Can Twp. keep image amid building boom?

BY T.M. SMITH

Excuse the pun, but building in Plymouth Township is going through the roof.

Behind the strength of the M-14 stretch of highway, and the tremendous attractiveness for residential homes in this area, Plymouth Township's building boom has skyrocketed in both industrial and residential areas.

Probably the biggest of these growth spurts has blossomed from The DeMattia Company Metro West Industrial and Technological Parks off of M-14.

In other parts of the township, there are plans for a Bennigans Restaurant, a possible new hotel, several condominium projects and new residential subdivisions.

But according to Township Planning Director Jim Anulewicz, the growth will probably level off in the next year or so.

"These things usually go in cycles, and I would say that we are at our peak of the cycle now," he said.

While this might elicit a sigh of relief from the over-worked planning department and Township Planning Commission, the growth continues.

There are, however, possible negative effects that Anulewicz and the Planning Commission have been to keep the township away from.

One of these negatives, according to Anulewicz, is the possibility of letting the growth control the township, rather than the township controlling the growth.

"We are at a critical time in respect to assuring that the development that does go into the township is of high quality, and that Plymouth Township keep the image it has maintained in the past," Anulewicz said.

The biggest of these concerns revolves around keeping the low key atmosphere along the M-14 highway where a major portion of the developing is going on today.

"We want to keep that area free

School sites discussed in joint meeting

Twp., Schools get together

BY KEN VOYLES

For the first time ever, The Plymouth-Canton School Board and Plymouth Township officials got together to conduct a joint workshop and improve their working relationship.

The two-hour session Monday night was suggested by township officials as an effort to better inform school officials on growth and development by a community that is often seen only as an extension of the City of Plymouth.

Township Supervisor Maurice Breen said the session was "more for our benefit" than the school board.

"We're in a position to assist with school site location among other things," Breen added.

When it was over, school board Trustee Roland Thomas echoed the reaction of most of those on hand as he called the meeting a "very productive session."

School's Superintendent John Hoben "seconded" that idea and other officials agreed with nods of approval and a friendly exchange of banter after it was over.

Township Planner Jim Anulewicz opened the meeting with an overview of the township's demographics and growth patterns over the past three years.

Anulewicz called the 4.8 percent growth in housing units in the township a "very manageable growth rate."

"Basically we just want to define the township for you," he added, "and look at the pattern of growth. The last six years have seen significant kinds of uses."

The "ideal" location of the township between Ann Arbor, Detroit, and Metro Airport has helped spur growth in the township, he continued. "It was just a matter of time before people looked at this community as a good place to develop," Anulewicz

Someone wants split district

An unidentified citizen has initiated an inquiry into splitting the Plymouth-Canton Community School District into two districts.

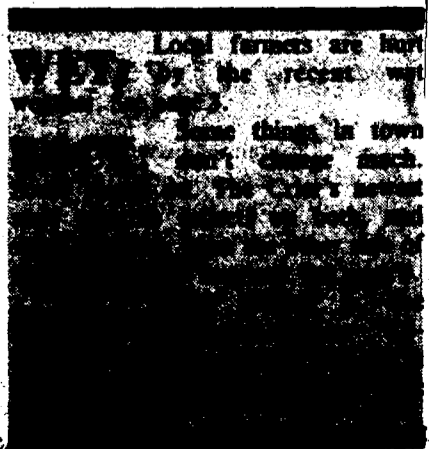

School Supt. John M. Hoben and a spokesperson for the Wayne County Intermediate School District acknowledged that a citizen asked the Intermediate Schools administration about the possibility of separating Plymouth and Canton into two districts.

The person contacted at the Intermediate Schools was unavailable by press time and further details were not available. However, local school officials said that since state laws favored consolidation of school districts, it would be unlikely -- if not impossible -- that the district be severed.

Seniors get help

Senior citizens who live in the Cities of Plymouth or Northville will soon be able to receive help in completing some outdoor chores.

The City of Plymouth has agreed to combine forces with the Western Wayne Conference in providing help to eligible seniors who would like manual outdoor tasks completed.

Leaf raking, snow shoveling and lawn mowing will be provided free of charge to seniors who meet financial guidelines, by members of Plymouth's Parks and Recreation staff.

As part of the program Plymouth will provide the work force, but all arrangements, paper work and eligibility requirements will be done through the Western Wayne Conference.

According to Parks and Recreation Director Chuck Skene, Plymouth operated a program similar to this one two years ago, but Plymouth also was responsible for the paper work, and it did not work out.

"This year all the eligibility will be done by Western Wayne Conference, and they will give us a list of the seniors who are eligible," Skene said.

Seniors who are interested in the program should call the Western Wayne Conference at 525-8690 for requirements and questions on the program.

CEP Band finishes first

The CEP Marching Band took first place and the Governor's Trophy at the 13th Annual Michigan Invitational Marching Band Tournament held in Flint Sunday. Fifteen other Michigan bands competed in the event.

Besides winning the Governor's Trophy, they also received trophies for best percussion, best brass-winds, best marching and maneuvering, best color guard, best drum major and best general effect.

Band Director James Griffith noted that the instructional staff that assists him are all graduates of the Plymouth-Canton school system and its music program, except for one. The percussion staff includes Jerry Hotchkin, Chris Johnson, Debbie Goodwin and Greg Collins. The color guard designer is Meg Johnson and the instructors are Nancy Hofmann and Kris Sieppel. The drill instructors are Glen Adsit, Neil Goodwin, Chris Lore and Jay Koupel, who is not a former Plymouth-Canton student.

This was the third competition this year that the CEP Marching Band has taken first place. Its next competition will be the Montrose Invitational in Montrose, MI this Saturday.

Chuhran protests atty. bill

BY DAN NESS

Canton Clerk Linda Chuhran says she will not sign a check of payment to an attorney hired by the township because he is charging for time on a case before he was formally hired by the Board of Trustees, according to Chuhran.

The Canton Board of Trustees formally approved the hiring of Ypsilanti attorney John Barr on Sept. 26, six days after a committee of board members asked Barr to represent the township.

Barr charged the township for time he put in starting from when he was asked by the committee -- trustees Bob Padgett and Loren Bennett, and Treasurer Gerald Brown -- to work.

Chuhran said Barr had included in his bill of $1,302 time put in for speaking to the board before he was formally hired. "He charged us for making a presentation to us," Chuhran said. "That doesn't make a whole lot of sense to me. I'm not going to put my name on that check."

The board voted 4-1-1, with Chuhran dissenting, Supervisor James Poole abstaining, and Brown absent, to approve the payment to Barr. Poole abstained because Barr was hired to represent the township in a case involving Poole's mother.

Firefighters collect for burn victims

The Plymouth Firefighters will be filling their boots with donations for burn victims again this year.

The firefighters will be collecting Friday through Sunday at K Mart, Chatham, Great Scott Supermarkets, ACO and Family Discount Drug.

Donations will go to the National Institute for Burn Medicine, headquartered in Ann Arbor. The center is a non-profit health care support organization dedicated to preventing burn injuries, saving the lives of burn victims and improving their chance for complete recovery and rehabilitation.

Monies are used for patient care support, research and prevention and education programs.

Another slippery day

And it's still a good two months before the streets really get slippery...

There were seven car accidents in Canton Friday, all the result of wet pavement in the rainy weather. Of the seven accidents, five were two-car rear-end accidents.

In another mishap, a driver lost control of his car while going west on Ford Road early Friday morning, slipped through the Sheldon Road intersection, and slammed into two other cars stopped for a red light.

And, there was a four-car chain reaction accident Friday afternoon on Joy Road west of Canton Center Road. The driver of one car couldn't stop in time, rear-ended another car which forced the car in front of it into the last car. Minor injuries were reported.

Cherry Hill project needs more $$

BY DAN NESS

The Canton Historical Commission is recommending that the Canton Board of Trustees authorize the funding of approximately $220,000 for the Cherry Hill School rehabilitation project.

The board was to have considered the matter last night.

The Cherry Hill School is in the process of being restored, using nearly $100,000 from a Michigan Equity Fund state grant. However, that money will not be enough to fully restore the school, which sits at the corner of Ridge and Cherry Hill roads, according to Kim Scherschligt, research associate for Canton's community and economic development department.

Scherschligt pointed out that the money requested by the Historical Commission is not enough. Please see page 29

Farmers' fields swamped

Rains dampen local harvest

BY DAN NESS

The recent streak of wet weather was uncomfortable and irritating to most Plymouth-Canton residents, but to area farmers, the rains meant more than just discomfort.

