Canton announces new senior-handicapped transit plan

System will replace Nankin Transit beginning Aug. 1

BY ROB KIRKBRIDE

Senior citizens and handicapped residents living in Canton should have a new transportation system in place starting Aug. 1.

The new system, which will replace the Nankin Transit Authority and serve the entire Canton community, will be run by Child and Family Services of Wayne County and according to Canton Resource Development Manager Mike Ager, will save Canton $55,000.

Nankin Transit Authority service is being cut because of Canton's "opt out" vote prior to the recent SMART bussing issue. Canton will receive municipal credits directly from the state and federal government to supplement the program. Although Canton will still have to partially subsidize the new program, Ager said, "I think we can run this program a lot cheaper."

He said the transit program is expected to cost Canton approximately $75,000 as compared to $130,000 under the old system.

"The new program shadows (the services of) the Nankin program for service, cost and destinations," he said. "Under the new program, we're even looking at improvement."

Ager said Child and Family Services will provide door-to-door service, where the driver will be able to help riders from their homes to the vehicle. The new system will also allow for advanced booking of rides and in the future, will have extended week night and weekend hours.

"One of the big differences," Ager said, "is that the busses will be equipped with a lift for handicap accessibility, but seniors who do not require a lift will be

Pedestrian island will stay

Beitner not granted injunction

The Ann Arbor Trail pedestrian island element of the Plymouth Streetscape project will be built, despite objections from downtown businessman Bill Beitner.

Judge John Murphy did not grant Beitner an injunction against the project during a court hearing on Monday.

According to Beitner's attorney, Gary Anderson, Murphy heard presentations from both sides regarding the safety of the project, but did not pass judgment.

"He said he had no jurisdiction," said Anderson. "He said it was an internal governmental matter."

"I understand the judges ruling, it was well reasoned — not a knee-jerk reaction — but I'm still disappointed."

Beitner said he still feels he has won a portion of the battle, even though the city and Downtown Development Authority can go ahead with construction.

Canton Playscape volunteers praised

Children in Canton have flocked to the new Heritage Hideout playscape, which was finished the end of June. (Crier photo by Jack Armstrong)

BY ROB KIRKBRIDE

The Canton Board of Trustees recognized the efforts of Christine Donaldson and the members of the Canton Playscape Core Committee last week for their work on the Heritage Hideout playscape, which was finished the end of June.

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack said the project turned out very well — especially considering the tight construction schedule needed to complete the project.

"It is just so awesome in its scope," he said. "This is one event I can think of where a lot of individuals who didn't know each other came together with a purpose...to get something together for the community."

Donaldson said the work of the hundreds of volunteers was the key to the project's success.

"There were so many people who picked up the ball and just ran with it," she said.

"The best part was that I made a lot of good friends, and that's what really matters."

Yack said efforts are underway to have a party for the volunteers — and possibly organize a "reunion" for next year to make improvements to the project.

"It is just so professionally done," Yack said. "It's first class — first rate."

picked up by taxi, making their ride a little more comfortable."

Ager said the decision to go with Child and Family Services was arrived at by the special Transportation Advisory Committee, which is made up of transportation experts and user groups.

"There was a lot of sensitivity in that group," he said.

"That's what will make this plan a success."

Child and Family Services offers a local and 800 number to book rides.

Plymouth-Canton School's swimming 'test out' rules may be changed

BY BRIAN CORBETT

As it stands now, the future of the test out option for the required swimming course at The Plymouth Canton Educational Park (PCEP) is treading water.

After years of complaints from students about walking around the PCEP with wet hair for a semester, a three-day test out option was instituted for the 1994-95 school year. This way students who were already adequately skilled in swimming could still receive credit for the course while enrolling in a scholastic subject. "Kids wanted to test out so they should take something different," said Plymouth-Canton Schools Superintendent Charles Little.

But a severe problem has developed. "The test is too difficult," said Little.

The swim course, which must be successfully completed by every student by the end of the tenth grade, is described in the Plymouth-Canton Community School District curriculum booklet as covering the basic areas of swimming: five strokes, diving, pool conduct and survival floating. The test out class — taught by Chuck Olson and Carol Faust — had to be consolidated in order to appraise a semester worth of skills in three days. "I understand why the teachers designed it that way because you have to substitute a semester for three days," Little said.

In the spring, 13 of the 150 students who signed up for swimming, chose the test option — seven failed. "Everyone of those students should've passed," a parent said, stating her daughter had been swimming since she was five, but still failed. "That was

Weekend storms cut power, down trees

BY ROB KIRKBRIDE and W. EDWARD WENDOVER

When it rains, it pours.

When it gets real windy, the power goes out.

Storms hit The Plymouth-Canton-Northville Community this weekend, causing power outages and keeping municipal workers on their toes.

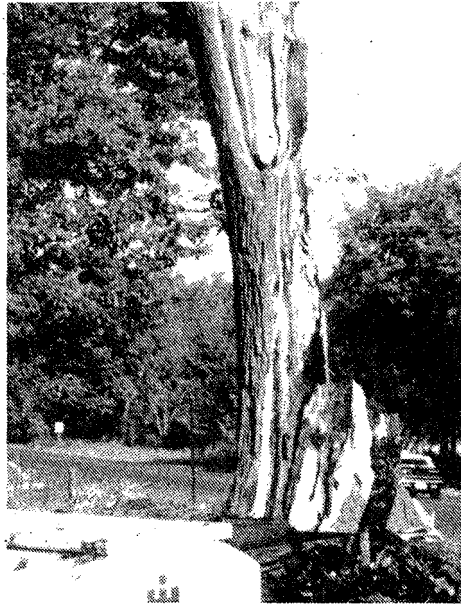

According to Plymouth Community Fire Chief Larry Groth, the department responded to 55 storm related calls (31 in the city, 24 in the township).

Plymouth was not alone. Canton Township Engineer Thomas Casari said that although everything held together well, many ditches and some roads were flooded.

"There was a lot of rain water in the ditches," he said, "but there was no flooding over the roads. Some of the subdivision streets filled quickly, but so far, so good."

One noted Canton tree — said to be 180 years old — was lost to the storm at Bordine Farms at Ridge and Ford roads.

One artist in the 15th annual Art-in-the-Park lost her booth in the high winds and saw her paintings smashed on Forest Avenue. Fest volunteers helped her clean up and other booths move out of the flooded streetscape.

Restaurants in Canton and Plymouth sold meals and warm beer by candle light.

The neighbors on Southworth and Gold Arbor held a cookout Sunday to use up the meat defrosting in their powerless refrigerators in Plymouth Township.

Plymouth City Hall was dimly lit until Saturday as the power there was browned out. The non-vented, non-air-conditioned jail cells there were said to be less-than-usually-hospitable.

Hundreds of volunteers, many who traveled from four states, to build the Jehova's Witness Kingdom Hall in Plymouth Township at Beck and Ann Arbor Trail had to scamper off the new roof quickly as lightning hit.

