Missing Plymouth girl found unhurt

BY ED FITZGERALD

A four-year old Plymouth girl was abducted from the Meijer Thrifty Acres store in Canton at 6:05 p.m. Monday. She was recovered at 8:15 p.m. on Race Rd near I-94 in Leoni Township in Jackson County. Police said she appeared unharmed.

The girl had been shopping with her mother and brother when she disappeared. The mother notified store security who in turn called the Canton Police.

A Meijer employe gave police a description of a man seen in the store parking lot followed by a little girl. He was male, extremely dark complected, mid 40s, black hair, slight build, possible accent, brown checked shirt and dark brown dress pants.

A spokesman for Meijer Thrifty Acres in Grand Rapids expressed regret for the incident.

"We had security on duty and we're certainly glad the child was found," he said. "We feel though, it could've happened anywhere."

Canton Police Lt. Alex Wilson said evidence had been taken to the Northville Crime Lab for further investigation.

"Though she appeared to be uninjured and not to have been abused, we are taking every precaution," said Wilson.

A couple driving on Race Road found the girl. They called a State Police post in Jackson County who delivered the girl to Canton Police. She was taken to the Oakwood-Canton Center and reunited with her parents.

The girl had her sandy brown hair in pigtails and was wearing a multi-colored striped dress the day of the incident. If anyone believes they have information on the abduction please call Canton Police at 397-3000.

Woman struck on Mich. Ave.

Hit and run kills one

An Ypsilanti woman was struck by a car and killed early Saturday morning as she walked down Michigan Avenue in Canton Township. The driver of the car fled the scene and Canton Police have no leads in the incident.

Charlene Norris, 30, was struck at 3:30 a.m. and taken to Westland Medical Center by the Canton Fire Department Rescue Squad. She was pronounced dead on arrival.

Norris is believed to have been walking alone westerly, on the westbound side of Michigan. She was on the north side of the road.

Norris' car was found abandoned on Ecorse Rd. west of Belleville. Canton Police believe she may have been, just prior to the accident, in a nearby location with other people. Norris was wearing a pink sweater, blue jeans and high heeled shoes.

Canton Police request anyone with any knowledge of the accident or Norris' whereabouts that evening to call 397-3000.

Traffic pains Twp. Chief?

Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry angered Canton Police last weekend when he questioned a Canton policeman over traffic control. Berry was upset when Canton Police failed to close westbound Joy Road to "facilitate evacuation of Balloon Festival parking Friday and Saturday," according to Lt. Alex Wilson of Canton Police. Wilson said Berry "ridiculed" a Canton officer.

"It was grossly unprofessional of him (Berry)," Wilson said. "He should have gotten hold of a commanding officer instead of bullying and belittling a patrol officer."

Wilson said the matter had been resolved and there would not be a complaint filed against Berry.

"There were some minor problems. We straightened them out," Berry said.

Balloonfest a success--despite nasty weather

PG. 3 THE COMMUNITY CRIER JULY 10, 1985

BY ED FITZGERALD AND DAVID PIERINI

The wind blew and the rain fell. Nevertheless, the fifth annual Mayflower Hot Air Balloon Festival delighted over 150,000 spectators with 54 balloons from all over the state.

Festival co-chairmen Scott Lorenz and Gordon Boring called this year's event, the first at Centennial Educational Park, a success -- despite the weather.

"The winds, in balloon talk, were squirrely," Lorenz said. "One minute they blew south, the next minute ...they came out of the west. It was very unpredictable."

"The winds were light and shifty," Boring added. "It made it difficult."

The height of frustration may have come Sunday evening. Two sets of car keys were set atop sailboat masts in the park. The idea was for balloonists to float by, scoop up the keys and win a car.

With the wind from the west, 35 balloonists drove west to sail back to the park. Unfortunately, within a half mile of the park, the wind began to blow from the southwest. Pilots had to set down, pack it in and drive south of the park. Eventually only nine balloons drifted across the park. No one made a try at the keys, but Joe DeRosa, of Pontiac, in an Ameritech Yellow Pages balloon, won four British Airways tickets by throwing a bag of corn seed within 31 feet and one inch of a 25 by 25 foot white X target.

Rain scrubbed Friday night's race. Saturday morning a "hare and hound" race was held. The "hare" balloon, in this case, Scott Lorenz, set sail then landed, south of M-14 near Lilley. The winning "hound", the balloon landing closest to Lorenz, was Phil Glebe, of Brighton. He landed one foot and nine inches away, unusually close. Glebe won four tickets on American Airlines. About 45 balloons competed. Boring said many pilots were uncomfortable with the westerly winds.

"That's blowing towards Detroit," Boring said. "It's different from acres and acres of open fields." Boring said the wind called for hound and hare races, instead of random landing site selection.

Saturday night's race was postponed at 7:45 p.m., when winds, predicted to diminish at 7 p.m., didn't. A make-up hare and hound race was held Sunday morning, in possibly the best weather conditions of the weekend. Ron Centers, of Kalamazoo, in his First of America balloon, won four tickets on Eastern Airlines by landing 31 feet from Lorenz at Ford Road, just west of Lilley.

Lorenz said this year's site was better than the township park, used for the last four years.

"It's better for spectators, more places to park," Lorenz said. "We wanted to expand and we've got a lot of room to grow (there)."

Boring said he had received nothing but favorable comment from those who attended this year's festival.

"Maybe they'll invite us back next year," he said.

It would seem a safe bet.

Contract extended

School soop gets B-plus

BY BILL MARRIOTT

Plymouth-Canton Schools Superintendent John M. Hoben earned a "B plus" grade from the school board.

The board rated its superintendent a 4.41 (on a one to five scale) overall in its spring evaluation Monday night.

A three-member evaluation committee processed board members' responses to its survey, summarizing them by saying Hoben was responsible for the "achievement of a quality educational program in the Plymouth-Canton Schools."

The board agreed with the committee's conclusion that Hoben be retained, extending his contract one year through the 1987-88 school year.

Yet the committee expressed concerns regarding student performance and the instructional program.

"Student performance is not all it could be," Trustee Dean Schwartzwelter said. "We need to be creative enough to find a way to do it better."

More computers was seen as one solution to improve student performance, according to the report.

Hoben's "student performance" ratings were lowest of all the scales, a 3.86.

"I'm not too concerned about the student performance rating," Hoben said.

'..a lot of talking involved.'

City cop learns all about hostage negotiating

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Isolate and negotiate.

That, says Plymouth Police Officer Bob Scoggins, is the key to negotiating hostage situations.

Scoggins, who returned recently from a week long hostage negotiating course in Lansing, said police must first secure and evacuate the area in which a barricaded gunman holds hostages. Then the talking and waiting begins.

While police in Plymouth rarely face hostage-holding gunmen, Scoggins said the techniques he learned at the C.F. Pegg criminal justice school at Lansing Community College have wider application.

"They have street value," said Scoggins, a 10-year member of the Plymouth Police Department.

Scoggins, along with Police Chief Richard Myers, is developing a departmental policy for dealing with hostage-holding gunmen. Currently, none exists.

Hostage situations may develop when police arrive before a would-be bank robber can escape. The robber might hold one or more hostages in an attempt to buy his freedom.

Another scenario might unfold from a domestic squabble or despondent person who grabs a gun and hostages.

The class didn't and department policy won't cover the handling of terrorists who take hostages, Scoggins said.

The police department's first duty would be to surround the area in which hostages are held and evacuate anyone in nearby homes and buildings, Scoggins said.

Police would then try to isolate the gunman and later establish communication -- begin negotiating, he said.

"Part of the idea is to put the (gunman) in a cocoon, to isolate him so he doesn't know what is going on outside," Scoggins said.

"If he is contained and not posing a threat to anyone on the outside, then you can negotiate," he said.

Negotiating entails gaining the trust of the gunman, usually using one officer, backed by a team, as police spokesman, he said.

The process is often slow. The average barricaded gunman situation lasts 15-16 hours, he said.

"There's a lot of talking involved," Scoggins said.

