CEMS decision delayed but firm gets city support

BY MIKE FOLEY

City Manager Henry Graper has compiled results from Community Emergency Medical Service (CEMS) over a 45-day test period and submitted the results to the city commission as evidence for approval of CEMS as the city rescue service.

Graper said of the rescue service, he hopes the city can, "...get out completely."

CEMS would take the place of the city fire department rescue service which operated in the city for more than 15 years.

The test, which ran from Jan. 30 to March 15, was originated by Graper because of his concern over possible liability in lawsuits concerning a city run rescue service.

"To be totally covered financially, we would have to be out of it by April 15," Graper said.

Graper has said some cities have lawsuits pending of up to $10 million in damages because of alleged negligence with their own city run services.

A major concern of firemen over a private firm taking over the service was response time and another move by Graper to institute a Public Safety Organization by possibly phasing out firefighter jobs.

During the 45-day test period CEMS averaged a response time of approximately four and-a-half minutes. CEMS had short runs of two minutes-nine times and long runs of 12 minutes when stopped by a train and 16 minutes with no reason stated.

Capt. Bob Degen of the Plymouth Fire Department said the city rescue unit averaged a response time of about three minutes when it was the first responder to emergency calls.

Plymouth Fire Chief Roy Hall and Acting Chief Al Matthews both say they are in favor of the city using CEMS as the city rescue unit.

Hall and Matthews say apprehensions over CEMS are due to the city run fire rescue service's many years of experience as the sole rescue unit.

Hall believes the city should try to eliminate the city run service before the end of the fiscal year. Matthews says if that happens then the city should keep or buy a back-up unit to carry special rescue gear for times when it might be needed.

Graper's position is to go ahead and discontinue the city run rescue service as of April 15 and rely upon Plymouth Township and other CEMS service municipalities as a back-up.

The city commission will consider Graper's recommendation, as an agenda item, at their next meeting on April 16, a day after Graper's hoped for termination date.

It's final: no hazardous wastes for Canton

There will be no hazardous waste landfills in Canton Township - at least for the time being.

The decision came after a three year dispute with Michigan Waste System, the company which operates the Woodland Meadows Landfill facility in Canton, was settled March 27. Michigan Waste System is a subsidiary of Waste Management, Inc., a national waste disposal firm.

In addition to the guarantee that no hazardous waste permits will be sought for the Woodland Meadows south site facility, the consent agreement also granted the township $250,000 for lost tax revenues the landfill site has created. The Woodland Meadows facility is located on prime industrial land in Canton Township.

Other concessions Michigan Waste System agreed to include the eventual township control of a historic homestead located on the site. The Hasselbach homestead may be moved to a permanent historic village site in the future. The company also agreed to reimburse the township up to $15,000 to help construct a bicycle moto-cross race course on the site.

The Woodland Meadows Landfill, located in southeast Canton on Van Born and Hannan roads, consists of two waste disposal sites. The north site, a 97 acre area which has since been capped, was licensed by state and county officials to accept hazardous wastes. The south site, a 102 acre area south of the railroad tracks,

Local couple found dead in murder-suicide tragedy

A Plymouth woman and Canton man were discovered dead in their cars last Wednesday morning in Westland by the Westland Police Department. Police said the pair died in a murder-suicide incident.

According to Sergeant Robert Barthold of the Westland Police Department, Alison T. Pappin, 19, of Plymouth and Robert Farris, Jr., 27, of Canton were discovered dead at approximately 2 a.m. after several witnesses called the Westland Police with reports of gunshots in the street.

Barthold said Pappin was married to Farris but had recently separated from him and was living with a sister in Plymouth.

Barthold said the shootings occurred on Birchwood Street in Westland. Although both Pappin and Farris had a mutual friend living on the Birchwood, the friend told police he expected neither of them the night of the shootings.

Barthold said Pappin and Farris arrived in separate cars at the scene. Farris apparently shot Pappin twice while she still sat in her car, police said. Barthold said Pappin died immediately but as she slumped forward in her car, she hit the accelerator and the car rolled down the street approximately 500 feet before hitting another car and coming to a stop.

Barthold said several witnesses told them they saw a man, later identified as Farris, get into his car and drive to Pappin's car. Witnesses said Farris leaned into Pappin's car, then got back into his own car, locked the doors and shot himself in the head.

Pappin is survived by her mother Phyllis Cameron of Plymouth; father, Douglas Pappin of Canton; step-father, Robert Cameron of Plymouth; sisters, Jo Ellen and Judith of Plymouth; brother, Douglas, of Canton; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lawler of Port Charlotte, FL. and Mrs. Alberta Hall of North Olmsted, OH.

ALISON T. PAPPIN

Pappin was a long time resident of Plymouth. She was a 1982 graduate of Salem High School.

She worked at Plymouth Bowl and was a hostess at the Bottom of The Hill.

Pappin's family said they were overwhelmed by the support shown by friends, neighbors and friends of their daughter's.

Robert Cameron is vice-president of The Plymouth-Canton Community Crier, Inc. Phyllis Cameron is a hair stylist at the Mayflower and Company Hair Design.

Funeral services were held Saturday,

March 31 at 11 a.m. at Schrader Funeral Home with the Fr. Kenneth MacKinnon officiating. Burial was in Riverside Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Plymouth Growthworks.

Funeral Services for Farris were held at Uht Funeral Home in Westland. Information on services was unavailable from the funeral home.

Canton kids get summer fun

Kids at the Canton Commons Apartment Complex will have a busier, more entertaining summer thanks to the Canton Township Board and the Salvation Army.

In a unanimous decision of the board at a March board meeting, the Salvation Army was given $2,000 to help run a summer youth program for the kids in the Canton Commons complex.

Terry Carroll, grants coordinator for Canton, said the program was started a year ago by the Salvation Army to help underprivileged kids in the township enjoy the summer. Grants provided by local churches, and coordinated through the Salvation Army, provide money for the kids to go on field trips and participate in summer projects.

Carroll serves on an advisory board for the program along with Canton Public Librarian Deborah O'Connor.

Carroll said the eight week program ran into transportation problems this year because the bus used last year for field trips was unavailable. Canton's $2,000 will be used to provide bus service for the program.

Carroll said in 1983 approximately 50 kids between the ages of seven and 15 participated in the program. He said the program may attract even more this year because Miller School, the school which services most Canton Commons students, will not be on an extended school year any longer.

Food services dishing up savings for P-C Schools

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

Food service operations at the Plymouth-Canton Schools were $5,000 to the good as of the end of February, according to statistics on the two-year food service contract.

Since the contract began in September 1983 through February of this year, revenues to the program were $736,890 and expenses were $731,937, said Superintendent Dr. John Hoben.

Equipment and repairs needed in the food service area cost $9,100 over the period, Hoben said, making the total food service fund in a deficit position of $4,176.

The winter deficit position of the food service operations - $13,000 in the red at the end of December - was the target of criticism by a group of resident who threatened to recall the school board for that and other reasons. The group has yet to circulate any recall petitions.

"After reviewing the financial and statistical information, I have a good feeling of accomplishment," said Jack Chandler, director of food service, Interstate United (the company which holds the current food service contract).

"The cafeteria managers should likewise be proud of where we stand at this moment ... overall the actual to budget comparisons are excellent.

"Participation is a little lower than we had hoped for, but the flu drain on average daily participation has been severe," Chandler said.

"The 1983-84 school year will be a good one financially (for food service). If current trends continue and an expected state reimbursement is received, no general fund monies will be needed to support food service operations," he said.

On the revenue side for the duration of the contract, sales brought in $615,000, reimbursements $118,000, and interest income was $3,400. Expenditures were $319,000 for food, $234,000 for district salaries, $73,000 for district fringes, $37,000 for Interstate salaries, $24,000 for Interstate fringes, and $43,000 for direct expenses.

Cost per meal analysis done by Interstate showed that each district lunch cost an average of $1.15 to prepare and serve, this compares with a projected cost per meal of $1.14.

The school board will be reviewing bids for the food service contract sometime later this spring.

Station loses $

The Total Gas Station located at 1066 Mill St. in Plymouth was the scene of a Breaking and Entering, which resulted in a loss of $2031.

The incident occurred sometime between 11:45 p.m. on March 27 and 5:50 a.m. on March 28, according to police reports.

Police reports say the following happened:

When the station was opened in the morning the safe cover was found to be missing and the safe was empty.

The safe had contained a total of $2031 in several deposit envelopes and a cash bag. There were no signs of forced entry but police say exit was made through a north door.

The incident is under investigation, but there are no suspects in the case.

Man robbed

A 20-year-old Canton man was held at gunpoint outside his home in the Honeytree Apartment Complex March 25 and robbed of $24, Canton police said last week.

