The corn husking machine seems to be more fatal to those who use it than the threshing machine. Accidents are reported from all parts of the state where hands and arms have been torn off by this kind of a machine.

There are 130 creameries in Michigan all but half a dozen of which are thoroughly modern. That western portion of the state where most of the population are Hollanders can boast of the greatest proportion of the creameries.

Prof. Inman, Dowagiac's weather prophet, says the present weather conditions will prevail until February 1st. There may be a few squalls, but no severe weather will be experienced. The professor two years ago predicted that wheat raising would be unprofitable for six years to come, owing to protracted mild weather in the autumn. Thus far his predictions have been verified. He insists that the next four years will be a repetition of the two just past.

Northville Record: A well known man about town discovered the other day that he couldn't comfortably do two things at once when one of them was cutting ice and the other carrying an undue amount of tangle foot in his anatomy. The fact was especially clear to him when he recovered from a plunge into the ice cold water which he took at the close of a remarkable acrobatic performance.

Farmington Enterprise: The annual event among the social fraternities was held in the Masonic hall last Thursday evening when Farmington Lodge, No. 151, F. & A. M. celebrated their 40th installation by public exercises in the hall to which members of the order and the O. E. S. were invited with their friends. Prompt at 8 o'clock, Past Master P. B. Whitbeck of Plymouth Rock Lodge, took the chair and acted as installing officer, assisted by P. M. Horace Green.

A movement is in progress among railroad managers to do away with the news agents and peanut boys on trains. Already this has been done on many eastern roads, and the traveling public will be ready to hail its banishment. As now conducted it is nothing less than a school for dishonesty to the boys engaged in it. Their chief efforts is to "beat the public" in one way or another. Boys thus trained will be rascals in a larger way when the opportunity offers. Railroad companies who banish them from their trains are doing a benefit to the boys as well as to the public. It is a reform to be commended.—Indianapolis Journal.

A Lansing dispatch to the Free Press says:—Senator Murfin, of Detroit, has some very definite ideas regarding what he believes should constitute fair remuneration for the sheriff of Wayne county and he is working on a bill which will cut out a large share of the fees that Sheriff Dickson might otherwise get.

"My purpose will be," he said, "to cut out the fees which are now paid by the county so that the office will net about $8,000 a year exclusive of the fees received from private individuals for serving summonses, etc., which I believe the sheriff is entitled to. Ex-Sheriff Collins made something like $30,000 a year and I saw ex-Sheriff Chipman's books myself and against a Republican board of county auditors he cleaned up $21,000 a year. This is more than any county is entitled to. The other night Sheriff Dickson sent out half a dozen deputies to chase up a dog fight. They got $1,000 a year each, and under the statute the sheriff is allowed $3 for each half day and ten cents a mile traveled by each deputy, which he pockets. This is just an illustration. Some of the fees, I believe, have been abolished and it will take some time to go through the statutes to cut out enough to bring the salary of the office down to a fair basis."

Murfin's stand will probably meet with opposition from some of the politicians and those interested, but as it is a matter which affects the interests of the entire county and the pocketbooks of the rural taxpayers it will have plenty of supporters.

Representative Ames will look after the bill in the house.

Consumption Threatened.
C. Unger, 313 Maple st., Champaign, Ill., writes: "I was troubled with a hacking cough for a year and I thought I had consumption. I tried a great many remedies and was under the doctor's care for several months. I used one bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar. It cured me and I have not been troubled since."—Pharmacy.

Attorney T. D. Kearney, who has been acting for Messers Hawkes & Angus in connection with the proposed extension of the Detroit, Ypsilanti & Ann Arbor electric line to Jackson, says that Hawkes & Angus are going to build a line from Lansing through Dexter to connect with their road. This will put Dexter on a main line and make the string of lakes north of that village easy of access.—Ann Arbor Courier.