But smaller police departments are often encouraged to answer a call, settle complaints and get back on the road as quickly as possible, he said. And, Scoggins said, police commanders, seeking a "hurry up let's get it done" solution can damage the negotiating progress.

The quick fix usually doesn't work, he said.

Scoggins, who earned certification from Pegg at the end of the class, said the techniques he learned are useful in developing rapport and dealing with irrational people, he said.

"It's a more psychological approach," he said. "It's almost like a social worker's approach."

"Police officers are inclined to deal more in an authoritative position -- 'You're going to do this.'"

The negotiating technique stresses calming and reasoning with people, a useful approach to the crisis situations -- everything from fistfights to domestic squabbles to suicide attempts -- that police often face, Scoggins said.

PLYMOUTH

"It's a more professional approach to dealing with problems," he said.

Scoggins, a friendly, easy-going police officer, says he has always been interested in the public relations side of police work and says he enjoys talking to classes in local schools.

Four other Plymouth officers attended parts of the course which was built around the theories of Dr. Harvey Schlossberg, a psychologist and former New York City police officer.

Schlossberg is considered an authority on hostage negotiating and wrote a book titled "Psychologist With A Gun."

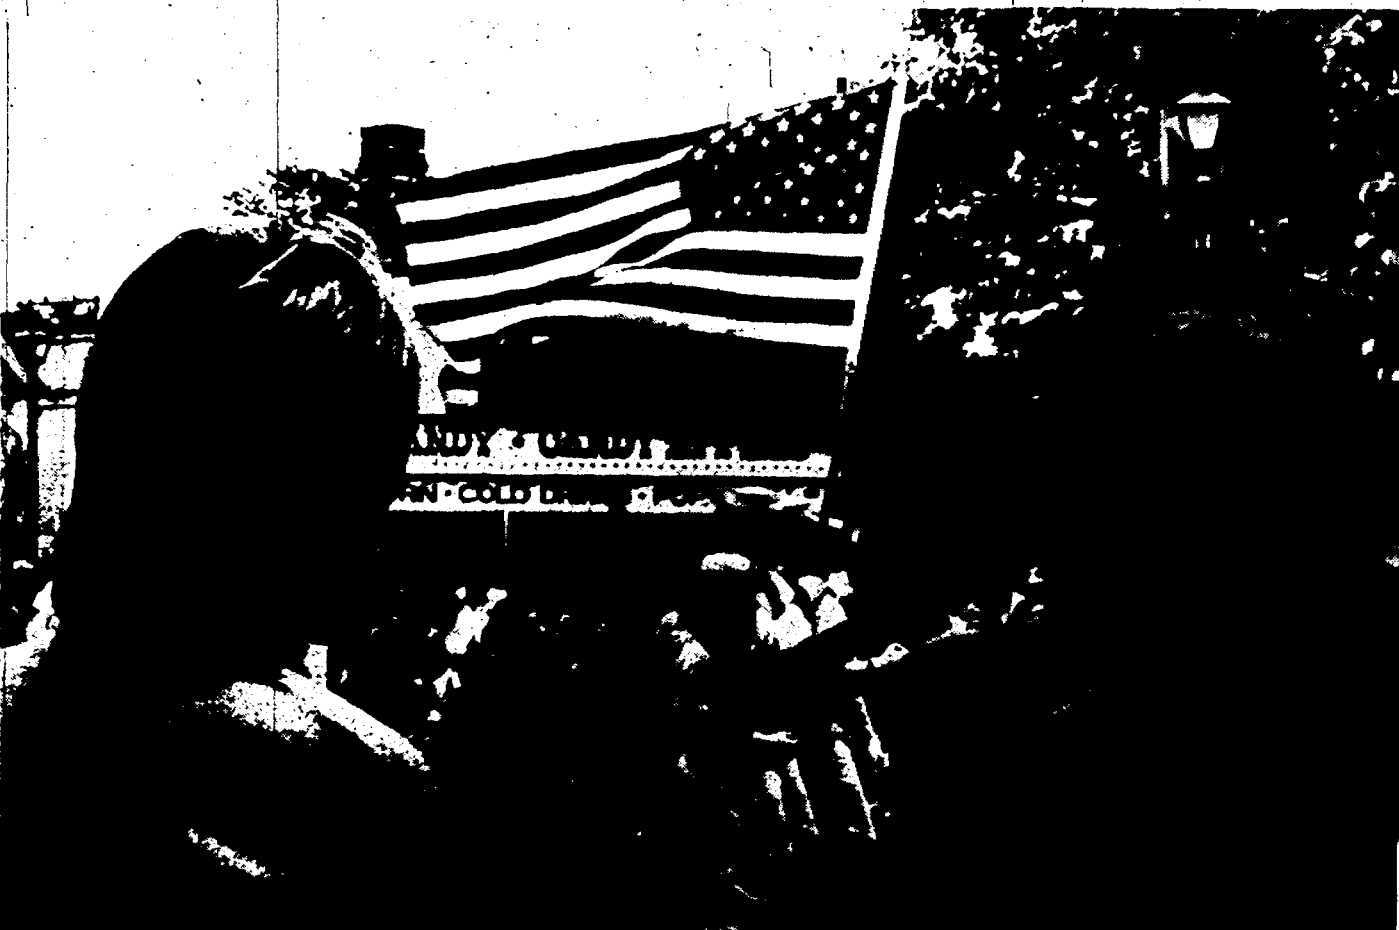

The course was also built around the expertise of the Michigan State Police Mobile Tactical Unit.

Scoggins enrolled in the course as part of his duties in the department's crime prevention-community service assignment, one of four department specialties.

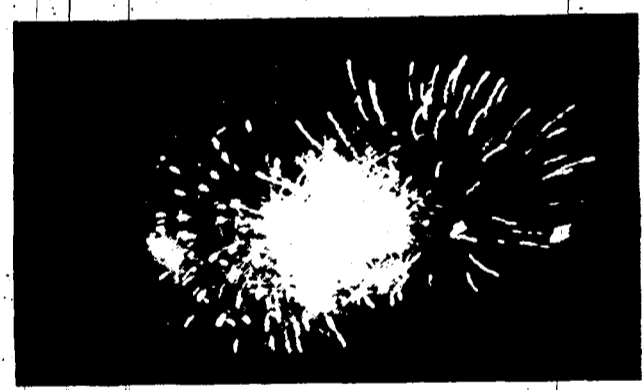

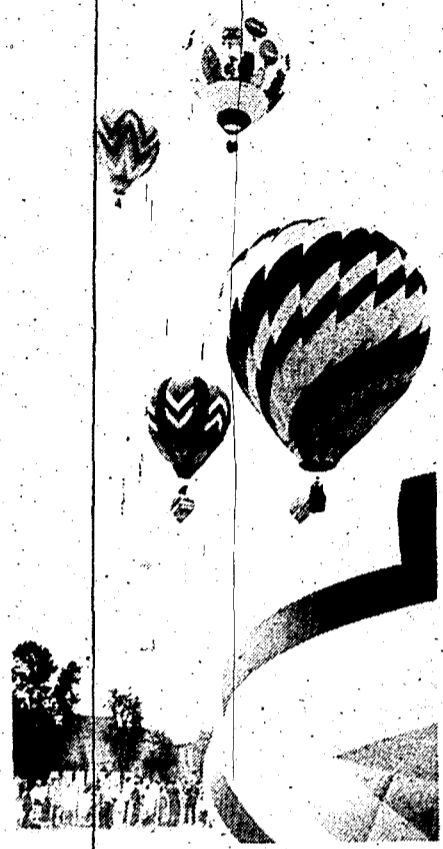

The Fourth, flags, fireworks,

THERE WAS PLENTY to see, to do and to enjoy this past week in The Plymouth-Canton Community. Crowds lined up for the Fourth of July parade in Plymouth, for which the weather cooperated and the Mayflower Hotel Hot Air Balloon Fest, for which it didn't. It was a red, white and blue weekend, a weekend of fireworks (some of which flew too close to the ground), Art in the Park and the Masonic Lodge's annual pancake breakfast. Also pictured are: the Alter car, Plymouth built vintage 1916, hoola hooping as part of the Jaycees 50-60s dance; Fred Hill's well-rehearsed briefcase drill team and balloonists looking out at the dismal weather.