Following a relatively dry summer, more than three weeks of rain extending into October meant standing water in fields, which caused other problems besides damaging crops.

"We can't get into the fields to do any harvesting," said Pat Bunyea, who farms with husband Guy in western

"We're probably going to lose one-third to one-half of our pumpkins. We have pumpkins floating in water."

--Duane Bordine

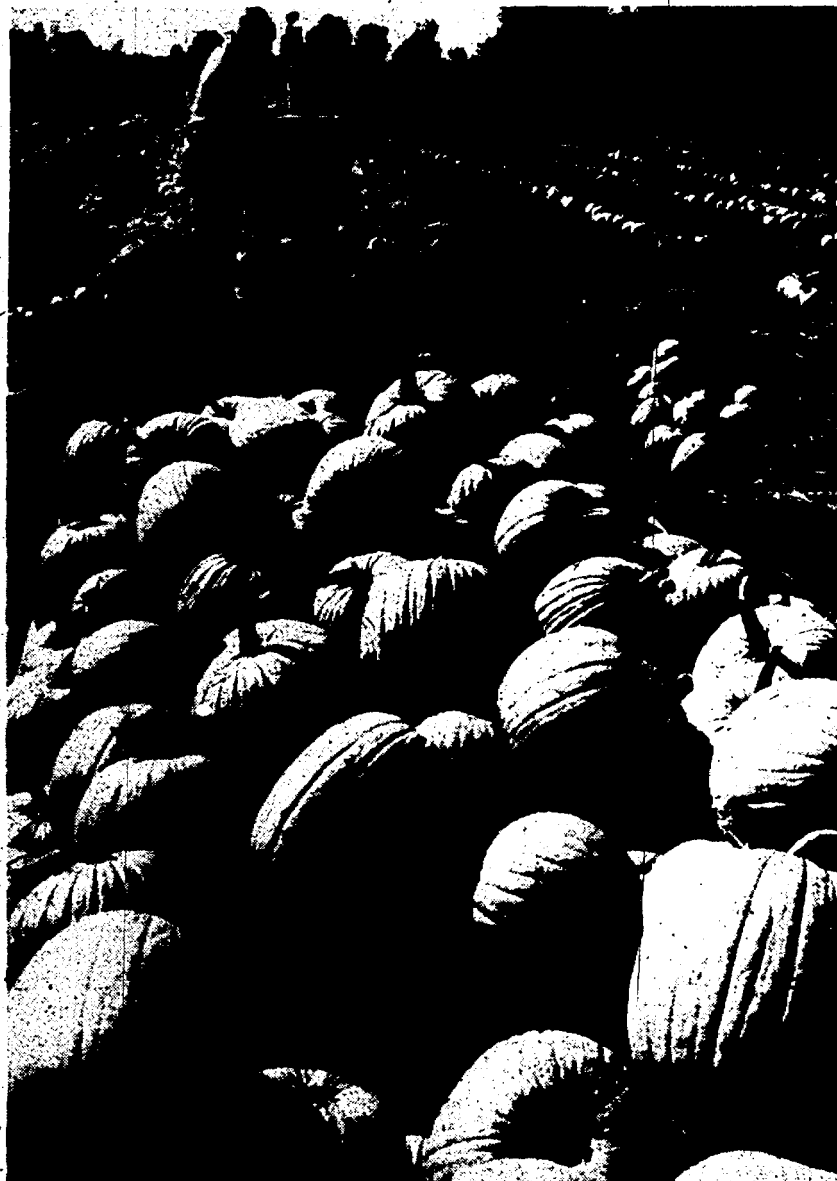

Plymouth Township. "You can't get a combine into the fields."

According to Bunyea, farm machinery was getting stuck in the mud in and around the fields.

"This is the wettest (season) in a long time," Bunyea said. "I don't think there's anything growing that it hasn't affected."

Bunyea said most of the grain they grow would be lost unless it froze this fall, before too much snow falls. The Bunyea's hay production was also down slightly because the haying season was cut short by the wet weather.

The Bunyea's best-known crop -- pumpkins -- have not suffered as badly as the other crops, Bunyea said. "It's really not hurting them at this point." But, if more rain follows, many of the pumpkins could be left rotting in the fields, she said.

While the number of pumpkins will not drop drastically, the means of getting them out of the fields has changed with the rain. "We have to use a bulldozer to get the pumpkins out," Bunyea said.

Duane Bordine's pumpkin harvest has been hurt by the weather, he said. "We're probably going to lose one-third to one-half of our pumpkins," he said. "We have pumpkins floating in water."

Bordine, who farms near Ridge and Ford roads in Canton, said he hopes to have near as many pumpkins as he did last year because he overplanted to compensate for such weather occurrences. "It was wet getting the pumpkins out last year, but nothing like this," he said. "The ones on higher ground made it."

Bordine grows about 30 acres of pumpkins, he said, and also grows other crops. "The soybeans are under water," he said. "The piece of field corn I have is still there."

Bordine is also running into problems with fields turning to mud. "There's just so much mud we can't get the trucks out there."

And, even when the water does evaporate, the farmer's problems won't go away, Bordine said. "I think it's a lot more long-range of a problem than people think. All of this water is going to change the pH factor in the soil," he said.

Bordine said he would have to treat his soil because the salt content would also rise. "It's expensive when you have a lot of rain like this. I've never seen this amount of water before," he said. "You lay in bed sometimes and wonder if it's worth it."

Is the Plymouth-Canton Community School District in a new growth boom?

Anyone who drives down North Territorial, Sheldon or Canton Center roads and Ann Arbor Trail can see the new residential construction underway. Inevitably, this will yield additional school students.

Granted, the growth may not be as rapid or dramatic as The Plymouth-Canton Community's housing boom of the mid-to-late 1970s that yielded the all-time local school enrollment high in the 1979-80 school year.

Nonetheless, all indications are that there will be more school students to house and educate here.

Indeed, the downward school population trend of six years ago has stopped and even turned upwards slightly the last two years. Projections by Plymouth-Canton school officials have been very accurate in the short run, but is long-term growth getting enough priority?

With a new elementary school being built in Canton and additions and renovations being made at other schools, some of the future is being addressed already.

However, if the current home construction rate continues, school district students, parents, officials, and voters will have to grapple with getting 10 pounds in a nine-pound sack.

The growth is coming -- thankfully more slowly than in the past -- but coming nevertheless. Think about it and be prepared.

THE COMMUNITY CRIER

Look who's back here at The Crier

I'm back. That might not mean a heck of a lot to those who don't remember back four years ago when I edited The Crier's sports section and covered the Plymouth city and township.

But to those that do remember my previous stint with this community's rabblerousing newspaper greetings from the other side of the video display terminal.

It's been four years, a long four years, and a lot has happened since then both in this community and my own life.

Some things never change -- like this reporter's writing style -- but that doesn't mean the expression "you can never go home" holds true. This isn't my home (I'm from Livonia) but in many respects it's my home away from home and I like to think there's a special place in the files of my heart for it.

Still four years is a long time to be away from even your surrogate family. You lose touch with friends, contacts become crossed off names in some forgotten address book, places and memories fade like this VDT screen when I turn it off.

A lot happens in four years. There's always a presidential election; teenagers become adults and graduate from college; the world's nations get together for summer and winter Olympic games; a billion soccer fans around the world tune in for the World Cup; even the planet Mars makes two complete passes around the sun.

Locally, I've noticed a few changes as well. Where the Old Village Inn (a.k.a. the Nelson Hotel) stood is now an empty lot with a for sale sign on it; the historic Wilcox home is about to become a set of chic condos; the old Crier office on Main Street is now an ice cream stand; and cruising has again become fashionable.

For those who may remember this byline on these pages from before I've had a few of my own highlights since leaving The Crier and going into exile in the world outside of The Plymouth-Canton Community.

Among the events worth mentioning: Getting my associate's degree from Schoolcraft College while editing the award winning Campus Globe newspaper; winning both news-writing and photography awards with same; working for a pair of Oakland County weeklies; returning to Wayne State University to work on (and soon to complete) my bachelor's degree; and last, and by no means least, falling in love with a beautiful and talented woman.

There have been other moments of glory -- covering Walled Lake Western's 1984 class A state champs baseball team; traveling to the Big Apple for a junior college gymnastic nationals; and editing the J-Network, an alumni publication at WSU.

It's safe to say (I think) that my time spent in the outer worlds beyond Plymouth's orbit has not only been fulfilling but a good learning experience.