According to police reports, Eric Joseph Cybulski, arrived home at approximately 3:15 a.m. As he walked up to his front door, the suspect walked up to him and said "Give me your keys." The suspect held a small caliber handgun.

Reports said Cybulski gave the suspect, described only as a dark complexed male with a short afro hairstyle, the keys. The suspect then asked Cybulski if he wanted his keys or money. Upon responding he wanted his keys, the suspect took Cybulski's money, threw his keys in the parking lot and fled the scene. Police have no suspects in the case at this time.

Teen night kids in Canton close business

BY CHERYLEBERWEIN

In what one distressed restaurant manager described as a frightening, frustrating situation, over 200 teenagers crammed into the Hardee's Restaurant on Ford Road in Canton March 25 causing the establishment to close early.

The teenagers, mostly between the ages of 13 and 19, had left Center Stage, an entertainment establishment in Canton, and were congregating at the restaurant after teen night at the Stage, Canton police said.

Police said they received a call from the restaurant at approximately 1 a.m. on a report of a man with a gun. When they arrived at the scene they did not find a man with a gun. But they found between 200 and 300 teenagers gathered in the lobby of Hardee's.

Police reports said the building was packed with so many teens it was impossible to move about freely. The parking lot was also completely filled and teens were using the parking lot next to the restaurant as well.

Police called in help from the Michigan State Police the Wayne County Sheriff's Department and the Plymouth Police Department to help bring the crowd under control. Police reports said the crowds which leave a Center Stage teen night have become increasingly disorderly and felonies such as auto thefts have been attributed to the groups.

Police said the interior of the restaurant was a shambled mess when they arrived at the scene. Shelves had been pulled from the walls and bottles and cans had been thrown in the parking lot.

"This was a serious situation," Lieutenant Larry Stewart of the Canton Police Department said. "The manager wanted the restaurant closed and was unable to handle the crowds. There was a lot of noise and things were removed from the wall.

"But the restaurant has to take some measures to make sure it stays open itself," Stewart continued. "We can't be calling the state police and the sheriff every time a situation like this gets out of hand. If they have to hire security guards and only let people through the doors one at a time, that's a step they'll have to take to stay open."

Although Stewart said no arrests were made at the scene, Canton police reports said an Ypsilanti man had been arrested only minutes earlier at the Center Stage parking lot the same evening for drunk driving.

The White Castle Restaurant, also located in the same area along Ford Road in Canton, closes for 90 minutes every Friday and Saturday nights because of crowd problems, the report said.

"There are problems there (Center Stage) and they are getting worse," Supervisor James Poole told the board and public at the March 27 board meeting. "There are other, older people conducting business there that shouldn't be. There are two businesses which are being forced to close early on Friday and Saturday nights because of the disturbance.

"These are good, honest people and this shouldn't be happening," Poole continued. "This just should not continue."

Canton Police Chief Jerry Cox said extra patrolmen would be assigned to Friday and Saturday nights to patrol the Center Stage area. Stewart said it took responding units about 15 minutes to bring the crowd under control at the restaurant.

The course will meet for six weeks on either Mondays, Fridays or Saturdays. Beginning sessions will meet Saturday, April 7 from 12:30 to 2 p.m.; Monday, April 9 from 6:30 to 8 p.m.; and Friday April 20 from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

'Begindergarten' based on developmental age

The Plymouth-Canton School District will have developmental placement of kindergarten children for the fall of 1984, said Claudia Kulnis of Eriksson School, with some children being placed in a regular kindergarten class and some in a begindergarten program.

"The children who are not ready for kindergarten will be placed, with parental permission, in the begindergarten program for one year and enter kindergarten the following year," Kulnis said.

The developmental age of the children will be the criterion instead of the usual chronological age. "Michigan has one of the latest cut-off dates for entry in the United States - December 1. In most states, our fall birthday children would not be entering public school (until the following year)," Kulnis said.

"Evidence is accumulating that indicates if we do not look at a child's developmental age, it can lead to highly unsatisfactory behavior on the part of the child and possibly lead to a disastrous school career.

"One has to ask if the child can cope with the large school building, the other children, the ringing bells, waiting in line, and following rules and schedules. A child needs the maturity to cope and learn at the same time," she said.

A superior mental ability does not necessarily mean a child is mature enough for the stress of kindergarten, she said. "Knowing numbers, letters, colors, or even being able to read does not mean that he/she is ready for school.

"A recommendation to hold a child back for a year is not an indication that either the parent or the child has failed," she said. "Through the process of living and growing another year the child will become ready school."

The begindergarten program will be one of the educational opportunities offered by the school district, Kulnis said. The sites for the begindergarten program will be determined after testing of children is completed so as to coordinate transportation.

Parents are urged to register all children who will be five years of age by Dec. 1 at their local elementary schools as soon as possible. Enrollment for the begindergarten program will be determined after testing, with the Gesell Development Test, is completed.

The test measures the developmental age of a child. The test is based on a set of norms obtained by examining thousand of children at every age level and is scored in terms of age and not in terms of points or percentages.

Public hearings begin April 17, on waste plan

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Trash day. For the most part, it represents nothing more than a weekly ritual of lugging boxes and bags out to the curb for pick up. People don't think about it - unless they miss it.

Landfills. For the most part, they represent nothing more than unpleasant thoughts in most people's minds. Unless, that is, they are located down the street or next door - and then they take on new meaning.

Although residents pay taxes so they aren't personally faced with the task of finding a landfill for their trash every week, changes in how their communities handle waste disposal are looming closer - and could eventually affect more than just their wallets.

Public hearings to adopt a new Wayne County Solid Waste Management Plan will begin April 17 in Detroit. The plan calls for increased resource recovery, incineration of trash, and decreased dependence upon landfills throughout the county. Although the plan has not been formally adopted, several community and county officials feel the plan is a positive, vital piece of legislation all Wayne County communities should support.

"This plan is leading us in the right direction," Canton Planner James Kosteva said. Kosteva has served on the Wayne County Committee and helped formulate the plan.

"The plan is moving toward resource recovery and reducing our dependency on landfills," Kosteva continued. "There are two ways to approach the solid waste problem. You can provide greater incentive for resource recovery and you can provide greater disincentives for landfill operations. I only wish it had more muscle in its recommendations."

That landfills and waste disposal have become increasing problems in Wayne County is a fact little argued by some county officials. Wayne County Commissioner Milton Mack (Canton) said the cost of land, land studies and transportation fees have substantially increased the costs of landfilling in communities.

"Incineration costs are increasing, but they aren't increasing as much as the cost of landfilling is," Mack said. "You can't build on a landfill site for 15 years after it is capped, unless the Michigan Department of Natural Resources waives this."

Mack said three to four landfills are discovered every month in the state which are suspected of having ground and drinking water contamination problems. "If the state and the county cannot insure landfill safety, then we must move in a new direction with waste disposal."

The 138-page plan was put together by a 13 member committee made up of industry representatives, Wayne County planners, environmental groups, community leaders and citizens. Begun in 1979, under the direction of the governor William Milliken, the plan outlines five and 20 year outlooks on waste disposal in Wayne County.

Wayne County Planner Maurice Roach said the plan devised must be adopted by 29 Wayne communities. Roach said he hopes to have the plan adopted by mid-summer if there are no major problems with it.

"If the communities don't adopt this, then the DNR will write a plan for the county," Roach said, "and if it does, local communities will lose all control over landfill issues."

Ray Kellas, chairman of the committee and manager of the Woodland Meadows landfill in Canton said the plan has given local communities a way to express their concerns and desires on the landfill issue. "We reached out to as many people as we could to bring the planning process and peoples' ideas together on a monthly basis.

"This plan will give people and communities a chance to see that they are part of the problem. Everyone realizes they generate waste on a daily basis, but we in the industry are charged with handling that waste."

Kellas said the committee has listened to citizen concerns about aesthetics, truck routes, odor problems and site location. "We hope to include a method of local input into the decision making process in the siting of new landfill facilities," he added.

Kellas said many of the problems landfill operators face today were brought about by bad practices earlier operators used. "We have to get away from this mentality which says 'no,'" Kellas said. "We've made great strides in the industry and need to take time to prove to communities that we can handle the solid waste problem. I don't want to belittle bad things, but let's get on with creative thinking."