Mr. Horton reminded the Board that the Ordinance adopting and authorizing the Establishment of a Police Force had language in it incorporating all future policies and procedures as they were approved.

Mr. Irvine asked about a "typo" on Page 206 — vehicle is misspelled. At the top of Page 66 — Open Door Complaint Procedure — "under no circumstances should a police officer ask any questions or discuss any complaints with any members of the Board of the Township".

Mr. Breen said the intent is not to stop anybody from the freedom of information, the intent is to keep the grievance procedures in place.

Mrs. Hulsing questioned the whole paragraph on Page 45. Mr. Berry said he spoke to Mr. Nora regarding that paragraph and he agreed that it does need some clarification.

2. Maurice Breen, Supervisor

Re: Park Project

Mrs. Joanne Hulce gave a brief presentation regarding the park project and the sculptor involved, Peter Rockwell who was introduced.

The project is titled "Play Sculpture in Plymouth Township Park -- A Community Experience"

Mrs. Hulce said she is looking for Board approval of the project to use the park for three months in the Spring of 1986, and their agreement to accept the final work as a permanent play sculpture for the park. The cost of the project will be born by Community donations.

David and Janet Campbell, Maurice Breen and Joanne Hulce are a committee of four who will spearhead this project.

This will be a model of Community participation in public sculpture, possibly a first in the State, attracting national attention, a piece or pieces of sculpture which will provide physical as well as visual enjoyment. The project provides the Community with an "artist in residence" for three months. The on-site carving period will allow maximum participation by the Community in observing the process in progress of the sculpture. The participation by the community and schools in funding will make it "their" project, "their" sculpture. Students and adults will actually learn to use the tools of a sculptor. Peter Rockwell, an experienced teacher, will be giving one day a week in the classroom. He will have the opportunity to teach an Adult-Education course in stone sculpture techniques or art history in stone carving while he is here.

Mr. Anulewicz described where the stone carving will take place in the park and the reasons for the specific locations.

Mr. Horton moved to approve the park project, setting aside the shelter for three months while the project -- "Play Sculpture in Plymouth Township Park -- A Community Experience" is taking place. Supported by Mrs. Hulsing.

Roll Call: Ayes: Hulsing, Brooks, Horton, Irvine, Munfakh, Pruner, Breen

Nays: None.

3.a) Re: Detroit Edison

• A right-of-way easement along the Lilley/Ann Arbor Road area

Mr. Breen said there is a right-of-way being requested between the two buildings (Gatco and the Township Hall). They are requesting to move some lines in order to service Gatco and they need to trim some trees towards the back of the property in order to run those lines.

Mr. Munfakh moved to grand the right-of-way easement in the Lilley/Ann Arbor Road area, subject to final engineering and legal approval. Supported by Mr. Pruner.

Roll Call: Ayes: Hulsing, Brooks, Horton, Irvine, Munfakh, Pruner, Breen

Nays: None.

b) Re: Detroit Edison

• Utility poles and easements for Detroit Edison along Beck Road/Hilltop Golf Course.

Mr. Breen said this request is for a right-of-way along Beck Road on the west side of the golf course. The description has not been modified and is subject to final engineering and legal approval. Mr. Hollis said there is no problem as far as citing the poles in terms of sewer and water.

Mr. Horton moved to grant the right-of-way easement along Beck Road/Hilltop Golf Course, subject to engineering and legal write-off by the Township. Supported by Mr. Pruner.

Roll Call: Ayes: Hulsing, Brooks, Horton, Irvine, Munfakh, Pruner, Breen

4. Hertz Penske Truck Leasing, Inc.

• Storm Drain Maintenance Agreement

• Resolution No. 85-6-25-32

Mr. James explained he could recommend approval, pursuant to correcting the language, specifically the last sentence in each paragraph in Section 3 which negates the rest of the paragraph which precedes it. They are not minor changes.

Mr. Horton moved to approve the Storm Drain Maintenance Agreement as in Resolution No. 85-6-25-32 for Hertz Penske Truck Leasing, Inc., subject to review and satisfaction of the legal requirements and legal sign-off in the agreement. Supported by Mr. Pruner.

Roll Call: Ayes: Hulsing, Brooks, Horton, Irvine, Munfakh, Pruner, Breen

Nays: None

*The resolution, in its entirety, is affixed to the official minutes.

5. Michael Bailey, Township Engineer

Re: Drainage Improvements -- Ann Arbor Trail and Glenview

• Icing Problems

Mr. Bailey handed out copies of quotations from three companies for the storm drain improvements at the intersection of Glenview and Ann Arbor Trail.

Any time in the winter there is a thaw, there is quite a bit of run-off that comes from Beacon Estates, flows out onto Ann Arbor Trail and the Glenview intersection and freezes.

We came up with a remedial program that we submitted to three local companies who submitted prices on it ranging from $3,140 to $3,800. We will have to get permission from the Wayne County Public Service Department to make the tap into the right-of-way. That has been submitted but we don't have the permit as yet.

The design feature that was lacking in this case, is actually standard for subdivisions that are coming through for approval.

Mr. Bailey said the approval for the contractor to go ahead will not be made until the easement has been taken care of and also approval given by the County to excavate within the right-of-way.

Hoben says students perform well despite Bd. concern

"They achieve according to their abilities," he said. "Sometimes we get snookered into the idea that we have an educationally elite student body."

"I don't suspect we're going to make great inroads into this," he said, pointing to solid student achievement on SAT and ACT college admissions tests.

"It's kind of unfair to expect them to achieve the 90th percentile."

"Sometimes we need to take a look at the heterogeneous population we serve when we rate performance."

Hoben said students in the district were doing "pretty good."

The committee of school board members, chaired by E. J. McClendon and including David Artley and Lester Walker, gave Hoben "A's in matters of "fiscal responsibility" and "legislation". Hoben received "perfect" fives in these areas from all members.

Canton Recycling keeps Twp. trash

BY DAVID PIERINI

Canton Disposal Recycling will continue collecting Plymouth Township Garbage.

The Township board last Tuesday approved a one-year contract extension which went into effect last Monday.

Recycling $3.26 per stop plus a cost of living adjustment to be determined every three months during the term.

"In the existing contract, there is a certain period of time before it kicks in but it will be no more than five per cent," said Supervisor Maurice Breen who was directed by the board at a May 7 special meeting to discuss the one-year extension of agreement. "The cost of living may not kick in until after September like it did last year."

Canton Recycling services 5,000 people in the Township and is entering its fourth year as the Township's garbage collectors. The contract is an extension of the June 13, 1984 contract which ended Sunday.

Petitions circulate for Library Board

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

July 26 is the last day candidates can file nominating petitions for election to the Plymouth Library District Board of Trustees.

Voters in the city and township of Plymouth will be asked Sept. 10 to approve the establishment of a district and elect nine trustees to oversee its operation.

The petitions require signatures of one-half of one per cent of the registered voters in the city-township district. That works out to 109 signatures, said township Clerk Esther Hulsing.

Six people have taken out petitions, Hulsing said. The six are: Carol Davis;

Mona Irvine; Cathy Doetsch; Ann Prehlik; and Janet Campbell. None has been returned.

"I would hope for at least 10 candidates," Hulsing said.

At least four others are reportedly considering running. They are: Jack Bologna; Jack Kenyon; John Nora; and Betty Pint.

Assuming city and township voters approve the establishment of the district in August, an additional proposal, empowering the district to levy operating millage, would be decided by voters Nov. 5.

Nominating petitions are available at the clerk's office in both the city and township.

Penn Theatre gets false

Ad agency likes city's look

BY BILL MARIOTT

Young & Rubicam didn't find the classic art-deco theatre of the '30s and '40s they wanted in downtown Detroit.

The ad agency didn't find it in Ann Arbor, either.

But Plymouth's Penn theatre was "darn perfect" for Lincoln-Mercury's commercial to be shot Wednesday and Thursday nights, said Bob Long, the commercial's executive producer.

"I was out one night until 1:30 in the morning looking for theatres," he said.