Belleville Enterprise:—Another unsuccessful attempt to loot the bank at this place was made between two and three o'clock Monday morning. An entrance to the building was effected by forcing the front door, after which the combination doors on the vault were forced open with some explosive, but when they got into the vault they went up against the burglar proof safe and were baffled in their attempt to get at the cash. The only thing of any value they secured at the bank was a fine revolver belonging to F. H. Clark, the cashier. They went from here to Geo. E. Quirk's where they stole a horse and rig which they drove to Ypsilanti and left hitched in front of the Grove brewery. From there they took the first electric car east. There were undoubtedly five in the gang as they were seen at Romulus the evening before and their actions creating suspicion they were watched. The tools used at the bank, which consisted of a sledge hammer, monkey wrench and several bits, two chisels and two punches, were taken from Brick's blacksmith shop at Romulus. This is the second time an attempt has been made to rob the bank, the first time being the night of October 30th.

A PRETTY COMPANION By Louise Bedford.

"I'm sure I don't know how I shall get on there tonight. I don't know where this frolicsome engine has chosen to deposit us, but we must be at least 10 miles away from North-cliff."

Janetta gave an involuntary start; the man's destination was the same as her own.

"You can take my dogcart, if you like. It's at a house hard by. I've a case there that will detain me for the night," rejoined the doctor curily.

"Thanks, ever so much. I believe I'll be off then. Your patient is opening her eyes; the rest of the passengers seem sorting themselves. Let me see, there's a child that belongs to this woman somewhere." And, glancing round, he saw Janetta, faithful to her trust, seated on the bank with the child he sought in her arms.

He smiled and lifted his hat. "Let me relieve you of your burden," he said, a certain tenderness in his voice as he looked at the little child.

"There, don't cry"—to the little one—"mummy's all right."

He carried it off as gently as a woman would have done; then he returned to Janetta, standing by her with a certain hesitation.

"I have turned up a friend here who kindly offers his dogcart to forward me to my destination. Can I be of any service to you? I expect there will be a train presently to carry on the passengers. Is it an impertinence to ask where you are going?"

Janetta rose, with a feeling of stiffness in her limbs and some unsteadiness of motion. The shock had half dazed her. "I'm going to the Grange, North-cliff," she said.

"How very odd! I'm bound for the same place. Under the circumstances, we had better go on together. I'll speak to Drake about it. Sit down again a minute. You look as if the accident had been too much for your nerves," he said, smiling pleasantly.

"Kindly tell me your name, and I'll see that your luggage and my own are forwarded to us later."

"I'm Miss Howard."

"Thank you. Then I'll see if there is luggage for the names of Howard and Merivale to be rescued from the debris, and then we'll get on as fast as we can. As Miss Seymour is delicate, it might be serious if she heard rumors of an accident to our train before we arrived."

"Invalid!" ejaculated Janetta, as her companion hurried off to complete his preparations; "and I should not wonder if this Mr. Merivale were a nephew of the old lady. Very likely has expectations!"

Once fairly started in the brisk evening air, Janetta's courage and spirits began to revive, and she could hardly help smiling at the curious position in which she found herself, seated side by side with a complete stranger in a borrowed dogcart, going to a lady of whom she knew absolutely nothing but the name.

"It is certainly a curious coincidence that you and I should be bound for the same house," began Mr. Merivale; "but it is still more curious to me that, often as I am down at the Grange, I have not heard your name mentioned before."

"That is easily explained. I answered Miss Seymour's advertisement for a companion, and she is kind enough to give me a trial. We have not met," said Janetta simply.

Her companion turned quickly, and in the half light, gave a swift, scrutinizing glance, accompanied by a smile, of which Janetta found it hard to explain the meaning. It was half amused and half incredulous. He made no sort of comment upon her explanation, but turned the conversation rapidly to other channels.

"He knows all about that eccentric old lady's advertisement," she thought. Mr. Merivale chatted away so agreeably on many topics and the ten miles drive passed so quickly that Janetta gave a little start of astonishment when Mr. Merivale pointed with his whip to the twinkling lights of the little harbor, and told her that they were within half a mile of their destination.

"It was quite dark as they drove through the cobbled streets of the little town; then, by a sharp ascent, they climbed the hill just outside it, and, turning into a drivegate set open to receive them, drew up at the door of a long, low, irregularly built house.

Mr. Merivale jumped to the ground and threw the reins to the groom, gently lifting Janetta out of the cart. The next instant they were admitted by an extremely smart parlormaid into the low, oak-paneled hall, where a log-fire blazed cheerily on the hearth. A lady of between sixty and seventy, whose gown rustled as she moved, advanced to meet her.

