Exterior restoration will be finished 1st

Wilcox apt. ground breaking likely this fall

BY KEN VOYLES

Ground breaking on the apartment structure being built in conjunction with the restoration of the Wilcox House -- originally scheduled for this spring -- will not be held until the exterior renovation of the historic home is complete.

Builders Marcello and Silvio Scappaticci said yesterday that the outside restoration work on the City of Plymouth's most famous landmark should be finished by the end of the summer.

Once that work is completed the partners, including Jack Wilcox, said they will then set a date for the ground breaking and obtain the necessary financing to begin the apartment building portion of the project. They said that it is likely that construction on the five-story building will begin late in the fall.

The developers, along with Wilcox, said that the $6 million project has not been delayed but is moving ahead as quickly and smoothly as possible.

"When I first got into this project I was asked to do the house in two phases," said Marcello Scappaticci.

"We'd do the outside first and the inside later. Jack also asked us to begin the other building once the outside is completed."

"I'm doing exactly what Jack asked me to do," he added. "We want to do this right. We're not building this for the money, we're building this as something that will last forever. That's why we're not rushing ahead."

Following the start of construction on what will be one of the downtown's largest apartment buildings, Wilcox said renovation work on the inside of his home will then begin.

"I'm very, very pleased with the progress so far," said Wilcox. "We're moving ahead on this, but I don't want the other part of development to interfere (with the renovation)."

"We're taking it segment by segment," he added.

The project was finally given the go ahead by the Plymouth City Commission back in January after a five month delay during which the Plymouth Planning Commission looked at the plans three times.

The planning commission gave conceptual approval to the project last August, but final site plan approval from the planners was delayed while the partners reworked the original drawings and incorporated suggestions made by the city administration, the commission and residents during meetings in September and October.

Some reservations about the apartment building's size were expressed during the debate over the project at the planning commission level, and the plans were altered to try and address those concerns, said Wilcox.

City manager 'fair and firm'

BY PHILIP TARDANI

You're not likely to hear loud, berating language coming from the manager's office at city hall in the City of Plymouth.

Gordon Jaeger, the man now at the helm in the city, is soft-spoken and somewhat reserved. By his own admission he's not intimidating.

"I don't yell," said the new city manager. "I don't operate that way; I try to be fair and firm."

The city's top administrator said he has an inborn trait that makes his job easier.

"I believe I have a lot of patience," he says. "And I believe that's important in this job."

Jaeger possesses another quality that should make Plymouth's city commission and citizens glad to have him aboard: enthusiasm.

"I missed the challenge of the position," said Jaeger, who left his last city manager job in February of 1988. "I'm coming here because I want to."

That desire was readily apparent April 16, the day the commission approved Jaeger as a manager and allowed its selection committee to begin negotiations with him.

Jaeger had come to Plymouth for a public interview that Monday afternoon, only to be told the interviews had been rescheduled to Wednesday. He drove the 90-odd miles back to Battle Creek and got a call from selection committee chairman R. Jack Kenyon: the public interview was back on the agenda.

He was back in Plymouth at 8:15 p.m.

Please see pg. 8

Jaeger takes over

The City of Plymouth's new manager is already in office, one month ahead of schedule.

Gordon Jaeger offered to start his new job with the city yesterday, according to Commissioner R. Jack Kenyon, chairperson of the city manager selection committee. It was originally understood that Jaeger would start June 1.

"He offered to start and I accepted," Kenyon said.

The appointment of Jaeger ends the 10-month period the city spent without a permanent city manager.

Jaeger and his wife Kay are currently looking for a place to live in Plymouth.

The city manager contract approved unanimously by the city commission Monday night stipulates a salary of $59,500 and additional vacation time instead of compensatory overtime.

Canton DDA plan faces May vote

BY SCOTT DANIEL

A final recommendation on a new plan for Canton's downtown development district should be made by May 24, said Canton Supervisor Tom Yack.

That's when a recommendation will be made at a joint meeting of the Downtown Development Authority (DDA), the Canton Board of Trustees and the Canton Planning Commission by a "focus" team comprised of members from all three groups.

The new plan is currently being developed by the firm of Harley Ellington Pierce Yee Associates of Southfield.

Six preliminary "concept" plans were presented to the focus group by the firm last Wednesday, said Dana Mulder of Harley Ellington Pierce Yee Associates.

She said the purpose of the meeting was to get an indication from the focus group on what characteristics of the concept plans they liked. Further meetings will refine the best features of the concept plans, Mulder said.

The current downtown development district is bounded by Sheldon and Morton Taylor, Ford Road and the Carriage Hills subdivision. Mulder said the focus group came up with several common characteristics that should be in the plan.

A central green space or "commons" was a choice high on the focus group's list, said Mulder. She added that small retail stores and a larger "anchor" store would be a part of the development. Entry points to the development at Sheldon and Ford roads and on Morton-Taylor Road were agreed upon by the focus group, said Mulder.

Yack, a member of the focus group, said the commons would provide a public element in the heart of the development. The northern end of the district will be buffered by residential development, he said. The southern end will be anchored by Havard Square and Kroger's, Yack added.

