Contract talks to begin

Byrne is new Plymouth city manager

BY PHILIP TARDANI

Citing the need for a "fresh approach," the Plymouth City Commission Monday unanimously appointed Randall D. Byrne as city manager.

Byrne, 36, currently city manager in Grand Blanc, will take over as Plymouth's top administrator as soon as he and the city agree on a contract. A formal contract may be presented to the commission at Monday's meeting.

Mayor Dennis Bila said Monday afternoon that he, Mayor Pro-tem R. Jack Kenyon and Byrne would discuss a contract over dinner Thursday.

At Monday's meeting, Bila said the city manager selection committee had recommended Byrne.

Acting City Manager Bill Graham was not at the commission meeting. He had no comment after Monday night's meeting.

"We can't continue to do business as usual," said Kenyon. "We need change to survive."

Bila said he was impressed by Byrne's fiscal management in Grand Blanc.

"The thing that impressed me most - and I know it impressed the other commissioners - was that he has a budget in his community of almost $5 million and a fund balance of $1 million," he said.

Bila also praised Byrne's work on downtown redevelopment in Grand Blanc, noting that he accomplished it without the help of a Downtown Development Authority.

Commissioner John Vos III said he thinks Byrne is the man for Plymouth's future. "I believe Randy Byrne would be an asset to the community. I believe he has eyes on the future," Vos said.

Vos also said he was impressed by Byrne's commitment to economic development, quality infrastructure, education and health care.

Commissioner James Jabara cited Byrne's financial expertise in moving the nomination.

"I think Randy Byrne possesses some of the skills we have been looking for -- the technical skills in the area of finance," he said.

Though Commissioner Jerry Vorva said he felt the acting city manager did a fine job, he also expressed his desire to see Byrne take over the position.

"We're entering in upon a time that I think is going to need some fresh ideas and I feel that someone from the outside would best be able to perform those types of functions," Vorva said.

"My heart is completely with Bill Graham; my intellect tells me that I must agree with the selection committee that we need a new person in there."

Commissioner Ron Loiselle said that the city was basically in a no-lose situation because of the qualifications of all the candidates for the city manager position.

"The selection committee and Rod Bartell did an excellent job," Loiselle said. "The four candidates presented to us were all excellent candidates."

Schools OK 9th grade shift

BY TODD LANGTON

After 10 years of uncertainty, all ninth graders in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district will once again attend classes at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP).

The school board Monday approved a resolution which requires that ninth graders move to CEP, and that several recommendations of the student housing task force be adopted.

"I think it's excellent," said School Board President Dean Swartzwelder of the resolution. "There is something in this for everyone."

The proposal speaks in one way or another to all the concerns raised by parents at two forums held by the school district to gain public input on the proposed boundary changes, he said.

The moving of ninth graders in the district to CEP will free up the middle schools and allow for fewer moves in those areas, said Michael Homes, assistant superintendent of instruction for the district.

"We'll have all kinds of capacity at the middle schools," Swartzwelder said.

Approximately 190 eighth graders who would have attended West Middle School as ninth graders next year will attend CEP, he added.

As new teaching day dawns

Unique techniques take root in P-C Schools

EDITOR'S NOTE: This week Crier schools reporter Todd Langton begins an on-going series of articles which will focus on the ever changing nature of education in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools District.

BY TODD LANGTON

A new educational day is dawning. A rapidly changing society is forcing education to take a long hard look at itself.

Will education remain the same while skills and abilities needed to survive change at an amazing pace?

The comfort of knowing that good paying jobs in automotive plants are just the other side of graduation does not exist for today's, nor tomorrow's, high school students.

As the base of our economy shifts from manufacturing to service industries, our workforce must also change.

The employees of today and tomorrow must be educated, if not better, at least differently in order to meet the needs of employers in this new economy.

"The dramatic nature and pace of change in society, I think, has caused educators to take a long introspective look at the effectiveness of our current practices," said Michael J. Homes, assistant superintendent for instruction of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Leaders in today's business world have been indicating that students coming out of the schools in this country are not adequately prepared for survival in the workforce, Homes said.

"Educators themselves have recognized the need to look at what it is we do," he said.

Education itself, as a result of this introspective examination and other forces, has begun to change.

"It's been a host of things that have been evolving over a period of time here that have begun to come together with some pretty solid conclusions," Homes said. "The best of which, I think, have been represented in the effective schools research."

Byrne tapped; Graham thanked

Commissioner Mary Childs expressed her willingness to cooperate with whomever was chosen for the position.

"Whoever gets the position I will certainly work with and help him out," said Childs, who had supported Graham for the post.

When informed of his formal selection late Monday, Byrne said he is anxious to get started.

"I'm looking forward to meeting with Mayor Bila and coming up with a contract," he said.

Byrne has been city manager in Grand Blanc since 1981. In that city of 7,500, he has been a strong advocate of economic development and is a charter member of the Lapeer County Economic Development Commission.

One of Byrne's main accomplishments in Grand Blanc was his participation in a major planning study of southern Genesee County that dealt with the impact of the high rate of growth in the area.

Byrne is a graduate of Oakland University with a master's degree in public administration and is married and the father of one child.

In closing the special meeting on Monday, the commission passed Vos' resolution thanking Graham for "the fine job" he did while serving as Acting City Manager as well as continuing City Clerk - Finance Director.

The commission said, "we sincerely appreciate (Graham's) efforts."

Robert Jones, a former commissioner who was on the selection committee, said that though he was in favor of Byrne, he also wanted to make the point that Graham did an excellent job in his term as acting city manager.

A note of dissent at the commission's decision was raised by Jean Morrow, a citizen of Plymouth and former commission candidate.

"I think Bill (Graham) was doing a good job," he said. "I don't think you've taken into consideration the people of Plymouth."

Plymouth City Commission recall?

Some City of Plymouth residents said Tuesday that they are adopting a "wait and see" posture for now, but that they may consider a recall attempt of the city commission in the future

The residents, who had supported Bill Graham for the city manager post, said they were unhappy that the commission selected Randall Byrne for the job.

Moeller wins Air Force award

BY KEN VOYLES

A manufacturing firm headquartered in Canton has been named the "Outstanding Subcontractor Supplier" by the U.S. Department of Defense.

