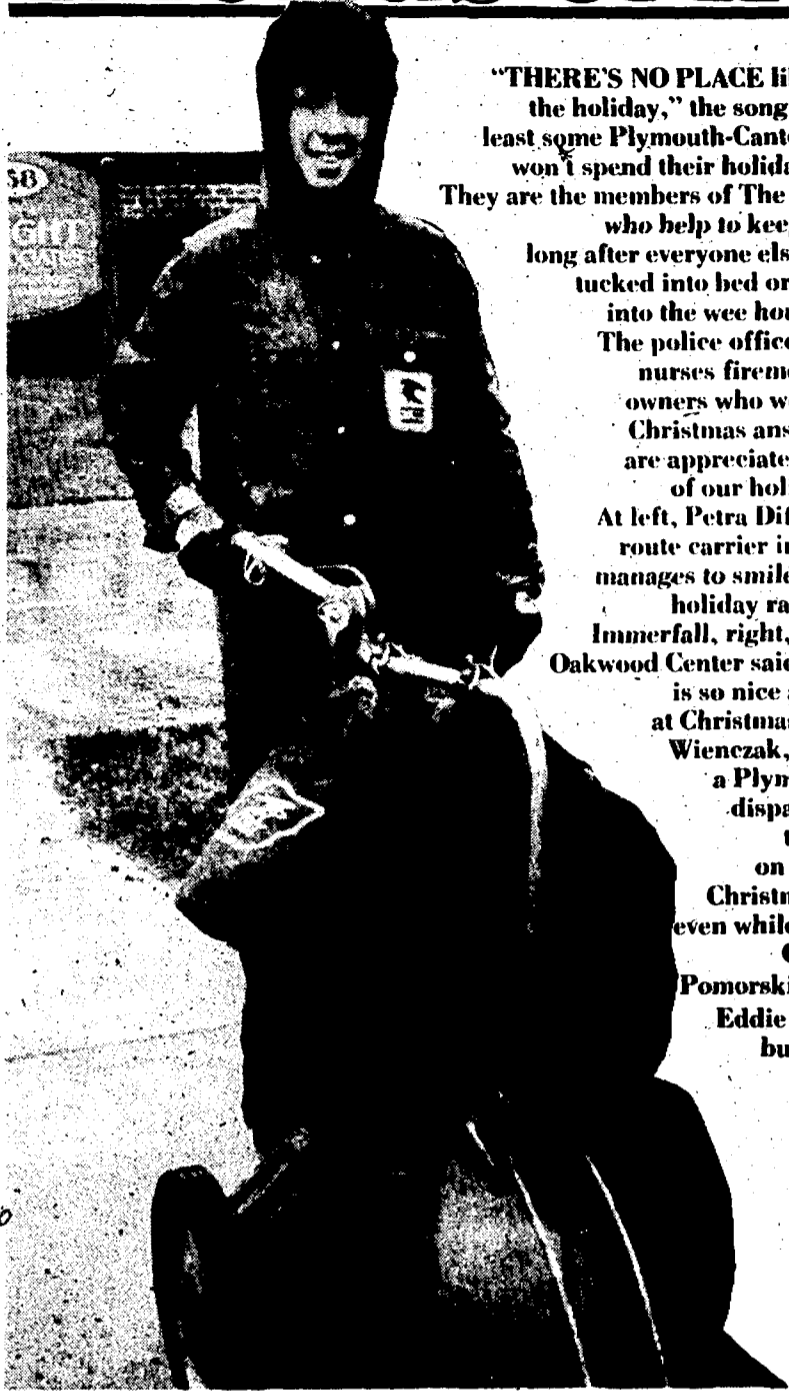

Hungry visitors to the Pagoda Inn, which is on Ann Arbor Road near Sheldon, can also sit down to a meal of Polynesian food. Polynesian food comes from Hawaii and uses a lot of pineapples and tomatoes.

Leung and her husband, Ming Leung, originally hail from Hong Kong, where he learned Madarin cooking.

In many ways, the growth of The Plymouth-Canton Community during 1982 was fortunate if it equalled inflation.

Housing starts were nil, and the difficult economic times meant that fewer existing houses were sold. Thus the population was more stable than it was in any other year of the past decade.

But despite the stalled economy, there was significant growth in the business sector here. The new construction seen in Plymouth-Canton was almost entirely commercial and industrial in nature.

This year The Crier's annual "Growth" section focuses on business growth in Plymouth-Canton.

How Cloverdale grew through 50 years

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

CLOVERDALE'S popular lunch counter and dairy bar.

In 50 years, Cloverdale Farms Dairy grew from a milk route to a town gathering spot and one of the last independent ice cream manufacturers.

The Forest Avenue location blends both one of the last remaining downtown Plymouth lunch counters with the ice cream manufacturing plant that serves some 40 retail outlets.

Now owned by the Tomlinson family, Cloverdale was started as a restaurant and dairy outlet by Herman Bakhaus in 1933, after he'd delivered milk from his family's South Lyon farm here in town for three years.

Originally, the business was located in a building that sat next to the uncovered Tonquish Creek on Ann Arbor Trail where the Round Table Club now stands.