"Allow me to introduce Miss Howard," said Mr. Merivale.

CHAPTER III. Janetta's heart sank. The stern features of the lady to whom she was introduced scarcely relaxed into a smile, and a cold hand held her own.

"Come in, Miss Howard. Your train must have been very late; we expected you more than an hour ago."

"There was an accident. The train ran off the line, I think, and we were delayed, Mr. Merivale and I—"

"Captain Merivale," corrected her listener. Janetta glanced round quickly to see if Captain Merivale had followed, and was listening to the correction; but he was nowhere to be seen.

"We had not met before. I did not know that he was Captain Merivale by intuition; but he was very anxious that you should not be frightened on his account, Miss Seymour. He told me that you were not strong."

A smile crossed the narrow face—a mirthless smile.

"I am not," Miss Seymour. It is many years since any one troubled himself to consider my feelings. I am Mrs. Mortimer, Miss Seymour's lady housekeeper. Until lately I believed myself also to be her companion; but I'm dull, apparently, and getting old. I'm not enough for her, and I am to be supplanted by you."

Janetta stretched out her hands eagerly, appealingly, a great sorrow filling her heart for the woman before her, with whom the world had evidently dealt so hardly.

"Not supplanted," she said, "only supplemented. I don't know what Miss Seymour's wants may be, but let me help you any way I can. I don't care what I do. You can put me into the way of things, tell me my duties, and give me a hint when I make a mistake."

"You will have no duties," replied the elder woman coldly, looking at the outstretched hands, but not taking them into her own. "You are young and good-looking; they are the only qualifications which Miss Seymour seems to require. She will see you, she says, after dinner. Shall I show you to your room?"

Janetta followed her up the thickly-carpeted stairs into a room so luxuriously furnished that she could hardly believe that it was the one intended for her, except that her fur coat had been already carried up there, with such other possessions as she had with her in the carriage.

She found Mrs. Mortimer still alone when she went downstairs. "Captain Merivale dines tonight with Miss Seymour in her boudoir," she explained as she led the way into the dining room. "Sometimes Miss Seymour is well enough to dine with us, but today she has been over-exciting herself, and was so tired that I advised her remaining upstairs."

Janetta would have liked to have asked a hundred questions about Miss Seymour, but the presence of the parlormaid and the forbidding manner of her companion made her curb her curiosity.

They had scarcely returned to the drawing room before a message was delivered to Janetta to demand her presence in Miss Seymour's room.

"You can show Miss Howard the way to your mistress's room, Mason," said Mrs. Mortimer. And Janetta followed the maid.

She was ushered into a sitting room more perfect in detail than any she had ever entered. It was a general sense of beauty and luxury that struck her at first, for her attention centered itself at once upon its only occupant, a fragile, fair little lady, quite young, who lay upon the couch that was drawn near the fire.

She raised herself to a sitting posture, and held out her hand with a smile of welcome.

"I'm afraid you must come to me, Miss Howard, I'm too tired to get up to greet you. Sit down near me, will you? I sent Harry off to the smoking room, as I told him I wanted to talk to you alone for a bit."

Janetta shook hands, seated herself in the easy chair to which Miss Seymour pointed, and wondered if she dreamed. This, then, was the Miss Seymour she had pictured as an eccentric old maid, devoted to poodles and parrots!

Even her views about Captain Merivale needed readjusting. Clearly he was not a nephew with expectations! More probably a cousin, possibly a lover.

The thoughts passed rapidly through her mind until, raising her eyes, she was conscious that she was being watched eagerly by her companion.

There was something intensely attractive in the face that looked into her own. It must have been very pretty until ill-health and delicacy had written their lines on it. Even now the shape of it was charming. The flaxen hair that waved on the forehead was abundant and beautifully dressed, the folds of white silk and soft-falling lace were becomingly arranged round the tiny throat; but oh! how delicate she looked. Something of the pity that Janetta felt must have found expression in her face, for Miss Seymour broke the silence with petulant laugh.

"You are sorry for me, like every one else—I read it in your eyes; but I'm not going to die. I'm going to get well, or all the doctors lie."

"I devoutly hope you will, and quickly," replied Janetta gently; "and you must tell me what I can do to help you. I'm sure I could carry you, you are so light and small."