Moeller Manufacturing Co., with its world headquarters in Canton, was presented the award two weeks ago by U.S. Air Force officials. The award honors Moeller's subcontractor role in the turbine engine industry during one quarter of 1989.

Denis Stith, president of Moeller, said, the award came through the Propulsion Systems Program Office of the U.S. Air Force.

"It's a great honor to even be nominated," Stith said. "To win an award from the end user is a pretty prestigious honor."

"We're really happy about this honor," said Dave Banfield, engineer manager at the firm. "It's a pretty big award."

"We're not down out of the clouds just yet."

The award is the most important ever received by the local company, said Stith.

Larry Meyer, director of the Michigan Department of Commerce, said that it was an honor to have a Michigan company "win these prestigious awards." (Moeller was also recently honored by the U.S. Small Business Administration with its "Administrator's Award of Excellence.")

"With cuts in the defense budget, subcontractors that maintain the quality of service that Moeller has will have an advantage in bringing more contracts to Michigan," said Meyer.

Moeller, which manufactures precision aerospace equipment, currently employs about 300 people

(some 150 in Canton). Annual sales are approximately $20-$25 million. The company was formed in 1953 and today has six divisions under the corporate umbrella. Three of the six divisions are involved in the aerospace industry, said Banfield.

The subcontractor supplier award -- the 13th ever awarded in the nation -- is based on quality and design and responsiveness to the needs of customers. Moeller was nominated by the four major jet engine manufacturers.

Seventy per cent of Moeller's current business is related to the aerospace industry. It is a major engine parts supplier for General Electric and Pratt & Whitney among others, and furnishes spare parts to various agencies within the U.S. Department of Defense.

According to Banfield, the company also supplies parts for NASA's Space Shuttle program.

The firm is currently in the process of seeking property for a new headquarters facility, said Banfield. The search is covering much of the state, he said, but Moeller plans to retain its Canton facility.

The new facility when built will include a state-of-the-art headquarters and a research and development center. Plans are to break ground within one year, said Banfield, and complete the project within two years.

"We're busting at the seams here in Canton," said Banfield, who added that the firm uses its township facility as a headquarters and a manufacturing center. "We're looking at property all over. We haven't ruled out anything at this point."

The company will be honored during National Small Business Week in May for its award of excellence. It is being recognized for its "outstanding contribution and service as one of the top small business subcontractors in the region."

The Michigan Department of Commerce played a role in Moeller's recent honors through its LPOs (Local Procurement Office), one of which is located at Schoolcraft College. LPOs help provide the necessary specifications so that companies can accurately bid on contracts and meet delivery requirements, said Meyer.

Over x-guards

Schools mull court action

BY TODD LANGTON

The Plymouth-Canton Schools Board of Education has taken the first step toward making the three communities within the district pick up the tab for crossing guards.

The board voted Monday to direct district attorneys to go court in an attempt to reverse a 1981 consent judgement under which the school district splits the cost of crossing

Concerns raised over parking deck's condition

BY PHILIP TARDANI

The City of Plymouth's Central Parking Deck may not be in danger of collapse, but it could use some maintenance, according to the Plymouth city engineer.

Ken West said some preventive maintenance on the deck now could save the city from future expenditures.

"You can spend a little money now to repair the damage or wait five years and spend a whole lot," he said.

The issue came up at a Thursday meeting of the city's Downtown Development Authority (DDA) when member Jim McKeon brought in some photos of water damage and rust on the deck. McKeon also had a two-foot concrete slab that had fallen near the walkway to the deck.

West said a chemical process called electrolysis is responsible for much of the damage. In it, salt put on the road in the winter gets into the metal infrastructure and separates the concrete from the metal.

Some of the damage has since been repaired, said West.

McKeon echoed West's statements about fixing the damage before it gets too extensive.

"I don't know what it's going to cost or what they can really do, but once this rust starts going, it's a hard thing to stop."

"If nothing more, it looks like hell," McKeon said. "It's not unsafe, but a little money spent now can save an awful lot later on."

At issue is where the money for repairs will come from. Both West and McKeon mentioned the DDA as a possible source.

"It would be my hope to have the DDA fund some maintenance," West said.

"The DDA is going to have a lot of money and I would suspect it's the one that's supposed to do this," McKeon said.

Greg Goodman, chairperson of the DDA, said, he is not convinced the DDA should fund any repairs.

"Personally, I don't understand why the DDA would have anything to do with the ramp," he said. "The DDA doesn't own it -- the city does."

Goodman added that the subject is not on the DDA's agenda, but that he is willing to hear more on the issue from the city.

"Our immediate concern was to make the city aware of the deterioration," he said.

Chief's plans, study linked?

BY TODD LANGTON

A Bartell & Bartell study of the City of Plymouth Police Department, which is expected to be released next week, has found that the needs of the department and those of Chief Richard Myers may eventually follow different paths.

"The department is not going to keep growing at the rate he is," said consultant Rod Bartell.

The department will have to enter a "maintenance" mode due to financial restrictions in the city, Bartell said.

"Eventually (Myers') style is not going to match the department's style and he is going to have to reconsider his career options," if he wishes to be involved with an expanding department, he said.

If Myers wants to stay than that's great, Bartell said. "No one's running him out. Not by a longshot."

Myers said he plans to stay with the department for at least another two years. "If I were here two years from now then I would," consider looking around, Myers said. "I think I have a lot to offer as a department head. I am not leaving right now."

Schools seek site plan nod

BY TODD LANGTON

The administration of the Plymouth-Canton Schools District will once again go before the City of Plymouth's Planning Commission tonight hoping to gain final site plan approval for the board building expansion project.

"I think the legal aspects have been addressed and resolved," said Raymond Hoedel, associate superintendent of business and operations for the district.

"We've passed all the hurdles," Hoedel said. "To us it looks pretty good."

"We are as prepared as we can be," said Michael Pollard, attorney for the district.

Apparently, the revised site plan also looks good to the city administration. "I think it's a workable plan," said City Engineer Ken West.

The planning commission may very well approve the site plan, West said.

"I don't expect the planning commission to give unanimous approval," he said.

New joint step in Plymouth; Canton eyes airport role

Without over-reacting to two important baby steps, a new day could be on the horizon for local governmental status here.