No specific time frame for implementing the new DDA district plan yet exists, said Yack. Once a plan is accepted, it will have to be adopted along with development regulations by the DDA, he said.

Canton's Board of Trustees will then make a final decision on a ground breaking date, Yack added.

K.C. Mueller

A vote for leadership. A voice for common sense.

The choice in this election should be clear. There are groups of candidates each with their supporters and their visions of the future. But once again it has become "me" versus "you" and "us" versus "them."

K.C. Mueller says enough is enough. Let's work together and create a solid plan for the improvement of education in Plymouth and Canton.

CEP name controversy resurfaces

Is it Plymouth-Canton?

BY SCOTT DANIEL
AND KEN VOYLES

An old controversy over the names given to Salem and Canton high schools has once again reared its head in the form of a letter from Canton Supervisor Tom Yack to Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Superintendent John M. Hoben.

In the April 11 letter, which was also sent to all board of education trustees, Yack wrote that he felt the role of Canton in the Plymouth-Canton Schools has been "minimized." As evidence he pointed out the name "Plymouth Canton High School."

Officially, the names of both high schools includes "Plymouth," but many in the community simply call the two schools Canton and Salem.

Yack said the use of Plymouth before each name is a throwback to the time when the school district was known as the Plymouth Community Schools.

All references to the school should be "Canton High School," said Yack. Dropping "Plymouth" from both Canton and Salem high schools would alleviate the confusion about the schools names, Yack added.

"It's a source of irritation for people in Canton," said Yack.

Canton supplies about 60 to 70 per cent of the school district's students, said Yack. He said he hoped the letter would make clear their sentiments and raise the school board's level of consciousness about the problem.

Hoben said Centennial Educational Park (CEP) was originally called Plymouth Centennial Educational Park, but the Plymouth was dropped from the CEP name and added to each school.

He added that originally the district planned five high schools at CEP, with each one to be named after one of the townships within the district.

The district changed its name from the Plymouth Community Schools to its current name, adding Canton in 1978, said Hoben, but wanted to retain Plymouth in the high school names after the original Plymouth High School (now Central Middle School) was closed.

Members of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education said they understood Yack's concerns.

"They're valid concerns," said Roland Thomas. "It deserves re-examination, but it should be done by staff, students, and parents in the community."

"To me the CEP is the CEP," he added.

David Artley said that since the "geography" of the district has changed "maybe it's time to look at the names again, maybe not."

Artley added that he spoke to Yack last week about the letter and felt that the supervisor was simply trying to "express himself and his concerns."

E.J. McClendon said he was "willing" to look at the issue again, adding that he wasn't "closed" to the idea.

But McClendon said a study committee should be formed to look at the changes in the district and the ramifications of changing the names.

Dean Swartzwelder, president of the board, said that since he has been president the issue has not come up before now.

"I don't think it's a problem with the kids, it's a problem with the adults," he said.

Swartzwelder agreed that the issue over the names is not "an easy issue." He said that Yack's points in the letter "were all good," but added that he doesn't have a "solution."

To Yack, the solution, as outlined in the letter, would be for Canton to "take its rightful place of honor and recognition" in the school district.

He wrote, "No big deal you say? Making something out of nothing, a mountain out of a mole hill. If that's the case, making these small changes should prove to be simple."

The Curtis/Clark house.

Home to be landmarked

The American Association of University Women (AAUW) will designate a City of Plymouth house as a city landmark on May 23.

Ann Schlick, chairperson of the association's landmark group, said the 100-year-old Curtis/Clark House at 154 Union St. in Plymouth will be landmarked with a plaque from the AAUW.

Schlick said the house is the only site in Plymouth to be landmarked this year.

The AAUW, a national organization of college women, have landmarked 36 sites in The Plymouth-Canton Community since 1975.

Study funds approved

BY SCOTT DANIEL

Funds for a traffic study of Michigan Avenue between I-275 and Canton Center Road were approved last Tuesday by the Canton Board of Trustees.

The board budgeted $7,000 for the study as part of a "justification package" in getting Michigan Avenue reconstructed and widened between I-275 and Canton Center Road, said Municipal Service Director Aaron Machnik.

Once completed, the package will be presented by Canton to the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) for a final decision, he said.

Besides the traffic study, the package will include a land use and infrastructure analyses by Canton, said Machnik. The traffic study will be conducted by the Southfield firm Barton-Aschman Associates, he said.

The traffic study, and the rest of the package should be completed in about a month, Machnik added.

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack said a decision by MDOT would likely begin in 1994, he said.

Man charged with intent to murder

BY PHILIP TARDANI

A Detroit man is being held on charges of assault with intent to commit murder, after allegedly discharging a 12-gauge shotgun in a Plymouth Township apartment complex, according to township police.

Dino James Carrer is being held on $100,000 bond after an April 29 arraignment in Out-County Circuit Court in Westland in front of Judge William F. Bledsole, according to township investigator Erik M. Mayerlik.