Mack also felt at least some landfill operators today are ethical. "But the public has no faith in landfill operators,"

A growing foundation

BUILDING A STRONG FOUNDATION, the Ford Motor Company Sheldon Road Plant in Plymouth presented Schoolcraft Community College with a $1,000 check. The check, which will be placed in the Schoolcraft College Foundation fund, is one of many contributions the company has made to improving formal instruction, providing scholarships and providing equipment necessary for growth and construction of new facilities at the college. Under the Ford continuing education plan, the Sheldon Road Plant has refunded or paid the registration and tuition fees of more than fifty employes who attend Schoolcraft College last year. This was in addition to 113 employes who participated in classes conducted in the plant by Schoolcraft instructors. Over $33,000 has been allocated by the Michigan-Vocational-Technical Program to upgrade the plant's employes skills. Above, Dr. Richard W. McDowell, president of Schoolcraft College (left) accepts the foundation check from Gerald J. Kania, plant manager and community relations chairman. (Crier photo by Cheryl Eberwein.)

No hazardous wastes for Canton

was not licensed to accept hazardous wastes.

Canton township denied Michigan Waste Systems a license to handle hazardous wastes in the south site. The township also denied the company a license to operate the new facility based on height and setback standards. The township had proposed stricter height and setback limits than Michigan Waste Systems had proposed.

Court litigation between the township and company arose after a series of legal battles over licensing the facility took place. Although the township denied the company a license, Michigan Waste Systems sought to overturn this decision.

In a 1982 Circuit Court ruling, Judge Charles Farmer ruled that Public Act 641, a solid waste disposal management act, eliminated township authority to restrict the placement or operations of landfill facilities. Although Canton challenged the decision, the Woodland Meadows landfill south site was opened in 1983 and has been operating since.

Skate-a-thon raises big $ for charity

The Plymouth-Canton Community was rolling Saturday night. And it continued to roll on into Sunday afternoon.

The third annual Skatin' Station Easter Seals skate-a-thon took place March 31 and April 1 and over 650 enthusiastic kids participated in the event. Over $34,600 was raised for the organization making the effort the second largest single night fund-raiser in the state.

Robert Pado, 15, again took first place honors for raising the most money. Pado, who raised $2,031 also raised the most money in the 1982 skate-a-thon. Ann Marie and Peter Pado, both 13, also raised approximately $500 each.

Skaters were treated to a live band, basketball game, video show, pie-eating contest and plenty of food and encouragement throughout the event. The Program was telecast live on Detroit television. Several local and national celebrities helped to make the program a success, but the real effort came from those kids who skated for others who can't.

Renovations for Northville?

BY KERRI LANGEN

The writer is a Michigan State University student participating in the Capital Reporting program.

LANSING— Officials at Northville's Regional Psychiatric Hospital plan major painting and plumbing renovations if the Legislature approves a 60 per cent increased budget for maintenance of state facilities in fiscal 1985.

"What it would mean to us is we could continue to upgrade the program here in terms of total hospital maintenance," said John Reynolds, director. "It could mean an update of our power plant, and it could mean - I hope - the inclusion of equipment needed to run the hospital."

Last year, funds for maintenance statewide increased by only $1 million. This year, they aren't expected to exceed $3 million, but state officials say they need every penny.

"We're doing the best we can," says William C. Roege, director of the state's Technical Services Division. "We really need some $40 million for special maintenance projects just to stay even, tenance funds from the state would insure that the job is finished.

Aside from plumbing and painting, the hospital is also in need of air conditioning. "Circulation is poor, and it gets awfully hot here," says Reynolds. "With the addition of air conditioning, though, you're talking $3 million - $4 million."

Money is also needed at the Northville facility for renovations geared to more easily accommodate the handicapped. Of more than 1,000 patients, the hospital's handicapped number perhaps 10 at any given time, but Reynolds says a problem exists nonetheless.

"Right now, we are not poorly but we are not well-equipped for handicapped people," he says. "We need to develop doors, ramps, bathrooms, stairways and a number of additional projects to accommodate the handicapped."

How likely is it the state will fulfill these requests? Roege says determining maintenance priorities is difficult because of lean funds. However, he says safety, proper maintenance and maximum efficiency are at the top of any priority list.

"One of the biggest problems at the Northville facility," says Reynolds, "is we've seen a tremendous increase in the buy we certainly can't knock this increase if we get it."

State allotment for maintenance of its facilities is now $5 million, but that could increase to $8 million by fiscal 1985.

Despite the increase, Roege estimates that state-owned facilities are in need of about $200 million in repairs. "At this rate we'll never catch up," he says, "but I think both the Legislature and the Department of Management and Budget are beginning to realize the extent of the problem."

The Department of Mental Health is doing its share, too. "At the end of November, Pat Babcock, director of mental health, made available to us money to hire additional maintenance people and housekeeping people," says Reynolds. "What we've done is begun a general hospital-wide painting and plumbing renovation program."

Reynolds said these funds have made possible the beginning of projects that had to be put off for years. "We're now in the process of upgrading the lighting on the grounds of the hospital, too," he says. "That's extremely important to us because the lighting has been in poor repair for years."

The hospital in Northville hasn't been thoroughly painted since 1978, and Reynolds says plumbing in its 32-year-old buildings is still a problem.

"We have such a lack of pressure some times that water often doesn't reach the top in many of the buildings," says Reynolds. "Also, there's a problem of supplying hot water when necessary and of flushing toilets."

A special project designed to combat plumbing problems at the hospital is supposed to begin this June or July. Reynolds says any additional main-number of patients. We are not interested in building new buildings, though. If anything, we're looking to downsize the hospital because it's much too large right now. But, we keep renovating the old."

Roege says, "Buildings that need repair cost more money to operate. Fortunately, Governor (James) Blanchard is behind us on this, and I think he's really going to push the issue."

Blanchard has appointed Robert L. Mitchell, chief deputy director of the Michigan Department of Transportation, as coordinator of public investment. Mitchell's responsibilities are to analyze and coordinate state government expenditures aimed at what the governor calls "rebuilding Michigan."

In addition, Blanchard has proposed granting $800 million in 1984 for building the facilities he feels are needed to reach this goal. Michigan now owns and operates more than 6,400 facilities valued at more than $7 billion.

Roege calls Michigan's maintenance problem "abnormal even in normal times," but he says other states are experiencing the same difficulties.

One answer to funding problems is the abandonment and demolition of buildings - a solution Roege says is inevitable if other state, community or private organizations won't take financial responsibility for older state facilities.

"What we're trying to do is develop alternatives to hospitalization in the community, such as encouraging private psychiatric hospitals or private hospitals to care for patients who would normally come to us," says Reynolds.

"With counseling programs, psychotherapy and a number of other workshop programs, perhaps some of the patients could stay in their own homes, thus stopping the number of admissions that are coming to this facility."

Unsolicited Remarks

By Rachael Dolson

We're hoping that DPW Director Ken Vogras will turn the fountain on for us. Maybe Police Chief Ralph White will schedule an extra five or six police officers just for our picnic.

And we love popcorn - so hopefully Recreation Director Chuck Skene will send the ever-popular popcorn wagon out. We hope all the city commissioners come too, since they all had plenty of advance notice.

I'm talking about the picnic we have planned for noon next Wednesday - a picnic in protest of the new city ordinance which requires that people have a permit (approved by the city commission) to hold any special event.

The name of our group is Residents Against Local Permit Hassle (RALPH), and even though our objective is to PROTEST THE REQUIRING OF PERMITS - we were law-abiding citizens and humbly requested (and got) a permit to hold our protest against permits.

We are protesting the changes to the city ordinances approved by the commission earlier this year which require residents to apply 20 days in advance for a permit to hold a special event, assembly or gathering.

The changes are unconstitutional, and unwarranted restriction on the people's right to assembly and speech. It's a bunch of red tape to tie up and confuse the 'undesirable elements' who might want to have a special event. Besides that, it's a hassle.

The city, however, has a different explanation of the mandatory permit ordinance. They say it is so they can be 'prepared' for these special events - schedule extra police officers, think of safety precautions, mow the grass, take out an ad in the daily newspapers promoting the event, and send out the popcorn wagon.

So, city administration, this is your big chance to prove us wrong.

If we go there Wednesday and find the fountain squirting at full height, police patrolling the area so we're not hassled by anti-RALPHers, and hot buttered popcorn - then we will know you are just good Girl Scouts wanting to be prepared and make sure we enjoy our special event in Plymouth.

And fellow Plymouth residents - this is your chance too. If you think, as we do, that this is an unnecessary ordinance with potential for abuse - then join us for lunch at noon on Wednesday.

'Discipline' is not right

EDITOR:

This letter is in response to John Lydon's letter in the March 21 issue of The Crier. Mr. Lydon, I totally agree with you about teachers using physical violence.

Teachers have to use a certain amount of discipline toward unruly students, but as far as actually hitting them, I don't agree with it.

I think physical discipline should be up to parents, not teachers or school administrators. There are a lot of people who talk about getting "back to basics" in our schools, I wonder if they mean hitting students and making them sit in the corner and wear dunce caps?

