Light vote expected for Monday's school election

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

A light turnout is expected Monday when Plymouth-Canton voters head to the polls for the annual school elections.

Those heading to the 14 precincts across the district will be choosing from a field of seven candidates vying for three seats on the Board of Education.

The polls open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Incumbents Tom Yack and Roland Thomas along with Roberta Woolard and Harry Stearnes are running for two four-year terms on the board.

Dave Artley, Nancy Quinn and Karen Murphy, meanwhile, are battling it out for the right to complete the final two years of a term vacated by William Decker last summer.

A little over 44,000 people are registered to vote in The Plymouth-Canton Community. One year ago only 3,115 voters or under 10 per cent of those eligible to vote showed up at the polls.

Bernice Nichols, elections clerk, said the prospects for a larger turnout this time around doesn't look much brighter.

"We really have no way of knowing, but absentee voting is down and that's usually an indication voting will be down the day of the election," she said.

The "little over 44,000" figure given by Nichols isn't more precise because it has been "three years or so" since the schools took the time to count all those eligible to vote.

"It isn't on the computer so we have to manually count all of the registered voters," Nichols explained. "It takes a long time and we just haven't had the time. Hopefully we'll be able to get to it sometime this fall after the start of the school year."

Six of the seven candidates began to

He said he wants the school system to remain strong, and he wants to help provide the youth of The Plymouth-Canton Community the best education possible.

"It's also important for me as a citizen to get involved in the school system,"

An administrative snafu caused a hasty re-drawing of the boundaries of Plymouth's downtown development authority (DDA) Monday afternoon -- eliminating a number of parcels because city officials had not properly notified the owners.

As a result, the Plymouth City Commission approved a DDA district which is considerably smaller than the one proposed and advertised by City Manager Henry Graper. The commission's 6-0 approval of the DDA came despite op-

With filing deadline Tuesday Only 4 have filed for city commission seats

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

Six residents have drawn petitions to run for the Plymouth City Commission and seven citizens have expressed an interest in serving on the new, elected library board.

The low number of interested candidates for the commission indicates that the city probably will not need a primary run-off this summer, a spokesman for the city clerk's office said.

Four seats on the city commission will be up for election in November.

If more than eight candidates file valid petitions by the June 14 deadline, then an August 2 primary will be held to narrow the field to eight, the spokesman said.

Two commission incumbents, Eldon Martin and Ronald Loiselle, have returned their election petitions to the clerk's office. Both have been certified as having the required number of valid signatures.

Two challengers, Mary Ellen McKercher and Mary B. Childs, have filed valid petitions as well.

Incumbent Karl W. Gansler II and challenger William J. Hayes have drawn petitions for city commission seats but had not returned them as of Monday.

Four seats are available on the commission. Gansler, Martin and Loiselle have all indicated they will run to retain their commission seats.

The fourth commissioner, Mark Weymeyer, is ineligible to run this election due to the city charter provision which prohibits a resident from being elected more than two consecutive times. Weymeyer was elected to a four-year term in 1977 and a two-year term in 1981, the spokesman said.

The top three vote-getters in the race will receive four-year terms on the commission and the fourth highest will garner a two-year spot.

Seven candidates have drawn petitions for the six spots on the city's elected library board. Two candidates have returned valid petitions to the clerk's office -- Frances Loiselle and Nancy J. Sharp.

The six citizens elected in November will form the library board -- the city's first elected body to govern the library. The new elected board will replace the existing appointed library board of directors.

The top two vote-getters will be given three-year board of director spots, the next two will receive two-year director spots, and the next two will receive one-year posts on the board, according to the clerk's office.

This will allow the terms to be staggered in the future, with directors always elected for three years.

Residents who have drawn petitions, but not returned them to the clerk's office, are: Mary Ann Prchlik, Raymond J. Masters, Johnston H. Wilcox, Margaret Dunning, and Catherine Ann Doetsch.

No primary will be held for the library board regardless of how many candidates file.

Any city resident can take out nominating petitions for the city commission or the library board. The petitions must be signed by 25 or more registered voters who live in the city.

Matney plea bargains

Guilty to negligent hom.

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

William Glenn Matney had his day in Wayne County Circuit Court last Tuesday, and it turned out to be a short one.

The Westland resident was arrested last Dec. 17 and charged with manslaughter with a motor vehicle for his alleged involvement in a fatal traffic accident in Canton.

He decided to jump bail, however, and fled the state prior to his preliminary examination because he said he was all mixed up.

When he finally came back to Michigan in February, the Canton Police arrested him. To ensure he didn't skip town again, 35th District Court Judge Dunbar Davis set his bond at $100,000.

Matney was unable to post the bail, so he has been sitting in the Wayne County Jail since waiting for his case to go to trial.

But, as it turned out, instead of going to trial on the felony manslaughter charge, he opted to plead guilty to a charge of negligent homicide, which is only a high misdemeanor.

If he had been convicted on the manslaughter charge, he could have been sentenced to serve a maximum of 15 years in the Southeastern Correction Facility in Jackson.

However, the maximum penalty for the negligent homicide charge is two years, and with either charge he could be given only probation. In any case, he will be given credit for time he's served at the Wayne County Jail downtown.

Circuit Judge Charles Kaufman accepted his plea of guilty to the negligent homicide charge, and in seven to 14 days he will hand down a sentence in the case.

Matney was convicted of killing Madonna Tharp, of Canton, in an accident that took place at the intersection of Sheldon and Cherry Hill Roads.

Matney rammed into the side of a red Vega driven by Tharp's 16-year-old son, Eric. The former truck driver didn't stop at the scene, according to witnesses, and was later apprehended by the Westland Police.

The Westland lawmen handed him over to the Canton Police who transported him to the Canton jail where he was given him a breathalyzer test. The test results showed he was drunk, according to the Canton Police.

Township cop service is feasible -- consultant

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen said he expects to receive a preliminary report from consultant Erik Beckman this week which says the creation of the separate township police force is "feasible and reasonable."

"I expect to get a preliminary report -- actually a letter -- from him (Beckman) this week," Breen said. "It will say that it is feasible and reasonable -- for about the same money we are paying now -- to go on our own."

The preliminary report will cite two main problem areas, Breen said, dispatch and lockup. "In our discussions, those are the two areas he noted that would have to be solved," the supervisor said.

The township has just received application forms to apply for federal funds to build a facility for the possible new police department, he said.

"We just got the paperwork from Washington. We would be applying for money under a program to create jobs through construction. I don't know if we will get it, we certainly haven't been too successful getting federal money in the past," Breen said.

The federal funds would be used to pay for an addition to the fire station on Ann Arbor Road. An addition for the fire department's needs has been in the planning stages. Breen said there was a possibility the additions and renovations to the fire station could be changed to make way for a police headquarters.

Breen said reports that he would soon ask the township board to fund an administrative assistant to set up the new police department are "rumors and speculation."

Currently the township contracts for police service from the city. Increasing costs of the contract led the township to begin considering alternatives such as starting its own force or contracting with another agency.

Beckman, a Michigan State law enforcement professor, was retained by the township to study alternatives to the contract with the city. Beckman has done other local police studies.

Breen has talked of starting a "low budget" police department similar to one in Brownstown Township where part-time officers, full-time officers, and civilians are used.

Potential increased funding eyed by groups

School unions seek more money, settlement

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

Several months ago the Plymouth-Canton schools faced the prospects of having to scramble to keep from slipping into the red.

What a difference a few months can make.

Now, thanks to legislative maneuvering at the state level, the schools are looking at entering the 1983-84 school year with an increase in the district's fund equity.

But that potential excess of funds in the district's coffers hasn't escaped the notice of several unions within the schools who have been working without a contract for almost a year.

Trav Griffin, executive director of Michigan Education Association-Michigan Educational Support Personnel (MEA-MESP), is both the chief bargainer and official spokesman for three of the district's unions.

He said the membership of three unions he represents has indicated to him they expect a settled contract in their hands by September.

"Something has got to give in September," Griffin said emphatically. "They will not go another year without a contract. And nobody is going to take a freeze, as far as I know."

"We were told earlier that the district was facing a deficit, now they are talking about a $2 million fund equity. The workers have done their part to help the district, they all feel they've done their share, and now want to be compensated."

Griffin also said a feeling of frustration has forced him to file for mediation for the Plymouth-Canton Educational Aides Association, the Plymouth-Canton Cafeteria Employees and MESP, the union that represents the district's custodial personnel.

Another school union that has been working without a contract that past year, too, the Transportation Employees Association, also has filed for mediation, according to Griffin.

"We've made numerous economic proposals and have been turned down flat every time," Griffin said. "I'll tell you, if we don't get some kind of reaction to our proposals, it's going to be a long summer."

"After all, we expect the board to at least respond to us."

The lack of a response by the board prompted individuals from the aides and the Plymouth-Canton Association of Educational Office Personnel to voice their concerns during the citizen's comment portion of the May 23 regular Board of Education meeting.

Norm Kee, assistant superintendent for personnel, however, doesn't feel it's proper for representatives of the different bargaining units to get up before the board during the citizen's comments section of the board session and complain about on-going negotiations.

"One person does it and then another says, 'hey, maybe we ought to get up and say something, too,'" Kee complained. "The only problem is we have a negotiation process and teams that meet to negotiate.

"Besides, that person is seizing a portion of the agenda for citizen's comments and they are not really speaking as a citizen - they are representing a bargaining unit.

"They also can make statements that are not necessarily accurate and there is no chance to rebutt those statements. The board doesn't want to argue with them, and the audience goes away with an uncontested statement.

"I don't think it's appropriate, but the board doesn't agree. And as the board continues to give credence to them by listening, there will be more of them - it's a Catch 22 situation," he concluded with a sigh.

However, the news is not all negative out of the various negotiations. A tentative agreement on the non-economic portion of the aides contract has been reached, according to Griffin.

"It's a first step, and a first step only," Griffin said.

Teacher union solution still far off?

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

Negotiations between the Plymouth-Canton Education Association (PCEA) and the district got underway last week and, if the opening sessions are any indication, a settlement in the near future is not in the offing.

Long negotiations between both sides, however, are nothing new. In the latest contract talks, the PCEA and the district began bargaining in March of 1982, but it wasn't until December of last year that the two sides finally reached a two-year agreement.

And even then all that was settled was the contract language. Both sides agreed to re-open negotiations in June to negotiate the calendar and economic issues for the second year of the contract only.

Chuck Portelli, one of the members of the teacher's union's negotiating team, said the two sides have met twice, the last time Friday afternoon, and only calendar issues have been discussed thus far.

Portelli said the PCEA expected the schools to present some sort of economic proposal, but thus far they have declined to put an economic proposal on the table.

Norm Kee, assistant superintendent for personnel, said the sessions thus far have been filled with discussions revolving around the calendar issues.

"We spent three hours talking about the calendar Friday," Kee noted. "There simply hasn't been any time to discuss the economic issues. We want to get this thing resolved, and in due time it will come."

"There is no attempt on our part to trick them in any way by us not presenting a economic proposal right away."

Portelli said the PCEA is ready to place on the table an economic proposal of its own, but the teacher's union will wait until the district makes the first move.

"We don't they present theirs if they have one?" Kee asked rhetorically. "We asked them if they had one, and they told us they weren't going to do anything until we did."

"I guess it's the question of what came first, the chicken or the egg?"

IT'S A WINNER! The Canton Sesquicentennial Committee chose the above logo from 20 entries by six artists as Canton's official sesquicentennial logo. The logo, which symbolizes Canton's 150 year history, was designed by Thomas Jozwiak of Canton. Jozwiak, a seven year resident, works in the art department at Krogers. The theme "From a proud past to a strong future" was the idea of Robert Dates, Canton Recreation supervisor.

Work on Ford Rd. set for '84

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN
Ford Road is scheduled for future changes, according to the Michigan State Highway Department.
Paul Daavettila, chief construction engineer for the metro division of the Highway Department said that bids will taken in late 1984 for the expansion of Ford Road between Haggerty and Sheldon roads to five lanes.

Daavettila said the plan is part of a 10-year-old state highway department master plan. The plan calls for the widening of Ford Road to five lanes from Telegraph to Canton Center roads.
He added that three quarters of the master plan has been completed, and the Haggerty to Sheldon stretch of road is the only section which will not be widened by the end of this summer.

James Kosteva, Canton planning director, said that the widening of the road will not cause any problems for the township.
"This construction may affect an occasional water line or fire hydrant and some access to businesses along that stretch may be temporarily affected," Kosteva said, "but the construction really shouldn't have much of an impact."

TO THOSE TOO LAZY TO VOTE

HARRY STEARNES

To Those few who plan to vote at the June 13 Plymouth-Salem School Board election:

The Crier Newspaper has actively noted my refusal to attend public forums or to be interviewed as a prelude to next week's election. I issued statements prior to my decision to seek a seat on the school board making it clear as to why I was running and what I planned to do if elected, little if any of it appeared.

I live, breath and write about politicians every day. I ran for CEO and took part in all the baloney that goes with the race. I talked, and answered questions and spent money on advertising and had signs on buses and participated in local parades. The net result — as is always the case — few people know who they are voting for or what they represent.

Of the ten thousand potential voters living in this area, 8,000 complain about the teachers, the schools, the poor education, etc. and never vote. Of the 2,000 that do vote, about 1,500 are friends of incumbents, leaving 500 to be split among the remaining contestants.

I'm interested in the 8,000 who sit on their duffs and don't take the time to find out what's going on.

IF YOU ARE HAPPY WITH THE EDUCATION PROCESS IN OUR COMMUNITY, THEN CONTINUE TO SIT IT OUT. IF YOU WANT A CHANGE, THEN VOTE FOR IT.

I'm tired of my friends having to provide the three R's to their children by sending them to private schools. I'm tired of hearing about student conduct, the three-day VACATION PERIOD METED OUT TO IRRESPONSIBLE STUDENTS, THE POT-SMOKING TEACHERS, DRUG DEALING, ETC.

Mostly I'm tired of hearing that nothing can be done to correct this. If elected I plan some action, one way or the other. If you're with me, good, if not, then go back to sleep.

Like kissing and making up

City firemen back to work

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

It's like kissing and making up, according to Plymouth's labor negotiator.

The Plymouth firefighters union and the city have agreed to a three-year contract which includes concessions for the firefighters and the callback of two of the three firemen laid off last month.

City manager Henry Graper said the firefighters agreed to a wage freeze for the first two years of the contract with a reopener in the third year.

Concessions agreed to by the firemen in a ratification vote over the weekend are: elimination of one vacation day per man, elimination of one personal leave day per man, all overtime will be based on a 56 hour work week rather than a 40 hour work week.

The union agreed to withdraw the unfair labor practice complaint they had filed regarding Community EMS ambulance service, Graper said. "This will give the city the freedom to get out of the ambulance business whenever we want to," he said.

Sick time for firefighters will be broken down into four hour segments instead of the previous 12 hours. "If a man felt ill in the morning and called he would have to be out a 12-hour period. Now if he feels better he can come in after four hours," he said.

There will be go call-in of backup firefighters when the scheduled firemen go on an ambulance run, he said. The city will use its mutual aid agreement with the township to cover in case of emergency, he said.

"The concessions amount to $60,000 to $70,000 worth of savings to the city, some of it immediate savings," Graper said.

