Ethics probe breeds harsh responses

BY RANDY COBLE

The Plymouth July 4th fireworks at Don Massey Field couldn't hold a sparkler to the first meeting in history of Plymouth Township's "board of ethics" four days later.

Developments resulting from that meeting will likely keep township observers busy right up to the primary Aug. 4.

First, Trustee John Stewart, a township supervisor candidate, will be investigated by Police Chief Carl Berry at the ethics board's behest for two alleged violations of the township's ethics policy.

Second, Stewart, as well as several citizens who attended the hearing, charged that the entire affair was election-year mud-slinging. Name-calling took place by members of both sides of the issue.

Stewart and some audience members claimed the ethics panel could not be impartial. They cited the fact that three of its six members, as well as Berry, are publicly supporting one of Stewart's political rivals, Chief Building Official Charles McElhargey.

Third, Stewart's lawyer, Ronald Karp of Dearborn Heights, said Monday that he plans to ask the U.S. Attorney's Office to consider investigating the township board and Berry for violating Stewart's federal civil rights.

The particular federal statute involved, Karp said, is part of the legislation passed by Congress shortly after the Civil War to enforce the provisions of the 13th and 14th Amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

It has been used in such celebrated legal cases as that involving the deaths of three civil rights workers in the 1960s, made into the film "Mississippi Burning," and the 1980 Michigan case involving the death of Vincent Chin.

Township board members and Berry have interfered with Stewart's right to campaign for public office, Karp said, by calling for the ethics investigation for purely political reasons.

"This is a case where public officials use their public power -- 'under color of law,' we call it -- for the sole purpose of drawing attention to John Stewart's candidacy for public office," Karp said.

Twp. cop okay after 4-car accident

BY RANDY COBLE

A Plymouth Township police officer suffered minor injuries in a four-car accident Monday that caused substantial damage to a township police vehicle and sent another motorist to the hospital.

Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry said that at approximately 4:15 p.m. Monday Officer Tom Haas was traveling eastbound on Ann Arbor Road just west of Main Street along the border between Plymouth city and township. A red pickup truck with logos of the Don Massey Saturn car dealership, also in Plymouth Township, was westbound on Ann Arbor Road, Berry said.

"What we have at this point is very preliminary," Berry said early Tuesday. "The pickup was stopped, and apparently the driver was just about to make a left turn into a business parking lot on the south side of Ann Arbor Road.

"At that point," Berry continued, "the pickup was struck from behind and driven across the center lane into the path of Haas. He had absolutely no time to react." He estimated the speed of the police car to be 35 miles per hour at the time of impact.

"He was hit, and the red car went spinning across the road right into the cop car," said Plymouth Township resident Norcen Taylor, who was driving by at the time of the accident.

A van and a second pickup were also involved, Berry said. Plymouth and Plymouth Township police responded to the scene, and they are investigating the situation to determine precisely what took place.

Haas sustained minor injuries, Berry reported, and was transported to St. Joseph's Hospital in Ann Arbor as a precaution. Berry said that Haas returned to work Tuesday morning. "The seat belt and the air bag really did the job here," he added.

The driver of the red pickup truck had to be cut from his vehicle with the "jaws of life," Taylor said.

Berry said that the man was taken by a second ambulance to St. Mary Hospital in Livonia. His condition Tuesday "wasn't critical," Berry said, "but he wasn't feeling very well."

No monetary damage estimate was yet available, Berry said. Police are continuing to investigate the incident.

Independent files in Twp.

New candidate in supervisor race

BY KEN VOYLES

Another resident is about to enter this year's election fray in Plymouth Township.

That's right, an independent candidate for the supervisor's position is planning to file this week before Thursday's (July 16) deadline.

Ron Edwards, a 37-year-old resident of the Lakepointe part of Plymouth Township, confirmed Monday night that he planned to submit petitions to enter the supervisor's race.

"I just collected my last signatures tonight," said Edwards, who declined to offer many details about himself or his candidacy prior to filing.

Edwards, who has four children and lived in the township for 10 years, is a self employed CPA.

"I'm doing this on my own," he said. "I speak my own mind. I am not affiliated with any group. I am

City memo warns of politics

BY ROBERT PARKER

An interdepartmental memo to City of Plymouth employees outlining guidelines and procedures to try and limit political activity is creating a stir in the city.

The memo, issued July 1 by the city administration, was written by City Manager Steven Walters. It addresses how city employees should respond to political activity by city commission and township incumbents or candidates.

The document is an apparent preview to an in-depth employe handbook currently being developed, said Plymouth Mayor Robert Jones.

According to the document, city employes are warned not to "respond to political solicitations nor attend political events sponsored by city commission or township incumbents."

In addition, it says that "city employes should not participate in the election activities of city commission or township incumbents and candidates," including telephone solicitation, appearing at political functions or passing out literature.

According to Walters, the memo is a carry-over from last fall, when a similar document was issued to city employes and is a common sense policy.

"The city has to work with township officials after they're elected," he said. "It is also unprofessional for city employes, and especially city department heads, to publicly support township candidates."

Walters said the letter is the result of questions that came up during last year's election by city employes.

"It makes good sense for city officials to stay out of township elections," Walters said.

Walters said, "legally, I can't stop them from doing that, but if it affects their ability to do their job - that has certain implications."

Walters called the subject of political involvement by employes a "sensitive issue."

City Commissioner Dennis Shrewsbury said he was concerned by the suggestions made in the memo.

"I hate to go against Steve Walters on this but I don't like to restrict people's rights," said Shrewsbury. "If you use good judgment, common sense and speak for yourself and not the city I'm not sure what the problem is."

Shrewsbury said he had spoken with Walters about his concerns.

Jones said that the letter is designed to let city employes know they need to remain as neutral as possible in order to have a strong working relationship with the neighboring township.

"We're (city) developing a personal handbook for city employes to codify proper procedure on various things," Jones said. "This will be developed over a period of time."

Airlifted to hospital Livonia man injured in crash

BY RANDY COBLE

A Livonia man remains in fair condition after being rushed by medical helicopter to St. Joseph's Hospital in Ann Arbor Sunday following a one-car accident, Plymouth Township Police said.

Investigator David Hayes said that Ronald Wroble, 26, was traveling eastbound on North Territorial Road west of Pebble Creek Drive in Plymouth Township on July 12 at approximately 6 p.m. when he "lost control of his vehicle, ran off the road, struck the embankment, a tree and then a fence."

The vehicle came to rest, Hayes added, without rolling over. Wroble sustained multiple injuries and lacerations, he said, and was transported to St. Joseph's by helicopter. He was reported to be fair in condition Monday evening, Hayes said.

Police are investigating the accident, including any contributing factors. Weather was one possibility, Hayes indicated.

"The road conditions were very wet Sunday," he said.

Landfill route smells, V B residents

BY MIKE McGLINNEN

A group of Van Buren Township residents are fighting mad over plans for garbage trucks to travel through a small section of their township in order to enter the Sank Trail Hills landfill, located in Canton and operated by Wayne Disposal-Canton.

The residents were expected to take their concerns to a Canton Board of Trustees meeting last night.

The landfill is located south of Michigan Avenue on either side of Lilley Road and stretches to just north of Van Born Road, the border between Canton and Van Buren townships.

Canton officials and Wayne Disposal representatives believe Michigan Avenue is in such bad shape that it is necessary to re-route traffic until road improvements such as turning lanes and repaving can be completed.

"If one truck on Michigan Avenue stopped to enter the landfill, there would be a huge backup," said Canton Supervisor Tom Yack.

The garbage trucks are expected to travel through Van Buren Township to enter the landfill, which will open in the spring of 1993. The route to the landfill starts at the I-275 exit at Michigan Avenue, followed by a left turn on

Unveiled on Monday Library look goes public

BY KEN VOYLES

Ten months after announcing that the current Dunning-Hough Library in the City of Plymouth needed to be either abandoned or demolished, members of the Plymouth District Library Board are ready to unveil a new design.

Back in September of 1991 the board agreed with a feasibility study put together by architect Mark McPherson calling for demolishing the current building and designing a structure on the same Main Street site.

This Monday (July 20) the board will finally be ready to reveal the possible look of a new library.

According to library Director Pat Thomas, a building committee studying the facility "feels together enough for a presentation by the architect.

"The plans have developed enough to show the floor plan inside and what the outside might look like," said Thomas. "We want to get the board's reaction, and the public's."

Much of the building design work is based on a building program study approved by the board earlier this year. The study detailed specific needs, such as numbers of chairs, space for computers and a variety of other needs.

No action is expected by the board Monday, but if the board likes what it sees, said Thomas, the drawings will be displayed for further public comment.

"When we backed off on an election this year we gave the architect until

The Board Report

A brief review of actions at the regular Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Board of Education meeting of July 13, 1992

The meeting began with a resolution of recognition for Mark Gregor, head coach of the Plymouth Salem High School Girls' Track and Field team. Salem student Tonya Wheeler, captain of the team, was then recognized for her outstanding season.

Under Citizen Comments, Robert Jones commented on the grade statistics for the Centennial Educational Park and on the process for handling encroachment on school district property.

The Board approved the Consent Calendar which included:

- payment of bills in the amount of $3,397,308.08.
- the recalling of 15 certified staff members. Superintendent Hoben stated that the District has now recalled 105 of the 156 certified staff who were pink-slipped in April.
- the appointment of Lynn Lonigro and Barbara Church as Area Coordinators at the Centennial Educational Park.
- the purchase of new stage curtains for the Canton Little Theater, pest control services, cleaning supplies, gasoline and diesel fuel for school buses, and a photo copier warranty.

The Board approved:

• an offer to purchase Vacant School Site No. 2, which is a 17.11 acre parcel of land located north of Ann Arbor Trail, west of Glenview, in Plymouth Township. An offer by The Selective Group, Inc. of Farmington Hills in the amount of $850,000 was accepted. The Charter Township of Plymouth is offered the Right of First Refusal for a period not to exceed 30 days. Proceeds from this sale will go to the Capital Improvements Fund.