What about prayer in school? Would it help students get better grades? I don't know.

HAROLD CALLAHAN

Why is there all this flap over who should use fallow public-owned property?

Both Plymouth-Canton School Superintendent John M. Hoben and Board President Glenn Schroeder were quoted as saying that Canton Township Supervisor Jim Poole was looking for a "freebie" because Canton wanted to use some school property.

And both men, trying to cover their rear ends, claim they were quoted out of context. How can that be? In the middle of a three-hour speech, they made such a remark - and neither says he didn't make the statement - it's still a fair assessment of their spoken feelings.

Such petty namecalling is less than we expect from our public officials.

But on the issue of use of the lands itself, Hoben and Schroeder are correct in feeling it's unwise to simply sell the property parcels in question to Canton for just a dollar. School district taxpayers as a whole paid for the property - not just Cantonites.

Hoben says that Canton was offered the one parcel at its assessed valuation - far below its original cost to the school district taxpayers. That would sound like a good deal.

To use the vacant pieces for the township - at say the same dollar per year rent the schools lease the Cultural Center property to the City of Plymouth - is not unreasonable either. But Canton must realize that's only temporary.

If Canton desires to totally command or build on a vacant school site, it should cough up. Similarly, the township can't reasonably expect to take over a school parcel that is currently being leased to a farmer unless that farmer is agreeable.

These inter-governmental relations seem most uncomplicated. They should be resolved in a way that fairly promotes usage - without pettiness.

We disagree on issues

EDITOR:

I would like to respond to Gary A. Figi's letter in The Crier's community opinions section on March 28 ("Misunderstood," pg. 10).

Gary, you say I didn't understand your original letter. Well, I did.

You stated: "Let's get back to the basics in our schools by having parents who help their children's efforts to learn by supporting their teachers and school administrators' efforts to keep law and order in our schools. This is the only way we can be guaranteed that the great majority of our students learn and reach their goals in life."

My interpretation of the last paragraph in your letter is that discipline will make students better people, and parents should go along with teachers, whether they are right or wrong.

This is exactly what I was against in my letter. In all fairness to you Gary, I didn't read the original article, but I read your letter, and was responding to your letter, NOT the article.

I may have been questioning your beliefs, but I didn't stoop so low as to question your reading skills.

If my letter upset you, I'm sorry. But let's not discuss each others reading and writing skills; let's stick to the business at hand.

Through Bifocals

By Fred DeLano

Just 53 years ago last Saturday, America was shocked by the death of one of its greatest sports figures, a man at the zenith of his career, only 43 at the time. The date was March 31, 1931 and among the dead when an airplane crashed in a Kansas cornfield was Knute Kenneth Rockne, hailed by many as the greatest college football coach of his era.

The Norwegian-born Rockne was fresh from directing his University of Notre Dame teams through undefeated 1929 and '30 seasons, giving the Irish a claim to successive national championships.

Watching those teams as a high school lad was my introduction to big time football and I still have a vivid recollection of the steller performances of such starts as Frank Carideo, Marchmont Schwartz, Marty Brill, Joe Savoldi, Tommy Yarr, Bert Metzger and others.

Although Rockne was revered on his own campus — and still is — it is safe to say there was one man in Ann Arbor who shed no tears as April dawned two score and 13 years ago: Fielding H. Yost, then athletic director at the University of Michigan.

The athletic relationship between these two great universities long has disappointed me. For instance, as intense as the rivalries may be between Michigan and such schools as Michigan State and Ohio State, a bitterness aimed from Ann Arbor toward the Irish that exceeded the bounds of common sense was born under Yost.

Why was it that Michigan's "Champions of the West" did not play nearby Notre Dame's football team from 1909-1942, then dropped the series again until 1978? Why were there gaps from 1919 to '39 in track, 1923 to '38 in basketball, and from 1924 to '38 in both baseball and tennis?

Research of correspondence by Yost's biographer, John Behee, shed light on possible answers, for remember that Yost, too, was considered one of the great coaches of his time.

"Coaches Rockne and Yost were not the best of friends," writes Behee., "Their failure to meet on the gridiron seems more than coincidental."

In a series of "very heated letters" exchanged in 1923, Behee says, "At issue was the advice not to play Notre Dame, being offered liberally by Yost to other members of the Big Ten."

The biographer becomes even more pointed in stating, "Yost's contempt for Notre Dame was further increased following a speaking engagement in 1926. He wrote Big Ten Commissioner John L. Griffith, complaining that the Irish were taking advantage of the Conference."

In brief, it was Yost's contention that Notre Dame did not adhere to Big Ten regulations and "thus, they should confine their schedule to universities with like ideas of freedom of action and rules of eligibility."

Yost came to Ann Arbor in 1901 and was a part-time status until becoming full-time athletic director in 1921. He held that role until retiring in 1941 with a record of great accomplishment in building the Michigan athletic plant.

Meanwhile, Coach H.O. (Fritz) Crisler was imported from Princeton in 1938, with a guarantee of being named athletic director upon Yost's retirement. Fritz was succeeded by Don Canham in 1968. Through the efforts of this pair, the relationship with Notre Dame had ascended to near normalcy.

But still, thinking back to just a week ago tonight, we Michigan folks sure did enjoy the way our boys thrashed you Irish in that N.I.T. basketball championship game at Madison Square Garden.

Let's allow Rockne and Yost to rest in peace, but I think the angels actually do shout, "Go, Blue."

I watched a show the other night on PBS called the "Predicament of Rita Jensen." Maybe you did too.

The documentary dealt with a reporter who lived with another woman who eventually, turned out to be a Weatherman.

That is, one of the group that went by that name and also engaged in various political, criminal and terrorist endeavors. Maybe I should just have said political and not been so redundant. Anyway...

This reporter was told by her editor to write about her life with her roommate the Weatherman. She refused and was fired.

The whole question of the matter is,

July 4th needs music

EDITOR:

The Plymouth Jaycees are appealing to any patriotic music-minded students to participate in this year's Fourth of July Parade.

The Parade Committee felt this action was necessary due to the non-compliance with requests to the school system's music department under the direction of James Griffiths to participate in the parade.

The schools always have the answer that it is summer time and nobody is available. When the month of August arrives, students come out of the woodwork to attend the band comp due to the fact that if they do not attend, they will not be able to participate in the band for the coming school year.

What I fail to understand is, if the students can show up in August why can't they show up a month earlier to march in a parade that states their independence as proud Americans.

If anyone wants to participate please contact the Plymouth Jaycees, P.O. Box 279, Plymouth, MI: 48170.

was it Rita Jensen's job to report about what went on in her private life. And, do reporter's have private lives?

Much like police who are supposed to be ever vigilant, Jensen's editor thought she should always be using her nose for news wherever she found herself, even in her personal life.

The debate went on and on whether Jensen should have written about her private life. She said no and lost her job and a whole lot of credibility with the journalism establishment.

Where is the line drawn and which side am I on?

If I'm at a party and see the police chief smoking a joint, is that news? Not that I've ever seen that, but what if I do.

Should a reporter always be on the job? Should anybody?

Since I've been in Plymouth I've seen two names of people I went to high school with show up in police reports. If I was told to write about my personal experiences with these two guys, it would be a short story.

The stories wouldn't be pertinent anyhow. A disorderly conduct and assault and battery don't lead to much news-space.

What if one of the guys assassinated the president?

I could be like Jensen, no problem. I could and probably would lose my job.

In a lot of professions there is a saying that you leave the job at work. Don't bring it home. Jensen's editor didn't believe in that.

When I first started working at The Crier, I was told that if I was ever arrested for anything it would be in the paper. So much for leaving the job at work.

I can't say I report all the news. I find out. A lot of it is because of libel laws. How do you write a story about a public official cheating on their spouse, and is it even news, as long as they don't get caught.

I really hope any roommate or friend I have never does anything newsworthy. I wouldn't want to lose a job over it. And I probably would.

From the Inside Looking Out

By Cheryl Eberwein

Lost

When I was a little kid I used to swing on street sign posts. Sometimes, in the process, I'd actually turn the pole and rotate the signs so they were pointing in the wrong direction.

If my conscience ever bothered me enough to turn the signs back, I don't remember it. I knew, after all, which streets were which in my hometown. How could this little bit of silliness possibly confuse anyone? That a stranger passing through the area might become hopelessly lost as a result of my actions was a juvenile oversight beyond comprehension.

A little older now, I don't swing on street signs anymore. But I was painfully reminded of the confusion mismarked crossroads can create last week.

There is no way to know how human we really are until confronted with this sense of lost direction, until trying to comprehend what seems humanly impossible to understand.