Learning and growing is what getting old's all about and don't let anyone tell you otherwise.

I've learned. I've grown, and now I'm back. I'll leave you with my famous last words.

Our first-hand lesson about home fire protection

EDITOR'S NOTE: Cheryl Szyniszewski, a frequent free-lance writer for The Crier had a first-hand experience last Thursday that should serve as a lesson during Fire Prevention Week in The Plymouth-Canton Community, which runs through this weekend.

To The Point

By Dan Ness

Canton's trustees don't come cheap

Compensation for services rendered is always relative.

You can get into trouble when you start comparing the compensation rate -- or incomes, to be more blunt -- of public officials, public figures and even private business persons.

One of the first qualifiers off the lips of the above is "you can't compare apples and oranges." Variations on that theme usually follow. One cannot compare our situation to others' because our situation is unique, is what they're saying.

And they're right, for the most part. But, just for kicks, let's take a look at the compensation rates, or even better, compensation systems, of our local public servants.

Take the Canton Board of Trustees. They happen to hold the most lucrative of the public servant spots in the community. The administration -- Supervisor James Poole, Treasurer Gerald Brown and Clerk Linda Chuhran -- gets paid a set salary, ranging up to about $36,000 for Poole. They are on salary, so it doesn't matter how much time they put in, or how many times they meet -- they will get the same amount of money.

But, the trustees are rewarded for the number of meetings they hold. At $100 a shot, a special meeting called in Canton means more to the trustees than just another opportunity to spend time with Jim Poole.

They used to get $75 per meeting until June of 1984, when the ante was upped. The board met 37 times in that year, and in 1985, the trustees that attended all meetings made $4,400.

This year, the trustees are meeting at a rate which should surpass their 1985 number of meetings. So far, the board has met 37 times as of last night's meeting. By the end of the year, they should have met at least 44 times, and a special meeting thrown in there will top that number.

Compared to the Plymouth City Commission, the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees and the Plymouth-Canton School Board, the Canton trustees are getting compensated very well for their service to the community.

The Plymouth Township board also gets $100 per meeting, but they traditionally don't meet as often. According to Clerk Esther Hulsing, the board meets about 25 times at the most each year, including special meetings. Planning commissioners for both Canton and Plymouth townships get compensation for their meetings, and one trustee is required to sit on the planning commission. In Canton, Trustee Loren Bennett also gets $40 per meeting (twice a month) and in Plymouth Township, Trustee Andrew Pruner gets $60 per meeting (they meet once a month).

The Plymouth-Canton School Board members get $30 per meeting up to a maximum of $1,500 per year. They usually meet four times per month, including meetings and workshops, but that schedule is lightened considerably during the summer.

And how about those Plymouth City Commissioners, the Chevrolet Sprint of local governing units. As Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager puts it, "They rake it in at $10 per meeting." Sincock estimates commissioners make around $240 per year, including special meetings.

And the Canton board (just to pick on them some more) is meeting more and more each year. In 1981, the board met 39 times. In 1982, it was 41 meetings. In 1983, they met 40 times, and in 1984 it was 37 meetings before jumping to 44 meetings last year. Certain Canton administrators have often been heard joking that an impromptu special meeting is called, not to resolve an emergency problem, but to get a quick $100 for a trustee in need.

So what do you make of all this?

Well, it could be said that the Canton trustees have more work to do, representing 60,000 residents compared to the other governmental units. But, what about the school board, then? Or, maybe, on a per-resident basis, Plymouth Township residents have the more "expensive" representatives. Clearly, the City of Plymouth residents are getting a bargain with their commission (but don't use the word "cheap" when telling that to a City resident).

Several theories could be put forward. Seeing that I get compensated tremendous sums of money to write about how much money other people make, I guess I'd better come up with a provocative insight here.

Well, I say you can't compare apples to oranges. But, come to think of it, if I were serving on a governmental unit, I could buy a heck of a lot more apples and oranges if I were a Canton trustee.

How many times do we get the chance to do what we should have done in the first place? Statistically speaking, more than we think. Sometimes though, it seems not often enough.

This week is fire prevention week. Don't just pass it off. Take it seriously.

Last week was one of "those" weeks. The rainy weather seemed endless, the perm that never takes took hold like never before, and the alarm refused to rouse me once too often.

Everything I was supposed to do kept getting set aside, replaced by trivial pursuits that had somehow taken precedence.

By Thursday afternoon common sense, and a bit of fear, had replaced my flippant attitude as I banished myself to a quiet room to study.

But how could I concentrate when I had laid the burden of cooking a complicated meal on my two precious youngsters.

Luckily for us, motherly guilt runs deep within me. As I rushed into the kitchen to help out I kept telling myself that my children could handle the meal.

I threw the pork chops on the sputtering skillet while talking through the stuffing directions with my daughter and sending my son to turn on the basement oven.

As the kitchen began to fill with smoke I shut the door leading to the rest of the house and opened the window. The stove fan was already on high but I checked it again wondering why it didn't seem to draw out the smoke.

Finally, I decided to open the outside door. In the process I realized that the smell I was smelling was not frying food. It was burning wires, and the smoke was real smoke.

I screamed for my children, Sarah and David to get out of the house and grabbed for the phone.

A recording that said, "In case of a fire go to the neighbor's house and call the fire department" kept playing over and over in my head. "This can't really be happening" was my response, "I'm ok here in the kitchen."

I knew the Plymouth Township fire emergency phone number was not 911, but I talked myself out of looking in the phone book for an alternate. The bright red sticker on the phone said dial 911 so I did.

When the female voice on the other end of the line asked for my address I gave it to her then quickly added that I lived in the township.

That fact meant the assistance of another person. This time it was a male voice asking the questions. He asked for the address. When it was repeated incorrectly I had my wits about me enough to correct it.

Score one for me. When the pleasant voice wanted my name I was stunned. Who wants to slowly spell out SZYNISZEWSKI when they are worried about a possible fire. The phone number went fine however, I couldn't believe they were asking for it.

And, when after explaining that I thought the problem was partly due to a faulty wall switch and the nice man on the phone asked me if the wall was hot I responded incredulously that I hadn't taken the time to check the wall.

All of these inquiries make perfect sense to me now but seemed unbelievable at the time.

It's amazing how we think of the most meaningless things in the middle of a crisis.

I remember standing in the driveway feeling relieved when the firemen could smell the smoke before they entered the house. It seemed to lend credibility to the situation.

I was amused that I was so embarrassed to have the police arrive with the firemen and the BIG firetruck.

I remembered saying on the phone that I wanted the situation checked out in case something was smoldering between the walls.

That didn't mean I wanted the whole crew out there drawing the attention of the entire neighborhood.

The Plymouth Township fire department did a thorough job at checking out my entire house and verified that the smoke caused by a faulty light switch, which was potentially very dangerous.

They encouraged me to invest in smoke alarms so I wouldn't be relying on the sense of smell for a warning.

I was embarrassed to say that I had two smoke alarms, both sitting in the bedroom corner waiting to go up. Both useless in their location.

What's worse is that one alarm is well over two years old and the other is almost a year old.

Well, its amazing how quickly and easily smoke alarms can be installed in their proper locations and correct emergency phone numbers can be put in place.

We were lucky to get the chance to see just how unsafe our house was before there was minor damage.

I am continually amazed at how many friends I talk to that have their smoke alarms "stored" somewhere until they get around to getting them up.

I guess what is the most scary and shocking still is how my two children kept coming to the door asking me what was going on when I was trying to call the fire department.

Children don't always understand the urgency of the situation.

The nice part of the whole experience was knowing when I was standing outside with my children that there was nothing more important that I wanted out of the house.

community opinions

Splitting district like screendoors for canoes

Should the Plymouth-Canton Community School District be split into two districts along the Joy Road Great Divide?

A citizen has seriously asked the Wayne County Intermediate School District (the legal governing body a step above the local school board) if such a move could be made.

It seems the forces that would build a Berlin Wall down Joy Road are still with us.

The old-time Plymouth imagined "blue bloods" will never view Canton folks as anything more than northern Ohioans -- except when it comes to taking their money into their cash registers and sharing the school tax load.

Both the Plymouth and Canton communities have and need their own identities. No one questions that.

But even in the earliest history, The Plymouth-Canton Com-

By W. EDWARD WENDOVER

With Malice Toward None

munity collectively shares a common cultural and economic heritage that grows stronger every day.

For the sake of argument, split the Plymouth and Canton communities into separate school districts.