• proceeding from the design development to working drawings for the West Middle School media center addition and renovations. Jeff Hammond, project architect for Roy G. French Associates, Inc. presented the drawings to the Board. This work is a part of the 1991 Bond Project. The renovations include an expanded media center, an additional entrance and an elevator.

• awarding the contract for site utilities and drainage work for the "XYZ" elementary school, located on Sheldon and Proctor Roads in Canton. The Contract was awarded to the low bidder, Sinacola Midwest Inc. of Pinckney, for $103,000. This is a part of the 1991 Bond Project.

• the purchase of assorted computer hardware from Apple Computers, Inc. for $107,391.90 and IBM Corporation for $50,970 for use at the Centennial Educational Park. Citizen Robert Jones inquired about the use of the computers. As established in the Bond Project guidelines, new computers will be used for both classroom instruction and administrative purposes.

• the purchase of assorted custodial cleaning products from Michigan Sanitary Supply Company, the low bidder, for $27,679.50.

• a resolution stating that citizens who wish to address the Board on non-agenda items may do so at the beginning of each Workshop meeting.

Dave Price of Barton Malow Company updated the Board on projects under construction this summer as part of the 1991 Bond Project. Price said that construction is moving ahead on schedule.

The Board will hold a workshop on goals, objectives and expectations on Monday, July 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Board Room of the E. J. McClendon Administration Building on Harvey Street in Plymouth. The next regular meeting will be held on Monday, July 27 at 7:30 p.m. at the same location.

This report is brought to you as a means of communicating your Board of Education's actions. If you have questions about these actions or would like further information about your schools, call 451-3188.

Will Twp. buy Schools' sold land?

BY MIKE McGLINNEN

The Plymouth-Canton Schools Board of Education has sold off a piece of property long desired by Plymouth Township to The Selective Group of Farmington Hills for $890,000.

The property is adjacent to the Plymouth Township Recreational Park and is located north of Ann Arbor Trail and west of Glenview.

School officials said Plymouth Township has long been interested in the parcel for possible expansion of the park, but now the township will have to settle for the right of first refusal on the property, which the board granted for a 30-day period.

The school board only received The Selective Group's bid for the 17.11 acre parcel, referred to as "vacant school site number two."

The developers plan on seeking a site plan for a single family subdivision with at least 37 lots and they will attempt to obtain all necessary zoning and site plan approval within 180 days.

The Selective Group originally offered $850,000 for the parcel, with 35 lots, but increased the offer by $40,000 for 37 lots

Following 'spa' raids City delays massage law

BY ROBERT PARKER

The Plymouth City Commission last Monday indefinitely postponed approving a new ordinance designed to license and regulate massage establishments.

The commission's decision to delay the ordinance came after Phil Cutrell, vice president of the Association of Michigan Myomassologists, presented information prior to last week's city meeting suggesting the ordinance was to restrictive.

The city's drafting of a massage ordinance follows the raid of two local massage parlors last month in a joint effort by local, state and federal law enforcement teams.

Plymouth Township recently approved a similar ordinance.

City attorney Ron Lowe said the ordinance will probably be considered again in early August, after the commission looks into Cutrell's concerns.

Cutrell said the city's current draft was "too restrictive to legitimate massagists" by not allowing for cross-gender massages and making it difficult for people to work out of their homes.

Although the city's zoning permits people to work out of their homes, Lowe said, the massage ordinance would require them to modify their homes to satisfy certain requirements of the ordinance including separate "locker and toilet facilities" and separate massage rooms for men and women and a recognizable and readable sign at the main entrance.

According to Cutrell, such restrictions are undue burdens on legitimate massagists.

Lowe said the city drafted the ordinance with the idea of making it a "tight law" to guarantee that only legitimate massage establishments operate in the city.

Lowe added that it was the first opportunity for the commission to hear outside comment about the ordinance.

"Sometimes legislation gets drawn in a vacuum," he said. "He (Cutrell) has successfully had ordinances amended to exempt people who meet certain requirements.

"I have to review the ordinance and his concerns," Lowe added

Plymouth Police Chief Robert Scoggins said, at the meeting, "if a person is a legitimate massagist, he would be willing to follow the restrictions to preserve his business."

The city ordinance outlines detailed requirements regarding employes, building and licensing.

Lowe reviewed massage ordinances from eight other communities - including Plymouth Township, Westland, Royal Oak and Ann Arbor - before drafting the city's.

$40,000 taken at gunpoint

BY MIKE McGLINNEN

A 24-year-old resident of Canton was robbed of $40,000 at gunpoint Friday, said Canton Police.

Three males between 20 and 30 years of age are being sought in the crime, according to Canton reports.

The suspects, all wearing ski masks, jumped the man from behind at about 2:30 a.m. outside of his apartment near Haggerty and Ford roads.

The suspects told him to open the door and disarm his security alarm or they would "blow his head off," police said.

One of the men is described as 6'2" and 200 pounds; the second suspect is 5'5" and 150 pounds; officers had no description of the third suspect.

After the suspects took the $40,000 from the safe, they put a pillow case over the man's head and retied his hands and feet, according to officers.

One of the suspects told the man he had been set up and that he had no friends, police said.

The victim untied himself and set off his car alarm in order to alert nearby residents of his predicament. The man claimed only three people knew about the money, officers stated.

In addition to the $40,000, the suspects also stole $500 more in cash from the man's wallet, a $150 cellular phone, car keys with a remote alarm switch worth $20, a $200 stereo, and a $400 video cassette recorder, said police.

New technology will greatly assist teachers

The new Dynacom technology bid recently granted by the Plymouth-Canton Schools Board of Education will provide teachers and students with some spectacular new sources of information for the future.

Aside from the controversy surrounding the bid, the new system should be a vast improvement and greatly assist teachers in doing their jobs.

Instead of dealing with antiquated movies, film strips, and slides, this new media retrieval system allows the schools to approach the instruction of students with the most modern equipment -- what the kids are accustomed to in their own homes.

Interactive CDs, laser discs, video cassettes, cable television, and still video discs are among the source materials available for the schools to use with this system.

A skewed view

By Mike McGlennen

Teachers will be able to broadcast and receive other classroom's broadcasts, in addition to having the ability to put individual computer screens on the classroom monitor in those classrooms equipped with computers.

Each classroom will be equipped with a monitor, remote and wall panel in order to use these different sources.

All the source materials are brought together in one centralized location, and teachers are able to schedule different programs for whatever time in the day they desire.

This is all designed to make it easier for the teachers to spend more time with their students.

In the past, teachers wasted far too much time setting up audio-visual equipment and searching for the section pertinent to the lesson being taught.

This whole system takes account of the difference between today's students and those of the past.

"Kids are conditioned with video images. It is no longer just written information that is available. Kids today are not like adults were when they were kids. I'm not putting down adults, but kids today think differently," asserted Dave Rodwell, Plymouth-Canton's administrative assistant for research and data processing.

If Rodwell's assertion doesn't sound true, just think of the often feeble attempts of many over the age of 40 to play video games. Somehow, there seems to be an inability to visualize and project oneself into a video character by those that have not grown up with video games and arcades.

"This gives kids access to things they couldn't see in any other way," said Donna Aveck, the schools director of computer services and instructional technology.

Beating hearts, tornadoes and wildlife footage are just a few examples of things that will be vastly improved by viewing rather than reading or looking at pictures.

The beauty of this system is that it can be updated and changed without having to make huge alterations. If video cassettes are obsolete in 15 years, the new "mystery device" of 2007 can be inserted into the place of the video and the system will still be functional.

Breen: Bad luck comes in threes

EDITOR:

Maurice Breen, they say that bad news/luck comes in sets of three...

First came the sewer debacle you supported...

Second came your support to reroute Metro air traffic to fly over established residential areas...

It's truly amazing that you rationalized rerouting air traffic to regularly fly over Plymouth in the morning, evening and during weekends instead of over the rural and commercial areas south and west of Metro Airport that have lived with air traffic for 20-plus years.

Third, what will be the next issue you support that attempts to decrease the quality of life and property values?

Presumably Clayton Stacey or one of your other qualified opponents will be elected and remember their constituents, which will help Plymouth Township avoid your third bullet.

Good luck (full-time) in the private sector!

Why did Berry waste?

EDITOR:

Enclosed is a copy of a letter dated July 2 that I received from Carl Berry, Chief of Police for Plymouth Township. The letter is a warning about the Plymouth Township political sign ordinance No. 83.41 which was passed while Maurice Breen was Township supervisor.

The ordinance part 1(d) states that a sign should not exceed eight square feet. On July 5, Breen erected signs on Sheldon Road that are 32 square feet (four times the legal limit allowed by the ordinance).

On July 6, I called Berry, who was hired by Breen, and asked why this was allowable. He told me the ordinance referred to in the letter was unenforceable because restricting sign size would be a violation of the First Amendment of the Constitution protecting freedom of expression.

So why did Berry waste his time and the taxpayers' money sending letters to all the candidates informing them of an ordinance that is not enforceable?

CLAYTON STACEY

McCarthy confused on signs

EDITOR:

I recently received a piece of campaign literature from Kathleen Keen-McCarthy and it asked the question, "Why won't the township police chief enforce township laws regarding the election?"

If her question is about the election itself, I believe it should be directed to the township clerk's office. But if it is about the sign ordinance that we have discussed, I believe we have a misunderstanding.

The enforcement of ordinances with relation to the political signs in this township is not just dependent on the ordinances which are in place.

Each candidate received from me a highlighted copy of ordinance 83, which talks about the placement of political signs. I sent that out to all candidates in hopes of receiving some compliance to the ordinance which Ms. McCarthy and I also discussed on more than one occasion. I even contacted her about some of her signs being stolen and where they had been stolen from.

One of our discussions was about the size of signs and I indicated to her I cannot enforce that section because of a legal opinion that indicated political signs are a form of freedom of speech.

By removing those signs I would be violating the First Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which I have sworn to uphold. I have not chosen to ignore the law as she put it, but have chosen to uphold her first amendment rights to freedom of speech.

This legal opinion was handed down the early part of last year at the request of the township supervisor because we needed to know the difference on the issue of signs for advertising and political signs.