The death of a co-worker's daughter left each of us at The Community Crier perplexed, devastated, unprepared for the rash of emotions we were to experience. Tears flowed freely, accepted, between friends and family. We pulled together and pulled through, all the while acknowledging that for some, the slow process of healing would take many friends and many years.

But somewhere, it seemed, I had missed a street sign. Perhaps the sign had been twisted. Perhaps it hadn't been there at all. For whatever reason, I felt strangely unable to find a road to the place I most wanted to go. No words, no gestures, no silent prayers could reach those who needed it most this week, and the humanness of my actions seemed lost on some other road.

he said. "and honorable intentions don't a good landfill make."

Although Mack said some county commissioners have already sought to alter the plan before adoption, through the inclusion of another landfill facility, he said he still feels the plan is "fairly decent with opportunities to make changes down the road."

"We can't get much more than we have right now," Mack said. "We just don't have the votes."

"As long as we don't have this plan adopted, additional landfill operators will request to be included in it," he continued. "We could defeat the entire plan on the basis of these landfill requests."

Mack said the inclusion of the most recent landfill facility in the plan could signal to communities that Wayne County is not really interested in resource recovery. He said he voted against inclusion of the facility in the plan.

Mack also said the Wayne County plan has special interest for The Plymouth-Canton Community as well as Northville and Northville Township.

"Right now the Detroit House of Corrections (DeHoCo) is going to close no matter what happens," Mack said. "That site has been proposed as a landfill and although there is no formal proposal before the solid waste committee right now, this site could be included in the plan if it isn't adopted by the communities."

"Unless we go to resource recovery, we're going to need more landfills, and as long as we do, we face the potential threat of ground and drinking water contamination," he said.

A $300 million bond issue to provide seed money for a resource recovery program in Wayne County will be placed on the November ballot, Mack said. Such financial strides may well be what it takes to encourage resource recovery in Wayne County, he indicated. Kosteva also felt cost incentives would finally motivate the county to research and adopt resource recovery programs.

"There will have to be cost incentives before serious effort to work toward landfill alternatives will begin in the county," Kosteva said. "Recycling and resource recovery will become a reality when the cost of land disposal becomes equated with the public's costs."

"Public awareness of landfill problems has been heightened somewhat," Kosteva said. "We are working toward source separation, but we need to move to resource recovery in much the same way we need to go from a reliance on fossil fuels to solar energy."

Although Kosteva said he felt the county plan does not go far enough in protecting the interests of local communities, he said he still felt the plan would help the county take some major environmental strides toward resource recovery.

Lots of trash plagues Wayne County

BY CHERLEBERWEIN

Every resident in The Plymouth-Canton Community produces about 2.6 pounds of garbage per day, according to statistics compiled by the Wayne County Solid Waste Management Planning Committee. That amount, combined with the trash produced by all other Wayne County residents, could fill Tiger Stadium to the top twice a month.

What steps have county and municipal officials, as well as industry representatives and the public taken to resolve this alarming fact?

Recently, increased public awareness of community disposal problems has caused a slight shift in how people deal with their trash. Paper, aluminum and glass are now recycled in areas which formerly buried these resources. Community projects focusing on clean-ups, tree plantings and general reclamation of old fields, alleys and other areas where trash once accumulated have been started throughout the county. Bulk foods and products, which reduce the need for excessive packaging, have become increasingly popular.

On a much larger scale, however, actions which help resolve the problem of solid waste disposal in Wayne County have come more slowly.

In 1979, then-Michigan Governor William Milliken called for the creation of solid waste management plans from every county in the state. The plans were to identify waste disposal alternatives, move the counties away from dependence upon landfills and present five and 20 year outlooks on waste disposal.

Although the Wayne County Solid Waste Management Planning Committee was created shortly after to come up with a plan for Wayne County Communities, the plan written still has not been formally discussed, revised and adopted by the communities.

In lieu of the fact that the plan was to have been in place by Jan. 6 of this year, a defacto landfill moratorium has been established in Wayne County. The moratorium, which prohibits the establishment of new landfills in the county, will remain effective until the management plan is adopted.

Why has the Wayne County committee missed its deadline? Several committee members point to complications in working with a large, populated area as delaying the plan. The plan devised will undergo public hearings April 17 and 18 in Detroit and Wayne.

Among things which the Wayne County plan calls for are:

- The establishment of an implementation committee responsible for encouraging and fostering the development of resource recovery. This committee will also be responsible for monitoring the county's waste stream; for monitoring resource recovery technology; for monitoring the remaining capacity of disposal facilities; and for instituting pilot Roseanne M. Wienczak, dispatcher for the Plymouth Police Department, has been named Young Career Woman of the year by the Plymouth Business and Professional Women's Club.

Wienczak is also a police reserve officer in Livonia. She has attended the University of Michigan-Dearborn and Schoolcraft College, and has been active with the Catholic Youth Organization, Girl Scouts and the YMCA-YWCA. She will represent the Plymouth Club at the district level in April.

Other candidates in the Plymouth Club's competition were Ellen S. Baiger of Cooper Vision Pharmaceuticals, Inc.; Theresa Pavone, Chic Boutique; and Kathleen A. Proctor of Adistra Corporation.

The judges for the competition included Mary Childs, commissioner and former mayor of Plymouth; Jean Knowles, media specialist for the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools; and Dr. Jean Pike, director of career planning and placement at Schoolcraft.

The judges' decision was based on a written biographical sketch prepared by each candidate, an oral presentation to the entire club, and a personal interview with the judges.

Save my reputation

You know it's spring when you're happy to see a bug crawling across the kitchen windowsill. I hate ants and flies and all kinds of insects, but Sunday afternoon when I saw that little creature crawling around, I knew spring was here at last.

I'm not stupid enough to believe we won't see another snow flake this year. After all it's only the first of April and we live in Michigan. Who cares if we see a few more snow flakes, as long as we know warm weather and sunshine are on the way?

I haven't seen a robin or any spring flowers yet, but I know it can't be long. It's funny how I've suddenly noticed all the little things that need fixing around the house. I think it means I'm starting to get the urge to do some spring house cleaning. I must be sick. I never get an urge to clean house in any season.

There must be something wrong with me. I even washed my car Sunday (with the help of my brother and two nieces). I guess I'm not terminal yet, since I still haven't cleaned all the junk out of the inside of the car.

If you see me at a store buying paint or cleaning supplies, call a doctor quick. If this spring fever epidemic gets too far out of hand, I might ruin my reputation.

Michael Pohlman, son of Sandra Montague of Postiff in Plymouth, has entered the United States Air Force's Delayed Enlistment Program. A 1982 graduate of Salem High School; he will enter the Regular Air Force on July 30.

Darryl Schneider of Mill Street in Plymouth has been selected to receive a one-year tuition scholarship at the University of Michigan, under a grant program sponsored by the Michigan Road Builders Association. Schneider is working on his Master of Science and Engineering in the area of construction engineering and management.

Mary Lukens of Irvin and Michael Allen of Bradner in Plymouth both received Bachelor of Science Degrees from Western Michigan University.

Thomas Petroff, a sophomore at Kalamazoo College is leaving for Madrid, Spain where he will attend the University of Madrid for a semester. His studies will be in Spanish. A '81 graduate of Salem High School, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Petroff of Plymouth.

Robert Reuter of Thornwood Drive in Plymouth was named to the Dean's List at Adrian College. He is a freshman pre-med student.

Aaron Bates, a 1983 graduate of Canton High School, entered the United States Air Force in February. He is the son of Raymond Bates, Jr. of Ann Arbor Trail.

Plymouth students named to the Dean's Honor Roll for the winter evening term at Lawrence Institute of Technology are: Raymond Krom and Mayur Modi.

Laura Weast of Rockledge Drive in Plymouth was named to the Dean's List at The College of Wooster.

Plymouth resident Neil F. Kirsten, of County Department of Social Services, was one of 48 Wayne County employees honored recently for 20 years or more of service in the social work field.

County to burn trash?

programs for source separation and recycling.

- Acknowledgement that even with source separation and recycling programs in place in Wayne County, landfills will still be a necessary source of solid waste disposal. The plan will establish a sanitary landfill management system which will remain under local municipal control.

- The continued development of landfills to accommodate solid waste disposal in the county for 20 years. New landfills will be permitted only under criteria established by Public Act 641. The act, signed into law in 1979, regulates solid waste disposal.

- The establishment of incinerators to reduce county dependence upon landfill facilities. A 3,000 ton per day incineration project, proposed in Detroit by the Detroit City Council, has received county plan endorsement. Waste heat from the process would be used to generate electricity. The Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority waste facility has also received plan endorsement.

- The development of financing mechanisms which will help augment plan implementation and resource recovery activities. Mechanisms considered include: state bond programs, tax abatement incentives, state appropriation in the form of grants and loans, new legislation and tipping fees.

