Farmer's New Map of Michigan and the "Michigan Book."

At last Michigan has a map that worthily represents a rich and prosperous commonwealth. For the first time the entire state, including the great Isle Royale, is clearly shown with all its belongings their proper geographical position.

This is artistic work even in the title, which is attractive with its representations of apple blossoms (the State Flower), State Seal and State Capitol.

It is not a mere township map, but shows the sections as surveyed and the small lakes and streams, and as a matter of course the railroads are accurate, the township boundaries carefully defined, and cities, village, postoffice and railroad stations located and named in remarkably clean and clear-cut letters.

Special features are the showing of the area of all cities and routes of all electric railways in red.

The "Michigan Book," a state cyclopedia of 350 pages, is published in connection with the map. It contains, besides thousands of items of information maps in colors of each of the 83 counties in the State.

It will answer almost any question regarding Michigan history, institutions, productions, government, law, election officers, etc. Every citizen will find it invaluable. The map and book are sent together for $1. Agents are wanted.

THE PLYMOUTH MAIL

F. W. SAMSON, Publisher.

PLYMOUTH, MICHIGAN.

The Khedive of Egypt recently sent a present to Pope Leo XIII, in the shape of a mummy, dating back to two thousand years before the Christian era.

A movement is on foot in North Carolina, prompted by the tobacco dealers, to erect a statue of Sir Walter Raleigh in Raleigh. Collection boxes are to be placed in stores where tobacco is sold.

A line of "observation automobiles" is to be run in Washington, D. C., for the benefit of visitors. Each vehicle carries twenty-two passengers and will be accompanied by a lecturer on points of interest at the capital. The fuel is kerosene and the motive power steam.

Dr. S. J. Trexle of Kutztown, Pa., before his death, provided that everyone who attended his funeral should have a free dinner, and over 1,000 persons availed themselves of his offer at the two leading hotels, where arrangements had been made to feed the multitude.

A New York newspaper recently celebrated its fiftieth birthday by bringing out a copy of its first issue. That number contained, among many musty and forgotten things, an article on the Nicaraguan canal route, extracts from English papers on the superiority of American yachts, and an article on the sympathy of Americans with the Cubans, oppressed by Spain. Verily, "the thoughts we are thinking our fathers did think."

An American laundry machine company has recently shipped a complete steam laundry plant to Vladivostok, eastern Siberia. It will be capable of handling four thousand pieces of linen a day, and will consist of washers, centrifugal wringers and a large mangle. This is said to be the first introduction of such an equipment into that region. If so, it is doubtless a case of "Wring out the old; wring in the new," slightly to amend Tenyson's familiar lines.

The "Donau, Zeitung," a Bavarian newspaper, gives currency to the rumor that the Kaiser has instructed the military authorities to remit all sentences passed on soldiers of the China expeditionary force. His Majesty, it is said, does not wish that the men who went voluntarily to China to fight for the Fatherland shall return home to undergo punishment. Quite a large number of soldiers of the German forces have been sentenced to more or less heavy punishment for offenses against military discipline committed in China and for excesses against the person and property of the Chinese.

When Emma Paul was called as a witness in court in Baltimore, Md., in a suit brought by her father against her mother, the astonishing facts were disclosed that, although she is aged twenty years, she did not understand the nature of an oath, had never been to a church or Sunday school, had never heard of God, or heaven, and did not know of the promise of immortality. It was discovered that the young woman had lived in Baltimore all her life, and that her home was in the heart of a densely populated section. Judge Wickes allowed her to testify, saying she was an extraordinary and unsatisfactory witness.

The street car companies of Chicago are apparently not in high favor with the Service committee of the city council, for it has formulated a code that is likely to reduce the receipts of the railroad companies considerably. The committee at a meeting decided that if a passenger is obliged to stand up in a car and hang on to a strap he has received value for only four cents, and not five. Then the committee has suggested to the corporation counsel to enforce an ordinance relative to transfers, making it obligatory on the traction companies to furnish transfer slips to any of its interesting lines.

An interesting operation has just been performed in the hospital attached to the University at Halle, Germany. A 6-year-old girl patient was suffering from partial paralysis and as the doctors in charge considered this could only arise from a tumor on the brain, Prof. von Eisemann decided to remove it. With an electric saw he cut out a piece of the skull a little larger than a half-crown, cut through the inner skin, and discovered a tumor as large as a walnut. The professor skillfully removed this tumor, sewed up the inner skin, fitted in again the round piece of the skull he had sawn out, and sewed up the outer skin. The operation lasted an hour, and may be considered perfectly successful, as the child is quite well again and all symptoms of paralysis have disappeared.

At the request of friends and admirers of Dr. Armand Hansen, the discoverer of the bacillus of leprosy, the Norwegian sculptor Vinesd made a bust of him, which was unveiled the other day, on the occasion of Hansen's sixtieth birthday. Professor Lassar delivered an address, in which he remarked that it had taken the world a quarter of a century to fully realize the import of Dr. Hansen's discovery, but that already, in consequence of it, great improvement had been effected in Norway, long one of the favorite haunts of that terrible disease.

A Romantic Marriage Surprises Corunna.

SEN. NICHOLS WELCOME HOME.

The Facts, Fancies and Happenings of Note Which the Two Pastoras Afford Gathered and Briefly Told For Busy Readers.

A Corunna Romance.

The people of Corunna were treated to a surprise Saturday when the news got out that Miss Lela Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newman A. Parker, and Walter Bush, son of Probate Judge Bush, had been secretly married for several weeks and were residing in Detroit. The disclosure was news to the parents of both parties. Mr. Bush, when seen in Detroit, admitted that his father had been kept in ignorance of the marriage. He said that the bride had remained at the home of her parents up till about a week ago, when they came to Detroit, accompanied by her father. He added that he has a good position and will take up a permanent residence in the City of the Straits. Bush is only 19 years old. His bride is a handsome brunette and an accomplished musician. She is about 27 years old, and her parents are well connected. He works in a printing office.

A Train Mystery.

The body of a fully developed male child, weighing about 10 pounds and apparently not more than 24 hours old, was found on a Grand Trunk car by the United States customs officer Sunday, while the train was on the car ferry crossing from Windsor. The infant was dead, but had evidently been alive at birth as it seemed to have been bathed. It was near the heating pipes at the side of the car and had escaped observation of the four or five passengers in the coach. The body was wrapped in white cloths and newspapers. The inner covering was a piece of cotton cloth, outside of which was wrapped a baby's little skirt and copies of the Montreal Daily Star and Toledo Blade of Wednesday, October 30.

Welcomed Home.

Senator George E. Nichols, of Ionia, came home Saturday night from Grand Rapids, and on stepping from the train was surrounded by a large delegation of his home friends, who extended to him a warm token of their esteem, showing that the people of Ionia have faith in him in spite of the recent developments that have made him so conspicuous in the state. The assembly was made up of leading citizens generally, irrespective of party, and the senator was visibly affected and apparently appreciated the expression of confidence.

Wiseman Stood Mute.

Henry Wiseman, the accused murderer of Mrs. Huss, faced his charge in Justice Snowden's court Saturday morning and refused to plead. He had a plea of not guilty entered against him and was held for examination, with no bail. The charge was murder and not manslaughter, as the confessed criminal had hoped. A crowd too large for the little court room attempted to get sight of the famous criminal, but many were unable to do so on account of the crush.

Botsford Elevator Burned.

The Botsford grain elevator in Port Huron burned Monday night. During the progress of the fire, Chief Thorpe of the fire department had the office building while trying to save the office building of the elevator. It is thought he is internally injured. In the elevator were 270,000 bushels of grain, and for hours to come the fire will be smoldering. The elevator plant was valued at $110,000, and the entire loss is estimated at $250,000.

Mrs. Taylor and Cat.

Mrs. Anna Edson Taylor, her manager, and a big black cat, have arrived home in Bay City. The cat enjoys the distinction of having gone over Niagara Falls with its mistress. Mrs. Taylor says her back is still lame, but she expects to be all right in a few days. She says she has lots of offers from eastern houses to exhibit herself and the cat in show windows, and will accept some of them in a week or two.

Four Drowned.

George W. Levin, Abel Levin, Emil Carlson and Albin Carlson attempted to cross the lake in a rowboat Sunday night. They probably lost their way in the storm, the boat was upset and all were drowned. None of the bodies have as yet been recovered. The Levins are the sons of Marcus Levin, a prominent merchant, and George was a graduate of the law department of the University of Michigan.

Genesee Jail and Taxes.

At the session of the Genesee county board of supervisors the committee appointed to report on the question of a new jail recommended that the old jail be replaced by a modern structure. As they had been unable to get figures on the cost they asked until the January term to report in full. The committee on estimates reported that $131,704.85 would be necessary to pay the state tax of $71,704.85 and run the county for the year.

Silk Culture Experiment.