On the issue of Aug. 9th or 10th about enforcement, I also stated the issue of political signs would then become a non-issue until there was another election, and then a candidate would make an issue of it again.

There has been enforcement of the sign ordinance. The county has removed signs from county property and that will continue.

The enforcement of the sign ordinance in Plymouth Township is of concern to the police department, but citizen safety comes first and that is where the priority of this department presently lies.

I am sorry she has chosen to use a piece of campaign literature to ask the question when I would have been more than happy to respond to her in person and share the legal opinion with her.

I do not have the ability to respond to the same amount of citizens she sent the literature to, but I hope you will correct this problem by relaying my answer to the citizens. Thank you for your help on this matter.

Crossing dangerous

EDITOR:

Who has the right of way, the pedestrian crossing on the "walk" signal or the cars turning from every direction?

I have come so close to being "creamed" as I try to cross near the McAuley clinic corner and the Harvey-Penniman corner. I usually am left standing in the middle of the road while the cars turn so close my heart beats a mile a minute. Many cars never come to a stop on a right-hand turn on a red light.

Have you a roving reporter who could observe this and write a report to wake up these rude drivers?

I am not alone in this dilemma and I'd hate to have you writing up my obituary.

McIlhargey best qualified for Twp. supervisor's job

EDITOR:

The Aug. 4th primary election for Plymouth Township supervisor presents a unique opportunity for the citizens of Plymouth Township. An opportunity for a change in both the image and substance of township government.

Charles McIlhargey represents a new voice with proven leadership ability and a wealth of experience in business and government.

When the qualifications and experience of the candidates are objectively compared, it is abundantly clear that other candidates lack the necessary experience, leadership ability and vision to lead Plymouth Township forward. The future of Plymouth Township is too important to entrust into unsure and untested hands.

The other candidates do not represent a change, but the same old negative refrains of bickering and political opportunism that pervade the political landscape. While McIlhargey represents a clear choice and not an echo. He has articulated a vision of the future for the township, a vision of streamlined, responsive, quality dedicated, and cost-effective government to enhance the quality of life for all the citizens.

He has redefined public service to encapsulate commitment, dedication, integrity and the placing of the welfare of the citizens above personal gain. While the other candidates dwell on the past, accuse and insinuate, pander to special interest groups and offer no vision of the future.

I believe the time is now and the choice is clear to elect Charles McIlhargey for Plymouth Township supervisor.

Dirty politics in Twp.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The author of this letter died Saturday night of a stroke. He was instrumental in organizing the Concerned Citizen groups in Plymouth township and city.)

EDITOR:

On July 1, after 11:30 p.m., someone stole the "John Stewart for Supervisor" sign from our front lawn.

Also, I have been informed that other Stewart signs have disappeared from resident township homeowner lawns. This behavior is disgusting and I hope it will not continue with Stewart's campaign or any of the other candidates.

The removing of the sign apparently was no prank, as evidenced by our neighbor's candidate sign not being disturbed and the prevalence of Stewart signs suddenly being stolen.

I have no knowledge of who might be doing this stealing. However, I do know that once I sided with Stewart on Mettetal Airport in 1990 and we both asked the question "Why does Plymouth Township want to buy an airport?" bad things have happened to the Dusbibers.

During the heat of debates on Mettetal last year our car radiator hose was slashed, our car tire punctured and I was even physically assaulted in the Wayne County building after an airport hearing by an airport supporter.

To all of this childish behavior, I say let's be open and talk and debate the issues in a fair and rational American way.

Dirty politics, it seems, has filtered down from the highest office and appears now in our local election. I have the impression that there are candidate supporters that fully believe in the saying "the end justifies the means."

Yes, my convictions are with Stewart, because I believe in his high character, his experience in government and his dedication in trying to bring representative government back to the people. That is why I have a Stewart sign in the front lawn.

A story of life, love--and food!

Dinner on table, 'Fiddler on the Roof'

BY RANDY COBLE

"If I were a rich man..."
"Matchmaker, matchmaker, make me a match..."
"Anatevka, Anatevka..."
"Tradition...tradition!!"

There's a tradition indeed coming to Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall restaurant in Northville -- a musical tradition of the first order.

"Fiddler on the Roof," the timeless classic about a family living, loving and struggling amidst the winds of change sweeping across Russia in the early 1900s, will be performed live as part of Genitti's summerstock dinner theater.

The father of a close-knit Jewish family has to adapt to new circumstances, as his daughters marry men he does not expect, and imperial Russia oppresses his people.

It is a tale of love and hatred. A story of passion for change and a desire to cling to the bedrocks of tradition make "Fiddler" an unforgettable experience.

Off-Broadway Productions, a local professional theater troupe, will present the play, which is based on tales penned by Shalom Aleichem, and the book written by Joseph Stein.

"Everyone loves this show," said Beth Wingert, who plays Tzeitel, the family's oldest daughter. "It has universal appeal -- there's something all people enjoy about it."

Those attending the summerstock production will have something else to enjoy as well -- the dinner Genitti's offers as part of the evening.

A seven course meal, "served family style, like an old Italian wedding," Genitti's said, includes a delicious array of dishes.

Homemade chicken noodle soup, Italian steak (which is a bread pork tenderloin), baked chicken, zucchini squash, redskin potatoes, Italian sausage with green pepper and onion, antipasto salad, vegetables, garlic toast precede the special dessert of canolies (assuming diners will have any room left for it in their stomachs.)

"You'll eat until you bust," Wingert said.

Tea, coffee and soft drinks are included in the dinner, and Genitti's also offers wine and beer at a separate price.

After dinner, it's a short walk from the Hole-in-the-Wall upstairs to Northville's Masonic Temple Theater for the performance. The hall seats around 200 people.

One price, $34.95, per person covers all the evening's expenses: dinner, tickets, tax and tip.

The cast and crew of Off-Broadway Productions' "Fiddler on the Roof" assemble on their self-built stage at the Genitti family barn in Salem Township. The dinner theater show begins July 17. (Crier photo by Rachel Rozmys)

Those who wish to attend only "Fiddler" can buy tickets for $15. Senior citizens can purchase tickets for $12.95, and children's tickets are just $9.

"Fiddler on the Roof" will be performed on the following dates: July 17-18, 23-25, 30-31 and Aug. 1. The Thursday and Friday shows will begin at 8:30 p.m., preceded by dinner beginning at 7 p.m.

The Saturday matinees (July 18 and 25, and Aug. 1) will begin at 2 p.m. Genitti's will serve its sumptuous repast on those dates at noon.

The cast for "Fiddler" numbers some 25, with a seven-member orchestra and four stage/production specialists.

"It's a great group," said Wingert. "We're fortunate in that it's easier to get good people in the summer because there are fewer chances for theater work in the summer."

Off-Broadway has been associated with Genitti's since May of 1991, Wingert said. The troupe performs the restaurant's widely-acclaimed in-house dinner theater on a small stage in the main dining room.

"We've done five different shows," Wingert said. "Right now, we're performing 'Vaudeville's Dead,' on Fridays and Saturdays. It's a sort of comical murder-mystery-musical," she added.

The cost for "Vaudeville's Dead" and dinner is just $29.95, with the same scrumptious menu.

Wingert said that the group had been rehearsing for "Fiddler" at the Genitti family's barn in Salem Township, for reasons of space.

The family has been very receptive to the whole idea of combining dinner at the Hole-in-the-Wall with "Fiddler," Wingert said.

"The idea's been tossed around for about a year now," she added.

"One day, our director, David Nelson, approached Toni and John (Genitti) about it, and we've putting the pieces together ever since."

That is a time-consuming process, she said. "There's so many things involved: set, costumers, orchestra, rehearsals -- and the actors, of course," she said with a chuckle.

"Public response has been very good," she said. Ticket are still available, she noted.

Genitti's Hole-in-the-Wall is located in downtown Northville at 108 East Main Street. Phone 349-0522 for information on dinner and the show and reservations.

Wingert said that the performances would be very special for all concerned.

"It's a story about the human spirit," she said, "and about how people react to the changing of the times. A father, a whole family, is watching their traditions disintegrate, and tries desperately to bend without breaking."

Pipebomb attack in Twp.

An incident which took place early Thursday morning involving a pipe bomb remains the subject of a police investigation.

Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry said that at about 12:30 a.m. July 9 officers responded to calls concerning a disturbance at Township Park, located on Ann Arbor Road near McClumpha Road.

"At that point, they encountered a young man carrying an explosive device - a pipe bomb," Berry said.

The device had been hurled at a group of people the youth had been with but did not explode, he said. No arrests were made at the scene and there were no injuries, Berry said.

The Michigan State Police bomb squad detonated the device at the park at about 3 a.m., he added. The type of explosives in the bomb, as well as suspects and motive for the incident, remain under investigation, Berry said.

September," said Thomas. "I'd expect the board to make a decision on the design by early fall just so this keeps moving."

If the board approves the design by September it will have been exactly one year since the first study called for demolishing the current building.

Board President Steve Harper said he wanted the building committee to present the sketches of the floor plan in July so that "if we have to approve something in August we'll have a month soak time."

Unlike Thomas, Harper said he expected preliminary approval of the architect's direction next month.

"We want to do that so we can get an update in our September newsletter and so the architects can start on the detailed drawings, which take a lot of time," he said.

The detail drawings will be used to refine the cost estimates.

If the new drawings are not approved they will likely be scrapped and the architects would start again, said Harper.

"It would be cheaper to start again now than when we are at the model stage," he said.

"It's all got to fall into place. First the drawings, then the budget and then we'll worry about an election," said Thomas, adding that a bond vote isn't likely until next spring.

The board has not held any recent discussions on a potential election date, she said.

Thomas was reluctant to discuss the cost of the new facility, but back in January the board looked at a preliminary cost estimate of $7.5 million for a 48,000 square foot structure.

That figure would include the two-story building, along possible land acquisition and the further expansion of the library's contents. Previous cost estimates have ranged from as low as $5 million to as high as $10 million.

Guy Bunyea, left, owner of the farm where the reunion was held and Daryl Cool, of Salem wait in the barn for the event to start.

The guests start arriving for the massive shindig.

Let the party begin!