Miss Seymour broke into merry laughter. "I don't want you for hard labor. I wonder if you thought it was a jumble who put that advertisement into the paper? Harry declared that nobody in her senses would answer it, but many did."

"Had over two hundred answers, so many that I would not even open them all. I liked your photo. I thought you were pretty and looked true, so I told Mrs. Mortimer to take your letter and answer it, as if from me, and to return all the others."

"It was Doctor Drake's suggestion—the man you saw as the train tonight. Harry tells me that he scripted the accident from afar, and was on the scene almost directly it happened. He is called clever, but he does not cure me."

"Well, he found me crying one day, and he said I ought to have some one bright and young and good-tempered about me. You can't call Mrs. Mortimer any one of those things, can you?"

Janetta did not answer; she felt that the remark was in bad taste.

"I sha'n't like you if you look shocked every time I'm flippant. Where was I? So I advertised, half in fun and half in earnest, and of course Mrs. Mortimer is very cross; although it won't make the smallest difference in her lot, except that she will have to give orders for another place to be laid at every meal."

"She is perfectly invaluable in her way—housekeeper, chaperon, companion, everything rolled into one; but she is occasionally depressing."

"You will give me something to do?" said Janetta, when Miss Seymour came to a pause. "Not the things that Mrs. Mortimer has done for you, it might hurt her feelings."

"Oh, you will not have much to do. You will be cheerful when I'm sad, and kind when I'm cross; and you won't offer to read aloud unless I ask you, and you will talk when I want you to talk; and, above all things, you won't try palpably to amuse me."

"Nothing bores me like that; and I do hope you can arrange flowers nicely. Mrs. Mortimer makes bouquets as round as pumpkins, and is so annoyed when I criticize."

"I wonder," she said, with a rapid change of subject, "how you liked Captain Merivale? I'm engaged to him, you know, and he has come to stay here for a little bit before he goes out to India. He is ordered to the front."

"He was very kind," replied Janetta. "I scarcely know how I would have got here without him."

"We were engaged before I had the fall from my horse which has made me what you see me," went on Miss Seymour, twisting her engagement ring round and round upon her finger, so that every diamond in it caught and reflected the light in a thousand rainbow-colored hues.

"It's hard luck that I lie here helpless like this, isn't it, when there is such a life of happiness before me? I'm going to get well, but it's long to wait. Now you can guess how much I shall need cheering when Harry goes abroad. He's very good to me, and declares he'll never dull when he comes; but you will try to make it more cheerful for him. If you wait a little while he'll be up again."

"You will not need an introduction after that long drive in the dark. He was pleased with you, because he said you were the only woman in the accident who did not scream."

Janetta laughed. "Terror does not take that form with me; it makes me feel incapable of uttering a sound. I expect I was just as frightened as any body else."

"Well, at any rate, you kept it well under," said Miss Seymour behind her; and, looking round, Janetta saw that Captain Merivale had entered the room unperceived.

PURE-FOOD LAW.

Kentucky Tests Show Fruit Jelly Made Wholly of Glue.

The General Assembly of Kentucky recently enacted a law providing for the inspection of food products sold in that state, and entrusted the work to the agricultural experiment station.

The station submitted a report showing that fully 40 per cent of all samples of food taken were adulterated. Some of the adulterants used are in fact injurious to health; others have been put in to cheapen articles of food.

As examples of the former, the inspectors found so-called "fruit jellies" made wholly or in part of glue and artificial coloring and flavoring matters. They found salicylic acid, sometimes in large quantities, in tomato catsups, preserves and other food products which were sold as pure, and formaldehyde and other preservatives in milk, which perhaps in some cases was fed to infants.

The most striking example of all is in the case of essence of peppermint and essence of cinnamon. These extracts contained wood alcohol, a poisonous substance, as one of the ingredients. In the preparation of these essences a mixture of wood alcohol and common alcohol was used in place of common alcohol, presumably to avoid the government tax on alcohol.

This condition of affairs is by no means confined to Kentucky. Equally flagrant instances of adulteration are reported in the publications of other stations engaged in the inspection of foods and from many other sources.

Goat Frightened the Negroes.