Because the old movie houses in Detroit needed too much renovation, the Penn was chosen to represent the Hollywood movie premier theme of the commercial.

"We would have had to do 20 weeks of 'This Old Theater' for the ones downtown before we could use them," Long joked.

The production company has removed the flower boxes near the Penn, and the city has resurfaced the road for the spot.

A false front will be added to make the Penn appear larger.

Crier Fall Fest ad deadlines

The Community Crier's annual Fall Festival edition, a celebration of the September fest of the same name, is in the works.

Advertisers should be aware of deadlines for the issue: Industry and Commerce ad deadlines are Aug. 7, including full color.

The proof ad deadline for other sections of the edition is Aug. 21. The final advertising deadline is Aug. 28.

Most years, advertising space is sold out before deadlines and sales close out early, so reserve your space early.

Burglars hit city businesses--again

A flurry of business burglaries occurred in the City of Plymouth last week.

Mountain Rags, 643 N. Mill in Old Village was broken into Sunday evening or Monday morning and $50 was taken from the cash drawer, police said.

Four other Mill Street businesses were burglarized last week, according to police reports.

The Doll Carriage, Friendly Persuasions, and Gold and Silver Goodies, all on 696 S. Mill St. were burglarized July 2 or 3.

About $8 in cash was taken from the Doll Carriage when a thief or two forced open a sliding glass door. Gold and Silver Goodies appeared to have been burglarized, though nothing was reported missing. Friendly Persuasions reported $10 in coins stolen and $500 in damage.

Across the street at Useful Uniques, 657 N. Mill St., a thief or thieves pushed in a window air conditioner, causing $150 damage. Nothing was reported missing.

The Little Experience, 1048 S. Main St. was burglarized July 2 or 3. A basement window was broken causing $60 in damage but nothing was reported missing.

Heide's Flowers and Gifts, 995 W. Ann Arbor Trail suffered $25 in damages July 2 or 3 when a thief or thieves tried to gain entry by damaging a window.

City seeks improved communication with firms

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

When Dunn Steel Company packed up shop last year and moved to Tennessee, City of Plymouth officials were some of the last to know.

City Manager Henry Graper says a Michigan Bell Telephone Company business retention program may keep the city better informed about the needs of its established businesses.

Bell Telephone conceived the program which uses a 29-page questionnaire and interviews with representatives of local companies to collect data about the wants and perceptions of manufacturing companies.

A committee of 30-40 local business and chamber of commerce volunteers will conduct the interviews and overs distribution of the surveys to local companies.

Graper said Dunn Steel left the city for the cheaper labor costs of the south, a reason the city could do little about. But he said the program may establish better lines of communication between the firms and the city.

"I think it will allow to learn more about what (the firms) want, what their problems and concerns are, and then we can see if we can help them," Graper said.

The City Commission approved a motion July 1 allowing for the city participation in the program. Michigan Bell representatives presented the program to the commission last month.

The city and township of Plymouth, Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce and Michigan Bell will each be involved in the program, Graper said. The Plymouth Township Board of Trustees has not yet considered the program.

Graper said municipalities often overlook established firms while seeking to attract new ones. He said those established companies can actually be valuable promoters for the community in which they are located.

The city would be better off, Graper said, if it hears complaints or problems of the companies firsthand, rather than through rumor or not at all.

"If someone gives us a problem, we will address the problem... But we have to know what the problems are."

Pellet gunners shatter windows

Automobile windows were shot out across the city Sunday night or early Monday, according to police reports.

At least six car owners reported damage to police.

Cars on McKinley, Irvin, Dewey and Simpson were reported shot out.

Canton firemen vow to fight dispatch plan

Canton's firemen are prepared to fight a central dispatch proposal passed by the township board June 11.

Canton Township Fire Fighters Association Local 2289 has notified the township, through its lawyers, they will take "whatever action necessary to oppose any attempt by the Township to implement a new central dispatch system."

The firemen believe central dispatch affects their safety, saying it can delay their arrival at the scene of the fire.

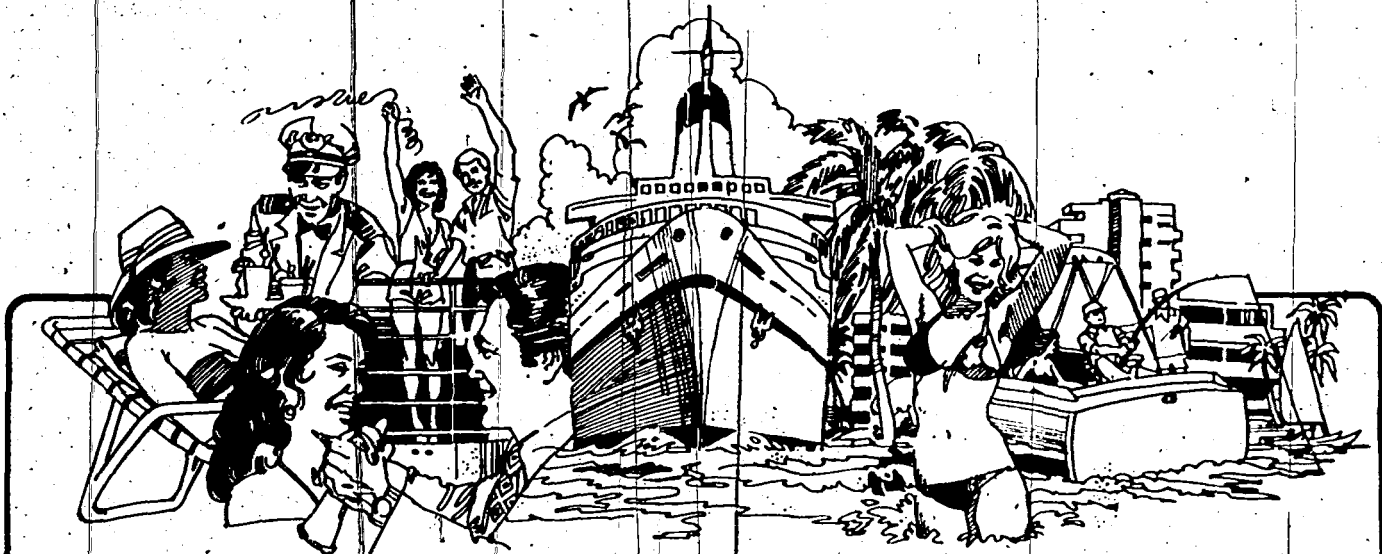

Currently fire cadets handle dispatch. The township plans to hire civilians, who the firemen claim are untrained in fire fighting dispatch.

Ron Helveston, lawyer for Local 2289 said in a letter to the township: "The proposal for central dispatch would apparently add another link in the chain of response, and also would apparently use civilians...who may fail to or take longer to get pertinent information--both of which could cause greater delay...or otherwise impact on safety."

Township Supervisor Jim Poole said he intended to continue support for a central dispatch.

"This (central dispatch) is working all over the country but they don't want it," he said. "I think it's simple. It (central dispatch) will put more firemen to work and we'll be able to hire more cops for the road."

Poole said it would save the township considerable money to hire the civilians. He said each civilian hired cost between $16-20,000 compared to an average of $45,000 (including benefits) for firemen.

Welder's lost treasures turn up

Through Bifocals

By Fred DeLano

When Bill Hinote said that the work done by men in his employ is "hot, sweaty, hard and dirty," I knew immediately he wasn't talking about newspaper folks, teachers, bartenders or politicians.

You see, to work for Bill, you have to be a welder.

We got to chinning in a social moment not long ago when I asked how things were progressing in the move of Ossie's Welding, Inc., which he owns, to a new location at 38921 Ford Rd. from the site occupied for 39 years at the corner of Lilley Road and Ann Arbor Trail.

Most of us have moved family and household trivia from one location to another, maybe even several times, and are mystified by how much doggone junk can accumulate in garages, closets, cabinet drawers and attics over a period of years -- some of it long forgotten. I wondered if Bill's business experience had been comparable.