They kept working during the power outages.

With no air conditioning, some residents spent the nights on decks or in their air conditioned businesses where power was still on.

The Crier newspaper staff, without power for much of Friday, scrambled to make up missed deadlines. They, and their colleagues at the publishing company, COMMA, were caught up by Monday morning.

Fall Fest Board plucks Civitan's feathers

BY PETER BRODERICK

Plymouth's annual Fall Festival boils down to one weekend of fun for the community, but little known to most people is the fact that preparations and planning for the fest are going all year round.

Each year, the Fall Fest Board handles the organization of the festival, from legalities to settling disputes — and some years, the disputes become rather intense.

The 40th annual Fall Festival Board voted last week not to allow the Plymouth Civitans to prepare and sell chicken breast sandwiches on Sunday, the traditional day for the Plymouth Rotary's chicken dinner. Incidentally, the Rotary's chicken dinner was the driving force that started the Fall Festival almost 40 years ago.

According to the by-laws of the festival, "duplication" of a product is strictly forbidden — meaning two organizations may not sell the same food item at the same time.

The main question, according to board President Dolly Marzka, was whether or not a chicken sandwich is a "duplication" of a chicken dinner.

The board showed overwhelming support of the Rotary, and voted 9-3 to disallow the Sunday sandwich sale by the Civitans.

The Civitans, who will also sell steak sandwiches at the festival, will be allowed to serve chicken sandwiches on both Friday and Saturday, but the final day of the fest is off-limits.

Beitner loses court battle over pedestrian island

"Bill now has the ability to express his concerns," said Anderson. "This litigation has probably resulted in a significant redesign of the island."

Beitner said he is not bitter over the decision.

"I wish them well, whatever happens," he said. "It was an honest difference of opinion."

Plymouth City Attorney Don Morgan said the judgement was in favor of the city.

"The judge indicated that he felt that a long period of time had been spent in the development of plans and holding meetings," he said. "He would not aside the city officials when the lawsuit was filed so long after all the meetings were held."

Beitner said he would not appeal the judge's decision.

Twp. will make decision on Temple Baptist Tuesday

Plymouth Township Board of Trustees is expected to approve new site plan for church following nearly a year of haggling, legal battling

BY BRIAN CORBETT

After nearly a year of legal haggling and verbal exchanges, the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees will make a decision this Tuesday concerning Temple Baptist's proposal to build a worship center at North Territorial and Ridge roads. "We've told the church we will make a decision," said Plymouth Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen-McCarthy.

The decision will be the final chapter in a saga involving township residents, the Board of Trustees, the Planning Commission, Temple Baptist and Word of Faith churches. "I think this is a difficult situation for everyone in the community," said McCarthy, "and I'm sorry the community finds itself in this position."

Last fall, Temple Baptist submitted a plan for a 244,300 square foot facility surrounded by parking lots and athletic fields. Residents in the immediate area objected, and so did the Planning Commission who denied Temple Baptist's request. In retaliation, Temple Baptist filed suit against the township under a 1993 federal law — the Religious Freedom Restoration Act — claiming the township infringed on their religious rights. Temple Baptist also brought $5.2 million in damages against the township, which would be awarded if Word of Faith church withdrew its offer to purchase Temple Baptist's current home because of the lengthy lawsuit. Said Township general attorney

Timothy Cronin: "If the church is successful in their liability case, and they lose their purchaser; they will allege damages for $5.2 million."

In an effort to compromise, Temple Baptist and the township have entered a consent agreement. Temple Baptist scaled back its proposal by reducing the square footage by 64,300. Also included in the consent agreement are restriction on capacity and the number of special events held, no lights for the athletic fields, less pavement, more grass and a traffic light installed by the church. The Board of Trustees is still accepting residents suggestions for restrictions they may want added to the consent agreement. Although the Board of Trustees has taken into consideration several suggestions from the community, none have actually been added to the original consent agreement. "We haven't, at this point, made any changes, with vacations what-have-you," said Keen-McCarthy. "Our idea is to talk to the church."

The plans for the church are currently on display at the Plymouth Township Division of Public Services.

Keen-McCarthy said the Board of Trustees is taking some special steps to handle the problem efficiently. "We're going to end up having a closed session before the meeting to discuss it as a board," said Keen-McCarthy, "and I'm going to have it first on the agenda."

an extensive test."

"This test may be more than we usually require," Little said.

For the three day test, students had to perform flip turns, swim without stopping for 20 minutes and complete 50 yard swims for each stroke. "This may not be equal to what the course is," Little said.

The backlash from the community has been taken into consideration by the school board. "This is such a poorly managed program, it shouldn't have got to where it is," said Trustee Barbara Graham.

"I think we've got to go back and take a look at it," said Little, who will present a recommendation for the program in early October.

Little would not guarantee the test out would return, but implied it was likely to be offered again. Meanwhile, the students who failed and were petitioning to receive credit have two choices according to Little: take the required class or not take the class and try to test out again.

Tonquish Tales II

Local author/historian's sequel voted tops by librarians

BY BRIAN CORBETT

It began as a historical column in a local newspaper for Plymouth resident Helen Gilbert. Now she is the proud author of The Tonquish Tales, Volume One and Two — the latter was recently included on the Michigan Notable Book List compiled by Michigan librarians. "The book was well received by the librarians in their voting," Gilbert said.

"It was rated notable for being unique and informative," Gilbert said. "That's the thing that got me: 'notable.' I've been floating on air, but it hasn't done a thing for my golf game."

The 180-page book explores the history of Native American tribes in and around the Plymouth-Canton-Northville area. "It's the story of Plymouth's old Chief Tonquish," Gilbert said.

Some of the topics in the book include the discovery of ancient bones at the entrance of Plymouth Township Park and "Ann Arbor Trail Indians Part of America's Past."

The book has sold over 8,200 copies. "It's given me the push I needed to finish book three," Gilbert said, referring to a book she is writing about her grandparents' journey to Michigan along the Erie canal.

