MacDonald, Greenstein vie for 35th judgeship

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

As expected John E. MacDonald and Robert Greenstein were the top two votegetters in the race for 35th District Court Judge and will face each other in the November general election.

Unofficial totals gathered by The Crier, which in some cases did include absentee votes, show Northville Township Supervisor MacDonald with twice the votes (3,172) of Greenstein (1,579) and with Jacqueline George running a strong third (1,226). Other candidate tallies were Bruce Patterson (846), Steve Foley (400), and Allan Davis (244).

MacDonald - with strong showings in Northville Township, City of Northville, City of Plymouth and Plymouth Township - said he was "really pleased" with the race results.

"I was optimistic that I would come in first, I did, and I'm pleased. I was relatively unknown in most of the district until the race, I'm pleased with the my showing," MacDonald said.

He said he was pleased with his broad-based support throughout the district and now "it's on to November."

Second man Greenstein, however, was claiming his own victory of sorts Tuesday night. "John MacDonald has been campaigning for this job for two years, he's shaken every hand, knocked on every door ... I believe he got every positive vote out he has today," Greenstein said.

"I feel very strongly that if he was not able to beat me by four or five times my total, that the race is ours in November," Greenstein said.

A former Canton police chief, Canton township trustee, and Canton supervisor - Greenstein beat MacDonald by more than 200 votes in Canton Township.

"The Canton vote was really split in this race. With four of the candidates from Canton, plus the endorsements split the Canton vote farther ... if you add the totals of the Canton candidates you'll see MacDonald is in big trouble," Greenstein said.

George, also from Northville and the only woman candidate in the field, ran second in Northville Township, City of Northville, and third in the other three communities.

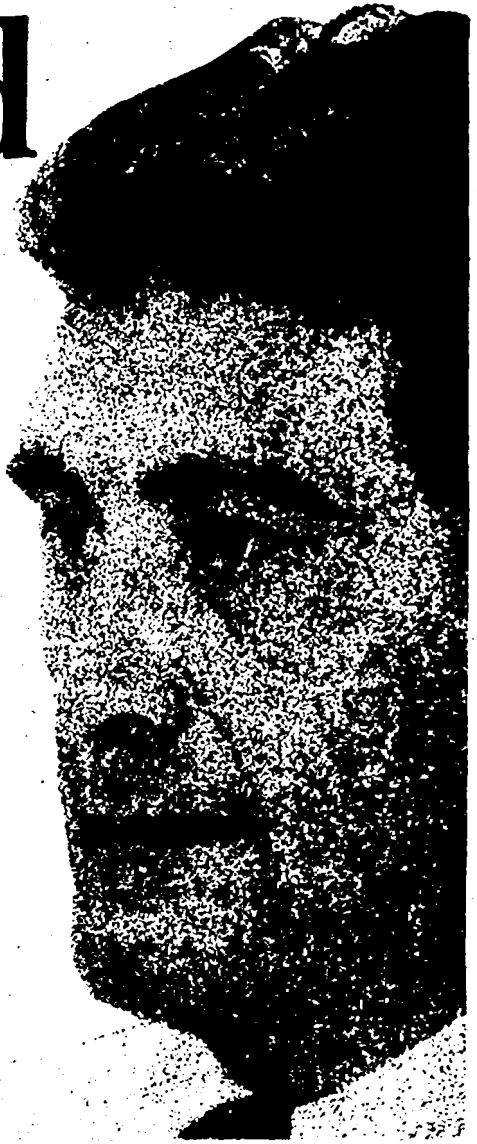

"I'm not surprized at Jackie's showing," MacDonald said. "Jackie's appeal as an attorney and as a woman spread across political lines."

Unofficial vote totals in the five communities which make up the 35th district were:

'Old Guard' Brooks upsets Lynch for treasurer

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Plymouth Township Deputy Treasurer Mary Brooks will step into the treasurer's office following her unofficial victory in the Republican primary over trustee Barbara Lynch and accountant Raymond Maycock.

The race between Brooks and Lynch was fairly close, although Brooks carried all but three Plymouth Township precincts, according to The Crier's unofficial results. Maycock ran a distant third in most precincts.

Crier tallies had Brooks first with 1,147, Lynch second with 1,038 votes and Maycock third with 372 votes.

Brooks said she thought the race would be close but said she had confidence from early in her campaign that she would win.

"When I started out the campaign, I knew I was going to win. I really did," Brooks said. "But it's still a bit of a shock."

Brooks said earlier in the campaign current Plymouth Township Treasurer Joe West urged her to run for the office he is vacating. Brooks said her supporters and family deserve much of the credit for her win.

"I attribute my victory to all the people who knew me and believed me," she said. "My husband and my daughter encouraged me to run and I had a lot of nice people support me."

Brooks has been deputy treasurer for 10 years and campaigned saying she would continue the policies of current treasurer Joe West if elected.

Lynch gave up the seat she has held since 1978 on the township board of trustees to run for the treasurer's seat.

She was not available for comment Tuesday night.

Maycock is a longtime township resident and certified public accountant who specializes in non-profit corporation accounting.

It's Kosteva vs. Gramlich

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Democratic candidate James A. Kosteva blew his opponents away in his run for the primary nomination for the 37th District House of Representative seat. Kosteva lead his challengers by margins of over two to one and four to one in his run for the state office.

District totals for the three candidates placed Kosteva out in front with a total of 1,898 votes. Patricia Cullin, a former Van Buren Township supervisor, trustee and clerk received 810 votes. John Sheridan, the third candidate in the race, received 401 votes.

Although unofficial results were still incomplete by early Wednesday morning, voter precinct results indicated Republican Georgia Gramlich had the edge in the 37th District Representative race over her opponent Theodore Jacques.

Gramlich carried Van Buren Township and Canton in her race for the Republican nomination. She is a Belleville resident. Jacques won voter favor in Romulus, his hometown, and in Wayne. Results from the city of Belleville were not available by press time.

Gramlich received a total of 782 votes in the four communities where results were unofficially filed. She received 357 in Van Buren, 111 in Romulus, 146 in Canton and 168 in Wayne.

Jacques received a total of 664 votes in the same four communities. He collected 160 votes in Van Buren, 166 in Romulus, 115 in Canton, and 223 in Wayne.

Kosteva, who won the Democratic nomination by wide margins in virtually every community in the 37th District expressed cautious optimism early on in the evening. As precinct totals continued to fall in his favor, Kosteva gave the green light to his campaign run.

"I'm really pleased (with the results)," Kosteva said. "The only thing I'm disappointed in is the very light voter turnout. I feel good about the victory but feel it would have been more fulfilling if I

Confidential school list used in judicial campaign

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

A mailing list used by 35th district judge candidate Bruce Patterson should not have been released by Special Education Director Dr. Edwin Page, school officials said this week.

Superintendent Dr. John Hoben said Page's release of school mailing labels of special education student addresses to Patterson "wasn't condoned by the schools."

Patterson used the list to send a campaign letter to parents of special education students telling them he was endorsed by Page and that he shared their concerns about the rights of handicapped persons.

The letters and mailing were paid for by Patterson's campaign committee.

Hoben said he regreted that the list had been released. "It's poor judgment on his (Page's) part. We'll have to take appropriate action." Page is out of town until Thursday and could not be reached by The Crier for comment.

Patterson said: "I don't believe it was a breach of anything." He said he mailed "a couple hundred of the letters" and said he considered the mailing list to be of "Dr. Page's friends."

Patterson said he did not know Page prior to the campaign and met him through their wives, who work together.

"I met Dr. Page and talked with him, we seemed to get along well. He told me he would support my candidacy," Patterson said.

"I asked him if he had any friends I could communicate with. The list wasn't offered to me as such (as a confidential list of special education parents). It was offered to me as 'Dr. Page's friends', same as if I had asked you for 'Crier friends'."

Patterson said he did not think it was odd that Page's friends were in the form of a computerized mailing list. "I've got a home computer, a lot of people do.

"I feel bad if anyone feels put upon. I apologize to any parents who are upset ... not that I believe anything done was wrong," Patterson said.

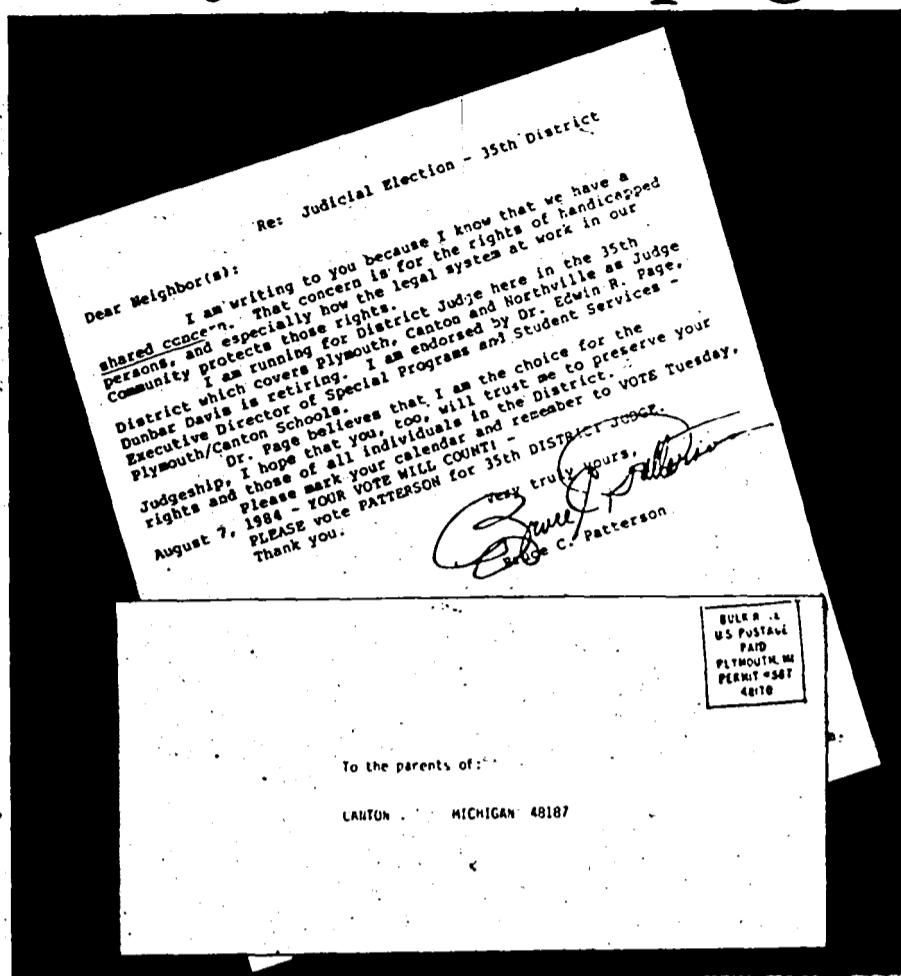

He said other candidates, Robert Greenstein in particular, were attempting to stir up a "furor" over the mailing list.