A joint meeting of the City of Plymouth Commission and the Plymouth Township Board last Tuesday night and two preliminary meetings by Canton officials to study buying and operating Mettetal Airport mark historic watersheds for the three local units of The Plymouth-Canton Community.

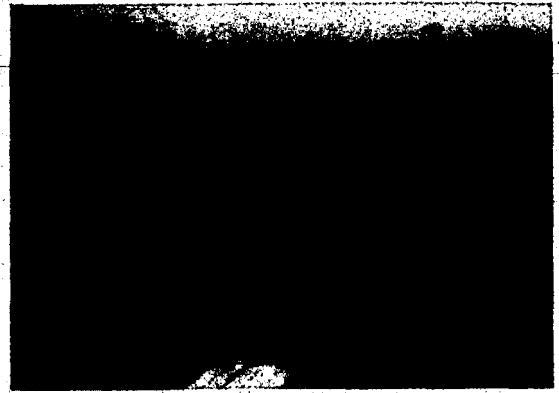

With all 14 City Commissioners and Township Board members alternately seated around a table Tuesday, several old wounds seem completely healed and new arenas identified.

Joint study committees of City-Township elected and appointed officials have been set up subsequent to the joint meeting. After they study recreation, planning and solid waste, the committees will report back "to a joint meeting of the governmental units," says a Mayor Dennis Bila memo.

It is significant, after years of hostility (sometimes under the surface, sometimes above it) that these two groups are jointly meeting. The opening salvos by both Township Supervisor Maurie Breen and Bila were conciliatory in tone, and it was significant that Breen mentioned the abandonment of annexation attempts by a City Commission led by then-Mayor Mary Childs who was present at the table, now as a commissioner.

(One dampening note to the milestone meeting, both units' officials described the event as a "social" gathering and did not post it as a legal meeting. Also, during the proceedings -- to which the press was invited, but the public was not and city-township employees were asked NOT to attend -- there were several shots at the state's Open Meetings Act. But there was nothing said at the meeting that was unfit for public consumption, so the deliberate obfuscation only tarnished the mayor and supervisor.)

Canton's initial inquiries into the possibility of state-federal funding to purchase Mettetal could lead to the township's recognition as a real place on the map. Few governmental units the size of Canton operate municipal airports.

It's premature to say that the Canton board will see the airport as worth preserving, but even if Canton doesn't want to acquire it, the state's willingness to preserve Mettetal might lead another governmental unit to get involved if Canton passes.

The "Canton Identity" issue has been a continued sore point for 15 years -- and Mettetal is officially listed as the "Plymouth" airport by the federal aviation folks. While bragging rights are hardly as important as preserving this vital link for The Plymouth-Canton Community (and environs), Canton's year-old administration can claim no accomplishment as significant as becoming an airport operator.

(The desirability of Canton leading a regional authority to attract federal and state dollars as well as encouraging a proper marketing mix for Mettetal's future is still there though.)

Yes, it's too early to tell if these developments will bear fruit.

But even these premature discussions raise hope that it's a new day for local governments.

Residents should be prepared for millages

EDITOR:

According to the papers, an early settlement on the teachers pact is expected.

If I were a teacher I would be delighted.

The last contract called for an annual raise of seven per cent a year. A teacher making $30,000 two years ago will now be making $36,750 in the last year of the contract.

Add another 22 and a half per cent over the next three years and they will make $45,018.75 in the final year of the contract. A teacher at the top of the scale now making $46,403 will be making $56,843.75 in the final year of the contract.

Since teachers salaries are about 85 per cent of the budget, I hope the taxpayers are prepared to keep voting for millage increases.

I'm old enough to have witnessed a couple of real estate downturns and I wonder if the assessor will lower the values where they really are.

I can't see the teachers coming down so by the year 2000 I expect the U.S. economy will be like Mexico and Brazil. We'll have play money with lots of zeros on the money. Think about it.

SOFA cares

SOFA is off and running. Students Organized for Action, a student group at CEP, has been formally recognized and given sponsored status by the Plymouth-Canton School Board.

SOFA is made up of a group of students who care about their world.

They want to take the time to get involved and make a difference.

Youthful idealism maybe... But as so many before have pointed out, maybe this would be a better place to live if we worked towards bettering the whole instead of just working to get a house or a car that is better than the Jones'.

We could all use a tad more idealism and bit less cynicism.

So go to it SOFA members. Make yourselves heard.

Make people, especially those of your own generation, aware of problems in the environment, human rights, animal rights and the condition of the world in general.

Try to affect other people in a positive manner and do what you can to see that your generation doesn't turn into a bunch of title grabbing, loafer wearing, money grubbing yuppie-zombie types.

Merchants help

Generosity appreciated

EDITOR:

Downtown Plymouth merchants are wonderful!

Last Friday I visited several in quest of door prizes for the middle school parent program to be held Wednesday evening, Valentine's Day.

I'd like to acknowledge the following people for their generous contributions:

Charlene of Baskets and Bows, Sue Gansler of the Rainbow Shop, Sharon at the Mayflower, Nancy Ball from Hands on Leather, and Marge Kucher who conducts fundraisers for athletic teams and other youth groups.

Parents who attend our program, "The Anatomy of a Middle School," could be the lucky winner of gift certificates and Plymouth merchandise.

Thank you to the businessmen and women of Plymouth; you have helped make this Valentine's Day program a little more special.

Boundary changes need thought, vision

EDITOR:

Last week's Plymouth-Canton Board of Education hearing on proposed boundary changes brought together a sizable number of people. Their immediate concerns were a change of schools for their children next year, but many broader issues emerged.

One of those issues was the need for the district to finalize its long-term plan before disrupting small groups of children for a short term.

The proposal to move some students from West to Central is one example of a short-sighted solution. Central is already being proposed as a "high school unit" for as early as 1992-93. The children being shifted next year would be moved again in two years, an obvious contradiction to the goals of stability and long-term planning.

Other proposals being discussed by the board are new building(s) and, with that, comprehensive boundary changes. All of these major decisions are being put on hold while the Board is rushing to move a small number of students, a movement which would not even significantly change the number at any building. For example, West will have just eight more students next year if there are no boundary changes. The need for a change is not critical enough to warrant temporary moves that cause serious problems for students.

The board must follow Superintendent Hoben's recommendations for visionary planning, addressed in a recent PCCS Community Newsletter. Any decision made before a complete plan is in place can only be seen as reactionary, and not what constituents of this district expect from its leaders.