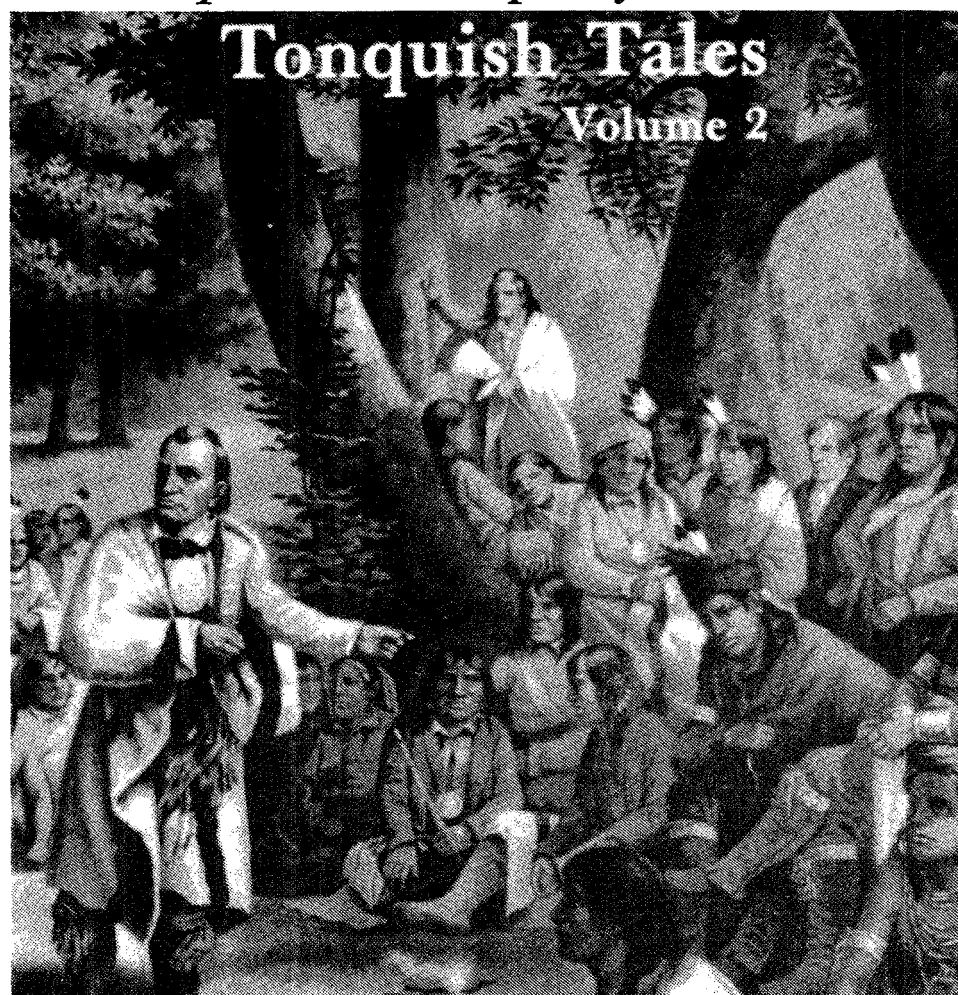

Being a hard working author is something Gilbert did not have in mind when she began writing a column on Plymouth history for the Observer Newspapers. "The truth is I had no intention of writing a book," Gilbert said. "I was writing a column on the prehistory of Plymouth for the Observer, and I had so many questions from people. It inspired me."

The public's interest was overwhelming. "It was evident that there was a wide interest in the subject," she said. "Therefore, I decided to delve into it."

So the research started. She traveled to Lansing, to Chicago, to Ann Arbor, to Washington D.C. and to many Native American centers. She studied artifacts, photos and documents in a lengthy process.

Education still top priority

Nancy and Roswell Tanger, seated, have been committed to local schools for well over half a century. After serving the Plymouth-Canton Schools for more than 30 years, Mrs. Tanger played an instrumental role in obtaining national accreditation for Madonna College's teacher education program. Joining the Tangers on a recent visit to Madonna's campus were (standing, from left) Betty and Bob Barbour, and Sisters Lauriana and Danatha from the college.

But the intense search suited Gilbert's lifestyle. "I love it. I'm a traveler and a researcher," she said. "I love to research. I love to go to the library and find out about stuff people generally don't know about."

Gilbert uncovered some interesting facts. For instance, the Plymouth trail led Native Americans to Saline and on to Grand Rapids. At Saline, Huron and Algonquin tribes would cease fighting temporarily to share the salt springs needed for their diets and then smoke from the peace pipe. "We don't realize there was a tremendous primitive civilization here long before the white man came," Gilbert said.

Both Tonquish Tales are available at the Plymouth Historical Museum and the Little Professor on the Park, 380 S. Main St.

Gilbert plans on following up her Native American studies with a forthcoming book studying and exposing Native American sites in the area. Gilbert said she will include the discovery of pottery in Cass Benton Park and the story of an ancient well on the southeast corner of Six Mile and Sheldon roads that served as a meeting place for Chief Tonquish and other Native Americans.

Artley begins 12th year of service to schools

BY BRIAN CORBETT

If there is anyone who can give an expert opinion of the Plymouth-Canton Community School District, it is David Artley.

He was recently elected to his fifth consecutive term as School Board President, adding to a 12 year career, serving in every post and never missing a regular meeting. "I'm pretty proud of that record," he said. "I'm excited to be President of the School Board."

As president of the board, he acts a communicator and facilitator between board members. He represents the board at particular functions and delegates the same responsibility to other board members when he is too busy. Also included in his responsibilities is handling citizens' complaints. "I think it's real important people get answers," Artley said. "You might not like it, but it's an answer."

It was 1982 when Artley first decided to run for a school board position. "I think I had a vested interest with children in the schools," he said.

He finished sixth, but won in his second campaign a year later. "I feel like I'm making a difference in my community," Artley said, "and I think that's a special opportunity."

Since then he has seen some areas of education flourish, and other areas flounder. He has watched board members come and go. And he has participated in the search for a new superintendent. Here are some topics that have impressed Artley during his years of service:

- The financing of the school district has been a double-edged sword: it has improved during Artley's tenure, but not as much as in other districts. "Financing had to change, but the changes that took place effected the way schools are funded dramatically. And it benefited a lot of schools, but it did not benefit the Plymouth-Canton Schools," said Artley, referring to Proposal A which changed school districts' funding in regards to property taxes.

- In the information age, it is a struggle for educators to keep pace with the blazing developments in technology. "The body of knowledge doubles in the whole world, all of mankind, every 900 days. The reason that's important is because the curriculum a kid needed 12 years ago is not the curriculum a kid needs today," Artley said, who stressed research skills and special educational classes are extremely important to Plymouth-

Music fest dates change

BY ROB KIRKBRIDE

The dates of the Plymouth Music Celebration, which was scheduled for Aug. 4, 5 and 6, have been changed to Sept. 29 to Oct. 1 — pending approval by the Plymouth City Commission.

Festival organizer Mike Watts said the new dates will help streetscape crews catch up with work.

"This way," he said, "it will showcase the new downtown Plymouth."

The music fest will be held in conjunction with the Artrageous art festival.

The hours of the event will be extended to 11 p.m. on Friday and Saturday — but not without protest from downtown resident Jack Wilcox.

Wilcox, whose house is located where Ann Arbor Trail, Union Street and Penniman Avenue converge, said the noise from the music festival should not last past 10 p.m.

"In your (city commission) wisdom," he said at a recent Plymouth City Commission meeting, "you kept the hours at 10 p.m. last year."

"I suggest it be moved to the back of the Plymouth Cultural Center or Plymouth Township because of streetscape construction."

Commissioner Dennis Shrewsbury said Wilcox should reconsider his opposition of the festival.

"Every year we hear complaints from Mr. Wilcox," he said. "We have never heard one complaint from another resident in Plymouth."