PHS grads talk about...

BY W. EDWARD WENDOVER
(P.H.S. 1963-1966)

Start with an empty barn.

Add months of planning.

Add old Pilgrim Prints copies, pages from the Plythean yearbook and yellowed Plymouth Mail newspaper clippings.

Add a couple vintage cars parked out front next to the antique steam engine.

Then add about 800 folks who went to high school when the high school was right downtown where it oughta be.

That's the recipe for an evening of nostalgia, memories and old stories.

Last Friday evening's "All-Class Plymouth High School Reunion" at the Bunyea Farms on Powell Road was the closest thing yet to a full-blown tribute to the "Glory Days of P.H.S." Hosted by Guy and Pat Bunyea, the event was a natural add-on to the 35th year reunion of P.H.S. 1957 planned for the next evening.

One year ago, during the Fall Festival, an "All-Class P.H.S. Reunion" drew about 150 alumni to the Plymouth K. Of C. Hall. If a five-fold increase to this year's attendance is any indication, the 1993 reunion may have to move to Tiger Stadium.

Friday evening's affair was as informal as could be, a perfect approach for The Plymouth-Canton Community's largest barn dance of the season.

Although attendees ranged from the graduating classes of 1920 through 1970, age was no barrier. The 50 years difference in ages was nothing to the bond shared by 800 folks who had used the same old P.H.S. cafetorium (which is still used today by the students at what is now called Central Middle School).

The evening's festivities were also highlighted by the music of Gwen Nelson and Henderson Beavers (soon to be married) and by the magic of Howard Walker (P.H.S. class of 1920).

Several have asked the Bunyeas...

"When's the next reunion?"

Crier photos by Chris Farina

Glory days

EDITOR:

Thank you to Pat and Guy Bunyea for their hospitality and ideas and thank you to the class of 1957 for hosting such a nice affair.

The evening was a delightful affair. The weather was perfect. The farm atmosphere was fun. The table set-ups were a welcome sight for those of us 54 years and more out of Plymouth High.

The friendship was overwhelming. Age was no barrier. Chatting with old school mate and neighbors was a delight.

Thank you for an enjoyable evening!

Canton Police use seniors center for antenna

BY MIKE MCGLENNEN

Canton police officers will now be able to make more efficient use of the township's computer system thanks to the new police antenna installed on the top of the Canton Place Senior Citizen Retirement Facility on Ford Road.

The township's Public Safety Department chose Canton Place for the antenna placement because it is the tallest building in western Wayne County and its owners were agreeable to the idea, said Tammie Colling, community relations director for the Canton police force.

"Canton Place was one of the best suited places and we made contact with them and they agreed to do it. This allows computer access for all our officers when they are in their vehicles," Colling said.

The police department made a one-time payment of $400 to the retirement home, which is a bargain when compared with other communities which rent space for antennas, she said.

"Romulus pays $1,500 annually to rent space for their antennas," said Colling.

Officers will be equipped with computer terminals in their patrol cars, which will enable much more efficient use of the officer's time, Colling said.

Instead of having to call a dispatcher on the radio and check computer information, as was done in the past, officers will now be able to obtain information stored in the main township computer right from their patrol cars.

"Instead of requesting dispatch personnel to run a name or query a license plate, the officer can access a plate right from his car," Colling said. "You can do more things at the same time, since all the different officers won't have to wait their turn to speak to the dispatcher."

The Canton Place management had no problems with allowing the officers to use the roof of their building.

"There wasn't a doubt about helping them, as well as the officers have treated us in the past. We will do anything we can to help out the police," said Ginnie Hauck, manager of the retirement center.

The workers installed the equipment on the roof last week by entering through the elevator penthouse of the building and the work crews were very efficient with the installation, according to Hauck.

"It certainly isn't unsightly. They did a real nice job. There was no inconvenience, really. They did a fine job and worked very quickly," Hauck said.

Haggerty paving mulled

The long anticipated realigning and paving of Haggerty Road from Joy Road south to Koppernick in Canton was expected to take a step closer to reality last night.

That's when the Canton Board of Trustees considered a move to award construction bids for the paving and drainage project along Haggerty.

Construction plans and specifications have already been finalized, said Tom Casari, Canton's engineer.

A low bid of $987,316 from Angelo D'Orazio Paving Inc., was mulled by the board last night.

A special assessment district has been established for that stretch of Haggerty Road, said Canton officials, to help pay for the project.

Construction is likely to begin by mid-August if the project is approved. It would be completed by the end of the year.

Currently Haggerty Road jogs to the west of where it ends at Joy Road in Plymouth Township.

City memo

Walters echoed the standardizing of proper behavior of city employees with regard to politics and other situations.

"This will probably reflect out into more of a policy at some point," he said. "It's good advice and a sensible thing."

Walters said that the city's close relationship with the township calls for this type of policy.

Under the city's ethics code, it is unethical for city commissioners to solicit personal contributions or support from city employees, and it is also unethical for city employees to publicly show support for city commission incumbents or candidates.

SCHOOL'S OUT, but the doctor is in ...at St. Mary Hospital Health Care Centers

So why wait until the last minute to have your child's back-to-school physical? From now through Labor Day, September 7, our physicians will be offering special-rate physical examinations required for school, camp or sports.

Our physical exams are personalized and thorough. St. Mary physicians take the time to learn about your child, and give a physical exam so complete that even Mom will be satisfied.

FOR ONLY $25, your child will receive:

- A physical assessment by a personal physician.
- An evaluation of growth and development.
- A medical history (be sure to bring all immunization records).
- Vision screening
- Basic urine tests (immunizations and additional lab tests, if required, will be an additional charge).

So now that school's out, it's time for your child's most important exam. It's a short trip to your St. Mary Hospital Health Care Center. Appointments can be made at your family's convenience at the location in your neighborhood:

Twp. considers ethics of Stewart 'fun(d)raiser'

He said that the board had acted as it did only to hurt Stewart's campaign and aid that of his supervisory opponent, McIlhargey.

On Wednesday, the board of ethics voted unanimously, 5-0 (Trustee Abe Munfakh was not present due to scheduling conflict) to order Berry to conduct the investigation. One charge alleges that Stewart violated the ethics policy by holding a political fundraiser at Plymouth Township Park.

A second allegation, made public for the first time at the hearing, is that Stewart, an attorney with offices in Plymouth, represented individuals in cases at the 35th District Court where Plymouth Township was involved.

Under the rules of the township's ethics policy, the board of trustees must convene itself as an ethics panel when a fellow trustee is being charged with misconduct.

Berry's report is expected to be completed tonight, according to Clerk Esther Hulsing. She added that the board has not set a date for a second hearing to discuss its findings, hear testimony from witnesses and consider its final decision.

The board's decision last Wednesday came amidst a flurry of angry words from those in audience, as well as Stewart himself.

Most of the harsh comments were reserved for Supervisor Gerald Law, who chairs the board of ethics and was the one who originally called for the board of trustees to investigate Stewart.

At the board of trustees' May 12 meeting, Law asked the board to convene an ethics panel, according to the rules provided in the ethics policy passed in November 1989.

At that time, Law said he had received complaints of only one alleged ethical violation by Stewart -- that he had held a political fundraiser on May 8 in Township Park.

Section two, subsection three, of the ethics policy says that an elected official cannot use township personnel, resources, property or funds under his or her "care and control" for personal gain or benefit.

Stewart's campaign literature proclaimed the event "a fun(d)raiser" and birthday party for Stewart.

Robert Zaetta, a Stewart campaign advisor, rented the pavilion at the park for the event. On the application for rental he listed it as a birthday party.

The event was more about fun than funds, Zaetta said. He said the party was an all-you-can-eat affair, and the admission fee of $10 per couple and $15 per family went to offset the costs involved.

Law, in calling for Berry to investigate the matter, said that the ethics panel must know "what were they (the township employees who took Zaetta's application) led to believe?"

Karp said that any charge of subterfuge "is a red herring on Gerry Law's part."

"John's literature clearly states it was a birthday party," he said. "The park knew exactly what was going on."

The park was not under Stewart's "care and control," Karp said, and so the policy could not have been violated.

"He has the right, as a member of the community, to pay a rental fee and use the park," Karp said. "The park is under the board's control, but he's not the board."

At the July 8 hearing Law said publicly for the first time that he had received information about another alleged violation by Stewart, an attorney with offices in Plymouth.

A letter, signed "name withheld by request," states that "Stewart has represented clients in the 35th District court against Plymouth Township."

If true, that action would violate the ethics policy's section two, subsection six, which states that an elected official "shall not engage in or accept employment...for a private or public interest when that employment or service is incompatible or in conflict with the discharge of...official duties."

Stewart appeared furious about both charges at the meeting, and especially with Law. At one point, he stood up, pointed his finger at Law, and called him "a man who accused me of being an alcoholic who only married his wife for political purposes."

He then left the hearing and did not return. Stewart and his attorney later flatly denied any truth to the allegations. "There is no substance to these charges," he said.

Karp said that one of the three cases in the second charge in question took place before Stewart was elected trustee in November 1988.

As to the two remaining cases, both of which occurred in 1991, "he withdrew from them as soon as he found out Plymouth Township was involved."

"Come on," Stewart said. "Everyone knows I wouldn't touch a Plymouth Township case."

"If Gerry had done sufficient homework," Karp said, "he would have found out the real story." Karp said that Law looked only at court dockets, which did not reveal that Stewart had withdrawn from the cases in question.

The approximately 20 citizens in attendance at the hearing were nearly unanimous in their disapproval of the board's actions, breaking into applause as several speakers questioned the ethics panel's impartiality.

Zaetta called the entire affair an "abuse of power by the board of trustees. This ethics non-issue is clearly politically motivated and represents mud-slinging in its worst form."

Dan Troutman, an attorney who works with Stewart, agreed, referring to the panel as "this kangaroo court."

"This smacks of the worst politics and abuse of power," Troutman said. "If there's anything unethical, it's abusing these positions of power to trump up some ridiculous charges."

Denying that the board could be impartial in its decision, Zaetta called for it to withdraw from the matter.