Patterson said he received two calls from special education parents upset over the release of their child's name and address. "In both cases by the end of the conversation they weren't offended. They even said they would support me.

"Nothing was released to me except directory information - name and address. There wasn't any information imparted other than that, nothing released about the individual student. I don't have information about what their handicap was," Patterson said.

The letter to special education parents said, "I am writing to you because I know that we have a shared concern. That concern is for the rights of handicapped persons, and especially how the legal system at work in our community protects those rights.

"Dr. Page believes that I am the choice for the judgeship, I hope that you, too, will trust me to preserve your rights and those of all individuals in the district," the letter said.

Fall Festival fires up!!!

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

The Fall Festival Board of Directors and the City of Plymouth have got the Fall Festival ball rolling, says board chair Grace Light.

"Actually we doing quite well. We're moving ahead of schedule and I think it's going to be a very successful year," Light said. The annual Fall Festival is scheduled for September 6-9 in downtown Plymouth.

This year's booths and their order along city streets has been worked out as has the entertainment schedule and the festival's main meals.

Light says she is particularly pleased with the lowered costs of dinners which will be offered by local service groups each night.

"The groups have made it more affordable for families to come and eat at the Fall Fest," she said. Some of the main meals have been reduced from $3.50 to $3.

Entertainment lined up for the weekend includes everything from a belly dancer to a 17-piece big band to an Elvis Presley impersonator, Light said.

The kiddie rides will be back this year along with the fireman's ball competition and much more, Light said. This year's window display theme is a turn of the century era theme called "On A Sunday Afternoon."

In fact, plans for this year's Fall Festival are running so smooth, Light said she called last year's chair to find out if anything had been forgotten this year.

"She told me I hadn't forgotten anything," Light said.

Light said the ability of the 17-member Fall Festival Board of Directors to work among themselves and with the city is the key to this year's organizing success.

"The co-operation on the part of the board of directors has been outstanding and the co-operation between the board and the city manager's office has been excellent," she said.

The Fall Festival Board is a non-profit group of volunteers.

'Hybrid' PSO pushed by City

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

The Plymouth City Commission will vote on a plan to combine police and fire departments into a public safety organization (PSO) at their August 20 regular meeting, City Manager Henry Graper said.

If approved by the commission, Graper said, the city would begin implementing the plan immediately. Graper also said no layoffs would result from a PSO, though he revealed only sketchy details of the plan which the city has known of for some months.

"We need every man we have to implement this program," Graper said.

He called the proposal a "hybrid" that would result in "better use" of the city's police, fire and public works departments. Plymouth police officers and firefighters would be cross-trained, Graper said, with police officers learning firefighting skills and firefighters learning police skills. It is believed public works employees would be trained to answer fire emergencies on top of their current job requirements.

"The firefighters are going to be the most expensive to train," Graper said.

He said he didn't expect the city's police or firefighters unions would have any objections to the plan. Officer Mike Gardner, head of the Plymouth police union said earlier the union was not opposed to a PSO as a concept but would wait to see the specific plan before commenting.

Graper said the plan was worked out among Police Chief Ralph White, Acting Fire Chief Al Matthews and former fire chief Roy Hall. Hall, who retired as fire chief last year, is a paid consultant, Graper said.

"We used Roy Hall as a focal point during this whole thing and he may make the presentation of the plan to the city commission," Graper said.

PSO has been studied for the last two years and its implementation shouldn't surprise anyone, Graper said.

"We have tried for the last year to keep everyone informed about and aware of what's going on," Graper said.

He said the city's proposal would be similar to a PSO program adopted in Oak Ridge, TN. A single public safety director oversees PSO there. Oak Ridge also uses fire technicians, often recruited from other city departments to respond to fires. Fire technicians in Oak Ridge have less responsibility than full-time firefighters but are paid to respond to emergencies.

It is not clear what affect PSO will have on the city's contract to provide police services in Plymouth Township. Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen was not available for comment Monday.

Breen said earlier that while PSO is not a personal favorite, he would wait to see the plan before the city commission before commenting. He said he would oppose PSO if it reduced the effectiveness of police protection in Plymouth Township.

Plymouth Township pays the city $467,000 annually for police services.

Bob Degen, president of the Plymouth Firefighters Union said he was disappointed that the city hadn't approached the union with more details about the PSO plan.

He said the city had brought up the possibility that fireman will be cross-trained and the union discussed cross-training at a recent meeting.

"We decided we'd negotiate the possibility of cross-training," Degen said. "That's the only specific proposal they've given us."

Will townships adopt County's 'son' by Aug. 15?

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Time has a way of influencing all decisions - and it may be time alone which finally forces The Plymouth-Canton Community to make a final stand in its Supersewer saga.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has asked 17 communities which could participate in the downsized Supersewer system to make a final decision on their involvement by Aug. 15. The decisions will cap nearly two years of recent controversy over the wastewater treatment project - but may also generate new controversy and questions about the system.

The City of Plymouth and Canton and Plymouth townships were told by the DNR in 1983 they were to participate in "Son of Supersewer" or the downsized North Huron Valley-Rouge Valley Wastewater Control System rather than the original Supersewer system. The North Huron Valley System is actually one half of a split made in the original Supersewer treatment system.

Although the City of Plymouth has already approved the sewer contract, contingent upon changes made by the city attorney, neither Plymouth nor Canton township have made a decision to join the system.

In a special planning commission meeting held last Monday evening, Canton Finance Director Mike Gorman told planning commissioners and board members in Canton a "yes" vote on the North Huron Valley contract would specifically mean for that community:

- Additional sewer capacity (60 cubic feet per second) needed for future growth.
- A minimum cost of $9.5 million and an unknown maximum cost.

- 75 per cent federal funding.
- Gorman said a "no" vote would mean:
- An immediate sewer ban would be placed on the community by the DNR.
- An alternative solution to Canton's current sewer flooding problems would have to be sought.
- The township would only receive 55 per cent federal funding, if that much, for alternative solutions.
- Canton would not have the sewer capacity to handle future growth.
- Canton faces potential lawsuits from other communities and developers in the township.

Gorman stressed, however, that a "yes" vote on the contract would not resolve many questions Canton has about the 23-year-old project. Plymouth Township also shares similar concerns.

Gorman said Plymouth and Canton townships have never been assured that Detroit, where the North Huron Valley communities will send their waste, has the sewer capacity to handle increased flows. He said it is unclear whether the Detroit system, as it is currently designed, will meet federal Environmental Protection Agency regulations; if it does not, additional treatment costs and construction may be necessary.

Additionally, Gorman said at least some local money invested in the original Supersewer system should be returned to those communities which are no longer a part of that system. Plymouth and Canton townships entered into a lawsuit against the city of Detroit, Wayne County and the DNR in 1983 to obtain some of these original monies back but Gorman said if the new contract is signed, most of the lawsuit will be dropped.

Gorman said Plymouth and Canton townships have no way of knowing how much the new system will cost them or how long it will take before they are actually hooked up to its interceptors.

Plymouth Township attorney Brian James recommended Plymouth Township board members hold off signing the North Huron Valley agreement for these reasons.

James and Township Supervisor Maurice Breen questioned Detroit's ability to handle flows and called costs in the project "open-ended." Breen and James also questioned whether the Detroit system would meet federal regulations.

Canton Supervisor James Poole said either decision which the communities make about participating in the system will be bad. "If we join the system it may double or triple our sewer rates but if we don't the DNR will place an immediate sewer ban on us," Poole said. "We will be faced with a momentous decision at the next board meeting."

Neither Poole nor Breen have been satisfied with the contract language or conversations they have held with the DNR and Wayne County since negotiations for the downsized project started in 1983. Poole said the entire project has been structured on political decisions made by the state and the city of Detroit.

35th hands cash back

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Plymouth Township got some good news - in the form of a check - from the 35th District Court.

Judge James Garber made the presentation to the Plymouth Township board of Trustees of a check worth $12,397 representing the township's share of the return from start-up costs and subsidies for the court.

Garber said after three years of subsidies from communities in the 35th District, the court is self-supporting.

"The court made some very serious commitments to, not only this group, but others," Garber told the trustees. "We think we've lived up to those commitments."

Garber said the court's consolidation and computerization have made it "fiscally sound."

"We've been paying off our debt retirement and we've been paying off our long term loans," Garber said.

Garber said Plymouth Township's current balance with the court is $4,300.

Garber also attended the July 24 Canton Township Board meeting and presented Canton board members with a check for $27,000. Garber said the 35th District Court owes the community an additional $78,200 in revenues.

"The consolidation of the court five years ago has resulted in fiscal integrity," Garber told board members. "We're now there and it is very probable that we will ever come back to this board to ask for money again. The only time I'll be back is with a check for you."

Garber said he hoped to return $150,000 to Canton by next April.

Fourth I-275 bike assault reported to police Friday

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

A 25-year-old Westland woman was assaulted on the I-275 bike path in Canton Township late Friday afternoon, Canton Police said. The attack is the fourth to occur on the bike path in Canton in two months.

Sergeant Alex Wilson of the Canton Police said the victim was attacked on her bike at approximately 3:30 p.m. The subject was described as a white male in his early 20's with light brown wavy, fuzzy hair, brown eyes and wire-rim glasses. Wilson said the subject does not match the description given of the attacker in the other three cases, but said this most recent attack could be a copycat type crime. "It also could be totally unrelated, however," Wilson added.