The cost to reinstate two of the laidoff firemen will be $80,000, he said. "But besides the savings through concessions, we saved about $10,000 in costs for not having to continue through the negotiation process and possibly go to arbitration. We saved $3,000 in not having to fight the unfair labor practice grievance," he said.

The two firemen will will be returned to the staff immediately, Fire Chief Roy Hall said, in fact one was scheduled to work a Tuesday shift.

The return of the two firemen will give the city eight fulltime firefighters. The lowest seniority man who was laid off will not be called back, Graper said.

One of the two men called back will be a 'suitcase man' moving from shift to shift as needed within certain parameters, Graper said. "We will be able to do alot more of the traditional firefighting by having the two men back. We will still maintain our fire marshall program," he said.

The city still plans to beef up its volunteer firefighting force, Hall said, and is particularly interested in adding men who are available in the daytime.

"You can never have enough volunteers," Graper said. "We would like to have 20 or 35 men respond to each fire, that means we would need 60 or 70 volunteers."

"The firemen deserve 50 to 100 per cent of the credit for taking the concessions required by the budget to bring the other men back," Graper said.

"They have made some sacrifices that are difficult to make," Hall said. "The two men who are coming back should realize what their fellow firefighters to keep them working -- they gave up some fringes and made some concessions."

"We paid the ransom," said union president Robert Degen, "and we got two of the guys back."

"We figured we needed them. We can't operate with six firemen. We did what we had to do," Degen said.

"I'm really disappointed that the mayor had to stoop so low as to make those comments about our tactics," Degen said.

Graper said even with the concessions the Plymouth firemen will be in the top five highest paid firemen in Wayne County.

The city commission approved the contract with a 6-0 vote with mayor pro tem David Pugh absent.

"This should not be seen as us giving in," Mayor Eldon Martin said. "I did not like the scare tactics used by the firemen. They were not appropriate for this community," Martin said, referring to the firemen's flyers and attempts to gain community support to stop firemen from being laid off.

"I know it takes some humility on the part of the commission (to approve this)," said labor negotiator Ron Achoo. "We wish it hadn't come to that. But it's like someone who makes a mistake and comes back and admits it."

"There was no pressure, we were all pleased to do it. It's like kissing and making up," Achoo said.

City seeks Cultural Center booze

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

Plymouth City Manager Henry Graper says he wants to make the dining facilities at the city Cultural Center into "a first-class operation."

"The Cultural Center could be a decent place to hold large dinners -- in fact, I think the dining room is one of the top three in the Plymouth area," Graper said.

Graper has discussed his ideas with the Plymouth City Commission in an informal pre-commission meeting setting, but the commission has not yet been asked to officially act on any of the proposed upgrades.

Two things are intergal to making the Cultural Center into a top-notch banquet facility Graper said -- a liquor license and upgrading of the kitchen and tableware.

Graper said he was confident that the city will soon have a liquor license for the Cultural Center. "There is a bill in Lansing which would allow a city our size to have a liquor license for its banquet facilities. The bill has passed the house and is now in the senate," he said.

Large cities, such as Detroit, can have a liquor license at their banquet facilities. But cities the size of Plymouth, Graper said, must go through the hassle of applying for a one-day special license every time they want to serve alcoholic beverages.

"A liquor license would definitely add to our ability to put on a very good dinner there," Graper said.

The city manager would like to upgrade the kitchen and get nice tableware such as china, silver and crystal glassware.

"Instead of letting 70 different operations in that kitchen like we did last year, we want to limit the users to a list of city-approved caterers. This is the only way we can attract and keep decent caterers -- by having the nice (tableware) and limiting the users and holding them responsible for damages," Graper said.

Graper had originally suggested to the commission that one caterer be designated for the Cultural Center, but now the city manager is in favor of an approved list of three to five caterers.

Having several approved caterers will also users of the Cultural Center to have a choice of catering operations and prices, he said.

"We already have one of the nicer rooms in town for large dinners -- up there with the Hilton and Mayflower Meetinghouse -- but we need to get the quality caterers in there," he said.

Money to purchase the fine tableware would come from the Cultural Center's proceeds, Graper said. A well-run dining operation at the Cultural Center could be a money-maker for the city, he said.

Having a good operation at the Cultural Center would enable the city to entertain in style as well, Graper said. The city could have thrown a dinner for the officials from St. Joseph's Hospital last week instead of taking them to the Mayflower, Graper said.

Run for City Commission!

Where are all the candidates for Plymouth City Commission and the city library board?

So far, only four candidates have filed for the four available seats on the commission. Two other residents have drawn petitions, but have not yet returned them.

Come on, folks. Do we want a repeat of four years ago when the ballot contained only three contenders for four spots (the fourth name, that of former mayor Tom Turner, was meaningless since he'd moved away) and the city commission had to appoint write-in candidate Jack Kenyon to the fourth spot?

The voters of Plymouth deserve more of a choice than what this election is shaping-up to be -- a race between the current incumbents, one past mayor and one newcomer.

The race for the library board of directors has so far attracted primarily only the residents serving currently on the appointed library board.

Plymouth fortunately has plenty of local residents involved in city government, community events, and business and charitable activities. These residents might consider expanding their commitment to include a stint on the city commission.

Petitions are available at the city clerk's office and must be returned by next Tuesday with 25 signatures from registered voters.

Don't let this commission election be cancelled for lack of interest. Take out a petition today.

Be a good neighbor -- take CPR

Diane Harris, of Plymouth Township, is alive today after receiving a near-fatal shock last Sunday while trimming her hedge, all because her neighbors knew cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (CPR).

One never knows when a life-threatening situation may occur.

And often when it does, the difference between life and death are the precious seconds which can be gained when a properly-trained CPR expert is on the scene.

Anyone who has the opportunity to take the CPR course should do so -- for information call the American Red Cross, Oakwood Hospital's Canton Center or the local fire department.

(The Crier requires its employees to attend CPR class -- and, on three occasions, they have had the need to use it.)

Congratulations to Steven and Audrey Stump, and the other neighbors who saved the life of Diane Harris, according to police. Their interest in helping their fellow humans and their community is commendable. Everyone should be a good neighbor like they were.

Take a CPR class -- and maybe save a life.

On softball spirit

Softball is one of those infectious activities which strikes just about everyone in The Plymouth-Canton Community at one time or another. When you're bit, there's no way around preventing the illness.

There are leagues for youngsters, seniors, and middle-agers. Softball diamonds abound in the community, and I'm convinced that an aerial view would reveal we look more like ants scurrying around on anthills than would-be athletes. Not to be discouraged however, we still smash that string-laced ball as far and fast as we can on every conceivable occasion. Trying to find an open diamond can, at times, be alot like searching for gold at the end of a rainbow -- whrat sa' ruck.

When the Plymouth and Canton

Recreation Departments announced that they were taking applications for coed softball teams, The Crier staff was bitten by the bug.

At least some of The Crier staff was bitten.

"Great." "No problem, I need the exercise." "All we need to do is rally a little team spirit and we can do it." "Sure, a coed team should be fun."

The responses came in fast and positive. Within two weeks, we had a full team. We even managed to recruit a few friends, spouses, and firemen who expressed varying degrees of sympathy for our cause and volunteered to fill the team out.

Our first practice, although muddy, went smoothly. We were convinced that a few more practices would pull us together into a pro team. Well, maybe not pro, but at least adequate.

Although the entire team has yet to make it to one practice at the same time, and interest in the team's standing seems to flucuate widely from all out support to peripheral observation, I know there is some raw talent among our ranks. The real test, our first game, is this Sunday.

We may resemble a grab bag of players out on the field, and our talent may be cooked before it ever has a chance to surface, but I know we'll do fine. Besides, it really is the spirit that counts, isn't it?

Yack, Thomas, Artley best for schools

Two four-year terms and one two-year stint on the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education will be on the line Monday when voters across the district head to the polls.

The Crier endorses incumbents Tom Yack and Roland Thomas for the four-year seats on the board.

The endorsement, however, is tinged by the lack of strong challengers.

Yack is a nine-year veteran of the board who has in the past demonstrated his leadership qualities. His handling of the board vacancy appointment flap last summer is an example of the Canton resident's willingness to take charge in a situation that needs to be resolved.

Yack has proven to be an informed member of the board who has a thorough grasp of the problems and issues facing the district.

On the minus side, his hard-line stance in employee negotiations hasn't helped any contracts get settled. He needs to do more to foster relations between the board and its employee groups.

Thomas, meanwhile, had no trouble last summer stepping in and filling out the second year of a term vacated by William Decker.

Prior to his joining the board, he made a name for himself across the district by becoming closely linked to a pair of specific issues - safety busing and special education - but he has proven in his 10 months on the board he is willing to step back and look at the big picture.

He admittedly is idealistic and it took him some time to realize he couldn't affect change on the board all by himself. He said he has learned change doesn't come quickly, and he is willing to work towards a goal over the long haul rather than make a big splash, get shot down and then fade away.

Roberta Woolard is a newcomer to the goings-on in the district, and it's that lack of in-depth knowledge of the issues facing the schools that make us think she wouldn't be an effective board member at this time.

She is, however, a bright, fresh face on the scene and we hope she'll stay involved with the district and lend her expertise in those areas she can. We wouldn't rule out a future try for a board seat for her.

Harry Stearnes is an enigma. He claims to be a serious candidate, yet he is the only candidate to refuse to attend an interview session with The Crier, fill out the League of Women Voters (LWV) questionnaire or show up at the candidates' forum.

We wonder if he considers himself a viable candidate? We certainly don't.

For the two-year seat, we recommend Dave Artley.

Artley has earned a position on the school board. He vowed last year he'd remain involved with the district if he lost in his bid for a four-year term, and he has remained true to that promise.

A year ago The Crier was hesitant to endorse Artley because we felt his scope of representation might have been somewhat narrow, and we encouraged him to broaden his interest and participation in the schools. He has done

If you're not here

...you should be embarrassed. Imagine that out of some 45,000 registered voters in The Plymouth-Canton Community's school district, a mere 40 persons -- including candidates' spouses, League of Women Voters (LWV) workers, Omnicom Cable crew members and five Crier staffers -- turned out for the LWV candidates' forum Thursday night. Even one candidate -- Harry Stearnes, who is seeking a four-year term on the board -- didn't show. Those of you who weren't there shouldn't complain about the school board for the coming year. (Crier photo by Mark Constantine) exactly that.

We feel he will be able to step in and make a valuable contribution to the board immediately. Also, his open-minded stance on issues facing the district that he doesn't have answers for, but is willing to look for, is commendable.

We wonder if Nancy Quinn instead of running for a seat on the Board of Education isn't better suited to work for the Michigan Education Association (MEA).

She has not hidden the fact that she is pro-teacher, which doesn't necessarily knock her out of the running for a seat on the board. However, a board member must be willing to be objective when it comes to issues facing the district, and we believe she couldn't possibly be objective when it comes to the teachers.

She also doesn't seem to have any concept of what it's like to run a $40 million corporation, which is essentially what the schools represent. Her federal-funding fix-all statements show how woefully uninformed she is when it comes to the financial plight of the district.

Karen Murphy is a recent high school graduate, and we feel it wouldn't hurt to have a young person's view of the issues facing the board.

She didn't come up with any answers, but along the way she demonstrated that she'd learned a little about the issues and problems facing the district.

Murphy has a lot to learn about the schools, but we encourage her to stay involved with the district in any way she can.

VOTE! Monday

There's no reason NOT to vote in next Monday's school elections. And there's a good reason why you SHOULD vote.

At least one of the three seats up for grabs on the Plymouth-Canton School board will be won by a newcomer to the board.

And remember the time the Plymouth-Canton school millage lost because it ended in a tie vote!

Also on Monday's ballot, the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees has four seats up for election.

And although the Plymouth-Canton school district is a major part of that regional college's district, it has had little representation there in past years especially. (Cantonite Mike Burley sits on the Schoolcraft board now and two local educators, Mary Breen and Harvey Failor, are seeking to add to The Plymouth-Canton Community's representation.)

But Schoolcraft College races also have a way of narrowing to vote margins of 10 or less determining a winner.

YOUR VOTE WILL COUNT -- in the Plymouth-Canton race and the Schoolcraft contest. That's reason enough to vote.

See you at the polls -- open 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Hank's 1st major screw up

The Downtown Development Authority -- the DDA.
 Maybe, they ought to call it -- DDT.
 Whoops!

The legal maps the City of Plymouth was giving out as late as noon Monday didn't describe the same district that the City Commission held a public hearing on just eight hours later.

"I apologize..." weaseled City Manager Hank Graper, who had abused this newspaper Monday morning for questioning discrepancies in the maps of the district in time to delay somebody buying him lunch. (A number of readers had raised questions to The Crier about who was and who wasn't included in the district.)

Just Monday morning Hank and City Engineer Ken West said The Crier staffers could come down and learn how to read maps.

Without as much as blinking an eyelash, the City Commission followed Hank's lead in discussing the wrong DDA district. The Commissioners never raised any complaint that the districts had been switched -- thereby earning them Sheep of the Year Awards and entering the record-book along with the McAninch-led Commissioners who blindly followed former City Manager Fred Yockey's request to file petitions for annexing Plymouth Township the night before the consolidation election.

Ironically, the concept of a DDA is good for both the long and the short runs.

But it needs more examination than was apparent Monday. Why has Hank changed his tune from saying the DDA would be the vehicle for major projects -- like a Central Lot deck -- to one of such important public works as street lighting and beautification?

Perhaps the whole DDA idea should be shelved until the new Commission takes office -- maybe that's Hank's secret plan.

Has Hank suddenly turned stupid on us?

That's hard to believe.

Thanks for soccer help

EDITOR:

This is an open letter to publicly thank the hundreds of people who helped to make the Canton Soccer Club's First Invitational Soccer Tournament such a tremendous success.

As professionals in the public recreation field, we are well aware of the countless hours of planning and preparation which goes into such a large event.

Special thank-yous must go to Phil LaJoy, current Canton Soccer Club president and Steve Kozusko, past president, for their guiding influence and their entire clubs time and effort.

Although we work together with the other Canton Township departments on many projects, we must mention Jack Dingelday and the DPW, Chief Jerry Cos and the Canton Police department, and Aaron Machnik of the building department who deserve special recognition for their outstanding contributions.

The parks and recreation department maintenance staff also performed countless task in preparation for this tournament.

Events such as this can only enhance Canton's growing reputation as a prosperous and thriving community. Ninety-eight youth soccer teams and their parents from all over Michigan, Ohio and Canada visited our community and saw some of the best tht Canton has to offer over the Memorial Day weekend.

This was a beautiful way to open the new Canton recreation complex.

Congratulations on a job well done and a hearty thank you to everyone who participated.

... or was it?

By W. EDWARD WENDOVER

With Malice Toward None

Why Jim McKeon, a former mayor who had city manager problems, was just saying that Hank may be the best manager the city's ever seen.

If you're a Sherlock, it doesn't take much to deduce that maybe Hank has something up his sleeve by embarrassing the commission like he did Monday night!

You sneaky fellow, Hank.

HANK'S SECRET PLAN: As late as Monday morning he was running around saying how much he liked working with the CURRENT City Commission (three of whom have petitions out for re-election). But how easy will it be to re-elect the three hopefuls on the heels of Monday night?

That's it!

Hank scheduled this snafu for a mere eight days before the filing deadline for City Commission to encourage some challengers to the current Commissioners.