- The development of cooperative community arrangements for waste disposal. Committee members felt cooperative coalitions offer the best long-term waste management solutions available to communities.

- The development of other forms of waste disposal to the maximum degree possible. The plan calls for investigation of all volume reduction options.

Needle found in bread

A Canton woman reported finding a sewing needle in a loaf of Wonder Bread March 25, Canton police said.

The woman told Canton police she had been making sandwiches for her family when she discovered the needle in one of the last pieces of bread in the loaf. The bread, purchased March 20 from an undisclosed Kroger store, is the only reported incident of food tampering the Canton police have received yet.

"We have every reason to believe this is a legitimate complaint," Sergeant Alex Wilson of the Canton police department said. "We feel the complainant is telling nothing but the truth."

Wilson said the Canton Police had contacted the Continental Baking Company, manufacturers of Wonder Bread, on the complaint. Company officials told Wilson every loaf of bread baked goes through a metal detector after baking.

"We don't know if the needle was shoved into the bread in the warehouse, the store, or in delivery. It's nearly impossible to determine where this actually occurred," Wilson said.

Wilson said the alteration of food is a four-year felony under federal health and safety regulations.

Schoolcraft College has seminar

The Schoolcraft College Foundation is presenting its first Financial and Estate Planning Seminar on April 17 from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Liberal Arts Conference Room B200-210.

The three-hour seminar includes understanding your current financial position and how to make the most of it. Two well-qualified individuals will present the seminar.

They are Gail Barski-McCracken, financial planning officer at Manufacturers National Bank, who is also an attorney and a certified public accountant, and Charles W. Pearson, author of a textbook on estate planning, who is a second vice-president and trust officer at Manufacturers National Bank. Please call 591-6400 for more information.

★ PLACES TO BE ★

glass month throughout Michigan, museum too!

April has been designated by Governor Blanchard as Michigan Glass Month. The Plymouth Historical Museum is proud to present an exceptional glass exhibit in keeping with this designation.

Glass from the 1690s to the present is on exhibit through the month of May. A few of the many interesting items on exhibit are green Croesus; Heisey; Mercury glass; some Stiegl pieces; and an unusual Milfore paper weight door stop.

The Plymouth Historical Museum, 155 S. Main Street in Plymouth, is open to the public Thursday, Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. Admission is $1 for adults; 50 cents for youth; and 25 cents for children.

Choral Expression 'Celebrates'

The Plymouth Community Chorus presents their small ensemble, Choral Expression, in "Celebration" at the First United Methodist Church, 45201 North Territorial Road. Performance time is four o'clock on Sunday April 8.

Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students and may be obtained from chorus members or from Sideways, 525 Forest Street in Plymouth or Book Break, 44720 Ford Road, Canton. Proceeds from the concert will go to the newly established scholarship fund. The scholarships will be awarded at the Plymouth Community Chorus Spring Concert, "All Our Best," celebrating the tenth anniversary of the chorus on May 19 and 20.

The selections chosen to be presented by Choral Expression for this show are "Celebration," "We Need Love," "My Wish For You," "If The Stars Should Appear," "Memory," "Elvira," "Gershwin Medley," "Stay Tuned," "Boy From New York City," featuring soprano Gayle Lang and "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy," featuring the female singers.

There will be solos by members of both Choral Expression and its mother group, The Plymouth Community Chorus. These will be Earl Downing and Nola Bonadrini doing selections from "Fiddler on the Roof," Lang singing "My Man's Gone Now," Jim McDonald doing "Birth of the Blues," Chris Stopa singing "Watch What Happens," Dolores Roth's rendition of "Where or When," Don Ingram doing "Danny Boy," and Morang Zimmer singing, "The Blind Plough Man."

Please call 455-4080 for further ticket information.

Running out of Lenten recipes?

The Plymouth Seventh-day Adventist Church will have a sample and tasting time for vegetarian meals on April 5, at 6 p.m. in the lower level of the church located at 4295 Napier Rd.

Practiced vegetarians from the church are inviting interested guests to the vegetarian sampling of their favorite chosen recipes of meatless entrees and salads.

There will be vegetarian cookbooks for sale and a nutritionist to answer questions as well as recipes of each dish that guests may want to copy for their own file. Room capacity is limited so please call, 455-2776, to reserve a place. This event is free and open to the public.

Jaycees need parade funds, help

Plans for the 1984 Plymouth Jaycees Fourth of July are well underway, parade co-chairman Fred Eagle said. "This year's parade plans to be the largest parade in the history of The Plymouth-Canton Community," Eagle said. The Jaycees are in need of financial donations from local businesses and individuals to help underwrite the cost of the parade. "The business community has made past parades successful through their financial support," co-chairman Steve Cox said. "Again this year the jaycees are appealing for your support. Send your donation early," Cox said. Mail your donation to: Plymouth Jaycees 1984 Fourth of July P.O. Box 279, Plymouth, MI. 48170.

Eriksson games?

Many of you have heard of the new game craze called Trivial Pursuit. Well, Eriksson School is giving that game a unique twist called Educational Pursuit. The school will be turned into a gameboard in which parents and guests will test their knowledge by answering six questions from the following educational categories: reading, math, language arts, science, social studies, and health.

The classroom will have displays for each of the six categories to aid gameplayers in answering the questions. When a question is answered correctly, the player will receive a token in the shape of a pie slice! When the six slice pie shape has been completed, it may be redeemed for a cup of coffee or a treat, compliments of our PTO.

Gametimes will be from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Due to the size of the school and the limited parking space, families with last names beginning with A-M should come from 7 to 7:45 p.m. and N-Z from 7:45 to 8:30 p.m., or car pool if possible.

Spring Flower Sale

EYE OPENERS

FOCUSING AFTER FORTY

The eyes are living organs which change every day of our lives.

Shortly after birth, the eyes' ability to focus (accommodate) is very great and continues that way until about the age of 18. This focusing ability allows healthy eyes to adjust without difficulty from seeing distant objects to seeing near objects.

Around age 18, however, the lens begins to lose its flexibility. By the 40s, difficulties arise in making the adjustment from far to near seeing tasks. This is a natural process of aging. There is no known treatment, diet, or exercise to prevent this. Generally, the first sign of the change noticed is the blurring of near objects, especially when reading or sewing.

This blurring is usually correctable with glasses, which will take the focusing strain off your eyes. After a thorough examination, your optometrist will prescribe your first pair of "reading glasses" or suggest bifocals.

Pineapple Sconce has folk art and antiques

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

The pineapple is the symbol of early American hospitality — and hospitality is what you will find at The Pineapple Sconce, a new shop of folk art and antiques in Old Village.

Ron and Joanne Westerman opened their shop at 494 Mill, corner of Mill and Caster, on March 15. A monochromatic decor of gray and blue-gray provides a pleasant setting for the merchandise — antique pieces, woodcarvings, metal punch art, photographs and crafts.

"We have something to offer someone who has or wants a little touch of country in their home," Joanne Westerman said.

She said she has collected sconces for many years, and pineapples, the symbol of hospitality, have always been a favorite "so I combined them together to create the name of the shop."

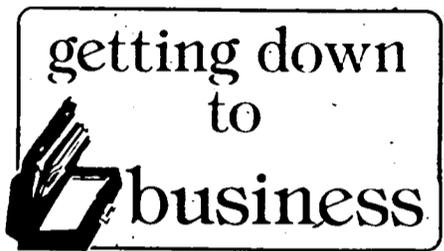

Originally the Westermans opened in Northport, in the Traverse City area, "but they close up completely in the winter months." So she said they decided to move the shop to Plymouth. "I've always like the Old Town area. There are some beautiful homes here, the people are so proud of them and take care of them," she said.

The blue house the Westermans chose to rent for the shop was once the Baptist Parsonage. The front part of the house was built during the Civil War and the back parts added on later.

She said, "We try to display our art and antiques so that you can picture it in your own home."

Westermans get their antiques from different parts of the country. "Some from Kentucky and Tennessee ... I have people up north that I can get antiques from on special order in a few weeks."

The tinware at the shop come from Maine, and the painted wood from Mississippi. Arts and crafts at the shop come from artisans in Canton, Westland, and Plymouth. Woodcarvings by Paul Kitty are also featured.

A small gallery contains the work of Sandra Week and Ron Westerman's wildlife photos of swans and flowers.

She said she was received a warm welcome from the community. "Everyone that has come in has been so nice. The merchant association (of Old Village) sent me flowers. I have never been welcomed to a community with such open warmth and caring."

Canton has bus. week plans

The Canton Chamber of Commerce is seeking nominations for Small Businessperson of the Year. The winner will be honored on May 9, at the annual membership meeting, during Small Business Week.