Canton gets two high schools, no middle school, five elementary schools, an elementary school under construction, and no administrative offices, warehousing or bus yard. One of the high schools could be made into a middle school-office-warehouse for the Canton District fairly easily. Housing elementary students would, however, be a problem.

Plymouth would get no high school, four middle schools, six elementary schools, administrative offices, warehousing, and a bus yard. With extra middle school space, Central would probably be made into the high school again, thus satisfying the old-time Plymouth High School loyalists. The extra space in elementaries, offices, warehouses and the bus yard could be rented to the new Canton District by the new Plymouth District.

Uncertain pawns in this hypothetical move would be the portions of the Plymouth-Canton Community School District in Northville, Salem and Superior townships. Also, the current rental of Lowell Middle School from Livonia Schools and Tanger Elementary School in Northville Township would be up in the air. No doubt the old-time Geer School community would gladly reform that district and open the beautiful but boarded-up school again.

Before the highfalutin Plymouthites jump to this scenario, they might want to consider one other factor: economics.

Economically, neither new school district would be strong -- what with smaller tax bases having to each sustain parallel administrative and transportation systems.

Canton accounts for 45 per cent of the district's tax base, Plymouth Township is 37 per cent, the City of Plymouth 14 per cent, and four per cent other units. (Combined the two Plymouths are 51 per cent.)

The other factor -- state aid. That sizeable chunk of the school budget is based on the number of students. According to the schools, approximately 67 per cent of the students live south of Joy Road and 33 per cent live north.

A Canton District might be overcrowded initially, but that could be overcome through leasing space and more utilization of existing buildings.

Given a choice, Plymouth high school students might not be too excited by the separatist movement since old Plymouth High (a.k.a. Central Middle School) hardly compares to the modern Salem and Canton High Schools.

And given the choice, even Plymouth taxpayers might not cotton to the idea once the economic ramifications are exposed.

Apart from the hypothetical, the separatist movement is up against a different wall than the one it would build though.

For right or wrong, Michigan laws and other forces of the universe would virtually make it impossible to split a school district. Matters like bonding, labor contracts, accreditation, high school sports rules, are all built towards consolidating school districts -- not towards splitting them up.

So the idea falls flat on the hypothetical argument that it would indeed NOT be good for Plymouth. It also lacks impetus under the legal arguments.

But that probably won't stop the Plymouth imaginers from dreaming about cleansing the Canton impurities from the schools.

Will the nonsense ever stop?

Help!!!

The other day I stopped in a fast food restaurant while in Ann Arbor. While I searched for something new to poison my stomach I noticed a "help wanted" sign hanging on the wall.

Not an ordinary "help wanted" sign, mind you. But rather a help wanted BANNER.

Stretching from one end of the menu to the other end of the menu. Begging people to work so I could "have it my way." The sign said all shifts were available, many positions open...

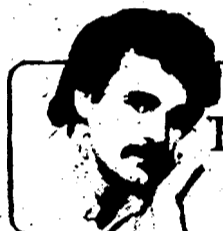

And on this banner was something even more surprising. This particular King, was willing to pay people $4.75 an hour to work there.

This is almost $1.50 more than the minimum wage of $3.35 an hour. And a little math in the head told me that at 40 hours per week, some high school kid could make a decent living flipping burgers.

This experience planted a seed in my head, but I dismissed it as a single place in Ann Arbor.

Until I walked into another fast food place right here in little old Plymouth.

This time there wasn't a banner screaming at people underneath the menu. No this Clown used a much more subtle and effective approach.

I think everyone will agree that eating alone in a fast food restaurant is not the most fun in the world. And like eating breakfast alone, it takes something to occupy some time. Sort of like reading the cereal box.

But while in a restaurant, everyone knows the only thing to read usually is either people's blank expressions or the "sanitary" placemat thoughtfully placed on your tray.

This place used this theory for its "help wanted" sign. In fact it was even used as an application. So, I guess after you gobbled down your double cheeseburger, they wanted your name and phone number in ketchup -- if the grease from the french fries didn't ruin the application.

There is a point to all of this, other than the economy is in better shape than when I first looked for a job.

Now, I was one of the few teenagers who avoided the fast food frenzy job (I lucked out and got to work in a hometown drugstore for minimum wage). But both my sisters, and many friends worked at these places -- and I think these grease pits are getting just what they deserve.

I'm glad they have to beg for people, and pay a little bit more to get some help.

Not too long ago these same places hired and fired with alarming frequency. The management seemed to treat the hired help in an unprofessional manner in some places.

So today the shoe has switched and kids, and others who work the mid-night shift in the drive-thru window have a little more dignity, and they put a little more change in their pockets.

And the ones who chose not to work? Well, they lose in life -- but then again they are the same ones who were losing in life when it only paid $3.35 for some to start in the working world.

Crier hires new sports editor

The Community Crier announces the addition of Ken Voyles to its staff.

Voyles will become The Crier's sports editor, with T.M. Smith taking over to special sections editor. Voyles will cover Plymouth-Canton Schools as a regular beat, also.

Voyles had previously worked at The Crier four years ago.

"Ken Voyles' experience with sports and The Plymouth-Canton Community is a welcome addition to The Community Crier," said General Manager Phyllis Redfern.

"I'm happy to have Ken on board," said Dan Ness, managing editor. "He knows this community and will fit right in with the Crier's editorial staff."

Soccerdome to open in Canton in Nov.

BY T.M. SMITH

If everything goes according to plan, an indoor soccerdome will be in use in The Plymouth-Canton Community by this November.

A $350,000 portable dome, being erected in the parking lot of Canton's Softball Center on Michigan Ave, will be up and in use six months of the year, according to Plymouth Parks and Recreation Director Chuck Skene.

The City of Plymouth and Canton Township are in the process of ironing out an agreement with the Canton Soccerdome owners to combine forces and manage the facility.

Under the agreement Plymouth and Canton Parks and Recreation departments would schedule, and provide the necessary paper work, planning and referees, while the owners of the Dome would pay all expenses.

The owner of Canton's Softball Center and the Soccerdome said the idea for the domed field came from a need to make the facility year-round.

"We were looking for a winter activity," Aaron Jade said. "We wanted to make the complex go all year, and soccer seemed like the ideal sport. It is one of the fastest growing sports around and big in this area."

Jade also said the need to include Plymouth and Canton was because of the excellent programs both run, and the experience of both directors.

Jade said that ground has been broken, and that everything should be ready for competition by Nov. 1 of this year.

"It really doesn't take as long as some people might think. We can do all the underground work in 10 days, and the rest is being put together and flown in," he said.

For Plymouth and Canton it amounts to a "no lose" situation, where they would each receive 25 per cent of profits after expenses, but would not be required to put any money into the project.

Plymouth's city commission voted to agree to the contract, with some changes in wording, at Monday's city commission meeting.

Skene told the commission that the only extra outlay would be in the form of his time spent on scheduling.

City Manager Henry Graper told the commission that he believes the project is a positive addition to the community.

"This is a fast growing sport, and we believe this could turn into a money maker for the city while providing a good program for our residents," Graper said.

Skene said that he expects 75 teams to enter the first year, but it should grow after that to more than 100 teams.

The contract between the city, Canton and the Soccerdome would last for 10 years.

According to Skene, plans for the Soccerdome were presented to him in late July, and the ball has been moving at a steady clip since then.

Skene added the inflatable dome appears to be an excellent facility.

According to the plans, the dome would house two fields, one regulation field along with a smaller practice field. Each field would use artificial turf.

The dome would be erected on the parking lot of Canton's Softball Center, covering an area of 119 feet wide by 293 feet long.

Inside the dome there are plans for portable bleacher areas, a concession stand and a heated tunnel to the clubhouse.

Township developing

from what has happened along some area of I-275," he said. "And so far we have had a great deal of cooperation from all the developers in that respect."

Anulewicz is referring to the heavily "advertised" look of some light industrial areas around Farmington that are less than pleasing to the eye.

Still, with all of the safeguard rules the township is imposing on developers and on itself, the growth continues to boom.

Some of the biggest developments in recent months are:

•METRO WEST INDUSTRIAL PARKS -- This light industrial complex set off of Sheldon and Five Mile Roads has in the neighborhood of 20 to 25 structures existing now, with another four or five structures put on the drawing board in the last month. One of the biggest recent additions, is the new SPINNAKER building being built by DeMattia.

According to Anulewicz, this California type complex will be similar to a shopping mall for light industry.

•PLYMOUTH EXECUTIVE PARK -- This new office building complex is proposed to offer three research and development structures on the corner of Sheldon Road and M-14, with an future hotel also targeted for the spot. No names or dates have yet been made public on this particular site.

