HAVING SECURED THE AGENCY FOR

Twin Remedy

I am prepared, in order to advertise these wonderful remedies, to give the people of Plymouth and vicinity a chance to try and to use the same at HALF PRICE, viz:

$1 Bottles for 50c.

The Twin Remedy comes to Plymouth after a wonderful record of cures in hundreds of Michigan cities where it has been introduced. No idea of the actual value of this medicine in the cure of Catarrh, Sick Headache, Constipation, Catarrh of the Stomach, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Water Brash, Pain after Eating, Loss of Appetite, Lamé Back, Kidney Troubles, Anaemia, Catarrh of the Bowels, General Weakness, Leucorrhoea, or any Nervous Trouble, can be given in the limits of a newspaper article, so only a few testimonials are given here, but a circular giving full information as to the Remedy can be had at my store for the asking. Trial alone can tell and it should be enough to say that if you are a sufferer from any of these diseases, you can try the Twin Remedy at half price and your money back if you do not find it as represented. One can ask no more in the way of fair treatment.

Stomach Trouble Cured.

Imlay City, Jan. 11, 1901.
H. Colquhoun, Prop. Twin Remedies:
Dear Sir—I suffered with stomach trouble for over twenty years without obtaining any relief, vomiting at spells a fluid green and bitter as gall. At your introductory sale at A. F. Martin's in November, I was induced to try a bottle of your Twin Remedy No. 2 and it was the only medicine that ever gave me complete relief. My stomach has not troubled me since.

Sick Headache Cured.

Mrs. J. Long, of Gratiot township, Macomb county, Mich., who from girlhood up had been troubled with sick headache almost weekly. A Prominent Mason Dead.

We take the following from the Windsor Locks (Conn.) Journal, of April 3, the deceased gentleman named having relatives here, whom he visited last fall for several weeks, and having also made many friends during his visit:

Charles H. Easton, aged 61, an old and well known resident of this place, died suddenly Monday evening at his home on North street of heart trouble. He had spent the evening at the meeting of Euclid Lodge of Masons and on his way home complained of feeling ill. On arriving home it was seen that his condition was serious and medical aid was summoned, but without avail, his death occurring at 10:30.

Mr. Easton found one of the chief interests in life in matters relating to Freemasonry, and he was well known among the members of the order throughout this section. He had expressed the wish that he might spend his last hours in the lodge room, and this wish was practically fulfilled. He was a member of Euclid Lodge, 109, of Windsor, Locks, Washington Chapter, No. 30, R. A. M., Suffolk Council, No. 23, R. and S. M., of Suffolk, Washington Commandery, No. 1, K. T., and Sphinx Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., of Hartford. He had held every office in the blue lodge, and with the exception of one or two minor offices, every office in the Chapter. He was letter perfect in the work, and his love and devotion to the order were very marked.

Mr. Easton was a veteran of the Civil War and saw three years of service. At the age of 18 he enlisted in company C of the 12th regiment Conn. Volunteers, and was mustered into service Nov. 20, 1861, serving four years.

Moral Freedom.

The freeing of the word of God, to which we should give the most careful attention, is a moral freeing, for there is nothing so fatal to progress as the imprisonment of sin.—Rev. E. M. Smith, Bloomington, Ill.

Who Wrote "Dixie"?

Will S. Hays of Louisville claims to be the author of "Dixie." He was assisted, he says, by Charles L. Ward and David P. Faulds, recently deceased, published the song. The authorship of this popular southern melody has been in dispute for many years.

Older Than His Father.

Observing the unmistakable Erin brogue of one of the Central Park attendants, a visitor who was strolling through the park remarked to him: "You come from the old country, don't you?" "An' shure OI do." "Have you been long out?" "O, bedad, if OI'd lived in the old country as long as OI've lived in New York OI guess OI'd b' th' owidest man in the city."

"You're a pretty old man, then?" "O'm oulter than me fayer—bless his soul!—if he lived till next October he'd be did this twinty years."—New York Times.