Bakhaus moved the store and restaurant into its present location on Forest in April, 1948 (while Forest was still a gravel road) "because we needed more room for processing."

(The former Cloverdale owner laments that he's been unable to find any photographs of the original store although there is a movie made in 1936 which shows the inside of the restaurant and plant.)

In 1971, Bakhaus sold a bit of stock to faithful employees - Jim Tomlinson, his plant manager, and Tony Gonzalez, his sales manager. When he decided to retire in May, 1974, Bakhaus sold the business to his two proteges.

Tomlinson bought out Gonzalez not long after and the business has since passed to his former wife, Joyce, (the principal owner) and sons, Jim Jr. and Bob.

With competition in the industry as keen as it is, Cloverdale stopped processing milk in 1976 - but continues as one of the few remaining ice cream manufacturers in southeastern Michigan.

Plus Commerce, industry led community growth

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

By far and away, the significant building growth in The Plymouth-Canton Community during 1982 was commercial and industrial in nature.

Although there is some reason to believe that residential building is making a cautious comeback, the past year was nothing like the boom times of the late 1970s.

According to Ken West, engineer for the City of Plymouth, and Aaron Machnik, chief of Canton's building department, most of the local building during 1982 -- in terms of valuation -- was for commerce and industry.

Plymouth had two major industrial construction jobs begin during the year. The Mortell Co. addition on Industrial Drive and the Midway Welding building on Mill Street were each valued at $90,000.

Canton's industrial growth put development at better than $1 million for the months of June and July. The Detroit Water Storage Facility, still under construction on Joy Road just east of Morton Taylor, was begun in June and is valued at $989,000. The addition to Meisel-Sysco on Van Born, was started the next month and cost $1,500,000. The Brouwer Equipment building on Haggerty Road was completed at a value of $140,000.

On the commercial construction side, both Plymouth and Canton noted new construction as well as remodeling of existing buildings.

Plymouth's major renovation was Four Season's Square. In what was once a grocery store, a discount store, and then a disco night club -- a mall of eateries opened in 1982 with a total value of better than $235,000.

Other major commercial additions were: Roger Haslick's new building on Ann Arbor Trail ($130,000), the Community Federal Credit Union headquarters expansion on Harvey ($150,000), and the Pugh-Cannon building on Forest Avenue ($64,000).

The city had two unusual building additions in 1982 as well. The Veterans of Foreign Wars are nearly completed with their $250,000 new hall on the site of the former hall which was destroyed by fire. The Gathering, the pavillion built across from Kellogg Park on Penniman Avenue, was completed by the city at a cost of $53,600, which was covered by donations from service groups.

There were no homes built in the city in 1982 although there were many remodelings -- rec rooms, garages, decks, woodstoves and the like -- West said.

In Canton, Machnik noted the commercial growth included two gas stations and a $313,000 laundromat and shopping center being built on the west side of Canton Center Road.

"Commercial activity included changes in tenants," the Canton building chief said.

He noted that there were two churches which obtained building permits in Canton in 1982 -- Christ, Good Shepherd ($150,000) and St. Michael's Lutheran addition ($187,000).

In housing starts, Machnik saw a positive note. During 1981, Canton saw nine new homes built.

In 1982, 14 houses were built -- 13 of them in the last six months. "It's a good indication there is some positive momentum for a change. It's not much, but it's an improvement," Machnik said.

"If the interest rates continue downward or stay the same, it should grow."

Machnik summed up that "1982 was better than 1981 -- not by much, but it's better."

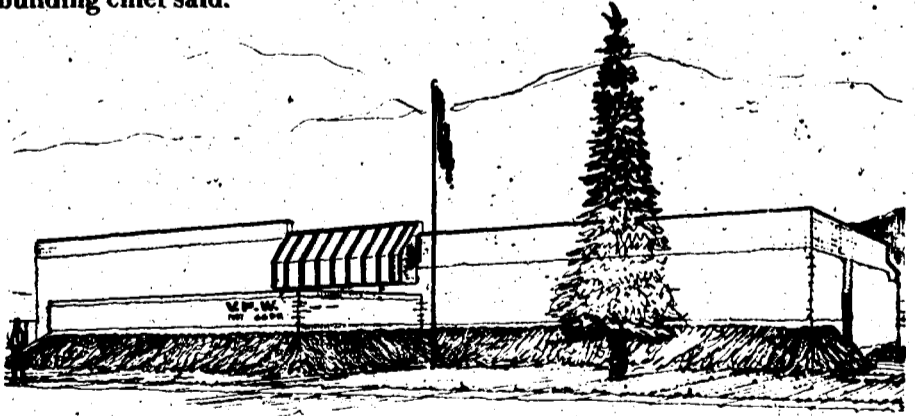

SECOND LARGEST building project undertaken in Plymouth-Canton in 1982 is this Detroit Water Board storage facility under construction on Joy Road in Canton. It's estimated value is $989,000.

by its patrons who favor it over the Mayflower Hotel's round table conclave -- has always been a place to follow town news.

A habitue of long-standing is Bill Keefer, owner of the Trading Post, recalls spending some of his youth in the original building. "My sister worked there," he said.

Ruth Habb (formerly Keefer), his sister, said, "It was a just a little spot, but it was really a nice place to work. We though it was a ball.