"With all due respect to Mr. Wilcox...it seems to me when there are thousands who come to the festival to enjoy themselves there could be one or two nights a year citizens could go to the festival without being harangued."

Plymouth Police Chief Bob Scoggins

said more complaints have come from people who attend the festival and are asked to leave at 10 p.m. than people complaining about the noise.

Watts said the festival is put on to try and add something to the community, not to disturb downtown residents, using his idea to place the stage on top of the fountain in Kellogg Park and face it away from the Wilcox House as an example of his determination to accommodate everyone.

PCAC Ash case goes to prosecutor Aug. 1

BY ROB KIRKBRIDE

Will the Plymouth Community Arts Council's former treasurer Gerald Ash, who allegedly embezzled as much as $40,000 from the group, be prosecuted or be placed into the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office "diversion program?"

Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Clay Davis, who heads the diversion program said that Ash's legal fate is expected to be decided around Aug. 1 — when Ash and his attorney are expected to meet with prosecution.

Davis met with PCAC Director Randy Lee and PCAC attorney Eric Colthurst Friday to discuss the case, but according to Colthurst, nothing concrete was decided.

"The position of the arts council is that we are not the prosecutors," Colthurst said. "We are just trying to make sure the arts council comes out whole."

Canton's current curriculum.

- Staffing needs to be constantly monitored to keep up with the demand of the school population.

- Community involvement can prevent school problems and assist in the hiring process. "Each year we've got to get people involved a little more," Artley said. "You can't sit around and say, 'Gee, I don't like this textbook.' You got to get involved, you got to spend some time. To the community's credit, they've got involved."

- Artley approved of Superintendent Charles Little's call for better communication and instruction for the 1995-96 academic year, and said the current school board has "devoted what was necessary to get the job done."

Artley's board term ends in June of 1997, he was unwilling to speculate on what decision he may make at that time. Currently, his full time job takes him to Kalamazoo several days a week. But he is not tiring. He has been a Canton resident since 1978, watching the township grow with the school district. He is about to graduate the last of his children from the school district. "I wouldn't send my kids, nor my grandkids, anywhere else," Artley said.

Canton Chamber holds annual golf outing at Fellows Creek

BY BRIAN CORBETT

The Canton Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual men and women golf outing on Aug. 8 at Fellows Creek Golf Course. The event will benefit Special Olympics and help cover the chamber.

"It's an ideal opportunity to go out and network," said chamber executive director Linda Shapona. "It's a great chance to advertise your business. You name it, and you can do it at the golf outing."

The golf outing has two major sponsors — Blackwell Ford and First of America Bank — and includes 18 holes of golf, cart, continental breakfast, lunch and refreshments on the course and an early buffet dinner. "And there's all kinds of contest you can win," Shapona said.

"One of the things we were doing for the first time this year is USAir is donating free travel to anywhere in the U.S. for anyone who gets a hole-in-one."

Also, Sunshine Honda is donating a car, adding to the numerous prizes and surprises that will be awarded throughout the day to each team member.

Shapona hopes to have 130 participants. Foursome reservations are still being taken. "It's a team format," said Shapona.

A portion of the proceeds will be donated to Special Olympics. "One of our members is very involved," Shapona said. "This is our second year we our donating to Special Olympics; sometimes I think it's a charity that's often forgotten."

The other money will be used by the chamber. "It's for chamber operating expenses," Shapona said. "It's one of our major fundraisers."

Fellows Creek, though a beautiful and challenging golf course, was not chosen for those specific reasons. "They're the only golf course chamber member," Shapona said. "We always support our chamber members."

There are many sponsorships available, and businesses and individuals are invited to enjoy the event. Call the chamber at 453-4040 for more information.

DARE Breakfast

Annual fundraiser has folks 'flipping'

BY PETER BRODERICK

Once again, The Plymouth Canton Community will be "flipping" for DARE at a fund-raising pancake breakfast sponsored by Community Federal Credit Union (CFCU).

The DARE, or Drug Abuse Resistance Education, program is offered to all fifth graders in the school district. It is a 17 week program that aims to educate children about the dangers of drug abuse and teach them how to resist peer pressure. Police officers make guest appearances at classrooms to get the message across, using a DARE curriculum aimed at fifth grade students.

This year, "Flip for DARE" is scheduled for August 5 from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the CFCU parking lot. The event traditionally runs in conjunction with Downtown Plymouth's sidewalk sales. In the past, the fundraiser has raised a total of over $16,000 for the Plymouth-Canton schools DARE program according to Sue O'Connor, director of marketing and coordinator of the DARE breakfast for CFCU.

"Last year, the event attracted 1,100 people for breakfast to benefit DARE," said O'Connor. Each breakfast includes all-you-can-eat portions of pancakes, sausage, juice and coffee. In addition, local police, fire and rescue vehicles, and even the Northville/Plymouth Fire Safety House will all be on hand for displays and demonstrations.

Aside from donations of time, CFCU is also looking for tax deductible cash donations or contributions of supplies for the event.

Local businesses are also asked to display Flip for DARE posters in their windows for customers to see.

Advance tickets for the event are $4 each for adults, and $3 for children. At the door, tickets will be $4.50 and $3.50. Tickets can be purchased at any CFCU branch office, or through the many DARE officers at police departments in the community.

To find out more about donating to the Flip for DARE pancake breakfast, call O'Connor at 451-3403.

Art in the Park survives heatwave

Annual celebration again draws thousands to downtown Plymouth

BY BRIAN CORBETT

This was not an average year for Art in the Park. "It was great, even though it was nuts," said festival founder Diane Quinn.

The art festival — celebrated last weekend in downtown Plymouth — endured dangerous heat, construction associated with Streetscape, power outages and violent storms. "Art in the Park had a lot of possible disasters this year," said Quinn. "But after all is said and done, a very pretty picture can painted."

Artists and onlookers were greeted Saturday morning with a power outage that forced the closing of many local businesses. "Mayflower Hotel guests were being led to their rooms by flash lights," Quinn said.

The show was forced to close early on Saturday, after hours of unbearable humidity and heat, as another wave of storms moved through the area. One artist's booth was completely destroyed by high winds, and other booths had to be moved overnight because of flooding. Sunday threatened rain again, but it did not arrive until after the festival had closed and nearly all the artists had left. "We had it all, but the crowds still came," Quinn said.

No one was injured during the weekends festivities, despite the temperamental weather.

Quinn credited tremendous community support for Art in the Park's perseverance through so many variables. "Because we had such an unusually hard job on our hands this year, so many made it their task to help out where ever they could," Quinn said. "I wanted to, in some way, express my gratitude to those of you who really did make a difference from near disaster to a truly great accomplishment and success. I thank you."

WANTED
random acts of Kindness

$100⁰⁰
REWARD

If you witness an act of kindness, if an organization you are associated with plans a good deed, and if someone is especially kind to you, please write a letter to The Kindness Editor describing the act of kindness. We will gather the reports and publish some of them on a special page on July 26.