But Hank's mistake was that he also neglected Monday night to let the hostile packed house know how to file for City Commission. Just as we tried to help Hank learn about the mistake in the maps for the DDA, we'll help here:

1. If you're a city voter (or can qualify as one) go to the City Clerk's office NOW and get petitions.

2. Get 25 valid signatures of registered voters.

3. Turn it in to the Clerk by 4 p.m. Tuesday.

(How was that Hank?)

It's as simple as that.

There had to be a reason why Hank charged ahead with the DDA non-district hearing.

He was just trying to drum up interest in the Commission race (remember -- the petition deadline is 4 p.m. Tuesday).

Otherwise, why would he mask his administration's major mistake with such arrogance when his error was discovered?

Was this Hank's first major screw up? He luckily survived his Falkland Crisis when no more than the usual number of Rotarians keeled over from smoke inhalation during the Fall Festival barbecue under the new Gathering. He's managed to repay all the "loans" floated to him by the Commission to purchase such knick-knacks as double-decker buses and popcorn machines.

Maybe this wasn't a screw-up at all, but a carefully designed plot.

Nice going, Hank!

$1 will help Canton kids' teeth

EDITOR:

I have just been informed by one of the school nurses that many children in Canton are in need of dental care. Their parents have had to live on unemployment checks, some living on income from odd jobs. Others are on Welfare.

Those parents not on Welfare have lost their dental insurance benefits. Those on Welfare may receive dental care through Medicaid but the paperwork is excessive and their payment is less than the normal fee charged by the dentist. Due to this problem, dentists in the area will not take Medicaid patients.

The children in Plymouth may receive help through the Plymouth Community Fund, but due to Community fund by-laws, these funds cannot help Canton children.

Canton comes under the Detroit United Foundation but in order to get dental care, parents must go into Detroit to Jefferson Street. Not many parents can get transportation there.

In the meantime, the teeth are getting worse.

We do have dentists in th area that will donate some of their time to help these kids, but we need approximately $2,000 to cover supplies, etc.

If everyone reading this letter will donate $1, we can do it. Mail the money to Captain Harfoot of the Salvation Army and he will see that this money goes toward the dental care of Canton children.

Please help me. Don't forget to put $1 in an envelope now -- if we're lucky and receive more than $2,000 we will set it aside for next year.

Mail your donation to: the Salvation Army, 9451 S. Main Street, Plymouth, MI., 48170, care of the Canton Children's Dental Fund.

I will let you know how much we receive. Thank-you for caring.

Judge grants retrial motion

OV Inn homicide retried

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

The Plymouth man convicted of beating Stacey Hurrelbrink to death with a hammer in 1981 has been granted a retrial by a Wayne County Circuit Court judge.

After two days of testimony, Judge William J. Giovan granted on a motion for the retrial of Ronald J. Hartwig, the 33-year-old man who allegedly murdered Hurrelbrink at the Old Village Inn on August 23, 1981.

Plymouth Police found the dead woman's partially-clothed body near the railroad tracks by 886 N. Mill Street, the Old Village Inn, formerly known as the Nelson Hotel.

Judge Giovan agreed to the retrial on the basis of that a resgestae witness - one with important information - had not been used in the trial, said a spokesman for the state public defenders appellate commission.

The resgestae witness or witnesses, the spokesman said, had information on Hartwig's whereabouts in the early morning hours of August 23.

Plymouth Police Chief Carl Berry said apparently a new witness had been found who had knowledge of the incident or information about what transpired that evening.

Also, several witnesses which the Plymouth Police knew about but did not use during the trial were discussed during the court hearing on the retrial, Berry said. Those witnesses could place the defendent whereabouts at 12:30 a.m. Police believe the murder occurred at approximately 4:30 a.m.

The public defenders' office said other issues involved in the retrial motion concerned the credibility of a witness used by the prosecution.

The Wayne County Prosecutor's Office can appeal the Circuit Court decision to grant a retrial, but they must do so within 30 days of Giovan's decision.

A new trial date and place will not be set until a decision by made by the prosecutor's office on whether to appeal the decision, a Circuit Court spokesman said.

Hartwig was sentenced to life in prison for the bludgeoning death of Hurrelbrink.

Witnesses told police that Hurrelbrink had planned to spend the night in the hotel's basement sleeping on a mattress. Police said Hurrelbrink was beaten to death with a hammer in the basement and her body was later dragged outside.

Strawberry fields forever? Well, maybe soon...

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Strawberries. Mounds of them. In jams, pies, salads, and fresh by the handful.

Although the cool spring weather has been less than cooperative for most of the area's strawberry growers, they all predict roughly the same forecast: the strawberry season should open in The Plymouth-Canton Community within two weeks.

"The cool weather has held us back some," said Duane Bordine of Bordine's Fruit Market in Canton Township. "We normally have strawberries by Memorial Day." Bob Blessed of Blessed's Fruit Farm in Plymouth Township agreed.

"We've had some cool nights where we're had to irrigate the fields to keep the strawberry plants from freezing," Blessed said. "We normally have strawberries sooner -- they're going to be a little late this year."

Although the strawberries themselves may be late in ripening, the growers themselves got their usual early start in their strawberry fields in order to harvest the plants by spring.

Strawberry growers start their planting season in April. The season isn't over until late November when the last of the strawberry plants are covered with straw for the winter.

Russel Park of Park-U-Pick Berry Farm west of Northville in South Lyon said that strawberry farming is a full-time business, although many people assume that the season starts and ends with the harvesting of the fruit crop.

"Strawberry farming is a year-round operation," Parks said. "You eat, sleep, think strawberries when you're in this business."

All of the growers agreed that soil, temperatures, and weeds are among the primary concerns of a strawberry farmer. Once the fruit is ready for harvesting and the fields are opened to the public, concerns turn to safety and quality service.

Local strawberry farmers usually tend between 30,000 and 60,000 strawberry plants per year. Once the fruit ripens, area growers predict that strawberries will be at their best near the end of June.

The Michigan Cooperative Extension Service said that the best berries to pick are those which are a glossy, solid red color. Although large berries may freeze better, the smaller berries tend to be sweeter and have more flavor. The berries should be picked with their caps on.

Containers for the berries are furnished by some local farmers; others ask that the individual bring containers which the berries can later be transferred into. Berries are sold by the quart and by the pound among the various farms. A quart of berries is equal to about one and a half pounds of fruit.

All of the growers suggest that people interested in picking call ahead to find out what picking conditions and the crowds are like at the farm.

Plymouth-Canton residents may want to consider harvesting their summer supply of strawberries at the following area farms:

Blessed's Fruit Farm, 49601 Powell Road, Plymouth Township. Phone: 453-6439.

Bordine's Fruit Market, at the corner of Ford and Ridge Roads in Canton Township. Phone: 495-1098

Ring, ring ...yack, yack, yack

Have you ever stopped and tried to figure out how many people you talk to during the course of a day? I was surprised to discover that on an average day, I talk to between 40 and 50 people.

I realize it sounds silly for anyone to count how many people they talked to in a day. However, after spending a few crazy days running constantly and not accomplishing half of what I planned to do, I had to find out what I was doing wrong.

I've attended a time management seminar, I know how to choose priorities and how to schedule a certain amount of time for different things. Somewhere along the line there is never enough time allotted for interruptions. I couldn't begin to count how many times I have to stop what I'm doing to talk to someone.

The telephone is usually a great convenience and time saver, but it can also be a royal pain. There are days when I would love to disconnect the darn thing. If the phone ringing doesn't get to you, the intercom buzzer at the office will.

While the telephone drives me crazy, (unless it's a call I've been waiting for) there was a time when I couldn't understand why it took some people two days to return my call. Glancing at the stack of phone messages on my desk, I now understand.

Being in the newspaper business, I realize there will always be interruptions. It's the nature of the job. I enjoy talking to people. I just wish everyone else's schedule would fit into mine.

The only solution is to put a "do not disturb" sign on the door, and know who is calling and what they want before I decide whether or not to take the phone call. However, dreaming is an even bigger waste of time.

I guess everyone has days when they feel like they are running on a treadmill. Maybe it would be easier to handle if we thought we were losing weight (at least that would be an accomplishment).

MEET THE NEW DOCTOR IN TOWN!

Hi, I'm
Dr. Clifton J. McLellan

Did you know that being certified as a chiropractor requires a minimum of six years of highly specialized college training?

Today's Doctor of Chiropractic must complete 4,428 hours of classroom instruction and a rigid chiropractic board examination. In most states, continuing educational seminars must be completed for annual license renewal.

In addition, I have completed courses in Xray Diagnosis, and Orthopedic, Neurologic Evaluation; and hold degrees in Biology from Humboldt State University, and Doctor of Chiropractic from Palmer College of Chiropractic. Post graduate studies include two years as an intern at the Famed Five Points Chiropractic Clinic of Davenport, Iowa.

While in college, I was included in; "Who's Who, among American College Students," and most recently was nominated to Outstanding Young Americans.

To further my continuing education, I have recently received special training in the Gonstead Technique, and Spinal Thermography from Mt. Horeb, Wisconsin.

This is the kind of training and professionalism I offer you. If you have hesitated visiting a chiropractor, perhaps you didn't know that some chiropractors go to such great lengths to continue their education and provide you with the latest techniques and the most qualified service. So you see, what you don't know, can't help you. Call me today and let me help you.

Did you know that the symptoms most commonly treated by chiropractors are:

- |               |                 |               |
|---------------|-----------------|---------------|
| Headaches     | Neck Pain       | Dizziness     |
| Shoulder Pain | Pain below neck | Numbness      |
| Arm Pain      | Lower back pain | Muscle Spasms |
| Hip Pain      | Pain down legs  | Foot Problems |

To introduce you to the healing world of Chiropractic, please accept my special offer:

COMPLIMENTARY SPINAL EXAMINATION

This examination normally costs $35.00 or more. It will include an orthopedic test, a neurological test and of course, a private consultation to discuss the results.

Give blood
someone's life

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

If you have an hour of time to donate, you could save the lives of several people.

The Western Wayne County Chapter of the Children's Leukemia Foundation is sponsoring a Red Cross blood drive Saturday, June 11. The chapter hopes to collect blood from at least 125 donors to help ease blood shortages expected to occur throughout the summer months.

The chapter was founded by Mary Dingeldey, a Canton resident, Canton Sesquicentennial chairperson and former leukemia patient. Dingeldey said she started the chapter as a way to give back to people some of what she had received during her own struggle with leukemia.

"I started the chapter when people kept coming to me while I was sick and asking me what they could do to help," Dingeldey said. "There are only so many flowers and cakes you can receive. I started a western Wayne Children's Leukemia chapter as a way to do something."

Dingeldey said that the blood one donor gives can help save the lives of several different patients. She said that the blood is divided into component parts and different patients needs can be met with these parts.

"One patient may get red blood cells, one may get white, several patients can be saved with just one donor's blood," Dingeldey said. She added that June is a critical month for blood collections because children are out of school and the need for blood increases.

Dingeldey said this is the only blood drive the chapter sponsors yearly. She said she hopes for a large turnout of donors.

"Anyone who has ever needed blood before understands the importance of donating blood," Dingeldey said. "The Red Cross does not charge blood patients for blood like it once did, and they need all the support they can get."

The blood drive will take place at Canton Township Hall on Canton Center Road between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. For more information on the blood drive, call Mary Dingeldey at 495-0509 or Joyce Chumbley at 981-5898.

The 8th annual Canton Country Festival celebrates the township at its best

It all began with sweet corn. And Canton's determination to promote its numerous assets in a way which would entertain its friends and residents.

The Canton Country Festival, that week-long extravaganza of events, is celebrating its eighth year of existence. Originally a festival which recognized Canton as the sweet corn growing capital of Michigan, the festival has come a long way in eight years. This year, with additions like a carnival, casino and rodeo, the Country Fest promises to be the biggest and best Canton will enjoy.

But the growth of the Country Festival has come only with long years of learning and experience and a lot of hard work. The festival has changed significantly since its early years, and with those changes have come new challenges, complications, and responsibilities.

Flossie Tonda, publicity chairperson for the Canton Country Festival Board, said that the first Country Festival was actually a one-day event which was sponsored by the Canton Chamber of Commerce.

"The Country Festival originally was known as the Canton Corn Festival," Tonda said. "It used to only be a one day affair."

Tonda said the Corn Festival was more like an afternoon trade fair than a festival. But as the idea of the fair caught on, the Chamber sought ways to increase its size and appeal. The celebration was lengthened to a two-day festival, but after a several years, the Chamber was no longer able to host the festival because of liability risks.

"The insurance risks were too much for the Chamber to assume," Tonda said. "As a result, we formed a festival board and corporation which could help with risk matters. That's when the Corn Festival became the Canton Country Festival."

Tonda said the 12-member festival board is already three years old. Members sit on the board for a year, and officers are elected yearly. Country Fest Board members each chair a committee and are responsible for coordinating the entire festival.

James Gillig is the president of the 1983 Country Festival Board. He served as the parade chairman for the 1981 and 1982 Festival Boards.

Gillig said that the Country Festival this year is bigger than it has ever been before. "The festival is changing every year, too," he added.

One of the most significant changes which the Country Festival is striving to achieve this year is financial independence.

"The township has always been very good about funding the festival," Gillig said. "But sooner or later that money is going to run out, and we'd like to be self-supporting instead. This is the first year we will have a chance to go for that independence through events like the carnival and casino."

Gillig said that the Country Festival was moved from its original location at Griffin Park in Canton to the new Canton recreation Complex (directly behind the township hall). The festival was moved to accommodate the increasing number of residents and visitors who have come to make the festival such a success.

Although both Gillig and Tonda note that the number of groups participating in the Country Festival has increased, they also said that more volunteers will be needed in the future if the Country Festival is going to expand further.

"As the festival gets bigger and bigger, it gets harder to coordinate," Gillig said. "Many of the people who are on the board have been on it for years and they're getting just a little tired."

Gillig said that between 20 and 30 volunteers usually help the board put the festival together every year. "But we need a lot more people who are willing to get involved in the event," he added.

*Canton
 always a very special affair*

Everybody loves a parade. And Canton is no exception.

The Country Festival's opening day parade has already gained recognition as an event well worth watching. Floats, bands, and antique cars and farm machinery roll past crowds in a menagerie which is sure to add excitement and color to everybody's day.

This year's parade, scheduled to kick off the Country Festival celebration will take place June 12 at 1 p.m. It will feature at least 95 different parade entries. There will be at least eight bands in the event, floats, and this year, a very special grand marshal, Count Scary.

But long before the first fire engines and color guards start the parade rolling on its route through Canton, the Canton Country Festival parade committee is busy rolling with plans which will insure that the event is successful, organized and safe for everybody involved.

What are the ingredients to a successful parade? Country Festival parade chairperson Mary Feltz said that coordination and organization, time, work and a lot of energy are the key elements. Feltz should know - she has helped to coordinate Canton's extravaganza since its conception three years ago.

Feltz said her committee began to plan the 1983 parade nearly a year ago. "We worked hard this year," Feltz said. "But this year was easier than last year and the year before, and it gets a little easier with each parade we plan."

The first step in arranging a parade, Feltz said, is contacting interested participants. "There is an incredible amount of paperwork involved with this event. We write letters to thousands of people."

Feltz said letters describing when and where Canton's parade will be held are mailed to groups, organizations schools and other bands early in the year. A parade theme is chosen before the letters are mailed, and the theme is described to the possible participants.