Secretary Wilson, of the department of agriculture, proposes to make a determined effort to develop silk culture in the United States if congress gives him the $10,000 he has asked for experimental work. Secretary Wilson intends to begin his tests in several states, including Michigan and other states surrounding the great lakes. Silk is cultivated in Canada, and the climate of Michigan is the same.

Munising "Fire water" has reduced the tribe of "Indiantown" to a small remnant.

Munising "Fire water" has reduced the tribe of "Indiantown" to a small remnant.

Over the Falls and Out.

F. M. Russel, the manager of Mrs. Anna Edson Taylor, has been released from the bonds of $3,000 in which he was held by the authorities at Niagara Falls, pending the outcome of the injuries sustained by Mrs. Taylor in her barrel trip over the falls. She has so far recovered that no danger of any serious results remains, and within a few days she will be enjoying the financial returns she sought, by being exhibited at various places.

Stole a Wagon Load.

Eugene Ottaway, of Clayton, found that thieves on Thursday had broken into his barn and driven away with 34 bushels of beans, which were sold at Gaines. The suspected parties were arrested Friday and brought to jail. Saturday morning they waived examination and will plead guilty in the Circuit Court. They are Paul Byrne, of Clayton, and Leo Spayth, John Pritch and Calvin Raffner, of Maple Grove.

The Charlotte Fire.

Arthur Brooks, the man who was found in his room in the burned Phoenix hotel, Charlotte, after the fire was put out, is in a critical condition. When discovered he was on the floor unconscious. The mirror was broken, the crazed man having taken it for a window. N. W. Foster, of Onseida, N. Y., who was taken out of the building, may lose his sight, as both eyes were badly burned.

He can "Lick 'em."

The right of a school teacher to administer corporal punishment to a pupil has been demonstrated for all time at Trenton. Recently Principal E. C. Mead had occasion to whip a pupil and was informed by the school board that he had exceeded his rights. He appealed to County School Commissioner Yost and was fully sustained in the action he had taken.

The P. M. Missed One.

A serious wreck was averted on the Pere Marquette Tuesday night by a train slowing up to permit a lone passenger to get aboard at Meridian. The brake rod of the engine broke, throwing the switch after the engine and tender had passed over. The baggage car, smoker, parlor and day car were derailed, and the passengers severely shaken up.

Burned to Death.

The 4-year-old daughter of Charles Downing, Chesaning, was burned to death Monday. Her clothing caught fire from coals from the stove door, and she was soon enveloped in flames. She ran outdoors and rolled in the sand, but to no avail. She lived two hours after the physicians arrived.

THE FALL ELECTIONS.

Seth Low Elected in Greater New York.

HIS PLURALITY ABOUT 40,000.

Reports From Ohio Show Increased Republican Pluralities. Nebraska Makes Some Gains—Republicans Carried Massachusetts—The Vote in Other States.

New York.

Complete returns of the election in New York show the utter rout of Tammany, further and conclusive proof of which is given by the retirement of Richard Croker, chief of the powerful Democratic organization, to be succeeded by John F. Carroll. Complete returns from every district of the great city give Seth Low, fusion candidate for mayor, 204,992; Edward M. Sheppard, Tammany candidate, 215,123, making Low's plurality 29,844. Edward M. Grout has a plurality of 44,976 over William Ladd, democrat, for controller. William T. Jerome beat Uger, democrat, for district attorney by over 15,000 plurality. A revised recapitulation of the vote on president of the board of aldermen with every district reported shows that Chas. V. Fumes, fusion candidate, beat his democratic competitor by a plurality of 31,384.

Ohio.

Revised returns show that the Ohio republicans gained almost everywhere except in Columbus, where dissatisfaction over some of Gov. Nash's appointments and local option caused great democratic gains, and in Cleveland, where factional fighting and Mayor Johnson's crusade on taxation were made distinct issues, as in Franklin county, liquor men won. The result continues the republican power in the state, making an epoch of 12 years in succession, and it ensures the reelection of Senator Foraker. The republican plurality exceeds the average of 53,000 for the last ten years, or since the first election of McKinley as governor, which has been termed the greatest republican era in Ohio.

California.

Eugene E. Schmitz, union labor candidate for mayor of San Francisco, has been elected by a plurality of about 2,500. Schmitz is the leader of an orchestra in a local theater, and also secretary and manager of a machine shop. He has heretofore been known as a republican. The republicans elect the auditor, sheriff, tax collector, treasurer, county clerk, public administrator and six supervisors. The democrats will have the balance of the city offices. The union labor party elected three supervisors.

Pennsylvania.

The result in Pennsylvania is that Frank C. Harris, republican, has been elected treasurer over Elisha A. Conroy, Jr., fusion candidate, by between 50,000 and 55,000 plurality. William P. Potter, republican, has defeated Harman Yerkes, fusion, for judge of the supreme court by about 50,000. The vote polled in the state was unusually light, but in Philadelphia the vote for state treasurer exceeded Barnett's vote for the same office in 1899 by more than 25,000 votes.

Iowa.

The gains made in Iowa show that Cummins, republican, for governor, will have 92,000 over that of Phillips, democrat. The prohibition vote has been largely increased, advancing from 9,000 last year to 25,000 this year. Every precinct heard from shows a falling off in the democratic vote. The legislature from present returns will contain 125 republicans and 25 democrats, a gain of ten for the republicans.

Massachusetts.

In Massachusetts, Gov. Crane's third term plurality is 70,304. The social democratic candidates made the best showing among the minor party nominees. The governor's council includes seven republicans and one democrat, as last year. On the face of returns the house stands 196 republicans, 72 democrats and 2 social democrats, while the senate is 32 republicans and 7 democrats.

Maryland.

The vote in Maryland was light. Chairman Goldsborough of the Republican state central committee, still claims to have elected his ticket and asserts that the Republicans will have a majority on joint ballot in the general assembly, while Chairman Vandiver, of the Democratic committee, makes a like claim for his party.

Virginia.

The returns indicate that in Virginia the Democratic state ticket is elected by 20,000 majority or more.

Other States.

Gov. Gregory, republican, was re-elected in Rhode Island by a plurality of over 5,000, as against 8,820 last year. The general assembly in both branches is largely republican, but by a decreased majority.

Murphy, republican, is elected governor of New Jersey by a comfortable plurality.

South Dakota elected eight judges. Republicans claim all eight. Democrats claim two.

Connecticut elected delegates to a constitutional convention. Republicans got the most of them.

Republicans were generally successful in Utah. Extra Thompson won for mayor of Salt Lake by nearly 1,000 majority.

In Kansas republicans were generally successful in local and legislative contests, and claim a safe majority in the next legislature.

Democrats made such gains in legislative contests in Kentucky as to insure a democratic successor to Senator Deboe.

Mrs. Louise Nostz, 60 years old, of Astoria, L. I., killed herself and her grandson, Willie Collett, 5 years old, some time Wednesday night.

Shot by His Jealous Rival.

Ross Sheridan, a well known and highly connected young man of independence, Mo., in a fit of jealous rage shot and mortally wounded "Writ" Berkey of Genda Springs, Kan., his rival in the affections of Mrs. Clara Williams, at the Independence Electric depot. Mrs. Williams and Berkey were waiting for a car, when Sheridan stepped up, and, without warning, opened fire on Berkey. Mrs. Williams is a divorced woman. Sheridan is the son of Mrs. H. L. New York dispatch: Counsel for Rolland E. Molineux has served notice of a motion to quash the indictment against Molineux. The motion will come up before Judge McMahon in part No. 1 of the court of general sessions next Wednesday. The papers urge the dismissal of the Molineux indictment on the ground of illegal and insufficient evidence. In the event of a denial of the motion to quash the indictment there is an alternative motion for an inspection of the minutes of the grand jury that indicted the defendant.

Facts speak louder than words, and the fact remains undisputed that the sale of St. Jacob's Oil is greater than all other remedies for outward application combined. Forepaugh Circus Train Wrecked.

The Forepaugh & Sells' circus train, which left New Orleans Monday night, was wrecked one mile this side of Baton Rouge at noon Tuesday. Four cars loaded with animal cages were badly wrecked, but none of the cages were torn open and none of the animals allowed to escape. A car load of elephants was turned loose, but after they had wandered about the country a short time, were driven into Baton Rouge and corralled. Three men were badly hurt.

Chase of Suspected Robber.

An attempted arrest, a pistol fight on the streets between a suspect and several officers, a desperate flight by the fugitive, first in an ice wagon, then in a buggy and next on a horse, all of which he pressed into service by the display of revolvers, the wounding of the suspect and his escape into the woods, caused commotion Sunday in Nashville, Tenn. It is reported that the fugitive is George Parker, alias "Dutch" Cassidy, alias George Cassidy, alias Ingerfeld, aged 36 years, a notorious western criminal.

THE CHAMPION WING SHOT.

Capt. Bogardus Has a Dangerous Experience but Comes Out Unhurt. Ferris Wheel Park, Chicago, Nov. 4th.—Capt. A. H. Bogardus, the champion wing shot of the world, has spent the summer here. His shooting school has been one of the features of the Park during the season. He has given many exhibitions and his skill with the rifle is superb.