The Community Crier staff will choose an outstanding act of kindness and present a $100.00 reward to the kind person. So if you know somebody who deserves a reward, let us know. Who knows, maybe together we can help start new habits. We need to receive your nominations by July 21.

TIMES CHANGE- PEOPLE CHANGE,- but surely values remain the same. Some of us seem to have forgotten why the Fall Festival came into being. It was given to the people and organizations of Plymouth as a common ground where they could become acquainted and work together with a better Plymouth as their goal. Some of us seem to have forgotten or perhaps never knew or, never had a clear evaluation of the good in the Fall Festival. Maybe we need to be reminded.

Pheasant Run officials: 'We're open for business'

BY MATT HUCAL

Golfers, look no further for that tough course you live for.

Pheasant Run Golf Club, Canton's new 18 hole championship golf course located on Summit Parkway off of Canton Center Road, is open and ready for business.

The course, designed by world renowned golf architect Arthur Hill, opened July 1 to the public and packs quite a punch for the golfer in everyone with not only the tremendous holes, but with the whole complex itself. It is a 215 acre course with neighborhoods surrounding the front nine holes, and a natural woodland and wetland setting surrounding the back nine holes.

The whole experience is top of the line. What the complex tries to display to the golfer, according to operations manager Kevin Hill, is an upscale atmosphere on not only the course, but also with everything associated with it.

"We tried to make sure we offered more upscale options than are offered at most other courses," Hill said, "and try to give a good feeling for enjoyable golf by providing the little extras."

Those options include a state of the art driving range. It has a large tee box, target greens, and rolling hills to give a better sense of how you would hit on the course. The caddies also try to be helpful by washing your clubs for you, and on every cart there is a ball and club washer. Carts are mandatory, but the six miles of paths make for easy access to almost every shot.

The design of the course suits just about every type of golfer. Playing to 7,000 yards with four par-fives, 10 par-fours, and four par-threes, it's balanced between long and short holes. An added quality of the holes is

PCHA Problems

Hockey association seeks to ease registration woes

BY MATT HUCAL

The times are changing for junior hockey registration.

After the confusion and partial chaos that has evolved over the last few years with youngsters trying to get registered for the upcoming seasons in the Plymouth Canton Hockey Association (PCHA), the league has decided to change to a lottery system instead of the past way.

What the past registrations have shown is that having to wait in line, with lines of over 150 people, to register wasn't always the fairest way. With five different age groups — Mites, Squirts, Pee-wees, Bantam, and Midgets — there were also five different lines that made league president Gordon Bowman realize that there was some unfairness and that it was time for a change.

"We had situations where one parent would come from a family with two children in different age groups and with the lines being so long would only be able to sign one of them up," Bowman said.

Another example of the desperateness to register was last year when a parent actually paid someone to camp out for a couple days just to get a prime spot at the front of the line in front of the Plymouth Cultural Center. All of this has occurred for only the past few years as the interest in hockey has led to an increase in league hopefuls.

Bowman has been trying to enlarge the league but it always comes down to one main problem, "Not enough ice."

"We're very limited in ice time and facilities so we've had just enough ice to sustain, not expand," Bowman explained.

They play at six different arenas with certain times allotted for different leagues and age groups. Those arenas include the Cultural Center, Inkster Ice, Icebox, City Sports Arena, U of M Dearborn, and Cranbrook.

This upcoming registration was looking to be not as crowded as previous years with the new Farmington Hills league, but there are still about 250 kids registered, with over 50 able to join. If chosen for the league there will be an on-ice evaluation for the coaches a few weeks afterwards, then they will be drafted on teams.

This season's registration is August 20 from 10-12 a.m. and money is not needed until or if a child is placed on a team. Residents will have first priority, so it's important to have proof of residency when registering.

With these changes in place this year, we should see a more organized registration with everybody given a fair chance at being chosen for the league.

Karate classes make defense top priority

BY MATT HUCAL

Self-defense and protection is a very important attribute to a lot of people.

So, in order to learn the basic techniques involved in keeping safe, the City of Plymouth's Parks and Recreation department has been offering classes over the years to help people out in that area.

The classes given are karate, aikido, and judo, and have been taught by head instructor Bob Skinner, a very high degree blackbelt, for the last 16 years.

All three of the classes are taught at the same time at the Plymouth Cultural Center and last about four hours every week. Participation during the summer has been pretty light, with about half a dozen people in each class. But over the winter the classes skyrocket to about 70 people and the competition skyrockets along with it.

Steve Anderson, assistant director of the Parks and Recreation department, believes that parents of the participants are impressed with what their children are gaining from the classes.

"Parents like the discipline that's installed in the kids," said Anderson, "and that self-defense and control are the main emphasis."

What these three classes give are positive outlets for any frustration that's been built up in a person and also a sense of being in control when facing a negative situation.

All in all, the classes should help out in the long run.

that there are seven tee boxes for the four tees at every hole, so they will always be in pretty good condition. The tees also really give lesser skilled players a chance to succeed somewhat, while the higher skilled players can challenge themselves at the same time.

Course fees for residents range from $27 for weekdays (nine holes) to $45 for weekends (18 holes). Twilight fees are $22-24 (nine holes), with a riding cart included in all of the pricing for the course.

Currently, construction is still taking place on numerous houses and on the Summit recreation center, which is located near the Pheasant Run clubhouse and even closer to the new 12,000 square foot community playscape, known as the Heritage Hideout.

With a brand new community continuing to rise all around the area, Pheasant Run Golf Club will soon be known as the nucleus of it and at the same time could possibly be mentioned in the same breath as the top golf courses in the state.

Heat does not stop Canton Race Day in the Park

BY PETER BRODERICK
AND MATT HUCAL

Get ready, set, go.

The runners were out Saturday for the Second Annual Race Day in the Park, held by the Canton Parks and Recreation department. It took place at Heritage Park with 260 participating in three different races.

"It was the biggest turnout we've ever had," said Bob Dates from Canton's Parks and Recreation department.

"The weather was the hottest it's ever been for the race," said Dates. "We figure that if it had been a little cooler, the turnout would have been even better."

Dates said there were plenty of water stations, and the heat caused no problems for any of the runners or spectators.

This year's race was a first-time joint effort between the Parks and Rec department and the Canton Spitfires, a running club in the community. "We're real happy with how things worked out," said Dates. He also pointed out that the Parks and Rec department is looking forward to working with the Spitfires again next year.

Race Day in the Park included the 17th Annual Five Mile Run, which was comprised of 10 different age groups ranging from 14 and under to 60 and over.

There was also a 5k Walk for all ages and a 1/2-Mile Fun Run for Kids 12 and under.