"It was a 39-year accumulation of odds and ends, you could say junk, you could say stuff we never knew we'd had for 30 years," he chuckled. "In sorting through all this, we found a brand new grinder. Since that one was purchased, we probably bought 15 others. It was still in its original box, covered up by some old trailer lights.

"We found nuts and bolts as well as drawers of stuff we'd probably looked for -- including torches and torch parts that were brand new. Even so, we hauled away two 40-yard boxes and in scrap we hauled away four boxes that weighed 10 tons each; that's 80,000 pounds of scrap and there's still one more box left in the yard over there.

"It took a month to move everything and we opened the new place April 1. We have 10,000 square feet in the new shop plus 2,000 square feet for office. In continuing the ongoing day-to-day jobs, it still will be six months before we're completely set up. No. 1 priority is to put in a couple five-ton overhead bridge cranes."

Bill, a 41-year-old Air Force veteran, really is Ossie William Hinote, Jr. His father started Ossie's Welding in 1946 at the corner of Lilley and Ann Arbor Trail after previous experience with Kelsey-Hayes and the Willow Run bomber plant. He now lives in retirement at Sault Ste. Marie.

When Hinote senior retired 12 years ago, Bill and his brother, Chuck, took over the operation, with Bill eventually buying Chuck out seven or eight years ago. (The latter now has his own welding business on Haggerty Road.) Three sisters are scattered between New Jersey, New York and Arizona; all five Hinote children attended Plymouth-Canton schools.

"We needed a bigger building, more room," Bill said in explaining why the former facility was sold to Midway Welding Supply, Inc. As examples of work done in-plant, he pointed to pictures of a tank standing 60 feet in height and 24 feet in diameter done for a Wayne firm, and of a 137-foot water tower stand pipe installed at the state prison in Jackson.

Two unique magnetic shielding units for use at Ford Hospital in Detroit also are among recent products turned out by the firm. Hinote says they were the first of their kind made in the United States.

"I started working for my dad and learning the trade when I was 11," remarked Hinote. "It has made me a good living. Welders make good money, but it's becoming a lost art. The kids today want to start at the top.

"It takes a special kind of guy to stand his hot, sweaty, hard, dirty work and become a good welder. All the men I've got are certified. They all had to be tested. Their work was X-rayed to determine the quality.

"But the field is changing fast, now getting into automated robots that are programmed to do mass welding, but these units cost $50,000 and more."

Will Ossie's Welding ever go that route?

All the young owner will say to that question is "I've thought about it."

Down The Road

How dumb! City issues hacky-sack tickets

During a recent trip through the City of Plymouth Police complaint book, I came across a pair of tickets issued for reasons I found interesting to say the least.

Two 18-year-olds, one from Plymouth and the other from Canton, were ticketed Aug. 8 for playing hacky sack in Kellogg Park. A hacky sack is a small ball filled with beads. Two or more people play hack sack in a circle by kicking, in about every imaginable way, the ball or sack to the next person. The game is popular on college campuses, where there is often nothing more important to do.

The brief report accompanying the tickets said the police officer watched the two kids playing hacky sack for five minutes from 7:25 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. before approaching them and issuing the ticket.

The tickets were issued for misuse of the park.

City code does indeed prohibit the playing of hacky sack in Kellogg Park. The City Commission, anticipating young people problems downtown this summer, passed an ordinance last April, a section of which prohibits playing hacky sack and Frisbee in public parks, playgrounds or parking lots.

I think it's a safe bet that some of the commissioners who approved the ordinance had never witnessed a game of hacky sack. It is about as hazardous as planting a bed of marigolds.

I don't blame the cop who wrote up the ticket. If it's on the books, he's supposed to enforce it. Like City Manager Henry Graper said Monday, if the police didn't equally enforce the ordinance, I'd be writing a nasty column on that subject.

Mayor David Pugh said the hacky sack and Frisbee ordinance was part of an attempt by the city to curb young people from loitering and generally raising hell in the park. Some older residents have complained large groups of young people have harassed them and kept them from enjoying the park.

Pugh also said the ordinance was an overreaction.

I would agree. I imagine Kellogg Park presents a nice setting in which to play the game. The city has chosen, in the case of the two ticketed youths, to prohibit people from enjoying the park, just like the large group of raucous youths does.

I don't think you can solve the problems of the world by passing laws which dictate proper and improper behavior.

The hacky sack section of the ordinance goes beyond over-regulation into that area known as just plain dumb.

THE LONG WEEKEND'S many activities provided entertainment for everyone in The Plymouth-Canton Community. The 106-girl band from Denmark (left) was a hit in the July 4th parade. So were the wheelchair seniors (below). Enjoying the Mayflower Hotel Hot Air Balloon Fest were: Linda and Don Gottleber, and Dorothy and Bud Sovel. (Crier photos by Chris Boyd and Tom Dougherty)

Lots to do here

"Nothing ever happens here," is a popular complaint among Plymouth-Canton folks -- young and old alike.

This past weekend belies that notion.

From the start of the July 4th activities until the last balloonist touched down Sunday, there were a host of activities designed at pleasing crowds of all ages.

The new Jaycee-sponsored "family day at the park" turned out well. An addition to the traditional race, parade and fireworks, the picnic activities were a nice touch.

Band concerts and dance concerts -- by the trusty Community Band, by the returning Gladsaxe Pigegarde of Denmark (they visited here in 1976 as well), or by the local guys known as Benny and the Jets -- kept folks tapping toes or on their feet.

Throw in the mixture of Art in the Park, and there was plenty for everyone.

And all that not even counting the balloon fest. The several activities surrounding the event sponsored by the Mayflower Hotel's Scott Lorenz saw the first-ever 5 a.m. where all the downtown Plymouth parking places were gone.

The balloons themselves provided swell entertainment for the Canton residents who benefitted greatly from the ballon fest's moving from Plymouth Township.

So, yes, there were lots to do here -- just enjoy.

And next time you have trouble finding something to do: sit tight.

Bring back City rescue

CEMS response time: 50 minutes is very poor

EDITOR:

This is an open letter to Henry E. Graper, Jr., City Manager, City of Plymouth:

On Sunday afternoon, June 2 1985, at approximately 2 p.m., I was taken to Arbor Health Center in Plymouth with symptoms of an apparent heart attack. I received immediate and excellent attention there and, at my doctor's request, was to be transported by ambulance to the Coronary Care Unit at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ann Arbor.

At 3:10 p.m., a call was placed from Arbor Health Center to Community Emergency Medical Service (CEMS), Farmington. We awaited; no unit arrived. At 3:38 p.m. (28 minutes later), CEMS called to inform the nurse that there was no unit in the area and suggested that she call Taylor Ambulance or another company. She then proceeded to call Northville CEMS and was informed that their unit would respond. I left for Ann Arbor at 4 p.m.

This is a response time of 50 minutes. When I questioned this via CEMS, I was told that my situation was not considered life-threatening.

If a coronary attack is not life-threatening I would like an explanation of what is!

Fortunately I was being well cared for and I am grateful to the doctors and nurses at Arbor Health Center. Under different circumstances, however, this may have proven very serious.

In my opinion, one of the worst things to have happened to the residents of Plymouth was the loss of our rescue squad service. We always had immediate response and excellent attention from our firemen.

I am not criticizing the two attendants from CEMS who transported me to Ann Arbor. They were very efficient and courteous. I am criticizing the total response time. We deserve and must have better service than this in an emergency situation.

Mary Childs is right

Mary Childs is right.

There was more than just "tongue in cheek" honesty in her suggestion that the City of Plymouth start its own health department.

Such a department, she reasoned at the last City Commission meeting, could choose not to enforce the state law requiring food preparation to be screened off. The City of Detroit Health Department has chosen not to enforce that regulation at events in its jurisdiction.

But because Plymouth is under the jurisdiction of the Wayne County Health Department things are different here.

This year's Fall Festival will have a different look and at no small expense either.

With Malice Toward None

By W. Edward WENDOVER

The Canton Country Fest has been through it too. Canton is also under county jurisdiction for health matters.

Next will be all the other events -- like the pancake breakfasts last weekend and the food booths at Art in the Park.

The screens are coming.

