

Teen club proposed for Plymouth

BY PHILIP TARDANI

Two area businessmen want to convert the former Farmer Jack's along Main Street in the City of Plymouth into a teen dance club, according to assistant city manager Paul Sincoc.

Sincoc said the two — James McEwen and Robert Cortis of RJMC

Corporation — came up with the idea as a possible remedy for the Plymouth's summer "cruising" problem.

"They said they were interested in our problem and they think this might be an opportunity to do something about it," he said.

Sincoc first heard of the proposal last Wednesday.

McEwen said there is a demand for a place young adults can congregate in Plymouth, and satisfying it can help alleviate the cruising problem.

"There's no place for these kids to go," he said. "If I take 1,100 people off the street, you know it's going to help."

"Without a doubt, this will alleviate a large percentage of the problem," he said.

The road for McEwen and Cortis could be long and complicated, however, according to James Penn, city building inspector.

First, Penn said, the two would have

Contract negotiations in the works

Jaeger approved as City manager

BY PHILIP TARDANI

The City of Plymouth's search for a permanent city manager may finally be over.

The Plymouth City Commission unanimously agreed Monday to enter into contract negotiations with Gordon Jaeger, of Battle Creek, to fill the post. Commissioner Ronald Loiselle was not present at the meeting.

Earlier in the evening, Steven Walters of Northville had told the selection committee that he was no longer a candidate for the job, according to mayor pro-tem R. Jack Kenyon.

"We got a call about 5 p.m. that Steve had unqualifiedly withdrawn from his candidacy as city manager," said Kenyon, who became chairperson of the manager selection committee after Mayor Dennis Bila resigned "in the interests of harmony."

Jaeger, who was city manager in Battle Creek for 12 years and has 23 years experience in the field, arrived at the regular commission meeting about 8:15 p.m. for a public interview.

"I'm looking forward to becoming city manager in Plymouth," he said. "I'm looking forward to meeting with the city commission and the mayor to help accomplish your goals."

"I'm looking forward to coming to Plymouth," he added.

Kenyon said contract negotiations will begin immediately and he is hoping to have Jaeger on the job June 1, a date he says Jaeger agrees with.

A tentative salary for Jaeger has been set at $59,500, Kenyon said.

Commissioner James Jabara expressed a feeling of relief that the city manager situation appears to be cleared up.

"I'm glad he (Jaeger) is here and we can move forward now," he said.

Jaeger said he believes in openness in city government.

"I believe very strongly in having an open door policy to any citizen in the community," he said. "I believe in working with the press, working with the news media."

The philosophy also applies to city employees, Jaeger said, adding he conducts regular staff meetings and will not shake up the payroll at city hall.

He said his first task will be to get to know the city, its employees and its needs.

"I have to get acquainted," he said. "The first thing I will do is spend time with department heads and employees."

Jaeger did hint, however, that downtown enhancement may be high on his list of priorities.

"Perhaps looking at the downtown is something that has to be done," Jaeger said. "You do not have a lot of industry in the community to help with the tax base."

Jaeger also said he will be working with city staff on the 1990-91 budget. Jaeger met with City Finance Director William Graham yesterday on that subject, Graham said.

Plymouth is "a lovely community, a wonderful place to live," Jaeger said.

"It certainly will be the highest level community of any that I've served," he added.

It has been nearly 10 months since former city manager Henry Graper resigned under fire from the post. During the interim Graham and then Ken Way have taken on the role of acting city manager.

Farrow withdraws; 8 run for school board

BY KEN VOYLES

The field seeking two seats on the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education has been narrowed to eight following Jack Farrow's withdrawal from the race last Wednesday.

Farrow, who is a member of I-Care, said he was concerned that by running he would take votes away from candidates Carl Battishill and Lester

Walker in the race against candidates Robert Anderson and Diane Stamp.

Both Anderson and Stamp are supported by the Citizens For Better Education (CBE), a conservative Christian group opposing certain teaching materials used in district classrooms.

Shortly after Farrow's withdrawal word surfaced that pressure was apparently being put on some of the candidates to withdraw from the race

In critical condition

Canton man beaten in Ann Arbor

BY SCOTT DANIEL

A Canton man remained in critical condition late Tuesday after being beaten outside an Ann Arbor bar Friday night, Ann Arbor Police said.

Robert Moore, 23, was taken to the University of Michigan Hospitals Friday after being kicked in the head, said Ann Arbor Sgt. Tom Caldwell. He said Moore remains in an intensive care unit.

Carlos A. Mayberry, 21, of Ann Arbor, was charged Friday for allegedly beating Moore and was arraigned Saturday in 15th District Court on a charge of assault with intent to do bodily harm less than murder.

Mayberry is being held on a $10,000 or 10 per cent bond. Bond had not been posted by Monday, Caldwell said. The beating occurred as a result of a brawl that began at Dooley's Bar in Ann Arbor, Caldwell said. He said Moore and two companions were kicked out of the bar.

But before leaving the bar, Moore was pushed by a patron, Mayberry's brother, Caldwell added. He said Moore responded by punching the man.

Vote records mixed for candidates

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

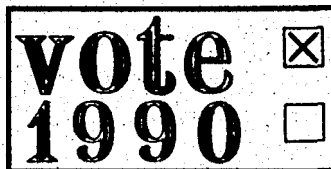

The eight candidates in the race for two Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education seats get mixed grades in their interest in past school elections.

Collectively, they've voted in 77 per cent of the school elections for which they were eligible.

According to records supplied by the schools, one of the candidates has never voted in a Plymouth-Canton Schools election -- John C. Engdahl, of 1030 Penniman, Plymouth, who registered Sept. 17, 1987, which was three elections ago.

Other voting percentages of candidates, as supplied by the schools, are:

--K.C. Mueller, of 12232 Hillside Drive, Plymouth Township, has voted in four (or just 25 per cent) of the 16 elections since she registered on June 22, 1979.

--Diane Stamp, of 1073 Penniman, Plymouth, has voted in five of nine elections since she registered Aug. 31, 1984 (56 per cent).

--Toni K. Hartke, of 46551 Rockledge Drive, Plymouth Township, has voted in six of nine elections since registering Aug. 8, 1983 (67 per cent).

--Richard W. Sumpter, of 42675 Beechwood, Canton, has voted in 15 of 21 school elections since registering Aug. 2, 1977 (71 per cent).

--Robert E. Anderson, Jr., of 1410 Marlowe, Canton, registered May 15, 1986 and voted four of five times (80 per cent).

--Lester W. Walker, of 650 Jenner, Plymouth, voted in 25 of 31 school elections (81 per cent) since registering Oct. 1, 1971.

--Carl E. Battishill, of 525 Blunk, Plymouth, cast ballots in 12 of 14 (86 per cent) school elections since he registered Dec. 26, 1980.

Voter registration records, which show when voters go the polls, but not how they voted, are public.

Candidate concerned over CBE campaign

decision to the recent death of Gallimore student Stephen Nalepa.

Farrow said the "shameless exploitation of the Nalepa family's tragedy" had raised his "ire."

He added, "I am truly ashamed at the black mark the irresponsible actions of these people (CBE) have put on our community."

Farrow said he was not pressured to withdraw from the race, but that his campaign manager Ray Buckman recommended it because of the presence on the ballot of Battishill and Walker.

"His logic made pretty good sense," said Farrow, who added that he contacted various members of the current school board and other candidates to get a "feel" for whether or not he was making the right decision.

Battishill said Monday that he had conversations "in passing" with other candidates about the race, but he had not heard about any pressure being brought to bare on anyone to withdraw from the race.

He also said the idea of an "organized campaign by a pair of people," would not sit well with voters.

"Our community doesn't favor that kind of campaign," said Battishill. "The voters will want to look at each one of us."

A similar effort to somehow reduce the candidate field was made during last year's school election when there were six candidates contesting the one seat held by David Artley.

In another recent election development, a letter sent out by Mueller yesterday proposed that the candidates "support a series of town meetings that will bring the candidates together a minimum of five times."

"It is to the benefit of our community for candidate forums to be scheduled as frequently as possible," Mueller wrote.

Because there has been confusion and misinformation given by some members of the electronic and print media, the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education is herewith printing our statement concerning our investigation into the film "Nobody's Useless":

Board Statement

The School District has now completed its internal investigation into the circumstances surrounding the showing of the film "Nobody's Useless" to students at Gallimore Elementary School. As part of this investigation, the Superintendent and all members of the Board of Education viewed the film in its entirety.

According to the film's distributor, Encyclopedia Britannica Educational Corporation, "Nobody's Useless" was produced by Osmond International of Orem, Utah, and first released in 1980. This film is based on the popular children's books of John D. Fitzgerald. It has been viewed by thousands of young people since 1980 with no reported incidents.

"Nobody's Useless" examines the emotional problems and social pressures that may arise from a physical disability, and portrays how they can be overcome by humor and courage. "Nobody's Useless" is not a "suicide film" as some members of the media have described it. Rather, it is a film that reaffirms the value of life and the importance of self-esteem.

The Canton Township Police Department has concluded that, "No information was developed that would indicate that the death was a suicide." While the School District's internal investigation did not focus upon the cause of Stephen Nalepa's death, this investigation was precipitated by allegations that there was a relationship between his death and his viewing of the film "Nobody's Useless." One of the many aspects of this tragedy in our school community is that no one will ever know for certain why Stephen Nalepa died. The School District's investigation, however, has disclosed no information to lead us to believe that a causal relationship existed between Stephen's viewing of this film and his death.