Wilson said the victim reported she was riding her bike south near Warren Road when she was attacked. According to police reports, the subject ran her off the bike path. The subject was riding a blue or red 10-speed and wore a Detroit Lions jersey and gray sweat pants.

The subject jumped on top of the victim when she fell from the bike, Wilson said, but she was able to talk him out of sexual perpetration by telling him she would not report the incident. The subject released the victim and fled north along the bike path, reports said.

Canton Police have a possible suspect in the case, Wilson said.

Three other attacks have also taken place on the bike path since June, according to police reports. In all three cases, the subject has been described as a white male, about 5'8" with short brown hair, no facial hair and in his mid-30's. Wilson said anyone with information on either suspect should call the Canton Police Department.

Police arrest 3 in coke bust

Three people were arraigned Monday afternoon in 35th District Court on charges of possession of cocaine after their arrest early Monday by Plymouth police in the Red Roof Inn parking lot.

Police say they found a substance later identified as cocaine in the car of one of those arrested after being summoned to the lot by a Red Roof security guard at 2:58 a.m. Monday.

"The officers received a call from a security guard at the Red Roof who said he saw a white male tampering with a car in one of the parking lots," said Plymouth

Police Detective Lt. Henry Berghoff. Arrested were: Ronald Keith Duty, 29, of Wayne; Gary Lee Faust, 25, of Westland; and Dena Marie Christman, 20, of Northville.

All three face charges of possession of cocaine. An informational hearing for Christman and Faust was scheduled for August 16 in 35th District Court, Berghoff said. Duty was assigned to a diversionary program, Berghoff said.

A bag of pills police found in one of the suspect's car was analyzed as caffeine, Berghoff said. Police also found $1,977 in one of the cars.

She'll race Brown in November

Bodenmiller wins Dem. Canton treasurer race

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

"It's always a surprise when you win." But Canton Trustee Carol Bodenmiller also admitted it was a pleasant surprise when she learned she had carried the Democratic nomination for the office of Canton Treasurer in last night's primary election.

Bodenmiller, who is presently serving her sixth year as a trustee, beat her opponent Mable Chastain by nearly a two-to-one margin in the Democratic primary. Bodenmiller pulled in support from 814 voters while Chastain received a 'yes' nod from only 392.

"I learned there is never a way of knowing for sure what's going to happen demanding, it is becoming routine and I like township work."

Bodenmiller said she plans to become more visible in her campaign for the general election. She will face Republican Gerald Brown in the November race for office. Brown received 933 Republican votes yesterday.

"I like to be in the township day to day in politics," Bodenmiller said. "Just about the time you think you know what's going to happen, the opposite thing happens."

Bodenmiller said she hoped her nomination was a reflection of how hard she had worked in the campaign. "I look at the issues, study them and come to decisions which are independent. Although the job I have now is and no matter who is supervisor, I'll get along," Bodenmiller said. "Treasurer's are not just treasurers today. Their duties are so broad because they're dealing with local, state and federal officials. You have to deal with the rules and regulations of each."

Chastain carried two precincts in Canton. She received three votes to Bodenmiller's one in the 20th precinct and eight votes to Bodenmiller's six in the 22nd precinct.

Although Bodenmiller carried most of Canton's remaining 22 precincts with margins of eight to 44 votes, she beat Chastain by only one vote in the second, sixth and 11th precincts.

had heard from more people."

Kosteva received 496 votes in Van Buren, 464 in Romulus, 273 in Canton, 58 in Belleville and 309 in Wayne. Cullin received 315 votes in Van Buren, 159 in Romulus, 54 in Canton, 48 in Belleville and 171 in Wayne. Sheridan received 88 votes in Van Buren, 214 in Romulus, 17 in Canton, 4 in Belleville and 46 in Wayne.

Kosteva ran for the same seat two years ago but lost the primary vote to incumbent Representative Edward Mahalak. Kosteva said he learned from the election and his voter potential carried over into yesterday's primary run.

Kosteva felt his campaign emphasis on education and tax reform was a boom to his successful primary run.

Dumas withstands challenge

Unofficial results from yesterday's Republican primary show incumbent 10th District County Commissioner Mary Dumas will face Democratic opponent Laura Toy in November.

Dumas carried Livonia, the largest chunk of the 10th District which also includes Plymouth and Plymouth Township. Her opponents were Livonia City Treasurer Elaine Tuttle and Hugh Patrick O'Neill.

Dumas was the biggest vote-getter in Plymouth Township with 919 votes. Tuttle had 331 and O'Neill had 120, according to the unofficial tallies.

In Livonia, Dumas got 3,348 votes, Tuttle 2,960 and O'Neill 1,170.

Dumas has served six terms on the board and said the Republican primary was a hard fought contest.

"It was difficult, but I'm pleased it came out the way it did," Dumas said.

Second U.S. Rep. Dem. too close to call

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

The Democratic primary race in the Second Congressional District was still too close to call as of 2 a.m. this morning, with both candidates Don Grimes and Mike McCauley predicting victory.

The winner in the Democratic primary will face Republican incumbent Carl Pursell in November.

Unofficial vote totals of all of the district except Northville City, Northville Township, and some smaller towns in the western part of the district put hometown man McCauley ahead with 4,100 to Arborite Grimes' 3,698.

Varying results were reported for the Hillsdale County area which could put the two as close as 50 votes apart.

Grimes said he needed the results of the outstanding cities and the Northvilles before unofficially claiming a victory. "I'm about 150 ahead at this point. I expect a light voter turnout in Hillsdale and to break even (with McCauley) and I expect to lose a few in Northville. I think I'll still take it.

"It's a close race. The voter turnout is low all over ... Ann Arbor was a big disappointment for me, I had projected that at least twice as many voters would turnout (than actually did)," he said. Grimes, a research economist at U of M, took Ann Arbor by at least a two to one margin, according to the unofficial vote totals.

Scott Adler, treasurer for McCauley's campaign, said, "We expect to win."

"We were pretty down about an hour ago," Adler said at 1 a.m., "We were down by 500 to 600 votes, but then Jackson City, out-county Jackson and Livonia came in and it's incredible. We expect to win."

Adler said a high (compared to other areas) voter turnout of 1400 Democrats in Livonia was a pleasant surprise. "We really picked up some ground in Livonia.

"Things went exactly as we thought," Adler said. Earlier in the evening McCauley said the Ann Arbor vote went exactly as he thought. "We figured on getting beat two to one or three to one, because of the endorsements, that he's the hometown boy and the cliquishness of Ann Arbor," McCauley said.

"Unless the small towns are a big surprise, we going to win.

"It's been kinda like a football game all night, it's a good thing I'm a coach. We were down by 600 or so, now we are up by 400.

"If we do win, it's the little things that won it for us. Going to towns like Montgomery. We went to every house in Montgomery ... driving to Hillsdale County an hour and a half. I've been down there 13 or 14 times and Grimes only a couple. We had a debate over there last week and I did well," McCauley said.

Adler said with 35 or 38 precincts reporting in Hillsdale County, McCauley had 447 to Grimes' 86.

McCauley said he would have liked to have done better in Jackson, both other than that he was pleased with the race. "We just plain worked harder - even in Ann Arbor, we had 20 people at the polls to his three or four," McCauley said.

Hulsing rides to easy clerk victory

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Incumbent Plymouth Township Clerk Esther Hulsing was re-elected to her third term by a wide margin Tuesday.

Unofficial results tabulated by The Crier showed Hulsing got 1,791 votes while challenger Alice Fisher got 424.

Hulsing, who has been clerk for six years, said late Tuesday she was pleased with the results.

"The results were very pleasing," Hulsing said. "I did do some campaigning but not a great deal."

Hulsing was a long-time member of the Plymouth-Canton School Board and Fisher is a former school teacher running her first Plymouth Township political race.

Twp. trustees: Horton, Munfakh, Irvine & Pruner

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT
 Newcomers Abe Munfakh and James Irvine will join incumbents Smith Horton and Andrew Pruner on the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees, according to unofficial results from Tuesday's Republican primary.

The Crier's unofficial tallies showed Horton as the overwhelming top vote-getter in the nine-person race with 1,463 votes, followed by Munfakh with 1,067, Irvine with 954 and Pruner with 873.

Since no Democrats were seeking election to the board, the Republican primary decided the four seats on the board.

Horton had the most votes in 12 of the 15 Plymouth Township precincts. Irvine topped two precincts while Munfakh was most popular in another.

Rounding out the race, according to Crier figures, was Dennis Campbell in fifth place with 802 votes, followed by Patrick O'Hara with 727 votes, Kerry Piercy with 717 votes, Al Calille with 699 votes and Roger Kehrier with 323 votes.

Horton who was appointed to the board in 1982, said he worked hard along with his wife Jeanne, to get re-elected.

"It was probably the hardest thing I've ever done," Horton said. "It was a lot of planning and hard work."

"We did a lot of door-to-door work and shook many of hands. It was classical type campaigning."

Horton, a transportation specialist with the Ford Motor Company, said he visited every subdivision in the township during the campaign.

Munfakh said he owed much of his campaign success to the support he had in his home subdivision of Trailwood. He was top vote-getter in his home precinct, the 13th, and he said he and his wife covered nearly every subdivision in the township.

"I'd like to thank all the people who worked on my campaign and of course the people who voted for me," he said. "I think I can live up to what the position requires." Munfakh was appointed to the township planning commission three years ago.

Irvine, an attorney with the Ford Motor Company and campaign manager for successful treasurer candidate Mary Brooks, said he had hoped for a fourth place finish.

"I know now how Luke Skywalker feels at the end of his movie," Irvine joked.

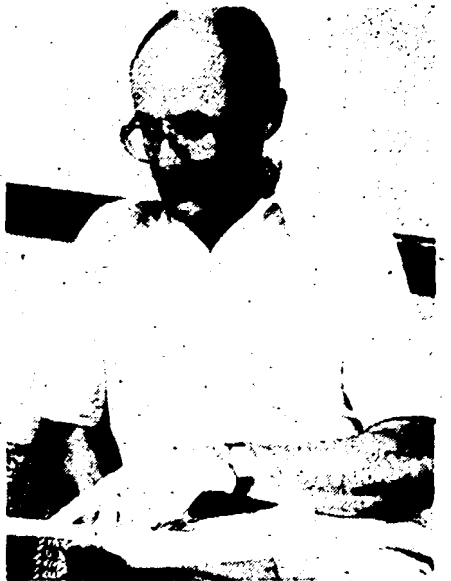

"All's well that ends well, I guess and when the high is over, it's four years of work," he said.