The Captain tells of a very close call he once had when living at Elkhart, Ill. He had been a sufferer from Kidney disease for several years and it rapidly developed into Bright's Disease. All his friends told him that this was incurable and that he would never get better.

To say that he was alarmed is to put it very mildly. This plucky man had faced many dangers and it made him sick at heart to think that at last he was to be conquered by such a cruel foe.

At last he heard of a medicine that had cured many such cases—Dodd's Kidney Pills. He used them and was completely restored to good health.

He says: "I attribute my present good health to Dodd's Kidney Pills and to nothing else."

Hopes For $27,000,000.

David Jennings, a shademaker of Montreal, Que., says he has proved his claim to an immense estate in England valued at $27,000,000. Jennings mailed for England in September with the object of establishing his identity as the heir of Humphrey Jennings. A letter just received from Mr. Jennings by his family says that he is completely successful, but that the English courts have recognized his legitimate and rightful claim to the estate, the obtaining of which was the object of his trip.

STRIKES BLOW AT SIGSBEE

Parker Springs a Sensation in Schley Inquiry.

CARELESS WORK IS SHOWN.

Log of the Cristobal Colon Is Read—Admiral Is Made to Suffer Through Lack of Zeal of His Treated Men—Old Reports Rehashed.

Washington, Nov. 7.—Captain Parker of Admiral Schley's counsel sprung a sensation upon the court of inquiry by calling attention to an entry in the log of the Spanish cruiser Cristobal Colon dated May 25, 1898, showing that the Colon shifted her anchorage from the inner harbor of Santiago on the morning of that day to the position in the outer harbor where she was discovered on the morning of May 29 by Admiral Schley's squadron. In this same connection Captain Parker read a dispatch from Captain Sigsbee to the navy department stating that Sigsbee had just completed a careful reconnaissance of the outer bearings of Santiago harbor and had made a number of valuable sketches. The dispatch contained nothing about the Colon, which must have been lying in full sight of any ship passing close to the harbor. Indeed, the Spanish cruiser was in that berth on May 26, when the flying squadron brought up at a point twenty-one miles southeast of Santiago to be intercepted by the scout ships Minneapolis, Captain Jewell; Yale, Captain Wise, and St. Paul, Captain Sigsbee.

All three of these naval commanders and their ships had been patrolling in front of the harbor. Sigsbee had been there for nearly a week. At that time the Colon had occupied the outer berth for thirty-six hours in plain sight of any ship that desired to make a close inspection of the outer harbor. The entry in the Spanish cruiser's log shows that her crew actually saw Sigsbee's ship and were eyewitnesses of the capture of the English collier Rostormel by Sigsbee. In spite of this Sigsbee did not see the Colon and informed Admiral Schley that the Spanish fleet was not in Santiago harbor. The importance of this disclosure lies chiefly in the fact that it proves the utter absence during the Spanish war of zeal and determination on the part of officers who were charged with responsible duties. In this instance Admiral Schley appears to have been the victim of this lack of zeal.

Nearing the End.
Captain Parker was followed by Mr. Rayner. He maintained that the blockade of Santiago was effective. He defended Commodore Schley's reconnaissance of May 31, saying he had acted wisely in determining the actual conditions. In this line of policy he said that Commodore Schley's conduct was paralleled by that of Admiral Dewey in Asiatic waters when the latter remained for several days in Mirs Bay. Regarding the loop made by the Brooklyn, Captain Parker declared it was the wisest movement that could have been made. All talk about the Brooklyn going to the southward he characterized as "moonshine."

"If the Spanish gunners could have shot at the Americans' aid," declared Captain Parker, "Admiral Schley, instead of being on trial, as he is today, would be in a sailor's grave."

Sarcastic Reference to Evans.
Referring to the Hodgson controversy, Captain Parker said he really believed Hodgson desired to tell the truth, but unfortunately had told a different story every time he had opened his mouth. Captain Parker said he did not know how the alleged controversy over the danger of colliding with the Texas arose except from the story which had been told by the captain of the Iowa. The speaker was sarcastic in his allusion to Captain Evans' alleged statement regarding the damage he had done to the Spanish ships.

Mr. Rayner began his argument at 11:25. He paid a compliment to Judge Advocate Lemly and his assistant, Mr. Hanna, for the "most judicial impartiality with which they have managed this case." Mr. Rayner made a plea for the consideration of questions from what was at that time Commodore Schley's point of view.

E. S. Theall, acting on behalf of Stayton & Campbell, who were retained by Admiral Sampson to look after the latter's interest before the court of inquiry, sent a letter to the court of inquiry protesting against the inclusion in the record of certain statements believed to reflect upon Admiral Sampson's conduct at Santiago. The letter is addressed to Admiral Dewey as president of the court.

Special Care for Consumption.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 7.—Frequent complaints from healthy people compelled to travel in the same car, or even in the same section, with consumptives have been received by the railroads carrying passengers to Colorado and California, and the matter will come up for discussion Thursday at the meeting of the Western Passenger Association in Chicago. The plan is to set apart cars especially for consumptives, or else construct in the cars separate compartments to be used exclusively by them. It is hardly expected that definite action will be taken at this meeting.

Telegraphic Cables.

London still enveloped in dense fog practically stopped all business. Bishop, the law book writer, died at Rock Hill, Ill., today, after being tramping for five years. He thought he was dead.

London Besieged.

A fog such as Great Britain has not experienced for years enveloped London and half of the United Kingdom, blockading shipping, deranging railways and throwing business in London, Birmingham and other provincial cities into confusion. So dense was it that a walk into the streets was an adventure. The fog descended upon the metropolis and the suburbs so thickly that between 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon the principal avenues of traffic resembled the steam room of a Turkish bath. Hundreds of thousands of London's suburban population vainly endeavored to grope their way to the railway stations. The few who succeeded found the trains all stalled. Lanterns were at a premium, newsboys transformed their papers into temporary torches, highwaymen pursued their vocation, casualties were frequent and even hardened Londoners freely expressed a dread of the continuation of such fogs.

Edward Stokes Is Dead.

On Saturday Edward S. Stokes died at the home of his sister in New York. His career was most remarkable. From a poor boy he became the president of an oil refining company. He owned at one time the finest barroom in the world. In 1874, he shot Jim Fisk, Jay Gould's former partner, in a mixup at the Grand Central hotel, over Josie Mansfield, who was last heard of as the traveling companion of a Russian archduke. For his crime he lay two years in prison awaiting trial and retrial. He was sentenced to be hanged, but after a third trial went to Sing Sing prison for four years. Coming out at the expiration of his term, he went west, retrieving his broken fortune in California in two years of mining operations. He with Mackey, the millionaire, organized the United Lines Telegraph Co., connected with the Bennett-Mackey lines, bought the Michigan Postal lines, and was in many large financial transactions.

A Mania for Murder.

The nurse, Miss Toppan, who is charged with the murder of Mrs. A. P. Davis, of Bourne, Mass., and is suspected of murdering three other members of the Davis family, that evidence has been found, it is claimed, which will prove that Miss Toppan owed the Davis family for board and lodging at their Cotnam home, and for money she is alleged to have borrowed from them.

It is said that Miss Toppan could not repay this money, and the state officers think she may have decided upon the deaths of the family as a means of wiping out the debt.

Another claim made by at least two of the men who have had to do with Miss Toppan's arrest is that she is mentally deranged, and that her mania is to cause death by poison.

A Filipino Plot.

A plot to massacre the American garrison at Moncada, province of Tarlac, island of Luzon, has been revealed by the wife of one of the conspirators.

Several of the town officials are implicated in the murderous scheme. The woman who revealed the plot hid a detective beneath a house in which the leaders of the conspirators were meeting. Arrests followed and many incriminating papers were seized. The plan was to set fire to a house, close to the barracks, after dark, and when the soldiers came out to assist in extinguishing the flames, 150 conspirators, armed with bolos, were to rush on the guard, capture their arms, and proceed to massacre the garrison.

The Pan-Am. Closed.

The Pan-American exposition opened at 12 o'clock Saturday night. The financial loss will be in the neighborhood of $1,000,000, and the loss will fall upon holders of the common stock, the holders of second mortgage bonds and the contractors who erected the buildings. Two hundred and ten thousand shares of common stock were sold at $10 a share. The stock was subscribed for by the citizens of Buffalo and the Niagara frontier in small lots of from one share to one hundred, so that the loss will not be severely felt by anyone. The total number of admissions for the six months was close to 8,000,000.

Up Go the Taxes.

The tax burdens of the people of Great Britain are to be increased. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, in a speech at Bristol reviewed the war taxes and said that the ever-increasing demand of the national exchequer gave reasons for careful thought and even anxiety for the future.

"The cost of the war in South Africa is enormous," said Sir Michael. "It still drags on. It may be, when next year comes, that I may have to ask the people of this country to bear even greater burdens and to make even greater sacrifices."