The School District has taken and will continue to take all necessary steps to minimize the emotional effects of Stephen's tragic death. In addition, the District is reviewing the selection and use of all educational resources as part of its ongoing evaluation of policies and procedures.

Once again, we wish to extend our deepest sympathy to the Nalepa family.

in an attempt to keep the CBE from winning any board seats.

The last day to officially withdraw from the ballot was Thursday.

In a statement released last Wednesday, Farrow wrote, "If Robert Anderson were elected to our school board, I feel it would be a tragedy for the entire community."

He added, "My presence on the ballot would take votes away from Carl Battishill and Les Walker, which would increase the chances that Robert Anderson could win election."

Anderson, who has sought election to the board two times in the past, has been supported by the CBE both times.

The eight candidates on the June 11 election slate are: Battishill, Walker, Anderson, Stamp, John Engdahl, Toni Hartke, K.C. Mueller and Richard Sumpter. Incumbents Marilyn Schwin and Jeanette Wines did not seek re-election this year.

In his statement, Farrow asked voters to support Battishill and Walker. "Please, please don't feel that I betrayed you by withdrawing my name from the ballot. I am doing what I understand to be best for the education of our children," Farrow wrote.

Besides the CBE candidates on the ballot, Farrow also cited the entry of Walker into the race as a factor in his withdrawing. He also attributed his

Schools: film, death not linked

BY KEN VOYLES

An investigation by the Plymouth Canton Community Schools failed to reveal that a "causal relationship existed" between Stephen Nalepa's viewing of the film "Nobody's Useless" and his tragic death on March 24.

The internal investigation, concluded last Wednesday, was "precipitated by allegations that there was a relationship between," Nalepa's death and his viewing of the film, said Plymouth-Canton Board of Education President Dean Swartzwelter.

Swartzwelter made his remarks last Wednesday at a news conference in the board building.

Swartzwelter said the investigation was based upon information from a variety of sources, including the Canton Police Department's own investigation.

"This is a consensus position of the board of education," he said. "I'm speaking as a representative of the board. I do not intend to make any personal statements."

According to the school district's statement, the investigation included a viewing of the film by all school board members and district Superintendent John M. Hoben.

Nalepa was found hanged in his family home in Canton the night of March 24. He had viewed the film in a Gallimore Elementary School second grade class the day before.

Canton Police said they could find no evidence to substantiate that Nalepa's death was a suicide.

The film, which reportedly has been pulled from distribution by the Encyclopedia Britannica Educational Corporation, was first released in 1980. It is based on a children's book, "The Great Brain," by John D.

Film to be shown to residents

The film "Nobody's Useless," will be available for viewing for Gallimore Elementary School parents and other interested residents on April 24, 25 and 26.

Showing of the 29-minute production will take place at 7 p.m. in the Gallimore gym. The school is located at 8375 Sheldon Rd.

Any questions about the film or the context within which it was used will be answered by teachers. Appointments can be made through the school administration office.

Parents of students at Gallimore whose children had viewed the film were notified of the showings by a letter from Gallimore Principal Joyce Deren over the weekend.

Cash payments, benefits

Vorva settlement reached

BY PHILIP TARDANI

A cash settlement and medical benefits appear to mark the end of former City of Plymouth Police Officer Jerry Vorva's nearly two-year-old grievance against the City of Plymouth.

JERRY VORVA

The agreement, approved by the Plymouth City Commission Monday night, calls for a $150,000 cash settlement to be made in three payments -- $25,000 now, $50,000 on July 1 and $75,000 on July 1, 1991.

The "full and final resolution" was presented to the commission by city labor attorney Howard Shifman, already signed by Vorva and his attorney Frank Guido, of the Police Officers Association of Michigan (POAM).

It was approved unanimously by the commission.

"I believe it's time to put this matter behind us," said commissioner John Vos III in support of the agreement. "In the interests of moving forward and settling this matter, I recommend we accept this resolution."

Shifman told the commission that the city "would best be served" by accepting the offer.

City Attorney Ronald Lowe agreed with Shifman.

"I feel comfortable with this proposal and I think it's a good resolution," he said.

Vorva, who now sits on the city commission, was excused from the discussion and vote on the resolution.

Command officers say yes

New union approved

The top five officers in the City of Plymouth Police Department have unanimously approved a command officers union, according to Sgt. Wayne Carroll, union spokesman.

The election was held Monday afternoon and supervised by an official from the Michigan Employment Relations Commission, according to Acting City Manager Kenneth Way.

The union will include the department commander, lieutenant and three sergeants.

"It's just a security measure for the command group," said Carroll, noting that the other department officers and the dispatchers are unionized.

Police Chief Richard Myers has said he does not object to the command officers union. Carroll said the vote will still have to be certified by the state.

After it passed, he expressed his willingness to discuss the settlement with any interested citizen.

"I'm available 24 hours a day to any citizen who wants to discuss this matter," he said.

Mayor Dennis Bila said he is glad the issue was put to rest.

"We have to plan for the future, and it's hard to do that when you don't know what's in the past," he said.

"This is now in the past."

Vorva filed his grievance after he was suspended then fired for making public comments about alleged traffic ticket quotas in the city.

He also expressed his relief that the matter was settled.

"I'm glad it's all over," Vorva said.

General fund decreases

City budget calls for 'cruise' increase

BY PHILIP TARDANI

The City of Plymouth is looking at a nearly $6 million general fund budget for the 1990-91 fiscal year, a three per cent decrease over the current year's fiscal budget.

The budget calls for reductions in eight of 20 general fund departments, and a 12 per cent increase in the police department's "cruise" budget to deal with the large number of teens congregating on and around Main Street during the summer.

Finance Director William Graham said that since the city is now operating in a deficit situation, expenditures for fiscal 1990-91 were carefully scrutinized.

"We spent a great deal of time looking at expenditures, and trying to eliminate those that we don't need," he said.

The biggest reduction in general fund categories comes with a 59 per cent reduction in public services. That figure is misleading, however, Graham said, because solid waste disposal will now be computed in a separate fund.

The separate fund will help the city to better track revenues and expenditures associated with solid waste disposal, he said, and there will be no real decrease in funds for public services.

The city treasurer's office is looking at a 25 per cent decrease in the recommended budget. Graham said the decrease is primarily reflected in wages, since there are only three people in the department after Kenneth Way retired as treasurer.

The legal services budget will also decrease by 18 per cent in the new budget, with fewer funds allocated for contractual services.

The biggest percentage increase for the next fiscal year 76 per cent in community development block grant funds. The fund money comes from federal grants, Graham said.

The 1990-91 cruise budget will be increased 12 per cent from $42,300 to $47,764. The majority of that increase is reflected in overtime wages for city police officers.

The police department will get an 11 per cent increase next year, from $1,048,443 to $1,169,109. Increases for salaries and wages, school crossing guards, investigations, repairs and maintenance, and prisoner lodging are slated.

Police Chief Richard Myers said he was satisfied with the proposed budget for his department.

"I don't see why we can't have a program consistent with the past several years based on what we're given in the budget," he said.

The police budget represents 20 per cent of the city's entire general fund expenditures, Graham said.

Equipment expenditures listed for 1990-91 call for a $90,000 street sweeper, a $35,000 zamboni for the city's ice rink and three police cars at a total cost of $33,000.

However, Graham said the city will try to hold off on purchasing the sweeper and zamboni until next year.

"We will try and get along with both pieces another year," he said.

Capital expenditures listed in the budget include $700,000 for repair of city sewer systems, $660,000 to close the city's landfill in Salem Township, and $262,500 for maintenance on the Central Parking Deck.

However, the sewer repair money is a federal grant at 55 per cent of cost, and the majority of funds to close the Salem Landfill will come from a state closure grant, Graham said.

The administration also recommended that the repair of the parking deck be a Downtown Development Authority Project.

The final general fund budget total is $5,888,840, compared to last year's total of $6,072,028. This year's total calls for a general fund surplus of $86,008.

The surplus is only tentative, however, Graham said.

"It depends on the amount of deficit left over from this year and a contract

McDonald's taking Canton to court

BY KEN VOYLES

It looks like Canton will face off against the McDonald's Corporation in court once again sometime in the near future.

Members of the Canton Board of Trustees and Canton Planning Commission were served by McDonald's attorneys on April 6 — the same day Canton Supervisor Tom Yack sent a personal letter to Joan Kroc, owner of McDonald's.

"They filed a lawsuit against us that day," said Yack, who added that the main allegations in the suit center on alleged "fraud" and "conspiracy."

McDonald's and Canton have been at loggerheads since 1987 when the company first presented plans for a third restaurant in the township — this one to be located at Ford Road east of I-275.

That request was denied by Canton in August, 1987 and McDonald's took the township to Wayne County Circuit Court requesting a judgment to force Canton to approve a special land use request and site plan.

The court found in favor of Canton, but at the same time said McDonald's could go ahead and re-submit their proposal to the township. McDonald's then appealed the decision and also resubmitted its application for a special land use and site plan.

Last year the company's appeal was rejected by the Michigan Court of Appeals.

After being looked at again by the Canton Planning Commission and Canton Board of Trustees, McDonald's new application for the Ford Road/I-275 site was again denied. That was in March of this year.

Yack said he wrote Kroc out of frustration from dealing with McDonald's attorneys whom he called "threatening and intimidating."