"This board and its investigator are not a disinterested, impartial body and all should be disqualified from dealing with this matter."

To substantiate his claim, Zaetta handed out copies of a paid political advertisement for McIlhargey. The advertisement ran in the June 17 issue of The Crier.

In the ad, under a heading entitled "supporters include," are listed Trustees

Community Deaths

Dusbiber, local organizer

Local grassroots organizer Warren M. Dusbiber died suddenly Saturday -- one day after his 70th birthday.

Dusbiber, a Plymouth Township resident, collapsed at his home and died at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia. Funeral services were held Monday at the Vermeulen Funeral Home in Plymouth Township with The Rev. Robert A. Clapp officiating.

Mr. Dusbiber was born in Ypsilanti. He came to the community in 1958. A chemical engineer with Burroughs (now Unisys), Dusbiber retired in 1981. He was a member of St. Andrew Episcopal Church in Livonia and the Plymouth Optimist Club. He was also instrumental in organizing the township and city Plymouth Concerned Citizens groups opposed to the municipal purchase of Canton's Mettetal Airport.

Survivors include: wife Lois S.; sons Darry W., of Ypsilanti, and Brian D., of St. Paul; daughter Wendy E. Porter, of Canton; brother Don, of Medina, OH; sister Marie Kirk, of Livonia, and Mary McLeod, of Ypsilanti; and six grandchildren.

Memorial may be sent to the Michigan Heart Association.

Anderson, a homemaker

Marie P. Anderson, 89, of Plymouth Township, died July 1 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, in Superior Township. Funeral services were held July 6 at Vermueken Trust 100 Funeral Home with the Rev. John N. Grenfell, Jr. of First United Methodist Church of Plymouth officiating. Burial was at Riverside Cemetery.

Born in 1903, Mrs. Anderson was a homemaker.

Survivors include: son Robert W. Anderson, of Garden City; grandchild Mary Anderson, of Garden City; sisters Edith Kaney, of Colorado, Dorothy Temberg, of Whitehall and Twila Douglas, of Battle Creek.

Memorials may be sent to the Lions Foundation.

Hicks, a homemaker

Jane C. Hicks, 75, of Canton, died July 2 at Garden City Hospital. Funeral services were held July 6 at the Vermeulen Trust 100 Funeral Home with the Rev. K.M. Mehl officiating. Burial was at White Chapel Cemetery, in Troy.

Born in 1917, in Jackson, Mrs. Hicks was a homemaker and a member of Risen Christ Lutheran Church in Plymouth.

Survivors include: husband Theron F. Hicks, of Canton; daughter Barbara Huband, of South Lyon; sister Anna Algoe, of Perry, and Mary Victor, of Florida; eight grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

Memorials may be sent to the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

Police probe ethics charges

Ron Griffith and Smith Horton (who is also listed as McIlhargey's campaign chairman), and Clerk Esther Hulsing, all members of the ethics panel. Berry is also listed.

"They can say or do what they want in a political campaign as part of that," Karp said, "but they have put on their hats as public officials. When you do that, you are acting under color of law," and so violating Stewart's rights:

"It insults everyone's intelligence in this community to believe that there's no connection here."

All four individuals flatly denied any conflict of interest.

"I don't have anything against John," said Griffith. "I'm going to look at the facts. I feel I can be fair."

Griffith said the board had no option in the matter. "We have an ethics policy and we have a complaint. If I read the policy correctly, we have no choice but to look into it," he said.

Horton agreed that no conflict existed. "I think we can be impartial," he said. "I consulted an attorney (from the township's legal firm) who said I had no problem."

"Virtually everyone on the board has a political bias," he continued, "on way or another. Nobody can claim to be absolutely objective. All we can do is our best."

"Persons in this country are innocent until proven guilty," said Hulsing. "I don't think we should prejudge anyone. We'll wait until the facts are in."

Berry's view was along the same lines as the others. "I've been handed a real hot potato here," he said.

"But I have to do my job. I'm a citizen of this country and I have a right to support whom I choose (for supervisor). But my choice will in no way color the way this investigation proceeds -- period. I will do it impartially."

Board members said they hoped the harsh words had ended.

"I don't want to see that again," said Horton, who described those who spoke at the meeting as "a vociferous minority."

"For two grown men to act like that," said Hulsing.

Treasurer Mary Brooks said that "I think we look silly in the newspapers doing this."

Law said he felt the person under investigation and his supporters "want to accuse everyone else of impropriety, but not themselves."

Referring to Stewart's comments at the meeting, Law said that "Mr Stewart has a problem."

When asked if he was considering legal action in light of his fellow trustee's words, Law said "we'll see. We'll see how far this guy wants to go."

The supervisor reiterated his position that it was his and the board of trustee's obligation to investigate allegations of conduct that violated the township's ethics policy.

"The township board has the obligation to be the ethics board," he said. "If you don't want them to be that, you don't write it into the policy."

He said the Plymouth Township Concerned Citizens, of whom Zaetta is a member, are biased in favor of Stewart.

"I don't care what those 'concerned citizens' say," Law said. "Their candidate has two potential ethics violations here."

"If it was someone else," he continued, "the lynching rope would be out."

Karp suggested in a May 28 letter that the investigation of the alleged ethics violations be conducted by the Michigan Township Association, and was put forth again by Zaetta at the July 8 meeting.

Law dismissed the idea. "We might as well send it to Ringling Brothers," he said, and referred to those who supported the notion as "bozos."

"Why don't we send it to someone in Tibet?" Law said. "Yeah, that's it. We'll send it to Tibet."

The MTA "had said they've never heard of such a case as this before in Michigan," said Karp.

"As a matter of fact, there's nothing in the legal history of Michigan concerning this," he said, referring to the fundraiser/birthday party charge.

Munfakh jokingly summed up the entire situation well when asked about it by a reporter.

"Isn't politics wonderful?"

Hearing schedule causes a stir

BY RANDY COBLE

The Plymouth Township ethics board, which met last Wednesday to consider charges against current trustee and supervisor candidate John Stewart, produced much controversy, including over when it was scheduled to start.

The meeting started at 7 p.m., but a written notice sent to Stewart listed the start time as 7:30 p.m.. Most of the 20-odd members of the audience, largely Stewart supporters, did not arrive until 7:20 p.m.

Clerk Esther Hulsing said a mistake had been made.

When Supervisor Gerald Law, chair of the ethics panel, notified fellow board members some two weeks ago of the date and time of the hearing, the time was set at 7 p.m. Hulsing posted a public notice of the ethics hearing on the bulletin board outside of township hall, again noting the 7 p.m. starting time.

She confirmed that same time to a reporter on July 3 and 6.

According to Stewart, Law, who has handled notification of board members and Stewart, did not notify him that the hearing had been scheduled for July 8 until 5:30 p.m. July 7.

Robert Zaetta, a Stewart campaign advisor, produced a copy of the written notice Stewart received at the meeting, which listed the starting time as 7:30 p.m.

Zaetta also said that the public notice

Plan revealed July 22 City plans to lure new business

Plymouth's new marketing campaign, tailored to bring more businesses to the city, will be unveiled July 22.

The public meeting will be held at 8 a.m. in the Mayflower Meeting House and include representatives of the marketing company Dvle Marketing, of Southfield, as well as the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce, the Plymouth DDA and the city.

Fran Toney, executive director of the Plymouth Chamber, said the new marketing plan will both promote local businesses as well as the city in an effort to bring in new businesses.

"I think this is one of the most exciting things happening in the business community in Plymouth in a long, long time," said Toney. "This is a joint effort between the DDA, the chamber and the merchants."

The Plymouth DDA is footing much of the bill for the marketing plan, said Toney, but the chamber must also raise $60,000 to make it work.

The program, she added, is open to all members of the chamber for an investment of $50 a month or $600 a year. It includes radio and newspaper advertising, direct mail and public relations to create an awareness of the products and services offered in Plymouth.

The campaign centers on a theme of "Discover the Exciting Worlds of Plymouth."

Toney said the chamber has had downtown business promotion plans in the past by pooling the resources of the its members.

"We want everyone to get excited and to get involved," she added.

Toney said the meeting is open to all "who can benefit." For more information or to reserve a space call 453-1540.

"We didn't have one last year but this year we decided to do it again," she said. "This all stemmed from the negative publicity we were getting when the shops were closing up and the hard economic times."

State, county candidates involved Forum covers local races

BY RANDY COBLE

Voters in the Plymouths and the Northvilles will have a chance to hear candidates for two area races address the issues in a League of Women Voters' forum to be held tomorrow night.

The league will host the forum at the Livonia City Hall, located on Five Mile Road just east of Farmington Road. Candidates for the 20th district state House of Representatives seat and those competing for the Wayne County 10th district commissioner spot will attend. The forum will begin at 7 p.m.

The 20th state district and 10th Wayne County district both encompass Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville and Northville Township.

Jerry Vorva, Robert Bernard and Ronald Ambrose are squaring off against fellow Republican and incumbent 20th district representative Georgina Goss in the Aug. 4 primary. The winner faces no Democratic opposition in the general election Nov. 3, but independent candidates have until 4 p.m. tomorrow to jump into the fray.

Current Wayne County 10th district commissioner Maurice Breen, a Republican, will face fellow GOP challengers Clayton Stacey, Thaddeus McCotter and Patrick Downes Aug. 4. The winner of the primary will face Democrat Michael Caffrey in November, and any independents that may file.

The League of Women Voters is a national, non-partisan organization. It works to obtain and distribute information to the public on candidates for elected office and their views on pertinent issues.

LWV forums

Who's who this election season may get a little easier in the coming weeks.

To that end the League of Women Voters (LWV) in Plymouth-Canton-Northville is sponsoring a series of candidates' forums to provide voters the chance to learn about the candidates for local and state offices on the ballot in the Aug. 4 primary election.

The forums will last about 90 minutes, and will be moderated by a League member.

Omnicom Cablevision will videotape the forums in Plymouth and Northville townships for later presentation. Dates will be announced soon. Canton's event will not be televised.

A forum for Plymouth Township candidates will be held Wednesday, July 22, at 7:30 p.m. at the township clerk's building at 42356 Ann Arbor Rd.