Last year 2,000 people received letters from canton's parade committee. The committee heard back from about 600 of those potential participants.

"The first year we held the parade we had to generate a list of people to contact," Feltz said. "Now we have that list established and it makes our job a little easier."

In addition to mailed parade applications, Feltz said local groups can enter the

A YOUNG POM-POM GIRL keeps step with the rest of the parade participants in last year's Country Festival Parade. parade later in the year by picking up parade applications directly from the committee. Although this year's parade entry deadline is over, interested groups can think about floats and entries for 1984's event.

Traffic coordination is another problem. The committee has a line-up chairperson who coordinates where each group will march in the parade. The parade route takes marchers from Saltz Road north on Canton Center Road, east on Ford Road, south on Sheldon Road and back to Saltz Road.

Feltz said that committee must request the state's permission to close Ford Road for an hour. It must also coordinate the parade route with the Canton Police Department because of the one way traffic changes.

"When we tie up Ford Road for five or six hours with one way traffic, we need to coordinate this carefully," Feltz said.

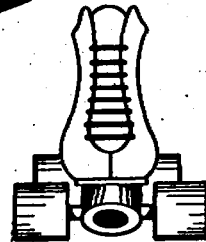

Feltz said the parade does not charge its participants to enter. Floats and entries will be judged before the event takes place, and there will be marchers carrying banners in front of the winning entries this year. She added that every parade participant receives a recognition certificate from the committee.

And when the last float has left the gate and begins to make its way down the street -- what then?

"The parade really does have an end, and when you see it finally happen, it's satisfying," Feltz said. "When you've worked that hard and it works out well, it's great. Then we may take a small break, but we start right back up again -- with the next year's parade line-up."

Festival Board et al deserves all the credit

A festival for 49,000 plus people?

That's a major undertaking and for the 12 Country Festival Board members who took on the task of putting together Canton's celebration this year, it was an especially big task.

Because the 1983 festival will offer more activities and events, board members had to work particularly hard at making everything come together smoothly.

Board members are chosen from the community yearly through business and other community groups. Each board member is then responsible for coordinating a committee of between 20 and 25 volunteers to get their area of festival responsibility rolling. Volunteers and the board begin meeting a year in advance of the festival and the pace doesn't slack up until after the event is over the following summer.

James Gillig served as chairman of the Festival board for 1983. Gillig also coordinated the casino for the festival. John Schwartz served as first vice-president of the board and chairman of the grounds committee and Flossie Tonda served as second vice-president of the board and publicity chairwoman.

John Farley served as treasurer for the board and Rebecca Haverstein-Coughlin was secretary for the group.

In addition to these board officers, other committee members who served on the festival board included Bart Berg, entertainment committee; James Davison, sign committee; Mary Feltz, parade committee; Greg Gatto, health department; Debbie O'Connor, volunteers committee; Art Winkel, concessions committee and the cow chip fling; and Carol Perrin, activities committee.

Country Fest has changed with your convenience and safety in mind

The Canton Country Festival has undergone several changes this year. The dates of the Country Festival were changed from early August to early June this year to accommodate more Canton residents.

"By holding the festival in June, fewer people will be on vacation," said Flossie Tonda, publicity chairwoman for the festival. The festival is scheduled to run June 12 through 19.

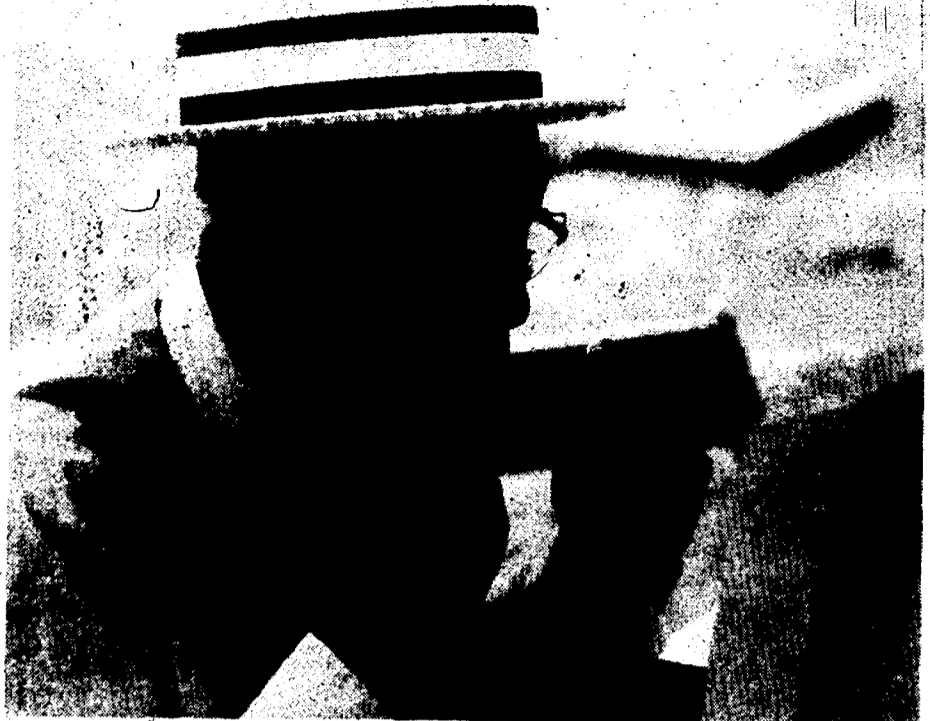

The location of the festival grounds has also been changed this year, again to accommodate eager festival crowds. Tonda said that all Country Fest events will be held on the new Canton Recreation Complex grounds located directly behind Canton Township Hall. The Recreation Complex is west of Canton Center Road, and south of Cherry Hill and Proctor roads.

In addition to all of the new events planned for the event this year, festival goers should be aware of one more festival change. Traffic along Proctor Road, which leads directly to the Canton Recreation Complex, will be designated as one way during heavy traffic periods. Traffic will run east to west along Proctor at these times and drivers must go to Beck Road and then go either north or south to circle back around the festival grounds.

Pets are in the spotlight

PIGGER GOES TO THE PET SHOW. Heather Gillig, of Miller School, entered this hairy handful in last year's Canton Country Fest pet show. The animal, reputed to be a hamster, is named "Pigger." Registration for this year's pet show will be at 9:30 a.m. Saturday, June 18, with the judging at 10:30 a.m. (Crier photo)

Oh, that buttery good corn!!

THOSE PEARLY GOLDEN KERNELS sure go down good. Above, Carl S. Andrews makes short work of a cob of Canton country corn. This year's corn eating contest will be Sunday, June 19 at 2 p.m. (Crier photo)

Volunteers sought for 84' Festival Are you a Canton doer?

Do you have even a few hours of extra time on your hands? Would you like to meet some of Canton's primary movers and shakers? Would you like to become one of those people yourself?

If you answer "yes" to at least one of these questions, then you may want to think about joining the efforts of those who put the Canton Country Festival together next year.

Volunteer committee coordinator Debbie O'Connor said that new volunteers and board members are seriously needed for next year's festival. While only about 60 volunteers and board members coordinated this year's event, O'Connor said that at least 200 volunteers could be used.

"I don't know what we're going to do about next year's festival if we don't get some new help," O'Connor said. "We can use help from people who can get involved all year or from those who can only donate a few hours of time during festival week. Volunteers can pick how much time they want to donate."

O'Connor said those who are interested in volunteering should contact her at the Canton Public Library or James Gillig, Festival Chairman.

"It isn't all work," O'Connor said. "It's also the chance to get to know who makes what happen in Canton and to become one of those people."

Events abound at celebration A few special highlights...

Confused about which Country festival events to participate in, which to watch and which to listen to? Although all of the festival events are well worth seeing, below are highlights of some of the one-time-only events which will occur during festival week.

The Country Festival parade will kick off the celebration at 1 p.m. on Sunday, June 12. Good seating can be found anywhere along the parade route which runs from Saltz to Canton Center to Ford to Sheldon roads.

Rock fans can catch a few local vibrations from the rock group "Teezer" at 6:30 p.m. June 14 on the festival grounds. Dancing for the event is mandatory and free!

Those who have never seen a hypnotized rabbit or a jumping pig may enjoy watching Harold Tesch and his trained animal and magic show. The show will take place at 6:30 p.m. June 16.

Feeling a little scary lately? The Count Scary look-alike contest will take place at 5:30 p.m. on June 17. The Clark Family Players will perform their magic and singing the same night at 7 and 8 p.m., and a country band will perform at 9 p.m.

Runners can start pumping iron for the Five Mile Run which takes place at 9 a.m. on Saturday, June 18. They can slow down their pace to the tunes of the Home Grown Bluegrass Band at 7 p.m. that night.

Golfers can get off to an early start June 19 with the Fellows Creek Golf Tournament at 11 a.m. Those who enjoy their promenades may want to participate in the Canton Wheels square dancing which will take place at 1 p.m.

IT'S ALL IN THE WRISTS, according to consummate king of the Cow Chip Fling, Canton Township Supervisor Jim Poole. Above, Poole demonstrates the unique over-the-shoulder-side-arm chip pitch which has made him the envy of Tiger pitchers -- but has yet to win him the chip crown.

You probably think tossing turds in the annual Canton Country Fest Cow Chip Fling is easy.

You probably think you just walk up there, pick a chip and give it a throw.

Well, you are all wrong.

There is an art -- just ask Art Winkel, fire department captain and chairman of the fling.

Winkel said there are two popular styles -- basic frisbee and discus windup. "Many people prefer your basic frisbee -- cock your wrist near your chest the whip it. Others have a more intricate maneuver which involves whirling around and finally releasing the chip like a track discus thrower," Winkel said.

Participation in the chip fling is by invitation only, Winkel said, with representation from government leaders, civic groups and the business community.

Each participant is allowed one toss. "If we had best of three, I would have to collect three times as many chips," Winkel said.

Unfortunately, Governor Blanchard and President Reagan have both declined their invitations to the chip fling. "One of these years they will come," he said.

The man probably in the best position to give advice is two-time chip champion Bruce McDermott.

"I am from the frisbee-style school," McDermott said. "But you just don't walk up there one day and give it a fling -- I've been in training all year."

McDermott's winning fling last year was about 127 feet and the year before he took the title with a 97 foot toss. "This year I think I can win with a 137 foot toss. But because I get to go last I can see what I have to beat."

McDermott said half the battle is choosing your chip.

"You gotta get one that is solid and will not disintegrate. I take one about the size of a medium frisbee -- one with a couple of soft places so you can get a good grip," he said.

McDermott said he figures Canton Township Supervisor Jim Poole is out for a grudge match "since he was ahead last year until I tossed."

He credits his expertise in flinging to several years he spent out West. "I did pick up a few things from those good ole cowboys," he said.

Although style is important for the fling, one must also consider etiquette.

"It was my first fling and I made a major gaff," said Canton head librarian Deborah O'Connor, "and I have been razed about it ever since."

"Somehow I went first -- they were doing city department heads and ladies first. And well, there was big orange gloves there so I used them," she said.

"I didn't know what a big mistake I had made. Now I have learned cow chip etiquette and I always throw barehanded," she said.

O'Connor said she sticks with a basic underhand softball toss. "I get a respectable distance -- 35 feet or so. I stay away from the more complicated throwing styles -- I would not want to throw it out of bounds and hit a spectator, the cow chip queen, or heavens -- a township official," she said.

One more point has been on the minds of the flingers this year. With the Country Fest moved from August to June, the cow chips have not had as long to dry out.

"This year's event could be a messy affair," said Edward Wendover, publisher of The Community Crier.

"If insufficient dried chips can be found, will the judges allow us to pack them into little balls?" Wendover asked.

A bucking bronco real rodeo!!!

Cowboys in Canton?
You bet! Lots of them!

Canton will become the cowboy watering stop of the midwest for three days when the township holds its first rodeo during the Country Festival.

The rodeo will be sponsored by the Mid-State Rodeo Association. It will feature such events as bareback riding, bull riding, saddlebronc riding, calf roping, steer wrestling and girl's barrel racing.

But just how authentic can a rodeo held in Canton Township be? "Very authentic," said Mike Walden, Mid-State Rodeo Association representative.

"This rodeo is just like any rodeo you might see out west," Walden said, "except that it will be even better. Rodeos are a dime a dozen out west and they're often just kid events. Our rodeo is a championship rodeo and we'll have championship cowboys competing in it."

Walden said that the Canton rodeo is only one of several hundred rodeos which the Association will sponsor this summer. Canton's event will attract nearly 350 professional cowboys who will vie for over $13,000 in prize money.

"This is a full-time profession for these people," Walden said. "Most rodeo cowboys will participate in over 150 rodeos a year. They have to participate in the outdoor rodeos in the summer and win to participate in the big prize rodeos held indoors in the winter."

Walden said any cowboy who wants to become a rodeo participant should be athletic. "They will also have to accept the fact that at one time or another, they're going to get hurt while in the ring."

Walden himself has been hospitalized once for injuries he suffered while riding a bull. "But I've been riding since I was 12 and I'm 29 now so it isn't all that bad." Walden added that like anything, bull riding and bronco riding takes skill and a knowledge of the sport.

"It takes a lot of mental preparation to jump on the back of a bull," he said. "Cowboys are very religious because the work they do is so dangerous."

IT ISN'T ALWAYS EASY finding a stable seat at a rodeo. This cowboy will be one of several champions to perform in Canton's roundup.

Would-be rodeo cowboys can get help through professional rodeo schools, Walden said. The schools teach everything from what a spur is to mounting and riding the bucking animal.

"Anyone with enough heart and determination can ride," he said. Although rodeos can be a very lucrative profession for the cowboys who are involved and take top honors and prizes in the events, Walden also said that rodeos are expensive shows to operate.

"All of our animals are being shipped to Canton from Rising Sun, Indiana. We rent the animals because it would be too expensive for our Association to own them," Walden said. "A good bucking bull is easily worth $20,000 and when you have 35 to 40 rodeo livestock, you have quite an investment."

All of the horses and bulls used in the Canton rodeo will be kept on the festival grounds. There will also be a bucking bull and bucking horse on display at the McDonald's Restaurant on Ford Road June 11 and 12 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Prizes in the rodeo have been provided by the local support of businesses in Canton. Walden added that because the Mid-West Rodeo Association is a non-profit organization, they will donate 50 cents of every dollar they make to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

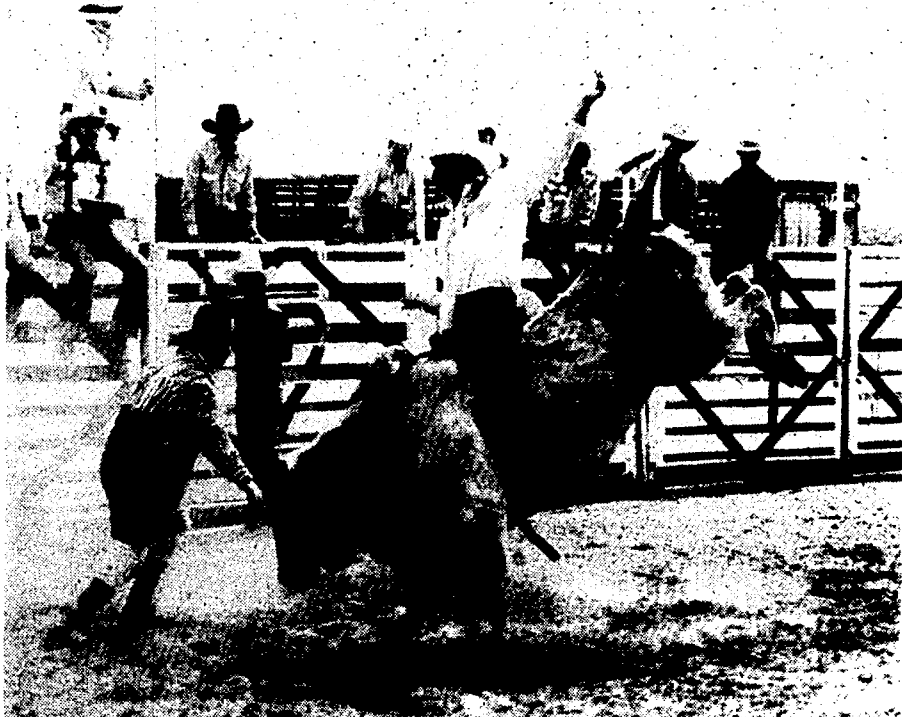

"Businesses will usually sponsor a shoot gate," Walden said, "and the cowboys try for that prize money."