Spiritual workout

Rev. Rod Reinhart and the Plymouth Poets take the art form to new heights

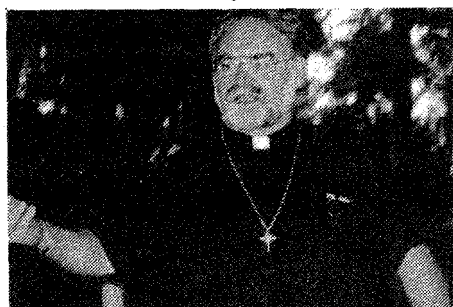

Let me start by saying Rev. Rod Reinhart's new book of poetry, "Spiritual Aerobics for the Twenty-First Century" is not your average Christian book of poetry.

The fourth book of poetry Reinhart has published through Operation Dome Press, Spiritual Aerobics is just that — a rigorous workout.

Reinhart, Plymouth's poet-in-residence and organizer of Plymouth Poets, is obviously not afraid to tackle society's toughest subjects.

The first poem in the book, "Spiritual Aerobics for the Twenty-First Century," Reinhart takes a long look at how religion fits (and does not fit) in today's society. The tone of the poem is tough — Reinhart does not pull punches — but it is also full of guidance.

Reinhart takes the readers on a journey through some of the most frightening subjects we face. "Poem for Bishop Romero, Killed by Soldiers,"

ROD REINHART

"Winterblood," "A Christmas Curse from Croatia," "Blood and Change," "Christ of the Hurricane" and "Evil Seldom" are some of Reinhart's most moving poems — covering dark subjects, but always with a glimmer of hope.

Not all of his poems cover such heavy subjects. Poems such as "I Will Return to You, Plymouth," "Build Us Our Song," "The Son of Peace" and "I Need to do More" are on the lighter side, but still pack an emotional punch.

No curves

By Rob Kirkbride

Reinhart has given a much needed boost to the Plymouth art scene. Through his books of poetry and the Plymouth Poets, he has brought the art form to the forefront of the community.

Reinhart and the Plymouth Poets continue to move full speed ahead. Tomorrow's poetry show at the Plymouth Coffee Bean Company will feature the Ann Arbor Poetry Slam Team. The team will be in Plymouth to practice for this year's national Poetry Slam competition. Performers in slam poetry competitions are screamed off the stage if they don't show the cool and aggressive spirit the audience demands.

Plymouth Poets are also getting ready for their third annual Plymouth Poetry Contest.

The contest is open to anyone living in Plymouth, Canton, Northville or Ann Arbor. It is the only non-school, city poetry contest in Michigan. The winners will once again be printed in this year's Fall Festival edition of The Community Crier.

If you're a poet or just like to listen to poetry and make a few new friends, stop by the Plymouth Coffee Bean Company on Thursday stop and say "hello" to Rod Reinhart — he's the guy with the big red beard, big heart and big vocabulary.

Thanks for supporting Jaycee 4th of July fireworks, more help needed next year

EDITOR:

This is an open letter to everyone who contributed to the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees July 4th fireworks show.

As was reported in previous Community Crier stories, donations from the business community were substantially down from past years, and the Jaycees had a shortfall.

In an effort to help reduce this shortage, we asked people parking in the Unisys lot to donate $1 to help defray the cost of the show. On behalf of the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees, I would like to thank the overwhelming majority of patrons who contributed.

If this generosity can be re-ignited in the business community, hopefully next year we will not be forced to ask the general public for a hand-out.

Hard work makes Canton Streetscape ribbon cutting even more special

EDITOR:

It has been more than 10 years in the making but the streetscape project, along the perimeter of the Canton Downtown Development Authority (DDA) district at Sheldon and Ford roads, has finally become reality.

Little more than a year ago we broke ground on the $2 million plan. Construction is now complete - except for the usual loose ends - and I would like to invite you to be part of a special dedication on Thursday, July 27 at 6:30 p.m. Following the ribbon cutting we will adjourn to Damon's restaurant for a reception celebrating the completion of the DDA streetscape project.

This is the kickoff of a special weekend within the DDA and along Ford road in general as our merchants have planned a "Canton Streetscape Celebration" with various sales for shoppers.

It will also be a chance to showcase the heart of our community's commercial core along Ford road.

The ribbon cutting will be held at the west driveway to the Target store on the north side of Ford road. We would very much like your presence at the ceremony.

Please let us know if you can attend, by calling my office at 397-5380 or 397-5472, no later than July 18.

I hope you can join us in celebrating the end of this long awaited project...

...And yet, it is only the beginning of what needs to be done along Ford road.

Commissioner asks for input on new Ameritech cable television agreement

EDITOR:

The City Commission, on your behalf, is considering a franchise for Cable TV service with Ameritech.

I would like to have your opinions and ideas concerning this proposal.

There are several items which I would like to bring to your attention.

First, the proposed franchise is for a 15 year period. Please let me know if you feel we should have a longer or shorter period on this contract, and your reasons.

Second, the contract does not contain any provision for Community Access programming which allows citizens to produce and broadcast local access, community based programs, without censorship or governmental control.

Any citizen access to the broadcasting medium will be under the supervision of the "Issuing Authority," which is the City of Plymouth.

Any dispute between a citizen user and the Franchisee (Ameritech) will be resolved by the City of Plymouth government.

The Franchisee (Ameritech) will maintain a video blanking capability to be activated remotely by the Franchisee. (Section 18.03)