•METRO WEST TECHNOLOGY PARK -- This complex, also a DeMattia project, sits on Five Mile and condominiums. Anulewicz says the units will all be detached from each other and have a look similar to regular housing.

•BEACON MEADOWS -- Sitting across the street from Hidden Creek, this is a combination of 79 single family lots along with 42 cluster condo style buildings.

•HEATHER HILLS -- This is another combination effort, with 75 of the lots being targeted for single family homes, and another 61 units earmarked for cluster units.

•QUAIL RUN -- This site has 12 acres set aside for condos, and another 73 lots are going to be used for single family homes. The developers are also planning on turning 10.5 acres of the site into pure park area. This site is still on the drawing board, but Anulewicz said the developers are ready to begin building.

•HIDDEN CREEK -- Plans are for 27 units in this site off of North Territorial Road. The condominiums would sit in clusters of four units per building.

•DETACHED CLUSTER -- These units, that are still without a name, will be near Joy and McClumphia Roads. They are planned to offer a new look in Beck road and will be used more for high tech industry. There are 38 lots available for development, with four of them leased. One of the users of this area is expected to swallow 30 acres of the park. This company has not been named as of yet.

•BENNIGANS RESTAURANT --

The ball has been set into motion for this new "Happy Hour" type restaurant to swing into action possibly as soon as spring, Anulewicz said. The owners of the chain are currently making final arrangements with permits, and hope to begin some building before the first snow. The site for the new restaurant is on Ann Arbor Road, near the Steak and Ale Restaurant.

Many residential developments have gone through the planning commission and the township board and are at various stages between building and occupancy.

•HAGGERTY AND PLYMOUTH ROADS -- There are plans for 328 units in this multi-family project. The plans for the new apartments have been approved, along with a possible strip mall to go on the corner.

Music brings Adsit back

BY DAN NESS

Glen Adsit finds it a little strange when his students call him "Mr. Adsit."

He finds it even more strange to call his old teachers by their first names. And, the reason he even runs into this situation is that Adsit is director of the band at Pioneer Middle School -- a school he attended only nine years ago.

"Some of my teachers are still here. It's very strange not calling some of my teachers "Mr." and "Mrs." the 22-year-old Adsit smiles. And the respect paid him from his students will also take some getting used to, he says. "I hear "Mr. Adsit" and I look for my father sometimes."

Adsit, the son of LaVergne and Audrey Adsit of Canton, spent 8th grade at Pioneer after his family moved here from Saginaw. The next year he was at Salem High School, and he cites CEP band director James Griffith as one of his biggest influences on deciding upon a career in music education.

After graduating from the University of Michigan, Adsit returned not only to teach at his middle school alma mater, but as head field instructor of the CEP Marching Band, which he had helped throughout his college years. He also is youth choir director of the First Presbyterian Church in Plymouth.

The enthusiasm of the young people he teaches is encouraging, Adsit said. "They have so much energy, that if you can channel it . . . you have endless possibilities."

Lately, the result of Adsit and Griffith's "energy channeling" has resulted in the CEP Marching Band winning the state championship for the last two years. Last week, the band, with Adsit assisting, played for President Reagan at a Reublican rally in Detroit.

Back at Pioneer Middle School, Adsit is implementing several new programs in music education, including private lessons for interested student musicians, for which Adsit brought in U of M music teachers.

Adsit said he tries to make the students' band practices as fun as possible while working hard to perfect their sound. "I don't try to rule as a tyrant in the classroom, and I don't go to the other extreme either," Adsit said.

Up beat director

Adsit wants to continue as a music teacher throughout his career. "God gave me a gift to be a teacher, because I would never want to do anything else," he said. "I always want to be a teacher, whether it is at the junior high, senior high or college level."

Adsit hopes, however, that wherever he goes, the support for his programs will be as strong as it is at Pioneer.

"The administration has been very helpful," he said. And the community emphasis on the arts has also been helpful, he adds. "I think in this community, especially in the last few years, the support has been tremendous."

Meanwhile, outside his office, the sounds of a very-preliminary rehearsal of Christmas songs bring a smile to Adsit's face. He, too, once practiced (on trombone) for Christmas concerts while a student at Pioneer. And now, nine years later, the Pioneer band looks to "Mr. Adsit" for direction -- direction he is happy to offer.

tell it to Phyllis

Paper work is a royal pain in the neck. Do you have any idea how many years of a normal person's life is consumed in doing paper work? I don't know either, but it must be astronomical.

To me paper work means anything that has to do with a piece of paper. Just think of all the notes and messages we write to each other, and all the notes and letters we should write (Aunt Katty, I love you and haven't forgotten you). Actually, I prefer to talk directly to someone. It's much easier to walk into someone's office or pick up the phone.

I wonder how much paper is wasted each year by people doing studies on different things. Local, state and federal governments couldn't operate if they didn't order a study done on every decision they make. Come to think of it, it would probably put a lot of people out of work if we didn't have studies done on everything, and besides we wouldn't know if we were in a depression or recession if someone wasn't studying the economic condition.

I wonder if anyone has done a study on how many forms the average American fills out in a year. There are the easy forms that we fill out when we order something through the mail, apply for a credit card or renew a driver's license. Then there are the ridiculous forms that we are forced into filling out each year called Income Tax Returns. If these forms don't get you, try applying for a student loan so your darling kid can go to college. I can hardly wait until next year when I have two kids in college.

Another one of my favorite pastimes is filing reports. You have to spend days looking up information, compile it, type it on the correct form and file it with the right people. My mood regarding reports is directly related to a post office report that I spent last weekend working on.

I admit a lot of paperwork is a necessary evil. However, one look at my desk and it's hard to tell the necessary evils from the junk. Someone should invent a paper work sorter; important; save it -- you may need it tomorrow; and shredder. Life would be so much easier if all we had to do was dump the waste basket more often.

VIRGIN ISLANDS

Close your eyes ... think of sun and surf ... stretch out and sink into warm sand ... wade through the tide coming in. Sounds like a dream, doesn't it? Make your dream come true and start planning a vacation in the Virgin Islands.

The islands are kissed by tropical breezes that keep temperatures in the delightful 80's ... perfect beach weather almost every day! After being drenched by the sun, you can slip off to the island of St. Thomas and cool off with some icy fruit punch before hunting for the many bargains of the area. Free port purchases of various products and island crafts are there for the buying.

St. Croix will whet your appetite with exotic island specialties at the many fine restaurants. And two-thirds of the island of St. John is a National Park, with panoramic scenery and the ruins of a once-prosperous sugar cane plantation. The island itself is surrounded by those seemingly never ending beaches. When leaving the Virgin Islands you will probably promise to return some day -- most people do!

Weight No Longer

Be another Be Trim! success story.

The next Be Trim! class is about to begin at Arbor Health Building

Experience the feeling of success with Be Trim!, a proven program that can help you control your weight.

Be Trim! isn't just another diet program. Or just a plan for better nutrition. It's not another quick weight loss program where the weight comes right back on.

Be Trim! is a program for lifelong weight control that fits you and your lifestyle. Because you design your program yourself.

When you attend a Be Trim! session, you'll learn how to develop a lifestyle that gives you total control of your weight. With Be Trim!, you'll make better nutritional choices and be able to handle stress without overeating—or feeling deprived.

At the program's end, your days in the diet / weight gain cycle will be over. At long last, you'll be able to take charge of your weight. For the rest of your life.

All it takes is nine informative sessions. And the first session is free.

Come to a Be Trim! session and be on your way to permanent weight control.

Punt Pass & Kick

This young lady passed the time with a football just about as big as she.

Jason Gilbo of Canton gives his best shot at kicking of the tee.

Subtract the number of feet off the centerline from total distance gives the points for the punt, pass or kick according to Michelle Plonka (l) Julie Nelson.

Crier photos by Chris Boyd

Forty-four Canton Township youths participated in the sixth annual Punt, Pass and Kick program sponsored by the Canton Parks and Recreation department last Saturday.

Despite cloudy and wet conditions, six local youths came away with outstanding efforts in winning their age groups.

Eric Gilbo won the 8-year-old group with a total of 175 feet, eight inches. Gilbo's kick of 63 feet, five inches was close to an age group record. Second place went to Douglas Spuck.

Eric Stoeckland won the 9-year-old group, setting a new township record of 217 feet, two inches. Stoeckland also established new marks in passing and kicking. David Krupinski was second.