The issues being discussed are vital to the entire District's future.

I-275, Warren ramp could harm wetlands

Once again there is talk in Westland of getting the state transportation department to consider a freeway exit ramp in Canton at I-275 and Warren Road.

At first glance that seems like a good idea -- it would mean a boon for Canton -- but on further consideration there are reasons the township should have reservations about the proposal.

Probably foremost, at least for environmentalists, would be the resulting threat to sensitive wetlands along the northside of Warren east of I-275.

Canton's current master land use plan calls for that stretch of Warren, running from I-275 to the CSX rail line near the eastern border with Westland, to remain zoned "wetlands conservation." New revisions of that plan call for the area to be designated "community facilities."

Putting an on/off ramp at Warren could open up Warren Road to potential development and exploitation at the expense of the natural setting.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources are the ultimate protectors of the wetlands, but there would be plenty of pressure from business quarters to utilize property next to the freeway and turn it into a commercial zone.

And there would be pressure on Canton officials to reconsider the zoning for that part of the township -- an exit ramp might mean an area of "highway-oriented shopping."

Admittedly, Westland officials want the exit to help open up their community for further development around Warren and Newburgh roads. They'd care little for what Canton does to property next to the freeway.

But Westland has also pushed for a golf course development near Wayne County's William P. Holliday Wildlife Nature Preserve in that same area.

This is, after all, the bigger issue. Both Canton's part of the nature preserve and the wetlands area along Warren would be directly threatened if development occurred to the east.

And that development has already been happening, all along Warren from Newburgh to the Westland Mall. Any new freeway exit would speed the development process, and in turn force the issue in Canton.

Pressure from Westland on the state may force Canton into a position of having to also take position.

If that becomes the case, the township, for now anyway, should come out strongly opposing the idea. And the state should respect the township's opposition.

THE COMMUNITY CRIER

I-275 ramp a good idea

EDITOR:

I read with interest a recent article relating to Westland's attempt to convince the Michigan State Highway Authority of the need for an interchange at I-275 and Warren Road.

Anyone who regularly commutes in the I-275 corridor does not need to be convinced of this need. They see it every day in the excess congestion that occurs at both the I-275 and Ann Arbor Road interchange and at I-275 and Ford Road interchange.

I personally have traveled this route for 12 years and it is a regular hassle to board I-275 at Ford with back-ups of over one mile to Lilley Road when going to work, and another back-up on I-275 from the Koppersick railroad bridge to the Ford exit on the way home from work.

An interchange at I-275 and Warren would greatly relieve the existing congestion that exists in this area today.

Interchanges are already in place at one mile intervals east along I-96 from Merriman to I-275, and north along I-275 from Six to Eight Mile roads. But south from Six Mile Road there are interchanges at only 2.7 mile intervals at Ann Arbor and at Ford. No wonder these interchanges are always jammed.

I hope all the residents of Plymouth, Livonia, Canton and Westland who use the I-275 commuting corridor write to their mayor's and State Representatives in support of Westland's proposal for an interchange at I-275 and Warren.

Goals define quality education

Effective schools research has been one of the leading forces in the drive for educational change.

"We know more about learning than we ever have before," said Richard Egli, community relations administrator for the district.

Under effective schools research, Homes said, schools are considered "good" if they provide the following:

- Strong instructional leadership with no question that "teaching and learning is the business of the day."
- A safe environment. "What is your focus," Egli said. "Is it on education or is it on staying alive? If you're more concerned with survival than staying alive, then you learn to survive."
- High expectations from both students and teachers.
- An ongoing assessment of student progress. This means more than just grades at the end of a term.
- Clear-cut goals and expectations.
- A school district mission statement. (Plymouth-Canton's is to provide educational opportunities in support of the belief that all students can learn and achieve personal success.)

- An identifiable communication system, both within and outside the school system.
- A standard uniform curriculum.
- A school improvement plan.
- A provision for staff development.

And a provision that all students have equal access to the opportunities provided by the district.

"That kind of became our base line," Homes said. "We began to look at what kinds of things we had in place here and what kinds of things we needed to do to either put them in place or strengthen those we already had."

The process of implementing developmental programs involves the sharing of ideas and a great deal of patience.

"It takes time," Homes said.

Implementing a developmental program involves "a process of creating awareness and allowing that awareness to grow into a need," he said.

If the teachers are interested in a certain program the people are brought in to educate them on how to effectively use that teaching method, he said.

As the programs are implemented they eventually become self-sustaining, Homes said.

The following is a list of the developmental programs being implemented in the Plymouth-Canton Schools which will be explored in over the next two months.

- Cooperative Learning -- students taking greater responsibility for their own learning by participating in structured, ongoing group activities.
- Business and Education Leadership Program -- increasing the awareness and interaction between students and the business community.
- Developmental Curriculum for Elementary Education -- an approach to provide more hands-on learning activities for students.

• Outcome Based Education and Diploma Guarantee programs -- set up to ensure that each student has a specific core of knowledge and set of skills by graduation time.

• Middle Level Development -- a program to provide for the needs of middle school age children who are going through dramatic changes in their lives.

• Cognitive Coaching -- a system of conversation and observation between teachers to help them improve their instructional performance.

Cultural exchange...

Local dancers to perform in USSR

BY TODD LANGTON

Many people dream of visiting the Soviet Union to experience the culture, speak with the people and make the gap between "us" and "them" a little bit smaller.

For three local ballet dancers, that dream will soon come true.

August Raschke, 17, of Canton, Nina Riley, 17, of Plymouth Township and Rebecca Normile, 15, of Salem Township, will spend seven days in March learning and performing ballet in the Soviet Union with the Ann Arbor Ballet Theatre group (AABT).

They will also learn about the Soviet lifestyle and language; they will be staying with Soviet families during the trip.

The three dancers auditioned with the AABT in mid-January hoping to gain one of the 15 available spots.

The AABT is one of only two ballet groups in the nation which has been invited in the Festival of Ballet Schools in the Soviet Union, said Gail Etter, general manager of the AABT.

All of the major Soviet ballet schools and select international schools will participate, Etter said.

"It's going to be such a good experience," said Riley. "Especially for the ballet."

Riley said she is very excited about getting first hand experience in Russian ballet from a country noted for extremely strong dancers.