Mrs. William Mayer, of St. Paul, Minn., piled a lot of newspapers in a bath tub Monday and set fire to them. Then she bent over the fire until the entire upper portion of her body was burned in a horrible manner. She will probably die. Two days ago Mrs. Mayer made an unsuccessful attempt to end her life. She says she wants to die, because she is a burden to her family.

The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business October 31, 1901, the debt less cash in the treasury, amounted to $1,022,022,267, a decrease from last month of $9,543,408.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

THE LAW OF COMPENSATION, SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

Good or Evil Deeds Return to Bless or Blast Our Lives—Achievements of Pomology—"It is He That Sitteth Upon the Circle of the Earth"—La. 40: 22.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]
Washington, Nov. 3.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage shows that the good or evil we do returns to bless or blast us; text, Isaiah xl, 22, "It is he that sitteth upon the circle of the earth."

While yet people thought that the world was flat and thousands of years before they found out that it was round, Isaiah, in my text, intimated the shape of it, God sitting upon the circle of the earth. The most beautiful figure in all geometry is the circle. God made the universe on the plan of a circle.

There are in the natural world straight lines, angles, parallelograms, diagonals, quadrangles, but these evidently are not God's favorites. Almost everywhere where you find him geometrizing you find the circle dominant; and if not the circle then the curve, which is a circle that died young. If it had lived long enough, it would have been a full orb, a periphery. An ellipse is a circle pressed only a little too hard at the sides.

Giant's Causeway, in Ireland, shows what God thinks of mathematics. There are over 35,000 columns of rocks—octagonal, hexagonal, pentagonal. These rocks seem to have been made by rule and compass. Every artist has his molding room, where he may make 50 shapes, but he chooses one shape as preferable to all others. I will not say that the Giant's Causeway was the world's molding room, but I do say out of a great many figures God seems to have selected the circle as the best. "It is he that sitteth upon the circle of the earth." The stars in a circle, the moon in a circle, the sun in a circle, the universe in a circle and the throne of God the center of that circle.

The Achievements of Pomology.

Pomology will go on with its achievements until after many centuries the world will have plums and pears equal to the paradisaical. The art of gardening will grow for centuries, and after the Downings and Mitchells of the world have done their best in the far future the art of gardening will come up to the arborescence of the year L. If the makers of colored glass go on improving they may in some centuries be able to make something equal to the east window of York minster, which was built in the year 1290. We are six centuries behind these artists, but the world must keep on toiling until it shall make the complete circuit and come up to the skill of these very men.

If the world continues to improve in masonry, we shall have after awhile, perhaps after the advance of centuries, mortar equal to that which I saw in the wall of an exhumed English city built in the time of the Romans, 1,600 years ago, that mortar today as good as the day in which it was made, having outlasted the brick and stone. I say after hundreds of years masonry may advance to that point.

If the world stands long enough, we may have a city as large as they made in old times—Babylon, five times the size of London. You go into the potteries of England, and you find them making cups and vases after the style of the cups and vases exhumed from Pompeii. The world is not going back. Oh, no! But it is swinging in a circle and will come around to the styles of pottery known so long ago as the days of Pompeii. The world must keep on progressing until it makes the complete circuit. The curve is in the right direction; the curve will keep on until it becomes the circle.

Well, now, what is true in the material universe is true in God's moral government and spiritual arrangement. That is the meaning of Ezekiel's wheel. All commentators agree in saying that a wheel is of no use unless it turns, and if it turns it turns around, and if it turns around it moves in a circle. What then? Are we parts of a great iron machine whirled around whether we will or not, the victims of inexorable fate? No! So far from that I shall show you that we ourselves start the circle of good or bad actions, and that it will surely come around again to us unless by divine intervention it be hindered. Those bad or good actions may make the circuit of many years, but come back to us they will as certainly as that God sits on the circle of the earth.

The Circle of Centuries.

But it is sometimes the case that this circle sweeps through a century or through many centuries. The world started with a theocracy for government—that is, God was the president and emperor of the world. People got tired of a theocracy. They said: "We don't want God directly interfering with the affairs of the world. Give us a monarchy." The world had a monarchy. From a monarchy it is going to have a limited monarchy. After awhile the limited monarchy will be given up, and the republican form of government will be everywhere dominant and recognized. Then the world will get tired of the republican form of government, and it will have an anarchy, which is no government at all. And then all nations, finding out that man is not capable of righteously governing man, will cry out again for theocracy and say, "Let God come back and conduct the affairs of the world," every step—monarchy, limited monarchy, republicanism, anarchy—only different steps between the first theocracy and the last theocracy or segments of the great circle of the earth on which God sits.

But do not become impatient because you cannot see the curve of events and therefore conclude that God's government is going to break down. History tells us that in the making of the pyramids it took 2,000 men two years to drag one great stone from the quarry and put it into the pyramids. If men short lived can afford to work so slowly as that, cannot God in the building of eternities afford to wait?

What though God should take 10,000 years to draw a circle? Shall we take our little watch, which we have to wind up every night lest it run down, and hold it up beside the clock of eternal ages? If, according to the Bible, a thousand years are in God's sight as one day, then, according to that calculation, the 6,000 years of the world's existence has been only to God as from Monday to Saturday.

The Circle of Good Deeds.

One day a man comes to you and says, "Good morning." You look at him and say: "Why, you have the advantage of me. I cannot place you." He says, "Don't you remember thirty years ago giving a letter of introduction to a young man—a letter of introduction to William E. Dodge?" "Yes, yes; I do." He says, "I am the man. That was my first step toward a fortune, but I have retired from business now and am giving my time to philanthropies and public interests. Come up to my house and see me."

Or a man comes to you and says: "I want to introduce myself to you. I went into a prayer meeting some years ago. I sat back by the door. You arose to make an exhortation. That talk changed the course of my life, and if I ever get to heaven under God I will owe my salvation to you." In only ten, twenty or thirty years the circle swept out and swept back again to your own grateful heart.

But sometimes it is a wider circle and does not return for a great while. I saw a bill of expenses for burning Latimer and Ridley. The bill of expenses has these items among others: Shillings. Pence.

One load of fire fagots..... 3 4
Cartage for four loads of wood..... 2 4
Item, a post..... 1 4
Item, two chains..... 3 4
Item, two staples..... 2 6
Item, four laborers..... 2 8 making in all 25s. 8d. That was cheap fire, considering all the circumstances, but it kindled a light which shone all around the world and aroused the martyr spirit, and out from that burning of Latimer and Ridley rolled the circle wider and wider, starting other circles, convoluting, overrunning, circumscripting, overarching, all heaven, a circle.

The Echo of Past Misdeeds.

You maltreat an aged parent. You begrudge him the room in your house. You are impatient of his whimsicalities and garrulity. It makes you mad to hear him tell the same story twice. You give him food he cannot masticate. You wish he was away. You wonder if he is going to live forever. He will be gone very soon. His steps are shorter and shorter. He is going to stop. But God has an account to settle with you on that subject. After awhile your eye will be dim, and your gait will halt, and the sound of the grinding will be low, and you will tell the same story twice, and your children will wonder if you will never be taken away. They called you "father" once; now they call you the "old man." If you live a few years longer they will call you the "old chap." What are those rough words with which your children are accosting you? They are the echo of the very words you used in the ear of your old father forty years ago. What is that you are trying to chew, but find it un-masticable, and your jaws ache, and you surrender the attempt? Perhaps it may be the gristle which you gave to your father for his breakfast forty years ago.

A gentleman passing along the avenue saw a son dragging his father into the street by the hair of the head. The gentleman, outraged at this brutal conduct, was about to punish the offender, when the old man arose and said: "Don't hurt him. It's all right. Forty years ago this morning I dragged out my father by the hair of his head." It is a circle. Other sins may be adjudged to the next world. That circle is made quickly, very quickly. Oh, what a stupendous thought that the good and the evil we start come back to us! Do you know that the judgment day will be only the points at which the circles join, the good and the bad we have done coming back to us unless divine intervention hinder—coming back to us with welcome of delight or curse of condemnation?

Oh, I would like to see Paul, the invalid missionary, at the moment when his influence comes to full orb, his influence rolling out through Antioch, through Cyprus, through Lystra, through Corinth, through Athens, through Asia, through Europe, through America, through the first century, through five centuries, through twenty centuries, through earth, through heaven, and at last the wave of influence, having made full circuit, strikes his soul. Oh, then I would like to see him! No one can tell the wide sweep of the circle of Paul's influence save the one who is seated on the circle of the earth.

I should not like to see the countenance of Voltaire, when his influence comes to full orb. When the fatal hemorrhage seized him at eighty-three years of age, his influence did not cease. The most brilliant man of his century, he had used all his faculties for assailing Christianity, his bad influence widening through France, widening out through Germany, widening through all Europe; widening through America, widening through the 123 years that have gone since he died, widening through the earth, widening through the great future, until at last the accumulated influence of his baleful teachings and dissolute life will beat against his dismayed spirit, and at that moment it will be enough to make the black hair of eternal darkness turn white with horror. No one can tell how that bad man's influence girdled the earth save the one who is seated on the circle of the earth, the Lord Almighty.