Some boys in Macon, Mo., recently fed the contents of a box of sedlita powders to a goat belong to a family which had recently moved into the neighborhood. Then taking it for granted that he was thirsty, they led Billy to a near-by trough and permitted him to drink heartily. Soon the fizzing began and the goat tore down the street toward the woods at a reckless pace.

Some negroes living several miles out of town claim to have seen Old Nick himself, as they verily believed, rushing along the road in broad daylight. His majesty resembled an enormous spot, they said, but they recognized him as the devil, because he was spitting fire and brimstone.

MEDICAL EXAMINER

Of the U. S. Treasury Recommends Peruna.

Dr. Llewellyn Jordan

Dr. Llewellyn Jordan, Medical Examiner of U. S. Treasury Department, graduate of Columbia College, and who served three years at West Point, has the following to say of Peruna:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from your wonderful remedy. One short month has brought forth a vast change and I now consider myself a well man after months of suffering. Fellow sufferers, Peruna will cure you."

Catarh is a systemic disease curable only by systematic treatment. A remedy that cures catarh must aim directly at the depressed nerve centers. This is what Peruna does. Peruna immediately invigorates the nerve centers which give vitality to the mucous membranes. Then catarh disappears. Then catarh is permanently cured. Peruna cures catarh wherever located. Peruna is not a guess nor an experiment—it is an absolute scientific certainty. Peruna has no substitutes—no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna.

A free book written by Dr. Hartman, on the subject of catarh in its different phases and stages, will be sent free to any address by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

ORDINGS OF THE 41ST SESSION.

In order to stir things up a member of the Wayne delegation intends to introduce a bill in the legislature next week providing for the removal of the seat of the state's capital to Detroit. He expects that it will meet an early death, but the bill will serve to agitate the matter. Politicians generally would welcome the change, though they recognize that it will never be effected until Detroit agrees to spend sufficient money to erect a suitable building.

Several bills are being prepared to increase the salaries of various officials. The salary of the mayor of Detroit may be fixed at $6,000, and judge of probate changed from $5,000 to $6,000. Something will also probably be done towards increasing the salary of the chief executive of the state, who now gets but $4,000 a year, and some members of the legislature think the office should command $10,000.

Unless all signs fail, Speaker Carton will have the assistance of a steering committee in the house this session, and there are already indications that considerable work has been done along this line. An effort will be made to bustle the work of the committees along so as to secure an adjournment early in May if such a thing is possible.

The house committee on state affairs will wrestle with Representative Chandler's bill to provide a Michigan commission to get up an exhibit for the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo. Five members, with the governor an ex-officio member, are designated and an appropriation of $100,000 is stipulated in the measure.

The Good Government League recognizes the value of a good lobbyist, and will have a representative at Lansing during a part of the session. The league is especially interested in the repeal of the present caucus law.

It is estimated that there are 250,000 cases of grip, bronchitis and pneumonia in New York City. Not only the city hospitals but private institutions are full to overflowing, and physicians in many instances are finding it difficult to make their rounds. It has been remarked that while the characteristics of the malady are much the same as in former years, the disease has assumed a catarrhal tendency, which is new.

Part of Young Pianists

German physicians are considering the best modes of treating a disease which they have found to affect many young pianists in that music loving country. At the recent medical congress in Berlin considerable attention was devoted to this subject by the assembled scientists. Many of them declared that the disease is one of the brain and analogous to that which afflicts copyists, who write much, and violinists, who use their fingers a great deal. One distinguished surgeon declared that he had several times discovered an excessive inflammation of the nerves of the arms, which was the direct result of too much piano playing. He also said that young girls who attend conservatories of music are liable to suffer from a special weakness because their hands are not large enough for the exercises which they are required to practice, and that for this reason it might be advisable to construct pianos somewhat smaller than the ordinary ones specially adapted for the use of young girls who are required to practice a good deal.

A VETERAN SPEAKS.

The Honorable Moses B. Crane of Tacoma, Wash., Tells How Old Soldiers May Help Themselves.

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 5, 1901.—(Special.)—"I used to have Heart Disease, but thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills I now have Heart's Ease.