Walden said that although the question of animal cruelty has often been raised to him, he believes rodeo animals are treated better than most other animals.

"We use a bucking flank on them," he said, "but it doesn't really hurt them. The animals also have a 24 hour vet and the best food available."

There will be three rodeo shows during the Country Festival. June 17 and 18 there will be showings at 7 p.m. June 18 there will be a show at 2 p.m. Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for children 6 to 12 years and children under 6 are admitted free.

Advanced tickets are available at the Chamber of Commerce and other local businesses. Advanced tickets are $1 less for both adults and children 6 through 12.

RIDE EM' COWBOY!! Country Festival goers will be treated to a little bit of the old west when the Mid-State Rodeo Association brings its show to the township. There will be rodeo shows on June 17, 18 and 19. Local cowboys who want to try their luck at winning some of the prize money, without losing their balance can call 1-812-534-3925 before June 14 to register.

GET THOSE PANCAKES WHILE THEY'RE HOT!! A member of the Canton Rotary Club prepares pancakes for the Rotary Club's annual pancake breakfast. This year, the Rotary will serve its world famous flapjacks starting at 8 a.m. Saturday morning. (Crier photo)

Food plentiful at Festival

Bring on the chow!

The Canton Country Festival promises to keep everybody well entertained with its jam-packed schedule of events. Starting June 12, festival goers will be remiss if they let any hour go by idle without first checking to see what events are taking on the festival grounds.

All of that action, however, can build up some mighty big appetites, and the folks who have planned the celebration have not forgotten to schedule in plenty of good eating throughout the week.

Four major meals, and plenty of concession stands will offer participants a wide selection of foods and beverages to choose from. Concessions stands will all be located in one large tent located on the festival grounds. Serving places for the meals will be posted on the festival grounds.

The Canton Jaycees will start the meals rolling with their shish kebab dinner Friday, June 17. The meal, which will be served from 4 to 11 p.m., will feature steaming hot shish kebab, a potato, cole slaw, bread and butter and a beverage. Tickets are $3.75 for adults and $2.75 for children. No advanced ticket sales are planned.

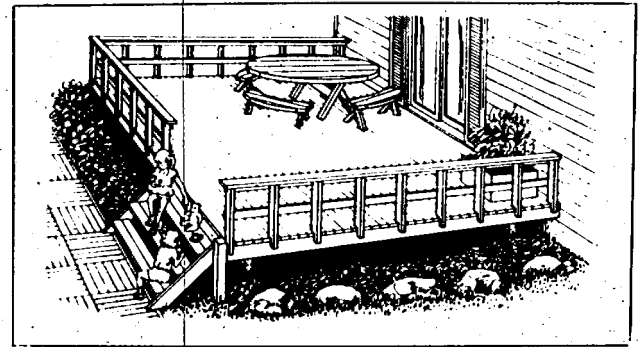

Start your festival Saturday (June 18) off right with a Canton Rotary Club pancake breakfast. The Rotary will start serving their golden flapjacks at 7:30 a.m. and will continue to serve them until 2 p.m. Breakfast will include all of the pancakes you can eat, sausage, milk, coffee and orange juice. Tickets are $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children. Advanced tickets may be purchased from any Canton Rotarian.

Saturday night (June 18) hungry festival goers can complete their meal circuit with a juicy hamburger from the Canton's Business and Professional Women's Club. The club will offer its ground beef dinner complete with cole slaw, beans, ice cream and beverages from 4 to 8 p.m. Tickets are $3. Advanced tickets are available from Debbie O'Connor at the Canton Public Library.

The finale meal of the Country Fest, the Canton Chamber of Commerce barbeque chicken dinner, will take place Sunday, June 19 from noon to 6 p.m. The meal will feature chicken, sweet corn, roll, chips, and beverages. Tickets are $4.25 and advanced tickets are available from many area businesses and banks.

Concession stand offerings will include pizza, nachos, pasties, hot dogs, ice cream and candy, pie, popcorn, hamburgers, bagels, Greek food, and plenty of non-alcoholic and alcoholic beverages.

New chip queen sought

Fourteen lucky ladies were interviewed Tuesday afternoon for the highest honor in Canton Township - Country Fest Cow Chip Queen.

Fire Department Capt. Art Winkel said he received 14 applications from girls and women who want to be Chip Queen or on the Chip Court.

The committee will announce this year's winners on Wednesday. Winkel said there is no standards for Chip Queen applicants and no formal basis for the judges' decision.

"We try not to infringe on the judges right to pick whoever they want," Winkel said.

The queen and court have two official duties during the Country Fest. One is to ride on a manure spreader in the parade and the second is to reign over the Cow Chip Fling - encouraging participants.

Rachael Heubner is the 1982 Cow Chip Queen and she will no doubt crown the new queen appropriately, Winkel said.

Any women of any age who lives or works in Canton was eligible for the Cow Chip Court.

Tug-of-war challenges the strong

PULL-L-L-L-L!!! The Canton Country Festival tug-of-war can turn into a very messy affair for those tugging teams who lose their footing. A pit full of gooey mud welcomes the losers with enough dirt for every participant to wallow in. This year the tug-of-war will take place Saturday, June 18 at 2 p.m. (Crier photo)

Ms. Valda McClain
Assistant Advertising Director
The Community Crier
1226 S. Main St.
Plymouth, Mich. 48170

Dear Valda,

Canton McDonalds' advertising money is well spent, I feel, because The Community Crier is a thoroughly read newspaper containing only Canton and Plymouth local news. In addition, its tabloid format lends prominence to any advertisement.

I am pleased with the results I have received from The Crier, and I would like to take this opportunity to tell you.

After advertising the Big Meal Deal in The Crier, sales volume increased by 15% over expected levels in my Ford Road store in Canton. Specials such as the ice cream sundae and soft serve cone have likewise experienced a substantial sales increase after being advertised in The Crier.

As a Canton advertiser, I am very encouraged by the results I have received and will continue to use The Crier for placing my advertising.

Sincerely, Robert E. Card

The balloon fest is coming soon!

BY RACHAEL DOLSON
 Plymouth will host the largest ballooning event in Michigan July 8 to 10, when more than 40 colorful hot air balloons will be launched during the Third Annual Mayflower Hotel Hot Air Balloon Festival.

The balloon launchings and races throughout the weekend will be the main attraction, said Mayflower Hotel general manager Scott Lorenz - but some other events have been planned to delight the ground-bound of Plymouth.

Lorenz has put together a weekend line-up which includes a Catfish Dinner, a Balloon Ball, Art in the Park, and an Inflation Sale.

The festival is sponsored by the Mayflower Hotel in conjunction with Gordon Boring of the Wicket Basket Balloon Center and more than 40 other businesses.

The balloons will ascend from Plymouth Township Park, at Ann Arbor Trail and McClumpha roads, on Friday at 6 p.m., and on Saturday and Sunday at 6 a.m. and 6 p.m.

The "Spirit of Plymouth," the city's double decker bus, will be running from the Plymouth Cultural Center parking lot to the launch site for the ascensions. Bus rides cost only 25 cents and will save riders the $1 parking fee which will be charged to park on the grounds.

There is no admission charge to watch the balloon launches. Saturday and Sunday evenings the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce will be hosting a Catfish Dinner at the launch grounds.

A Balloon Ball will be held on Friday and Saturday evenings after sunset on the deck of the Mayflower II. Cocktails, food and dancing to Hank Warren's Dixie Land Jazz Band will be featured. Dance admission is $3.

The Sunrise Inflation Sale will be Saturday from 5 a.m. to 10 a.m. at various shops throughout Plymouth.

Art in the Park, and exhibition of arts and crafts in Kellogg Park, will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday.

'Gala Daze' this weekend at St. Ken's

Looking for some weekend family entertainment?

St. Kenneth Church, located at 14951 Haggerty Road, will be sponsoring its two day fun festival "Gala Daze", June 11 and 12.

The festival will feature rides, a dunk tank, a moon walk, and video and tent games. It will also feature a millionaire's party with cash prizes.

A few of the special guests slated to be in attendance at the event include a Detroit Tiger baseball player, Jeff the magician, Happy Hank the clown, Mary Nalepka and her exercise-to-music routine, and "Trust", a local rock group.

Those arriving at the festival with an appetite will find concession stands and special dinners in abundance at Gala Daze. Nachos will be available throughout the two day event, while a spaghetti dinner will be served Saturday night and a Chicken dinner will be served Sunday night. In addition to these special dinners, many local restaurants have offered free dinners as prizes in a Gala Daze raffle and other prize games.

The festival will run on Saturday, June 11 from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. and on Sunday, June 12 from noon to 8 p.m.

Mike Whorf to speak

Town Hall tickets on sale

Season tickets are now on sale for the Plymouth Town Hall Series for 1983-84 which will feature speakers Mike Whorf, Jim Hoke, Nila Magidoff and Susan Bondy.

Proceeds from the Town Hall Series will be given to the Plymouth Community Family 'Y's' Building Fund.

All lectures in the coming season will be at the Penn Theatre, 760 Penniman, Plymouth at 10:30 a.m. Celebrity luncheons will be immediately following the lecture.

Scheduled speakers are:

Mike Whorf - presently program director of WQRS and former writer, producer and narrator of WJR's award-winning "Kaleidoscope." He has received radio's highest honor in broadcasting - the Peabody Award. Whorf's Town Hall program will include poetry, prose and song.

Jim Hoke - Author of the best-selling self-help book, "I Would If I Could And I Can", Hoke punctuates his positive success gospel with hypnosis, showing audiences how to generate the positive emotional power of a winner. He is known locally for his frequent guest appearances on Kelly and Company television show.

Nila Magidoff's speech will be on "My Discover of America" and "Everyday Life in the Soviet Union Today." Magidoff keeps track of how the people in her native Russia are rapidly becoming Americanized and of the growing resurgence of religion and the underground press.

Susan Bondy - Nationally recognized money expert and consultant to major corporations and financial institutions, Bondy's column "Money Matters" is syndicated in over 400 newspapers. She is the author of "How to Make Money Using Other People's Money."

Season ticket prices for the four speakers are $25 for regular and $35 for patron status. Luncheon tickets are $30 for four celebrity luncheons.

Call 453-8865 for information on how to order season tickets. Individual performance tickets will not go on sale until September 17, if available.

Day camp and sports camp offered by Y

The Plymouth YMCA is offering summer day camp and sports day camp sessions for area children aged 5 to 12.

A variety of schedules, morning or afternoon, are available beginning June 20 and running to August 26.

The one-week camps are conducted at Startweather Elementary Gym. Children should bring sack lunches and swimming apparell.

The YMCA day camp experience includes group activities, games, projects, storytelling, arts, crafts, hiking, folklore nature study, fitness, swimming, communication skills and field trips.

The sports camp will include training in soccer, track, baseball and basketball. Emphasis will be in good sportsmanship, plus instruction in nutrition, diet of athletes, training and winning attitudes.

Registration must take place at least one week prior to camp starting. Call 453-2904.

Warehouse joins Canton

Harvard Square will be buzzing with activity all day Saturday.

That's when Consumer's Warehouse will celebrate its official grand opening. The Pepsi Challenge, WCZY-FM's Tom Deah, the Cozy Bear and free balloons for the little ones will all be part of the festivities that get underway at 9 a.m. and continue until 9 p.m.

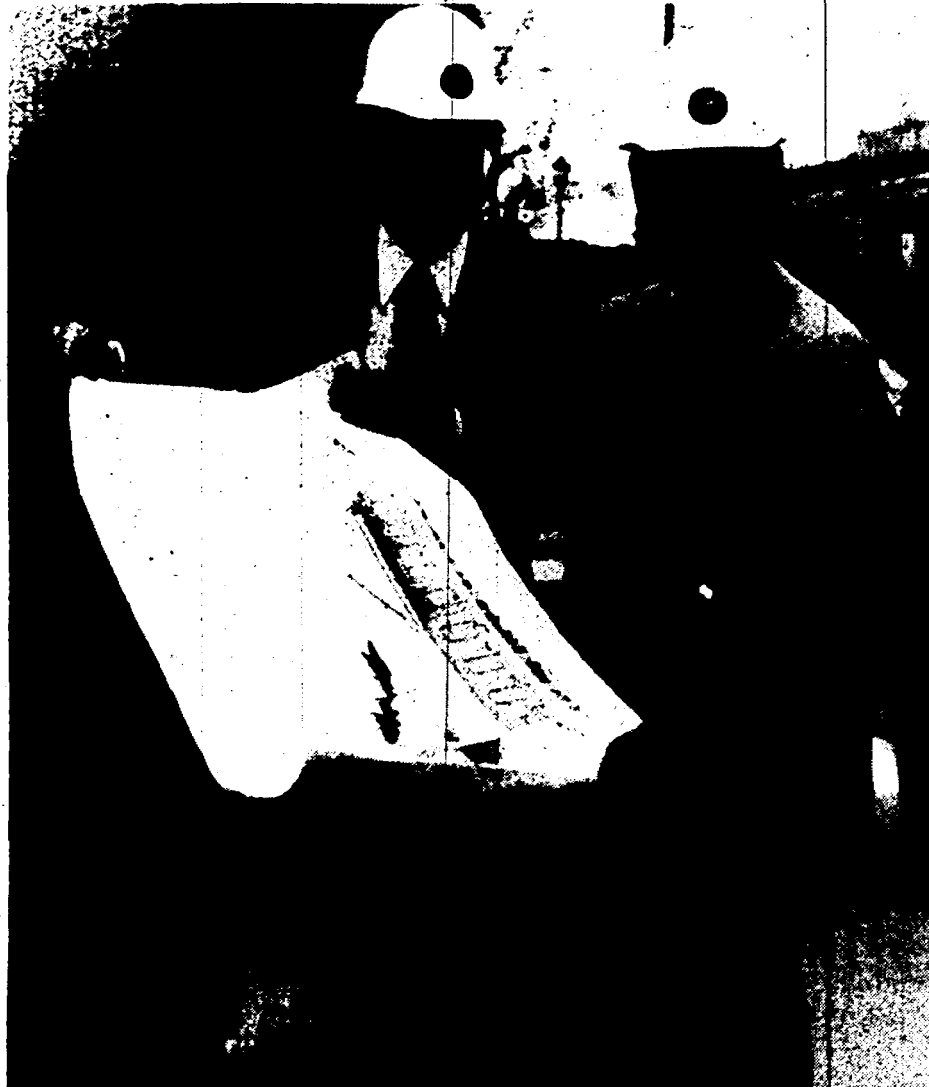

Consumers Warehouse is simply an old friend with a new name. For years many people in the community have come to Heritage Pharmacy, located in the shopping center at the corner of Ann Arbor and Sheldon Roads, to have their prescriptions filled.