Irvine had made an issue of the township sign ordinance during the campaign, claiming the ordinance unconstitutional and threatening to take the matter to federal court.

Pruner was the only candidate to be re-elected, having served a term beginning in 1980. Pruner is a deputy Wayne County Sheriff.

He said he interpreted his re-election as a "vote of confidence" from township residents.

"I feel that a number of people over the past years saw I was not a 'yes' man and I did represent the interests of many people in the township, despite what The Crier said," Pruner said, referring to last week's Crier endorsement of trustee candidates.

Stein will face GOP Poole in general

Stein wins Dem. supervisor spot

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Give the guy a second chance.

That's what Canton Township voters decided to do yesterday when they gave Harold Stein the Democratic nomination for November's Canton Supervisor race.

Stein was victorious against his opponent, John Barnette, in all but two precinct districts in Canton. Unofficial precinct totals placed Stein 347 votes ahead of Barnette with a final vote count of 772 to 425.

Stein, who was cautiously optimistic early on in the race when initial results showed his campaign had a slight edge over Barnette's, said he felt the battle for the supervisor's chair has just begun.

"Life would have gone on whether I had won or lost," Stein said. "But I am genuinely interested in Canton and doing a good job. If the voters had selected the other candidate they would have felt he was qualified too, so I wasn't really concerned."

Stein said his campaign push for office will now focus on issues rather than personalities.

"There are some differences between Jim Poole and I but this campaign will address issues and I am sincere that I will be a full-time supervisor in Canton."

Incumbent Supervisor James Poole, running on the Republican ticket, was unopposed in the primary race yesterday. Poole received 1053 votes on the Republican ballot in the primary.

Stein served a prior stint as Canton's supervisor from 1976 to 1978. He attended classes at the University of Detroit, the University of Michigan and Wayne State University in business management, engineering, and business investment.

Stein based his primary race on a campaign platform which stressed unity between Canton's government, business and residents.

Stein said although he is running as a Democrat in the general election, he is actually an independent candidate. "I do not let the party influence or dictate me," he said. "I'll concentrate my efforts in the general election because I'm stressing voters should vote for the person (not the party). I feel very strongly about my independence."

John Barnette was unavailable for comment after the race last night. He carried the sixth precinct with 44 votes to Stein's 22. Barnette also tied Stein in the 22nd precinct with nine votes each.

Political signs spark interest

I hope all those pesky political signs in Plymouth Township have been pulled down by today. If they aren't, someone is going to lose five bucks.

A zoning ordinance in Plymouth Township requires every political sign pounded into the dirt be registered in the clerk's office. Registration includes a returnable $5 payment per sign. They'll return the $5 if the signs are gone following the election but will keep it if they aren't. The ordinance also limits sign size and location.

The ordinance has directly or indirectly evoked some interesting responses.

There was, of course, attorney and board of trustees candidate James Irvine who questioned the constitutionality of the ordinance. Irvine placed his only sign on the corner of Ann Arbor Trail and Haggerty, directly in the road right-of-way. That is a no-no. The ordinance prohibits placement of signs in the road right-of-way.

Irvine threatened to challenge the ordinance in United States District Court if his sign was removed by township officials. His sign weathered the storm.

Another trustee candidate, Albert Calille, gets the most original sign award. I didn't see another one like it. Calille apparently opted for the 'Bang Em' Over the Head With It' approach. His sign, attached to a trailer on Sheldon Road, would sort of reach out and grab me as I drove past. What followed was nausea.

Treasurer candidate Barbara Lynch had her signs spread throughout the township. They weren't in the right-of-way and they didn't violate size restrictions and, I assume, her signs were properly registered.

I noticed a couple Lynch signs fastened to car tops. The cars were parked on strategic corners like Ann Arbor Road and Main Street or along Ann Arbor Trail during the balloon fest. It's not a bad strategy, sidestepping most of the ordinance requirements.

Remember county commissioner candidate Hugh Patrick O'Neill? He had some big signs but you didn't see them on Plymouth Township land. O'Neill's signs were too big and violated the township ordinance. He pulled one down and township officials pulled down another.

I must say I like political signs. They are, most often, eyesores. They are crude and ugly for sure, but so are hundreds of other signs and buildings I see every day in the township and elsewhere.

Driving down Canton Center Road in Canton before the primary I saw dozens of signs pushing one candidate or another. I thought the road looked real nice because residents and business people took the time or allowed others to pound in a sign or two.

I'd like to see more of the same in Plymouth Township and I'd like to see the township ordinance abolished or at least amended to provide more leniency.

The Board of Trustees referred the ordinance to the township attorney for study of constitutional questions and I hope he conducts a thorough study of the law.

Down The Road

By Brian Lysaght

By the way, Lynch and Plymouth Township Supervisor Maurice Breen voted against the motion to refer the sign ordinance to the township attorney. Both were poorly thought out votes, I think.

With only 20-25 percent of all registered voters taking the time to vote in primaries, I think spreading the political word via signs - or anything else - is important. It was especially important yesterday in Plymouth Township when the Republican ticket carried all the candidates.

I'm not real crazy about one-party domination but I think minority rule is worse.

Free parking for workers too

EDITOR:

This letter is directed towards the city officials of Plymouth concerning the new parking deck.

Week after week I read about their dilemma of paying for this monstrosity. If they didn't have the means for paying for it, why was it built?

This should have been decided before, not waited until it's all done then dump the bill on others. I feel that the city should absorb this cost! Why should employes of downtown stores have to pay for it? We didn't ask for it!

A lot of us are only making minimum wage and this all adds up. I know if they follow through with the ridiculous idea of charging $20 a month for employes, I, for one, will have to quit my job.

We are not the ones benefiting from this new lot. We have been the ones disrupted by it. The inconvenience of walking five or 10 minutes to your car from work after a long day (especially if you're pregnant, like me) has been a royal pain.

Now having to walk completely around the block to get to work just to get off the upper deck when you can practically touch your building from where you park. So close but yet so far. I feel we, as employes, have been inconvenienced enough and shouldn't be penalized anymore but have FREE parking.

After all, it's we who make or break the success of our stores. Our carings bring the customers back.

Audit city's police books

EDITOR:

I wish to comment on Brian Lysaght's 'Down The Road' column (July 25, 1984) and related articles which have recently appeared in your newspaper.

The reassignment of Lieutenant Ralph White appears to be a prime factor in the city/police situation. The method of reassignment, however, still appears vague. Some would call White a quitter. I assume the opposite by the very nature of the job description; that no one with White's qualifications who rises to command a city police department can possibly be a quitter. The problem, therefore, must lie elsewhere.

I believe the current financial status of the city budget to be the crux of the problem. The repeated efforts of the Plymouth Police Officers Association and the police department to demonstrate, through records and figures, that their job is being performed properly and at a higher volume than last year appear to be quite commendable. City Manager Henry Graper, however, seems to be in a consistent no comment status. His comments against PPOA president Michael Gardner's rights to free speech only seem to further demonstrate his lack of self-confidence.

I also find it impossible to accept the fact that an additional $467,000 per year, subcontracted from Plymouth Township to further finance the police department, can actually result in a reduction in police manpower. This puts even further pressure on the city's books.

The city can either prove their financial case or they cannot. In a case this controversial emotions and opinions can get mixed. People are bound to take sides. Mathematics, however, do not lie. They never have and they never will. I believe the requested audit of the city's financial records is, therefore, in complete order.

LARRY R. SMITH

Through Bifocals

By Fred DeLano

Let's assume you're the parent of a high school boy or girl who wants to participate in interscholastic athletics, or maybe try to make the cheerleading team. Would you pay a fee to allow that son or daughter to do so?

Currently that's a hot issue in our neighboring Van Buren School District, which is anchored by Belleville High School. The school board is scheduled to vote next Monday on a proposed fee schedule which would require payment of $175 per student per season in football, basketball, cross country, swimming, gymnastics, volleyball, wrestling, baseball, softball and track, and $125 for cheerleading.

It's a desperate, last resort approach to retaining the Tigers' athletic program, prompted by the district's financial crisis brought on by seven successive millage defeats in the last five years. Even with continuing aid for booster clubs, school officials feel there is no other way to turn.

John Sandmann, the Plymouth-Canton District's athletic director, discussed the national trend toward the pay-to-play concept with the writer a few days ago, and expressed his distaste for such a revolutionary approach.

In Sandmann's mind, it represents abandonment of the theory that athletic activities are as important to the educational process as traditional classroom subjects. I would wager that John would consider resigning before endorsing such a policy in our local schools.

In fact, I'll go John a step further and suggest that wherever pay-to-play has been deemed necessary in sports, it would take only a slight nudge for authorities to charge fees for participation in band, orchestra, glee club, dramatics, forensics and anything else defined as "extra-curricular."

To me, that is beyond conception, yet a report to his school board by Michael Colletta, the Belleville athletic supervisor, indicated that across the United States only eight states are without some type of pay-to-play programs. In Michigan, at least a dozen public schools require students to pay participation fees, the report claimed.

Thank the good Lord, the Plymouth-Canton District is not among them. Not yet.

Our own booster clubs, as well as student groups, long have helped the program with fund-raising activities to supplement appropriations from the operating budget, and while this practice wears thin on many individuals there is no indication such efforts will slacken.

Without intention, I have written one of my main reasons for supporting the proposed Plymouth-Canton 1.74 millage increase which, after an earlier defeat, will go before the voters again on Oct. 2. The way I see it, it's never too early to take a stand on maintaining quality in all phases of the educational process.

Dolson fair, accurate

EDITOR:

Regarding Rachael Dolson's article "35th Judge Race Heats up" in the Aug. 1 edition of The Crier, I would like to take this opportunity to publicly state that I was quoted fairly and accurately.

Further, throughout my campaign, I have been pleased with the design and placement of my ads in your paper.

Thank you for your lively and informative presentation of all the candidates and issues before the primary election '84. Keep up the good work.