God's Omnipotent Mercy.

"Well, now," say some, "this in some respects is a very glad theory and in others a very bad one. We would like to have the good we have ever done come back to us, but the thought that all the sins we have ever committed will come back to us, fills us with affright." My brother, I have to tell you God can break that circle and will do so at your call. I can bring twenty passages of Scripture to prove that when God for Christ's sake forgives a man the sins of his past life never come back. The wheel may roll on and on, but you take your position behind the cross, and the wheel strikes the cross and is shattered forever. The sins fly off from the circle and fall at right angles with complete oblivion. Forgiven! Forgiven! The meanest thing a man can do is, after some difficulty has been settled, to bring it up again, and God will not do anything like that. God's memory is mighty enough to hold all the events of the ages, but there is one thing that is sure to slip his memory, one thing he is sure to forget, and that is pardoned transgressions. How do I know it? I will prove it. "Their sins and their iniquities I will remember no more." "Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven."

But every circumference must have a center, and what is the center of this heavenly circumference? Christ—his all the glory, his all the praise, his all the crowns, all heaven wreathed into a garland round about him. Take off the imperial sandal from his foot and behold the scar of the spike. Lift the coronet of dominion from his brow and see where was the laceration of the briars. Come closer, all heaven. Narrow the circle around his great heart. O Christ, the Savior, O Christ, the man, O Christ, the God, keep thy throne forever, seated on the circle of the earth, seated on the circle of heaven!

On Christ, the solid rock, I stand;
All other ground is shifting sand.

WILD ESKIMO.

Some of the Habits of These People a Home.

Returning from the Coppermine, we fell in with a party of Eskimo, who ran from us as we approached, in spite of all our efforts to restrain them. But, as a matter of fact, even had we been bloodthirstily inclined we would have put up a poor fight, because both my assistant and I were quite tired out, and my men had gone on some hours before us. It seems rather incredible that twenty-five Eskimo would run from two played-out white men; but it is quite probable that they may have expected an army behind us. Their camp was a most extraordinary place. It lay on a hillock of sand, with a large lake in front and a pond behind. The knoll butts, the walls of which were formed of flat stones placed on end, and the roofs of caribou skin. The pond was filled with caribou bones, which showed that the camp had been much frequented. In the middle of the miniature village lay a large heap of raw caribou meat, which the Eskimo store up in seasons of plenty. We waited some time at the camp, hoping the natives would reappear, but they did not. It was their period of good feeding. The caribou were grazing on the Barren Lands in vast herds, and musk oxen were plentiful, so there was no necessity for them to return to their extra food supply. They had evidently never come in contact with white men before, because no article of civilized manufacture was found in their camp.—Geographical Journal.

Highest of Waterfalls.

The highest waterfall in the world, geography tells us, is the Ceresolia cascade in the Alps, having a fall of 2,400 feet; that of Arvey, in Savoie, is 1,100 feet, and the falls of Yosemite valley range from 700 to 1,000 feet. But higher yet is the waterfall in the San Cuayatan canon, in the state of Durango, Mexico. It was discovered by some prospectors, ten years ago, in the great Barranca district which is called the Tierras Desconocidas. While searching for the famous lost mine, Naranzal, a great roar of water was heard. With great difficulty the party pushed on, and up and down the mighty chasms until they beheld the superb fall that is at least 3,000 feet high.—Land of Sunshine.

Lithographic Stone Is Plentiful.

A deposit of lithographic stone has been found near Mt. Sterling, Ky., which Eugene Leary, of the United States Geological Survey, believes to be more valuable than any gold mine. "There is no reason," says Mr. Leary, "why the quarry should not control the market in this country. There is no lithographic stone anywhere else, so far as is known, and there will be no difficulty in competing with the German product."

The first factory for the manufacture of cotton sewing thread was located at Pawtucket in 1794.

Lord Sackville Humiliated.

Lord Sackville, better known to Americans as Sir Lionel Sackville West, the former British minister at Washington, has been forced to make a confession of an episode in his early life, to refute the claims of a young man, styling himself Henry Sackville West, to being heir to the title and family estates. Lord Sackville says: "It is quite true that I had a mistress in Madrid. Her name, however, was not Pepita Duran, but Pepita de la Oliva, for she was married to Antonio de la Oliva just before I met her. Therefore the suggestion that she was my wife is palpably untrue. If she had been free I should probably have married her, for I loved her, so much so, indeed, that we lived together in perfect happiness until she died just fifteen years ago. I never put another woman in her place and shall never marry. My brother will succeed me here."

"Pepita Oliva bore me four children, a son and three daughters. My son has been treated by me in all respects as though he were my legitimate offspring, but he has repaid me with gross ungrateful ingratitude, which has culminated in this scandal and apparently attempted fraud. My eldest daughter long ago married a French gentleman of distinguished family. My second daughter, by a family arrangement, married her cousin, my nephew, the eldest son of my only brother and therefore her presumptive heir to the title and estates. My third daughter, who is now 25 years of age, is living in London with a chaperon and is well looked after. All three girls are very beautiful and very like their mother."

A Celebrated Case.

"When we have told all we know to support the charges we have made against Miss Jane Toppan, the Robinson poisoning case, the most famous that has ever been heard in a Massachusetts court, will sink into insignificance." This statement was made Sunday by Gen. Whitney, of the state police, who reached home in Medford Sunday morning from New Hampshire.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1901

LETTER FROM J. H. NOYES.

Cheyenne Canyon, Colo., Oct. 25.
I will as best I can give you a description of Cheyenne Canyon. But it is impossible for any one to describe it. It must be seen to be enjoyed. I started at 1:30 p. m., which was my first mistake. I ought to have started in the morning and taken my dinner. I got to the mouth of the canyon at 2 p. m. by the Electric Railway. They call it six miles from Colorado Springs.

The first thing of interest that I saw was the railroad cars (train) way up on the mountains. The railroad runs right over the mountains to Cripple Creek. The train had one engine in front and one behind. They were so high up on the mountain that they looked like toy cars. The track runs up an incline. Just where I saw them they had to cross three bridges or trestles over chasms. The entire freight train looked about as long as a yard stick.

As I got off the car and started up the mouth of the canyon (I had no guide and so by accident went up the south canyon which many think the most beautiful), we went down a little into a ravine. There were rocks and hills on all sides. There were many trees, some of good size and much shrubbery. There were many paths and roads going in all directions, and I did not know which to follow, but I found a stream of water, (the Cheyenne Creek) and I followed that. As we got up the canyon there were more rocks and less soil and the valley became narrower. There is a fine gravel road along the edge of the creek up to the seven falls, and a foot path above that. When we come to where the valley is from six to ten rods wide it is private property and it costs 25 cts. to go up, but it is well worth it. It is the most magnificent sight I ever saw. Helen Hunt Jackson called it the most beautiful spot on earth, and at her own request was buried there. Her husband now lives in Colorado Springs I am told.

We come first to what is called the "Pillars of Hercules," and we learn why they are called the Rocky mountains. Great rocks towering in the air from 400 to 1100 feet, in many cases it looked as though it was one solid rock. It does not go higher and higher until it gets to one great peak, but it is peak after peak with great chasms between and in the canyon, not more than four rods wide, the rocks go up so straight for 800 feet that a bird would find hard work to find a place to light. They have signs stuck out in several places—"Walk your horses." To look up at the great rocks towering over your head it seems as though there were great masses cracked loose and just waiting for a little jar to come crashing down on you.

We come next to the Devil's Slide, which looks like two great mountains of solid rock, piled up one against the other, and the crack between them is called the slide. As we pass on we find rock upon rock, instead of the solid rock and trees and shrubbery growing between the cracks, and the valley gets wider in places. Then we come to Prospect Dome. There were many rocks here, round at the base, and towering up to a dome at the top. It either meant the largest of these or all of them.

The next is the Seven falls, but just before we got to the falls I noticed they were building a new house clear across the canyon, and I expect next year this will be a sort of toll-gate and people will have to pay extra to see the falls. To stand at the bottom of the falls and look up you cannot see the top nor can you stand at the top and see the bottom. There is a flight of stairs which winds around with the falls by which to climb to the top. There are four flights of steps. I counted them as I went up. The first was 67 steps the next 47 the next 134 and the next 11 steps, and there are some stone or rock steps above this, about 12 feet. There are places to sit down and rest at the top of each flight. If you will figure it out you will see there are 259 steps and each step is 8 inches, making 172 feet. The platform at the top of the wood steps is on an incline, making it about 190 feet. It was high enough to make me feel dizzy when I looked down. They call it seven falls but there are really but six. The water at the bottom of each fall has washed out a great basin in the solid rock, perhaps 20 feet across it. The last, or bottom fall, which they call two falls, the water strikes a rough rock and spatters off to one side, just at the top of the first flight of steps. Above the falls there is one continuous line of little falls. I followed it back for I don't know how many miles until the tops of the mountains were not over 150 or 200 feet above my head. I came to places where it was marked "private property keep off and avoid trouble." I passed several of these, but did not look that way to see them. I did not want any trouble, but I did want to see the end of that canyon. It was 4:30 when I stopped and I thought I had better be making down hill. It was nearly six o'clock, and I came near getting lost in the dark before I reached the car, and 6:30 p.m. when I reached home.