According to Mayerlik, Carrer was involved in a telephone conversation in the early hours of April 28 with the occupants of an apartment in the complex.

At that time, he allegedly threatened to kill the occupants of the apartment, Mayerlik said.

Approximately 20 minutes after the telephone call ended, Carrer arrived at the complex with two other white males, according to Mayerlik.

Carrer allegedly assaulted one of the occupants of the apartment who came outside, Mayerlik said. The suspect then removed a shotgun from the trunk of his car, aimed it at the window of the apartment where another person was standing and discharged the weapon, according to Mayerlik.

The person in the window ducked away and was not injured, Mayerlik said.

Carrer's vehicle was stopped by Livonia Police who observed it travelling eastbound on I-96, according to Mayerlik. Livonia police recovered a Brescia 12-gauge semi-automatic shotgun from the vehicle, he said.

A preliminary exam for Carrer is scheduled for Friday, (May 4) at the 35th District Court.

Mayerlik said a bullet from the 12-gauge went through the apartment's window, a chair, a wall and into another apartment.

Transportation employes might unionize

BY KEN VOYLES

The 108 members of the Plymouth-Canton Transportation Employes Association, made up of bus drivers and mechanics employed by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, are considering joining a union.

The group will vote later this month on whether or not to abandon the association format and join the Michigan Education Association (MEA) or the International Union of Operating Engineers.

Barbara Kozub, president of the association, said Monday that group members will decide what they want to do when they vote on May 21.

"We have an association right now, but we don't have a union," she said. "It's about time we get one."

Kozub said the association is considering switching to a union because its membership continues to grow in size.

"We feel that we need someone behind us," she said. "We're too big to be on our own."

"We've talked to the MEA and they are very supportive. They want us in,"

Chief applies in Midland

City of Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers is reported to be one of three finalists for the police chief's position in Midland.

Myers, who has been the chief in Plymouth for five years, confirmed Kozub added.

Kozub said the group has talked about joining a union "off and on" for the past three to four years.

The group has, over the years, run "into some problems with grievances," she said, and arbitration is a major financial burden on the association.

The final choice will be "up to the employees," said Kozub.

Monday that he had applied for the position in Midland.

He added, however, that he has not applied anywhere else.

"I don't have anything else going on," he said. "I have a good job now."

Learn from Briggs' death

The accidental death of 16-year-old Salem High student Douglas Briggs brings to light an important problem Plymouth-Canton must address.

The importance of athletics is completely overblown.

Speculation is that Briggs' died as a result of trying to copy a training regimen of a professional football player. Part of the regimen was "getting strangled and punched in the stomach to overcome fear."

Briggs died of asphyxiation from hanging. He died trying to become a better football player, some believe.

What does this say about the "game" of football and other sports in our community? Two things. First, the idea that a child should feel compelled to try anything to achieve success in sports must be done away with. Secondly, a re-evaluation of the role of athletics is needed.

It is clear that nobody connected with athletics in The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools encouraged Briggs' to try the training method. It was an individual act.

But the fact Briggs' did try such an exceptionally dangerous method says that he believed being a starter on the varsity football team was worth the risk. Perhaps he dreamed of playing college football or thought his status would be enhanced at school. We will never know.

One view* *can be the difference

By Scott Daniel

What of the other training methods of football. How many of our children feel compelled to take steroids? How hot should it be before practice is cancelled in August? Anything to win. Right?

Is getting prepared to play football more important than the lives of our school children?

Coaches and parents can't watch over players all the time, but they must make them aware that a winning football season isn't worth risking their lives.

Which brings us to the following point: We all should re-evaluate the role of athletics.

Athletics has entered a role for which it was never intended in our society. The role of athletics, especially for school children, should be to improve each individual. The outcome of the games is irrelevant.

When a child is encouraged to improve and strive to be the best they can be, athletics takes on a positive tone. Sensible training and practice are important parts of achieving these goals. And, these positive lessons will be carried on in later life, which is more important than any touchdown.

The sad fact is that status, self-worth and even the future of many of our young people do often ride on their performance on the field.

This is the tragedy of Douglas Briggs.

Briggs' death, because of athletics, is one to many. Yet, chances are, when the new school year begins in the fall, his death will be forgotten.

The Plymouth-Canton Community owes it to him not to be forgotten.

Coaches, don't let your players forget. Send out fliers over the summer to all your players or preach at them when practice begins. Do both. Parents, ask your child about how they are preparing for their sport. Be nosy.

One sure way not to forget the tragedy of Douglas Briggs would be to re-name CEP Stadium in his honor.

Let's work together for change

EDITOR:

I feel the need to write this in view of the letters that have been published lately concerning the film at Gallimore.

I am so sick and tired of hearing how people like Wendy Sielaff feel and what her daughter feels. If she was such a concerned parent why did she pull her daughter out of class to be interviewed by the press.

Most of the parents purposely kept our kids from being "exploited" by the press at the expense of Stephen's death. I don't think there isn't a person in this community who wasn't moved and expressed tremendous grief by this death. But we had the morals and decency to keep it within ourselves and not flap our gums in public. We respected the Nalepa's mourning time and gave them our prayers instead of our opinions!