In his letter to Kroc, Yack asked, "what length is McDonald's willing to go to site a restaurant over the objections of a community? Additionally, how many McDonald restaurants does one small community need?"

Yack added in the letter, "I can tell you that McDonald's is currently seen as an uncaring, muscle swinging, cold hearted and impersonal corporation."

Yack said one of McDonald's contentions is that Canton knowingly changed its zoning ordinance in the middle of the recent application process so as to make it impossible for the company to build on its site.

Yack said there has never been a "conspiracy" among township officials to deny McDonald's through the use of a zoning ordinance change.

As for the current lawsuit, the supervisor said Canton's attorneys have 21 days to respond.

During that time, said Yack, Canton will look at the "validity" of the claim and decide on its best course.

There are currently two McDonald's in Canton, one each along Ford Road and Michigan Avenue.

New post office up for approval

BY PHILIP TARDANI

Plans for a new post office in Plymouth Township will come up for final site plan approval before the Plymouth Township Planning Commission tonight.

The plans call for a 22,123 square-foot Plymouth Post Office on Beck Road north of the CSX railroad tracks. Five customer windows are shown in the plan as well as three bays of postal boxes and a self-service area.

If the plans receive final approval from the planning commission, the post office need only get a building permit from the township before construction can begin, according to Shirley Barney, assistant planner in the township.

At the same time, the fate of the current post office on Penniman

Avenue in the City of Plymouth remains uncertain.

Susan Gillespie, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Postal Service in Detroit, said the service is committed to maintaining a finance unit in Plymouth where mail transactions could take place.

"We do have a commitment to maintain a finance unit in downtown Plymouth," she said. "Whether it will be in the current post office or not, it's way too early to tell."

Growth of the 48170 zip code has necessitated a larger postal facility, said Gillespie.

John Mulligan, the postmaster in Plymouth, said the current postal staff has been too big for the current facility for quite some time.

"We outgrew it 10 years ago," Mulligan said.

Lions need donations

The Plymouth Lions Club will be soliciting donations for the annual White Cane Drive on the streets of Plymouth April 27-28.

The following week the group will shift its efforts to Northville for solicitations May 4-5.

Funds raised by the White Cane sale are used to support a variety of groups, including The Leader Dog School in Rochester, the Plymouth Historical Society, the Northville Public Library and the Michigan Eye Bank.

Farrow: 'Why I withdrew'

EDITOR:

I have just made the most difficult decision of my life.

I decided to run for school board because I thought that it would be in the best interests of The Plymouth-Canton Community for me to do so. I am now withdrawing for that same reason.

When I entered the race, there were only two candidates, Carl Battishill and Diane Stamp. I planned on running along side Battishill. We even discussed the idea of endorsing each other and co-operating on our campaigns.

But three events changed all that. The first event was the tragic death of Stephen Nalepa. I have a son in the second grade who was tested for the TAG program at Allen School on the same day as Stephen was. Believe me, I do understand how the Nalepa family feels about the loss of their son!

However, it is the shameless exploitation of the Nalepa family's tragedy which has raised my ire. The way the CBE (Citizens for Better Education) and/or people associated with the CBE have used the tragedy to gain publicity is the worst abuse of freedom of speech I have ever seen! I am truly ashamed at the black mark the irresponsible actions of these people have put on our community.

The second event was the entry of Robert Anderson into the school board election. Anderson has in the past been supported by CBE, which seems to be strongly associated with the exploitation of the Nalepa tragedy. Anderson has stated views in the past which I believe could lead to the destruction of our public schools systems. If Anderson were elected to our school board, I feel it would be a tragedy for the entire community.

The third event was the entry of Lester Walker into the school board race. Walker has served on our school board before. Based on his record and conversation with him, I believe that he would do an excellent job of representing the best interests of our community. I feel the same way about Battishill. Both of these men enjoy wide community support. I believe that either of them could do at least as good a job as I in serving the community on our school board.

My presence on the ballot would take votes away from Battishill and Walker, which would increase the chances that Anderson could win the election. This is not a situation which is acceptable to me. Remember, I put myself into this political campaign to help the community, not hurt it.

I would like to thank everyone who gave me encouragement and offers of support. I honestly think I have the best friends in the world! Please, please don't feel that I betrayed you by withdrawing my name from the ballot. I am doing what I understand to be the best for the education of our children.

I ask those of you who would have supported me to instead support Battishill and Walker. I can recommend both of these to you without reservations.

I fully intend to stay active in the issues of education; I am still interested in serving on the board of education. Now that I am no longer a candidate for political office, I will resume my activities with I-CARE.

Questionable journalism

EDITOR:

In the April 11 issue of The Crier, Ken Voyles, the managing editor, writes in a column that "School districts are obligated to review and examine everything that might end up in a child's hands." Voyles should take his own advice. In the same issue of The Crier an article appears concerning the unfortunate death of one of my English students, Doug Briggs. Voyles writes that I told police investigating the case that Doug had read a book, A Separate Peace, in which one of the characters commits suicide. This is not true. I never said this. No one in the story commits suicide.

In fact, I emphasized this point to Detective Kerr when specifically asked about it. Why this false statement was even included in the article is questionable journalism. Prior to publication, the police investigators concluded that Doug's tragic death was accidental, most likely a result of an imitation of a football technique he had heard of.

Voyles also wrote about liability in his April 11 editorial. He says, "It really comes down to being a matter of liability, liability for the school district and the parents who need to take time to find out what their child is learning." I was never contacted by Voyles to verify the statement attributed to me. He did not take the time. Perhaps Voyles should check the definition of liable.

If school districts are "obligated to review and examine everything that might end up in a child's hands" there is no reason why the media, including The Crier staff, an influential part of our society, isn't obligated to do the same thing.

Help us recycle!

EDITOR:

I have grown very disturbed about our environment, especially waste disposal. The dump sights in the United States are filling up and most of us aren't doing anything about it. I believe a temporary answer is recycling.

The United States only recycles about 10 per cent of its waste. An extra 50-70 per cent of our waste isn't recycled but could be. Our landfills are full of recyclable materials that people don't take the time to have recycled. Japan and Europe both recycle more than the United States.

I'm not sure why people don't recycle. It could be because it isn't the law. Chances are it's because they don't know how or where. Maybe they don't even know recycling is possible.

Some states have taken a good first step toward recycling by requiring deposits for bottles and cans. Great Scott! and other grocery stores are also giving money for returning plastic and paper bags.

The federal government and the media are not giving recycling the proper attention it needs. Making recycling a law and getting the media to campaign for it could be other important steps toward reducing pollution.

There are a number of recycling centers already available for southeastern Michigan residents.

In Plymouth there is a recycling center by city hall at 201 S. Main St. They accept plastic bottles and jugs, clear and colored glass, newspapers and tin.

The Canton Recycling Center can recycle corrugated cardboard, newspaper, glass, plastic milk jugs and bottles and cans. Canton recycling is located near at 42020 Van Born, between Haggerty and Lilley.

Recycle Ann Arbor can recycle ditto paper, computer paper, Xerox paper, notebook paper, and colored paper. It can't recycle construction paper or envelopes. Recycle Ann Arbor is located near Platt and Ellsworth by the city landfill or on South Industrial on Fridays and Saturdays.

Currently East Middle School in Plymouth is collecting paper for recycling as a preparation for Earth Day which is coming up on April 22. This program is permanent.

Something must be done about our waste and I think recycling can help.

What's really behind the manager selection

It may have looked like a simple process, hiring the new Plymouth City Manager (Round II). Nothing could be further from the truth.

After Round I ended with no candidates left of interest to at least four City Commissioners, a couple of fresh recruits were brought in.

Steve Walters, Northville City Manager (and formerly an assistant city manager in Plymouth), and Gordon Jaeger, retired city manager of Battle Creek and recently with the downtown development agency there, were finalists.

The City's Cultural Center meeting room was reserved for a reception for this past Monday night to follow a public interview of a "candidate." (Note: no "s" on that word.)

Then it seems that when the Northville City leaders heard Walters was interviewing to the south, they promised to up the ante. This, admitted the Walters-backers, doomed Plymouth's chances of hiring him back.

That left Jaeger as the sole finalist. And so read the top headline in last Wednesday's Crier -- but it wasn't true. By the time the ink was drying on the recycled newsprint in last week's paper, Walters was already getting a second glance.

Prompted by a meeting hosted a week and a half ago Saturday morning by Bob Bake and Greg Goodman,

Visit Woods

One of The Plymouth-Canton Community's greatest treasures deserves your attention.

It won't require any effort, just comfortable walking shoes and perhaps your camera are all you need to enjoy this treasure.

Miller Woods, on Powell Road between Beck and Ridge roads, is one of the few remaining protected stands of beech-maple forest. It's owned by the school district and lovingly administered by the Friends of Miller Woods for the past 15 years.

To celebrate the Woods and the Friends, the annual woods walk is scheduled for April 28 and May 6 from 1 to 4 p.m. each day.

In addition to this being a great chance to see some of the area's best wildflowers, it's a great thing to do with the kids.

See you there.
THE COMMUNITY CRIER

Commissioners Jim Jabara, John Vos and Jack Kenyon looked at weighing moving expenses that would be paid to Jaeger as a further salary inducement to Walters. (Bake et al sought to avoid the anticipated short-tenure of Jaeger, which would give City Finance Director Bill Graham another shot at the northwest corner of City Hall soon.)