"Five years ago I was a continual sufferer of Heart Disease. Exposure during the war, and a tendency to grow over fleshy, had greatly aggravated this dread disease. I often had to sit up half the night. I had it so bad when I would lie down. Life looked pretty blue to me, as I thought there was no relief, until one day I read an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I bought a box that same day, and it was the best day's work I ever did. Before I had used all the first box I could eat and sleep better than I had done for many years, and after three months' faithful treatment, my health was completely restored. I am an old man now, but my step is as elastic and my brain as clear as when I was thirty years of age."

These are the words of the Hon. Moses B. Crane, secretary of Odin Lodge, No. 123, I. O. O. F. of this city. The Hon. Mr. Crane is also Senior Vice-Commander of G. A. R. Post No. 3, Tacoma.

Those who know Mr. Crane have the fullest confidence in his honesty and truthfulness, and know that he would not give this unsolicited testimonial unless he had actually experienced the relief which he indicates in his letter. Dodd's Kidney Pills are having a wonderful sale among Mr. Crane's friends—and their name is legion—in this part of the country. There does not seem to be a single case of Heart Disease, Kidney or Bladder Weakness, or Rheumatism, that Dodd's Kidney Pills do not permanently cure.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by legal applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; none cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.

Insomnia Wrecks the Nerves.

Dr. Greene's NERVURA Makes Health.

INSOMNIA is a forerunner of nervous prostration; what organism is strong enough to stand up under the strain of sleepless nights? It is plain that nothing in the world can possibly take the place of restful sleep, yet many try to eke out an existence without this sustaining power. Their nerves are in such a state of tension that sleep is an impossibility, or at best is a series of hideous dreams. It is not strange that physical and mental weakness, amounting soon to complete prostration, follows inability to sleep. There is no let-up to the strain. Vital forces are drawn upon, confirmed invalidism results.

The recuperative power of natural sleep is wonderful. Complete physical and mental exhaustion gives place, after a few hours of quiet slumber, to a full renewal of energy. The fatigue of body and mind disappears entirely while all the muscles are strong and the nerves absolutely calm.

Sleep is the indication given by Nature as a guide to human plans to restore health. It shows that there are inherent in the wonderful human organism powers of recuperation which must have opportunity to assert themselves. Based on this clear demonstration, Dr. Greene's NERVURA blood and nerve remedy was constructed by Dr. Greene to help Nature combat the ills that attack men and women. What no amount of powerful drugs could possibly accomplish, can be successfully and promptly effected by healthy blood and nerves, the kind of blood which flows in strengthening flood to every portion of the body, the condition of nerves which permits awakened Nature to seize its opportunity to restore to perfect health.

Mrs. FLORENCE TAYLOR, of 4 Courtland Place, Bridgeport, Conn., writes:

"For four years I was troubled with nervous debility and hysteria in a most aggravated form. It caused sleeplessness and mental depression, and for months I was confined to my bed. My constitution wasted and I totally lost my appetite. I had many doctors, but they failed to give me any relief. I was advised to try Dr. Greene's NERVURA blood and nerve remedy. I was in a terrible condition when I began its use, and almost immediately there was a wonderful change came over me. I regained my appetite, the dizziness in my head departed; it renewed my interest in life and made me feel, in fact, like another person. After taking six bottles I thankfully proclaimed myself strong and well. These six bottles did for me what hundreds of dollars and numerous physicians failed to do."

Dr. Greene's Nervura is the Remedy that Cures.

Full explanation of these matters given by Dr. Greene on request, without charge. Dr. Greene's address is 25 West 14th Street, New York City. Consultation with him either by call or letter is absolutely free.

Woman's Literary Club.

Twenty-three of Plymouth's club women met at Mrs. Valentine's home Friday afternoon to enjoy a program prepared by the second division under the leadership of Mrs. Root, a program which proved to be one of the most entertaining and instructive of the year's work. The subject for the day was Milton. Mrs. Gale summed up the results of the class study, "Milton: Man and Works" in a comprehensive biographical sketch. Mrs. Shaw gave the critical estimate, illustrating various points by apt selections. Mrs. Root followed with a paper and illustrated talk on "Paradise Lost: its Merits and Defects," which gave her hearers a much clearer view of that epic. Mrs. Wilcox read some passages from the same and Mrs. Hodge closed the literary exercises with a study of Puritanism.