Endorsement self-serving

EDITOR:

Today is Aug. 2, 1984.

How does one cry foul without it sounding like sour grapes? I guess the best way is to air my feelings before the results of Tuesday's election are known to any of us.

As some of you know, I am co-managing Bob Greenstein's campaign for the seat available in the 35th District Court.

I have no quarrel with your endorsements of John MacDonald and Bruce Patterson. If that is your personal selection, so be it; but when you say, and I quote, "Robert E. Greenstein is the third qualified candidate for the job - on paper, that is," you obviously are not qualified as third grade readers. Any one with the ability to read and evaluate would say Bob was by far the most qualified candidate based on past experience. That's not judgment, that's fact!

It is quite obvious to me that you want John MacDonald to be the next judge for the 35th District, so rather than endorse Bob Greenstein, who is the only candidate that could beat your choice, you endorse Bruce Patterson as your second choice and who will not stand a snowball's chance in Hell of beating MacDonald, but you already know that so that is redundant.

I have in the past looked to the newspapers for guidance during the elections, but no more. Your endorsements are self-serving and in this case, anything but fair.

Last, but not least, I am anxious to see how cute a "header" you can place over this letter should you chose to print it.

'Onion Award' isn't snobbery, it beautifies

EDITOR:

In defense of the program initiated by the Plymouth Beautification Committee, I should like to respond to Mary Van Dyke's letter about the "Onion Award."

It definitely is not "snobbery" to endeavor to improve the beauty of a great city such as Plymouth. The names of those who win the "Onion Award" are never made public.

Let me assure you that many recipients of the beautification award are not financially affluent. Some of us live on Social Security. Many have children. We pay our taxes, water bills and sewage disposal rates. Often it isn't easy to buy flats of flowers and seeds when clothing, medication and food are involved. But we manage and we sacrifice because we have a degree of pride in our homes and Plymouth.

Recently and before your letter appeared, Mary Van Dyke, a group of us drove all around Plymouth. We were horrified when we saw the environment in which some small businesses exist.

Their economic circumstances are no worse than those of the individual property owner. If we can do it, why can't they eradicate their junkyard appearance.

One factory in the center of town has a dilapidated building with obscene words printed on it that should have been destroyed years ago. Other businesses look like A GHETTO. I am positive the owners laugh all the way to the bank.

Drive down Ann Arbor Trail, cross the railroad tracks just before Mill Street. Look to the left to see if a train is on the tracks. Should a signal fail, there would be no warning as the trees and wild growth obstruct the view. Hearts and flowers to the C&O since they cannot afford to extirpate such a safety hazard.

Before you return to Plymouth, make sure you have made a proper selection for your home. Otherwise, you may be a lonely little petunia in an onion patch.

While you live in Canton, please let the Plymouth Beautification Commission and individuals improve the appearance of our city. Members of the Commission spend countless hours of their time without pay in their endeavor to make this a beautiful community.

ROBERT "ERNIE" ARCHER

From the Inside Looking Out

By Cheryl Eberwein

The "silent majority" showed up at a Canton Township meeting recently to air concerns over a rezoning issue which had been under public consideration by board for at least six weeks.

The "majority" came in the form of a single resident who claimed to represent the interests of many people in the community. While the the rest of the "majority" was typically absent from the meeting, (content, perhaps, to leave its interests in the hands of a vigilante figurehead), this self-proclaimed bastion of township interest raged at board members, denounced their decisions and warned of impending doom in November should they choose not to vote as he saw fit.

What fascinated me most about this resident was not his anger or his threats - I've seen more explosive individuals surface at Canton Board meetings in the past. Rather, it was the man's admission that after 11 years as a resident he was attending his first board meeting that night which caught my interest.

Avoiding Canton politics for 11 years is, in my mind, not unlike avoiding society for 100. Within any given month and moment, Canton board members decide the future of land, residents, dogs, cats, mobile homes and tractors in the township. As with any local unit of government, not all of the decisions made by the board are binding. But a great many of them are irreversible by their nature.

While it may seem acceptable to follow the board's actions from a distance, such limited participation leads to a jaded perspective about the process of government at the local level. Too often residents feel themselves the victims of political action rather than an important part of the system they helped to establish.

Constant, vocal resident input is a necessity to well balanced government on any level. If residents are unwilling to step out of their Rip van Winkel sleep, they should well expect to feel helpless, angry and too late in influencing the way decisions are made.

A Friendly thanks

EDITOR:

The Plymouth-Canton High School Class of '85 would like to thank Friendly's Restaurant of Ann Arbor Road for their generosity. They supplied us with free water and a convenient location for our car wash, held on July 21.

A good time was had by all, and we were able to raise funds which will aid us in financing this year's senior prom.

Thank you again, Friendly's. We appreciate your support!

Canton board approves new zoning, housing site

BY CHERYLEBERWEIN

In what capped nearly six weeks of discussion and heated debate, the Canton Board of Trustees voted July 31 to rezone 79 acres of property on the north side of Geddes Road in Canton from an agricultural to manufactured housing district.

The rezoning motion passed four to three; Supervisor James Poole and Trustees Robert Padgett and Loren Bennett voted against the measure. An attempt to resolve the zoning issue a month earlier had resulted in a three-three split of the board because Canton Treasurer Maria Sterlini was not present to cast her vote.

Tuesday night's special meeting was called at the request of the developer interested in building a manufactured housing project on the 79 acre site. The site plan calls for a 327 unit manufactured housing park known as Wingate Subdivision to be built there.

The meeting erupted into complaints and accusations when board members moved swiftly through the agenda and cast their vote on the rezoning issue.

"You intentionally went over this issue so fast we didn't have a chance to say something," Charles Browning of Newton Road in Canton complained. "You don't want us here -- why did you send us a letter when we wouldn't be asked for comments. I think this stinks."

Poole, who did not ask for initial public comment, said anyone who had comments about the issue could have raised their hand to speak out. The board backtracked slightly on the agenda and gave audience members a chance to air their concerns after the vote had passed.

Browning and another Canton resident, Charles Langell, expressed anger over the board's decision to rezone the property to a manufactured housing district. "This has gone back and forth for weeks," Langell said. "We are the voters and taxpayers in this township -- what will this project cost us? I have a lot of questions I'd like answered -- what has happened to the democratic system in this country? Not one neighbor or resident in this area wants this and you voted for it anyway."

David Nicholson, director of economic growth for Canton, and the township's spokesman on the rezoning issue, answered questions for Langell and Browning about what the project would include.

Nicholson said roadways within the subdivision would be the responsibility of the developers to handle. Nicholson also said floodways would be the responsibility of the park developers. A lot size of 6,600 square feet per unit had been adopted some time ago by the board, Nicholson said.

Board members also approved the site plan for the Wingate Subdivision project, contingent upon the agreement that a clubhouse would be built in the park when 25 per cent of the 327 units were developed and occupied. The motion passed four to three; Poole, Bennett and Padgett cast the descending votes.

Padgett said he had not received site plans to study before the meeting and was unable to approve the site plan for this reason. "I'm not in opposition to the site but I have not had a personal opportunity to review the plan and see if it complies," he said.

The manufactured housing site plan calls for the construction of 327 mobile home condominium complex with home prices ranging from $40,000 to $50,000. Homes will have a minimum of 1,100 square feet of floor space. The development will be one of the first of its kind in the state and will come under the zoning classification of RMH-D. Nicholson said he knows of no other community in the state with mobile home zoning which falls under this name but other communities do have mobile home zoning.

Trustees acknowledged that the mobile home project will generate a negative tax base in the township. "I know as a result of our action, we will pay higher taxes," Padgett said. "I'm desperately concerned that this will set a trend in the southern end of the township with increasing taxes. We'll lose people who support and make the community."

But Larson said the homes in this park exceed the residential minimum square footage requirement for single family units.

"On the east side of this development is a large mobile home park," Larson said. "This will be a community of off-site manufactured homes. I'd rather see that than a doubling of the mobile home park."

Canton looks for more fed. funding

BY CHERYLEBERWEIN

U.S. Census Bureau figures make it "official" -- Canton's population has jumped to 58,302. Now township leaders hope to cash in on that number with a little bit of political maneuvering and the adoption of a new title -- "Metropolitan City."

Canton board members voted recently to adopt the new title "Metropolitan City" in conjunction with the federal Community Development Block Grant Program (CDBG). Although Canton has participated in the program since 1975, the township became eligible for additional federal funding due to its population increase.

Terry Carroll, grants coordinator for Canton, said CDBG funding is given to communities to benefit persons of low and moderate income, to eliminate slums or to respond to an urgent community need. Canton has received $799,398 from the program between 1980 and 1983.

Funding is appropriated on the basis of two formulas which consider such factors as the population, housing conditions, poverty level in the community and number of housing units built prior to 1940, Carroll said. Funding is given directly to communities of 50,000; communities under 50,000 receive federal allocations through a joint program with Wayne County or through the state.

Carroll said Canton's new population figure made it necessary to adopt a new method for applying for CDBG funds. Board members voted to adopt a program in which Canton will make joint funding requests with Wayne County.

Under the joint funding option which the township has chosen, Canton will receive the entire grant amount allocated minus a five per cent administration fee which the county will keep to handle federal paper work. Although this plan will not allow Canton to compete for additional county-wide CDBG funds, Carroll said those funds were granted on a competitive basis and diminishing federal dollars have made them harder to secure.

"The county will not allow Canton to compete for other special purpose funding available to other cooperating jurisdictions," Carroll said in a written release. "This arrangement shouldn't hurt the township if the amount of dollars which we receive in the pass-through amounts to a sum equal to or greater than Canton's experience in the past."

Carroll said Canton recently received a housing rehabilitation grant for $30,000 under a different part of the CDBG program. He said the township had requested $55,000 in funding but only received $30,000 due to the limited availability of funds.

If millage fails

Board explores school cuts

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

Teachers, athletics, maintenance, alternative education, teachers aides, and school supplies would be some of the areas cut if a 1.74 school millage increase fails for the second time on Oct. 2.

Five of the seven board members discussed the potential effects of the millage election at a workshop meeting Monday night.

Possible reductions of 60 teaching positions in the 1985-86 school year and 100 positions in the 1986-87 school year were discussed as ballpark figures if the millage fails.