Unfortunately, the screening costs less than a certified health department, according to City Manager Henry Graper.

But the sentiment that Mary expressed hits the nail on the head.

How to beat the boredom of commuting on I-96

Commute. The dictionary says it means "to change." I know when I commute, a 25-mile drive from downtown Detroit to Plymouth, I change. A normal, healthy young man is put fast to sleep by what seems endless pavement.

Hundreds of people from The Plymouth-Canton Community commute daily to downtown Detroit. It's part of their lives. They say it relaxes them and gives them time to think. Not to mention live outside of Detroit and become friends with their insurance salesman again.

Most commuters have commuted all their working days and don't know the splendor of walking or bicycling to work. They are quite content with arriving at work to explain the coffee stains on their laps.

Times Like These

By Ed Fitzgerald

But I know there's a better way. When working as an assistant-pharmacist in a drug store I lived three blocks from work. I could wake twenty minutes before my shift started, dress, and walk -- humming -- out the door. It was wonderful.

Now, sometime before dawn, I drag myself out of bed, dress, walk down to my car, release the brake (or hood, depending how tired) and point myself toward Plymouth. Boring.

As you commuters know it's a fairly easy drive to Detroit, maybe too easy. I-96 is a gem of a freeway. For one thing, it's two freeways. One for express and one for local. It's questionable whether this extra freeway was needed and I'd hate to see how much it cost us.

But it does make commuting from Detroit to Plymouth a snoozy snap. Rarely is there traffic where you can rouse by screaming obscenities at other drivers. Interchanges like I-275, I-94, I-75 do not cause much trouble. Unless, of course, the Wayne County Road Commission closes a lane with twenty pylons around twenty talking men who have put twenty shirtmakers out of a job. The delay can put you out of a job too.

The boredom of commuting is thick. You know it's bad when you start to recognize people driving next to you and worse when you notice they've washed their car.

There is only one way for me to break the boredom of my commute. That's, sightseeing. On I-96 from Plymouth to Detroit there's some interesting sights.

There's Tiger Stadium, for instance. It's nice to see the ol' place going stronger than ever. Then there's Olympia Stadium, and you wonder how it's avoided the wrecking ball.

There's some great graffiti. My favorite is "Scott lvs Renee." The abbreviation for love makes me think someone paid, by the letter, for the graffiti. Under the graffiti there's great sounding streets, like Stark and Stout.

Near Farmington there's a long stretch of industrial corridor on I-96's south side. Dozens of companies no one has ever heard of, call the service drive home. One of my favorites is Jimco. I know in the executive office is a man named Jim with a lot of imagination.

Then and maybe most importantly is the Detroit Race Course. Someday take the Middlebelt exit and play hooky from work. Inside the park, scores of middle-aged gamblers sit watching the results on monitors. They never go outside to see the horses. The horses may as well not be there.

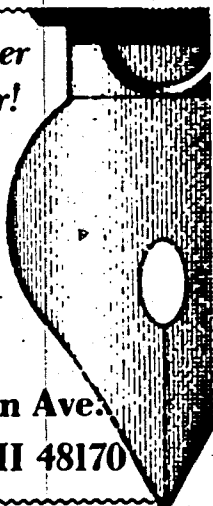

The bettors wouldn't know if the horses had escaped, maybe down onto the freeway causing hundreds of innocent commuters to wake.

She's a year too early for modeling success

BY ED FITZGERALD

Someday, whether it's in a bookstore or the waiting room of a dentist's office, you will pick up a magazine and Jailey Philpot's mug will look you square in the eye.

Philpot, of Plymouth, is only 13 years old, but off to a flying start in the jet-setting world of modeling.

Jailey (her middle name, "Too many of my friends are named Jennifer," she says of her first name), never considered modeling until last February.

"I was going through a magazine when I noticed a contest, 'John Casablanca's Look of the Year,'" she says. "The ad said you had to be 14. But I thought if they saw my face they might remember it later on. I never thought I'd be chosen."

But she was. In March, a call came from New York. Casablanca's Elite Modeling Management had fallen for a pair of ordinary snapshots taken of Jailey by her father.

The first thing Jailey did was fess up. "I told them I had lied about my age. They (Elite) said they would have to get back to me. But they called later and said they'd make me an exception."

That decision set the stage for Jailey's win in a preliminary "Look of the Year" contest at Dearborn's

JAILEY PHILPOT fibbed about her age then was named a finalist in a modeling contest.

Fairlane Town Center. Her prize was an all-expenses paid trip to Acapulco, where she placed as one of 30 semi-finalists in the contest's North American division, which originally had 95,000 entrants.

The next stop, in June, was the contest's final in Mauritius (an island in the Indian Ocean) where Jailey competed against 59 other girls from around the world. A $200,000 two-year modeling contract was first prize. Jailey did not place, but she was not disappointed.

"They told me I couldn't even be one of the 25 finalists because of my age," she said. "But I feel secure knowing I won't be running around Europe. I'm really too young for that."

"It was kind of sad, but I'll take a trip to a tropical island at any rate."

Jailey's mother, Elaine Attridge, also thought Jailey was too young to model. Jailey's sister, Michelle, is a model in Chicago.

"At first I was completely against the contest," Attridge says. "I kept hearing God's voice tell me it was wrong. Then I realized it was my own voice and I put Jailey in God's hands."

"I'm glad she's home and without a contract. Modeling can sometimes just glorify the flesh."

Casablanca's basic requirements of models might lend credence to that. A Casablanca news release says the firm is looking for girls at least 5'8" (Jailey stands five feet, 10 and one-half inches) with well-proportioned bodies, long legs, long necks, and photogenic faces.

Jailey, an all-A plus student at Fairlane Christian School, isn't putting all her chips on modeling. She plans to study marine biology.

"You have to have something to fall back on," she says.

Jailey also believes something extra is needed for the "love 'em and leave 'em" world of modeling.

"Modeling is very worldly and can exploit your face and beauty," she says. "You have to have an inner-strength and faith in God."

In August, Jailey will spend two weeks in New York for model testing.

Antique cars tour Plymouth

GEORGE SCHAFFER stands next to his 1939 Buick, which he calls "a plain Jane."

This Tuesday morning over 50 antique automobiles will roll through downtown Plymouth. It's part of the Chrome Glidden Tour by the Veteran Motor Club of America.

Three of the cars will be driven by Plymouthites. George and Beverly Schaffer will cruise in a 1939 black Buick. Lloyd and Betty Leach will drive a 1951 black Cadillac. Margaret Dunning will gad about in a 1953 yellow convertible Cadillac. The cars can be seen on Main Street, 8:30-10 a.m. Tuesday.

Fourth annual is misleading. The tour started in 1906. A man named Glidden, an auto parts manufacturer, used the tour to prove the durability of cars. The car didn't need much selling and the tour was abandoned in 1912. It was resurrected in 1946. This year marks the fourth consecutive year for the tour.

Private owners from across the country will converge on the Holiday Inn in Livonia this Sunday. With the motel as headquarters, drivers will take various day trips through Michigan, visiting Greenfield Village, the Silverdome, and, of course, Plymouth.

All of the cars in this year's tour were manufactured between 1935 and 1960.

"We wanted to get more younger people involved," said tour chairman Donald Bluhm, of Livonia. "This would allow for people with cars they remember from their childhood in the 50s."

George Schaffer and wife Beverly say the tours are a good time to get together and talk cars with others.

George says the tours are always good for a laugh. He and Beverly organized a similar tour last Memorial Day.

"We drove through Dexter and ran into their Memorial Day parade. The police waved one of our cars right into the parade and they drove down the street."

tell it to Denise

Homesickness, all during last August that is what I heard, "Denise, you're going to be homesick." What actually is this mysterious homesickness? Pondering over my nineteen years, I don't ever recall running into this strange illness (senioritis maybe but homesickness, no way!) I just smiled and prepared myself to experience this strange, overwhelming feeling, known to all as homesickness.