An exclusively Republican field of candidates will duke it out in their respective races. The winners Aug. 4 face no Democratic opposition in the Nov. 3 general election. Independent candidates have until July 16 to file, but none have as yet.

Certified candidates for election to township offices include trustee (seven candidates for four open seats), township clerk (two candidates), township supervisor (four candidates) and current Treasurer Mary Brooks running unopposed.

In a related development, township supervisor candidate Stephen Boak has invited the other three candidates to a special televised debate.

Boak said that he mailed the invitations to the three other candidates on Monday. The debate is slated for Tuesday, July 21, from 7:30-9 p.m. It will be broadcast live on channel 15 from Omnicom's studios in Plymouth. A list of issues and a moderator has yet to have been selected, Boak said.

Canton voters will have a chance to speak with candidates for township offices, and the contenders for the two state house of representatives districts that encompass the township.

The "candidates' fair," as the League has dubbed the event, will be held Wednesday, July 22, at 8 a.m. at the Canton Public Library. The library is located at 1200 S. Canton Center Road.

It will involve candidates sitting at tables, and voters will have the opportunity to talk with any and all. There will be no forum at the fair.

Supervisor Tom Yack is running unopposed, but will not be able to attend.

Two candidates are facing each other for the office of township clerk, and three for treasurer, including two Republicans in the August primary. Also, six Republican candidates will be on the primary ballot, competing for township trustee spots on the November ballot.

In the 21st State House race, two GOP candidates will battle to face the Democratic incumbent this November.

Two Republicans will face off for the right to take on the lone Democratic candidate after Aug. 4 in the 18th State House contest.

Officials of the Canton Chamber of Commerce said that they have not yet heard from all the candidates on which of them can and cannot attend.

Northville Township voters will have the chance to listen to candidates for their township's offices Tuesday, July 21, at 7:30 p.m. at township hall, located at 41600 Six Mile Rd.

The League of Women Voters is a national, non-partisan organization. It works to obtain and distribute information to the public on candidates for elected office and their views on pertinent issues.

Art in the Park on tap this weekend

It's here.

Plymouth's Art in the Park mid-summer extravaganza, which has grown from humble beginnings with only 30 artists to one of the largest art shows in the midwest, featuring 300 artists from across Michigan and the country, takes over downtown this weekend.

The 12th annual festival will be held in Kellogg Park July 18-19 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The artist booths will be set up along Penniman Avenue between Harvey and Union streets and on Main Street between Ann Arbor Trail and Fralic. Admission is free.

Artists representing 110 communities throughout Michigan and 14 different states will be showing their works, which will include fine art, crafts and wearable art. More than 70 artists are from the Metro Detroit area.

"This is one of the largest shows in Michigan. It is larger than any of the three Ann Arbor art fairs, which are all held at the same time," said show director Dianne Quinn.

The one common bond between the many diverse artists is the manner in which they create, according to Quinn.

"Everything is hand-crafted, it is a very well-rounded show, there are a lot of different styles represented here," Quinn said.

The different painting styles featured include oils, watercolors, acrylic and Chinese brush painting, which consists of watercolors on rice paper.

Jewelry available at the show ranges from gold and diamonds to leather goods.

Other crafts featured at the show include weaving, wreaths, photography, pottery, calligraphy, stained glass, sculpture, silhouette cuttings, wearable art, lawn ornaments, weather vanes and bird houses, Quinn said.

Wool Gatherers will raffle Afghan

Art in the Park will have a new attraction this year.

The Wool Gatherers Knitting Guild of Plymouth is sponsoring its first booth by raffling a fisherman knit Afghan.

A relatively young guild, the group formed two years ago and is affiliated with the National Knitting Guild of America.

The purpose of the guild is to provide communication and education to those wishing to advance their quality of workmanship and creativity in their

The show is well balanced with one third of the artists in the fine art category (paintings, photography, and calligraphy), one third that perform crafts (pottery, stained glass, and basket making), and one third that create wearable art (hand painted clothing and jewelry).

The art fair has beneficial side effects for the area, Quinn stated.

knitting skills.

The guild meets the third Thursday of every month in the Salvation Army Building, in Plymouth, at 6:30 p.m.

Members, guests and levels of knitters are welcome.

The guild will be selling raffle tickets for the fisherman's Afghan both days of Art in the Park. The booth will be located at the fountain in Kellogg Park.

Former U-M leader at concert

Bring on the band.
Former University of Michigan Marching Band Director George Cavender will be a guest at the Thursday, July 16 concert of the Plymouth Community Band.

Concerts are Thursday evenings at 8 p.m. in Kellogg Park, in downtown

Plymouth.
Members of the board of the U-M Club of the Plymouth Community will be in attendance.

Interested people can join the U-M Club while attending for $10, which goes toward the annual club scholarship fund.

"It is a great activity for the whole community. It is great for the merchants and the whole community," said Quinn.

"We have a perfect setting with a beautiful park right in the middle of town," she added.

The show has reached the level where there are many more interested artists than can be accommodated.

"We have to turn away so many people that want to be in the show. We want the best quality and want to keep improving the show, rather than expanding it any further," Quinn said.

Quinn, a calligrapher, realizes the problems and pitfalls associated with many other shows from an artist's point of view. She has used her experience to make the show artist-friendly.

"We know what it's like. We make it as easy as we can to get the artists in and out as smoothly as possible," Quinn said.

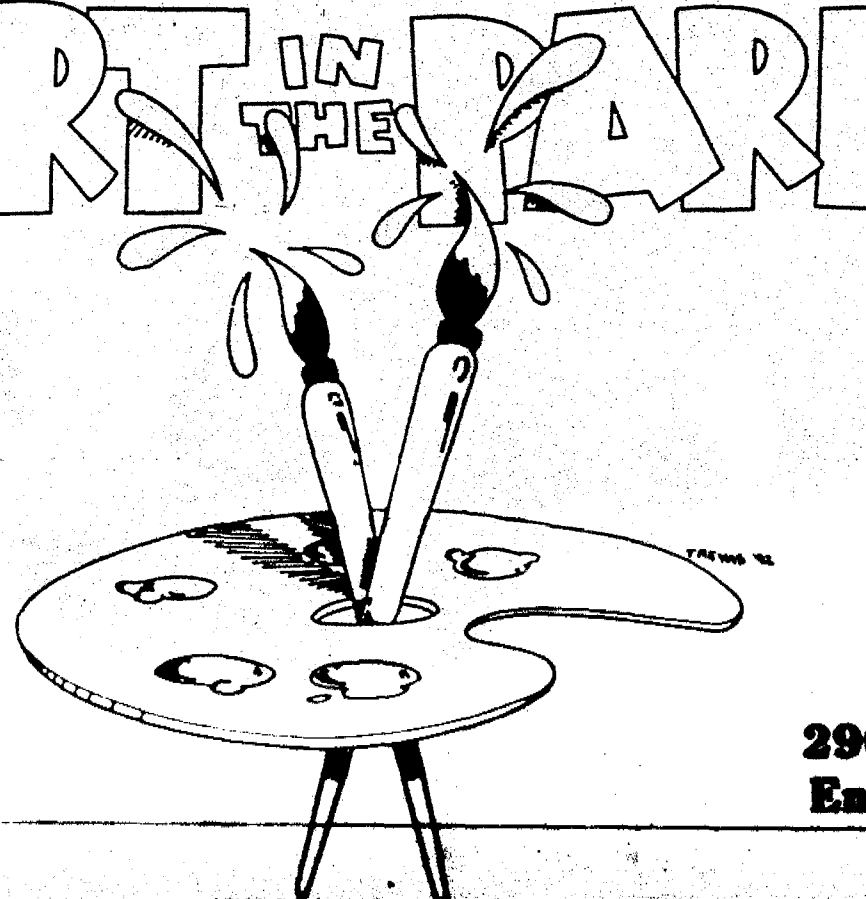

In addition to the art, there will be many other activities to occupy spectators.

Food ranging from grilled chicken breasts to raw french fries will be available as will fresh squeezed lemonade.

Entertainment will be provided by Trilogy, Barbryellen, Mike Burst Ensemble Dulcimer Group, and Chautauqua Express. Youngsters will be kept occupied by face painters, clowns and mimes traveling throughout the show area.

Twp. has month to stop land deal

after the board of education revised the original asking price from $1.2 million to $890,000 in order to account for approximately eight acres of the site which is heavily wooded.

The board vote was 6-1 with trustee Jack Farrow casting the lone dissenting vote.

Plymouth Township Supervisor Gerald Law sent a letter to the school board requesting that they keep the site open "for the public," but that did not sway the school officials, with the exception of Farrow.

Farrow made a motion to table the matter and allow Plymouth Township the opportunity to bid, but that motion failed by a 5-2 vote.

"We recognize that this is adjacent to the township park and they've tried to get it many times," Farrow said.

The other board members believe that the township had more than enough time to purchase the land, however.

"For years, anytime they wanted it they could have had it for the fair market value or the appraised price," said Dean Swartzwelter, board of education treasurer.

"It behooves us if this is owned by someone else and we get it on the tax rolls. We are not going to build a school there and the law requires us to sell it," said Carl Battishill, vice president of the board.

Swartzwelter explained that the growth area of the district is not the northwestern part of the district, where this is located, and the district should look elsewhere for a future school site.

"We are giving the township the right of first refusal. We are giving them time and it's been a long time that they have had," David Arley, board secretary said.

Trustee Barbara Graham believed that Plymouth Township could have benefited from having some additional time, but ultimately voted to accept the bid.

"They have all the turmoil with the election coming up, so maybe they could use some extra time," Graham said.

on the bulletin board originally read 7:30, but that a "0" had been drawn in ink over the "3."

"I made a boo-boo," said Hulsing. "The confusion over that was my fault."

Hulsing said that the public notice posted July 2 was accurate. A second notice was posted July 7 that contained more information about the hearing but listed the incorrect 7:30 p.m. starting time. She said she changed the second notice, posted the morning of July 7, when she detected the error.

It was a copy of that notice that Stewart received from Law, less than 26 hours before the hearing.