The consensus of the board seemed to be that a positive millage campaign is needed between now and Oct. 2, stressing the things to be gained such as fiscal security, continued partial restoration of cut programs, and continued labor peace. "The board feels our message to the parents should be one of 'you wanted labor peace, now we have to pay for it,'" said Dick Egli, community relations director.

The board asked Egli to prepare comparisons between the Plymouth-Canton school district and others in the areas of cost-per-student and millage cost per average home.

Positive aspects such as consistently high scores on the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) and continuous accreditation from the North Central board should also be emphasized during the millage campaign, the board said.

Northville patients limited

BY RACHAEL DOLSON

Unacceptable levels of overcrowding at Northville Regional Psychiatric Hospital has caused Michigan Mental Health Director C. Patrick Babcock to order a limit on certain admissions to the hospital.

In his order, Babcock said the hospital had experienced a very high rate of admissions for the last 60 days, bringing the patient load to nearly 1,100, compared to 980 that was projected for the end of the fiscal year.

The overcrowded condition was accelerated by overcrowding at the Detroit Psychiatric Institute and the Michigan Osteopathic Medical Center, which usually sends patients to Northville when their capacities are reached.

Babcock's order said effective the beginning of August, Northville would not accept persons who would normally be served by those two facilities, and the policy would remain in effect until its population drops below 1,000.

Error has hurt efforts

150 Fund 'in the black'

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Despite recent alleged accusations to the contrary, the Canton 150 Fund is solvent and doing well, Joyce Chumbley, treasurer of the committee said.

Chumbley said a recent newspaper article erroneously reported that the Fund was $10,000 in debt. "That's completely wrong," she said.

Chumbley said the 150 Fund, the financial committee behind the Canton Sesquicentennial Committee, has a balance of $6,011 as of Aug. 6. "There has been a misunderstanding because some of the items we've purchased haven't been sold yet," Chumbley said.

A recent financial report on some Sesquicentennial activities reported the group needed approximately $8,028 to break even on the cost of printing the Canton Commemorative Book. The report also noted the group needed $421 to break even on the cost of printing the Sesquicentennial Cookbook and an additional $4,162 to break even on the cost of producing a series of three Canton commemorative plates.

"We have not sold all of those products," Chumbley said, "but we have enough money in the account now to pay for them. We were given $4,700 by the township at the beginning of the year for the Sesquicentennial and we have money left from that as well additional funds from our fundraising. Money is not our problem."

Chumbley said money raised through the 150 Fund will ultimately go to one of three purposes in the township. "It will either go for historical, recreational or educational purposes." Chumbley stressed the 150 Fund is a non-profit organization working to help fund Sesquicentennial activities in the township.

To date, the Sesquicentennial Committee has raised approximately $38,686 for the township's birthday celebration. Costs incurred by the group have totaled $31,057. Chumbley said all debts incurred by the committee have been paid except for the printing costs of the commemorative book.

Sesqui. group seeing red over 'mismanagement'

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

Has the Canton Sesquicentennial Committee come under recent fire from Canton businessmen and Township officials over the alleged mismanagement of its funds?

Yes, say Sesquicentennial Committee members and others closely allied with the efforts of the group. No, say at least some businessmen and officials in Canton.

In what has admittedly become a major communication breakdown according to both sides, the Canton Sesquicentennial Committee and the Canton Chamber of Commerce discussed allegations and counter allegations that the Sesquicentennial Committee was $10,000 in the red and unable to meet financial obligations on its many projects.

Sesquicentennial Chairman Mary Dingeldey said a recent newspaper article which reported the committee was in debt $10,000 was inaccurate and in error. The article, Dingeldey said, has created problems for the Sesquicentennial Committee and its fundraising committee, the Canton 150 Fund.

At least some of the problems the article has stirred up come directly from Chamber of Commerce members, Dingeldey said.

At the heart of the misunderstanding is a fundraising drive being sponsored by Omnicom Cable Television for the Canton 150 Fund. A television auction has been planned by the group for late September. Suzanne Skubick, programming director for Omnicom and chairman of the auction, said she hopes to raise $20,000 for the Canton Sesquicentennial through donations and bidding in the auction.

Dingeldey said a misunderstanding over the Canton 150 Fund financial statement lead to the erroneous conclusion that the Committee was in debt. "When the newspaper article came out saying that, businesses throughout Canton thought the auction was an attempt to bail the committee out," she said. "They weren't interested in participating in the auction because they believed this."

Dingeldey said additional trouble for the Sesquicentennial Committee arose when Chamber of Commerce members allegedly maligned the group at its monthly luncheon over financial matters.

"This has become a personality power play," Dingeldey said. "There were accusations that the Canton 150 Fund was not a non-profit organization and that I had mismanaged the funds. They (Chamber members) also wanted the Sesquicentennial Committee to donate some of its funds to the Canton Country Festival parade committee."

Canton Chamber of Commerce President Jack Koers said the matter has been blown out of proportion. "There were no accusations about the mismanagement of funds -- or at least not as far as the Chamber is concerned officially," Koers said. "I heard recently that they weren't in debt, and frankly, I could care less. What we wanted to know is where the money going into the 150 Fund is going."

Koers said many businesses belonging to the Chamber had contacted him about the auction fundraising drive. The businesses wanted to know where the money from the auction would go, Koers said. "We didn't know where the money was going and are still trying to find out. I don't think there's anything wrong with asking that."

Koers said he has sent a letter to the Sesquicentennial Committee asking for fund information; Dingeldey said she has not yet received the letter from Koers.

Koers also said he requested that the first $3,000 the Sesquicentennial Committee earns from the auction be turned over to the Canton Country Festival Parade Committee. "We thought since many Chamber members will be donating to this auction, some of the money could go back into the parade committee."

Koers' request came as a surprise to Country Festival parade chairman

Deborah O'Connor. O'Connor said she was unaware that Koers had requested the money until after the request was made to Dingeldey. "I recommended they find out who the board of directors for the Sesquicentennial Committee is and ask them what they want to do with their funds," O'Connor said. "I also recommended they make sure the Canton 150 Fund is a non-profit group."

Both Koers and O'Connor said they and other Chamber members want to cooperate fully with the Sesquicentennial Committee in its fundraising efforts.

No $ but a richer conscience

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Robert Weiland was leaving the Plymouth Township Fire Station last week when a curious looking envelope on the ground near some bushes caught his eye. He leaned over to pick it up and saw the envelope came from a bank.

Guess what Weiland found inside the envelope? $800.

What do you think he did with the money? He turned it in to the police.

"It was just laying there in a landscaped area between the township hall and Friendly's (a restaurant next door) and I was curious so I picked it up," said Weiland, a Plymouth Township volunteer fireman for the six- and-one-half years.

"When I opened it up and saw the money, I was shocked," he said.

Weiland, who was leaving the station after a fire run, said he immediately went back inside the station and called the Plymouth police.

"The police said they could send someone down to pick it up or I could wait until tomorrow and bring it in."

Weiland asked them to send an officer to the fire station to pick it up.

"I didn't want to hold on to it," he said.

Weiland said he never considered keeping the money, perhaps stashing it in a pocket or under his shirt.

"I couldn't have held onto it and still have a clear conscience," he said.

"You never know who's money it was or whether it was somebody's life savings. I sure couldn't afford to lose $800."

Plymouth police said Monday a man had come in to claim the money but they wouldn't identify the man to a reporter.

"I'm not going to tell you his name," said a police lieutenant. "His name is not even known to the police."

Plymouth artist commissioned for Belleville's LaSalle sculpture

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

A French explorer canoeing the Huron River near Belleville 300 years ago unknowingly provided the opportunity for which Plymouth artist Steve Wroble was looking.

In March the City of Belleville's Parks Commission began the search for an artist to sculpt explorer Robert Cavalier LaSalle, who led a party in 1680 that stopped on the city's Huron River shore.

Wroble fit the bill.

Wroble started contracted work last week on the project, which offers the city an affordable salute to its most famous visitor and offers Wroble a chance to take sculpting from an advanced hobby to a full-time job.

Wroble read about the city's search in a newspaper article and dashed off a letter to the city. He was chosen over two other sculptors.

"There was a lot of luck involved but there was also nine years of preparation on my part," the 35-year-old Wroble said. "When I saw the article I was ready and I knew I was ready."

He quit his full-time job at a Livonia distribution company to take the job of creating a replica of LaSalle.

Belleville Parks Commission chair Park Gregory and his wife Edna Mae are

LaSalle buffs and they decided to put up $17,000 to finance the project. The statue will sit in Victory Park, across the street from the Belleville City Hall.

"Mr. Wroble had the best credentials and came up with the materials more rapidly than the other candidates," Park Gregory explained. "Therefore we found him more qualified and more enthusiastic about the project."

The Gregory's researched LaSalle's travels in the area. Gregory said LaSalle was exploring southern Michigan with four other Frenchmen and an Indian guide in 1680, when they ran into bad weather. They built canoes and followed the Huron River. They are believed to have abandoned their canoes in Belleville to resume the trip overland.

Wroble plans to work 40 hours per week for the next year on the LaSalle statue which will stand 7 feet high. He has already created two wax scale models of the Frenchman.

The final product will be crafted of a man-made stone called Design-cast with a steel frame center. He will first sculpt a full-sized wax model, coat it with latex rubber, then build Design-cast in sections around the steel frame.

"We hope it will last 200 to 300 years. The classic sculptors always built their works to last forever and that's the attitude I'm taking."

Wroble said he read four biographies of the explorer and studied the clothing and hairstyles popular in 15th century France before starting his work.

"There were no paintings of LaSalle so it's kind of guesswork on my part," he said. "I'm assuming he dressed as closely as possible to the fashions of his time."

Wroble's contract with the City of Belleville requires him to present a half-sized model in late September and he says he will be working closely with the Gregorys and the Parks Commission on the project.

"I'll present my work to them and they can make suggestions for improvements. They are the ones, after all, that have to be satisfied with the final product."

Wroble hopes to have another long-term commissioned work to begin when the LaSalle statue is completed next July.

Until now, he hasn't had the opportunities to make sculpting his full-time career.