We have seen the movie, we all have made our own opinions regarding it and nothing we say will ever change what has happened. The issue now is not our opinion or the opinions of Diane Stamp and the CBE "(Citizens to Ban Everything)." The issue is change. The time has come to work together and bring about a change so that something this tragic does not happen again.

Let's put our personal feelings aside and work together as a community and put the education of our children the first priority, if not for the sake of Stephen's memory but for the future of our own children. We have had enough name calling, mud slinging, etc. last year with the millage. Let's not go through that again.

Let us teach our children that we can learn from our mistakes and work together to make things better. It is time.

KATHI LAWRENCE

We must all help to save the environment

EDITOR:

As a young person growing up in Plymouth, I am concerned about our environment. A growing number of people today are too lazy and self-centered, and we need to change this.

As a simple example, why can't young people participate in the Newspaper Recycling Day? On my street for the last two months, only three out of 15 houses participated. An excuse some of them often make is they don't have time.

What could be more important that taking 10 minutes once a month to help save our planet? We need to realize that our pollution and waste problem won't get any better unless something is done about it.

Young people are taking action by recycling paper products in their schools. Why can't adults follow their example?

Every little bit helps, so think about it, and next time it's Newspaper Recycling Day I hope to see that more people really care.

Millington's 15 mottos for success

When in doubt, move forward.
For 90 years this Sept. 26, that motto (listed first on his list of 15 mottos) has kept Frank Millington on course.

If you fail, try again and again.
Not that Frank saw many failures in his years as assistant purchasing agent for Cadillac Motor Car Co. or with his public service to Plymouth Township, but there certainly are a few setbacks here and there in nine decades.

Confidence is the greatest asset.
You bet! Just ask Frank. Even when he's wrong on an issue, it's hard to shake his confidence. Or ask Mike Hoben at The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Frank has been a schools-budget-watcher here for 40 years. Or ask any Crier opinion page reader. Frank's frequent letters to the editor exude confidence on a range of issues.

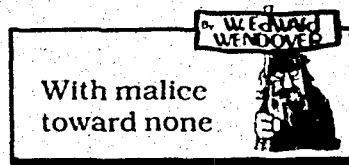

A working minority will govern majority.

With folks like Frank as one of the veteran movers-and-shakers in Plymouth Township government, you understand why that's so.

Give the job to a busy man.
During his heyday, Frank was on more committees than he can shake his cane at, but...

Give the job to the man who wants it.

Like heading up the drive to bring Detroit water to the township and thwart the City of Plymouth's annexation club. Frank headed that drive. Or supervising the leased township golf course, Frank would count golfers through his binoculars to make sure the township was getting its money's worth.

He who controls the money, controls all.

Maybe it was his English and Scottish background before moving to the U.S. in 1909 that made Frank one of the all-time penny counters in township government.

Rules are made to be guided by, not ruled by.

How can you argue with someone who's lived 90 years with a rule like that?

Give recognition where it is due.
Today, Frank still remembers who did what in township history and, while digging through his file boxes of old memories, even dishes out credit to his political opponents.

Committees only act as a sounding board.

Followers of local government know that all too well.

A good chairman presents the right answers, others only mediate.

And Frank still sticks by that philosophy -- particularly as he reviews past Plymouth Township supervisors.

Stand fast. A British square has never been broken.

Actually, see Motto Number Three, or just ask the Duke of Wellington after Waterloo.

Walk, stand straight. Feet forward, eyes straight ahead, head back, chest out, stomach in.

Even at 90, as he walks around his 26 acres of fruit and pine trees, Frank still follows that one too.

Be a good listener.

And you might add, "and reader" to that. Frank still stays on top of the day's developments.

Smile.

A fitting final motto for a fellow who's become the elder statesman of the western Plymouth-Canton Community. Frank's taken on a more philosophical approach these days; he reflects more and more on Plymouth Township's growth -- the groundwork of which was laid during his era of homeowner-and-civic group involvement and his eight years on the Plymouth Township board from 1970 to 1978.

As Frank sits in his sun room, watching through his at-hand binoculars as the M-14 industrial corridor moves westward, this self-appointed township ombudsman spends his days writing, reminiscing and bantering with his younger brother Fred about the price of Fred's eggs.

He's happy to share memories and advice with others -- particularly those in public life. "Are you ready for the phone to ring at all hours?" Or, perhaps better yet, to the children of those in public life, "Public service takes your Dad away from the family. You've got to understand that's tough sometimes."

Soon, Frank's tranquil setting will see its biggest change ever.

The new $2.5 million Plymouth Post Office will be built directly across from Frank's family homestead, called "Suebonne" after his two daughters. Even before that was announced, Frank, the philosopher, had written a song about the development's hastening approach to his retreat in January, 1989.

(This is sung to Doris Day's "Que Sera, Sera.")

Say Suebonne, Suebonne, what pleasure a site to see, a stroll in the evening breeze, Say Suebonne, Suebonne.