"It was the center of things going on in Plymouth," she recalled. The soda fountain help used to make extra thick malts for the State Police troopers who stopped in, she said.

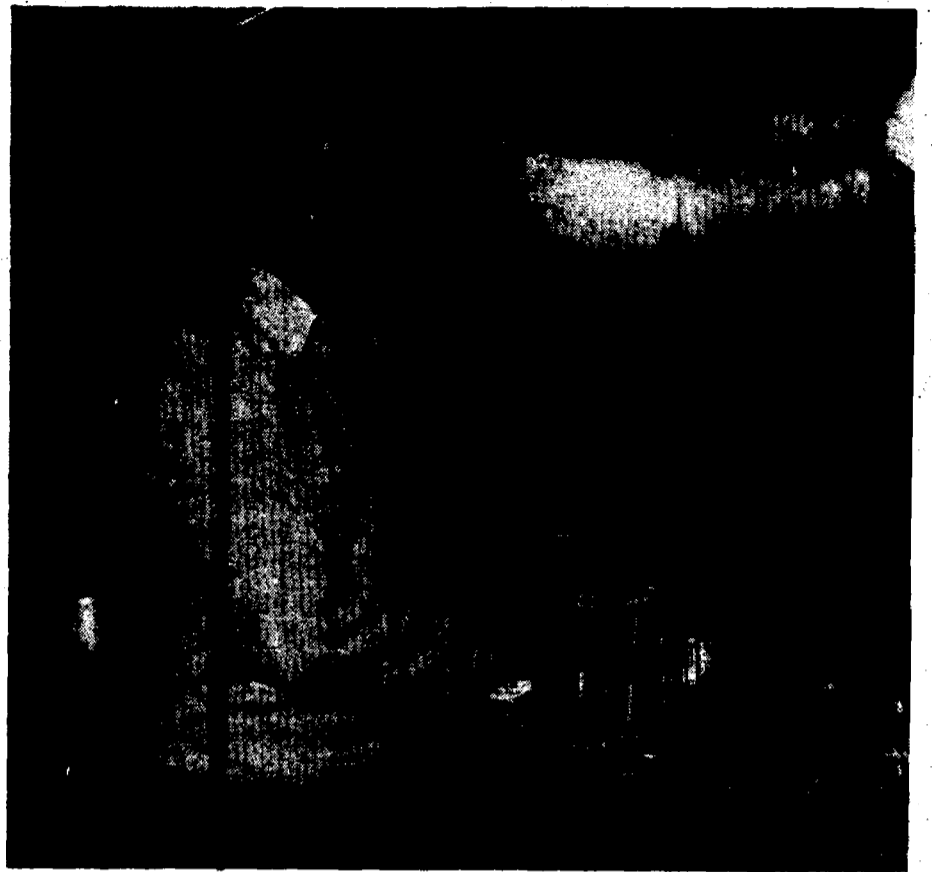

Today, the Tomlinson's carry on the same tradition.

They serve up meals to local police, senior citizens, businessfolks, attorneys, real estate agents and newspaperfolks. For the 50th year, Cloverdale Farms Dairy continues to be a part of downtown and one of the successful growth stories of The Plymouth-Canton Community.

But changes are coming, say the Tomlinsons, look for a new remodeling project to start this spring.

JOYCE TOMLINSON, the major Cloverdale stockholder, can often be found dispersing advice along with ice cream sundaes to her patrons.

IN THE ICE CREAM plant in the Forest Avenue building, Bob Tomlinson unloads a crate of freshly-made Cloverdale Ice Cream.

Many businesses opened in Canton, most existing ones adjusted to times

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

"Some are up and some are down.

That's the way Canton Chamber of Commerce Manager Connie Koers described businesses in Canton Township for 1982.

"Most of the business people who made it through the year did so because of good business management and because they re-adjusted their businesses to include more lines of merchandise and more services.

Koers said that Canton businesses are becoming more customer-conscious. They are structuring their businesses to help the customer, rather than just take their money, she added.

The Professional Park and industrial complexes like the Lynch Complex have drawn both professional and industrial businesses into Canton.

"Currently, there are no large buildings available in Canton for larger businesses to locate in," Koers said. "But we're working very hard to attract new businesses here."

Forty-nine new businesses have submitted occupancy requests in Canton Township. Koers said that this does not represent all of the new businesses in Canton, however.

"Many business people run businesses out of their homes or out of existing businesses. They don't file for occupancy requests, and they haven't registered with us so we can't account for them," she said.

Koers encouraged all Canton businesses to register with the Chamber of Commerce. She said that there is no cost or obligation involved with registration and that it helps the Chamber to direct customers to businesses which would otherwise go unknown.

Among the new businesses which have set up shop in Canton are: Creative Impressions; George's Restaurant and Ice Cream Parlor; Cake World; Railcraft Inc.; D'Avanzo Merconi Professional Offices; Reynolds Chiropractic Clinic; Kid's Stuff Boutique; and Comprehensive Vision Services of Canton.

Other new businesses include: Sir Speedy Printing Center; Controlled Energy Products; C.V.I.; Go-Fer Gymnastics; Video Services; Johnson Family Restaurant; Superclips; Mike's Choice Meats and Deli; Kingsboro Cleaners; H and R Block; and X-Pressions.