This change of heart frustrated Mayor Dennis Bila who resigned the "Search Committee" and cancelled the Cultural Center reception. He even considered giving up the big gavel -- he was that frustrated by the manager search of 10 months.

Last weekend was ripe with manager pollicking.

By this past Monday, Walters was "seriously interested" but said he couldn't give up a Northville City Council meeting to attend public interviews on Monday.

As of 4 p.m. two days ago Monday, the public interview with "a candidate" was cancelled. Walters and Jaeger were going to be scheduled for an evening later this week. Jaeger, who had visited town Monday upon his return from a long-scheduled vacation, left Plymouth and drove back to Battle Creek.

Then, at 5 p.m., Walters withdrew from consideration. ("We couldn't get together on terms," he said yesterday.)

With the City Commission meeting scheduled to begin at 7 p.m., Kenyon called the cereal city and the would-be-manager turned around to drive back here.

The Commission meeting was already in progress when Jaeger walked in. The mayor yielded his hot seat to the candidate and the public interview was on.

Vos moved to amend the agenda to add hiring Jaeger. Mary Childs (who has termed the entire search process "an embarrassment to the city") cast the only "no" vote. On the actual vote to hire Jaeger -- it was unanimous. (Commissioner Ron Loiselle, an accountant, was absent on tax day.)

Bake and Jabara -- who had been Walters supporters -- praised Jaeger and said they looked forward to getting on with life at City Hall.

It was over -- assuming that THIS time the city and the manager-anointee can agree on a contract. No wonder that following the meeting, the City Hall movers and shakers adjourned to the hotel with Jaeger for a pint of relief.

The search had come close to blowing up a second time.

It was a hectic last-minute scramble behind the headline.

Help July 4th

EDITOR:

A Plymouth holiday tradition could be in jeopardy. The annual Plymouth-Canton Jaycees Fourth of July Parade needs the community's support as we have had in the past, the success of past parades was due to the generous outpouring of community-minded individuals.

Donations are needed to enhance the parade's visibility and musical standards. If every resident in The Plymouth-Canton Community could send in a five dollar donation to the Jaycees, the Fourth of July Parade would once again hold that distinguished honor of being the best Independence Day celebration in the State of Michigan. The parade committee is also looking for community groups and organizations to participate in this parade.

The theme for the 1990 Fourth of July Parade is "Recycle Plymouth-Canton for the future." Please contribute to this event so that the Jaycees can continue this 50 year tradition.

For further information please contact the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees at Post Office Box 279, Plymouth, Michigan 48170.

Save Mettetal Airport

EDITOR:

This letter is in response to the proposed purchase of Mettetal Airport.

Obviously, the future of the Mettetal is questionable. As a prime piece of land, its purchase is certain, and unfortunately, could end up in the hands of industrial developers. As a lifelong resident of Plymouth, watching The Plymouth-Canton Community grow, I have one thing to say: I am sick to death of industrial development.

Mettetal Airport is a unique asset of this community and should be treated as such.

The Canton Board of Trustees is organizing a citizens group to study the purchase of Mettetal. This is a great idea, and hopefully it's not too late. By the time the group is formed, the project study, projected and voted on, the land could be gone. The process needs to be expedited if Canton plans on owning the airport.

If the certainty of Mettetal's future was stable, the airport could become very profitable. Plane owners would no longer be reluctant to rent hangar space, and new businesses could secure a location at or around the airport.

It's unfortunate that township ownership did not occur years ago, to maintain the airport and regulate zoning -- protecting it from angry residents, who knew the airport existed when they moved here.

I am optimistic that the Canton Board will preserve the airport and not allow it to become just another "strip mall."

School movie not a 'suicide film'

Fitzgerald.

The district's statement noted that the film "has been viewed by thousands of young people since 1980 with no reported incidents." It also said that "Nobody's Useless," is "not a 'suicide film.'"

Nalepa's parents, Larry and Debby Nalepa, have said the movie may have been a factor in their son's death. They were in attendance last week during the news conference but did not comment.

Swartzwelter added that the school district is "reviewing the selection and use of all educational resources as part of its on going evaluation of policies and procedures."

"The bottom line," said Swartzwelter, "is that we've uncovered no evidence to link the showing of 'Nobody's Useless' to the death of Stephen Nalepa."

He added, "We've taken all of the prudent steps we feel are appropriate at this time."

Swartzwelter said the film was obtained by Gallimore teachers through the Wayne-Oakland Library Federation (WOLF) and is not currently a regular part of the district's educational resources. He said the board has "done nothing to preclude" its use again in a district classroom.

"We have not banned use of the film in the district," he said.

Wendy Sielaff, a neighbor of the Nalepa's, was also at the news conference last week. She demanded that the district make the movie available to parents, especially those who have had children who saw the film.

"I want a public showing. Everyone has a right to see that film," Sielaff said.

Swartzwelter said parents would be allowed to see the film once Easter break is over.

Reached on Monday, Debby Nalepa, declined to comment on the school district's statement, but she added that the family has retained attorney Berry Waldman.

Waldman said he was "researching" a "viable theory" before deciding on a possible lawsuit.

"I have no answers for the Nalepas yet," said Waldman, who is with a Detroit law firm.

Part of the research includes talking to "experts," said Waldman.

Taking the environmental high ground

Group rescues Holliday Preserve

BY KEN VOYLES

At first glance they are an unlikely group of environmental activists — a mix of men and women from many communities with varying backgrounds and different hopes and dreams.

But they all have one environmental interest in common — William P. Holliday Forest and Wildlife Nature Preserve, Wayne County's only nature preserve.

EARTH FIRST!

EARTH DAY

April 22, 1990

20th Anniversary

And they all take their cause very seriously.

William P. Holliday Park, established in the late 1950s, cuts through Wayne County from Westland west to Canton.

Two years ago part of the park was threatened when plans for a golf course in Westland surfaced. It was then that local residents from Westland and surrounding communities first formed the Holliday Nature Preserve Association (HNPA).

Today there are more than 300 members of the group, of which about 30 remain active. They range in age and come from communities like Westland, Canton, Plymouth, Northville, Livonia, Detroit, and Novi.

Has bipartisan support?

State bill takes aim at polluters

BY PHILIP TARDANI

A state senate bill aimed at making polluters pay for the mess they make appears to have bipartisan support from area law makers.

Senate Bill 375 would specify that the financial responsibility for clean-up of contaminated sites "should not be placed upon the public," according to summary of the bill.

"I think it's a valuable and needed piece of legislation," said Rep. James Kosteva, (D-Canton). "The major thrust is to provide more penalties for polluters."

Rep. Gerald Law, (R-Plymouth)

Members of the Holliday Nature Preserve Association are eloquent environmental activists from all over western Wayne county. (Crier photo by Robert Richards)

"That proposal was the spark that got us together," said Bill Craig, current chairperson of the group. "The main purpose for the group — to stop the proposal — was accomplished."

"But we just don't want to let it happen again," added Craig, who said the golf course proposal was dropped about one year ago.

The group currently is concerned about development encroaching on the borders of the 500-acre preserve as well as off-road vehicles in the park.

"A lot of people took this place for granted," said Craig. "We think that's changed."

"When we started we were activists," he continued. "We weren't pulling any punches. Once the proposal was dropped we had to stay formed to protect this place. All of our efforts are for the preserve."

Craig, 43, of Livonia, is also a member of the Southeast Michigan Land Conservancy, Greenpeace, the National Wildlife Federation and the Legal Defense Fund.

"Holliday Park is an excellent example of a mature forest," Craig said. "The very fact that it's surrounded by suburbia is important."

"It's not work — this is just interested people, committed people. I really enjoy it," he added.

Other members of the group echo Craig's views.

Jack Smiley, 38, of Detroit, was one of the original founders of the group.

"I always enjoyed Holliday Park as a kid," said Smiley, who is currently president of the Southeast Michigan Land Conservancy and vice president of the Friends of the Rouge River. "I think we have a serious responsibility to save natural areas for future generations."

Smiley said the land conservancy is an off-shoot of the Holliday group. It is dedicated to acquiring property to save it from development.

Maxine Kunz, 74, of Canton, also knows the park well. Her home backs up to the park along Koppernick. In fact, she was forced to sell six acres of property for the park when it was first formed.

"I was against the golf course," she said. "I don't want it in my backyard. This place is unique. It's the only one of its kind in Wayne County."

Bob Duda, 44, of Livonia, said he learned about the group from his son. Already active with the Sierra Club and the Michigan Audubon Society, Duda currently compiles the Holliday group's quarterly newsletter.

"This is a threatened educational resource," said Duda who works for Unisys in Plymouth. "I'd like to see the whole area preserved, even expanded. It's also a great place for people to come and take walks." There are more than 12 miles of hiking trails in the park.

Cris Selden, 34, of Canton, also lives near the park. She joined the group after getting a flier about the golf course.

"I've been living here for a year," she said. "I found the park first and then I found a house."

"This is one of the major natural resources we have. It's untouched, which is rare in an urban setting," she added. "It's my backyard and I love it."

Selden said she visits the park at least twice a week and marvels at it every time. "It's beautiful and constantly changing."

Don and Barb Polich, of Westland, were already active in their community in environmental issues when the golf course proposal surfaced.

"We knew what was here and we didn't want to see it destroyed," they said. "We're kind of an ad hoc group — we do whatever needs to be done."

The couple, who are also involved in the Friends of the Rouge, added, "once this is gone, it's gone."