SEVERE ATTACK OF GRIP

Cured by One Bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"When I had an attack of the grip last winter (the second one) I actually cured myself with one bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says Frank W. Perry, Editor of the Enterprise, Shortville, N. Y. "This is the honest truth. I at times kept from coughing myself to pieces by taking a teaspoonful of this remedy, and when the coughing spell would come on at night I would take a dose and it seemed that in the briefest interval the cough would pass off and I would go to sleep perfectly free from cough and its accompanying pains. To say that the remedy acted as a most agreeable surprise is putting it very mildly. I had no idea that it would or could knock out the grip, simply because I had never tried it for such a purpose, but it did, and it seemed with the second attack of coughing the remedy caused it to not only less duration, but the pains were far less severe, and I had not used the contents of one bottle before Mr. Grip had bid me adieu." THE MICHIGAN NEWS

What is Doing in All Sections of the State

The Spring Elections

The vote in Michigan on Monday can only be classed as light. Except in places where local issues were predominant it was what may be called heavy. Frank A. Hooker, the Republican candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court to succeed himself, was elected by a majority estimated at (1 a. m. Tuesday) 40,000. Peter White, of Marquette, and L. A. Knappen, of Grand Rapids, the two Republican candidates for regents, were elected by about the same figures, although Mr. White ran ahead of his ticket in the upper peninsula. Nothing can be said about the constitutional amendments, as they seem to have been lost sight of in some parts of the state. The Prohibitionists polled their usual small vote. In Wayne County, Mandell was elected Circuit Judge, and Burt County Auditor for a third time by a reduced majority, Hillger developing more strength than had been conceded him. The result in the state generally is Republican.

In Ann Arbor, Brown was victor of the so-called Judson candidate Kempf, though the Republicans have control of the county by one majority. Of the seven supervisors the Democrats elected five.

In Lapeer, the entire Republican ticket except one alderman was elected.

Lenawee County went Republican; Van Buren went dry on the liquor issue by about 1,300, as five years ago, Folz, Democrat, was elected in Kalamazoo, beating Knappen. The Republican state ticket had about 300 majority. These are but straws from the stack, the main facts being that Hooker carried the state for Supreme Judge and the Republican candidates for regents were elected. Local issues made things lively in many localities. The state ticket nominated by the Republicans and elected follows:

Justice—Frank A. Hooker, R., of Charlotte. Regents—Peter White, of Marquette; L. A. Knappen, of Grand Rapids. Successful Mayors. Adrian—J. N. Sampson, R. Albion—Dr. F. E. Palmer, R. Ann Arbor—A. Brown, D. Battle Creek—F. H. Webb, R. Bay City—F. T. Woodworth, R. Benton Harbor—R. B. Gillette, R. Big Rapids—E. J. Newcombe, R. Cheboygan—James McGregor, R. Clare—Democrat. Dowagiac—W. D. Jones, D. Eaton Rapids—Dr. Long, R. Escanaba—J. J. Sourwine, Ind.-Lab. Grand Haven—C. K. Hoyt, R. Hancock—Archibald J. Scott, R. Hillsdale—L. A. Goodrich, R. Hudson—Frenodorf, Citizens. Hastings—W. A. Harris, D. Holland—A. J. Derow, D. Iron Mountain—E. A. Nubeur, Peoples.

Reycraft, D. Pontiac—H. C. Guillot, R. Sault Ste. Marie—James L. Lissatt, D. South Haven—S. E. Dykeman Citizens.

St. Clair—J. W. Inches, R. St. Louis—Republican. St. Joseph—J. V. Starr, D. Tawas City—E. Schlechte, D. Traverse City—J. R. Santa, Citizens. Ypsilanti—C. R. Huston, D.

Saved by a Plunge. John Seyler, employed at Schuller's ice house in Lakeland, attempted to fill a gasoline torch-lamp in close proximity to two lighted lanterns. The fluid ignited, and so did John's clothes. The lake was handy, and although the temperature was somewhat frost-bitten, Seyler jumped in, and saved his clothes from cremation, if not himself. His hand was severely blistered. "Next time I burn," said Seyler, afterward, "I'd as leave be a torch as an icicle."

Want the Money. The Coldwater city council has instructed City Attorney Mark S. Andrews to collect $5,000 bonds with the Maryland Fidelity Co. as surety that were given by Hawks & Angus, who secured a franchise for the construction of an electric railway through this city that they would commence construction in good faith within six months and complete the road within two years. This line was to run between Jackson and Coldwater.

A Wayward Son. The Joe Bradley who shot and killed Mrs. Bomeran and himself, and tried to kill Mrs. Bomeran's daughter, who is recovering after being shot twice, has been identified as Josh Lamb, a wayward son of Thomas Lamb, who is one of the wealthiest and most respected farmers in Jayfield, about eight miles north of Bear Lake. The family are almost heartbroken.