"I just want to be able to improve," she said.

But she wants to get more out of the trip than just improved dancing technique.

She wants to "learn everything" while she is in the Soviet Union, Riley said.

"I'm really excited," said Raschke.

She wants to experience both the culture and the dancing, Raschke said.

"You're always told what it's like," she said.

This will give her the opportunity to see how things really are in the Soviet Union, she added.

Raschke will also have the chance to see the difference between styles in American taught Russian ballet and actual Soviet ballet taught by Soviet masters, she said.

Normile is preparing for what will be her second trip to the Soviet Union.

"It was really different. It was a wonderful experience," said Normile of her first experience in the Soviet Union.

Last July, Normile spent two weeks performing in the International Festival of Dance in the Soviet Union and Poland. She performed in five shows in cities such as Moscow, Minsk and Warsaw.

Of her upcoming trip Normile said she will use the opportunity to build her Russian technique.

Normile said she learned more than just ballet on her previous trip.

"I'm planning on bringing my own food," she said.

Death of a dryer

Buying a new appliance is almost as bad as buying groceries, you have to shop, it puts a big dent in the check book and you have very little to show for it when you're done.

Unfortunately, they are both one of these necessary evils in life. Have you ever noticed how an old appliance seems to know when the check book balance goes from black to red ink? My darn dryer has been making a noise for six months, but for some reason waited until I was faced with the biggest gas bill of the year, the holiday charge bills, plus the kid's spring term tuition payment, before it decided to quit.

Actually the noise coming from the dryer was a rather loud racket that could be heard half way down the block. The fact that the appliance had been a part of our household for more than 20 years means we probably got our money's worth out of it. However, if it had managed for that long, what's a couple more months?

Realizing my only choices were either to start going to the laundry mat or shop for a dryer, it made it easier to pull out the plastic charge card and find what looked like the best buy for the least amount of money.

After checking ads and comparing prices, I ended up with the same brand I picked out 20 years ago. If one of those models could make it through two kids growing up from diapers to college, I figured the next one should last me forever (or almost).

I had forgotten how big a mess my basement was until I realized that strangers from the outside world were going to have to deliver the new dryer and pick up the old one, which meant at least a wide enough path to and from the laundry room was needed.

I guess I hadn't taken time to notice how many dust bunnies had gathered around the washer and dryer. Then there was this area behind and under the dryer that no one should ever see: Good grief, what a mess. The kid moved the old dryer out so I could clean behind it before the new one arrived (and before anyone could see the mess).

Now that we have clean clothes once again at our house, we are being gentle with the washer.

Although not quite as old as the dryer, it also has passed its 20th year in service here. With a little luck it will hold on a little longer. Besides, I don't think I'd do well with a scrub board (whatever that is).

Contest planned

Festival theme needed

The Fall Festival Board of Directors are trying to come up with a "theme" for this year's 35th annual Fall Festival.

That's why the board recently decided to stage a contest (open to all residents) to find the best theme for this year's festival.

Residents interested in entering the contest have until Feb. 28 to submit an idea. The winner will walk away with two tickets for each of the main meals during this year's festival.

In case of theme duplication, the earliest postmark date will be used as the deciding factor.

Send entries to the Fall Festival Board of Directors in care of The Community Crier.

The next meeting of the board will be March 7. The group meets the first Wednesday of each month.

At the March meeting, application forms and rules and regulations for participating in the Fall Festival will be available to local service clubs and organizations interested in being a part of the event.

School work

A Plymouth firm may win the bid for an architectural survey of Sheldon School along Michigan Avenue in Canton.

Last night the Canton Board of Trustees was expected to award the bid to R.O. Scramstad and Associates, Inc., of Plymouth, for survey work on the school to find out what needs to be done to complete the renovation of the historic school.

The project is being funded through the Community Development Block Grant program. It is expected that a survey will be completed within six weeks at a cost of $3,500.

Local unit takes on auto theft

A report showing the decline of auto thefts in Michigan over the past five years was released in Canton Friday by the Michigan State Police just hours after a local task force made the largest single auto-theft arrest in Michigan history.

A Garden City man was arraigned Friday on 112 felony counts related to auto theft after a raid by the Western Wayne County Auto Theft Task Force, which is based in Canton.

The work of the locally based task force is making a real difference when it comes to auto thefts, said State Police officials during a news conference in Canton Friday. Those same officials also praised the efforts of the state's Auto Theft Prevention Authority (ATPA).

The local task force, which recently received a $355,839 grant from the ATPA, is made up of police officers (and financial support) from a wide number of communities, including Canton and Northville townships, Plymouth, Belleville, Romulus, and Westland.

The ATPA was created in 1986 as a pilot program for supporting local anti-auto theft efforts.

"We're very pleased and proud of our task force," said John Santomauro, police chief in Canton.

At the beginning of Friday's news conference Canton Supervisor Tom Yack said, "We have been able to see first hand the effects of prevention efforts because one of the consortiums is located in Canton."

Pied Piper at Salem

The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra (PSO) will host a "Pied Piper Fantasy" Friday, Feb. 23 at the Salem High Auditorium.

The 8 p.m. concert will feature guest artist Rodney Hill, a flutist and professor of music at Eastern Michigan University.

Besides Corigliano's "Pied Piper Fantasy," the Friday performance will include "Symphony No. 7," by Ludwig Beethoven.

Tickets for the show are $8 for adults, $7 senior citizens and $2 for students in grades K-12.

Tickets are available at the door 30 minutes before the performance. They are also available at the PSO office in the City of Plymouth, as well as Beitner Jewelers, Evola Music Center, Orin Jewelers, Bookstall On The Main, and Hammell Music.

The show is sponsored in part by Unisys.

For further information call 453-2112.

CEP orientation

Centennial Educational Park (CEP) is hosting evening orientation sessions for incoming ninth and 10th grade students for the 1990-91 school year. Parents and students are encouraged to attend the meeting at their future high school.

Salem High School orientation will be Mon., Feb. 19, from 7:00-9:00 p.m.; Canton High School orientation will be tonight (Feb. 14) from 7:00-9:00 p.m.

The orientation is aimed at providing subject area and course selection information for completing the registration process for the 1990-91 school year.

Staff members will be available to make presentations and respond to course selection questions.