Now they'll be able to make a short trip down Sheldon to the corner of Ford Road and Sheldon to have all their prescription needs taken care of at Consumers Warehouse.

A pair of Plymouth-Canton residents, Karl Schmidt and Lou Wright, are the driving forces behind the new business, which first opened its doors May 31.

The Hayman Corporation is the management firm for Harvard Square, and Hayman's Harvey Blavin insisted the addition of Consumers Warehouse will be great for all the other businesses there.

"This addition will provide optimum traffic for the center, which is the theory behind building a large store in Harvard Square," he noted. "Consumers Warehouse will only be a plus for Harvard Square and for Canton."

GROUNDBREAKING for the new Henry Ford Hospital Plymouth Center, on Main Street south of City Hall, took place Wednesday, June 1. Among those participating in the event were Thomas Bohlander (right), president of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. Richard Stiphout, who will head the Plymouth facility. The HFH Plymouth Center is scheduled to open in early October, and will offer physicians' services for Plymouth-Canton residents in adult internal medicine, pediatrics and adolescent medicine and obstetrics/gynecology. The single-story, Colonial-style building will contain 10 examination rooms plus x-ray and laboratory facilities. (Crier photo by Rachael Dolson)

New company offers jobs for local kids

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Tom Carmody knows that kids in The Plymouth-Canton Community have a tough time finding jobs.

But unlike many other people who also realize this, Carmody has put that knowledge to work. Carmody, owner of C.F. Sales Company, Inc., has started a new business. The business, J.F.K. or Jobs for Kids, caters to area youngsters who are seeking employment.

"I don't know anyone else who is offering a program like this," Carmody said. "I hope hundreds of kids become involved with it."

Carmody said that the new company will allow kids between junior high and high school ages to explore business through sales. Kids will be allowed to sell any of a number of items that C.F. Sales either manufactures itself, or buys from independent vendors.

Carmody said the prospective sellers will be given samples of the product they wish to sell. They then go door to door selling the product by taking orders from customers.

"The young businessman never pays for anything he does not sell," Carmody said. "The kids aren't working directly for C.F. Sales - they're working for themselves."

Carmody said that items like pre-gift wrapped boxes, special freezer-to-microwave plastic food wrap and cut glass salad bowls are just a few of the many items the kids can elect to sell.

"All of the merchandise is quality merchandise which can't be bought in the stores for these prices," he said. "The seller will make a profit on each item he sells and his success will depend on how ambitious he becomes in selling his item."

Carmody is encouraging parents to call and inquire about the program, or to help their children become involved in it.

"This is a selling job the kids can take on through parental guidance," he commented. "This is a chance for the kids to get out and learn about business and handling a job."

"We're interested in that very viable work force out there which isn't getting used right now," Carmody said. "I just hope the company goes and goes well."

Plymouth 'Goose' arrives

A unique name is sometimes needed to help a new shop stand out in a town of unique stores.

The Olde Goose Barn, specializing in kitchen ware and home accessories, definitely has a distinctive name.

The goose theme is repeated again and again on the merchandise - from stuffed geese perfect for sitting on the fireplace hearth, to wall hangings and aprons - all are emblazoned with geese.

But why geese?

"It's an animal that's cute to look at and people will remember when they see the store," said owner Sue Vogel enthusiastically. "Plus, there are a lot of cute patterns with geese on them."

Another unique aspect of Vogel's shop is the merchandise is almost totally made in Plymouth. Except for the Romertopf and Pfaltzgraff dishes, Vogel tries to find items made locally.

In fact, she welcomes community craftsmen who may have something they want to sell.

Vogel has done interior design for several years out of her home, and said she wanted to start a business to blend with it.

She's lived in Plymouth six years, but prior to that she called Plymouth home for two-and-a-half years.

Vogel had to leave the area when her husband was transferred, but they missed the community so much they eventually arranged to come back.

The Olde Goose Barn is holding its Grand Opening from June 11 through June 30.

1st National is now First

A rose by any name...

What had been known as the First National Bank of Plymouth is now called First of America Bank - Plymouth.

The official name change, expected for some time, was formally celebrated Monday morning when the bank threw a small reception highlighted by the release of 1,000 helium balloons.

The balloons marked the symbol of the bank's parent company -- a hot air balloon -- and were released at the same time that the 29 affiliate banks across Michigan sent up similar releases. Many of the balloons contained cards good for prizes of up to $1,000.

First of America now identifies the 224 locations serving some 100 Michigan communities through the banking holding company into which City National Bank of Detroit merged in October, 1981. First America Bank - Plymouth has two locations: the main office on Main Street and a branch office on Ann Arbor Road at I-275. A third branch's groundbreaking is slated for later this or next week in Canton at Joy and Sheldon roads.

Ken Currie, president of the local bank, emphasized that the name change was being made with all affiliate banks simply to facilitate marketing and identifying joint services between the 224 offices.

"Our main purpose remains as serving the customers," Currie said, "and this hopefully gives us some economies of scale (in marketing)."

First National Bank of Plymouth was begun in 1974 as a subsidiary of City National Bank. "We were all acquired in 1981 and we're still the same bank we were then," the president said. "The majority of banks in our holding company are community banks and function with local autonomy," he added.

The board of directors of the local bank, who continue unchanged, are: Currie, Robert Feeser (of First of America), Harold Guenther, Marian Kehrl, Stewart Oldford, Edwin Schrader, Jack Selle, and William Sempliner.

Canton Lighthouse Wash joins state suds group

The Board of Directors of the Michigan Car Wash Association will have a face familiar to Canton businessmen among their ranks come September.

Michael Neubauer, owner of the Lighthouse Car Wash on Ford Road in Canton, was elected to the Michigan Car Wash Association's Board of Directors at the organization's final meeting in May. He won't take office until the fall.

The Plymouth Township resident will take part in the Association's decision-making process as a member of the board.

Solak new mgr.

The Canton branch of the Wayne Bank, located on Ford Road just west of Haggerty Road, has a new branch manager - Teresa Solak.

Solak comes to Wayne Bank with 19 years of banking experience. Besides the branch manager's position, she was also appointed an assistant vice president, according to Wayne Bank president Raymond Reame.

Solak will be responsible for marketing, advertising and public relations for the bank, Reame said.

She has served as past president of the Canton Business and Professional Women's Club, is a member of the Canton Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Bank Women and the American Institute of Banking.

ELIZABETH COOPER

Cooper is queen

Elizabeth Cooper of Plymouth was a finalist in the Sagebrush Couple Contest. For being a finalist, Cooper received a $100 casual wardrobe shopping spree from Sagebrush.

"Finalist were chosen from hundreds of entries from around the state," said Jack Junewick, merchandise manager from Sagebrush. "They were chosen because they represented the active, casual lifestyle of our wardrobe line."

Cooper, 19, is a student and involved in artistic endeavors such as painting and drawing. She also enjoys biking and exercising, Junewick said.

Schultz a leader

Chuck Schultz just returned from Munich, West Germany where the Plymouth homeowner attended a top-level sales conference sponsored by the Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Company.

The Alexander Hamilton Life agent was chosen from among the company's sales representatives to jet over to Europe to attend the sessions "because of his leadership in our industry, demonstrated by his personal production," said Richard Headlee, Alexander Hamilton Life's president.

Schultz is a 19-year Alexander Hamilton Life veteran who has attended all the sales conferences the firm as sponsored, according to Headlee.

Small crowd questions School Board candidates

Yack said. "and my educational background, plus my personal investment - I have four children attending the Plymouth-Canton schools - are the reasons I'm in the race."

"And I believe I have demonstrated my personal integrity during my time on the board."

Woolard said every child possesses a special gift that must be nurtured and that can't be done when the instructional programs are being eliminated.

That's why as a school board member she said she'd fight to keep those programs in place that help students learn.

"We must also teach our children survival skills," Woolard noted. "Those that are going on to college should not be the only ones who we work with. We must also teach others how to balance a check book and how to read and write."

Artley reminded the voter's forum crowd he made a promise to another voter's forum audience one year ago that he'd continue to remain involved in public education irregardless of whether or not he was elected to the school board.

"I feel I've been true to my promise," he said. "I've also learned I don't have all the answers. I feel we should emphasize individual learning, and I support competency testing at the end of sixth, ninth and 11th grades."

"Each of us should be a PR person for the Plymouth-Canton schools, too. We have one of the top districts in the state, and we need to go out and sell it."

Quinn cited her qualifications for being elected to the board and they include her background as a certified teacher and her involvement with various school groups.

"It's important that there's cooperation between teachers, administration, board and the public," Quinn noted.

Murphy said she tossed her hat in the ring because it's important for everyone in the district to try to improve the quality of education available in the Plymouth-Canton schools.

"The campaign has been a little unusual for someone so young," said the 20-year-old Canton High School graduate. "It's been kind of nerve-racking but, if I'm elected, I'll do the best job I can by listening to the public's concerns."

Finally, Thomas brought down the curtain on the opening portion of the LWV's voter's forum by insisting the district should provide its students with more rigorous standards and higher expectations.

He also said classroom time should be managed better so that the time students actually spend studying can be lengthened.

Thomas has made his views known on performance-based salary increases for teachers, and Thursday night he re-emphasized that stance.

"We should hold educators accountable for leadership to help students learn," he said.

Following the opening comments, the six candidates fielded questions tossed to them from the audience, many of which were addressed to the entire group.

When asked about ensuring the curriculum at all the middle schools is the same, all six agreed it's up to the principals to work towards that goal.

"You've got to make sure the electives are similar and we're getting there," Thomas said. "We should also work towards getting the middle school day the same as the high school, that way the students at the middle school can get the equivalent of six more weeks of instruction time."

Woolard in her opening remarks mentioned the district has some "beneficial programs" she'd fight to keep in place as a member of the board, and a questioner wanted to know what she meant by that statement.

"For one thing, the special education program should be kept intact," she said. "Also, some provisions should be made to reduce the size of kindergartens, they are too large. We should be striving for more personalized education."

Artley, when asked about how he'd go about consolidating the administrative staff, said he couldn't answer because he doesn't have all the facts.

"I'm a businessman and I'm sure there are ways we can cut waste by combining jobs and there may be others ways we can do it, too, but until I get on the inside and can look at all the facts and figures, I won't know what those ways are," he explained.

All the candidates agreed students in the Plymouth-Canton schools need to be made aware of the consequences should they stray off the beaten path while at school.

"We should tell them 'this is what you can and cannot do' and then spell out for them exactly what will happen to them if they do," Thomas said.

Woolard would like to see the students involved in discipline, too. "There should be a code of behavior and expectations with no deviations. The teachers should know the procedures so they know what to do.

"Student input is important, too, because no student likes to feel threatened when they have to go into the washroom."

Discipline in the schools should be no different than it is in the real world outside the classroom, according to Artley.

"Out in the real world, the punishment is clear for a particular crime and that's the way it should be in the schools, too," he said slowly, emphasizing each word. "When you tell people right up front what it will cost, you have their attention."

All six candidates got a chance to air their views on alternative education with Yack getting the first crack at speaking his mind.

"I'm committed to it as a concept," he explained, "but you can't expect it to do everything for us. Hopefully we'll be able to reach into the middle school and help those students from what we've learned at the high school level."

Woolard also believes in alternative education, but "we can't get carried away with it. We should remember it is necessary for those who can't exist in a normal class, and in that way it is very beneficial."

Murphy emphasized "the stress in alternative education should be on returning the problem child into the public school mainstream, it should be only an in-between program."

Too many times people tend to think alternative education is only for slow students who aren't bright, according to Quinn.

"That's not true, though," she claimed. "There are some very bright students who have other problems who need alternative education. I don't think funding for it should be cut at all, I'm for cutting just part of the program if it comes down to that."

"But I think we should pursue trying to obtain some more federal money for the program."

The basics in education are important, but students need to learn more about skills they can take with them into the marketplace, Murphy said.

"Give the kids more marketable skills," she noted. "Go out and talk to the leaders in the business community and see what they expect from employees. Also go to the colleges, for those kids going to college, and see what the colleges expect of them."

Quinn has not hid her pro-teacher attitude, but she said if the need arose, she could make a decision that would displease the district's teachers.

"My primary goal is quality education," she said. "I have been known to go against the grain of people before, and I'll do it again if it's best for the kids."

Finally, the candidates were asked if they could make a major improvement in one area, what would it be?

"I'd like to foster a program to allow students more time to study, I feel that's very important," Thomas said.

"I'd like to see some kind of systematic approach to evaluate the end product, after all education is a long process," Yack noted.

"We should upgrade expectations, not just add more and more requirements," Woolard said.

Artley doesn't see one major problem facing the schools. "There are just a lot of little ones. One of the biggest, though, is the need for a competency test of some sort, so little Johnny or Susie knows what's expected of him."

Communication is the biggest problem facing the schools right now, according to Quinn, while Murphy would like to see more community involvement at all levels in the schools.

Thomas summed up his reasoning for entering the race by telling the audience he'd learned a lot in his 10 months on the board, and he wanted that education to continue.

He also said he'd experienced some frustration because he'd had to learn change doesn't come easy. "Success is not a destination but a journey."

Murphy concluded by saying she'd just try to do the best job possible if given the chance.

The desire to build a better community through education is the biggest reason Quinn said she joined the race for a seat on the school board.

Artley said he can fit right in immediately and make a valuable contribution to the board if he'd elected. And while he'd like the voters in the district to vote for him, he'd just want to see a large turnout at the polls.

"It's time for a change" are the words Woolard used to close out her appearance at the LWV voter's forum. We need to forget about only ourselves, and start dreaming about the future of our children, she added.

Yack said the voters should consider all the candidates carefully before making a decision. He said he has made a commitment to public education, and the people of the district deserve someone on the board who is willing to work hard towards that end, like himself.

Teacher's union endorses Artley

The Plymouth-Canton Education Association (PCEA) has endorsed Dave Artley in the race for the two-year seat on the Board of Education.

Chuck Portelli, a PCEA officer, said the teacher's union declined to endorse any one of the four candidates in the race for the two four-year term on the board.

A screening committee of 16-18 people considered all the candidates and, when all was said and done, the group only opted to back Artley, according to Portelli.

Schoolcraft board seats also on ballot

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

Plymouth-Canton voters head to the polls Monday to elect three new members to the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

But that's not the only race on the ballot Plymouth-Canton voters will have a say in.

Also on the ballot are the names of 13 candidates who are running for three six-year terms and one two-year post on the Schoolcraft Community College (SCC) Board of Trustees.