Cynthia Roberts, 36, of Canton has agreed with Kosteva.

"I think it's a good idea," he said. "Anyone responsible (for contamination) should have to clean it up and be punished for it."

Sen. Robert Geake (R-Northville) said he has received 20 letters in support of the bill from constituents in his district, which includes The Plymouth-Canton Community.

"It's a good bill," he said. "I think I will support it."

According to Alma Smith, legislative aid to Sen. Lana Pollack, who introduced the proposed legislation, the bill would do all of the following:

- Specifically state that there are sites in Michigan that pose a danger to the states natural resources.

- Shift authority for enforcement of the act from the governor's office to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) for more efficient action.

- Introduce civil fines of up to three times the cleanup cost for violating a cleanup order.

- Set up a resource recovery reimbursement fund to restore a site to its natural condition.

In November, 1988, Michigan voters lived on Koppnick for four years after moving from Brighton. She went to the first group meeting after receiving a flier about the golf course development.

"We moved here because of the preserve," she said. "This was as close as we could get to home. We didn't want to see it changed."

"It's just raw nature," Roberts added.

Dan Mehelich, 38, of Westland, first discovered the park three years ago while cross country skiing and fell in love with it.

"I just think it's a great place and so close to the city," he said. "You come back here and not find any people. It's very tranquil."

The Detroit teacher said the park is a great teaching tool also. "I've learned a lot just walking out here," he said.

Joyce Holmes, 50, of Plymouth Township, heard about the group from a newspaper article.

"I've lived here a long time and been aware of it but I had no idea how beautiful it is," Holmes said. "I've been going up north all these years and all this time this has been in my backyard."

Holmes is also a member of the Friends of Miller Woods, a Plymouth Township group, which sponsors walks in Miller Woods, a climax forest very similar to W.P. Holliday Park.

"This is like Miller Woods -- a climax beech-maple forest, but there is more variety," she said.

Liz Gomez, 31, also lives in Westland near the park.

"I've been coming here since I was a kid," she said. "When I saw the flier I was really angry. I decided to try and do whatever I could to keep this a park."

"It's a shame we have to do all of this to keep the park safe," Gomez said. "The park is a great place for people to come out and lose themselves."

Mike Todoroff, 31, of Garden City, has also been coming to the park since his youth. A wildlife artist, Todoroff has found much inspiration in the park -- many of his works feature aspects of the forest.

"That's why it means so much to me," he said. "A large percentage of my work comes from here."

Todoroff, who visits the park almost daily to sketch, draw, paint, called the park "a gem."

He added, "This is an isolated pocket of forest. It's not something you'd normally see around here."

Todoroff said he was "impressed" by the nature group. "It's a really good group. I'm surprised there are so many ardent people. I was impressed by the number of people who came to bat for this park."

"It's worth fighting for," he added.

John Covert, 47, of Livonia, is another early member of the group.

The Livonia teacher has used the park for student projects -- he found out the golf course plan from one of his students.

"I enjoy a feeling of being in a wilderness. You have that here," Covert said. "I like feeling a link to the past, how Wayne County was a few years back. It's one of the few places in the county where you can see how things should be."

"This is a priceless resource," added Covert, who said he had never been politically active before joining the group.

Craig, who also remembered the park as a youth, said it was "time to pay back" to the park all of the joys he had had as a child.

"This was something we can fight for right here," he said. "It's nice to know there are so many people with the same thoughts."

Craig added that even Wayne County has come around on the Holliday Park.

"The county is now stroking people with environmental concerns," he said. "Maybe we had something to do with that."

'Bring your boots'

WWCCA offers tours

BY MICHELLE IRANI

"Bring your boots!" said Charles VanVleck and Bob Laich, members of the Western Wayne County Conservation Association (WWCCA) Inc.

The WWCCA, located in Plymouth Township, will be putting on a special Earth Day celebration for the public, with tours of the grounds this Sunday (April 22) from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Along with the tours, given by Laich, the association's president,

Maybury celebrates Earth Day

Maybury State Park in Northville will be the scene of a variety of Earth Day 1990 activities this Sunday (April 22).

A 10K fun run and a two-mile walk are planned, along with a puppet show, a consumer education display, seedling distribution, drawings, a Western Wayne County Conversation Association display and a display by Northville High School students.

The activities begin at 10 a.m. and will run all day at the state park.

On Saturday, a seedling distribution is planned for at the park-Northville Township residents only.

For further information on the events at Maybury State Park call 936-9538.

environmental booths will be set up in the club house. Environmental information will be provided as well as free posters and refreshments. Residents who stop by will also receive a free Eastern White Pine tree seedling.

The seedlings will be distributed as part of a tree planting project which will focus on fighting the "green house effect," said VanVleck, Earth Day chairperson for the WWCCA.

PCAC 'Earth' contest

The Plymouth Community Arts Council (PCAC) is sponsoring a contest throughout the Plymouth-Canton Community School District for students in grades one to 12.

The "Save the Earth" competition will feature design posters, which will be judged by three art teachers, a science teacher and a project committee member. The six winning posters will be printed on five by seven notecards made of recycled paper.

Science students throughout the district will write short statements about the earth's limited resources and everyone's responsibility to help save the environment.

The cards will be sold in the community and throughout the state. The proceeds from the sales will go to the PCAC to be used for school programs and grants.

The posters will be on display in store windows during Earth Week, April 22-28.

A reception and special recognition for the winners will be part of the Plymouth Community Arts Council's third annual Arts Awards Festival program to be held on Tuesday, May 8.

The Canton Beautification Committee is celebrating Arbor Day this

SOFA effort

An attempt to raise student awareness about the environment at the Centennial Educational Park (CEP), was undertaken last week, April 9-12, by SOFA (Students Organized For Action).

An informational campaign was held at Salem and Canton high schools in conjunction with the on-going Earth Day celebrations.

Saturday (April 21) to encourage tree planting in the community and improve the natural environment.

The Beautification Committee will have Austrian Pine, Red Pine, Scotch Pine, and other seedlings free for Canton residents. The limit is five seedlings per family and residents must show proof of residency by showing a driver's license. The seedlings range in size from six to 14 inches.

The distribution will take place from 9 a.m. to noon at the Canton Administration Building, 1190 S. Canton Center Rd.

For further information call 397-1000.

"Trees are environmental wonders," he said. "They remove the carbon dioxide from the atmosphere, absorb other pollutants, control erosion, serve as wind breaks and offer us shade."

VanVleck said that this is the first year the club has sponsored an Earth Day event.

From now on, however, the club does intend to hold Earth Day programs on an annual basis, he said.

Earth Day program organizers are hoping that as many as 1,000 people will attend the event.

The association grounds include approximately 87 acres of natural and man-made habitat, which serves as a refuge for local wildlife.

Animals which inhabit the area include raccoon, possum, deer, pheasant, mink, beaver, and ducks, squirrels and various birds.

In order to help maintain a refuge atmosphere for the wildlife, association members build various bird houses, spread approximately 100 pounds of seed a week and set out salt blocks for the area's deer population.

In addition to wildlife, the natural plant life, including various species of flowers, will hopefully be in bloom by the time Earth Day arrives, VanVleck said.

The WWCCA grounds are located on Napier Road between North Territorial and Five Mile roads.

Bill would strengthen DNR

approved a proposal allowing the state to issue $450 million in bonds, with the money going toward cleanup of 2,700 toxic sites this far identified in the state.

Kosteva said Senate bill 375 will help the state to more quickly cleanup the sites.

"Even with that significant amount of money ($450 million), we're not going to be able to clean up that many sites," he said, adding that polluters and not the taxpayers should fund cleanup.

The bill would prevent future pollution and give the DNR more tools to immediately go after polluters, he said.

According to Andy Buchsbaum, program director of the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan (PIRGIM) in Ann Arbor, the $450 million in bond money will only cleanup about 15 per cent of the sites.

Buchsbaum, who is on a legislative group that includes representatives from state manufacturing and business interests, said the environmental bond was the taxpayer's downpayment. Senate bill 375 would help to ensure that that future cleanup funds come from responsible parties.

"It's an excellent bill," he said. "It makes the people responsible pay their fair share for cleaning up toxic sites."

The main stumbling block to the passage of the bill has to do with broad liability provisions, according to Buchsbaum.

As an example, he cited G & H Landfill in Macomb County, which he said has been contaminated by 100 different companies over the years. Since no record exists of who contributed what to the contamination, all 100 parties would be liable for the harm, Buchsbaum said, regardless of how much they contributed to it.

Law said identification of contaminators is important in how well the bill would work.

"The philosophy of the bill is very good," he said. "I don't think anyone has a problem, as long as you can identify the polluter."

Kosteva said he thinks a compromise between environmentalists and regulated parties is in order.

"There absolutely has to be compromise, otherwise we would see no action," he said.

The bill is now in the senate's natural resources and environmental affairs committee, where it is due for a hearing May 8 and will then go onto the senate floor. If it gets senate approval, it must also pass through the house before becoming law.

Buchsbaum said that if the bill does become law, the 2,000 worst toxic sites in Michigan can be cleaned up in 25 years.

"Given our current technology, I don't see how we can do it any faster than that," he said.