Still other new businesses are: Palermo's Pizzeria and Restaurant; Harvard Square Cleaners; Livonia Magnetics Company; Frank's Nursery and Crafts; Shell Service Station; Wendy's Restaurant; and Draw-Tite.

More of the new forty-nine include: Wolf's Den; Ceramic World; Easy Rider Bike Shop; the Canton Bakery; Time Machine Products; Canton Oriental Grocery and Gift Shop; and Prescription Air, Inc.

New faces around the community also include Pizza Time; Canton Wizard Arcade and Restaurant; Canton Laundry; Maternity Vogue; Sparkey's Carpentry and Sharpening; Omnicom of Michigan; Hadi Piraka, M.D.; Dino's Pizza; and Michigan Bingo Supply.

Finally, there's Brouwer Equipment Inc.; Jim Mather Mr. Steak Restaurant; Rex Umney Auto Repair; Glassware Emporium; Mary's Mix and Match Florist; Discount Video of Canton; and Samson and Delilah Fitness Center.

OV sees new shops open

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

Gail Tosh isn't exactly walking around these days all smiles, but then she isn't down in the dumps, either.

Tosh, president of the Old Village Association and owner of Gail's Doghouse, admitted she is feeling the pinch of a tight economy, but she looks for things to turn around in the near future.

In fact, all the members of the Old Village Association who have weathered the storm of hard times griping the country are looking up, she said.

"The Association as a whole is optimistic about the future of this area," she noted. "We're also optimistic that things will turn around for the residents who live in this area as well."

An indication of the growth of the area can be seen in the number of new shops that have opened their doors in the past year, according to Tosh.

And, while some new blood has streamed into the Old Village section of Plymouth in the form of new shops, additional fresh faces and capital made its way into the area via of old businesses with new owners, Tosh added.

"We've never done any kind of a head count before of the number of new shops," she explained. "But I'd have to say the number of new shops is a good sign."

Among the new shops to open in the past year in Old Village is the Crested Looking Glass, Red Flannel, Dimensions in Dance, Gift Trap and the Candy Box.

Other new shops include Perk Brew and Cashew, My Little Town, Warehouse Outlet, Kathy's Kraft Korner, Delight's Restaurant and the Agape Christian Center.

Two places, Country Crafts and Calicos and Lorraine's Dolls, have new owners, while the people who used to own O.V. Sauge bought back the place.

And one, Village Square Outlet, moved to a new location but is owned by the same people.

Silence ticks me off

Isn't it funny how some sounds, like the ticking of a clock, for instance, can sometimes seem to fade away into the background, while at other times the same noise can sound louder than London's Big Ben.

During the course of the day the sounds of everyday living - bath water cascading into the tub, the soft hum of the dishwasher, the whir of the vacuum cleaner the thud, thud, thud of the washer and dryer- all overpower the almost delicate tick, tick, tick of the clock.

And at work I'm constantly bombarded by more sounds.

The phone is ringing even as I enter office. It rings unceasingly, relentlessly throughout the day.

Then there's the staccato of the typewriters and computer terminals as The Crier's writers pound out their stories, followed by the buzzing of the tape machine as it spits out tape on which words have been turned into symbols.

And the sound of human voices is ever-present. The pace is fast as information is passed back and forth between a hard-nosed editor and harried writers and a demanding ad director and scrambling ad sales people.

Sometimes the voices are angry, too. Deadlines near and blood pressures go up all around.

But the sound above all others that makes its way to my ear is the sound of laughter - the playful teasing back and forth of people who enjoy working together.

Home again after work I scurry around the kitchen clanging pots and pans together as I prepare dinner, while in the background the television drones on, much to the delight of my young son, Matt.

But, late in the evening, when the sounds of the day have faded away until tomorrow, when I have read Matt a bedtime story and he is fast asleep, that is when the sound of ticking of clocks works its way back into my life.

Relaxing in a quiet room, sipping a glass of wine, I realize I haven't really heard the sound of the clocks all day.

Now in the stillness of the night, however, the incessant ticking of the clocks returns like an old friend. And each one has a unique sound of its own, its own contribution.

All three are in my living room and as I sit and sip my wine I listen to the individual sounds of each.

The small wall clock ticks like it's in a hurry to go somewhere, while the larger one booms out a majestic TICK, TICK.

And then there's the antique clock on the shelf which has a slower, mellower sound, much like a wise, old lady who has learned not to over-react to life. But it is obstinate and sometimes stops, perhaps it's just weary.

The metered rhythm of each of the clocks is somehow symbolic of the rhythms of the day, and I am comfortable to know that no matter how hectic and noise the day, along with nightfall returns the wonderful sound of the ticking of the clocks.

Canton event on tap

BY JOE SLEZAK

Dan Chrenko will be one of the busiest men in town tomorrow (Thursday).

Chrenko will direct the proceedings at the 6th annual Canton-Civitan Wrestling Invitational, and he'll also handle the coaching duties for the Chiefs at the same time.

The eight-team field will include Salem, Birmingham Brother Rice, Dearborn High, Saginaw, Redford Thurston, West Bloomfield and Portage Northern.