Stoeckland's effort was the outstanding performance of the day.

Matt Paupore won the 10-year-old age division with a total of 205 feet, four inches. Adam Bakowski was second by four feet.

Marc Brust won the 11-year-old division with a total of 215 feet, 11 inches and Angelo Cairo was second.

Todd Yocum captured the 12-year-old group with a total of 309 feet and Biran Tiell was second, while Nichols Palombit won the 13-year-old group at 274 feet, five inches. Mike Patterson was second for the 13-year olds.

Stoeckland also won his age group in the Metro-Detroit finals last week with a total of 228 feet, while Bakowski was third in his age group and Palombit was third in his division.

Knife-wielder hits Beck Rd.

The days of highway robbery are not over, it seems.

A 15-year-old Plymouth Township boy was driving on Beck Road in Canton at 6:45 p.m. Saturday, when a car driving the other way blocked his path, according to police. The driver got out of the car brandishing a four-inch knife, and went to the window of the car asking the boy for his money.

The boy said he had no money, and the would-be-bandit told him to turn away and not look at his license plate.

The boy did anyway, and Canton police now have a suspect. No arrests have been made in the case.

2 boards

Among the highlights of growth are the Ridgewood Hills subdivision and expanding industrial use north of M-14.

The discussion then turned to current and future locations of schools in the township, and officials from both sides zeroed in on a parcel of school property in the northeast corner of the township park.

School officials have held the property in hopes of one day building an elementary or middle school there but the problem of road access has been the biggest hinderance to developing those plans.

"Why don't you build us a road there?" school board President E.J. McClendon asked.

"We're not in a position to build one," Breen replied. The supervisor also said the township would like to get its hands on the property and "let it sit there" as an open space.

"We're not saying we want to build a school there in the next three years," Thomas said. "We just want that option."

There was also some debate over the philosophy of building schools in the middle of subdivisions or along major roadways with an equal number of officials for and against such a philosophy.

Thomas said, "Our constituency wants schools in the subdivisions and not on major roadways."

McClendon added that most parents don't like to have their children bused a long way to school, but currently some 12,000 students (out of approximately 16,000) are bused to schools throughout Plymouth and Canton.

A discussion of sidewalks, or a lack of them along some of the township's major roadways, also heated up the workshop.

Breen said all new plans for development in the township must include sidewalks in the site plan, but that building sidewalks along roads where residents don't want them is nearly "impossible."

"We can't get the easements," he said, "unless you want to go to court."

School officials would like to see sidewalks wherever possible to reduce the number of young students using roadside shoulders.

The officials also briefly touched on improving warning procedures during severe storms.

Kiwanis make aid booklet

The Colonial Kiwanis Club of Plymouth has produced a booklet listing local agencies which help in cases of rape, spouse abuse, drug dependency, suicide and other crises. The booklet also lists emergency shelters.

Single or multiple copies of the helpful booklet may be obtained by eligible organizations by contacting Tom Caviston, project chairman, at 455-8120.

Model trains roll into Plymouth

Train lovers listen up. They don't call Plymouth the train capital of Wayne County for nothing. This Sunday (Oct. 12) the sixth annual Train Show roll into town at the Plymouth Cultural Center at 525 Farmer.

The show will feature more than 100 tables of new, used and antique trains as well as operating layouts. Train buffs will be on hand to buy, sell and trade throughout the all-day affair.

A Chessie System (CSX) locomotive and caboose will also be on display parked at the now closed Plymouth Yard and Roundhouse between Starkweather and Sheldon Roads.

The show at the Cultural Center begins at 11 a.m. and runs to 4 p.m. There is a $2 admission charge per person, but children under 12 get in free.

Those interested in setting up a display table should call 455-4455. Table charges are $8 in advance and $10 at the door.

The next show in Plymouth will be April 26, 1987.

Local Adelines to sing

Eight Plymouth-Canton residents will take part in the Sweet Adelines "Movin' On" concert at Garden City's O'Leary Auditorium on Saturday, Oct. 25.

The script for the show -- a barbershop show based on traveling -- was written by Betty Koch of Canton. She will be joined in the two performances by Plymouth-Canton women Patricia Daubenmier, Linda Lupo, Claudia Swisher, Bekki Ponte, Pat Sullivan, Vernita Weidman and Kris Tandon.

The show is slated for two performances, one at 3 p.m. and the other at 8 p.m. Guest performers include the current midwest Sweet Adeline champions for 1986, "Crystal Classics," and an award-winning men's quartet, "Family Forum."

Tickets are $5 for the matinee and $7 for the evening performance. Ticket costs are tax-deductible as a donation to an educational organization. Further information is available by calling Pat Colombo at 522-5399 or Pat Evans at 565-9399.

In symphony's first concert

Votapek opens season

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra will begin its 41st season Friday, Oct. 17, at 8 p.m. in Salem Auditorium featuring pianist Ralph Votapek.

The orchestra will be conducted by the symphony's new music director-conductor, Leon Gregorian.

Votapek is the only American to have been awarded the Grand Prize for his performance in the Van Cliburn International Piano Competition. He has appeared with major orchestras of the nation, including the Chicago Symphony and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Votapek recently toured the Soviet Union, playing recitals in Leningrad and other cities.

Votapek began his musical studies when he was nine years old at the Wisconsin Conservatory. He later studied for four years at Northwestern University, a year at the Manhattan School of Music, and a year at the Julliard School.

He made his New York debut in 1959, as a result of the prestigious Naumberg Award, which he won that year. Votapek lives with his wife and three children in East Lansing where he serves as artist-in-residence at Michigan State University.

Tickets for the concert will be available at the box office. Single and season advance ticket sales will be in Plymouth at Beitner Jewelry on Ann Arbor Trail and in Canton at Arnoldt Music on Canton Center Road.

Single concert tickets for regular season concerts are $6 for adults and $3.50 for senior citizens and full-time college students. Students 12th grade and under are admitted free. Free transportation for senior citizens is provided from Tonquish Creek Manor before each concert.

The concert is made possible by sponsorship from First of America Bank, the City of Plymouth, a grant from the State of Michigan through the Michigan Council for the Arts, and the Plymouth Symphony League.

Following the concert, a Plymouth Symphony "Gala Afterglow" will be held at the Mayflower Meeting House, beginning at 10 p.m. and costing $10 per person, which includes hors

City gets $5,000 in state grant money for Ice Sculpture Fest

The City of Plymouth recently received a $5,000 grant from the State of Michigan to help expand the annual Ice Sculpture Spectacular next January.

Although the city applied for $10,000 for the special project, which will be used in connection with the states sesquicentennial celebration, Assistant to the City Manager Paul Sincock said he hope original plans for the event can be met.

The plan Sincock submitted to the state had called for a 125-piece orchestra to be carved out of ice. The price tag for the entire spectacular will top at between $40,000 and $50,000 Sincock said, and should draw around 500,000 spectators to the week-long event.

The event is planned for Jan. 8-18 of 1987.

Historical Commission requests funds

Commission is for additional renovation beyond the work that will be done with the $100,000 grant. The Historical Commission made its funding recommendations independently from the community and economic development department. Money from the state grant will be used up in repairing the roof of the school and for "stabilization" of the structure.

"Structurally, it will be a sound building," after the "stabilization" phase of the project, Scherschligt said. The additional monies the Historical Commission is seeking would be used for finishing projects on the school, such as painting the interior, landscaping around the school, bathrooms, and a parking lot, Scherschligt said.

The $220,000 figure attached to the finishing projects was based on a "worst-case scenario," Scherschligt said, and was a very general estimate of costs. "This is more or less just to let the board know that this could be costly," she said.

Work on rehabilitating the structure is just starting, Scherschligt said, and the first phase of the project -- repairing the roof -- should be completed by January.

The building had been used by the Plymouth-Canton Schools as a storage facility, and is in state of "severe disrepair," according to Scherschligt. The school was built in 1876, and an addition, funded by Henry Ford, was built in 1942. The school was part of the Greenfield Village -- Detroit Edison School District until the late 1940s, when it was returned to the Plymouth-Canton School District. The school was used for classes until the early 1960s. Last December, Canton was the recipient of the Michigan Equity Fund grant for the Cherry Hill restoration project. This year, Supervisor James Poole has recommended three projects for funding through the same state grant program, including: $78,000 for the installation of a road providing access to the Morton-Taylor park; $17,000 for an "overall development plan" for Cherry Hill Village; and $60,000 for the purchase of a 20-acre site for a future architectural museum.