As my parents drove off and left the Lansing area last September, all that crossed my mind was wow, I'm actually here. Not a tear was shed (on my part). I wasn't sad, just exhilarated to be enjoying freedom in a whole new environment. I was busy with new classes and an unfamiliar campus (but that's another story), plenty of activities and involvement. There were lots of people to meet at mixers, parties, and socials. These were some of those important functions that enhanced that first week. (I think the point is to keep the students too busy to think about home.)

The first weekend was soon upon us and to my surprise many people left to make that first trip home. Already? I thought, and I was just beginning to get in the swing of things and enjoy myself and this new found freedom.

My mom had talked to her friends who said that their children just could not find the time to write. "Not my Denise" my mom said, she will write at least every week.

How can one keep up with letters and call home while attempting to tackle homework, and let us not forget the ever so important aspect of socializing. Thus, mom began calling me and asking how I was and if I needed anything. I gave her the answers and tried to briefly fill her in on all the happenings.

I think mom wishes that she could be up here I often thought...she would have a great time, but still no homesickness. I really can say during that first year I only wanted to come home once. It was the time I got very sick. It was the moment I realized I wanted my mommy. (Isn't that how it always is?) I came home, enjoyed a visit and re-cooperated. Within one weekend, I bounced back to engage in some of that good college moderation. (You know a little studying, a little socializing...) Before I knew it, I was in the swing of things once again.

No, I don't think my parents ever thought that I would have an "adjustment problem" nor extreme homesickness. However, I think they felt that I may have loved school too much. Yet, as parents, I think they realized, they hadn't lost a daughter, but gained an avid Spartan!

BJ's Bowery -- Steak for small dollars

BY CHERYL EBERWEIN

BJ's Bowery is open for business -- and serving up big screen Tiger games along with plenty of food and drink.

BJ's, located west of I-275 on Ford Road in Canton, opened six months ago in what was formerly the old Palace Restaurant and Streets Pub. A new interior, large menu, reasonable prices, entertainment and big screen TV are main drawing cards for patrons, according to the restaurant's owner, Bob Czerniak.

Czerniak, an eight year Canton resident, said BJ's is his first venture into the restaurant business. But the food and drink industry is not totally foreign to him: Czerniak has owned the Country Deli and Wine Store in Lilley and Warren roads in Canton for the past seven years.

"It has been in the back of my mind for a long time that I'd like to run a bar-restaurant," Czerniak said. "BJ's is a place where a husband and wife can come in and have a couple of drinks, order a hamburger or a steak and feel comfortable and not spend big dollars."

Czerniak bought the old Palace building in November and spent six weeks remodeling the interior into BJ's. The new restaurant boasts plenty of natural wood, roomy booths, a large horseshoe bar, brass trimmings and low lighting.

Czerniak said one of the best features he offers patrons is a large screen TV with a pass to watch Tiger home games. BJ's seats approximately 115 people.

Czerniak and his crew of 22 full and part-time employes dish up a variety of foods to keep the crowds pleased. Everyone's favorite -- the hamburger -- is called a Canton burger on the BJ's menu. For those seeking a little more zest and variety, Czerniak also offers deep dish pizza (regular and Mexican), Greek salads, fresh seafood, a variety of hot and cold deli sandwiches, munchies, homemade soups, barbecue chicken, steaks, ribs, and Mexican entrees.

BJ's offers daily lunch and dinner specials and is open Monday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 2 a.m. BJ's is also open Sundays for breakfast at 9 a.m. and remains open until 2 a.m.

A new entertainment act, Ron McDonald, performs weekends at BJ's on Saturday from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. and Sunday from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. Czerniak said McDonald does three, one-hour-long comedy routines including such acts as "First tour of the islands" and "Trip through puberty."

"There really isn't anything else like this in the area," Czerniak said. "Restaurants around here jump from bars to expensive places with nothing in between."

BJ's, he indicated, fills that missing niche perfectly.

BOB CZERNIAK stands in the doorway of his BJ's Bowery. Czerniak offers pizza, seafood and deli sandwiches -- at reasonable prices. "Restaurants around here jump from bars to expensive places with nothing in between," he explains. (Crier photo by Thom Dougherty)

Hundreds run five on fourth

A LITTLE OVER 200 runners took part in the Plymouth Jaycees annual Fourth of July five mile run. The start of the race was about 20 minutes late when city police changed the race route, said race director and Jaycee Karen Murphy. Some runners also complained about the lack of markings along the route. (Left) Tim Kerr, 26, of Dearborn, who won the race in a time of 24:31. (Right) Kathy Irwin-Grover, 26, of Bloomfield Hills, the top women's finisher, who had a time of 32:41. (Below) runners push down Junction.

Cummings tapped as AD and much more

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT

Paul Cummings was appointed Plymouth-Canton Schools' director of health, physical education and athletics Monday night by the school board.

Cummings, who has been assistant high school athletic director for 10 years, was picked from 32 applicants for the job.

Cummings will oversee all health, physical education and athletics activities for grades K-12, including curriculum development, scheduling and ticket sales of high school sports and school athletic budgets.

School officials decided to increase the duties of the athletic director beyond the coordination of high school sports.

"We wanted to expand the duties of this job and this was the appropriate time to do it," said board member David Artley.

Artley said the school board and administration wanted to emphasize all

Grand slam nails Canton coffin shut

BY DAVID PIERINI

All summer long, they scoffed at Mike Kesson's all-league honors.

Teams looked on as Kesson beat out one dribbley hit after another. They'd remark, "This kid lead the league in hitting? No way."

Even Canton wondered as they witnessed two strike outs and a pop to second in his first three at bats:

Wonder no more.

A grand slam in the top of the seventh by the bonafide all-league hitter confirmed his status.

It also confirmed that records don't matter in a Salem-Canton game. The Salem Mack team brought their 1-7 record into Monday night's game against the Canton Elks (7-3) and had the last laugh in a 7-1 victory.

"He has a lot of hits, he just hasn't hit with authority," Salem coach Frank Belhart said of Kesson.

If it weren't for strong pitching by Tim Helmekangus for six innings, things wouldn't have happened the way they did.

Elk pitcher Bucky Blake kept hitters frustrated, striking out 11 while holding Salem to one unearned run.

Blake was aided by plate umpire Gary Cox who called a full corner to corner strike zone, which had Salem hitters looking at third strikes.

Chris White would rather go down swinging. In the top of the fifth, White watched two go by and was called out on strikes. He argued and was ejected from the game by Cox. White, wanting the last word, flashed an obscene hand gesture.

Dom Debello joined White in the sixth inning as he bickered with Cox on a strike two call. Debello exchanged words with Cox, triggering another ejection. Belhart and assistant Jim Drewry challenged Cox with their arguments but it did no good.

"I had a good time," Cox said. "I call corner to corner, rib cage to knees, that's how I always call 'em."

But while all of this went on, Helmekangus held Elk hitters to two hits.

In the top of the seventh, Blake walked Steve Dawson who moved to third on a single by Chris Belhart. Brian Drewry hit a grounder to Pete Morman at first forcing Morman to throw home. Morman's throw was in the dirt, allowing Dawson to score.

Youngster tosses gem

BY DAVID PIERINI

Greg Koers isn't perfect, it just seemed that way.

The 12 year old right hander for the Rangers of the Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League, threw a no-hit, perfect game in an 18-0 onslaught of the Tigers.

"I don't know if there has ever been a no-hit, perfect game in the league," said coach Jack Koers who is also the father of the young hurler. "Not one kid reached base."

Young Koers pitched the full six innings, retiring 18 batters in a row and collecting 10 strike outs. With a good-sized crowd on hand to see him pitch the final inning, Koers kept his cool and polished the gem by striking out the last batter on three pitches.

While the perfect game in itself is special, the fact it was Koers's first appearance as a starting pitcher, made it even more amazing.

Not bad for a first time, huh kid? "Pretty good," said the slightly modest Koers who's strategy is a bit different from most pitchers. "I just pretend like we're losing. "I try to get everybody out 1-2-3. I do my best."

aspects of health in the job and in the schools.

Cummings said the increased duties would the Plymouth-Canton schools in line with other districts.

Cummings has coached football, baseball and swimming in Plymouth-Canton schools.

"I've been hoping it would happen this way," Cummings said after his appointment. "I've been looking forward to this."