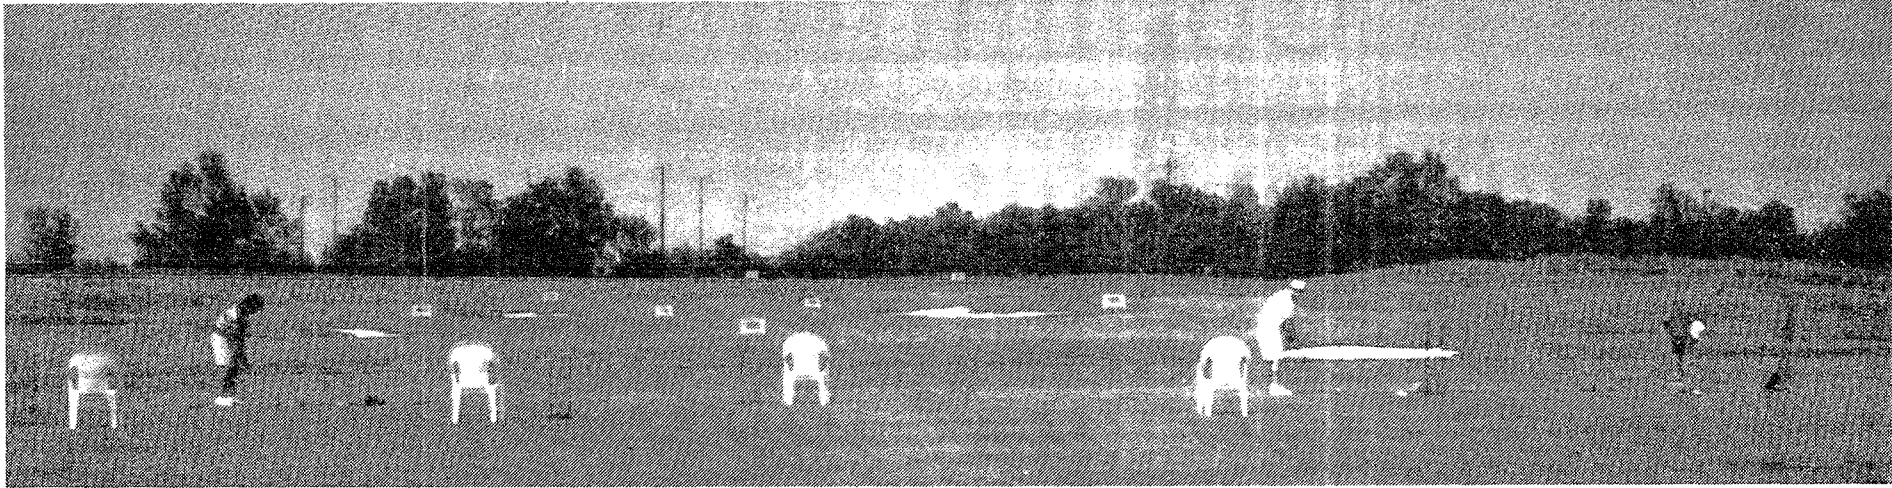

The Cable Franchise Agreement, and the City Ordinance associated with it, covers over 90 pages of printed matter.

Our City Charter requires that this agreement be available for public inspection at City Hall for 30 days commencing July 5, 1995.

I urge you to study this document, and determine whether it is in the best interests of our City to enter into the proposed contract/franchise for a 15 year period, or if other changes should be considered.

for any of the runners or spectators.

This year's race was a first-time joint effort between the Parks and Rec department and the Canton Spitfires, a running club in the community. "We're real happy with how things worked out," said Dates. He also pointed out that the Parks and Rec department is looking forward to working with the Spitfires again next year.

Race Day in the Park included the 17th Annual Five Mile Run, which was comprised of 10 different age groups ranging from 14 and under to 60 and over.

There was also a 5k Walk for all ages and a 1/2-Mile Fun Run for Kids' 12 and under.

that there are seven tee boxes for the four tees at every hole, so they will always be in pretty good condition. The tees also really give lesser skilled players a chance to succeed somewhat, while the higher skilled players can challenge themselves at the same time.

Course fees for residents range from $27 for weekdays (nine holes) to $45 for weekends (18 holes). Twilight fees are $22-24 (nine holes), with a riding cart included in all of the pricing for the course.

Currently, construction is still taking place on numerous houses and on the Summit recreation center, which is located near the Pheasant Run clubhouse and even closer to the new 12,000 square foot community playscape, known as the Heritage Hideout.

With a brand new community continuing to rise all around the area, Pheasant Run Golf Club will soon be known as the nucleus of it and at the same time could possibly be mentioned in the same breath as the top golf courses in the state.

Spiritual workout

Rev. Rod Reinhart and the Plymouth Poets take the art form to new heights

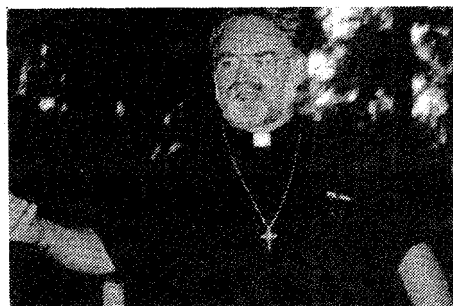

Let me start by saying Rev. Rod Reinhart's new book of poetry, "Spiritual Aerobics for the Twenty-First Century" is not your average Christian book of poetry.

The fourth book of poetry Reinhart has published through Operation Dome Press, Spiritual Aerobics is just that — a rigorous workout.

Reinhart, Plymouth's poet-in-residence and organizer of Plymouth Poets, is obviously not afraid to tackle society's toughest subjects.

The first poem in the book, "Spiritual Aerobics for the Twenty-First Century," Reinhart takes a long look at how religion fits (and does not fit) in today's society. The tone of the poem is tough — Reinhart does not pull punches — but it is also full of guidance.

Reinhart takes the readers on a journey through some of the most frightening subjects we face. "Poem for Bishop Romero, Killed by Soldiers,"

ROD REINHART

"Winterblood," "A Christmas Curse from Croatia," "Blood and Change," "Christ of the Hurricane" and "Evil Seldom" are some of Reinhart's most moving poems — covering dark subjects, but always with a glimmer of hope.

Not all of his poems cover such heavy subjects. Poems such as "I Will Return to You, Plymouth," "Build Us Our Song," "The Son of Peace" and "I Need to do More" are on the lighter side, but still pack an emotional punch.

No curves

By Rob Kirkbride

Reinhart has given a much needed boost to the Plymouth art scene. Through his books of poetry and the Plymouth Poets, he has brought the art form to the forefront of the community.

Reinhart and the Plymouth Poets continue to move full speed ahead. Tomorrow's poetry show at the Plymouth Coffee Bean Company will feature the Ann Arbor Poetry Slam Team. The team will be in Plymouth to practice for this year's national Poetry Slam competition. Performers in slam poetry competitions are screamed off the stage if they don't show the cool and aggressive spirit the audience demands.

Plymouth Poets are also getting ready for their third annual Plymouth Poetry Contest.

The contest is open to anyone living in Plymouth, Canton, Northville or Ann Arbor. It is the only non-school, city poetry contest in Michigan. The winners will once again be printed in this year's Fall Festival edition of The Community Crier.

If you're a poet or just like to listen to poetry and make a few new friends, stop by the Plymouth Coffee Bean Company on Thursday stop and say "hello" to Rod Reinhart — he's the guy with the big red beard, big heart and big vocabulary.

Thanks for supporting Jaycee 4th of July fireworks, more help needed next year

EDITOR:

This is an open letter to everyone who contributed to the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees July 4th fireworks show.

As was reported in previous Community Crier stories, donations from the business community were substantially down from past years, and the Jaycees had a shortfall.

In an effort to help reduce this shortage, we asked people parking in the Unisys lot to donate $1 to help defray the cost of the show. On behalf of the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees, I would like to thank the overwhelming majority of patrons who contributed.

If this generosity can be re-ignited in the business community, hopefully next year we will not be forced to ask the general public for a hand-out.

Hard work makes Canton Streetscape ribbon cutting even more special

EDITOR:

It has been more than 10 years in the making but the streetscape project, along the perimeter of the Canton Downtown Development Authority (DDA) district at Sheldon and Ford roads, has finally become reality.

Little more than a year ago we broke ground on the $2 million plan. Construction is now complete - except for the usual loose ends - and I would like to invite you to be part of a special dedication on Thursday, July 27 at 6:30 p.m. Following the ribbon cutting we will adjourn to Damon's restaurant for a reception celebrating the completion of the DDA streetscape project.

This is the kickoff of a special weekend within the DDA and along Ford road in general as our merchants have planned a "Canton Streetscape Celebration" with various sales for shoppers.