"We want to reemphasize the importance of jobs that are provided by our local businesses," comments Jack Koers, president of the Canton Chamber. "We know that there are many Canton resident working right here, in that hometown atmosphere."

The national theme for Small Business Week is "Small Business Means Jobs."

"We are inviting the many service organizations as well as the residents to complete an application on their favorite small business person," said Frank A. McMurray of McMurray Insurance, a member of the chamber committee.

"We hope the person who wins will be the one who demonstrates ways to improve the way of life in Canton," he said. For more information, call McMurray at 455-7272, or the chamber office at 453 4040.

Ply. Lumber home show

Plymouth Lumber is announcing their second Do-It-Yourself Home Show on April 13-15. The home show will feature activities for the whole family, as well as numerous do-it-yourself clinics featuring tips, creative advice and how-to hints for home improvement projects. Saturday morning will be highlighted by a building material auction from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Howard Oldford, owner-operator, "Our show is the largest local home show for the dedicated do-it-yourselfer."

The home show will run three days and will have over 40 product displays, most of which will be conducting how-to demonstrations.

State art winners; one national competitor

SALEM HIGH SCHOOL Principal Bill Brown congratulates two of the 'Gold Key' winners from the Michigan Scholastic Art Awards, Julius deChavez, Salem senior, and Juniad Mazhar, Canton senior. Julius' work is on the easel. He had seven pieces of his art at the state exhibit in Detroit and he was awarded a Gold Key and three blue ribbons. His blue ribbon works will go on to the national competition in New York. Junaid won a Gold Key. Other students -- Randy Blaylock, Dave Burrows, and Pat Arella, -- won certificates of merit. Pat's work is left of Brown and Randy's work to the right on the wall. Of the 15,000 pieces entered in the contest, 1,200 were chosen for the exhibit, of those about 50 received Gold Keys and 50 blue ribbons. (Crier photo by Rachael Dolson.)

Steppingstone kids do 'Moby Dick'

A group of students from Steppingstone School for the Potentially Gifted have qualified for the state competition for the Olympics of the Mind.

The sixth grade students took first place in the regional competition at Oakland Community College on Saturday, March 24, in the "Moby Dick" long problem contest.

Kiyo Morse of the school said Moby Dick was the longest, most involved and required the most integration of skills of all the competitions.

First the students had to write an additional chapter to Moby Dick, after reading and studying the book. Then they had to convert their chapter into a play of not more than eight minutes which included 20 to 40 slides projected on the screen and the creation of props such as a wooden chest, a carving of a whale, and painting.

The team received 339 out of 350 points based on the play, costumes, extra props, a paybill, the backdrop, a school sign, and a spontaneous problem.

Coach for the team was Duff Schad, and students were: Jamie Pigtain, Mia McGinty, David Gondoly, Emiko Morse, Fred Rosenthal, Nick Purzer, and Russ Beck.

Other students from Steppingstone who participated did well also. Kolyan Dasgupta received an individual award, the Renatra fusca, for outstanding creativity during the spontaneous problem.

The Camelot II group received a first place award for their school sign.

Loss of coach and seniors, leaves "?" for Rocks

BY JAY KEENAN

Salem's baseball team is going through a period of transition.

A lot of changes have taken place since last year's team ended its season with a loss to West Bloomfield in the Class A state semi-finals.

The Rocks, who won district and regional titles in 1983, lost most of their starters to graduation from a team which finished 19-9 overall.

Also gone is coach Brian Gilles, who resigned after eight years.

Despite the mysteries in many positions, rookie coach John Gravlin is optimistic about his team's chances for a successful season.

"Potentially, it's a very good team," said Gravlin, an assistant to Canton coach Fred Crissey for the past six seasons. "We have some real good hitters and we have outstanding team speed.

"But the question mark is our experience. We really don't know what most of the juniors can do. We have only three returning starters."

Senior pitcher Rick Berberet is one of the returning starters that the Rocks will be counting on. The 6-foot-6 right-hander, who had a strong finish last year, played a big role in Salem's journey to the semi-finals.

The other veteran first-stringers Salem will build around include senior all-league center-fielder Mike Cindrich and junior third baseman Tom Moore.

"I think we'll have some exciting offensive baseball," said Gravlin. "Since our hitters also have some speed, I imagine you'll see some extra base hits. We should be able to bunt and hit-and-run pretty good."

Even though Gravlin is confident that his team's hitting will be strong, the Salem coach said that his pitching staff is very unsettled right now.

"After Berb, we have a lot of arms," the Salem mentor said. "Every single one is a question mark as to who can throw strikes, get people out and be consistent.

"But I think this pitching staff has a lot of potential."

Dan Knapp, a junior left-hander, could be the Rocks' other ace.

"He's going to be a key," said Gravlin. "He can give us a strong staff if he can get people out the way I think he can."

Gravlin will also take a good look at senior right-hander Ken Harmon, who returns after a two-year absence, senior lefty Chris Mowers, and junior righties Mike McKenney and Darryl Brees. Sophomores Brian Tiller and Chris Davis may also see some action on the hill.

In the field, junior Chris Belhart has won the starting job at second base and is a "steady, solid ballplayer," according to Gravlin. Junior Jim Hobbs is in reserve.

But with the exception of Belhart at second, Cindrich in center and Moore at third, many of the positions in the field are still wide open.

Four players are currently trying to inherit the catching spot which was left vacated by the graduated Dave Slavin, who made first team all-state in '83.

"The catcher might be the most important position," said Gravlin. "You have a big hole to fill when you're trying to replace a first-team all-stater."

First base is being contested by Mowers, Brees, and junior Tim Robinson. Walsh and Berberet—when he's not pitching—are also in contention.

At shortstop, Harmon, juniors Dom DeBello and Doug Kirkpatrick along with sophomore Paul Makara are vying for a starting spot.

DeBello and Brees will back-up Moore at third.

In the outfield, senior Darrin Blue and junior Jason Scott are battling for left field, while McKenney and Tiller are competing for right. Anderson and Robinson can also play the outfield. In center, junior Jim Lynch will back-up Cindrich.

"I think if our pitching, defense and question marks come through for us—boy, we're going to be tough," said Gravlin. "The team and coaching staff are looking forward to a good season.

Salem, which won the Lakes Division side of the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) last year, is going to have a tough act to follow this season.

"The Western Lakes is probably the best league in the state," said Gravlin. "The league is loaded with good pitchers."

Assisting Gravlin this year will be Gary Temple and pitching instructor Scott Dawson, a former ace pitcher for Canton and the University of Michigan.

Salem will open the 1984 campaign Saturday at home with a pair of games against Redford Thurston. The first contest will get started at noon.

Rock powerhouse soccer might not win title

BY JAY KEENAN

Powerhouse teams don't always guarantee league championships. Especially when they're in a conference as tough as the Salem girls' soccer team is.

The Rocks, who appear to have a stronger team than last years 12-6-1 squad, will have to compete with state champ Livonia Stevenson, Livonia Bentley, Livonia Churchill and a couple of other fine teams for the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA) title this spring.

"We're going to be a good team, I think," said Salem coach Ken Johnson. "But we're going to have some very tough competition with Stevenson, Bentley and Churchill. We're in one of the toughest leagues in the state. I also heard that Canton's tough, too. It's going to be a good dogfight this year."

Despite all the warfare in the WLAA, Johnson has plenty of reason for optimism.

"They're young, they have good spirit and they're ready to go," said Johnson enthusiastically. "Every position is covered and the leadership is there, too."

Salem, however, will have to do without one of their top returnees for an indefinite period of time.

Senior forward Shelly Staszal, an all-stater last season, suffered a knee injury which required surgery in the middle of the volleyball season. She will miss at least the first several games of the season.

"She's determined to play right now," said Johnson. "But I know how it is with these things. They can take time. Hopefully, we'll get her back soon."

In 1983, Staszal led the Rocks in scoring with 23 goals, and tallied 17 points during her sophomore season.

Johnson, though, still has a plenty outstanding players to work with.

One such player is sophomore forward Julie Tortora, who raised a lot of eyebrows last year by scoring 22 goals as a freshman.

Also back is senior all-state goalie Sarah Wallman, now in her third season. She will be complemented nicely on defense by senior fullback Colleen O'Connor, who has a shot at making the all-state team this year according to the Salem coach.

"We're hoping to have a good defensive team again," said Johnson. "And then hopefully, we can play our game with a good counter-attack and good ball-control again."

SHELLY STAZEL, an all-stater last year, may be the key to the Rock's fortunes this season if she can return from knee surgery. (Crier file photo.)

Helping O'Connor out at the fullback position is senior Robin Brandt and junior Ruth Knoerl. Freshman Niki Strojeba may also get plenty of action.