Wroble has done two other smaller commissioned works and "knick knacks" which have sold, and he has done graphics work since his college years. He earned a bachelor's degree in fine arts with honors from Michigan State University in 1975.

Wroble also paints and draws but says sculpture is his first love.

"I've always been interested in art, and made the decision to specialize in sculpture during college. There is something very satisfying about working in three dimensions."

Wroble says he has refined his sculpting talents and will concentrate on detail for the LaSalle work.

"Now, I'm going more after the soul, the inner quality of my work. It takes a great deal more thought."

Boxes are packed in the cramped apartment Wroble shares with his wife and the two are looking for a roomier house with an attached garage to serve as his studio. He has lived in Plymouth since graduating from college.

"Plymouth is a good place for artists to live," he said. "There is a lot of culture here."

When asked if the starving artist label applies to him and his wife, Wroble laughs.

"That's a romantic image but today you can't approach your landlord at the first of the month and say 'I don't have any money but here's a painting.' He'll tell you to hit the road."

Wroble says having tried the starving artist lifestyle, he has grown wiser.

"I've taken steps to see I'll live a good life," he said.

Wroble says it may be hard to part with his LaSalle when it's completed after putting in a full year on the project. "I'm going to be living with the guy for a year."

Wroble said he may become a regular visitor to Victory Park when the statue is in place.

"It may be easier to give up the statue when I think about the Gregorys and the City of Belleville. I know it will be going to a good home."

The big day many of us who work in downtown Plymouth anxiously waited for arrived last month -- the completion of the new parking deck. At last, no more construction, no more power outages and best of all, no more driving around trying to find a parking place.

The parking deck doesn't look as bad as some people thought it would and it was finished sooner than expected. However, there are a few problems.

The City officials have probably taken into consideration the potential problem of two cars trying to exit at the same time, one from the deck and one from the lower level (it's hard to see over the dividing wall). People with large cars are noticing some difficulty trying to make it around the sharp corners.

Then there's the stairway that was opened for the first time last week. All I have to say about those stupid stairs is that they were obviously designed and built by men. I'd like to know if the gentlemen standing under the steps peering up the women's dresses, as they go up and down stairs, are going to be there to catch us when we catch our heel and fall. I know most of you men don't have to worry about your heel going through the grate in the steps, but remember there are a lot of women working and shopping in Plymouth.

Okay, so I'll walk a little out of the way and use the pedestrian ramp and leave the stairs to the men. I've even thought of buying a sled for the winter and sliding down the ramp, but with my luck I'd end up in the middle of Main Street and be squashed by a DPW truck.

Sure, I realize the open stairs were built the way they are to keep the ice and snow from building up. Come on you guys, use some common sense. If you enclose the stairs, they would be safer for everyone and you wouldn't have to worry about ice and snow on them. Then you could put in real steps.

Man beaten with ball bat

A 21-year-old Garden City man has been charged with felonious assault in the baseball bat beating of a Belleville resident in Canton Sunday night, Canton Police said.

Daniel Clark Hughes, 21, of Garden City, was charged with felonious assault for the beating of Gregg Straight, 31. Hughes was arraigned before Judge James Garber in 35th District Court Monday and is being held in lieu of bond in Wayne County Jail, Sergeant Alex Wilson of the Canton Police said.

Wilson said Straight and Hughes were passengers in separate cars traveling westbound on Ford Road at approximately 5:45 p.m. when the incident occurred. Wilson said Straight and Hughes began exchanging verbal altercations out the window. The drivers of both cars turned onto Lilley Road near Hanford and Ashbury and stopped. Straight and Hughes got out of the cars.

Wilson said Hughes pulled a baseball bat from his car and began to beat Straight on the face and head with the bat. He then fled the scene.

Canton firefighters transported Straight to Oakwood Canton Center, police said. Hughes was later apprehended at Beck and North Territorial roads by the Michigan State Police after the Canton Police put out a vehicle description.

Wilson said the pair did not know each other and was unsure what had caused the altercation. Felonious assault is a four-year felony.

City, cops tug over contract

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

The City of Plymouth, seeking wage concessions from city police officers, will meet September 11 with representatives of the Police Officers Association of Michigan (POAM) to try to hammer out a wage agreement.

City Manager Henry Graper said he and city labor attorney Ron Aho want to discuss "wages and fringe benefits" with the union. The city took the option of reopening the contract for wages after the POAM decided not to reopen the pact.

Graper said he also wanted to talk to the union about an unfair labor charge the city might file in response to the union's criticism of the city's handling of its contract for police services with Plymouth Township.

"I don't want to operate the contract with the union thinking they can criticize (Plymouth Township Police) Chief Carl Berry anytime they like," Graper said.

POAM Plymouth President Mike Gardner declined to comment on the upcoming talks.

Graper was referring to union criticism that the township exercises leverage over the running of the city police department based on the township's annual payment to the city of $467,000 for police services.

The union also charged that $467,000 the city received from the township was not put back into the police department budget but instead spent elsewhere in the city budget.

Graper has denied both charges, claiming that the union is intent on spoiling the city's police contract with the township.

Canton guard receives its charter

The Canton Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla received its charter this summer. Eugene Olson of Plymouth is commander of the flotilla and Robert Kinsler, also of Plymouth is vice commander.

Sailors and would-be-sailors interested in the organization may call Nancy Floyd, who is in charge of public affairs for the flotilla, at 662-4151, or Shirley Kinsler, 455-2676.

The U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary recommends a key safety rule. In boating, always anticipate problems while afloat, to be prepared when they happen.

Many boating misfortunes are avoided by the wise skipper who carries aboard at least a minimum amount of safety gear. Pleasure crafts should be equipped with required legal safety items, plus others for emergency purposes that are necessary as part of the Coast Guard Auxiliary's free courtesy marine safety examination available to the public.

Omnicom honored with award

It has been an award-winning summer for Omnicom of Michigan's programming department.

Omnicom's executive producer's series "It's A Woman's World" won an honorable mention in the entertainment category of the National Federation of Local Cable Programmers (NFLCP) Hometown Video USA contest.

Maria Holmes' series highlighted local women in unique employment situations. Suzanne Skubick, community affairs and program director, said this was a significant accomplishment since the entertainment category of the contest had the highest level of entries.

Omnicom also had four other programs make it to the finalist category in the same contest; they were "The Oasis," "Human Images," "Wayne County Line," and Hamtramck's Compilation tape, showing excerpts from all of their productions.

Omnicom General Manager Rick Collman was presented the Michigan American Legion's Fourth Estate award for "exceptional public service in broadcasting" on July 20.

Local Legionnaires Bill Nicholas, Ernie Koi and Roger Clautier had submitted Omnicom's name for the award after giving the company local recognition for its efforts on behalf of the Legion. Omnicom has provided the Legion with a forum via its live call in show on Tuesday nights as well as other special programs dealing with topics of community interest such as Reyes Syndrome.

Corn Fest honors Canton

The Canton Chamber of Commerce is planning a Corn Fest on Sunday, Aug. 19 at Griffin Park. It will begin at noon and run until around 6 p.m. Everyone is invited to celebrate "Canton, The Corn Capital of Michigan."

There will be home-grown sweet corn, coney islands, chips, soft drinks and cold beer. The Detroit Express Soccer Team will be challenging the Chamber Champs in a five-inning softball game.

Between each inning, there will be games and prizes for all ages. The games will include an egg toss, water balloon toss, three-legged race, and a watermelon eating contest.

A free shuttle will be offered to the Historical Society's Ice Cream Social and Art and Crafts activities at the Historical Society building.

Tonquish race sails to town

It's time to scrape the barnacles off the old scow and splice the Spinnackers once again for the Second Annual Tonquish Creek Yacht Race, scheduled for Friday, Aug. 17.

The "race" is sponsored again this year by the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

In the spirit of last year's America's Cup, and to eliminate the "rampant professionalism" seen last year, the exact nature of the yachts to be raced will be kept a close secret until race day.

Event organizer "Commodore" Mike Ball said a major highlight of this year's race will be the Great Unveiling, when the yachts will be viewed for the very first time by awed spectators, and terrified racers, at 8 p.m. on race day, immediately before the first heat.

Racing will begin at 8:30 p.m. and teams need only bring themselves and their cheerleaders, all in costume.

Yachts will be provided. Cost to field a team is $30 for Promotion Plan participants, $35 for chamber members not in the plan, and $40 for non-chamber members.

Each team will consist of four salty dogs, male or female, who will compete for the coveted Captain Horatio J. Hick Cup.

Prizes will be awarded to winners, best costumers, best cheerleaders, most prepped-out yachsters. New this year will be the Mrs. Hortense Hick Memorial Award for the most fashionable apparatus for staying afloat in the middle of Penniman Avenue.

For more information call the chamber at 453-1540.

Chicken order worth crowing about!

Famous Recipe has a tall order to fill on Sunday, Aug. 12. The chicken cooks will be preparing 12,000 pieces of light and dark meat for consumption at the Kentuckians of Michigan annual reunion at Van Buren Park in Belleville Township.

Lee Langkabel, manager of Famous Recipe on Ann Arbor Road, said his finger-lickin' competition had previously supplied the eats at the Kentuckians' annual event but this year "they heard about our quality and asked us to do it."

Famous will put all their employes, and all former employes they can get their hands on, to work that day to prepare, transport and serve 3,000 full dinners. They will cook about 12,000 pieces for the event, plus will cook another 6,000 for regular Sunday customers. "It will be our biggest day so far. We did the school district lunch once, but this will top that."

About 1,200 pounds of cole slaw will be prepared, plus enough of the other dinner items - mash potatoes, gravy, rolls - to feed the hungry 3,000.

This will be the 26th reunion for the transplanted Blue Grassers.

With Malice Toward None

By W. EDWARD WENDOVER

The Title Says It All

Sometimes, there're things that a lot of folks would rather leave unsaid. But then that's not necessarily good for the whole community is it?

The Community Crier's publisher, W. Edward Wendover, first began covering the community for the old Plymouth High School "Pilgrim Prints" in 1964.

In those ensuing 20 years — With Malice Toward None made its debut in 1971 — a lot of folks haven't been pleased by what's been said. But it's part of a true community newspaper's role to tell it like it is.

With malice toward none.