Yours truly
J. H. NOYES.

THE PASSION PLAY

Produced at the Opera House on Tuesday Evening, Nov. 12th.

Hundreds of people spend thousands of dollars and travel thousands of miles to see the the Passion Play at Oberammergau in a language they do not understand. Plymouth people can see a correct reproduction for the sum of 25c at the opera house. There will be a series of 62 scenes of moving figures depicting the pious drama in all its realism. An intensely interesting and absorbing lecture will be given as scenes pass before the audience, and sacred music and illustrated songs will assist in adding solemnity to the entertainment, which displays the life of our Savior from birth to the ascension.

A Hunting Accident.

A party of Detroit hunters were out looking for game about three miles south of the village yesterday, and about noon decided to board a street car and come to Plymouth. They thought it a wise precaution to remove the shells from their guns before boarding the car, and one of them was in the act of doing so when the gun was discharged the entire charge taking effect in Dick Gilre's left arm and side. The party came to Plymouth and Drs. Cooper, Oliver and Patterson removed the shot and bandaged up the wounds as best they could. The injured man was taken to Detroit on the afternoon train accompanied by Drs. Cooper and Oliver. His injuries, while not fatal, are very serious. He is a member of the Detroit fire department.

Woman's Literary Club.

The Woman's Literary Club held its third regular meeting at the home of Mrs. F. Shattuck Friday afternoon last. The meeting was called to order by the President, 19 active members responding to roll-call. After the transaction of usual business, 45 minutes were given to a review of "Hamlet," after which the programme for the afternoon was taken up under the leadership of Mrs. Ella Chaffee. "From Ivan to Peter the Great," brief sketch, Miss Hartough. "Contemporary Events," Miss Edith Sayles. "Peter the Great and Catherine II. and their Times," Miss Ella Shattuck. "The Times of Catherine II.," Mrs. Chas. Bennett. "The Winter Palace," Mrs. Hodge. Club adjourned to hold the next regular meeting with Mrs. Harry Shattuck Friday afternoon, Nov. 15th.—Sec.

While Mr. Kaiser, a farmer living in Cahton township, was driving to town last Saturday evening, one of the horses being hitched too close struck its heels on the whiffletrees near Robert Birch's residence. This frightened the animal and the team started to run, soon breaking away from the wagon. They ran into town and were stopped on the four corners without further damage. Mr. Kaiser escaped without being hurt.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, kidney, bladder, uric acid troubles and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Y. The regular fifty cent and dollar sizes are sold by all good druggists.

Stop the Blight

It is a sad thing to see fine fruit trees spoiled by the blight. You can always tell them from the rest. They never do well afterwards but stay small and sickly.

It is worse to see a blight strike children. Good health is the natural right of children. But some of them don't get their rights. While the rest grow big and strong one stays small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion can stop that blight. There is no reason why such a child should stay small. Scott's Emulsion is a medicine with lots of strength in it—the kind of strength that makes things grow.

Scott's Emulsion makes children grow, makes them eat, makes them sleep, makes them play. Give the weak child a chance. Scott's Emulsion will make it catch up with the rest.

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle.

MARY THE MAID OF THE INN...

A Story of the Romantic Age in England.

By JOSEPH HATTON.

CHAPTER II.—(Continued.)

"Then lay it to heart," said Foster; "it is likely to be my last!"

"You're beginning to weary me with your growls and threats."

"Grows, not threats," Foster replied. "I never threaten in the sense you mean."

"And what is my idea of threats?"

"The same as most of your other ideas."

"And what are they like?"

"Like yourself, handsome and unreliable."

"I admit the first charge, because I cannot help it; I did not make myself."

"Nor I," said Foster.

"If you had—well, never mind that. In what respect am I unreliable?"

"In every respect; ask the women whom you know; ask the men you profess to lead."

"Oh, am I really a leader?"

"Bismarck, Jones, Wild, and the rest think so."

"Do you?"

"Sometimes."

"Only sometimes?"

"Look here, Dick, you have had every penny we have made since June. I am hard up. We have both borrowed from Isaacs; you have borrowed from me."

"Well, who put money into your purse and enabled you to lend? I will not ask you to reply. I will admit a certain laziness of late—a holiday, if you like; but I will have no more of your scurvy tempers, Andy, do you hear?"

"I hear."

"What the devil is the name of this traveling bank of yours, this Midas in disguise, this argosy on the highway?"

"Bellingham," Foster answered in a whisper.

"Tall, sinewy, with strong hands, clean-cut jaw, iron-gray hair? He is in the house."

"He came from the back and went into the bar as Tom showed us up the stairs."

Dick Parker had many accomplishments, and they gave him power as the chief of the enterprising company of gentlemen, whose headquarters were in the metropolis, and whose operations were on the merry English highways.

He was a gentleman by birth and education. His family had come over with the Conqueror. One of his ancestors had sat in the House of Lords, but had lost title and estates for rebellious conduct. Another had been hanged for piracy on the high seas.

On the other hand, there was a bishop in his family, and his sister had married a Spanish Don. He had a wonderful faculty of observation, was quick in resource, generous, fearless, and had never taken a life, except once, in a duel that was forced upon him.

He had danced with the Duchesse, whose party he had afterwards stopped and robbed on the way to Bristol. He had taken a big purse on Blackheath and gone straight to the swiftest tavern in St. James' street upon which the present aristocratic clubs rest their foundations, and doubled it or lost it at cards. He had been the most apparently timid of inside passengers in the York coach, and at a favorable moment made the rest of the passengers prisoners, while Foster had ridden up and dominated guard and driver with his pistols. His escapades and triumphs were themes of admiration at a shady hostelry within the sound of Bow bells, where a few choice spirits, his friends and companions, met as members of a club of Merchant Venturers.

"Supper," said a thick voice at the door, after the owner of the voice had struck the timber a strong hard blow necessary to make an impression upon the ears of those within.

"Right!" said Foster.

"Do you feel better?" Dick asked.

"I am hungry," Foster replied.

"After supper I am going into that little room, the bar parlor," said Dick. "No inclivities mind."

"Let us go up to supper," Foster replied with no signs of better humor.

"I am not joking, Andy."

"I understand, and I mean business."

It was a capital supper. Old Morley himself placed the first dish on the table.

They supped in the general room, which was furnished in old mahogany. The sideboard was brilliant enough in its polish, for a looking-glass. There was a white cloth upon it. On the cloth there were two great bowls of celery, a Cheshire cheese, a sirloin of beef, a Yorkshire ham and a white loaf of bread.

CHAPTER III.

The supper consisted of a joint of stuffed chine and a dish of partridges done to a turn, and with the most savory bread sauce that epicure could desire.

At another table in the room was a gentleman whom Dick had already glimpsed in Bellingham. He was supping upon a hot stew of some kind, and the light fell generously from a couple of wax candles upon a starry carpet of sherry. The stranger eyed the other travelers curiously, and Dick talked to his friend of their escape through the French coasters somewhere in the Mediterranean, and otherwise made himself and Foster out to be very worthy, and very loyal persons.

After supper Dick asked the landlord if he and his friends might crack another bottle of Madeira in his snugger, or smoke a pipe, or otherwise make themselves at home, being travelers who had not seen England for some years owing to the wars breaking out in countries with which they were trading as British merchants.

Morley, having consulted his niece, gave his consent, and upon the little table in the inner bar, Mary placed some fruit with the wine, and a dish of fresh walnuts, and she hovered about the parlor all the time they sat and chatted, and aked a couple of her uncle's best Maueira; for Mary had extra duties on the night in question, otherwise she might have sat by the fire and joined in the conversation.

The bowling club members had held their usual weekly meeting, and, scenting the first frost of the season, had made it an excuse for mulled ale and egg sherry; so that Mary was busy with the flush of her various responsibilities on her bright cheery face. She looked in Dick's eyes more lovely than he had even at first thought her. He could not keep his eyes away from her, and he thought, being accustomed to conquests among women, that she was not displeased with his undisguised admiration.

"Your daughter?" he said, Morley having spoken to Mary about the wine.

"My niece," said Morley, "and the best and bravest girl in Yorkshire."

"Or in any other shire, I am sure," added Parker.

"And you may say that, I believe," said the landlord.

"You will excuse the admiration of travelers who have seen none but foreign wenches for five years," said Dick; "it does one's heart good to see such a picture of health and beauty as your niece. What did you call her?"

"Mary," said Morley. "Mary Lockwood is her right name. She was my sister's child. God rest her, who lies with her good man in the Kirkstall churchyard this ten years."