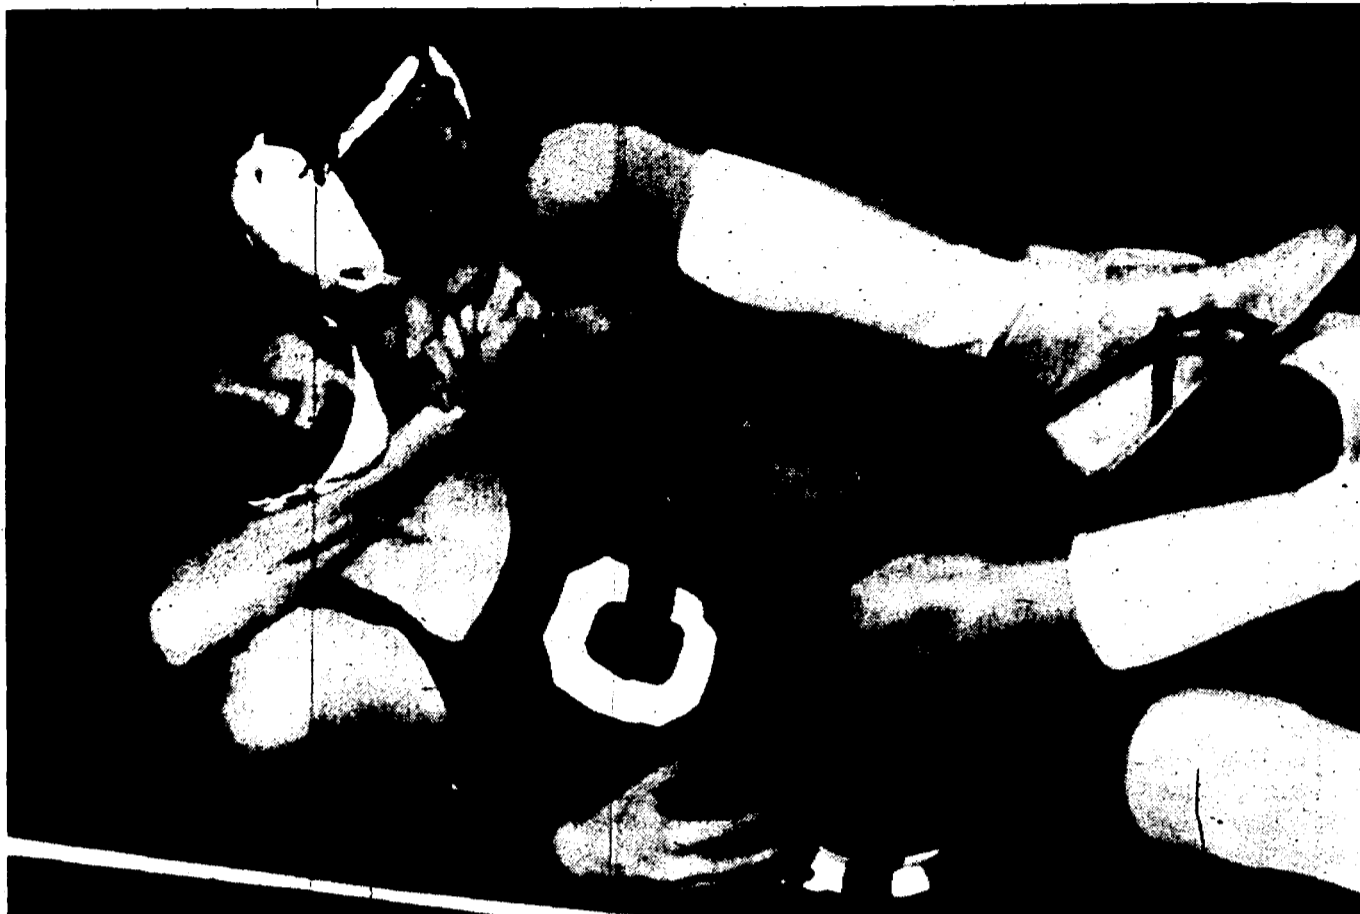

It will be a double-elimination tournament because "it's the only fair way to get everybody in two matches," Chrenko insisted.

"The best balanced team is going to win it," he added.

So who will walk off with the title?

Chrenko said he looks for his troops to be right in the thick of the battle for the Chief volleyball fortunes unsure for coming year

BY JOE SLEZAK

Unsure is a good word to describe the first-year Canton volleyball coach Rick Solarz's outlook.

Solarz admits he isn't quite sure how things will materialize in 1983, but that doesn't mean he isn't looking forward to the start of the season.

There are five returnees from last year's squad, which was second in the old Western Six. They include Missy Aiken and Polly Roberts, who played basketball, Renae Edwards, former tennis star Kris Harrison and Denise Wright. They are all seniors.

Kim Petersen and Kathleen O'Connor round out Solarz's corps of seniors. Petersen is in her first year in the program, while O'Connor played JV in 1982.

Eleventh graders include Jenifer Gorecki and Kim Braun. Rounding out the squad is sophomore Leslie Fidge.

The reason for Solarz's uncertainty for the upcoming campaign is because his team has not seen action as of yet.