There's only one newspaper serving The Plymouth-Canton Community that does that.

Wendover is a 1966 Plymouth High School graduate, a 1970 Michigan State graduate and a veteran of several newspapers before becoming Crier publisher in 1974.

"With Malice Toward None" comes from Pres. Abraham Lincoln's Second Inaugural Address, March 4, 1865.

They're heading to state tourney

Canton Mack is Marshall-bound

BY MIKE MCKENNEY

The Canton Elks baseball squad just took their first step towards the Connie Mack League World Series by downing Waterford in the district tournament championships last weekend at Pontiac, Michigan.

"The other coach wanted to know what I had fed them the night before the game," said Canton coach Dave Racer. "I told him 'nothing, I kept them hungry.'"

"The kids are going to have to play heads up ball to win..." — Canton Coach Dave Racer

Canton was hungry all right. They swallowed their opposition 14-1. The easy victory seemingly echoed the outcome of Canton's one loss, first place season.

If the Elks happen to come out on top again in the state tourney this weekend, they'll have earned themselves an all expense paid trip to the American Amateur Baseball Conference's World Series in Farmington, New Mexico.

"The kids are gonna have to play heads up ball to win it (the state tournament at Marshall, Michigan), but I'd say that we do have a chance," said Racer.

Canton had, relatively little trouble capturing the district crown, even though they faltered slightly in their second tourney game, when they fell to Waterford 5-4. The Elks also had a tough time with one of the three Pontiac home teams. Canton ended up winning the matchup, but only by a couple, 4-2.

"I don't think we really did anything bad against them (Pontiac), I just think the kids were a little over confident," said Racer.

With the addition of their opening game win over Wayne-Westland, 12-6, their third game thrashing of Dearborn, 9-2, and their fifth game victory over Livonia Churchill, 7-4, Canton compiled a 5-1 tournament record.

Unlike their performance in the Fourth of July invitational tournament at Salem and Canton, Canton's pitching staff held up well under the wear and tear of the four day tournament. Every one of the Elk's pitchers who started a game went all seven innings.

"I didn't even have to use one of my best pitchers, Fred Portillo," said Racer. Portillo was one of three outside players Canton took to the districts.

"But, I'll tell you what; you can bet I'm gonna pick up at least one more pitcher for the Marshall tournament. There's gonna be a lot of solid ballclubs in that one," he said.

Canton starts off the tournament with an opener against the home team, Marshall, at Marshall, tomorrow afternoon.

"We've got as good a chance (to win) as anyone," said Racer.

Craiger and DiPonio take beatings at tourney

BY MIKE MCKENNEY

It wasn't a very memorable weekend for the two local Mickey Mantle League teams.

Salem DiPonio, the tournament hosts, dropped their first game to their crosstown rivals, Canton Craiger, 8-2.

"Our hitting and defense was pretty shoddy. We gave up five runs in the first inning. You just can't win when you play like that," said Salem head coach Scott Dawson.

Salem collected only five hits against Craiger, two of them coming off the bat of Allen Park recruit Mike Dawson, who went 2-3 with a single and a home run.

Chris Davis went all seven innings for Salem and turned in what Dawson called "a pretty good performance."

Salem lost a nine inning heartbreaker to Westland II the very next game.

Going into the last half of the ninth, Salem led by two, 7-5, thanks to a clutch two-run single from Mike Demeter.

"I wanted to take him (Shane Smith) out, but I didn't," said Dawson.

As it turned out, that would have been a wise move.

After walking the first two men he faced, Smith served up a belt high fastball to Westland's Tom Giroux, who graciously accepted the opportunity to send it 360 feet over Salem's right field wall. Giroux's blast ended the game and knocked Salem out of the tournament.

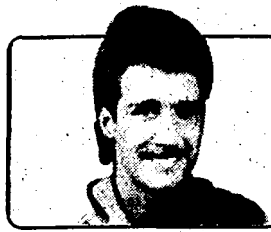

Canton Craiger fared a little better in the tourney, as they won two out of their four games.

After downing Salem in the opener, Craiger dropped a close one to the eventual tournament winners, the Macomb Phillies, 2-1.

Craiger's only run came on a one out single from Tommy Kenyon that scored Mike Clark.

Jeff Tanderys went the distance for Canton in that one. Tanderys threw well

Just Thinkin'

By Mike McKenney

Years ago, when summer seemed longer and hotter, and tree-fort building was the "in" thing to do; I can still recall the feeling of burning anticipation that made my eyes widen and my fingers tremble every time I began opening a brand new pack of baseball cards.

As I tore the multi-colored plastic wrapper away and the pink stick of bubble gum was revealed, my heartbeat would quicken at the thought of what might lie underneath.

Could it be an all-star Steve Garvey? How about a Hank Aaron Special? If there's just one Bobby Grich inside, I'll have the whole set!

Ah yes, those were the days. Those flimsy little 2 1/2" by 3 1/2" pieces of cardboard kept myself, along with many of the other neighborhood brats, busy selling, buying, and trading, summer after childhood summer.

I can still remember important deals being cut on backyard porches, at kitchen tables, and most commonly, on the cool cement floors of grimy-smelling garages.

Unfortunately, one ugly early teenage day, the harsh voice of maturity quietly whispered "aren't-you-a-little-old-for-this-sort-of-thing" in our ears' and an era was ended.

With the magic gone and the spell now broken, we each went our separate ways.

Some of us joined the athletic teams. Some of us worked hard and got into the National Honor Society.

Some of us even turned into sports-writers.

However, I don't think any of us ever forgot how much fun we used to have, trading and counting card after card, set after set, year after year.

Recently, I had the rare opportunity to take a walk down memory lane when I visited the Baseball Collectors Show at the Plymouth Hilton.

Sure enough, they were all there; every single one of my childhood heroes.

There was Pete Rose on a can of chocolate milk, John Hiller on the bottom of a Hostess box, a giant color painting of Jason Thompson, and a picture of Lou Brock wearing one of his infamous hat-umbrellas.

Just like an old song, a faded photograph, or a favorite coat, every card, painting or picture I saw sent me reeling back through the years, to the days of dirt-clod fights and flashlight tag.

Upon picking up a 1973 Norm Cash card, I suddenly began reminiscing about my trip to Niagara Falls, around six years ago.

A plastic bust of Frank Robinson made me wonder what ever happened to an old friend of mine who lived across the street and down a couple of houses to the right.

A soda bottle that said "THE CINCINNATI REDS, WORLD SERIES CHAMPS!" on the front sent me back to Forest Park, Ohio; were I used to play soccer on a field next to some area high school.

While I was walking around the convention, shoving my way through crowded aisleway after aisleway; I got a chance to talk to some of dealers and collectors about that good ole' nostalgic feeling I was enjoying.

I soon found I wasn't alone. "I got that Jackie Robinson card the day of my brother's wedding," one dealer told me.

"I got those tobacco cards when I was at the World's Fair a few years back," said another.

I had a great time, to say the least, but I think my feelings can be best summarized in the words of a 45 year-old dealer-collector when he said:

"I've been collecting baseball memorabilia since I was in second grade, and you know what, every time I take a look through my collection and see some of the guys I used to dream about, I'm right back there once again, and it feels really good."

All right tennis buffs, this tourney's for you

The calendar may show the days of summer winding down, but rest assured, the warm season will not end without the good fun and healthy competition of The Crier Tennis Tournament Aug. 17-19. The last seven summers, in fact, have seen the tourney and it proves to be a favorite for local tennis buffs.

But it's not just The Crier's tournament, the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department is handling all the entry forms.

"I'd be disappointed if we didn't get a couple hundred people out there this year," said Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department Director Chuck Skene.

So if you've been working out during the hot months, developing your back hand sharpening your serves and fine-tuning your overhand slam, The Crier tourney is the perfect place to showcase your progress.

"It's a good community activity for those in The Plymouth-Canton Community and that's why we're involved," said The Crier's publisher W. Edward Wendover.

Anyone over age nine or even over the hill is welcome to participate in the tournament to be held at Plymouth Canton High School. Play will begin on Friday and Saturday with the finals scheduled for Sunday.

The entry deadline is 5 p.m. August 14. Tennis buffs can enter more than one event - singles and doubles and the cost is minimal - $3 per event.

The Crier will have photographers covering the event so if you are a winner your picture might appear in the following Wednesday's Crier. If you don't win but do embarrass or make a spectacle of yourself, well, you too might find your picture in The Crier.

So what's to lose?

that game, as he allowed only five hits and gave up two runs on a home run shot from Macombs' Bob Poterek in the second inning.

Craiger won their next matchup against the Policeman's Athletic Leagues' (PAL) Yankees.

Going into the seventh inning the score was Craiger 7, PAL 6.

However, in the top half of the inning, a rash of Canton hits and PAL fielding errors added seven runs to the Craiger score and put the game out of PAL's reach, 14-6.

The next game, the semifinal match in which Craiger faced Westland II, spelled disaster for Canton, as they fell to Westland by one run, 4-3.

"Coming close is like kissing your sister," said a disappointed Gerald Ebmeyer, Craiger's head coach.

Craiger ripped nine hits in the game, but just wasn't able to push their numerous baserunners across the plate.

"We knocked ourselves out of it with our bad baserunning," said Duane Bennett, Craiger's starting catcher.

Todd Percha and Don Lindey combined to allow Westland only five hits in a losing cause.

Craiger's offensive shining star was centerfielder Tony Aikens. Aikens went seven for fifteen in the tourney (.467).

Salem golfers sought for team

Boys who will be attending Plymouth Salem High School in the fall and are interested in trying out for the golf team should call Coach Rick Wilson at 459-3786. Boys in the ninth grade are also eligible provided they are assigned to Plymouth Salem.

Salem standout gets MSU ball scholarship

Plymouth Salem High School basketball and baseball standout Rick Berberet has accepted a partial baseball scholarship to Michigan State University.

Berberet, who helped carry the Rocks baseball team to a third place in the state tourney two seasons ago, said he was a little surprised but very happy to learn that State wanted him.

"After this season, I didn't really know who was interested in me," he said.

This year the Rocks were ousted by John Glenn in Salems' first state tournament game.

"It's gonna be a lot of work but I'm gonna do it," he said.