At the business session, Miss Hartough was instructed by vote of the club to express by letter their sympathy with the president, Mrs. Adams, in her loss. Mrs. Perrin, one of the founders of the club, who has recently returned to Plymouth, was unanimously elected to associate membership until a vacancy on the list of active membership shall arise; and the report of the lecture course committee was received and cordially approved.

Mrs. Valentine then served luncheon and all enjoyed a delightful social hour, all the more appreciated because it was not listed on the program. Adjourned to meet with Mrs. Hudd Jan. 11, 2 p. m.—Sec. pro tem.

The township of Canton has no saloon within its bounds. I do not know whether its absence at all explains this second fact or not, but our citizens are certainly noted for "fraternally" helping those of their neighbors who are in distress. I do not know, either, whether our intense loyalty to one another springs from the same cause or not, but we will believe nothing bad from any Cantonese. If any of us do go astray, we boldly affirm that Plymouth booze, or Ypsilanti tanglefoot, or Detroit fortyrod whikey was to blame.

But you are asking what all this has to do with a wood bee. Restrain your impatience a little and listen. A few weeks ago a news item in the Mail mentioned that Edward Place, of our town, had his hand so badly injured while shredding corn that Dr. Tillotson was compelled to amputate it. Of course he was laid up by the accident and equally of course, we who live near him received notice shortly afterward that a wood bee would be held for Mr. Place's benefit on Thursday, Dec. 27. Upon the day appointed, men to the number of sixty, with saws, axes and teams, assembled in the woods of the Tillotson brothers, and cut and drew to the residence of Mr. Place an immense pile of what we call buzz wood, estimated to contain seventy cords of stove wood. Realizing that even the very extent of their work might add to Mr. Place's anxiety, in his disabled condition, a still further arrangement was made that on the Monday following two wood sawing outfits, a steam power and a horse power, with men enough to man them, should come and saw the wood. The day appointed proved stormy and the work was postponed, but has doubtless been done since, as Mr. C. B. Truesdell, who had the general oversight, is in the habit of doing promptly, as well as thoroughly, whatever he undertakes.

If you wonder why your correspondent is ignorant of the progress made thus far he begs leave to remark that our benevolent undertakings are managed systematically, as well as thoroughly, so that while the neighbors in one direction came the first day those the second day were to gather from the opposite direction. I have mentioned no names except the brothers Tillotson and C. B. Truesdell, but think that it is not at all individual to say that these men, Bert and Frank, we call them, not only helped with their labor but also generously donated the timber, and Mr. Truesdell furnished men and teams the first day and the steam power wood sawing outfit for the second day. Whether any of Mr. Place's neighbors acted the part of the priest and Levite in the story of old, by passing by on the other side, I shall not tell your readers. I have already noticed our loyalty to one another, and so if we missed some faces we expected to see we neither ask nor give any reasons for their absence.

P. S.—I have just heard that the wood was sawed according to arrangement and that the amount was nearer a hundred cords than seventy.

CANTON.
From Frozen Alaska.

E. C. Adams, son of Mrs. Rachel Adams, writes his mother the following letter, dated Dawson, Alaska, Oct. 10th, 1900:

I am now in the above place. When I came in the weather was fine—daylight all day and night, no darkness at all. I came very near death and had little hope of escape. The Yukon river is very bad and on part of it called 30 Mile river, is just a rushing, whirling, foaming, terrible water. All the boat wrecks have occurred at that place and the one I came down was completely capsized and smashed all to pieces in the afternoon of July 21st. She was quite a good-sized steamer, her name being the Florence S. She was overloaded with merchandise, and there were about 30 passengers. A number of the people were drowned. Before I was thrown in I saw one go down and after I was in, swimming as fast as I could in that terrible icy cold water, with all my clothes on, and you know how good I can swim, I saw two more go down for good. I struggled for about 1 1/2 miles before I got out. The water would turn you round and round, over and under. It was certain death for those that could not swim and not many chances for those that could. I never heard such yelling and screaming before. Men and women were crazy with fright, the women grabbing at everybody. I had a fine suit of clay worked on and new shoes, but when I got to shore they were all torn to pieces. All my goods, two tons, was lost and I landed in Dawson with nothing at all except the torn clothes on my back, the steamer Bailey bringing us down from Thirty Mile River.