"And so you took charge of her and became a second father to her?"

"That is the truth, whoever may have made it known to you," said Morley.

"Many guests in the house?" asked Foster, looking in an opposite direction from the person addressed, as was his wont.

"No; York coach went through with full complement of passengers, but none got down, and she don't change horses till she gets to Harrogate. Beyond yourselves and Squire Bellingham, a married couple from Derby, and Harry Dunstan, who fishes the Aire every autumn, we have nobody in the house; not as we have accommodation for many more, not laying ourselves out for much custom in that way."

"Squire Bellingham!" said Foster, touching Dick with his boot.

"Well, we call him 'Squire,' 'cause his father before him was 'Squire' in these parts and farmed most of the land; but his son—well, he's more of a merchant than a squire, for that matter. He does business in wool and is a bit of a broker in a way, and a rare good gentleman, and strong. He once had a quiet match with my Mary. I forget how many yards, thinking to get the better of her by distance and weight, but I won my bet—I tell you I won it, and he give lass a new gown into the bargain."

Old Morley chuckled at the remembrance of Bellingham's discomfiture, adding: "But he bore no malice, not he; he is a gentleman, 'Squire Bellingham!'"

"Does he live hereabouts, 'Squire Bellingham?" asked Foster.

"He do, and he don't," said Morley.

"Do, and he don't," repeated Foster in his morose, grumpy fashion.

"A traveler may be said to live in a good many places, I reckon," said Morley, evidently thinking he had said something clever.

"That is true," said Foster.

"For instance, take yourself."

"I live in London," said Foster.

"Of course you do, except and peradventure when you live in some good old hostelry on the road—such, for instance, not at the same time dealing to be arrogant, as the saying is; such for instance, and peradventure, as the Star and Garter."

"You say true," answered Foster stolidly. "I make no doubt the 'squire is well content with the Star and Garter."

"The 'Squire is not well content with anything," Morley replied. "The 'Squire is as warm as warm can be, and yet he will go on laying up riches; the 'Squire is continually on the road; he buys in this market, he sells in the other; he is partner in the bank at Leeds; he buys cattle; he sells wool; and he has one of the finest houses hereabouts; and best servants, a groom as can have no equal; but being a bachelor, he is restless like; and must have occupation, as he says; though, mind you, he don't care for no occupation in which there ain't good sale and barter, and the like; though there is no more charitable 'Squire in all Yorkshire."

"And a brave man to boot, I hear."

"If you mean brave in the sense that he neither fears heaven nor hell, because he is a good man, and has no reason to, if you mean that he makes no account of highwaymen and the like, if you mean that he is ready to back his opinion with his money on any question—why 'Squire Bellingham is a brave man; but if you agree with me in thinking that to be properly brave you should also be cautious, then I think we shall come to the conclusion that the 'Squire is not brave in the right way, but rash—rash, sir, reckless, decidedly reckless."

"In what way is he reckless?"

"In riding alone and sometimes at nightfall with large sums of money in his possession, with gold and notes in his belt or what not. These are perilous times, sir, when the roads are infested with men from the wars, who went to fight only for the fun of it, and who, being at home again and out of employment, are ready to fight their own countrymen, aye, and to slay them for that matter, for the sake of a booty ever so small—yes, sir, ever so small."

"But the 'Squire is well armed, of course."

"You never spoke more truly; armed to the teeth, as the saying is; armed back and front, and mounted on a horse that can talk—yes, sir, talk! I'll be bound that 'Squire Bellingham's groom has had many an intelligent conversation with William, as was bred and broke on the 'Squire's own farm."

"Then he need, of course, have no fear, the 'Squire," said Foster, beating his boots with his whistcock. "Your highwayman is no fool; I suspect he knows who he is attacking. I have ridden over nearly every highway in England, and it is well known that I carry barkers that bite like the devil, and if any unfortunate ruffian had had the hardihood to stop me he would not live to stop any other honest traveler."

CHAPTER IV.

Had not Dick Parker been quietly engaged in a conversation with Mary he would have put a spoke into the conversational wheel of Mr. Foster. It was well agreed in the company to which they belonged that Foster had no social gifts; that the less he said the better under any circumstances; but he plumed himself upon having drawn the landlord of the Star and Garter, though he had not added one iota of information to that already in the possession of his chief and himself.

If Mr. Morley had been as good a judge of character as he was of a glass of Madeira or had been a man of ordinary observation, he would hardly have been as friendly and confidential in his conversation with Foster as he was with the other stranger guest, Mr. Richard Parker.

But Morley, when he got the opportunity, liked to hear himself talk, and Foster was very willing to give him all the opportunity he could desire, and also to put in a word or two himself. It was well for Foster that Morley was as weak as he was good-natured, otherwise he might have suspected his guest's calling—this gentleman, who wished it to be understood that he lived in London, had much more the cut of a freebooter than a merchant; had much more the appearance of a man to attack than to be attacked.

Foster had no redeeming qualities; Parker had several. Foster was a thick-set, colorless-looking person. He had strong, heavy hands, long arms, big feet, and a hard, rasping voice. He was popular with those gentlemen who met now and then at that shady tavern in London, because he was a man of his word. He never went back on anything he said or promised. His persistence, his capacity to creep where he could not walk to his quarry, his delight in his work, his physical strength, made him next in importance, if not next in popularity, to Dick.

DAVID H. MOFFATT.

One of the Few Men Who Have Paid in Cash for Their Lives.

Mr. David H. Moffatt, president of the First National bank of Denver, Col., solved in his own satisfaction the question of whether a man should give up money to an assassin or not. Several years ago a man came into the First National bank and went into Mr. Moffatt's private office. In his hand was a bottle containing a light-colored viscous fluid.

"Mr. Moffatt," he said, "I am a desperate man. This bottle contains two ounces of nitro-glycerin. If I explode it, you and I and the bank building will be blown to smithereens. I want $22,000. I want you to write out a check for that amount, take it to the cashier, get the currency, and give it to me."

"I don't believe," said Mr. Moffatt, "that the man had nitro-glycerin in the bottle. I didn't believe that he would have used it if he had. But at the same time there was a chance that he did; there was a chance that he was a fanatic; there was a chance that he would have killed us both. I figured the thing out in my mind quickly—a man's mind acts readily under such circumstances—and I came to the conclusion that it was better to give him the $22,000 than to run the risk of my life, for $22,000 was only a couple of weeks' income. Death was eternity. I went to the cashier's desk, wrote the check, got the currency, gave it to the man, and he walked out with it and has never been seen since."

WOMEN MAKING PROGRESS.

Julia Ward Howe Believes the Future Is Full of Hope.

It seems very strange that after so many years women should still be obliged to beg for equal suffrage, when it has long since been shown that our claim is well founded, not only in ideal justice, but in practical wisdom, and that it is in the direction of the tendencies of civilization. Our appeal to the legislatures has been refused so many times that to continue it seems like leading a forlorn hope. Yet a forlorn hope is glorious. To lead it is glorious and to die in it is glorious, and it often conquers, and I am full of hope; for what is right in itself must triumph in the end. I feel assured that in the near future the co-operation of women in municipal and state affairs will not only be desired, but demanded, by men of pure and worthy citizenship. Mothers, wives, sisters, will no longer stand as supplicants before state legislatures, asking that they may become politically the equals of men who profess to treat them as superiors, but who really combine to keep them in a state of perpetual minority. We women have hitherto been a sort of reserve force. During the rough, early ages of warfare man did the fighting, but we cherished and nourished him. His blood was in our veins and his courage was our courage. Thank God, that period of war has almost taken itself off; we are at the beginning of a more peaceful period and now something more is needed than muscle and the power to do physical battle. There is need of moral and spiritual force and we have this stored reserve force within us. We have learned much from the men as to how the world should be governed and also some things as to how it should not. It seems strange that in Puritan Boston we should still be asking for municipal suffrage, while in England and Australia and in our own Western states women have exercised it for years. Are we, then, so inferior to those women? Or are our men so inferior to those men that they cannot see the justice and sacredness of our claims? But this reform is to come. If the men of this generation have not wisdom or courage enough to grant it (I do not say that this is so) the men of a future generation will. If no one of us ever votes we have gained this: We have stood for what was right in principle and for what will be proved to be right in practice.—Julia Ward Howe, in Chicago Chronicle.

WHEN THIRST INSPIRES.

Odd Means Resorted to to Get the Necessary "Eye-Opener."