Sunday Sports in Mason. A cockfight was held in a barn north of Mason Sunday night, and before it was over there was a bloody row. Mason won five of nine events. A big crowd was there, and a large sum of money changed hands. The officers of the law are taking no action. They have not sought to interfere with such "sports" heretofore to any great extent.

Produce dealers and business men of Bloomingdale have formed a stock company to build a big storehouse and elevator in the village, and thus furnish a home market for the crops raised in the vicinity.

Work is so plenty in Bloomingdale that there is a general rush for that village. Every house is occupied and old buildings heretofore counted as uninhabitable are now being fitted up and rented at big prices.

Lewis Hartel, Harry Pierce and Fred Shance, of Pottersville, found eight young silver gray fox cubs in a field two miles south of town. The mother escaped, but the young ones will be raised to maturity, if possible, when their fur will bring a big price.

While going home early Tuesday morning Andrew Johnson, of Marquette, noticed that an arc light near his house was out, and tried to start it burning again by shaking the wire. The wire he touched was an uninsulated one and Johnson was killed by the current.

A short time ago, Mrs. William Nivola, of Coldwater, while endeavoring to save her pet cat that was being terribly mangled by a dog, was bitten severely by the cat. Her hand has been badly swollen since and physicians decided to amputate one finger to save her hand.

The bodies of Capt. Henry Hartwell and his son, Alva, were found on Round Island beach by William Marshall. It is thought that while they were returning from Meckinac Island to their home on Bois Blanc Island, the fierce gale that prevailed wrecked their small boat on a reef.

Ed. Bailey of Blissfield, and Thomas McCarty of Petersburg, arrested by the sheriff's deputies, have admitted an attempt to break into the store of Rothlis & Howland, in Blissfield. They implicate Ed Conley, night clerk of Opon's tavern in Blissfield, who was arrested Sunday night.

The body of John Johnson, who either committed suicide or fell into the water while intoxicated, was found in Menominee river near the docks. He was last seen with two intoxicated companions with whom he had started home from a dance. He leaves a widow and five children.

The Michigan Anti-Saloon League would like to send petitions containing the names of 1,000,000 voters to the legislature to urge the passage of the Holmes bill against straw liquor bonds and the defeat of the Paddock bill allowing saloonkeepers to give bonds furnished by surety companies.

Pennell's Bad Record.

As the history of Arthur R. Pennell, who was killed in an automobile accident on March 10, comes to light it grows darker. The story now is that he was a defaulter to the extent of from $150,000 to $200,000. It is said that Pennell induced friends in the east who had known his family and the family of his wife to place money in his hands for investment. He acted, in fact, as their financial agent. He would inform them of some good investment which he had come across which would pay an excellent rate of interest and they would send him money. The money which was sent to him for investment, it is alleged, he spent, and when interest payments fell due he made the payment out of his own pocket. That he had contemplated suicide for two years seems evident and carried $200,000 life insurance that after death the eastern estates to which he is alleged to have been a defaulter might be able to recoup the losses which they had sustained through him. It is probable that $25,000 of insurance was for the benefit of Mrs. Burdick, but the courts will have to decide the matter.

A Forgotten Prisoner.

Locked in the woman's department of the Bay City jail at police headquarters Stella Dardowski, an unfortunate young woman, 17 years old, spent thirty hours without a morsel of food. Behind triple doors, where officers passed frequently, she was forgotten and it was not until she attracted attention by pounding the windows that her condition was brought to the attention of others. The girl had been betrayed by her lover, she claims, who is now under bonds to face trial in the Circuit Court, and her parents, lincensed at her disgrace, turned her out of doors. She applied at the station for shelter Tuesday night and was given supper and locked up for the night. The following morning she was given breakfast by Court Officer Hatch, but from that time until 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon she subsisted on Baginaw river water. The police kept the matter quiet.

The Ohio Election.

Complete returns from Tuesday's municipal election in Cleveland gave Tom L. Johnson, for mayor, a plurality of 5,985 over Harvey D. Goulder. It is now conceded that Mayor Tom L. Johnson, of Cleveland, will now become a formidable candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor a few months hence.

M. E. Ingalls, president of the Big Four railroad, the fusion candidate for mayor of Cincinnati, was completely buried. Mayor Fleischmann, Republican, having over 15,000 plurality for re-election.