Donkey basketball

It may get crazy in the Salem High gym when the I-CARE Committee and the Salem Junior Class Council host a Donkey Basketball Tournament at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 15.

The fundraising event will feature teams of prominent local residents, school staff members and Salem juniors competing for The Plymouth-Canton Community donkey hoop title.

Tickets are $3 each in advance and $4 at the door. For further details on what might be a hilarious evening call 454-1410.

Fox Hills rates 97% with satisfied customers

BY ANDREA WATTS

We all know how important they are. Without our cars, simple events such as getting to work in the morning, become extremely inconvenient.

David Galdes, General Sales Manager at Fox Hills Chrysler Plymouth on Ann Arbor Road at Lilley in Plymouth Township, knows how important customers' cars are to them and tries to make buying a car as convenient as possible.

"We have a really good team working for us in both sales and service," he said.

Galdes explained that the sales staff is very unique, since it is very family-oriented and tries to make all customers feel right at home.

He said he's particularly proud of Chrysler's "Award for Excellence," which the dealership has won three out of the five past years. (The award is based on surveys sent to Chrysler customers for dealerships throughout the country.)

Galdes said, "It's something that's a real prestige thing."

In the survey, each customer rates their Chrysler dealership a total of three times over a one-year period according to Galdes. The first survey is sent to the customer within 30 days after they purchase their automobile. After two months, the customer rates the sales and service at their dealership; another survey is sent one year after the purchase.

This final survey asks the customer whether or not they would buy another Chrysler car.

Galdes further explained that "all the surveys are then put together and equaled out."

"We do many special things for our customers. We have 97 per cent customer satisfaction according to the survey," said Galdes.

He also stated that Chrysler is now offering a money-back rebate which will run until next September.

"There is no reason to wait to buy a car," said Galdes because if the rebates offer increases at all, the customer will be refunded the difference on the rebate.

What about those rumors that car sales would be down this year?

Galdes stated that, "Chrysler has had its best January ever. Retail sales are up!"

He also predicted that the Fox Hills' sales staff "will be a winner for the 1990s."

Fox Hills Chrysler Plymouth further encourages customer satisfaction with their "Sales Person of the Month Award," said Galdes.

He explained that this award is based on the highest number of sales for each month. In addition, there is also a yearly sales award which goes to the sales person who sells the most units retail said Galdes.

"Chrysler is the only manufacturer that has air bags standard in every passenger vehicle," Galdes stated.

He stressed that Chrysler is very safety conscious, so no charge is added to the customer for this extra protection.

Galdes explained that there is "about 99 per cent positive reaction" from the Chrysler customers regarding the new safety devices.

He also stated that Fox Hills Chrysler is the "top leasing center in the country."

"The type of people we lease to are a lot of business people," he said.

Galdes explained that leasing a car is no different than buying a car, except the customer is "not on the hook." He doesn't have to worry about selling the car in the end. If the driver puts a lot of miles on the vehicle, "that's the way to go."

Fox Hills Chrysler Plymouth sales is open for business on Monday and Thursday from 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Tuesday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. guards with the City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton.

Attorneys have advised the administration that the district's financial involvement in regards to crossing guards increases the district's level of liability because the guards do not have the legal power to arrest or detain an individual, said John Hoben, superintendent of the school district.

"Technically these people should have that authority," Hoben said.

Attorneys for the district have also indicated that the consent judgement might be in violation of a 1978 amendment to the Michigan Motor Vehicle Code.

The amendment states that crossing guards are "the responsibility of the local law enforcement agency having immediate jurisdiction over the crossing," said Raymond Hoedel, associate superintendent of business and operations in the district.

"Our attorney will take it to court" to get the consent judgement overturned, Hoedel said.

Voters say no Proposals defeated

BY TODD LANGTON

Voters in the Wayne-Westland Public Schools district resoundingly defeated three school funding ballot proposals Thursday forcing the district to make some difficult financial decisions.

The district will now have to design a curriculum that will "least hurt" children in the district, said Dennis O'Neill, superintendent of the Wayne-Westland School District.

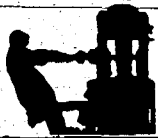

The defeat, O'Neill said, "is disappointing and frustrating but we still have a responsibility to 17,000 young people."

A two-year, 2.75 mill renewal was defeated by a margin of 4,863 to 3,214 votes. A proposed two-year, 4.9 mill increase was defeated by a margin of 6,367 to 1,663.

A proposed Headlee Tax Limitation Amendment override which would have meant a 0.5 mill tax increase for the 1990-91 school year was knocked down by a vote of 6,480 to 1,512.

A mill is equal to one dollar for every $1,000 in assessed property value.

The move is also more in line with the long term goals of the district, Swartzwelder said.

The resolution, "doesn't get involved in any hiccups in the interim," he said.

Under the resolution approximately 400 ninth graders will be added to the CEP population next year. "Things will be a little tight for a while," Homes said of the increased CEP population.

Some facilities at CEP will have to be expanded to meet the needs of the increased student population, he said. "That gets at the issue of a bond proposal."

"(A bond issue) is a must," said Thomas Tattan, principal of Canton High School.

"The bond issue has to be part of this entire," long range plan, Tattan said. "Even more so a must with the additional students."

The science facilities at CEP are already at capacity and the lunchroom and indoor sports facilities may need to be expanded in the future, he said. "There are some pressing needs in the area of science."

Tattan said he might eventually like to see a "fourth phase" or building which could connect the two schools.

"There will be problems that we need to work on finding solutions to," he said.

The school board moved to address some initial CEP needs by approving $200,000 out of this year's budget to improve and expand facilities for the incoming ninth graders.

Regardless of the increased population the move is a positive one because it will solve the program inequities for the ninth graders, he added.

"I look forward to it," said Gerald Ostoin, principal of Salem High School. "The ninth graders belong at the CEP" because of the greater program opportunities.

"I think it will be alright," said Superintendent John Hoben. He added that "it's time to do it."

Under the resolution two areas will be effected by middle school attendance boundary changes.

Students in the area west of Ridgewood Drive, south of the CSX railroad tracks, north of North Territorial and east of Beck roads will be assigned to Central Middle School.

Students in the area south of North Territorial, west of Beck, north of Powell and east of Napier roads will also go to Central.