This is not the only such controversy to plague the ethics hearing.

In a related matter, Stewart said that Law has not provided him with the packet of information about the charges provided to board members and the media. This includes copies of citizens' complaints, and evidence gathered by Law relating to the charges.

"But for (Treasurer) Mary Brooks, who copied her packet for me, I wouldn't have a copy," Stewart said.

Ronald Karp, Stewart's attorney, said Monday that he received the packet from Law on Friday, July 10.

At the July 8 hearing, Law said that once Police Chief Carl Berry's investigation is complete, the results of his report will be public information.

"You always give the person (charged) all rights of due process," Law said. "They have the right to receive the complaint in advance, the results of the investigation" before the board meets a second time to hear witness testimony.

Stewart will also have the right to question those witness at that hearing, Law said.

Canton landfill irks Van Buren Township residents

Haggerty Road south to Van Born Road. From Van Born and Haggerty, the trucks will head west to the entrance at Lilley and Van Born.

"We are really in a very strange situation here. There are a lot of political overtones to this matter. Canton has done nothing to re-route these trucks," said Sandra Todd, the main organizer of a group of area residents concerned with the route to be used by the trucks.

The new landfill entrance is right across the street from Todd's home, which is located just south of Van Born and Lilley.

Todd has gathered over 70 signatures from area businesses and residences in opposition to the re-routing. The residents are concerned with the approximately 120 trucks per day that will enter the landfill.

"Why are they putting large, overweight trucks on two lane roads with 50 miles per hour speed limits? These trucks are not going to be able to stop," Todd said.

"There are a number of residential homes, senior citizens and pets in this area. Something is going to happen," she said.

Todd does not believe the re-routing of the trucks down Haggerty will work better than having trucks enter the landfill from Michigan.

"Anytime a truck makes that left turn (from Michigan onto Haggerty) there will be backups on Michigan. There is not enough room for a large truck in the turn lane. To just put this plan into use like this does not make sense," Todd said.

Todd thinks Wayne Disposal should pay for the needed improvements to Michigan Avenue to eliminate these potential problems.

"They should put in turn lanes. Every new development around here has paid for road improvements. Meijer's and NBD have done it -- putting in right hand turn lanes, left turn signals and traffic signals. Why can't the landfill do this?" questioned Todd.

"I'm not a maniac or a martyr. I just think they made a mistake and they should admit it," Todd added.

While Yack believes the residents have some legitimate concerns, he explained that the area is already filled with industrial development and handles numerous trucks already.

"That entire area has numerous businesses and is zoned general industrial," said Yack. "The Van Buren master plan calls for the area in question to be zoned light industrial, although it is presently residential. This is an area in transition."

Yack added that township officials really have no control over the routes different trucks take to arrive at the landfill, they can only make suggestions to drivers.

"We can't dictate a route those trucks would take. They will probably come from all directions," Yack said.

"All but 250 feet of the Lilley Road route is in Canton," he added.

Yack said he hopes Michigan Avenue is "a beautiful roadway" in three years, after state and county officials have finished improving the road.

Yack expected a large crowd of Van Buren Township residents to voice their complaints at last night's meeting of the Canton Township Board of Trustees.

Landfill representatives explained the decision to re-route the traffic.

"We decided to not use Michigan Avenue because it is such a high speed road and because there are no left turn lanes," said Dave Jablonski, spokesperson for Wayne Disposal.

Jablonski did not rule out the possibility of altering the current planned route.

"The citizens have some legitimate concerns. Once it is operating, we will see if it appears to be problem. Just let us get it going first," Jablonski said.

Canton's host community agreement with Wayne Disposal guarantees the township the right to send solid waste to the landfill into the next century at no cost.

Canton also has the right to monitor, inspect and test the land at any time to ensure that high standards are maintained at all times. Canton can define the types of solid waste accepted at the landfill -- sludge and hazardous waste materials will not be accepted.

The agreement calls for entry into the site from the Van Born/Lilley Road intersection for the first three years of operation.

Van Buren Township Treasurer Helen Foster agrees with the residents complaints and hoped the Canton board would listen to them at the Tuesday meeting.

"Like the residents have said 'Canton gets the cash while we get the trash.'

"I am certain Canton wants to work with its neighbor on this. There have been certain wheels already set in motion to deal with this," Foster said.

Prior to living in Plymouth Township, Edwards resided in Canton, but this is his first taste of political life in either community.

"It's been fun," he said. "Other than that I'd rather not talk about it until after I file this week."

If Edwards is certified for the election, his name will be on the November general election ballot, along with the winner of the Aug. 4 Republican primary.

There are four Republican candidates seeking the top slot in the township, including Stephen Boak, Kathleen Keen-McCarthy, Charlie McIlhargey and John Stewart.

Petitions available

Three non-partisan seats on the Plymouth District Library Board will be up for election on the Nov. 3 ballot.

Nominating petitions are available at the clerk's offices of the city and township.

Nominees must be 18 years old and residents of either the city or township. The deadline for filing petitions is 4 p.m. July 16.

Canton girl shows hockey skills to Russian

BY JAY KEENAN

Stacey Chuhran took her hockey talents to the other side of the world three weeks ago.

And the 15-year-old Canton resident, along with several other colleagues, showed a portion of the globe how the game is played.

Chuhran was selected to play on the American Womens Hockey Coaches Association (AWHCA) Ambassadors. She teamed up with 17 other U.S. girls on the squad to compete in the first Russian ice hockey tournament for women in St. Petersburg.

The tournament, dubbed the White Nights Tournament, was played at the Troika Sports Club Arena and designed to help develop womens hockey in a country already known for its mens hockey teams.

The competition was sparked when visiting Russian hockey officials observed a game between two local U.S. womens teams playing in Lincoln Park last year.

The event featured two U.S. squads along with teams from St. Petersburg, the Ukraine and Latvia. The toumey also included a mens old-timers event and several boys high school age teams.

Chuhran and the Ambassadors stole the show by reaping a gold medal with a 4-0-1 record. They won the championship game over Latvia 2-1. The squad, comprised of a mix of 13-20 year olds from Michigan, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Illinois and Maine, skated

A league of her own

Local woman played pro baseball

BY ANNE SULLIVAN

When Jayne Bittner was growing up in Lebanon, PA, women athletes were hard to find and weren't well accepted by the general public. But she didn't let that stop her.

Even as a child she loved sports and all she ever wanted to do was play ball.

Today, at 66, the Canton resident is still doing exactly what she loves best, playing ball with the Canton Seniors team, Monday and Wednesday mornings in Garden City.

Although her game has changed from baseball to softball, her passion for the sport hasn't.

Bittner spent seven years in the women's hardball league currently featured in the movie "A League of Their Own." (Bittner even has a role of an extra in the flick.)

As a youngster growing up in Pennsylvania, the only organized girls sport in high school was basketball.

It was a basketball game that catapulted Bittner into the world of women's professional athletics, and led to a seven-year career in the All American Girls Baseball League (AAGBL).

Bittner had never played organized baseball, or softball for that matter. She was spotted playing basketball by a scout for the All American Girls Baseball League, and recruited to tryout for the league.

What she saw in that recruiter was the opportunity to do exactly what she's always wanted to do — play ball.

With her parents blessings, two weeks later she was one of 200 women that year trying out in Havana, Cuba, for a spot on one of the teams.

"It was unbelievable," recalls Bittner. "We were all excited to be there. I was a good athlete in my hometown, probably the best athlete, but all the girls were great athletes. I didn't think I'd make it (on a team)."

But at the end of the tryouts, the 20-year-old from Lebanon, PA, was recruited as a rookie pitcher by the South Bend Blue Sox. Bittner was with the league until it was disbanded in 1954

Although the league recruited across the country, its home base was limited geographically to a small part of the Midwest, including teams from western Michigan, parts of Indiana, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

But fans weren't limited to the team towns. The teams traveled by bus, and when they were returning from winter training in Florida, two teams traveled together and played exhibition games all the way home in various towns.

Each season was a hard schedule for Bittner and the others in the league. Each team played 120 games, competing every day, sometimes doubleheaders in one town, then on the road to another town the next day.

"Sometimes we'd travel at night on the bus, get to the hotel in the town — we always stayed at nice hotels — and the rooms wouldn't be ready," said Bittner. "We'd get very tired and then head out to play a game, sometimes a doubleheader."

The girls baseball team played by the same rules as men's professional baseball, except the fields were 20 per cent shorter, and their trading rules were different.

The league had 75 feet between the bases and 55'6" from home plate to the pitchers mound. Although the league started out as softball, using a 12-inch ball, the balls evolved down to a 10-inch hardball, weighing five ounces, only 15/16-inch larger than men's hard ball.

Pitching started as underhand. But the year Bittner joined the league, pitching had evolved to sidearm. The next year, it was overhand.

The teams changed every year. Each team had 17 players, and at the end of the season each team could keep only 10 players. The other seven went into a pool, and each team took turns picking players from the pool, with the team with the poorest record picking first.

This was to keep the teams even and prevent one team from dominating the league, according to Bittner. As a result, she had the opportunity to meet nearly everyone in the league.

Players were also traded. The rules of the game were the same as men's hardball. But there were many rules the girls had to follow that had nothing to do with the game.

"When the league started, the girls had to go to charm school and learn to walk with a book on their head, how to sit, and how to sip coffee and tea," said Bittner. "Most of the girls thought it was silly, but they did it because they had to. It was part of the image to make us acceptable to the public. When I got there, they didn't (have to do that.)"

In addition to charm school, the players all had curfews and had to be in within two hours after a game ended. Each team had a chaperone, who always accompanied the team and handled all personal problems that arose.

The athletes could never be seen in public in shorts or jeans. They always had to wear a skirt or a dress. Although Bittner says they traveled in shorts, they couldn't get off the bus until they had changed into a skirt and blouse.

When her professional baseball career ended, Bittner, who feels she came of age in professional baseball, opted not to return to Pennsylvania. Instead she chose to stay in the Midwest because she thought there were more opportunities here and all the friends she made in baseball were in the Midwest.