"What won't some people do to obtain a drink of liquor?" was a question propounded the other day by Lieut. Charles Cole of the Central district. The official answered the query himself by relating two or three stories of odd means resorted to to get the necessary "eye-opener," says the Baltimore American. "One of the funniest I ever heard of," said the lieutenant, "was a trick played by a Marsh market space hobo on three of his companions. The four men had engaged a room on a small street near the 'space.' It was in the dead of winter and they borrowed a small stove of the egg-shaped variety from a neighbor. They built a fire in it, got thoroughly warmed and then stretched out upon the floor to sleep. At an early hour the next morning one of them awoke in a cold sweat, shivering like a leaf. The fire had gone out, and the room was like an icehouse. The first thing that crossed his mind was how to get a drink. He had no money and the next thought was how to get some. An idea struck him. Without disturbing his companions he seized the stove in his arms and proceeded to the nearest junk shop, where he sold it for a small amount and got his drink. It is not necessary to add that he and his friends parted company. There was another fellow who daily patrolled the 'space.' He had a cork leg. He wanted a drink badly one day and pawned his artificial limb. Now he walks with a crutch. In one of the pawnshops on the 'space' you will see a set of false teeth. If I am not mistaken, they are exhibited in the window. Until a year ago they were in the mouth of a once pretty dame. She fell from grace, however, by taking to drink and pawned her teeth because she wanted whisky."

HUMAN LIFE-BENEFITING.

Death Rate Decreased 2.4 Per 1,000 Since 1899—What It Means.

In 1890 the death rate in 571 cities of 5,000 or more population was 21 per 1,000; in 1900 the rate was 18.6 in 561 cities of 8,000 population and upward, a reduction of 2.4 per 1,000. Another statement of special interest and significance, just now is that deaths reported as due to consumption, including general tuberculosis, decreased from 245.9 per 100,000 of population in 1890 to 190.5 in 1900, a very large reduction, due, the census authorities believe, to the better knowledge of the disease and the measures adopted for its prevention. To add nearly two years to the average of human existence is a wonderful achievement. Its full significance it is not easy to grasp. Applying it to the population of the United States alone, now over 70,000,000, it means not less than a total of 140,000,000 added years of human activity and productivity. This stupendous total, divided by the years of the average human life, with the recent increase included, means practically the same as an increase of 4,000,000 to the healthy adult population of the nation. Regarded from the standpoint of the economist, it means also an enormous increase in the wealth-producing factors of the country. Healthfulness, vigor and high vitality among a people are the most valuable assets that any nation can have, says Leslie's Weekly, especially for the coming years, when the struggle for commercial and industrial supremacy throughout the world is certain to grow more and more intense and absorbing. Where other things are equal, the country that grows the strongest, hardest and longest-lived men is the country that will lead the world.

Odd Means Resorted to to Get the Necessary "Eye-Opener."

"What won't some people do to obtain a drink of liquor?" was a question propounded the other day by Lieut. Charles Cole of the Central district. The official answered the query himself by relating two or three stories of odd means resorted to to get the necessary "eye-opener," says the Baltimore American. "One of the funniest I ever heard of," said the lieutenant, "was a trick played by a Marsh market space hobo on three of his companions. The four men had engaged a room on a small street near the 'space.' It was in the dead of winter and they borrowed a small stove of the egg-shaped variety from a neighbor. They built a fire in it, got thoroughly warmed and then stretched out upon the floor to sleep. At an early hour the next morning one of them awoke in a cold sweat, shivering like a leaf. The fire had gone out, and the room was like an icehouse. The first thing that crossed his mind was how to get a drink. He had no money and the next thought was how to get some. An idea struck him. Without disturbing his companions he seized the stove in his arms and proceeded to the nearest junk shop, where he sold it for a small amount and got his drink. It is not necessary to add that he and his friends parted company. There was another fellow who daily patrolled the 'space.' He had a cork leg. He wanted a drink badly one day and pawned his artificial limb. Now he walks with a crutch. In one of the pawnshops on the 'space' you will see a set of false teeth. If I am not mistaken, they are exhibited in the window. Until a year ago they were in the mouth of a once pretty dame. She fell from grace, however, by taking to drink and pawned her teeth because she wanted whisky."

THEIR SHOE TROUBLES.

Viennese Boot and Shoemakers Fear American Competition. The question of whether or not American boot and shoe shops are to be opened in Vienna threatens to assume international proportions. The Viennese boot and shoe makers, having appealed to the government to prohibit the invasion of American competition, today received a reply to the effect that the authorities decline to interfere. So soon as the decision of the government became known representatives of the American firm, Messrs. Barthmann, who are waiting in Vienna, concluded their arrangements for taking suitable shops, sixteen in number. Herr Bitz, president of the Boot and Shoe Makers' League, told a representative of the "Freudenblatt" that the American invasion means utter ruin for thousands of Austrian shoemakers. American manufacturers can make shoes, send them across the Atlantic, pay duty on them, and sell them in Vienna at 4 shillings a pair less than the Viennese shoemakers can possibly supply them for. Herr Bitz declared that if Messrs. Barthmann opened shops in Vienna there would be trouble, because the Viennese shoemakers, driven to desperation, are fully determined to employ violence against the American invaders. Representatives of Messrs. Barthmann say that they will place themselves under the protection of the American legation.

Consumption in Cattle and Man.

Professor Koch recently startled the world by announcing, at the congress for the study of tuberculosis, in London, that the tuberculosis of cattle is an entirely distinct affection from consumption in man, and that the money and labor that have been expended in fighting the disease in cows were wasted so far as the health of man is concerned. This is no new doctrine. It is not the doctrine generally held by physicians, many of whom regard the drinking of unsterilized milk from tuberculous cows as one of the most prolific sources of consumption of the bowels and glands in young children. It is in this country especially that the belief in the non-communicability of cattle consumption to man finds its chief adherents. It is based on the facts that the inoculation of human tubercle bacilli in cattle has failed to produce tuberculosis in these animals, and that dairymen and others who may be in close contact with diseased cows suffer less frequently from consumption than city dwellers who have nothing to do with cattle and seldom or never drink milk.—Youth's Companion.

Lemon Juice for Nose Bleeding.

Dr. Benjamin Edson says in the Medical World that lemon juice is a remedy for nose bleeding. One part of the juice to three or four of water is used by insufflation after clearing the nostrils by "blowing." In emergencies he has used the lemon juice undiluted, but would not advise this procedure in ordinary cases. The author claims no credit for the method; he "picked it up" many years ago, he says, and he does not know who is entitled to the credit for first using it.

Electric Energy from Wind.

Electric energy from the wind has been successfully obtained in both England and Germany, but it is in the latter country that it has been actually put into use. M. G. Coux, of Hamburg, used a windmill with a regulator, which would keep its speed constant, no matter what the speed of the wind was, and succeeded so well that there is a strong probability that it will be used in small villages in Germany to supply electric light and power at a low cost.

ported last year by the United States to a value exceeding by more than two million dollars that of the iron and steel exports, of which so much has been said. He furnishes the largest single item of export, amounting to nearly $120,000,000 a year, an increase of $35,000,000 in the past ten years. The future of this mighty industry, if not threatened, may be considered at least somewhat disturbed by the wonderful growth of its Danish competitor, exports from Denmark having risen from one to eight millions annually in the past ten years and being still rapidly increasing. Most of these exports go to Germany, which already frowns upon American pork and is inclined to still further discriminate against it.

Progress in China.

The idea prevails that the Chinese are an intensely conservative people, who will prevent, if possible, the introduction of the new Western methods of living and working into their country. However true this may be of the people in general, it is not true of them all, as is shown by the experience of the special correspondent of the London Times in Canton. "When I was here, five years ago," he writes, "only a few steam launches, mostly foreign built and owned, had made their appearance on the Canton river. To-day nearly three hundred, almost all Chinese built and Chinese owned, are doing roaring trade, towing passenger and freight junks up and down the river, and the innumerable creeks which intersect the delta of the west and north rivers."—Youth's Companion.

Hottest Place on Earth.

The hottest place on earth is apparently to be found on the southwestern coast of Persia, or the Gulf of Persia. There during forty consecutive days in July and August the mercury has been known to stand above 100 degrees in the shade day and night and to run up to 120 degrees in the afternoon. In Bahrain Island, which is situated in the center of this most torrid part of the torrid zone, water is unknown. Shafts have been sunk to the depth of 500 feet in search of it, but in vain.

Marking Royal Swans.

Recently every fluffy little cygnet on the Thames and its tributaries between London and Henley had to suffer the indignity of being caught and marked upon the bill with the sign of its owner. As is well known, the swans belong to King Edward and to the Dyers' and Vintners' companies of London.

A Bad Inheritance.

A little girl out in Oregon when seven years old was stricken down with rheumatism, and the local doctor said it was hereditary, as the other members of the family had it. She suffered from it for five years, until a friend who had been cured of the disease by Ath-lo-phos recommended this remedy to her. The doctors had tried five years to cure her, but Ath-lo-phos did it with only two bottles. These inherited cases are the hardest to cure, but Ath-lo-phos will do it, no matter what the cause or the conditions.

THOUSANDS of men are prisoners of disease as securely as though they were confined behind the bars. Many have forged their own chains by the vice of early youth, exposure to contagious diseases, or the excesses of manhood. They feel they are not the men they ought to be or used to be. Are you irritable and excitable? Eyes sunken, depressed and lagged looking? Memory poor and brain fagged? Have you weak back with dreams and losses at night? Depress it in anger?