The changes are effective immediately for families moving into those areas and will go into effect for families already located in the aforementioned areas for the 1990-91 school year.

Canton board eyes pay hike

The Canton Board of Trustees was expected to formally approve new compensation levels for trustees during the last night's meeting.

According to Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, compensation for the board members was increased as a part of the 1990 budget process from $6,000 to $6,500 per year.

But the new compensation was never formally adopted by the board of trustees.

Yack said the flat rate will be retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year.

"They definitely earn their keep," said Yack of the trustees.

The compensation is used in place of pay per meeting, said Yack. The board meets nearly every week, either in regular session or study session.

At The Crier McElroy named ad director

Larry McElroy, 47, and a resident of the City of Plymouth, has been named the new advertising director for The Community Crier.

LARRY MCELROY

McElroy, who has worked in a variety of sales positions for the past 20 years, also owned his own business at one time.

"It's exciting to be more affiliated with the community," McElroy said. "All of my other (business) positions were pretty much outside of the community."

McElroy is a member of the First United Presbyterian Church of Plymouth and the Plymouth Community Arts Council (PCAC). He is currently president of the Fall Festival Board of Directors.

A veteran of the U.S. Navy, McElroy attended the University of Pittsburgh before moving to Plymouth in 1967. His wife, Sue, works for Plymouth Township. They have two children, Todd and Amy.

"With a blend of marketing-management experience and his commitment to The Plymouth-Canton Community, Larry was a natural for this position," said Phyllis Redfern, general manager of The Crier. "The Crier's ad director is a pivotal person in helping promote our unique area and its vital business component."

"Larry McElroy will add to this and we're pleased to get him on board," Redfern said.

Getting down to business

Jack Gunsaulus, owner of Jack's Corner Bookstore, says old books can be valuable, but not always. (Crier photo by Robert Richards)

Collectors to kids

Unique book store

BY PATRICIA BROWN

A jaded bibliophile can find a wide variety of unique books, mostly used hardcover editions, at the new Jack's Corner Bookstore in downtown City of Plymouth.

Store owner and antique consultant, Jack Gunsaulus, said, "A lot of the books I sell are out-of-print books and first editions."

After working as a social worker for more than 15 years Gunsaulus, 55, decided to try the bookstore business. "I've always wanted a bookstore because I've always loved books."

The Northville resident, who was an antique consultant for more than 30 years, decided to unpack many years worth of books he had been collecting and start his own bookstore. "I decided that I had enough stock, about 6,000 books, to open a store, and since I've always liked Plymouth, I decided to open my store in Plymouth," he said.

Gunsaulus, who opened his store more than a year ago, not only sells books, but he also buys them. He said there are usually two prevalent misconceptions when someone tries to sell a book.

"I've found since I've been in this business, people believe that old Bibles are valuable. People have called about Bibles from the 1800s -- but it doesn't mean they are valuable. Old doesn't mean valuable.

"It's hard to convince people that they don't have some treasure. People think because they have a pre-1900 book, that the book is valuable," he added.

Before someone decides to sell a book they should have it appraised according to the book's condition and the subject matter, said Gunsaulus. "Book dealers will usually pay one-quarter to half of the books value," he said.

He also said that some of his customers are people trying to fill up their own library. "I had a man from Birmingham come in and buy 165 books. He didn't care about the subject of the book, just the condition."

Other customers who frequent stores like Gunsaulus' are young couples often looking for children's books. "I have a rather sizable children's area, which is reflective of my own interest," he said. "Young couples buy serialized books like Nancy Drew and the Hardy Boys. They prefer to have the older editions. Sometimes when books are republished, the story line changes."

"It's something of a nostalgia thing," he added.

Chief gymnasts snub CEP rivals

BY RITA DERBIN

One gymnast doesn't make the team — that's why Canton is so good.

Salem's freshman Kim Miller took first place in every event but Canton's depth was overpowering and the Chiefs defeated Salem, 137.9 to 135, Monday night.

Miller was the top all around gymnast on the night with 37.25 points. She was followed by Canton's Kim Rennolds and Johanna Anderson who tied for second with 34.7. Salem's Autumn Bunch was fourth with 34.5.

"(Canton coach John Cunningham) has six girls competing all around," said Salem coach Kathi Kinsella. "We performed well without our number two gymnast (Courtney Gonyea, out with a broken toe) but the better team won.

"They've got us in depth," she added. "We only had two competing on all around and all night they scored eights all across and we had a nine and an eight."

Miller was first in vault (9.2). She was followed by Anderson and Rennolds, who tied for second with 9.0 and Bunch, fourth with 8.95.

On bars, Miller was first with a 9.4. She was followed by Canton's Jenny Tedesco (8.6) and Rennolds (8.35).

On beam, Miller was first with 9.25. She was followed by Canton's Dawn Clifford (8.95) and Anderson (8.65).

On floor Miller took a first with 9.4. She was followed by Anderson (9.1) and Bunch (9.0).

Both teams will compete in the Freeland Invitational on Saturday.

Sports

Hoop defense puts Salem on the winning track

BY RITA DERBIN

Defense is the key ingredient to the Salem basketball team's success.

And the Rocks 13-1 season.

On Friday night, the Rocks, 7-0 in the Lakes division of the Western Lakes Activities Association, defeated Walled Lake Central, 56-37.

In the game, 11 Rocks scored. Bryan Schultz led Salem with 11 points. Jake Baker and Tom Noonan each tossed in nine points.

"Central tried to slow the game down on us," said coach Bob Brodie. "But it's hard when you're down by so much."

Salem jumped out to a 20-point lead in the game and never looked back as they substituted early and often.

"All the players are getting lots of time in every game," said Brodie. "That will help us in the stretch."

The story was the same on Tuesday night when the Rocks pounded cross-campus rival Canton, 73-49.

Salem jumped out to a 16-0 lead early in the first quarter and never looked back. Baker led the Rocks with 11 of his game high 18 points in the first quarter. Scoring in double figures for the Chiefs were Brett Howell, 14 points and Jason Riggs, 10 points.

The Rocks will host Westland John Glenn on Friday night at 7:30 p.m. and travel to Farmington on Tuesday.

Canton will travel to Farmington Harrison on Friday night and host Livonia Franklin on Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m.