It will also be a chance to showcase the heart of our community's commercial core along Ford road.

The ribbon cutting will be held at the west driveway to the Target store on the north side of Ford road. We would very much like your presence at the ceremony.

Please let us know if you can attend, by calling my office at 397-5380 or 397-5472, no later than July 18.

I hope you can join us in celebrating the end of this long awaited project...

...And yet, it is only the beginning of what needs to be done along Ford road.

Commissioner asks for input on new Ameritech cable television agreement

EDITOR:

The City Commission, on your behalf, is considering a franchise for Cable TV service with Ameritech.

I would like to have your opinions and ideas concerning this proposal.

There are several items which I would like to bring to your attention.

First, the proposed franchise is for a 15 year period. Please let me know if you feel we should have a longer or shorter period on this contract, and your reasons.

Second, the contract does not contain any provision for Community Access programming which allows citizens to produce and broadcast local access, community based programs, without censorship or governmental control.

Any citizen access to the broadcasting medium will be under the supervision of the "Issuing Authority," which is the City of Plymouth.

Any dispute between a citizen user and the Franchisee (Ameritech) will be resolved by the City of Plymouth government.

The Franchisee (Ameritech) will maintain a video blanking capability to be activated remotely by the Franchisee. (Section 18.ee.3)

The Cable Franchise Agreement, and the City Ordinance associated with it, covers over 90 pages of printed matter.

Our City Charter requires that this agreement be available for public inspection at City Hall for 30 days commencing July 5, 1995.

I urge you to study this document, and determine whether it is in the best interests of our City to enter into the proposed contract/franchise for a 15 year period, or if other changes should be considered.

Accept the plan

Twp. should get ready for new neighbor: Temple Baptist

It is time to bury the hatchet.

Actually, maybe Plymouth Township residents should hand over the hatchet to Temple Baptist to help them build the worship center proposed for the property at North Territorial and Ridge roads.

This Tuesday, at the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees monthly meeting, the debate is expected to continue over whether to accept the Temple Baptist's revised submission, or continue the fight in the courts to try and prevent the construction of a church in a highly residential area.

The battle began last fall when Temple Baptist announced plans to construct a 244,300 square foot facility along with many additional features, such as, a nature walk and athletic fields. Citizens were angered and the Planning Commission denied the proposal. As a result, Temple Baptist filed suit under a 1993 federal law saying the decision violated their religious rights. Included in the law suit — due in court on Sept. 1 — is $5.2 million in damages should Temple Baptist lose the potential buyer for the facility it is leaving during the court battle.

My advice to residents in the Truth is tough

By Brian Corbett

Plymouth Commons subdivision and others in the immediate area: Accept Temple Baptist's revised plan.

You have stated your concerns and complaints, with good reason, the initial plan was ridiculously large. But to Temple Baptist's credit, they have responded to their future neighbors (Yes, I said future neighbors) by submitting a proposal that dramatically changes the presentation of the church in regards to size, architecture, activities and its responsibility for traffic control. It may still be big, but remember, they were not forced to change anything.

Besides, stop and think what the main opposition is to Temple Baptist: increased traffic and the close proximity of the church to houses. As far as increased traffic goes, it is either now or later. Urban sprawl is slithering throughout metro Detroit. More subdivisions and buildings will be erected in the area before the end of the century. Bet on it.

Secondly, if you practice religion, where is your church at? Are there houses near by? If there are, do you think those particular homeowners were thrilled when your church was built? What if they had objected and won? Where would you be going on Sundays?

There is a fine line between standing up for what you oppose, and ignoring reality. And reality, in this case, is about to rise up out of the ground in the form of a 180,000 square foot church. If you convince the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees to battle on, three things will happen: Temple Baptist will use its original plan to build a sprawling church with no restrictions, the township will likely be out $5.2 million and nobody will be happy.

Sleeper continues...

Plymouth City Commission race is a yawner, first meeting of two candidates will not be forgotten

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is Part II of the Plymouth City Commission sleepwalking race. Last week, WMTN cited the accomplishments of the two retiring commissioners — Bob Jones and Bill McAninch.)

Now, back to the race for four City Commission seats up on Nov. 7.

The six hopefuls are glad there's no August primary election — although not as glad as City Clerk Linda Langmesser.

However, there's one wrinkle that kept things quiet too.

Two of the candidates met under less than ideal conditions. Candidate Craig Brass and his wife, Bev, were expecting the arrival of their first baby on July 4. The Thursday prior, Bev went into a seizure; rescue was called.

On the Plymouth Community Fire Department Rescue squad was Bill Warren — also a candidate in the City Commission race. They met then and it's a certainty that neither of them will miss campaigning on how well that rescue operation was performed. (Welcome to the new Brass daughter, Cameron Elizabeth, born that night. And after some harrowing moments, Bev is doing better now.)

The remaining candidates, Incumbents Dennis Shrewsbury and Stella Green are joined by Joseph Koch and Donald Dismuke, Warren and Brass.

Koch's campaign may put the sense-of-humor test into play for the Roney stockbroker — he's a member of the City's Cemetery Commission. Doesn't that mean he starts with a voting bloc of 2,500 satisfied customers?

With malice toward none

Dismuke will be a pro-Downtown-loft-living campaigner and will turn things upside down — or at least sideways.

Warren's years with the fire department and as a union pusher will focus campaigning on his view in those areas. He's also testing the "conflict of interest" accusations because of his employment.

Brass, also a stockbroker, will bring his family's years in the community perspective to his pro-business approach.

Green will be the "neighborhood" campaigner and is the lone woman in the race.

Shrewsbury will test whether his ability to raise unpopular questions is a mandate. For example, his basic questioning of the very-hurried Ameritech cable TV railroad seems a sensible position, albeit lonely.

At any rate — the race is on, even if nobody knows it. The candidates will wake up soon.

We applaud anyone determined to experience all the joys life has to offer. So to keep right on doing so, take a minute and look at the questions in this ad. If they give you some concern, we can give you some help.

Are you at risk of a heart attack?

- Exercise: Can you exercise for 15 or 20 minutes without shortness of breath or chest pain?
- Work: Do you have a stressful job? People in demanding jobs like clerical or data entry work with little control have higher risk as those in less stressful jobs.
- Blood Pressure: Does your blood pressure stay above 140/90? You may have high blood pressure, a major risk for heart disease.
- Body Fat Distribution: If you're a woman, are you "pear" or "apple" shaped? Women who carry their extra weight around the waist rather than hips may have a higher risk for heart disease.

Like to live life to its fullest? Here's how to start.

Oakwood Healthcare System is committed to helping you have a healthier lifestyle. Just call us at 1-800-543-WELL and we'll send you a complimentary Heart Risk Appraisal. Complete the questionnaire, return it and we'll send you your personal heart evaluation and recommendations to help improve your life.

We offer health education classes in locations in your neighborhood. And if you don't have a personal physician, we can recommend one.