He will, however, know more about his team's outlook this morning (Wednesday), when Canton will host a quad meet against Salem, Livonia, Churchill and Madison Heights Bishop Foley at 11 a.m. in the Chiefs' gym.

"One good quality is that they tend to work together," said Solarz. "They're hard workers."

Solarz, who coached at Center Line last year, said his squad has some good hitters on it and they also can jump and serve well.

Solarz took over for Cyndi Burnstein, who is expecting a baby.

Canton lost some height with the graduation loss of Debbie Dickinson and Missy McMurray. Also lost was Kelly Arvin.

The Chiefs first meet will be on Wednesday, Jan. 5, against Walled Lake Central at home.

X-country clinics to be offered

The Canton Parks and Recreation department is thinking snow!

They are offering three cross-country ski clinics at Maybury State Park in Northville Township.

The clinics will meet Jan. 19, Feb. 3 and Feb. 15.

If you have your own equipment, it will cost $4.50. If you don't it will cost $6.50. The group "Sportventure" will teach the lessons.

Prospective skiers must reserve their spot two days in advance. Call the Canton Parks and Rec. at 397-1000 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Swedes jetting in from Stockholm

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

If they happen to tune in WKBI Channel 50 to watch a Detroit Red Wing game, they might not understand when a high-pitched Bruce Martyn screams, "he shoots, he scores."

But, the 21 players and 26 parents from the Ekerö IK Swedish hockey team that jetted in from Europe yesterday, will understand when the camera zooms in on the puck in the back of the net.

Some images transcend all languages and cultures, especially if those looking at the scene play or are fans of hockey.

The arrival of the Ekerö club is part of a foreign exchange program that saw a unit from the Plymouth-Canton Hockey Association journey to Sweden last year this time.

One year ago the local Bantam AA squad, sponsored by the Little Caesars in Brighton, spent nine days in Sweden and, according to team manager Ed Bozyk, loved every minute of it.

"It was the nicest vacation we've ever had," he admitted with a smile. "I was against the trip last year before we left, I figured there was a better way we could spend the $12,000 we raised. I was wrong."

"We all became as close as you can get in nine days, both hockey players and coaches. And none of us didn't have a tear in our eyes as we boarded the plane to come back."

Bozyk emphasized that the program is much more than hockey, it's a cultural exchange at its most basic level, he said.

"This team that will come here this year will be billeted with the boys on our

Youths to play hockey, tour team," Bozyk noted. "Yes, we have a tournament set up in which they will play hockey, but they'll also see much of Detroit."

"We've rented Plymouth's double-decker bus and we'll take them down to see the Renaissance Center and the 7-up bottling plant and even a tour of the Wayne Ford Truck Plant."

But that's not all. The young Swedish athletes will watch a Red Wing game down at Joe Louis arena and even attend classes, Jan. 5, with their American hosts, according to Bozyk.

"The 26 parents who will be coming along will be staying at the Mayflower Hotel," Bozyk said. "Many of the businesses in town will be flying Swedish flags and it should be a grand time for a..."

A particularly grand time is planned for New Year's Eve, Bozyk pointed out, when he and his Little Caesars entourage will host a party for their new Swedish friends.

No matter how much cultural exchange takes place, a little athletic exchange as in a few body checks and a few shots on goal must also take place. After all, that's the real reason the Swedes are in town.

That's why Bozyk and company have put together the "International Holiday Tournament." A total of five teams, including units from St. Clair Shores, Dearborn Heights and Saginaw will battle it out at the Plymouth Cultural Center for first place in the six-day event.

One year ago the Little Caesars crew, coached by Dennis German and Ed Holda, played in the Adray Community League as a Bantam AA team.

This year German's troops moved up a rung and now compete in the Midget A (15 and 16 year olds) category as do all the squads that will compete in the "International" tourney.

The highlight of the five-team affair, as far as Bozyk is concerned, will take place

Canton tourney set to go

top spot along with Salem and Portage Northern.

"It will be a good chance for Canton and Salem to showcase their talents," Chrenko noted. "It's one of the better tournaments around. There's not a lot of pressure because our kids are well rested."

The action gets underway tomorrow at 11:30 a.m. with the first round matches. Admission will be 75 cents for students and $1 for adults.

The consolation finals will start at 6:00 p.m. with the championships to follow immediately afterwards. Admission for the final sessions will be $1 for students and $1.50 for adults.

The top two squads from last year's Invitational, Warren Lincoln and Wayne Memorial, will not return. The third place team, though, Salem, will return as will the Chiefs who were fourth in 1981.

A host of awards will be given out following completion of the one-day event.

Medals will go to the top four wrestlers in each of the 13 weight classes. Also, the first and second place teams will take home trophies as will the winning coach.

And, finally, the "Outstanding Wrestler" as voted by the coaches, will be honored.

The tourney is sponsored by the Civitans, who have been "a tremendous help," according to Chrenko.

"Our parents do a tremendous job on the concession stand and taking the tickets," he added.

The tournament is the first of the year in which the two-pound allowance will be used. Instead of 98 pounds, the limit will be 100, and so on for each weight class.

"We just want to do the best job we can. Our kids definitely want it," said Chrenko. "It's always harder to coach at your own tournament."

Want to skate like a pro?