Salem to host regionals Rock wrestlers advance

BY RITA DERBIN

Seven Salem wrestlers will advance to Class A Regional action Saturday.

The Rocks will host the event, beginning at 10 a.m. The top four wrestlers from each weight division will then advance to the state finals.

Advancing from the individual districts were Scott Martin (103 pound), third place; Dan Bonnett (112 pound), third; Ken Stopa (125 pound) third; Julian Sell (130 pound) second; Steve Burlison (160 pound), first; Pete Israel (171 pound), first; and Brian Burlison (189 pound), first.

"Out of 12 kids we took to districts, seven made it," said coach Ron Krueger. "But as far as team competition, it's over."

The Rocks were knocked out of the team regionals when they performed poorly at the team district meet and lost, 32-25, to Belleville — a team they had beaten all season long, according to Krueger.

"We didn't wrestle well," said a disappointed Krueger. "Now it's up to the individuals — the season is over for the team."

Winning for Salem in the team districts were: Martin, who pinned his opponent; Stopa, who pinned his opponent; Sell, who won on points; Ron Miller, 145-pounds, won on points; Steve Burlison, wrestling at 171-pound, tied 2-2; and Brian Burlison, 189-pounds, pinned his opponent.

Local gymnasts finish in top 10

Two local gymnasts competing for Livonia's All-Around Gymnastic Center were among the top 10 finishers during a two-day girls gymnastics meet in Farmington recently.

Canton's Kim Miller, 14, a student at West Middle School, placed sixth all around in her level 9 division. She also placed in two individual events.

Brie Wall, 11, a Pioneer Middle School student, finished sixth all around in her level 7 division. The Plymouth resident also placed in four individual events.

Miller finished seventh on the uneven bars and fourth on the balance beam. She received an all around score of 33.

Wall placed 10th in floor exercise, 10th in vault, fourth in uneven bars and third in balance beam. Her all around total was 29.7.

Orris returns from Europe

BY RITA DERBIN

Salem swimmer Ron Orris is back after taking a few days off school to compete for the U.S. junior national swim team in Paris and East Berlin.

Orris competed against the top swimmers from 34 countries in Paris and took two top 10 finishes. He was sixth in the 400-meter individual medley with 4:29.0 (he swam 4:28.5 in the preliminaries) and ninth in the 200-meter individual medley (2:05.0), which qualified him for the senior nationals in that event held in Nashville next month. Orris also competed in the 200-meter freestyle and had a time of 1:53.4.

"It was pretty unusual over there," said the 17-year-old senior. "Competition-wise it was a lot tougher over there and they kept us very busy, but I did talk with (U.S. gold medalist) Matt Biondi and he gave me some pointers and there was a world record set while I was there.

"East Berlin was weird," Orris added. "Everything was kind of backwards."

Overall, Orris was pleased with his performance in his first taste of international competition.

"It was a learning experience," Orris said. "They do things different over there — there were a lot of new things for me to learn. I had a good time but it's good to be home."

Now Orris can begin to concentrate on helping the Rocks defend their conference title. After that it's the state meet and then the nationals.

"I've got to buckle down," Orris said. "And I'm just taking one meet at time."

Challenge Fest getting closer

This year's Canton Challenge Festival does not kick off until May 25-27 -- with the annual Canton Soccer Tournament -- but the committee organizing the event has been meeting since last September to prepare for the second annual fitness, athletic and health festival.

The first Challenge Festival was held over 10 days last summer, and plans are in the works to make it an even bigger event this year, said organizers.

Thousands from all over the midwest are likely to attend the annual soccer tournament, but the entire festival will last through Sunday, June 3, when a series of daylong family activities are planned at the Canton Recreation Complex (at Canton Center and Proctor roads).

The final day of the festival will include a fishing derby, walk/run for literacy, a used book sale, horseshoes tournament, and a kite flying exhibit. Oakwood Hospital will also offer health screenings that day.

Other activities planned for the two-weeks of the festival include: a chili cookoff, a photography exhibit, youth fitness field day, a softball tournament, a sing-a-long, and a long drive and hole-in-one junior golf competition.

Residents who want further information about the upcoming festival should call the Canton Parks and Recreation at 397-5110.

Members of this year's Challenge Festival committee include Russ Courville, chairperson; Don Voyles, vice chairperson; M.J. Essenmacher, treasurer; and Mike Gulkiewicz, Wally Baker, John Schwartz, Louise Spigarelli, Sue Beaton, Bruce Patterson, Kathleen Keen-McCarthy and Cathy Johnson.

Chiefs ranked third

Canton gymnasts win

BY RITA DERBIN

Other teams may win the battles but the Chiefs, who are deep in every event, have been winning the wars.

On Friday the Canton gymnastics team, now ranked third in the state with a 9-0 record, scored 138.65 points to defeat Freeland and Vasser in a tri meet. In the victory, no Chief finished first in the individual events but the team walked off another the victory.

Kim Rennolds finished second in the all around with 35.25 points. Teammates Dawn Clifford (fourth, 34.35), Johanna Anderson (fifth, 34.25) and Jenny Tedesco (sixth, 34.05) also finished in the top 10 in all around.

On vault, Rennolds was second (9.15). Tedesco, fourth, 8.65; and Clifford, fifth, 8.6 also finished high.

Clifford was the top finisher for the Chiefs on bars. She was third with 8.4. Tedesco and Rennolds tied for fourth in that event.

On beam, the Chiefs' strongest event, Heather Murphy was second with 9.0. She was followed by Rennolds, third, 8.85; Clifford, fourth, 8.8; Anderson, fifth, 8.7; and Tedesco, sixth, 8.55.

Anderson finished second on floor with 9.1. Rennolds was fourth (8.95); Murphy, fifth (8.75) and Clifford and Tedesco tied for sixth (8.55).

Canton racquetball league

Canton's Parks and Recreation Department is sponsoring a 10-week spring racquetball league to be played on Wednesdays (starting Feb. 28) at Rose Shores of Canton.

The league will be divided up into divisions based on players' abilities. Court times will be at 7:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. The cost is $64 per person for the 10 weeks of competition.

For further information call 397-5110. Register by mail or in person to the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, at Canton's Administration Building on Canton Center Road.

Curiosities

Newspaper cat... she's where it's at!

Larry, it's not nice to show the G.M. up - be careful.

Rita, do you have room for me to go to