Nothing here less than 25c. All meals are one dollar; coal oil $1.50 per gallon; a lead pencil 25c., and the same for a stick of gum. Any kind of a room for one week $15 to $30. Wood, all poles, $20 a cord. For $7 or $8 suit of clothes, $50 here.

I am just opening up a sign writing shop and to do art work and photography. I charge $30 to $50 and $70 for small signs. $11 each for any kind of a photo, not on card either. If I look at a person here it's $10. Everything is freezing up here now, lots of snow and good sleighing. It gets 75 below zero in the winter.

I am glad that none of you were there and see our steamer capsized and smash all to pieces and see those people drowned and others struggling for life. It was the worst wreck they have had in Alaskan travel. I have been up the creeks on all the claims and I have seen lots of gold and I am after it too, and am going to have it. I can do almost anything. When I got the money I want I am going down the river to Cape Nome and then east. Then I will have gone a long way, or quite a few miles.

JOHN L. GALE

The experiments with mosquitoes in order to ascertain beyond a doubt that they carry the germs of yellow fever, typhus and so on, brought out a remarkable instance of nerve at Havana recently, where Dr. J. W. Lasear and Dr. James A. Carroll, assistant surgeons of the United States army, offered their lives. They fed mosquitoes upon the bodies of yellow-fever patients in the hospital at Havana and then deliberately allowed those mosquitoes to attack their arms. The infection of both was prompt and they were treated with all the skill and care that their associates could devise, while the study of their symptoms and the course of the disease was carefully observed. Dr. Lasear died, but Dr. Carroll survived and his report in his case is one of the most important contributions to the vast literature concerning contagious diseases.

The Bay City Tribune Burned.

Fire wrecked the office of the Bay City Tribune on the 8th. No paper can be issued for several days. The basement contained a barrel of kerosene oil and printer's ink, which fed the flames, but the firemen succeeded in saving the building, though some floors were burned through.

Wolves Plentiful in Michigan.

Gray wolves are plentiful in various parts of upper and lower Michigan, a fact which people are noting this winter, and they are hungry. There is quite a reward offered for a wolf's scalp, however—$2—which will make the hunter look after them pretty close.

During the time he was serving he was twice sent from Jackson to the asylum for criminal insane at Ionia. He claims to have been perfectly right in his head all the time and says he was sent to Ionia because he got into quarrels with fellow convicts and struck them. He asserts that it is a common practice for the Jackson authorities to send convicts who cannot handle to Ionia and that there are at least three now. This will probably be investigated.

This picture tells its own story of sisterly affection. The older girl, just budding into womanhood, has suffered greatly with those irregularities and menstrual difficulties which sap the life of so many young women.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound can always be relied upon to restore health to women who thus suffer. It is a sovereign cure for the worst forms of female complaints,—that bearing-down feeling, weak back, falling and displacement of the womb, inflammation of the ovaries, and all troubles of the uterus or womb. It dissolves and expels tumors from the uterus in the early stage of development and checks any tendency to cancerous humors. It subdues excitability, nervous prostration, and tones up the entire female system.

Could anything prove more clearly the efficacy of Mrs. Pinkham's Medicine than the following strong statement of Grace Stansbury?

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I was a sufferer from female weakness for about a year and a half. I have tried doctors and patent medicines, but nothing helped me. I underwent the horrors of local treatment, but received no benefit. My ailment was pronounced ulceration of the womb. I suffered from intense pains in the womb and ovaries, and the backache was dreadful. I had leucorrhoea in its worst form. Finally, I grew so weak I had to keep my bed. The pains were so hard as to almost cause spasms. When I could endure the pains no longer, I was given morphine. My memory grew short and I gave up all hope of getting well. Thus I dragged along. To please my sister I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. Her answer came, but meantime I was taken worse and was under the doctor's care for a while.

"After reading Mrs. Pinkham's letter, I concluded to try her medicine. After taking two bottles I felt much better; but after using six bottles I was cured. All of my friends think my cure almost miraculous. I thank you very much for your timely advice and wish you prosperity in your noble work, for surely it is a blessing to broken-down women. I have full and complete faith in the Lydia E. Pinkham Vegetable Compound."—GRACE B. STANSBURY, Herington, Kansas.