Will there be acres and acres to see, what will the future be. Acres and acres of woods and stream. No! Only industry.

Will there be children out in the park. Will there be singles out for a lark. Will there be music, whistle of the train. Will there be oldsters, hand on a cane.

Say Suebonne, Suebonne whatever will be, will be, the future is not mine to see.

Say, It's gone, It's gone.

Thanks Trooper

EDITOR:

Just a note to let everyone know that on behalf of myself and our neighborhood, we appreciate what State Trooper A. Wing did for us.

On April 14 I discovered a considerable amount of trash that had just been dumped, consisting of 25 tires, two pallets, sheets of used plywood, gas tank, oil trash drum full of old garage manuals. These articles were dumped on Tower Road, west side just south of Brookville Road in Salem Township.

I contacted the Northville Post upon arriving here at the store, and talked to Segeant Mills. He dispatched Trooper A. Wing to our store. I showed him a label that I found in the trash with a name and address in New Hudson. Trooper Wing then went out and looked at the trash, and drove to New Hudson and talked with the present proprietors, who claimed they didn't know anything about the trash. However, they said they would clean it up, which they did yesterday or Saturday afternoon.

I realize that the chance of prosecuting the person who was responsible was slim, which Trooper Wing explained, but the dedication and extra effort that he went through to get the mess cleaned up, and to help keep the environment clean, is certainly worth noting.

Trooper Wing called back at the end of his shift to let us know what had progressed Saturday. He also followed up April 17 to let us know that everything had been taken care of and he was closing out the complaint.

I want to say thank you again, and keep up the good work.

Warm weather brings con artists

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER
Beware of con games!

From ersatz roofers to pleas for funds for "ailing" family members, it's that time of year, said Plymouth Police Chief Richard Myers.

City police report that a citizen recently complained that she had been asked to "lend" money to a young man who said he had a family member in the hospital. Promises to repay were not kept, the complainant told police.

In past years, Plymouth-Canton police have reported incidents of traveling scam artists - and they usually show up in the spring, Myers said.

Typical scams are: charging high rates to "resurface" a driveway with what turns out to be black paint; roof replacement and repairs; variations of the "pigeon drop" where an envelope full of money is shown to an unsuspecting person with a request for help; the "diversion rip-off" in retail stores; and requests for "loans."

Even the police themselves aren't exempt. "The recurring 'police solicitors' who call claiming to represent police officers to solicit money, do nothing to benefit the local communities," Myers said.

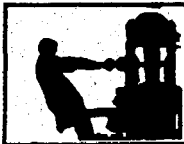

Who are the most likely targets?
"It tends to be seniors," Myers said. "They have a soft touch and the approach immediately builds trust by offering a 'bargain.'

"We're talking about people on fixed income who are looking for good deals," Myers said.

"In retail stores, one group comes in to create a diversion and get attention, then another group or individual comes in to make the sting. We've had a couple reports of a mother who brings her young child in with her and is an active shoplifter," the chief

County of Wayne, 600 Randolph Street, Detroit, Michigan 48226
TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS AND PERSONS:

On or about May 21, 1990, the above-named County will request the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release federal funds under Title I of the Housing & Development Act of 1974 (PL 93, 383) for the following project(s) accordingly:

1. PROJECT: Griffin Park Lot Paving
LOCATION: Griffin Park, west side of Sheldon Road, north of Cherry Hill Road
PURPOSE: Pave parking lot north of tennis courts
COST: $60,000.00

2. It has been determined that such a request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and, accordingly, the County of Wayne has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (PL 91-190.) The reasons for such decision not to prepare such a statement are as follows:

No significant impact was found as a result of the environmental assessment.
An Environmental Review Record respecting the above project has been made by the County of Wayne which more fully sets forth the reasons why such Statement is not required. This Environmental Review Record is on file at the above address and is available for public examination and copying, upon request, at the offices of the Charter Township of Canton, Resource Department, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, Canton Township, Michigan 48188 between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. No further environmental review of such project is proposed to be conducted, prior to the request for release of federal funds.

All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the County of Wayne to the office of the undersigned. Such written comments should be received at L-13 Wayne County Building, 600 Randolph, Detroit, Michigan 48226 on or before May 18, 1990. 3. CERTIFICATION: The County of Wayne will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the U.S. Department of Housing & Urban Development (HUD) under Title I of the Housing & Urban Development Act of 1974. The County of Wayne is certifying to HUD that the County of Wayne and Executive Edward H. McNamara, in his capacity as County Executive, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the federal courts if any action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision-making, and action and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the County of Wayne may use the Block Grant funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following basis:

a) That the certification was not in fact executed by the Chief Executive Officer of the applicant; or

b) That the applicant's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of a required decision, finding or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process.
Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58) and may be addressed to HUD at: McNamara Building - 17th Floor, 477 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, Michigan 48226. Chiefs to oversee DARE program

BY SCOTT DANIEL

An advisory board of police chiefs from Canton, Plymouth Township, the City of Plymouth and representatives of the school district will oversee the DARE (Drug Awareness and Resistance Education) program in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Canton Police Chief John San-tomauro said the board will include all three police chiefs (Carl Berry, of Plymouth Township, and Richard Myers, of the city), two teachers, an undetermined representative of the schools, and a PTO member.