P-C egg hunts -- hit & miss

The annual Easter egg hunts in The Plymouth-Canton Community were nearly ruined by unseasonal weather Saturday morning. The Jaycees hunt in Plymouth Township Park went off as scheduled, but the Canton Parks and Recreation hunt was cancelled because of the weather. Left, Plymouth Township youths hunt for eggs in the park. Colton Ash, four, at right, puts an egg in his basket, while Jeff Nevi, five, grabs another. Right, the unhappy expressions on these Canton youths tells the story of the cancelled Canton egg hunt. Governor picks local fire expert

BY MICHELLE IRANI

"I was on cloud nine," said George R. Bolly III after finding out that he had been named as one of 13 chosen to serve on Michigan Governor James Blanchard's Fire Safety Task Force.

The volunteer task force will address the different areas of fire problems in Michigan and make recommendations to the Governor, said the Plymouth Township resident.

The first meeting of the task force was held two weeks ago in Lansing, said Bolly. The task forces topics were decided by Blanchard and include: ways to reduce the number of accidental fires, fire related deaths, injuries, dollar losses and the loss of natural resources.

The task force was broken down into seven subcommittees -- Bolly will chair one of the subcommittees. The subcommittees will cover various topics and report to the task force every month with the information members have gathered.

"That is so we can get more experts involved, and put all of our heads together," said Bolly. "I'm a team-type person."

Bolly, 47, is in charge of the Public Education/Fire Prevention and Training of Officers subcommittee. Serving as co-chair is Frank Krock, the president of Holly Inc. of Grand Rapids.

The first meeting for Bolly's group is May 2 in Ann Arbor. Bolly, who is still working out the details, hopes to have 10-12 experts on hand for the gathering.

"We are supposed to find the problem, find possible solutions keeping in mind legal technicalities, modern technology, legislative means, inner-government corporate means, action planning, and finally a funding proposal," said Bolly. "And because there isn't much money, the later has to be very creative."

Bolly, a department training chief with Ann Arbor's fire department, has been involved in fire fighting for 28 years. He has a number of degrees, and certificates, and is a member of a number of different organizations including the Michigan State Fire Fighters Association, for which he serves as second vice-president.

Bolly, who is looking forward to working on the task force said, "Governor Blanchard has to be congratulated on getting this together so fast.

"Task forces can take up to two years to get together and it took Blanchard two-three months," he added.

Tell it to Phyllis

By Phyllis Redfern

I once wrote about living south of the border -- in Canton Township. It was in 1976 or '77 when some women in Plymouth asked me for some help in publicizing an event.

After explaining the details of the event, the Plymouthites went on to say that it was very important that the event only be publicized in Plymouth, because they "didn't want any of 'those' people from Canton involved."

Needless to say, once they found out I was one of "those" people, the conversation became a bit awkward.

Over the years the barrier between the people in Plymouth and Canton has broken down and there is a more friendly co-existence. There are times when the gap widens, but the unity of the school district binds the community together.

Of course the townships and city have their own boundaries and forms of government. In the past 15 or 20 years the governments in Plymouth and Plymouth Township have seemingly run a little smoother than in Canton.

As Canton changed from a farming community to one of the fastest growing residential areas in the state, many things changed almost overnight. Problems ranged from over-crowding in the schools, to sewer capacity, to trying to stabilize local government.

During the years since Phil Dingeldey was supervisor, Canton has gone through many ups and downs in local politics. For years I have had to put up with millions of jokes about living in Canton (even a certain shiny-headed publisher has put more than his two cents worth in with jabs at Canton).

Well folks, let's take a look at our friends to the north of us. Now that Canton has stabilized, what seems to be happening to the City of Plymouth? How can it be that a city that has everything to offer is having such a hard time finding someone to be city manager? The firm paid to do the search for a city manager has fallen short in its duties, and some of the commissioners aren't doing much to help the situation.

You have to wonder about the rumor of raising the city manager salary by $20,000. If the rumor is true, how does that fit with a city budget that is already in deep trouble?

I can honestly say I'm glad I live in Canton, I like working in Plymouth and I enjoy serving on groups and organizations in both communities.

On the job!

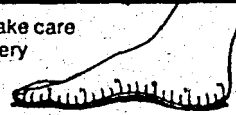

Gene "Santa" Reeves took on a new role last week, paying visits throughout the area as the Easter Bunny. Reeves is well known for his charity efforts at Christmas. This year he said he wanted to see what he could do to help during Easter. (Crier photo by Michelle Irani)

Spring CAR CARE

Tune into Auto Talk for advice

BY PHILIP TARDANI

Jerry Trumpka has combined broadcasting and automobiles to bring automotive advice and entertainment to The Plymouth-Canton Community.

Trumpka, a Plymouth Township resident, is on the air Friday evenings on Omnicom Cablevision's Channel 8. The show -- "Auto Talk" -- is his "brainchild."

"I always thought it would be neat if I could combine broadcasting and cars -- two things I love," he said.

That he has done, as anyone who has seen his show can attest to.

"Auto Talk" is programmed to be informative and educational to area residents, featuring classic cars, new car reviews, new trends in the automotive industry and public service advice, he said.

The most popular shows, Trumpka said, are those featuring classic cars such as the Ford Model T, the Packard or the Tucker.

"The classic cars is really the hook -- people like that," he said. "Among the car collectors it has got sort of a cult following."

Viewers can look forward to a show featuring the Oscar Meijer Wiener mobile, Trumpka said, describing it as "a classic in its own right."

Trumpka said he also does new car reviews, going directly to a dealership car lot -- instead of the factory -- to be sure he is looking at a car the consumer will be driving.

"I like that angle -- I look at a car the consumer is getting," he said.

Trumpka said he examines the entire car, enumerating pros and cons and trying to be objective. He added that soon he will be reviewing the new Pontiac Grand Prix.

"Auto Talk" also features programs done in conjunction with the Michigan State Police. Over the holidays, Trumpka said, he dedicated almost a whole show to the problem of drinking and driving.

Coming up, he said, will be a program with the State Police on cellular phone use and 9-1-1 emergency calls.

In combining his love for cars and broadcasting, Trumpka said he has encountered something unexpected -- fame.

"The amusing thing is being a local celebrity," he said, adding that about once a week he will encounter someone who recognizes him from the cable television show.

Trumpka's love for cars goes back to childhood, he said, when he would build model cars.

He still retains his love for cars and emphasizes how important their production has been to this country and this region in particular.

"Cars are a form of Americana," said Trumpka, whose father worked for General Motors. "A lot of people owe a lot to the auto industry."

Trumpka gets his chance to ham

He got interested in radio work in high school, Trumpka said, and later held several radio jobs in the area.

Trumpka, who now works as an operations manager for Midas Muffler, recently got into television when he took a public access class at Omnicom Cable. The class dealt with handling video equipment and editing work.

From there he decided to put together his show.

He said he hasn't done it alone, however.

"Midas Muffler has put up a lot of money and Omnicom has been good about letting me use their equipment," Trumpka said, adding that he has a crew of about five people he can call on for help.

A new Auto Talk airs about every six weeks, he said, while the shows are re-run Friday nights at 8:30 p.m. Trumpka said he puts in about 40 hours of interviewing, filming and editing work for each half-hour episode.

As for the future of the show, Trumpka said he will continue the show as a public service and for a more personal reason.

"The show is a public service and fulfills my need to be on the air," he said. "I need to be there, I'm a ham."

Rustproofing: the way to fight salt

BY MICHELLE IRANI

To deoxidize the oxidation, or to rustproof your car, that is the question. When, who, where, and how, that is the challenge.

About 100,000 tons of salt are dumped on the roads each winter season by Wayne County. That's enough to make most car owners cringe, except for those in the commercial rustproofing market.

Larry Sanders, owner and manager of Ziebart Car Improvement in Ann Arbor agrees with Ron Chaudoin, general manager of Lou LaRiche Chevrolet in Plymouth, that a new car should be rust-proofed immediately:

Jim Nany, service manager from Sunshine Honda in Plymouth, also agrees, adding that the process will improve the value of your car. "Because once rust starts there is no way to stop it," he said.

If your car is used, and hasn't been rustproofed, Saunders said it still should be done through a "used car treatment," which includes steam cleaning the underside, and panels, and degreasing it.

Steam cleaning will remove all the dirt and debris from the vehicle that might otherwise be missed, Saunders said.

A rust eliminator, which chemically deoxidizes the rust, is then applied, he said. The actual rustproofing coat comes next, he added.

Not everyone agrees that rustproofing a used vehicle is a worthwhile undertaking.

"Rustproofing a used vehicle is a waste of money," Chaudoin said. Not all the dirt and debris can be removed from the underside of the vehicle, he said.

Therefore, Chaudoin said, the rustproofing chemicals are prevented from coating the actual metal.

Nany agrees that rustproofing an old car may not stop the rust.

If a car already has existing rust spots, Nany said, "it wouldn't stop it."

If, however, rust has not already taken a foothold on a vehicle, then treatment maybe worthwhile, he said.

The Sunshine Honda rustproofing system for used cars involves using a pressurized air hose to blow dirt and other materials off the vehicle.

Once the excess debris is removed the rustproofing is applied, Nany said.

A used vehicle should not be brought in for rustproofing on a rainy day because moisture may get trapped in some areas, eventually causing rust spots, he said.

New cars are another matter, he added.

New vehicles should be rustproofed, "As soon as you buy it, at the time of delivery," Nany said.

Rustproofing at Sunshine Honda, Lou La Riche, and Ziebart, includes applying the various applications to any inner body seams, where moisture might collect, such as corners of the hood/trunk, heel of fender, the doors, shock powers, and anywhere there is a tight seam.