Want to learn to skate like an olympian?

Olympic medalist Jim Millns will head a professional staff of ice skaters in teaching people how to skate.

The classes will be offered at the Cultural Center. Registration will be on Saturday, Jan. 29 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The course is offered once a week for eight weeks. Each class is 25 minutes long.

The cost will be $20.00 for residents of the school district and $24.00 for non-residents. The classes are open to anyone over the age of four.

For more information, call the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department at 455-6620.

P-C athletes good sports

Up until the final two minutes of the Canton-Salem basketball game last Tuesday night it appeared the Chiefs were going to do it to the Rocks again.

I say again because last year at this time Canton knocked off an undefeated Salem squad. Sometimes the seemingly impossible can happen in sports and that's what keeps fans coming back week after week.

(At least that's true in the case of the Detroit Lions. The Lion faithful keep hoping Monte's men will surprise them and win for a change.)

The showdown between Canton and Salem the other night was a classic example of what the element of emotion can lend to an athletic event.

Before the opening tip-off, someone asked a writer from another newspaper who he was betting on and the scribe replied nonchalantly "The big guys," referring to the Rocks.

Crier photographer Rick Smith asked me the same question and I told him if he was betting on the game to give 10 points and take Salem.

Boy, oh boy, were we both wrong.

Canton top man Dave Van Wagoner is certainly to be praised for having his troops ready to spring a major upset. The only thing wrong with Van Wagoner's plan was his men forgot to win the game.

And, believe me, they certainly had the chance.

That's not to take anything away from Salem, either. Rock mentor Fred Thomann hit the nail on the head when he noted following the final buzzer he was pleased by the way his guys hung in there

Offsides

with Mark Constantine

when they could have folded and quit.

One play in particular, however, stands out as the turning point in the game. And it's a perfect example of the type of sportsmanship both teams displayed all night.

And, for that matter, the kind all squads from Canton and Salem show when they square off against each other.

Canton led, 49-46, with a little over two minutes left in the game when Chief co-captain Mike Scarpello drove to the basket. He didn't make it.

The ball was swatted away by one of the Rocks and the rebound was gathered in by Salem's Rick Berberet.

Scarpello lay flat on his stomach after crashing to the ground following completion of his drive, and out of desperation he flung himself towards Berberet and the ball.

He missed both, from my vantage point, but the referee saw the play differently. He whistled a foul on Scarpello who reacted by pounding the hardwood with his fist, upset at himself for having committed such a silly foul.

Without hesitation the man in the striped shirt called a technical on Scarpello. Berberet made both ends of the one-and-one from the original foul, but then missed the technical, making the score, 49-48, in favor of Canton.

But Salem got the ball out of bounds and turned the opportunity into two points, which gave them the lead and, for all intents and purposes, the game.