At midfield, Johnson plans to use veteran all-purpose senior Kathy Prochazka at center. The Salem coach also thinks highly of junior midfielders Suzie Balconi and Fran Whittaker, who both switched over from the track team.

Probable starters at forward include sophomore Kristen O'Connor and freshman Chris Casler, who will fill in for Staszal. Dani Morin, who saw action up front last year, will also see some playing time, said Johnson.

Other members of the 25-person roster include forwards Kris Johnson, Pam Mayer and Sandy French; midfielders Cheryl Truskowski, Susie Decker, Traci Greenhalge (also goalie), Michelle Cygan and Kris Kolka; defenders Laura Kaczor, Jill Sturdy, Laura Sturdy and Traci Hall.

"I'm hoping for the best," said Johnson. "If we don't dwell on Staszal's loss, we should be alright."

The Rocks will open their season Monday at home against North Farmington. Game time will be at 4 p.m.

Chiefs look strong as ever with 10 returnees

BY TIM McKERCHER

The Canton baseball program has always been a bright spot in the CEP athletic program. Fred Crissey has been molding high school ball players into teams that have consistently gone into state finals.

This spring will most likely bring more success to the Chiefs' baseball diamond.

Canton has ten kids returning from a team that went 17-7 last year and won their division and league. Last year, Mark Kinsel was ill most of the season and Jeff Wittner was injured for most of the season. Those two will both be back in good health this spring.

Behind the plate this season will be the same two players who caught last year, Tim Collins and Jeff Olson. Olson was an All-league designated hitter last season.

Pitching will be a strong point for the Chiefs this year, there are three returning hurlers taking the mound for Canton. Mark Bennett who was All-league last year, senior Scott Ford and junior Bucky Blake. This trio won 11 games last year.

Bennett will be playing first base when he's not pitching, Kinsel and senior John Longridge will be the duo up the middle, Kinsel at second and Longridge at shortstop. Wittner will be the Chiefs' third baseman.

The outfield is looking real strong this season, senior Dan Martin, who missed 15 games last season with torn ligaments will be playing left field. Sean Coulet will hold down center and Jim Dillon will be the Chiefs right fielder.

"You have to like the idea of starting from 60 feet and 6 inches from either direction, so our pitching and catching are our real strength," said Crissey. "We're blessed with three kids who can throw the ball and throw strikes and we've got Collins and Olson."

Crissey is a strong believer in pitching and defense. "Last year we had four kids hit over .300, I don't think that means much, those kind of things come and go. We graduated a lot of power, this year's team is going to be a hit, run and steal and create situations type ball team," Crissey said.

The Chiefs will have to develop some depth in this year's team. Pete Morman will be platooning at first base and DH'ing on the right side against left handed pitching. Duane Bennett will be backing up Wittner at third and Collins and Olson behind the plate. Mike Clark, a transfer from Catholic Central will be pitching and playing shortstop.

In the outfield, Crissey has two juniors that he thinks will develop into fine players, David Knapp and Jeff Rummel. "Those two will be good players. You've got to go to the bench, we've got a number of double headers and you need bench strength," Crissey added.

The other challenge that the Chiefs will face is, "To see if the chemistry fits," Crissey said.

Canton is in a very tough league, Walled Lake Western, Northville and Churchill are the tough teams in Canton's division. "There isn't a weak sister in our division," Crissey said.

Canton opens their season a week from today at Walled Lake Central and plays their first home game against Northville.

New coach and players give Canton soccer a fresh look

BY TIM McKERCHER

The Canton girls' soccer team has a fresh look this season. The Chiefs have a new coach, Mike Morgan, along with a crew of new underclassmen.

Morgan's carrying a team of 25 players this year. Kim Reeves, Lori Engel, Nancy Gray and Margie Wangbichler are the four seniors who will be the nucleus of the squad. There's also a core of juniors, Lisa Goff, Kelly Lowers, Pat Phillips, Lisa Russel and Alice Shobe. There are also a ton of sophomores, Kandra Whitely, Beth Frigge, Jenny Thomas, Ronda Rice, Carol Kleinsmith, Kellie Beveridge, Lisa Jackson, Diana Knickerbocker, Marjorie McClennen, Gael Tang, and Alane Gisler.

Five freshmen have earned themselves a spot on the team, Kellie Daily, Kathy Malley, Cheryl Neppa, Laura Rudin and Lynn Packard.

"The team is very fit, they're in good condition and considering the kind of schedule we play, three games a week, that's very important," said Morgan.

Morgan expects the offense to be controlled by Reeves, Engel, Whitely, Frigge and Russel. Phillips and Kleinsmith will be sharing time in the net this year for Canton. Thomas and Gray will be starting at midfield, and Wangbichler and Goff will be anchoring the defense.

"They have a lot of good soccer skills," said Morgan, "A lot of these girls have grown up with this sport, they've played seven or eight years or longer."

"I stress a defensive game, defense is a skill that a lot of people tend to let slide. If we can keep other teams from scoring, we'll do pretty well," he said.

Morgan has been coaching in the Bonanza soccer league for the last three years. This has given him the opportunity to scout some of the other individual players in the league. Morgan expects tough competition from Bentley, Stevenson, Salem and Churchill.

"We're in a tough league but I think we have the experience to match the other teams. We'll do pretty well," he said.

Canton starts their season April 9th against Franklin.

PCA baseball battles inexperience of players and coach this season

First year coach Randy Hadley is cautiously optimistic about the upcoming season for his neophyte PCA baseball team.

"The team will be relatively inexperienced, we only have four or five guys with much experience, the rest are new," Hadley said. "We will have to rely on the guys who've done it before for the team."

Last year's team had a losing record, according to Hadley, "They only won about seven games," he said. But he thinks that can be turned around this year.

The Eagles will count on senior David Groan, a second baseman, junior Rob Cannon, centerfielder, sophomore David Cadaret, catcher and sophomore Rod Windle, shortstop to lead the team.

Hadley said he doesn't really know what to expect of the others yet, because of their inexperience and his own to the team.

The baseball team takes on Oakland Christian, away, on April 6 for their first game. The Eagles will play their home games at Griffin Park.

Junior football teams to hold registration

The Plymouth Canton Junior Football League (PCJFL) Lions and Western Suburban Junior Football League Steelers will hold their registration soon.

The Lions will hold registration on the 7th at McDonald's Restaurant at 44900 Ford Rd. in Canton from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. And April 14 from 10 a.m. to noon at Salem High School in the second floor lobby.

Players and cheerleaders ages 9-13 as of Sept. 1, 1984 are eligible for the Lions.

The player fee is $40, and cheerleaders pay $25, the family plan is $100.

The Steelers will be registering on April 7 for veterans only and on May 12 and 19 for anyone. All registration will be held in the lobby of Phase III from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Fees are $40 for players, $25 for cheerleaders and $100 for the family plan.

For more information on the Steelers call Janet Bryant at 459-0299 or Tammy Brand at 459-6347.

New faces and old are expected to help the Plymouth Christian Academy softball team to a strong season this year.

Seven new players, freshman and sophomores, dot the roster of this year's edition of the team. Last year, in the Eagle's first full varsity season, the team had a 5-10 record.

Coach Jan Brandel has lost three girls from that team, including the best pitcher.

"We lost our only strong pitcher from last year, but we're not hurting now," Brandel said. "Some of the girls have picked it up really quick and we're not going to be hurt by it."

Brandel cites junior Lauri Felker as her most improved player. Felker, a pitcher, is "very coachable, works hard and is a key player," according to Brandel.

Two other players Brandel and her assistant coach, and husband, Mark Brandel, think will contribute heavily to the Eagle's fortunes are Debbie VanHoose and Kelly Pike.

VanHoose is a junior shortstop and Pike is a senior first baseman, both are veteran players for PCA.

PCA plays in the MIAC and Brandel thinks the team should do well.

"We really hope to improve over last year. We're capable of moving up in the league. This should be a good team," Brandel said.

The Eagles play their first game at Oakland Christian on April 6. The team plays its home games at Cherry Hill and Sheldon.

PCJBL will hold late registration

Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League will hold a late registration for boys and girls age 7-18 who did not register on the regular dates in March.

Late registration is 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. on April 11 at Canton High School Cafeteria. There will be a $5 late fee in addition to the regular fee.

Umpires are needed. This paid position is for boys and girls 15 and over. Registration takes place same time as player sign-up. Managers are also needed. Call Chris Mroczka at 455-5253 for more information.

Sandy Koufax baseball team to have try-outs

Boys age 13 or 14 who would like to try-out for a Sandy Koufax baseball team should call Bernie Jackson at 455-5698 or call Ron Martinez at 728-0053.