Downtown site eyed

Teen club proposed for City

to apply to the city planning commission for a change of use permit from a retail store to a night club.

Next, they would need site-plan approval from the commission, which could take some time, he said.

"You're talking probably six weeks to get approval if it was approved the first time," he said.

The county health department would then inspect the building, and any property owner within 300 feet of the prospective club would have an opportunity to appear before the commission and voice approval or disapproval.

"I'm sure you'd see a pretty good public turnout if it came up at the planning commission," Penn said.

Penn added that he favored the idea of a place for teens to congregate, but said the concept could have its drawbacks.

"Personally, I think its a good idea, but maybe not right downtown near a residential area," he said.

"The kids need somewhere to go, but look what happened down in Canton," he added, referring to fights and other disturbances at Club Ferrari, a teen club in the old Center Stage building.

Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers said Monday that he had not heard anything concerning RJMC's plans. "We'd have to study it before I could make any comment," he said, adding that his department would have an opportunity to review any plans submitted to the city.

McEwen and Cortis, who also own the Barnstormer Club in Green Oaks Township and the New Grande Ballroom in Livonia, said they are committed to a safe atmosphere.

"I'm at the door every moment,"

Aimed at club owners

Canton teen ordinance supported

BY KEN VOYLES

Canton Police Chief John Santomauro said a new teen dance club ordinance in the process of being approved by the Canton Board of Trustees puts more responsibility on the owners of youth clubs.

Santomauro said, "We want the owners to assume responsibility for the security of these clubs.

"I have a real problem deploying our resources at one location over and over," the chief continued. "The owner has to assume some responsibility for what is going on."

The Canton board got its first look at the ordinance last Tuesday. It will be reviewed one more time and then put on the township ordinance books later this month or early in May.

"As a police officer, and as a parent, I think the concept of a teen club is a great concept," said Santomauro, said McEwen. "We encourage the police to walk through at any time at our other clubs."

Cortis said the club would hold teen dances Friday and Saturday nights from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. — if those timelines are within the city's curfew law. He said only "respectable, sober, fashionably attired young adults" would be let into the club.

McEwen said he and his partner have not had any problems with teens at their other two clubs and do not anticipate any problems should they open in Plymouth.

The Farmer's Jack's property has remained vacant since the store closed nearly two years ago.

"but I believe it needs to be done in the confines of what the law will allow."

Trouble at a local teen club, Club Ferrari, earlier this year prompted the writing of the ordinance, said Santomauro. "We will not allow that type of criminal activity to cultivate and grow in Canton," he said.

Teens at the club have been involved in fights inside and outside of the facility, police have said, as well as possessing illegal substances.

"I'm convinced that if we had done nothing we'd have a massive problem down there right now," said Santomauro about the police effort to control activity at Club Ferrari each weekend since February.

During last week's board meeting there was some question as to whether or not the new ordinance will affect teen clubs at the local high schools.

Santomauro told the board, however, that the ordinance applies only to "commercial" teen clubs and not those organized as a part of some school activity.

Warren Road paving begins

Work began Thursday on the paving of Warren Road between Lilley and Haggerty roads in Canton.

Both Canton and Wayne County officials said they expected the project to be completed in two stages over the next five and a half months.

Asphalt for the road will be put down sometime in September. During the paving, Warren will remain open to local traffic.

Mettetal committee set for public views

BY KEN VOYLES

Residents of Canton will have a chance to voice their opinion about a possible township purchase of Mettetal Airport during a public session of the new airport study committee.

The committee was unanimously approved last week by the Canton Board of Trustees.

Yack said it was expected that the group would hold a series of public meetings this spring and summer. He said residents with strong opinions favoring or opposing municipal ownership of Mettetal could submit those feelings in writing.

The group will then conduct an open public hearing to give residents a chance to "verbalize their opinions," said Yack.

"The group is going to need a lot of time gathering information and asking questions," Yack said. "This will be a working committee."

Yack said the administration had "brainstormed" the issue to give the group as "much to start with as possible."

The committee will begin meeting at the end of this month or early in May, said the supervisor.

Yack said all of the committee members live in the township, except two, but that those members work in the community and have some needed "expertise" on aspects of the issue.

The committee is made up of:

Peter Bundarin, Robert Olson, Ken Bennane, James Darling, Michael Clark, Mildred Murphy, Vic Gustafson, Richard Cebulak, Sam Marshall, Jerry Jarvis and Dan Barton. Bennane and Darling do not reside in Canton.

Dan Calabrese, Yack's administrative assistant, will serve as a non-voting chairperson of the committee.

Yack said an effort was made to select a diverse group of residents. He added that "to the best of my knowledge" there are no pilots on the committee.

"Our approach, though, was not necessarily to get those totally neutral," said Yack.

The supervisor said the committee needed residents on both sides of the debate, but ones who would be willing to analyze it openly.

Dairy Junction re-opens Ice cream and trains

BY PHILIP TARDANI

An ice cream shop has re-opened in Canton, just in time for the warm spring and summer weather.

Dairy Junction, Inc., 44710 Ford Rd., re-opened April 5, according to Sandra Puroll, who runs the shop with her partner Laurel Beyer.

Dairy Junction is decorated with a railroad motif and features a running model train and a manual, more durable set for toddlers to play with. It caters to the family, Puroll said.

"We like the kids and the families and the seniors," she said.

The shop features 28 flavors -- from white chocolate raspberry fudge to blue moon -- of hard-pack ice cream as well as soft ice cream. Beyer said they also have seven slush flavors, malts and flurries -- hard ice cream with crushed snickers bars or items such as peppermint or blueberries blended in.

And for those allergic to dairy products or looking for a low-fat treat, there's Dole Whip, made with whipped fruit juice, about 20 calories an ounce and cholesterol-free.

"We're the only place we know of that serves Dole Whip," said Beyer. "It's kind of an exclusive in the area."

Puroll and Beyer have been in business together three years. Their first endeavor, however, was in an unsuccessful strip mall on Ford Road frequented by few people.

Beyer said when she and her partner got the chance to relocate to the more visible shop in the New Towne Plaza they took it. They were glad to keep the store in Canton, she added.

"We've become somewhat entrenched here," she said. "We've made a lot of friends through this and a lot of those people are like family now."

Relocating has not been easy, however. The partners and their husbands have been working on the new site for about six months, Puroll said, re-tiling the floor, painting the walls, installing tables, counters, and freezers.

"We have been here working every day for the past seven weeks," she said the day before the shop's grand opening. "We're ready for the fun part to begin."

And fun is how they view the business. Formerly, Puroll worked in accounting and Beyer in the credit business.

"They were pretty much high stress jobs," Beyer said. "This is a place where we can be nice to people, have fun."

The ice cream business is inherently an enjoyable occupation, Puroll said. "Ninety-nine per cent of anyone who is in an ice cream store is in a good mood," she said. "They've come to treat themselves."

9-1-1 system working flawlessly

BY SCOTT DANIEL

Use of an improved 911 emergency phone system for the City of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton has been successful since being installed in the middle of last year, officials said.

City of Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers said, "Enhanced 911" has worked "flawlessly." The city, along with Plymouth Township and Canton, switched over to the new system last June 9.

"Enhanced 911 has greatly increased our efficiency in processing calls," said Myers.

Marcia Buhl, director of public relations in northwest Wayne and Washtenaw counties for Michigan Bell, said emergency calls are processed more efficiently now, due to the basic difference between the old system and "Enhanced 911." She said the origin of emergency calls are known almost immediately with the new system.

All emergency calls now go to Detroit and then are routed to the appropriate communities by computer -- all in a few seconds, she explained.

Buhl said the address from which the call is being made is displayed on a computer screen to the dispatcher handling the call.

"Instead of going through the process of finding out where the call is coming from we can send help while the caller is still on the line," said Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro.

"This technology is the most beneficial thing to happen in public safety in the last 10 to 15 years," he said.

Canton is averaging more than 25 911 calls each day, said police officials.

Santomauro said Canton wasn't hooked up to the old 911 system and therefore emergency calls from Canton went to the City of Plymouth. Plymouth then contacted the appropriate Canton department to respond.

"This system has enhanced our ability to respond," said Santomauro.

Plymouth Township Fire Chief Larry Groth said "Enhanced 911" has also improved his department's ability to respond. He said even if a caller becomes incapacitated, such as a heart attack victim, EMS or other assistance can still be sent because they have the address on screen.

Groth said the system provides another important advantage. He said medical notes can be entered into the computer so that they will be shown on screen with the address. He said that being made aware of medical concerns before rescue workers are dispatched allows them to be better prepared.

There were no major problems in switching to the new system in Plymouth Township, he said, except that a few addresses were plotted into the computer data base incorrectly at first. That's now been corrected, he said.

settlement with Department of Public Works workers," he said.

The city commission met with Graham and Acting City Manager Kenneth Way three nights last week to discuss and study the proposed budget.

Way said he thought the study sessions went well.

"The city commission seemed very well satisfied with the material presented to them," he said. "I think they have a pretty good understanding of what's in the budget."

Caldwell said Moore and his companions then left the bar and went to his car at a nearby parking structure. There they were confronted by five men, including Mayberry, Caldwell added.

Mayberry demanded that Moore fight, Caldwell said, but when Moore tried to get into his car he was stopped.