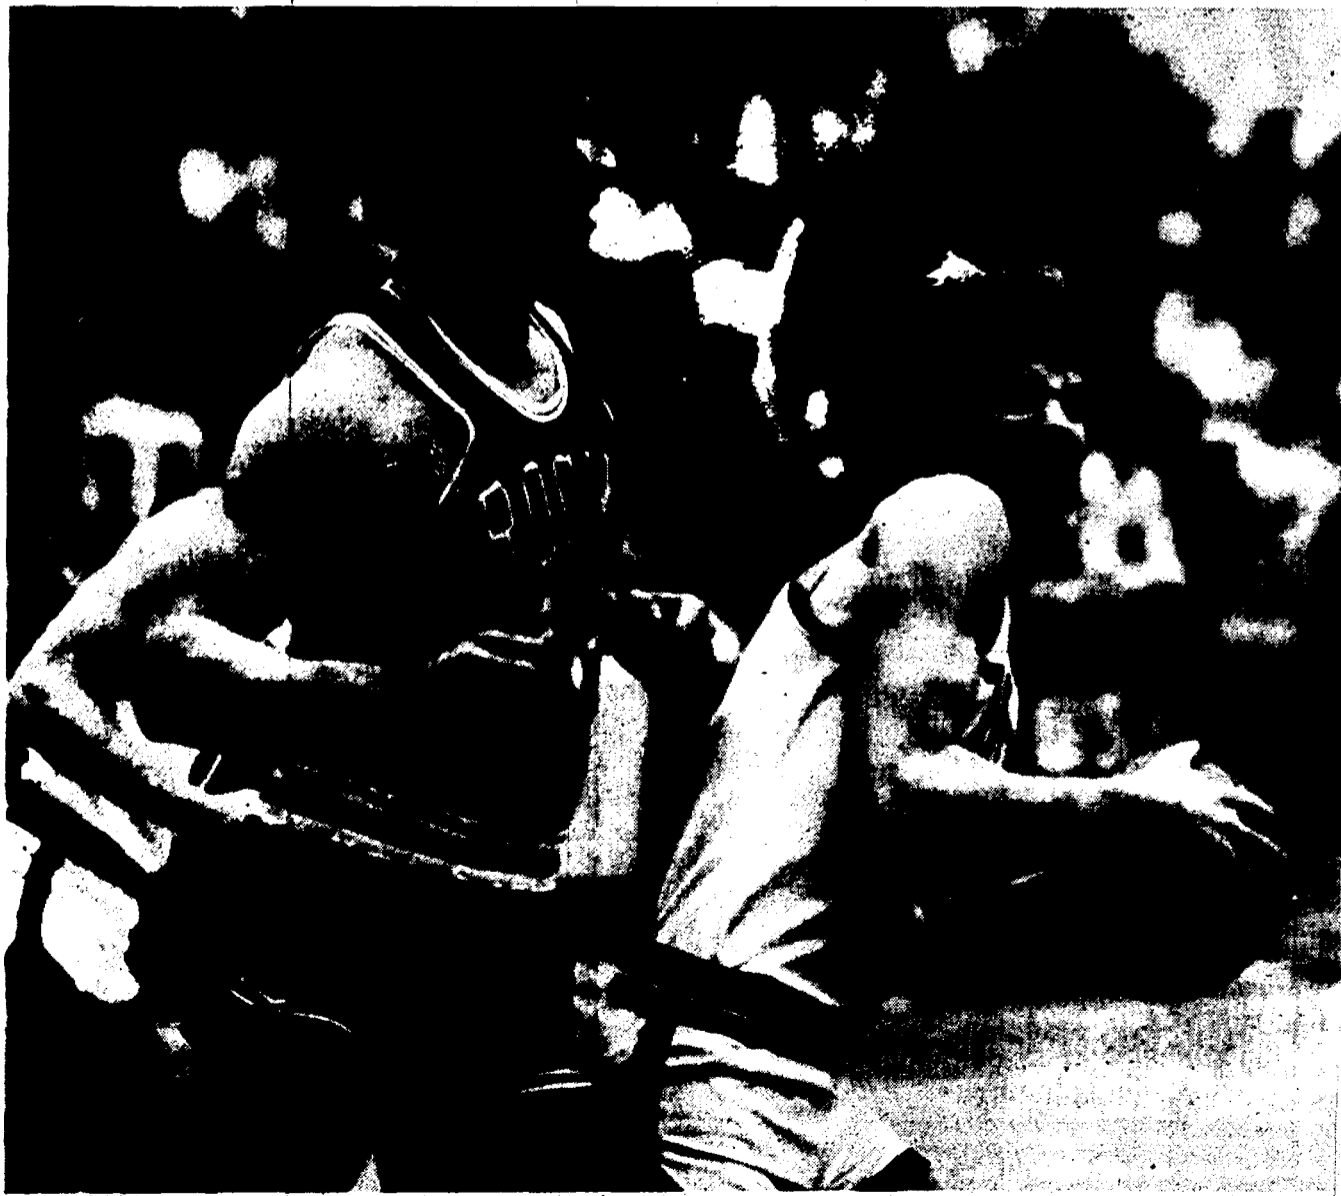

Van Wagoner had nothing but words of praise for Scarpello as he talked about the game afterwards. He acknowledged it was indeed a turning point, but he didn't blame his scrappy co-captain.

In fact, he defended him because he felt Scarpello was just venting his frustration at himself for doing something he knew was dumb and didn't deserve a "T".

I agree.

If there's one thing I've picked up on quickly in my almost six months in this community, it's that teams from Canton and Salem battle tooth and nail to beat the other, but you never see any poor displays of sportsmanship either during or after the game.

In fact, afterwards, they go back to being friends and, in some cases, classmates. I'm not sure who should get the credit for that fact, but I suspect it's the kids themselves.

DETERMINATION is written across Canton's Pat Murphy's face as he goes up for a shot in last week's Chief-Rock clash won by Salem. Dave Houle looks

Rock spikers looking forward to new season

BY JOE SLEZAK

Salem volleyball coach Jeanne Martin is looking forward to the 1983 edition of the Rocks.

Martin will return six versatile spikers from a year ago. They include senior tri-captains Jacque Merrifield, Diane Murphy and Lisa Granger. (Merrifield made a name for herself on the basketball court and soccer field, while Murphy found her niche as a pitcher in the softball program.)

Also back are seniors Jo Mulaski and Ann Clomski, who possesses incredible leaping ability. Junior Sarah Wallman is also back.

Darlene Dunlop rounds out the senior crew. She played JV last year. New juniors include Kelly Bemiss, Shelly Staszal and Chris Radzik.

"We're as strong as we were last year. I have a real scrappy squad," said Martin. "Our services are looking pretty tough."

"We start out with a bang," she said.

Martin feels that Farmington Harrison and Walled Lake Western will both be very tough. The Rocks travel to Harrison next Wednesday and are home to host Western on Jan. 12.

But, before that, Salem will compete this morning in an exhibition at Canton. Also competing will be Canton, Madison Heights Bishop Foley and Livonia Churchill. The matches get underway at 11 a.m.

"The kids are moving real well on the floor. But," Martin added, "our timing is a little bit off. Part of that is getting a service pass."

Two more strong points for Salem include defensive coverage and service reception, according to the coach.

Martin is in her second year as the mentor of the Rocks. In her first year, the Rocks hovered around the .500 mark. Graduation losses included Carol Ross, Linda Lybarger, Kelly Tucker and Lori Anne Genyk.

The Lidingo lads will, however, play a series of exhibition matches with Bantam teams from the surrounding area.