Voters in Canton and Plymouth, along with those who will head to the polls to vote in local school elections in Garden City, Livonia, Northville, parts of Westland, Farmington Hills and Redford, and a tiny portion of Novi, will have to choose from a field of eight for the three six-year terms and a group of five who are vying for the lone two-year seat:

Incumbents Harry Greenleaf and Rosina Raymond along Plymouth-Canton residents Mary Breen and Harvey Failor are battling it out for the three six-year terms on the board. Also on the ballot will be Gerald Cox, Daryl Delappio, Bryan Graham and Myron Kasey.

Incumbent Sharon Sarris, who was appointed to the seat she now holds last summer when Nancy Blatt resigned; tops the list of candidates looking to be elected to the two-year position.

Also in the running for the two-year post are Wesley Berry, Jr., John Brukhardt, J. Christopher Rotta and Mark Steinhauer.

Here's a quick look at all the candidates in the SCC race.

MARY BREEN: The Plymouth Township resident is a 16-year veteran of the Livonia schools. She said she feels her background will allow her to bring together diverse elements for the benefit of the college.

HARVEY FAILOR: A resident of Canton, Failor recently retired from the Dearborn schools where he was a principal for the past 20 years. He plans to stay active in his retirement and serving on the SCC board he said is one way he can continue to contribute to the community.

HARRY GREENLEAF: The past four years the Livonian has served as president of the SCC board. A Ford Motor Company employee, he cited completion of the culinary arts facility and the re-emphasis of on-going programs to update and replace instructional equipment as major accomplishments during his term.

ROSINA RAYMOND: A Livonia resident, Raymond has been a member of the board since the college's inception in 1961. She is currently treasurer of the board, and a former junior high and college teacher. She cited her experience as one reason why she should be re-elected.

GERALD COX: The Garden City insurance agent formerly taught in the Detroit Schools and at Wayne State University. He served on the SCC board from 1973-79. Currently six of the seven SCC board members are from Livonia, and Cox said that means communities like Canton, Plymouth, Garden City and Northville are being shortchanged, that's why he's running.

MYRON KASEY: The Northville resident owns his own company, and got involved in the race because he didn't want to see the seats go to someone by default because no one took the time to run for the posts.

DARYL DELAPPIO: He is the Garden City Director of Administrative Services, and is currently the vice-president of the Garden City Kiwanis and former Kiwanian of the Year. The Garden City homeowner said he was encouraged to run for the SCC board by other Garden City residents who wanted to see some representation from Garden City on the board.

BRYAN GRAHAM: The Livonia resident is attending classes at the University of Michigan-Dearborn. He said he got involved in the race because he'd heard politicians say young people should get involved in the electoral process. But he has learned they just want young people to work for them, not run against them.

The five candidates running for the two-year seat include:

SHARON SARRIS: The Livonia owner of her own cable consulting firm is a former Livonia school teacher. She said SCC is at a crucial time in its history and whoever is elected to the board along with the current trustees will have to look carefully at the direction the college must take in the next several years.

WESLEY BERRY, JR.: The Livonia resident owns a pair florist shops and is active in local republican politics. He said he is a businessman who understands the workings of business and will be able to bring that expertise to the SCC board.

JOHN BURKHARDT: The Eastern Michigan University administrator resides in Northville. He has worked for colleges in Michigan for the past 10 years, and he said his knowledge in the field of higher education will help make a significant contribution to the SCC board.

MARK STEINHAUR: The SCC trained chef calls Livonia home, and he said someone, like himself, who recently graduated from the college, can bring a different and valuable perspective to the board.

J. CHRISTOPHER ROTTA: The Northville resident got involved in the SCC race because he felt Northville deserves representation of the SCC board because tax dollars from Northville are being given to SCC.

Local businessmen question need for DDA

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

Over a hundred people attended the Plymouth City Commission meeting Monday night and many of them had questions on the city's proposed downtown development authority (DDA).

Businessman Win Schrader, owner of Schrader's Funeral Home on Main Street, received positive audience feedback when he said it was not necessary for the city to have another governmental authority and that he could see no direct benefit of the DDA.

"We've done a lot on our own working with the downtown business committee. It's not necessary to have another governmental authority," Schrader said.

"I think we should develop the whole town. (Instead of in the future) having a downtown of marble and trees and let the rest of the city go down hill," he said.

"I don't see what benefit this in itself will be to the city of Plymouth ... when we are doing a job on our own," Schrader said.

City Manager Henry Graper said much of the city's beautification and improvement monies came from block grant funds which can only be used in the Old Village area. City plantings, he said, have benefited the rest of the city.

"We are not aiming to create a blight area or encourage a blighted area to get worse," he said. Graper said he had wanted to include the Old Village downtown area in the district, but city attorneys had advised him that it was not possible under the DDA law.

Cameron Lodge, representing the Plymouth Masonic Temple in downtown

Plymouth, said that free enterprise is keeping the downtown thriving. "When we had a downtown business group that is doing a good job ... I still believe that free enterprise is the basis of this country. If our downtown committee continues to work together, I am confident that the downtown will continue to grow."

The DDA will have a second reading on June 20. The city commission voted 6-0, with mayor pro tem David Pugh absent, to approve the first reading Monday night.

"Why not include all the commercial property in the city?" Schrader asked. "What if the rest of the city (outside the DDA district) decided to form an authority of their own and 'capture' all the taxes for use outside the downtown area?"

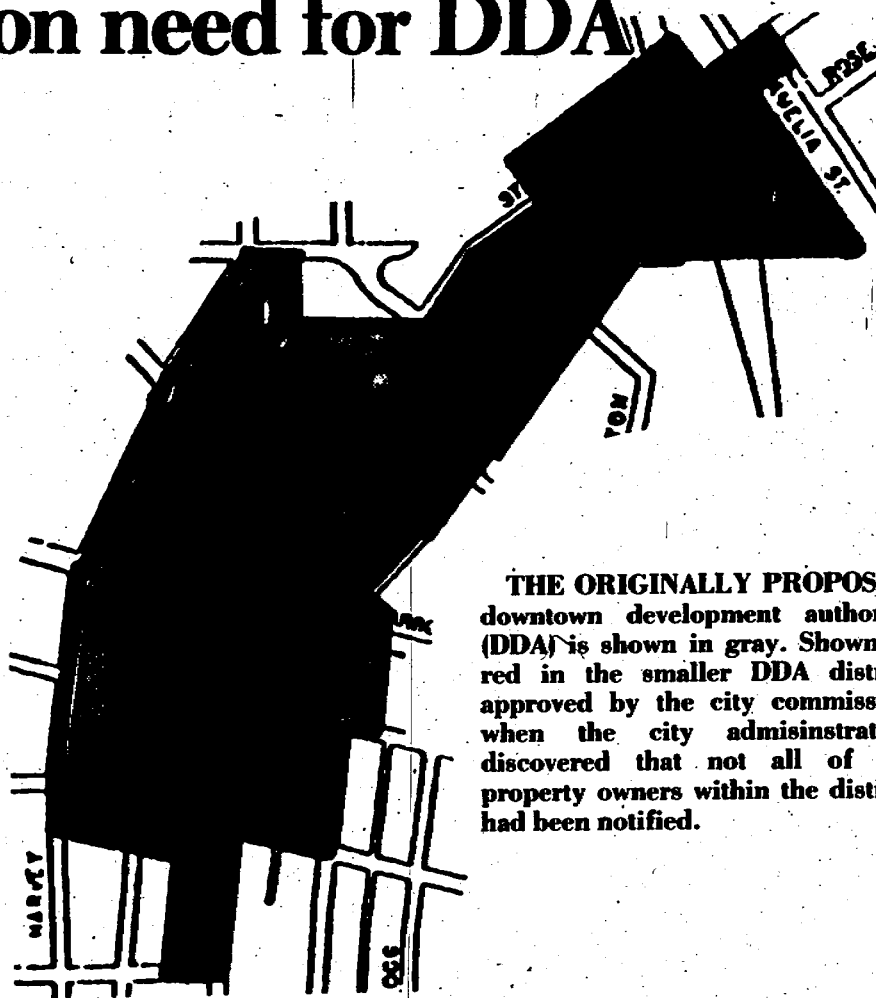

Not all the downtown businessmen were against the DDA proposal.

Jim McKeon said he was in favor of the DDA. "If a parking deck could be built which would hike the utility converters ... get the cars of the (Main) street and concentrate them into a parking lot," he said.

McKeon said he had talked with people in Port Huron, which instituted a DDA eight years ago. "They said they had increased their tax-base by $13 million in true tax value," he said.

If the DDA is approved for a second and final reading on June 20, then the next step in the process is to appoint a DDA board of directors.

The board then makes a recommendation to the city on downtown projects and possible financing.

THE ORIGINALLY PROPOSED downtown development authority (DDA) is shown in gray. Shown in red in the smaller DDA district approved by the city commission when the city administration discovered that not all of the property owners within the district had been notified.

position from some downtown businessmen and residents who said the authority was not needed. Mayor pro tem David Pugh was absent from the meeting.

"In a staff meeting we had discussed the boundaries of the DDA district. It was to reach out along Main Street from the central business district. As it turned out, only the businesses in the central business district were notified," Graper said.

Eliminated were parcels on Main Street south of Wing, on Main Street north of Church, on Amelia Street, on Theodore Street and on portions of Union Street.

City building department head Ken West said he had been asked to draw up the very first district maps and had only included the central business district. Later in a staff meeting the district was expanded and proposed to the commission and public as a larger district.

Unfortunately, West said employees in his department mailed notices only to property owners within the central business district.

"We have to move forward with the district we have noticed now, unless we want to lose the three and one-half months we have put into it already," Graper said. "To capture the increased tax revenues generated by properties built in 1983 we have to have the DDA and the tax increment financing in place by the end of the year."

The areas left out in the snafu could be added by amendment later, the city attorney said. The DDA ordinance will have a second reading on Monday, June 20.

Approval of the DDA would be followed by an appointment of a DDA board by the mayor, according to Graper's timetable. The board would then come back with a recommendation on downtown projects and financing, he said.

Tax increment financing is the method preferred by the city administration, Graper said. Increment financing would allow the city to 'capture' taxes generated by new development or improvements and keep it in a separate fund to be used for downtown improvements only.

If given the authority by the city commission, the DDA board could levy up to two mills for operations of the DDA board such as salaries or an office, Graper said.

"However, the recommendation of the administration is not to pass your (the city commission's) taxing authority on to a private group like this," Graper said.

If the DDA and the tax increment authority is in place by the end of the year, Graper said the city could 'capture' the tax dollars from about $1.5 million in downtown development planned for this year, including the Henry Ford Hospital outreach clinic, Penniman Avenue Shops, the additions to the Credit Union building and a possible new construction venture by St. Joseph's Hospital.

The 'captured' money he said would be used to fund downtown improvement projects such as getting rid of unsightly utility poles in the central parking lot, general beautification, co-pay on sidewalks and possible improvements to Kellogg Park.

When the DDA was first discussed several months ago, Graper pooh-poohed the idea of using the DDA for sidewalks and tree plantings. At that time, Graper said the tax increment revenues would only be used for major projects such as a two-story parking facility at the central parking lot.

Graper had proposed to the commission that the double deck parking lot would go hand-in-hand with the possible location of a St. Joseph's medical facility in downtown Plymouth on Harvey Street.

The city manager did not mention the double-decker parking lot in his presentation Monday. He did say that any St. Joe's facility would be a private venture paid for by the hospital.

Salem district champs

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

The Salem baseball team has made believers out of everyone lately, including themselves.

Just ask Milford Lakeland or Northville or Rock skipper Brian Gilles, for that matter.

The Rocks swept to a district title at home Saturday by first squeezing past Lakeland, 8-6, in the district semi-finals, and then walloping Northville, 15-3, in the finals of the one-day event.

"We've now won 10 of our last 11 games," Gilles noted. "We've been getting good pitching, we've been pounding the ball and the only thing that's suspect is our baserunning."

"But the poor baserunning hasn't hurt us. The kids are now starting to believe in themselves and anything can happen in the regionals."

Salem (17-8) will host the one-day regional tourney Saturday and will square off against Southfield in the 12:30 p.m. ballgame.

The first game at 10 a.m. will pit

Annual 4th of July race ready to go

The Plymouth Jaycees have planned a great way to celebrate the 4th of July for those whose idea of independence is being able to run five miles.

The fifth annual Plymouth 4th of July Run will get underway at 9 a.m. at the intersection of Ann Arbor Road and Harvey Street and wind through Plymouth.

It'll cost $5 in advance and $7 the day of the race to enter. The money raised by the Jaycees will go to help defray the club's cost of putting on the annual 4th of July parade and the fireworks that will light up the skies later that evening.

All the entrants will walk off with a t-shirt just for opting to get out and run. The top male and female finishers, however, will also take home trophies.

Last year the get-together attracted 400 runners. This time around the Jaycees hope even more people will join in the fun, according to Bob Stewart, the Jaycee in charge of planning the event.

The Crier will run an entry blank in next week's edition of the paper, but for those who can't wait to enter, Stewart said they can send a letter requesting an entry blank to the Plymouth Jaycees, PO Box 598, Plymouth, MI, 48170.

Lingg goes over the top Third in pole vault in state event

BY MARK CONSTANTINE

Dan Lingg has been over the top all year.

In Jackson Saturday at the state Class A Track Championships it was no different.

The Rock senior tri-captain cleared 13-5 in the pole vault, good enough for third place in the state finals.

"What can you say about Danny?" Salem coach Gary Balconi asked rhetorically. "He has been a steady performer all year for us. We've never had a vaulter at Salem as consistent as Danny."

"I just can't say enough good things about him both as an athlete and as an individual."

Lingg has been a double threat all year. When he wasn't taking first in the pole vault in whatever event the Rocks were participating, he was out-jumping the field in the long jump.

He qualified for the state finals in the long jump as well as the pole vault, but his leap of 20-5 Saturday wasn't good enough to place him in the top six.

Also participating in the state championships from Salem were Glenn Medalle and the 440 relay team of Lingg, Jeff Arnold, Marc Tindall and Medalle.

Medalle made it into the semi-finals in the 120-yard high hurdles where he ran a 14.96, earning a ticket to the sidelines.

"We went with the goal of getting him into the semi's, so we made our goal," Balconi insisted. "He ran a 15.04 in the prelims and then came back nicely in the semi's, but it just wasn't good enough."

The Rock 440 relay team turned in a 44.81 in their heat, but at that level of competition the Salem foursome was simply out-matched, according to Balconi.

For Salem's Cheri Muneio, it was the fling of the season.

The powerful senior traveled to Jackson Saturday for the State Class A Girls' Track Championships, and came home with a fifth place finish in the discus.

She came up with a toss of 110-8 in the competition, which netted the Rocks the only four points they scored in the one-day event.

Canton Township, meanwhile, was well represented in the Class B Finals at Caro High School.

Kelly Champagne, a Canton resident and a senior at Livonia Ladywood, ran off with the state championship in the two mile run. She set a new Cass B record of 11:00 in the process.

Two other Salem tracksters, Dawn Johnson and Cindy McSurely, didn't place in their respective events. Johnson competed in the 220-yard dash and the long jump, while McSurely high jumped.

Muneio's points earned the Rocks a tie for 33rd place in the meet that took place at Jackson High School.

"We went to the meet with high expectations," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. "The level of competition was very good and we did as well as we could that day. It was a great experience."

Host Livonia Churchill came from behind last Wednesday to capture the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) girls' track title.

Salem and Canton, meanwhile, even though they didn't come close to walking off with the league crown, still pleased their respective coaches with their performances.