Mayberry kicked three times at Moore, Caldwell said. One blow was blocked, one struck Moore in the abdomen and the other in the head, he said.

Moore fell to the concrete floor unconscious, Caldwell said. Mayberry's group fled the scene, but was later apprehended by Ann Arbor Police, he said.

Canton tracksters run to 2nd place

BY RITA DERBIN
 The Chiefs put on a good show even if the weather hasn't been conducive to track and field.

Last Wednesday the Canton girls track team scored 81.5 points to place second in a four team meet they hosted last Wednesday. Ypsilanti won the meet with 105 points. Bishop Borgess was third with 29.5 points and Bishop Gallagher was fourth with 24 points.

"The girls' times have been coming down," said coach George Przygodski. "We've been somewhat hindered by the weather but, we're seeing improvement."

Placing first for the Chiefs were the 3200-meter relay of Amy Smith, Adrienne Garrow, Kim Gudeth and Christie Saffron (11:08); Smith in the 1600-meter run (6:03); and Garrow in the 3200-meter run (13:31).

Second-place finishers included

Aimee Lanzon in the high jump (4-9); the 800-meter relay team of Kristy Brugar, Michelle Dean, Stephanie Gray, and Alicia King (1:58); and Missy Jasnowski in the 1600-meter run (6:05.2).

Other second place finishers are the 400-meter relay of King, Afoema Okwumabua, Karina Kilpelainen and Angela Fountain (55.9); Brugar in the 400-meter run (1:06.4); Okwumabua in shotput (31 ft.); Anne Dibble in the 3200-meter run (14:04) and the 1600-meter relay team of Brugar, Michelle Lee, Saffron and Kelly Reeber (4:54.5).

"It was a real good meet," said Przygodski. "Ypsilanti is one of the best teams in the area and we matched up with them pretty well."

Saturday Canton will host the 14 team Lady Chief Relays at the Centennial Educational Park Fields. Salem will also participate in the invitational.

Weather delays showdown Salem netters win match

BY RITA DERBIN
 The cross-campus showdown between the Salem and Canton tennis teams came to a halt midway through doubles action last Wednesday when the weather didn't cooperate.

With Salem leading 3-2, the match was stopped when it began to snow. The second and third doubles teams will play when the match resumes after spring break.

Last Monday the Rocks defeated Livonia Franklin, 5-2, in their first conference matchup.

Winning for Salem were senior Ryan Bannan at one singles, 6-3, 6-4; junior K.C. Kirkpatrick at two singles, 4-6, 6-

1, 6-4; and freshman Fred Staten at three singles, 4-6, 7-5, 6-0.

In doubles action, seniors Jeff Rearick and Mohit Mistry won, 6-0, 2-6, 6-1; and freshmen Eric Stanley and Jason Grimm, 7-5, 6-4.

In their first matchup, the Rocks competed in the City by the Bay tournament which was hosted by Essexville Garber April 7. Two Salem teams came away with first place finishes: Staten at three singles and junior Mike Mulder and freshman Joe Parron at three doubles.

The Rocks will resume their conference schedule next Wednesday, April 25, when they host Walled Lake Central at 4 p.m.

Steelers need gridders

Registration for the Plymouth Canton Steelers Junior League Football and cheerleaders is coming.

Sign ups will be held on Saturday, April 28 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Canton High cafeteria. Cost is $50 per player and $40 per cheerleader. There is a $135 maximum charge per family. Bring a birth certificate signed and dated by parent or guardian to registration.

For more information call Sue Herman at 455-7299. Please call ahead because cheerleader positions are limited and often unavailable.

Canton netters optimistic

BY RITA DERBIN

There's optimism on the Canton tennis team this season, according to coach Jim Hayes.

After losing eight players from last year's 13-1 squad that won the Western Lakes Activities Association, Hayes is looking to this year's team to match up well against the rest of the conference.

Junior Brian Schmidt will be at one singles; junior Rod Jesena, at two singles; junior Scott Jones, three singles and senior Paul Croll at four singles.

Seniors Bryan Williams and Kris Kilpelainen will be one doubles; senior Brady Owens and junior Shawn Hart at two doubles and sophomores Joe Binder and Adam Majewski at three doubles.

The Chiefs won their first meet of the season last Monday, 4-3, over Livonia Churchill.

Winning for Canton were Jones (6-1, 6-4); Williams and Kilpelainen (6-1, 6-1); Owens and Hart (7-6, 6-0) and Binder and Majewski (6-3, 6-2).

Donkey delight?

Coach: pitching looking good

Canton baseball squad 3-0 despite weather

BY RITA DERBIN

The weather left a lot to be desired but the Chiefs are 3-0 after the first week of their baseball season.

Geoff Allen pitched a gem when the Canton baseball team defeated Walled Lake Western last Wednesday, 2-0. Allen pitched a one hitter and went the whole seven innings striking out 10 and walking one.

Last Monday, the Chiefs defeated Livonia Churchill, 17-10. Scott Kennedy won the game pitching 4 1/2 innings of scoreless relief.

Kennedy also won the Chiefs' season opener, an 8-4 win over Westland John Glenn.

In the three games, Chris Robinson had seven hits in 10 at bats for Canton.

"It's tough to gage how good we are because of the weather," said Canton coach Fred Crissey. "But I'm pleased with the pitching."

"I'm cautiously optimistic at this point," Crissey added. "We haven't started the real season yet."

Cross-campus rival Salem also started the season off right. The Rocks defeated Livonia Stevenson 11-3 last Monday.

Senior Rob Kowalski won the game pitching five innings and striking out eight while allowing two walks, five hits and two earned runs. Eric Nielson pitched the final two innings and recorded the save.

Top hitting performances for the Rocks were David Makowicz, who hit a home run in the first inning; Tracey Ewald, three singles, Scott Niemiec, a double and a single; Brian Rudolph, two singles and two RBI; and Scott Brite, who hit a three-run home run in his first varsity at bat.

The Rocks scored five runs in the last half of the fourth inning after Stevenson had tied the game at one in the top of the fourth.

"We started out slow but got base runners," said coach John Gravlín. "Our defense was a little shakey, I'd like to see us play better."

Tomorrow the Rocks will co-host a doubleheader with Canton.

Salem will host Notre Dame at noon. At the same time, the Chiefs will host De LaSalle. The teams switch opponents at 4 p.m. with the Rocks hosting De LaSalle and Canton hosting

Notre Dame.

On Saturday Salem and Canton will host another doubleheader. The Rocks host Lansing Everett at 12 p.m. and Lansing Eastern at 4 p.m.

Canton will host Lansing Eastern at 12 p.m. and Lansing Everett at 4 p.m.

On Monday, the Rocks travel to Walled Lake Central and Canton travels to Northville. Both game begin at 4 p.m.

Population, housing predictions in

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER

While your U.S. Census form is still fresh in your mind, here are the latest projections of what you and your neighbors will show on the forms you return:

CANTON -- the population will hit 54,824, up 11.8 per cent from 1980, with 19,532 households, up 21.5 per cent from 1980.

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP -- the population shows 25,409, up 9.5 per cent from a decade ago; households go to 8,988, up 17.7 per cent.

Check out Canton Place facility

Canton Place, the senior citizens complex on Ford Road in the township, will host an open house Sunday, April 29 from 2-4 p.m.

The public will get a chance to tour the facility and take part in a variety of activities.

9-1-1 service praised

"I think we should have had it sooner," Groth said. He added that he knew of some communities in Florida that had the system as early as 1980.

Myers said the City of Plymouth Police Department's response time to emergency calls hadn't been affected by the "Enhanced 911" system. He said the city's response time is still about two-to-four minutes for an incident in progress.

However, one area that had been affected by the new system was the number of crank phone calls. Myers said the system allows crank callers to be apprehended and, thus, those calls have been almost "totally eliminated."

Myers said the city paid about $45,000 to have the system installed.

John Hunt, manager of 911 marketing services for Michigan Bell, said $35,000 to $80,000 was the cost range for hooking up the system in a community. He said the cost varies with the amount of equipment each community purchased for the system.

Bell customers pay about 18 cents each per month to pay for the service, Hunt said. That will drop to 14 cents after five years.

"It was business as usual," during the smooth hook-up in The Plymouth-Canton Community, Hunt said.

PLYMOUTH -- a total population of 10,067 is up only barely (by four residents) from 1980, while housing units hit 4,345, up 10.4 per cent.

(All of the 1980 population and housing figures were "adjusted for census undercount," which meant they were officially down-sized -- leaving the City of Plymouth with an official population of 9,986, for example.)

The latest projections were released by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) in anticipation of the census results.

Canton Place was constructed with funds from HUD (the federal Housing and Urban Development Department) and is open to all persons 62 years or older or mobility impaired, 18 and over.

A non-profit corporation, National Church Residencies of Canton, was formed in cooperation with National Church Residencies of Columbus, OH, to secure the financing for the project.

The $5.6 million facility was built with sponsorship from area churches, Canton, and residents of the township. It contains 117 apartments and various other features.

Odor prompts evacuation

The Catherine McAuley Health Center in the City of Plymouth was evacuated last Wednesday because of natural gas smells, according to Consumers Power.

Mike Bridges, community service administrator for Consumers Power, said there were a "substantial amount of calls from Plymouth about a gas leak." But, he added, there was no leak in the city.

The strong odor was noticed throughout the city and part of Plymouth Township.

Too much "odorant," which is added to natural gas to detect leaks, was placed in the system, Bridges said.