She has lived in the metro Detroit area since her professional baseball career ended, the last eight years in Canton. She has coached, managed and played on many softball teams since leaving baseball, but it is a recreational activity for her now.

Bittner worked at many odd jobs until 1965, when she became a school bus driver in Farmington, where she worked until she retired last year.

Bittner admits she doesn't talk much about her career as a professional baseball player mostly because people never believed it was baseball.

"People would say 'You mean softball, not baseball,' especially the men," said Bittner. "You can't argue with them, so you let it go. It's too difficult to explain. My family knew I played baseball and that's what really mattered."

But with the recent release of the movie "A League of Their Own" starring Geena Davis and Madonna, Bittner says that has changed.

"Penny Marshall did a marvelous job of depicting the league, it gives an idea of how it was," said Bittner. "And I love the song Madonna wrote for the movie."

When asked to pick a key moment out of her seven years as a professional baseball player, Bittner couldn't pick one.

"They were all key moments," she said. Although, in 1952, when she was playing with the Fort Wayne Daisies, the team won the pennant.

In her seven years as a professional baseball pitcher, Bittner had one one-hitter game to her credit, and a 1949 annual that shows her stats as a Muskegon Lassie pitcher. She was 9-9, and had an-ERA of 2.55.

She boasts of the year she and catcher Pepper Paire were both traded from the Grand Rapids Chicks to the Fort Wayne Daisies, they beat the Chicks when they came town. "We were both out to get them," said Bittner. "That stands out in my mind."

In 1982, the league had its first reunion in Indiana, and the ladies have been returning every year to have a golf tournament and a 3-inning game.

The reunions and the release of the movie have been nostalgic for Bittner. Seeing the movie at an early screening in Ft. Wayne last month has brought a lot of memories back to Bittner. The movie focuses on the Racine Belles and the Rockford Peaches, two teams Bittner never played for, but the memories still came pouring back.

Bittner suggests staying past the credits of the movie because added on is a recent game between many of the professional athletes the movie is about, and those who leave the theatre before the credits won't see it.

Athletics have been a part of Bittner's entire life.

In 1980, nearly 40 years after she left Pennsylvania, Bittner became the first woman inducted into the Pennsylvania Sports Hall of Fame, for her contributions in basketball, baseball and track and field.

Bittner, a pioneer in women's professional athletics, has always encouraged girls to go into athletics. She has seen a lot of changes for women athletes. Perhaps the most significant change to her is that they are no longer looked at as tomboys, but as talented athletes.

YMCA results for runners of all ages

More than 500 runners took to the streets of Plymouth June 21 for the 13th Annual Plymouth Family YMCA 5k and 10k runs.

The winners of various age groups were as follows:

Robby Abbott, of Northville, won the 10k boys 12-14 age group, while Brian Galvin, of Plymouth, was second.

Chad Tibbetts won the boys 15-18 age group in the 10k race, while Matt Holappa won the 19-24 age group.

Laura Brown captured the 19-24 women's 10k race, while Laurel Park won the 25-29 age group.

Chris Zimmer took first in the mens 25-29 10k race and Lester Wyborny won the mens 30-39 age class. Marybeth Dillon, of South Lyon, finished first in the women's 30-39 age class race.

Dennis Tibbetts took first in the mens 40-49 age class during the 10k event,

Hoopsters shoot it out in Canton

Future NBA stars can take it to the hoop in July at the Canton Parks and Recreation Services' annual Hotshot Basketball Contest.

Participants will test their skills from various spots on the court. Awards will be given to winners of each age group.

Boys and girls, ages 9-18 are welcome to participate at one of three sites - Thursday, July 9 at Hoben Elementary School; Monday, July 13 at Eriksson Elementary School; and Wednesday, July 15 at Hulsing Elementary School.

The event begins at noon, with registration beginning at 11:45 a.m. There is no charge.

Annual golf classic assists seniors

Golfers of all ages, men and women, can help raise money for senior programs by taking to the links during the third annual Senior Alliance Golf Classic, July 29 at Fellows Creek Golf Course in Canton.

The event includes an 18-hole, scramble-style tourney and a luncheon banquet.

There will be food and refreshments for everyone on the course.

The Senior Alliance is a non-profit agency serving seniors in southern and western Wayne County.

Interested golfers who would like to play, sponsor a hole or donate a door prize should call the Senior Alliance at 722-2830.

to a tie against the only other U.S. team out of New England.

Chuhran, who started as goalie for the Ambassadors, was a catalyst in her team's performance. The Salem High student turned in two shutouts and had just four goals scored against her.

Though Chuhran said that winning the championship title was the highlight of the trip, the Salem junior (this fall) also found the adventure of playing in another country a definite thrill.

"I thought it was exciting, fun and real neat because you're in a different country," said the youth, who has been playing hockey in organized girls' leagues for eight years.

Chuhran, who was accompanied on the trip by her mother and brother Scott, had to make a few adjustments to the lifestyle in Russia.

"It was a lot different," Chuhran said. "They didn't have a lot of things that we do back here."

"We couldn't drink the water out of the faucet. We had to buy bottled water. There was also, like, not a lot of food either."

Between games Chuhran was able to enjoy several sightseeing expeditions.

"St. Petersburg was a pretty city," she said. "There were a lot of old buildings and monuments. And on the last night we got to go on a cruise."

Chuhran, once a star for the Michigan Capitals, 12-15 age team from Brownstown is now getting geared up to compete in the 16-18 bracket. That season starts in August and runs through next April.

women's 19-24 age.

In the 25-29 mens race Scott Marrett came in first, while Kim Moran won it for the women.

David Crescio captured first in the mens 30-39 class and Marian Shears won the women's division.

Ralph Judd, of Redford, took first in the mens 50-59, Jim Forsheec, of Ann Arbor, was first in the mens 60-69 and Ed Andrysiak, of Plymouth, was first in the mens 70-79.

Crescio was the overall first place finisher in the men's 5k race, while Fadewa finished.

Holappa was the overall winner of the 10k race, while Wyborny finished second overall.

There were 245 runners in the 10k race, including 187 men. A total of 305 racers competed in the 5k race, including 98 women.

Brent—Next golf outing is Sunday July 19. Can we count on you?

Todd—Thanks for delivering papers to my clients while I was gone.

MIKE—HAPPY BIRTHDAY—to the person who made his arrival, my HAPPIEST DAY!

P. & L.—The boat's in! We miss you! L&D

L.R. What a perfect "Honeymoon." Better late than never! Love you! Debbie.

Chris got one year older last Wednesday. She must be 25 because I understand that last year the banner read 24!! HA, HA, HA!

HERE COMES
ART in the PARK
this weekend
DOWNTOWN
PLYMOUTH
(What a kick!)

Sometimes Jack bugs me the right way.

AUNT KATIE—Congratulations on your niece. How exciting!

Bob and Lee must not have bonded well. Lee is moving out of town.

Jack was a good boy while I was out of town. Now that I'm back, he'll probably go back to his old tricks.

"MARRY-ING MARY"— So glad to hear you are better.

BILL BRESLER: just point and shoot? Great photos—Thanks

VOTE on Aug. 4!

Diene— great job on Art in the Park booklet!

Fran Toney probably has her closet cleaned by now.

I knew I should have stayed out West!

Brent—Come be my partner for darts. I miss you!

JOHNNIE CROSSBY—thank you for the Ben Hanna treat. You are the GREATEST!

LISA FILAR has a new car?!? (And Steve gets his back.)

Curiosities

It was a quiet weekend at the Penn.

DIANE and HAROLD: we're ready.

Liz—We miss you already!

Is Mike Schneider the King of Penniman trash?

Lisa and Karen challenge J.J. and Jack to a game of darts—Friday 10:30PM.

SOPHIA: Greece!—have a great trip!—Sally, Jessica, and Ed.

NEW FLOWER BOXES on Penniman Ave., too.

HAVE A GREAT TRIP Marilyn and Shannon.

Elaine—So do you like keyfiling better than the dark room?

Does Ethan at Penniman Dell know how to dial the telephone?

Jack—after Friday night, it's evident we can't be partners anymore!

Kevin—needs lots of elbow room!

I wonder if Ethan at Penniman Dell packs lunches for two.

Love ya, Phyllis.

Could Maggie, I mean Molly, find her way to Brougham Apts.?

Claude & Kevin Choo-choo to Fort Wayne.

Judy wishes she'd gone (just to shop).

Does Katy eat lunch with Ethan? If he invites her she does!

WAN and JOE DeLAURO
hum a few notes.

Is it Maggie on Ross or Molly on 2nd Terrace?

Excuse not to advertise No. 109:

“I don't need to advertise.
I have enough business.”

This ad is dedicated to a produce store on Main Street who less than a month after using Excuse No. 109, moved out — in the middle of the night.

The Crier's advertising consultants, the largest-numbered, longest-serving ad specialists serving The Plymouth-Canton Community have heard it all. We thought we'd share a few of our favorite reasons we've heard why some business people don't advertise.

- #1 Advertising never works.
- #4 I'm going through a divorce and my wife is suing me.
- #5 I'm going through a divorce and my husband is suing me.
- #8 I spent all my money on stocking the shop.
- #12 I've never had to advertise.
- #17 The newspaper makes too much money.
- #25 I don't have anything to advertise.
- #31 I have to paint the outside of my store.
- #38 My accountant says I can't spend any money.
- #39 My lawyer says I can't spend any money.
- #40 My husband says I can't spend any money.
- #41 My wife says I can't spend any money.
- #42 My partner says I can't spend any money.
- #47 We're not trying to make any more money right now.
- #48 We have enough business.
- #54 I only need the yellow pages.
- #59 My customers don't read.
- #68 My competitors advertise.
- #69 My competitors will know my prices.
- #76 I'm saving all my money for a buying trip to Toronto.
- #82 My brother-in-law is taking a marketing course in night school and he says advertising doesn't work.
- #84 My cousin's next-door-neighbor's kids are putting flyers on windshields downtown — I think.
- #88 I advertise on our matchbook covers.
- #89 I mail to our customer list.
- #93 I don't get any advertising allotment from the home office/parent company.
- #98 I don't have any co-op dollars.
- #101 My ad budget's set until 1993.