The board will consider Poole's recommendations, and the deadline for submitting the grant proposals is Nov. 1, Scherschligt said. The state will notify communities of grant approvals in mid-December.

getting down to business

A boy's hobby - a man's business

BY MARTY TUNGATE

As a youngster, Jeff Morton had a desire to work on cars. Morton called it "my hobby."

Well, now Morton's hobby has turned into his business.

Morton is the operator of Plymouth Auto Service, which has been in business since June 9th, and explains "business is getting better all the time."

Morton's shop does all kinds of work with cars, from an oil change right down to major auto repair. He also offers towing and a free road test, along with many other services.

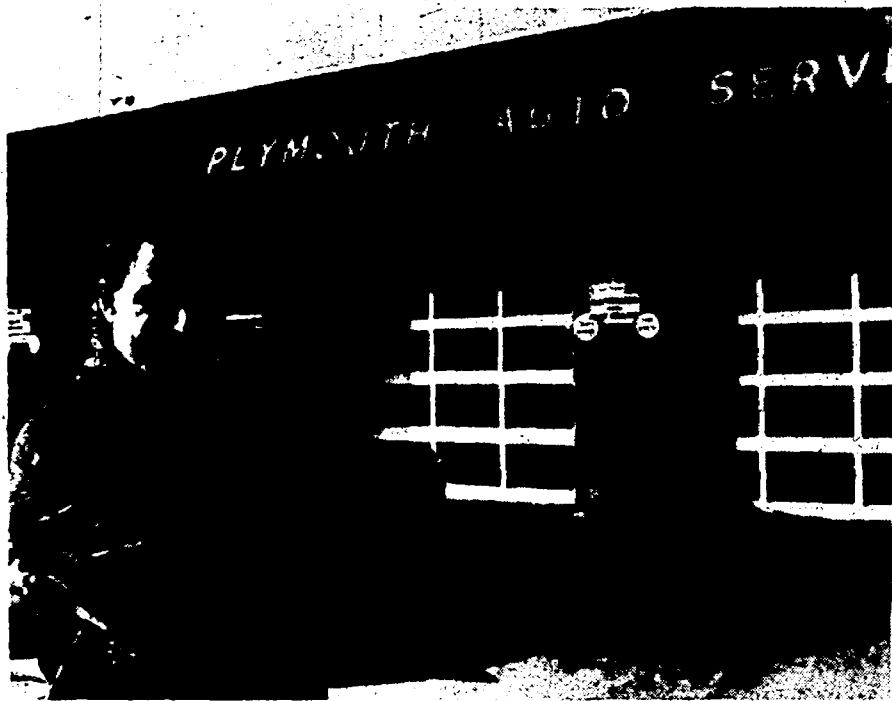

Morton went to school for five years at three different colleges - Northern Michigan, Northwood Institute, and finished up his schooling at Michigan State. Morton was a marketing major, a major which he feels will benefit his business.

Morton has already landed the Plymouth Township Police contract. According to Morton, "We've saved them a lot of money," and is looking to land other municipal contracts.

Morton who is keeping busy with cars, also has another item which is keeping him very busy. Morton is engaged to the daughter of the owners of the Cozy Cafe, Krista Ristich.

Morton, who hopes to pursue a career in marketing in future years, plans on making Plymouth his home for a long time to come.

Jeff Morton, left, stands in front of his hobby-turned-business, while one of his mechanics, Bob Hardiman, makes the proper adjustments to a car. (Crier photo by Chris Boyd)

Machine or erector set?

The political machine:
There is no other animal around like this two-headed serpent that makes decisions for each and every one of us day in and day out.

In Chicago, there was Daly and The Boss. A machine run by iron fist, fear and muscle.

Here in Plymouth there isn't a machine -- it is more like an erector set. But there is some very interesting movements to this pseudo-machine that everyone should know.

Covering the commission and the Township Board for the last 90 days has been interesting from the 'on lookers' point of view. After a time you get a sense of how decisions come about -- and conversely how decisions never come about.

People who see something in this political machine call it 'the machine'. People who write about this process (reporters) write about it.

Today we laugh. Maybe. Both the city and township are interesting and unique in their own way. Each have different personalities, and without the names we'll dissect some of their boards.

Each board has its own heavy. This is the guy that runs the show. This means run. This is the guy who opens the mail, answers the phone and generally points with an authoritative finger here and there.

Both the city and the township have their own forms of 'the heavy', and both have different styles.

Styles, I'm sure they have spent hours in front of the mirror honing.

The township heavy is a smiler. This one sits back and smiles and 'suggests' a way the board might want to vote. Questions are usually answered by a chuckle, and a 'what' question is usually answered with a 'yes'.

The aim here is to assume, and explain to the commission that a 'pass' is this or that of equal importance. It will be found. The commission boards are made up of different kinds of people. There are people who don't want to make a move, sit back and point if directed to do so.

•There are stooges of the heavy, who support and speak when spoken to.

•There are the 'board' as a people who do nothing else.

And there are the people who sit on the boards who really care about the community. The person next door, who has some good ideas, and wants to get involved.

These are the people you see at the Little League game, the one who volunteer time with the church, the people who do things for others for a job well done.

These are the people who make the commissions and boards.

Chiefs on Homecoming path

BY JANET ARMSTRONG

Canton's annual Homecoming game Friday night should prove quite interesting, with Canton shooting for a victory. The last Homecoming victory for the Chiefs came in 1984, and they are currently trying to get back on the winning track after suffering through a three-game losing streak.

Standing directly in the Chiefs path will be a strong Farmington Harrison team. Harrison's record is 3-1.

Canton's head coach Bob Khoenle believes his team is capable of ending the losing streak this weekend, but it will need some help from the players.

"We just have to keep working, the kids have to play with more enthusiasm. They have to learn how to win," Khoenle said.

Football isn't the only activity Canton's Homecoming includes. On Wednesday the Canton senior girls play against the winner of the Sophomore Vs. Junior PowderPuff game (touch-football).

Also on Wednesday is Spirit Night.

Canton's Seniors, Juniors, and the Sophomores will compete in several contests throughout the night at Phase III at 7:30 p.m. Slated for the fun-filled evening will be such feats of skill as tri-cycle races, eating contests and yelling contests.

Saturday evening there will be a formal Homecoming dance starting at 7:30 pm.

At the halftime of the football game the Homecoming queen for Canton will be announced, and the winner of the class floats will be announced.

Football, however, will still be the main attraction Friday night, and Canton is hoping to send the fans home happy.

Canton's goal is simply "to win," according to varsity coach Bob Khoenle.

"Harrison is a good football team, we'll have to execute to win," said Khoenle.

Please see page 36

Canton blows by Hawks in laughter

BY JANET ARMSTRONG

With 10 minutes left to game time the Canton girls basketball team was unsure whether their opponents were going to show up for the game. Harrison showed up just a few minutes later ready to play basketball -- or were they?

Farmington Harrison has not had a good basketball team in past years and this year is no exception, as Canton beat them 64-2.

Canton controlled the game from the jump ball to the final seconds.

"We just wanted to execute the basics of the game and to work on the things which we need to improve on," said Karen Boluch, co-captain of the team.

Tory Barger was the high scorer for the Chiefs with 14, Penny Piggott next with 10 points.

Although Canton had a slow start this season, they seem to have got the ball rolling.

"It's been a tough season, but we will continue to work, improve and accomplish our goals," said co-captain Jennifer Gansler.

Canton moved their record to 5 - 4 with the win Thursday.

Salem slips in muddy affair

BY MARTY TUNGATE

Homecoming did not turn out the way the Salem football team, and fans, would have liked.

"Our field was awful," said head coach Tom Moshimer. After an entire week of rain the CEP field had about four inches of standing water in some parts of the field, and where there wasn't water there was mud.

So with bad playing conditions it was quite obvious that this would be a low scoring affair.

That was the case as the Rocks dropped the messy game 6-0 to Farmington.

The first half ended scoreless with neither team being able to move the ball.

Salem came out early in the third quarter moving the ball very well, with a balanced running attack, lead by Garret Bowe and Leonard Bowe, who ran hard, but were plagued by mistakes, including a 53-yard-run by Leonard Bowe which was called back for an illegal block.

A few plays later the Rocks made the fatal mistake that most likely cost them the game. The Falcon's Joe Johnston intercepted a Rock pass at midfield and returned it all the way back to the Rock's 11-yard line. Four plays later the Falcon's Eric Green ran the ball into the end-zone.

The Rocks still did not give up. Every time they had the ball they moved it down the field only to lose it to a fumble or on penalties.