Fred Thomann's Rocks ended up in fourth place with 63 points, while Canton was eighth in the ten-team field with 30 points.

Churchill won the meet with 85 points, while Walled Lake Western garnered 72 points to nail down the runner-up spot. Farmington Harrison was third with 64 points.

Canton coach Bob Richardson insisted he was elated with the fact that three new school records were set and another was missed by one-tenth of a second.

One of those records came in the final event, the 1600-meter relay. Lisa Wood, Kim Bennett, Carolyn Nagy and Ruth Ann Trout finished with a time of 4:11.06.

Right behind Trout on the last leg was Salem's Carol Lindsay, but she couldn't catch up. Fran Whittaker, Mary Beth Weast, Suzie Balconi and Lindsay

Chief girls bow out of district tourney

BY JOE SLEZAK

The Canton softball team bowed out of state Class A tournament Saturday in rough fashion.

The Chiefs lost to Ann Arbor Pioneer in the district semi-finals, 5-2, in eight innings in a game played at Ann Arbor Huron.

Canton held a slim 2-1 lead going into the seventh inning, but an unearned run in the top of the seventh for Pioneer sent the game into extra innings.

The Pioneers added three more in the eighth to earn a berth in the district finals, and send the Chiefs home disappointed.

All told, Canton gave up four unearned runs. Canton committed three errors, and all the miscues came back to haunt the Chiefs. All three bobbles resulted in Pioneer runs.

The Chiefs got on the board quickly, thanks to a pair of Pioneer errors. Sue Gerke led off the bottom of the first with a single, moved to second on a passed ball and on to third on a fielder's choice. The senior then came in on another passed ball.

Pioneer came back to knot the score at 1-1 in the fourth inning.

Canton got their last run of the game in the bottom of the fourth. Marie Krashovetz walked, stole second and came around on two passed balls.

Janine Carpenter pitched all eight innings for the Chiefs. She surrendered three hits, walked seven and struck out one. Three walks came in the final inning.

Canton's final record is 12-7.

Wednesday, the Chiefs were upset by Walled Lake Central, 10-6.

Canton got four runs in the first, but the Vikings scored eight runs in the bottom of the second with only two hits. Four walks and three errors helped Central in the rally. Exactly half of the runs were earned.

Canton pounded out seven hits, while Central only stroked three.

If Canton would have won, they would have tied Salem for the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) title.

Three Rocks and two Chiefs made the All-WLAA team, named last week.

The three Salem players included catcher Mary Pryslak, outfielder Pam McBride and firstbaseman Cheryl Viele. Canton's duo was secondbaseman Gerke and outfielder Lou Ann Hamblin.

Carpenter (pitcher), Krashovetz (catcher), Kathy Young (third base) Missy Aiken (outfield) were named to the All-Western Division squad for Canton.

Salem's Diane Murphy (pitcher), Terri Lesniak (shortstop) and Lynne Gamache (outfield) made the All-Lakes Division team.

Quality Construction triumphs

The Plymouth-Canton Quality Construction 11-12 year-old boys' baseball team swept to the title in the 12-team Riverview Tournament over the Memorial Day weekend.

Quality opened the two-day affair by knocking off Lincoln Park, 10-0. Next, the local contingent edged past Riverview, 3-1. Following that triumph Quality clobbered Garden City, 15-1, earning a berth in the tournament finals.

In the title tilt, Quality met and defeated Riverview again, this time by a score of 9-3.

The hot sticks for Quality were carried by Peter Bidolli, Bob Files, Andy Gee, Chris Johnston, Tim Pilut and Joe Roney.

Staszel gets 2nd team All-State nod

BY JOE SLEZAK

For the second straight year, Salem soccer standout Shelly Staszel has made the Class A All-State second team.

The silky-smooth Rock right winger was tabbed for the honor by the Michigan High School Coaches Association (MHSCA).

The junior forward accomplished that feat last year, even though it was the first year that Salem fielded a team.

Staszel, who led the team with 23 goals and 19 assists, also made the All-Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) squad. Also making the squad from Salem was junior goalie Sarah Wallman.

Freshman forward Julie Tortora, junior defender Colleen O'Connor and sophomore midfielder Ruth Knoerl made the All-Lakes Division squad.

Tortora was right behind Staszel in the Salem scoring race with 22 goals and 12 assists.

For Canton, forward Lisa Russell (sophomore) and defender Margie Wangbichler (junior) made the All-Western Division team.

Newcomer reflects on '82-83 prep sports scene

Now that the prep sports year is winding down to a close, it's time to take a look back at the highs and lows of my first year of dealing with athletics in the Plymouth-Canton Community.

This list will deal with the high and low moments of the sports teams and personalities I covered. I'd like to reflect back on ups and downs of all the athletics squads that The Crier covered this year, but I can only comment on what I personally witnessed.

So, if there isn't anything about the Centennial Education Park (CEP) swimmers, or softball teams or girl's track teams, you'll understand why.

So, here goes my list of highs and lows for the 1982-83 prep sports scene.

HIGH: Watching Salem fullback Scott Jurek pound into the middle of the line time and time again and seemingly get stronger as the game wore on.

LOW: Salem faltering against Farmington Harrison in the showdown on the Hawk gridiron for the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) championship.

HIGH: Smiling as Salem's mighty mite, George Condash, a hulk of a football player at 5' 5" and 130-lbs, mixes it up in the trenches from his defensive middle guard spot.

Offsides

with Mark Constantine

LOW: Talking to Salem football coach Tom Moshimer in the Box Bar after the Rocks crushed Redford Union to end the season on a high note, and him telling me it wasn't enough to propell his troops into the state Class A playoffs.

HIGH: The always cool play of Canton quarterback Pat Murphy who never seemed to get rattled no matter what the situation.

LOW: Canton breaking out of the gate fast against Farmington Harrison and then beating themselves as the Hawks came back to snatch the triumph out of the Chiefs' hands.

HIGH: Salem's Ann Glomski consistently out-jumping much taller opponents on the basketball court.

LOW: An out-of-its-head Westland John Glenn cage team dumping Salem in state Class A district action. The distaff Rockets will never play a better game ever.

HIGH: Canton's Missey Aiken positioning herself under the basket and then muscling the ball away from two or three opponents.

LOW: Phyllis Cunningham's Canton girl's basketball team always playing hard, but not being able to stay with some of the better squads in the league.

HIGH: Dave Thomann's Salem boy's basketball team beating Livonia Stevenson on the Spartans' court in one of the better prep cage contests I'd seen in some time.

LOW: Salem dropping a heartbreaker to Stevenson at home when Jeff Arnold's last second game-winning shot bounced off the rim.

HIGH: Dave Houle looking lost when the basketball season began and leading the way for Salem as the season drew to a close.

LOW: Seeing Salem's Glenn Medalle's game come apart as the basketball season ended. Medalle was assigned the task of guarding the opposition's top gun throughout the campaign and it showed as the schedule concluded.

HIGH: Dan Chrenko hugging one of his Canton wrestlers after the youngster lost to a Salem opponent in a dual meet between the CEP rivals.

LOW: Ron Krueger throwing a warm-up at a Salem matman and then verbally abusing him with words that would make a sailor blush just because he thought the kid quit in the match.

HIGH: Salem's Dave Slavin digging in at the plate and then launching a shot over the rightfield fence.

LOW: Salem getting pounded by Canton in a baseball game. Anytime CEP foes meet I hate to see one side or the other dominate.

HIGH: The quite, professional manner of Canton rightfielder Bryan Capnerhurst. He always seemed to get the job done.

LOW: Northville ending Canton's chance at the state Class A baseball title.

HIGH: Shelly Staszel dribbling the ball around opposition defenders and then making a perfect cross from her right wing position to a waiting Salem teammate.

LOW: Salem dominating the then number one ranked Livonia Bentley soccer team in all phases of the game only to lose on the scoreboard because of a couple of silly Rock mistakes.

HIGH: Watching Thomann coach and interact with his players, no matter what the sport, whether it be boys' basketball or girls' track.

LOW: Bob Blohm deciding to hang it up as the Salem girls' basketball coach.

Rocks move on to regional tourney play

the winner of the Howell district against Garden City with the winner of that showdown taking on the winner of the Salem-Wyandotte district champ.

The Wyandotte and Howell districts weren't settled Saturday because they were rained out.

"From what I know of the other teams who'll be involved in our regional, no one team is awesome," Gilles insisted. "Whoever plays the best ball should win the regional crown."

The district action Saturday was originally scheduled to take place at Canton, but rain late in the week made the Chief diamond unplayable, so the tourney had to be moved to Salem.

The Rocks wound up being designated the visiting side in each of the district ballgames, but it didn't seem to stop Gilles' crew from unceremoniously dumping both Lakeland and Northville.

Barry McNamara got the nod to start the first game against Lakeland, and he responded by giving up six hits while striking out seven and walking four in going the distance to pick up the triumph.

Mickey Madsen had the hot bat for the Rocks, pounding out four hits in five at-bats, including a pair of doubles. Dan Carlson also chipped in with a pair of singles.

Gilles' troops marched across the plate six times in the first inning in the Northville confrontation, thanks in large part to the Mustangs' pitcher's inability to throw strikes.

"We hit the ball well, too, but they just kept walking us and that hurt them and helped us," Gilles noted. "The big inning took the wind out of Northville's sails for awhile, but they kept coming back at us."

Rick Berheret took the hill for the Rocks, and Gilles said the powerful righthander made Northville hit the ball once Salem jumped out in front.

Northville battled back with lone runs in the first, fourth and fifth innings, cutting the Salem lead to 6-3, but the Rocks scored six times in the sixth to earn a ticket into the regional tourney.

finished with a time of 4:11.12.

Other Chiefs who set records included Carolyn Nagy (fourth) in the 400-meter dash with a mark of 1:00.67, and the 400-meter relay team of Wood, Lori Schauder, Bennett and Kim Brown, who were fifth with a time of 52.59.

Salem managed three second-place finishes. Cindy McSurely was second in the high jump (5-2), Lindsay second in the 300-meter hurdles (48.38) and Dawn Johnson managed a runner-up finish in the long jump (17 1 3-4).

Johnson was third in the 100-meter dash (12.71), third in the 200-meter dash (26.65) and fifth in the 400-meter dash (1:01.51).

"I thought Dawn had a nice day," Thomann noted.

Ann Glomski, Whittaker, Kelly Bemiss and Stacy Stojeba took third in the 400-meter relay for the Rocks with a mark of 51.81.

Canton's 800-meter relay quartet of Wood, Schauder, Bennett and Brown were third (1:49.34), while Salem was disqualified. Trout was fifth in the 800-meter dash.

For the Chiefs, Brown finished fourth in the 100-meter dash and Bennett was fifth in the 200-meter dash.

Fifth places for Salem were earned by Glomski in the long jump, Stojeba in the 100-meter dash and Shelly Simons in the 800-meter run.

spot didn't end until the final event.

Farmington wound up taking home the second place hardware, accumulating 82 points, while the Rocks picked up 80 1-2 points to finish third.

Livonia Stevenson worked its way into fourth place with 45.5 points, while Walled Lake Western (38), Livonia Bentley (36) and Canton (22) rounded out the top seven.

Dan Lingg led the way for the Rocks in the WLAA championships like he has done all season. The speedy senior captured the league title in both the pole vault (13-6) and the long jump (21-1 1-2).

Also taking firsts for the Rocks were Glenn Medalle and the 440-yard relay team of Lingg, Jeff Arnold, Marc Tindall and Medalle.

Medalle broke the tape first in the 120-yard high hurdles with a time of 14.96, while Lingg and company out-ran the field in the 440-yard relay with a time of 44.81.

The highest Canton finisher was Elijah

Rogers. The lanky junior took a second in the 100-yard dash (10.31) and he came back to finish third in the 440-yard run (51.7).

Mike White and Arvinder Sopch raced to thirds for Salem in the long jump (19-8 1-2) and the 120-yard high hurdles (15.27), respectively.

On the lighter, er, heavier side of the league meet, the Salem heavy relay foursome of Dave Houle, John Cohen, Keith Urban and Paul Smallwood bested their Lakes Division counterparts.

The teams in the heavy relay run a 440-yard relay using a 16-pound shot for a baton, and the action usually produces as many laughs as intense moments, according to Balconi.

Although they didn't place, Canton's Mike Thompson and Bob Tellier (two-mile) as well as Glenn Forgie (880), Ralph DiCosty (one mile), Jin Kim (330 lows) and Butch Steele (120 highs) all turned in personal bests.

Final plans for Rocks' Run started

Gary Balconi hopes to see several hundred runners huffing and puffing around Plymouth Saturday, June 12.

The coach of the Salem boys' track team along with Rock assistants Tom Williams and Tom Trusdale are busily making the final preparations on the first annual Rocks' Run, which is scheduled to begin June 12 at 10 a.m.

The trio hopes a host of runners will plunk down their $6 entry fee and take part in either a three or five mile run. The Salem Track and Cross Country Alumni Club is sponsoring the event.

Gallimore robbers nabbed

Two Canton residents, ages 18 and 15, were arrested by the Canton Police Department for their alleged involvement in a robbery which occurred at Gallimore School on Sheldon Road May 30.

Police suspect that a third Canton resident, age 16, is also involved in the robbery.

The suspects were released to their parents. Police are seeking juvenile petitions for the 15 and 16-year-olds and are seeking an arrest warrant for the 18-year-old.

Lieutenant Larry Stewart of the Canton Police Department said that his department was informed of the break-in by a neighbor who had observed the suspects vehicle at Gallimore around 3 a.m. May 30.

Stewart said that a typewriter, science equipment and foodstuffs worth over $1,000 were stolen from the school. The school property was later recovered in a shed located on Hanford and Ridge roads. Stewart said the suspects were traced from evidence obtained at the shed. He added that the 18 and 15 year old suspects admitted to the police that they were involved in the robbery.

Lutz illness keys changes

An illness to Eriksson Elementary School principal Bill Lutz has forced the district to shuffle around to new posts several other elementary school principals to cover the vacancy.

The Board of Education at a special meeting Monday night approved a resolution calling for Fiegel principal Ron South to move to Eriksson, Starkweather principal John Howe to take over at Fiegel, and Tanger principal Carrol Nichols to man a new combined top spot at Tanger and Starkweather.

Also, Cheryl Clason will become an assistant principal at Eriksson, and Betty Marshall and Cheryl Johnson will assist Nichols in his new combined post.

Superintendent John M. Hoben said the administration looked at many other alternatives, but he said the set-up approved by the board 7-0 at the special session seems to be the best alternative.

A pressing issue was the need to get someone in to fill the spot at Eriksson immediately, according to Hoben. The administration also wanted someone familiar with the extended school year (ESY) to come in and run the school this summer for the remainder of the ESY program, he added.

South is no stranger to Eriksson -- he formerly held down the top spot at the elementary school located on Haggerty Road just south of Ford Road.

Several of the board members were concerned Marshall and Johnson would be affected in their jobs by being given the added responsibility of what Hoben called "proximity control" in the new set up at Starkweather and Tanger.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT:

Holy Spirit, you make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the Divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done me and you who are in all the instances of my life with me, I in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you, no matter how great the natural desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual Glory. Thank you for the love you've shown towards me and my loved ones.

Pray this prayer for three consecutive days without asking your wish. After the third day your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Promise to publish this dialogue as soon as your favor has been granted.