The new advisory group met last week for the first time.

Santomauro said the board is taking the DARE program over from the Michigan State Police, which is phasing out involvement in the program throughout the state.

The board will be responsible for coordinating a budget for the program, said Santomauro. Funding for the program will be consolidated by the Man pleads guilty to fraud

Sheldon Carter Powell (center) in 35th District Court.

An Allen Park man has pled guilty to three counts of conducting a fraudulent scheme after photographing girls and women at Vic Tanny's Spa and the Plymouth Raddison Hotel in Plymouth Township.

Sheldon Carter Powell, 41, pled guilty to the three counts Thursday at 35th District Court. Two counts of trespassing against Powell were dropped.

Powell told 35th Judge James Garber that he presented himself to the females he photographed as a representative of a dance company and asked them to try on different outfits and pose.

Garber read in a complaint that Powell also said he worked for the respective business establishments he was in or near when he took the pictures.

Powell admitted that he was not an employe of a dance company, Vic Tanny's or the Raddison Hotel.

Garber referred Powell for psychiatric treatment and set his sentencing date for June 11.

Low turnout for hearing

BY PHILIP TARDANI

About 12 citizens showed up at the City of Plymouth's public hearing on its budget Monday night, but only half of those present had comments or questions for the city commission.

Some of the questions raised concerned the city's problems with solid waste disposal, how the city's downtown development authority works and its expenditure of funds, and why the police department needs a commander.

Objections were also raised about a publicity tax the city has the authority to levy under state law to promote the city.

The public hearing lasted one hour and 40 minutes.

"I thought it went very well," said Commissioner Mary Childs after the meeting. "We listened, and that's the point."

Improvements

Improvement of Michigan Avenue is the first step in attracting business to that part of the township, said Yack. He said Canton wants to attract "light industry" from Geddes Road south past Michigan Avenue and from I-275 to just west of Canton Center Road.

"The infrastructure has to be adjusted to support growth," said Yack. "If it's there it will attract industrial growth."

"The area is a diamond in the rough," added Yack.

THE FUTURE IS NOW

For golf development

Purchase agreement approved in Canton

BY SCOTT DANIEL

A purchase agreement between Canton and an area developer that could potentially be one of the most significant in the community's history, was formally approved by the Canton Board of Trustees last Tuesday.

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack said the agreement sets up a six-month timeframe for the developer to make a final decision on purchasing more than 237 acres of township owned land. The property is bounded by Canton Center Road, Beck Road, Cherry Hill Road and part of the Lower Rouge River.

Paul Reschke, president of RDC Corporation in partnership with FWS Golf Inc., of Southfield, said the site is being planned as a "residential golfing community." He said the partnership will conduct tests, such as land toxicity and demographics of Canton, before a final decision is made on the parcel.

"We have every intention of going ahead at this point," said Reschke. "We hope to break ground this year."

Yack said the development would likely include an 18-hole golf course. The course will probably be open to the public, he said. Green's fees will likely be in the $30 to $35 range, Yack added. The residential area of the development will likely feature some 600 units, Yack said. He said a variety of homes and condominiums would be included in the development.

An important step Canton must still take to aid the developer is changing the zoning of the parcel, Yack said. The property is currently zoned agricultural, he said. Changing the zoning to planned development district will speed things up for Reschke's partnership, Yack added.

Jaeger likes working with people

"That ought to indicate how much I really do want to be city manager in Plymouth," he said during the interview.

Jaeger comes well prepared. He was city manager in Battle Creek for 12 years, and had accumulated 11 years experience in municipal government prior to that — all in the midwest, where he has spent his life.

Jaeger was born in Milwaukee in 1931. He said he was raised by his grandmother during the depression years and that the family's bad financial situation never dawned on him.

"We were poor, but I didn't know it," he said. "When you're young and going through it, you don't notice those things."

Jaeger said he enjoyed school as a child and later enrolled at the University of Wisconsin in Milwaukee, which cost $25 a semester at the time.

During summers Jaeger said he worked and went on bicycling trips, including a cycling tour of Europe in the summer of 1951.

He said he was also active youth hosting and helped to set up a string of them along Lake Michigan in Wisconsin.

Jaeger graduated from U-W in 1955 with a bachelor's degree in liberal arts; he majored in recreation with a minor in journalism.

From there Jaeger went to naval officer candidate school in Newport, RI.

"It was a choice of getting drafted or enlisting," he said. "I chose to enlist and go to officer candidate school."

Jaeger graduated as a combat information center officer and was stationed in the Hawaiian Islands, where he supervised radar operations aboard a four-prop Super Constellation radar plane. The crew flew from the Midway Island north to the Aleutian Islands along the military's "distant early warning" line.

"We were looking for Russian submarines or planes," he said.

After the Navy, Jaeger got a job as recreation director in Merrill, WI, where he planned and administered a full-time community recreation program.