Mud Bowl

Salem's Homecoming loss looked more like a mud wrestling contest last Friday as the Rocks lost 6-0 to Farmington. Here Jerry Sumner attempts to plow through the slop while Kurt Urban looks on. (Crier photo by Chris Boyd)

In the fourth quarter, it appeared the Falcons had the game in hand, but with 1:36 on the clock, the Falcon's quarterback fumbled the ball on his own 47-yard line, giving the Rocks one last shot at victory.

But Salem could not move the ball, as the Falcon defense rose to the occasation late in the game to stop the powerful Salem rushing attack.

This drops the Rocks to 1-4 on the Please see page 34

"I still think we have a strong team and could do a lot of damage in our conference, if the boys really want it," said Moshimer.

But if the Rocks hope to still cause some damage in the Lakes Conference, they will have to do something they have not done much of all year. That is put the ball in the endzone!

sports roundup

SALEM

FOOTBALL -- The Rocks dropped another one 6-0 to Farmington.

Once again the Rocks outgained their opponent 138 yards to Farmington's 77 yards. This drops Salem to 1-4 on the season.

CROSS COUNTRY -- Salem's cross country team lost a tough meet to Farmington 25-34. Bill Atwell finished first for the Rocks, with a time of 16:17. The Rocks finished in 8th place at the Ann Arbor Pioneer Invitational last Saturday. Atwell placed in the top ten with a time of 16:38.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL -- The lady cagers keep on rolling. This time North Farmington was the hapless opponent. The Rocks crushed the Raiders 54-24. Dena Head scored 19 points, followed by Jessica Handley who put in 18 points.

SOCCER -- Ken Johnson (Head Coach) has the kickers primed and ready to go as they dumped Walled Lake Central 5-0. The Rocks scored all five of its goals in the first half. Dennis Reynolds, Randy Balconi, Doug Fauer, Mike Zaretti, and Andy Sharma all chipped in goals. Goaltenders O'Mally and Koontz combined for the shutout. (This broke their own school record for shutouts).

GIRLS' SWIMMING -- The Rocks lost to a strong Northville team 94-78. Salem's two victories came in diving, won by Tina Aquino-184.85, and in the 200 medley, won by Heather Bunch, Erin Olson, Sue Bonnett and Shannon Murphy, with a winning time of --2:04.0.

CANTON

CROSS COUNTRY -- Was successful against Livonia Franklin Thursday with the girls winning 24-30 to bring their overall record to 5-0-1 on the season. The boys team was also successful in a close one against Franklin by a score of 27-29. They stand at 6-1 on the year.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL -- The Chiefs annihilated a weak Farmington Harrison team by the score of 64-2 to bring the Chiefs record to 5-4 on the season.

GIRLS' SWIMMING -- Brought their record for the year to 3-0, by beating John Glenn Thursday night 108-64.

GIRLS' TENNIS -- All of the meets scheduled for the tennis team this week were canceled due to rain, they will be made up this week and next week.

FOOTBALL -- The Chiefs were unsuccessful in their bid to break a two-game losing streak against Livonia Franklin. The Chiefs lost by a score of 7-14 in overtime. John Myganka scored the lone touchdown for the Chiefs. The loss brought the Chiefs record to 2-3 for the year.

Homecoming

Canton is coming off a tough loss to Livonia Franklin Saturday 7-14 in overtime at Franklin's field. The Chiefs third loss in a row after winning the first two games of the year.

With the score knotted at 7-7 at the end of the fourth quarter, the game was sent into overtime.

Franklin scored a touchdown on its first possession, running the ball into the endzone after several plays. Canton got the ball for its single possession, but fumbled it, and Franklin recovered it to end the game.

Canton's record now stands at 2-3 on the year.

Junior football results

The Plymouth-Canton Lions junior league football team captured two of three games from the Belleville Cougars at Sunday's Homecoming.

The varsity squad turned in a 31-12 drubbing over the Cougars to up their record to 3-1-1. Scott Whisenand scored a pair of touchdowns for the Lions, while Carl Wulkie, Tyrant McCall and Jason Riggs added one touchdown apiece. Shawn Starks booted an extra point.

The freshmen also won Sunday, edging the Cougars 12-6. Jason Gilbo accounted for both freshmen touchdowns.

The junior varsity were shutout, however, 19-0.

Meanwhile, the Plymouth-Canton Steelers got a taste of everything Sunday as the freshmen tied the Ann Arbor Wildcats, the junior varsity suffered its first loss of the season and the varsity won its fourth contest.

The freshmen played the Wildcats to a 0-0 tie on Sunday, while the junior varsity fell 12-10. Jason Krueger scored the Steelers touchdown and John Roushkolb snared a safety. Dan Burke booted the 2-point extra point.

The JV is currently 4-1.

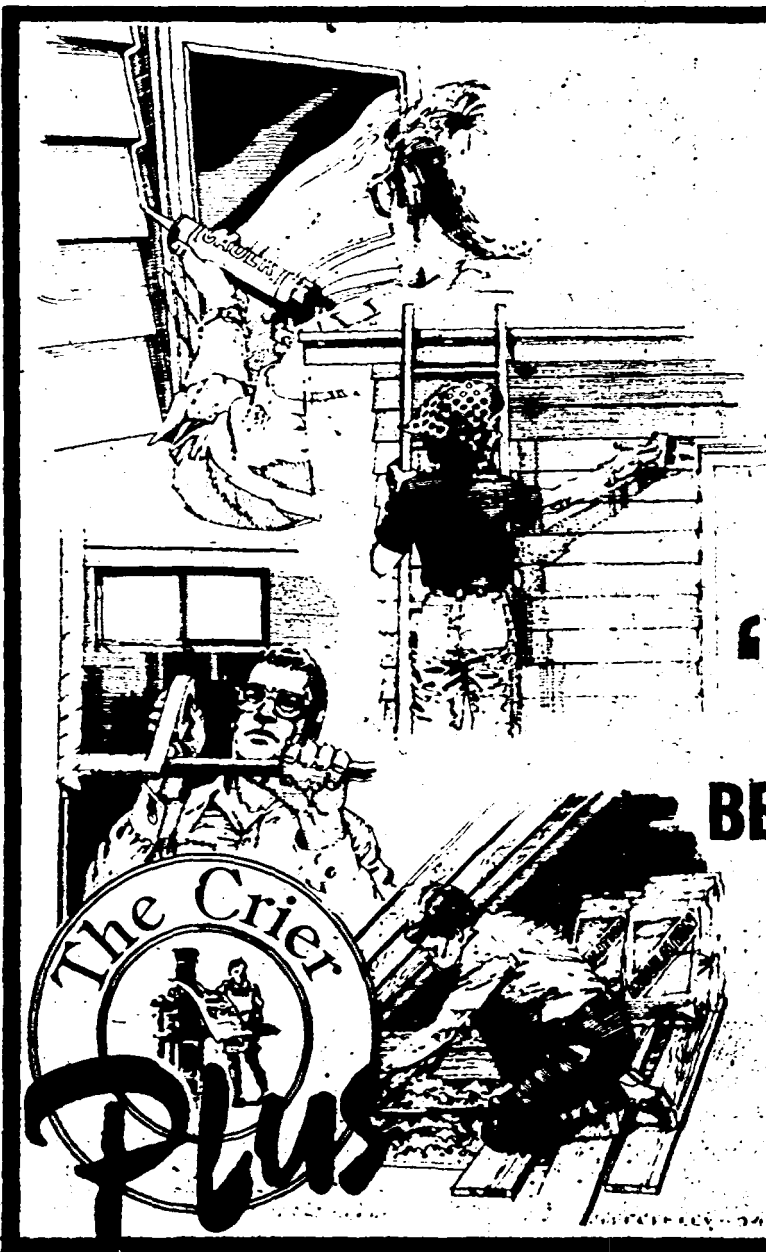

The varsity Steelers handed the Wildcats their first loss of the season, winning 14-6.

Fullback Liam Rentz put the Steelers ahead with a second quarter touchdown on a three-yard plunge up the middle. Mike Teller added the extra points by kick and the Steelers led 8-0 until the second half kickoff.

The Wildcats then came back with a touchdown on the second half kickoff, but Steeler Chad Johnson blocked the kick for extra points.

Later in the third quarter Rentz recovered a Wildcats fumble on their 36-yard line that led to the final touchdown of the game.

Hamon Cross romped in from 11 yards out to seal the win for the Steelers. The varsity are also 4-1 so far this season.