Cummings said he hadn't decided who he would name as an assistant or assistants.

Cummings began working for the district in 1959 as an assistant to the director of the community education program. He taught physical education in both elementary and high school.

Salem downs Canton 7-1

Blake walked in a run with two straight base on balls. Mike Clark came in relief and got the first out but Kesson came up and sent the next fastball downtown.

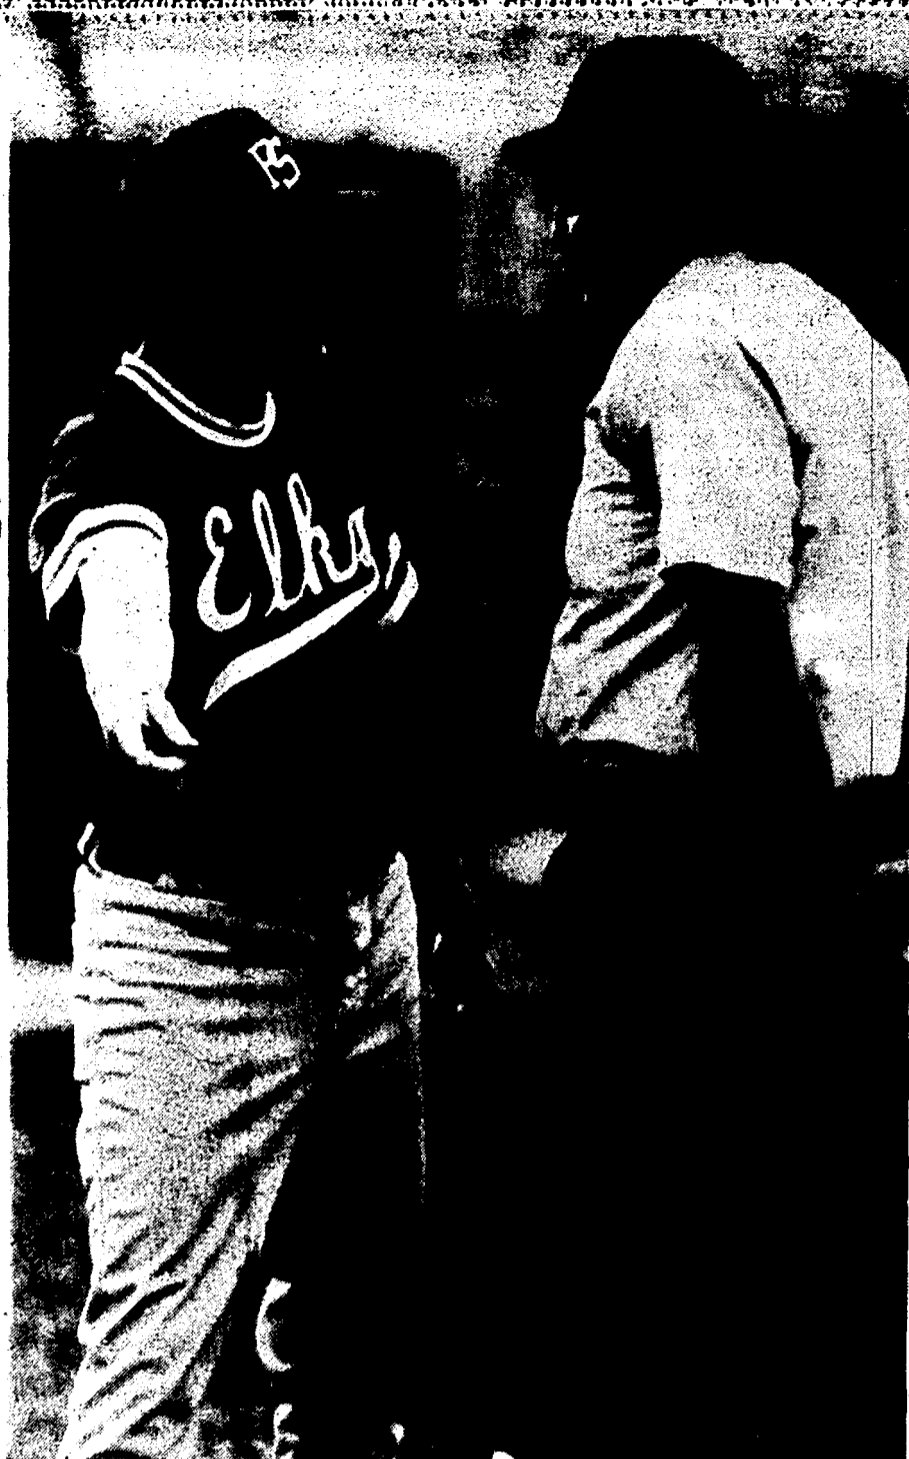

Elk's catcher Dwayne Bennett isn't making excuses, but he said five players were absent from the roster including Mark Coburn and Tim Michalik.

"Our schedule has been flopped around quite a bit. This game was scheduled for tomorrow (Tuesday). Whether those guys missed tonight because of that, I don't know," Bennett said.

Belhart said the defense was sharp for a change. "The last game we played (Griffin's), we made 12 errors," Belhart said. "We out hit them 13-9 and lost the ball game 10-7."

Crier wants gutsy players

Practice, practice, practice.

You better get plenty of it, because it's time again for The Crier Tennis Tournament, scheduled for August 16-18 at Canton High School.

The cost is just three bucks per event and entrants play within their own age group so the competitive edge is kept even.

The City of Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department is handling all the paper work for the affair. Recreation Department Director Chuck Skene said he expects to see a good tournament this year, similar to those of years past.

Cougars take Ohio tourney

The Canton Cougars boys 11-and-under select team returned from the Lorain, OH. International Festival Soccer Tournament last weekend with first place trophies.

The Cougars won all five of their games in the tournament which featured teams from Ohio, Michigan, and Pennsylvania.

The team is coached by Frank Cespino and Roy Lerner. Team managers are George Lee and Dave Cook.

Stingers win

The Stingers are on a streak.

The girls under-14 soccer team won their second straight state title and so far this season have compiled a 28-2-2 record.

They will travel to Kansas City July 18 for regional play.

The Stingers won the under-14 bracket title at the Wolverine Soccer Tournament last weekend at Schoolcraft College.

Plymouth players on the team are: Michelle Fortier, Candi Jones, Kristie Redmond, Missy Smith, Marcia Wordhouse, Michelle Dright, and Jill Estee. Stinger Tricia Greenhalge is from Canton.

They are coached by Don Smith.

Get physical

Canton and Salem high school athletes can get their physicals July 17 at Salem.

Physicals for female athletes will be given in the upper commons at Salem beginning at 3 p.m.

Male athletes, except for football players, will be given physicals at 5:30 p.m., also in Salem's upper commons.

The cost is $7.

In Bold Print

By David Pierini

No exit?

John Gravlin looked on as the second Salem player of the game was ejected.

"My kids would've never done that during the season," he said.

Chris White and Dom Debello were tossed out of the game by plate umpire Gary Cox because they questioned and argued the calls of Cox.

White, who's exit was in the fifth inning, looked at a second and third strike and was called out. White who stuck a barb at Cox went so far as to wave that old familiar favorite, the finger.

Debello wasn't even called out on strikes when he was ejected in the sixth. He dickered with Cox on a strike two call.

At this point, Frank Belhart and assistant Jim Drewry challenged Cox with their arguments, mixing in a few digs at his competency.

"Who the hell you trying to impress, this is not the major leagues," Belhart shouted.

The ump didn't throw them out, he had already shaved the Salem line-up enough.

After the game, Belhart said that White and Debello were out of line and that their actions were uncalled for. Good, but why did they erupt in the first place?

"Look at 'Race's' kids. Sisler strikes out on a questionable call, he turns and walks away," Gravlin said.

It was good that Belhart recognized his players mistakes but it should've never happened in the first place.

Belhart and Drewry should exercise a little more control and discipline in the dugout. The players constant chattering wasn't always filled with team spirit but with hostility towards both the umps and Elk players.

Maybe their hostile energy was for the big rivalry and that's understandable but not excusable.