He also enrolled at Indiana University to pursue a master's degree in recreation, which he achieved in 1962. While there, Jaeger said he studied municipal government in detail and first encountered the city manager form of government.

"I got interested in the city manager side of government at I-U," he said.

Jaeger left Merrill in 1962 and took a recreation director job in Normal IL, a position he held for three years before getting the opportunity to practice his interest in city manager government. He became Normal's first city manager in 1965.

Jaeger said he took a liking to the position immediately.

"Sure I liked the job," he said. "If I said I didn't like being in charge of something, I'd be lying."

He spent another three years in Normal, then took a job in the larger town of Muscatine, IA, population 23,000.

In 1970, Jaeger was hired as city manager in Oskosh, WI, where he said he faced an event that brought the discipline of his naval training back into play: a tornado that caused extensive property damage.

"I had to take care of the whole emergency operation," he said. "I never want to see another one of those."

After six years in Oshkosh, Jaeger took the top administrative spot in Battle Creek, an industrial community of 56,000. He stayed there 12 years, which he said was an unusually long tenure for a city manager.

"The average tenure is five years for any city manager," Jaeger said.

Among Jaeger's top achievements in the Battle Creek:

- Played a "key role" in the merger of the city of Battle Creek and Battle Creek Township.

- Helped to bring 12 Japanese companies to the city after seven marketing trips to Japan.

- Consolidation of the railroad through downtown Battle Creek to Grand Trunk tracks.

- Hiring of a new police chief after a lengthy period of police brutality accusations and internal unrest.

- Modifications in the city's financial system resulting in better accountability and understandability.

- Restoration of Battle Creek's historical city hall.

Over the years, Jaeger said he has also experienced the bad aspects such a high visibility job can bring.

"It was always hard on the family," said Jaeger, who has two grown sons as well as three step-children. "It's a public position and if you don't like that, you shouldn't be in it."

He said his hobbies of tennis and racketball have helped him to not only stay in shape, but also serve as a "diversion" and keep him mentally alert.

As for his plans for Plymouth, Jaeger said it is a little early to tell.

"I don't want to speculate too much," he said. "I have to get to know the city and find out what it needs and what it wants."

His management style, however, is no secret. Jaeger says he will be accessible to citizens and the media.

He'll also try and keep things running smoothly with the employees at city hall.

"I encourage people to work together," he said. "I believe in building a good strong team of department heads."

Concerning Plymouth's projected $80,000 general fund budget and financial situation in general, Jaeger seems confident.

"To me, with a $6 million budget, a deficit of that size doesn't sound like much," he said.

He has been through a worse financial situation, Jaeger said.

"In the late 1970s in Battle Creek we went through some very traumatic times," he said, noting that 12 per cent of the city's jobs had to be eliminated over a period of three years.

Jaeger's three year contract with the city was approved unanimously by the city commission Monday night.

Jaeger said he is glad the city manager's office at 201 S. Main St. is now his.

"I missed the public aspects of the position," he said. "I like working with people."

The new Plymouth city manager Gordon Jaeger says he will encourage people to work together. (Crier photo by Philip Tardani)

Wilcox House

Scappaticci and Wilcox both said that the delays in getting city approval set back their own design timetables. The outside restoration work, which was started last August, was also halted during the winter but begun again in earnest in March.

The partners said financing the project would not be a problem. They plan to obtain the necessary financing when the exterior renovation is complete.

"One of the reasons I chose Marcello is that he's financially stable," said Wilcox, who will continue to live in the home until the interior restoration begins. "I'm very comfortable with the way things are progressing."

Scappaticci, a well known builder throughout western Wayne County, said he has set aside some of his other projects to concentrate on the Wilcox development. He said he considers the current project his most important.

The development, located at Ann Arbor Trail and Penniman Avenue between Union and Elizabeth streets, will include some 60 upscale apartments. Once restored, the Wilcox home will remain a single family residence.

Besides renovation of the interior and exterior, plans calls for redoing the landscaping to recapture the flavor of the property when it was originally built back in 1901.

Voluntary composting

The City of Plymouth will reinstate a voluntary composting program May 7 for residents disposing of grass clippings and other yard waste, according to assistant city manager Paul J. Sincock.

Sincock said the time of year for composting has come again.

"With the quick change in temperatures, city residents are now generating enough compostable materials so that we want to offer the voluntary composting program again," he said.

The city will begin pickup of yard waste in a separate collection May 7, Sincock said, and participants should bag their waste for compost in a City of Plymouth gray or clear biodegradable bag.

Movie sparks debate Parents view 'Nobody's Useless'

BY KEN VOYLES

The showing of "Nobody's Useless" at Gallimore Elementary School last week drew 340 parents and sparked an emotional debate that, at times, seemed to go beyond the tragic death of Stephen Nalepa.

Shown by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools over three evenings at Gallimore, the movie drew mixed reviews from those who viewed the 29-minute production.

The film, which some parents have said may have played a role in Nalepa's death, tells the story of a youth who loses a leg to infection and then tries to commit suicide before being helped overcome his new disability by another youth.

Nalepa, an eight-year-old Gallimore student, viewed the film in his second grade class one day before being found hanged in his home. Canton Police have said they were unable to determine if Nalepa's death was accidental.

Since Nalepa's death parents with children in their school district have demanded to see the film for themselves.

"Overall the moral of the story is kind of good, but it bothered me," said Bernard Kloian, whose children attended school at Gallimore. "My question is was there anyone there to sort this film out in the classroom."

Kloian, who watched the movie last Tuesday, said he didn't care how long the movie has been around (since 1980) and how many students have already seen it. "I guess it's been around one day too long," he said.

Diane Ellison, who also watched the movie last Tuesday, said she wanted parents to have more say about what their children see in school. Ellison said one of her children viewed the film while in school.

Kathi Lawrence said she was bothered by parents in the district who are using the film to "grandstand" an issue and "promote" their own cause.

"They do not represent me," she said.

"I think the film had a part in Stephen's death," said Wendy Sielaff, who has been outspoken about the film's use in the district. "I just think they could have found a better venue to tell the story of a crippled person."

After the showing last Tuesday Sielaff and school board candidate Carl Battishill got into a heated debate over the issue. Later, Sielaff said she regretted her actions.

"Everyone has an opinion and I respect that," she said. "I think there are issues here that need to be addressed."

One of Sielaff's complaints is that her daughter saw the film without her knowledge or permission.

Ann Crittendon, who has children nearing school age, said she found the movie "obnoxious" and called it "four ways in 20 minutes" to kill yourself. "It scares me," she said.

Dorothy Leahy, a local parent with children in private school, said that Nalepa may have been the "only physical casualty" of the movie, but she wondered how many other youths had seen it and been affected mentally.

"I think it's wrong to be showing children this movie," she said.

A West Bloomfield woman, Liz Collins, who attended one of the showings said the movie was "definitely inappropriate." She also called it "unrealistic."

School officials have said the movie is not a regular part of the district's curriculum and does not need to be removed from use. But it remains unlikely that it will be used in Plymouth-Canton in the near future.

In an internal report, district officials said they could find no connection between the film and Nalepa's death.

The Nalepa family has since hired an attorney to look into their son's death and the role, if any, that the movie played. There is no word at present whether they will bring a lawsuit against the district.

DARE targets youths board instead of each community handling separate accounts, he said. Each of the members will be asked to solicit contributions from their communities, Santomauro added.

Plans also call for special fundraising efforts in each of the three communities.

"We wanted to be pro-active in keeping the program alive in the district," said Santomauro. "It needs to be a community project."

Berry said two police officers, one each from the two townships, will visit fifth grade students in the district as the speakers for DARE. Funding for the officers may be obtained through a grant from the Office of Criminal Justice and the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988, he said.

"We are teaching the process of how to say no (to drugs)," said Berry. "It's a hell of a program."

Myers said the program will be targeted at fifth graders in its first year of operation under the new board. He said the board hopes to expand the program to other grades, younger and older, later on.

"It is an urgent, important program that needs to be done," said Myers. "The PTO said it was essential. I agree."

The locally coordinated DARE program is expected to begin this fall.

Hole-in-one for Chief

BY RITA DERBIN

A hole-in-one.

Golfers can play a lifetime without ever coming close, but Canton freshman Audrey Meissner did it last Thursday.

Meissner's hole-in-one came when the Chiefs were playing Livonia Franklin at Fellows Creek south course. She shot the hole-in-one on the fifth hole, 101-par-3.

"Audrey is playing either one or two for us right now," said Canton coach

Meissner's accomplishment isn't the first such feat at Canton, however.

Dan Riggs. "She's done a good job after breaking into the top six as a freshman."

"We've had it happen twice -- that's very unusual -- the odds are incredible," said Riggs.

Two years ago Sarah Beckman, then a Canton freshman, shot a hole-in-one on the same hole at the same course.

Mettetal Airport committee begins work, sets study criteria

BY SCOTT DANIEL

Ground rules were laid down last Wednesday at the first meeting of the Mettetal Study Committee, said Dan Calabrese, non-voting chairperson of the group.

Calabrese said the first meeting was a chance to get the committee members

"feet wet" and to answer their questions as to the direction the committee will follow.

The committee will make a recommendation to the Canton Board of Trustees by the end of August whether or not to buy Mettetal Airport, he said.

As a part of last week's discussion, the committee formulated criteria to use in judging whether or not the township should buy the privately owned airport.

Among the criteria are: the economic impact; the operational affect on township government; local use of the airport; comparing future land use of the site (light industrial versus keeping it an airport); safety of residents; and limits on the size of the airport.

Residents: beware of con artists

The key in all these cases, is the trust factor. "These people have the appearance of trustworthiness or at least look like an unlikely thief.

"They're professionals. They're just like actors and are into their roles, so they're hard to detect," Myers said.

If in doubt -- never agree to hire services on the first contact, check references or with the chamber of commerce, report problems to the police -- the chief emphasized.