Samuel J. "Golden Rule" Jones was elected as an independent for the fourth time as mayor of Toledo by a plurality of about 2,800. He will, however, have little authority as the Republicans control all the other offices.

Crum Asked to Resign.

Collector Crum has been asked to resign, not peremptorily by the president, but in a persuasive manner by a close friend of the president. He assured Crum that a favorable consideration of his suggestion would be gratifying to a great many persons very close to the president, and that Crum would undoubtedly be the gainer.

The president's friend, who had recently been in Washington, told Crum that Mr. Roosevelt had no intention of deserting him, but he would be relieved from a trying position if the Charleston collectorship was made vacant. Crum was told of a place in the diplomatic service that would be open to him. When Crum told his visitor that office was not vacant, the president's friend assured him it could be made vacant. This is a place that would cause no criticism, and is in Liberia. Crum promised to give the subject consideration.

Unknown Dead.

The section men on the Detroit, Toledo & Milwaukee railroad at Wilder, Mich. found the remains of a man about four miles east of Marshall Monday morning, lying about 25 feet north of the track. Coroner Church was notified and he impaled a jury and held an inquest. There was no means of identifying the remains except he was an umbrella mender and about 40 years old. The body was sent to Ann Arbor. It is believed the man was struck by a local freight while walking on the track last evening.

U. S. Must Control.

In his address at Minneapolis on Saturday President Roosevelt said: "Finally, the treaty (Cuban) was not merely warranted, but demanded, apart from all other considerations, by the enlightened consideration of our foreign policy. More and more in the future we must occupy a preponderant position in the waters and along the coasts in the region south of us; not a position of control over the republics of the south, but of control of the military situation so as to avoid any possible complications in the future."

CONDENSED NEWS.

The Pennell inquest will deal mainly with the facts surrounding his death, the story of witnesses to the occurrence and the movements of the Pennells in the vicinity of the quarry.

With the hottest weather ever recorded in March in Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, and other eastern cities, Colorado, Utah and Wyoming were experiencing the most severe blizzard of the season, with 18 to 20 inches of snow.

Because of a fancied grievance against the cashier of the Sedan (Kas.) Savings Bank Alonzo Hamon, aged 23, threatened to wreck the bank with dynamite. As he approached that building Constable Robinson halted him and fired first, hitting him over the heart.

Mrs. Kit Brady, principal witness in the Anna Snyder murder case, at Toledo, is violently insane as a result of brooding over the case. As Mrs. Brady was the only one who saw the murderer leave his victim, this new turn of affairs will prevent the solving of the murder mystery.

STATE LEGISLATURE

Brief Chronicle of Matters of Importance

Labor men in the house were stirred up by a bill which passed the senate last week. It provides that men who take railroad tickets from companies or individuals upon the agreement that they shall do certain work and then refuse to do the work may be punished by fine and imprisonment. Representative Slen, of Detroit, has prepared some amendments which he will ask the house to add to the bill, calculated to allow workmen to get even with companies which do not keep their part of agreements as to work, wages, board, etc. It provides that whenever agreements are made to take men from their homes to do work in some other place, the officer or agent of the company making the agreement shall prepare a statement of the conditions in writing, giving the wages to be paid, hours, work, kind of board, etc., and if the company does not observe these terms their officers or agents may be fined or imprisoned.

The legislature resumed its sessions Tuesday night after an adjournment of the election. There were quite a number of absentees, but the house went to work. A large number of petitions were received asking for the passage of the Holmes liquor bond bill. Most of them were from ministers and their congregations. Some of the members wanted to begin holding morning sessions to-morrow, but a resolution to that effect was voted down, 18 to 20. However, to show that they were not lazy the members went into committee of the whole. When the bill to appropriate $73,000 for improvements at the asylum at Newberry was reached, Representative Rodgers objected to a $30,000 item for an amusement hall. But Chairman Neal, of the ways and means committee, said the new building is necessary, but Rodgers thought the figure too high and the bill was laid over.

Representative Rodgers, of Muskegon, wanted to cut down the appropriation for the Soldiers' Home at Grand Rapids from $134,000 to $114,000, and in support of his motion he declared the larger amount is not needed. He pronounced the sum asked for "a bare faced robbery." He declared that deaths are constantly cutting down the number of inmates, but the sums asked from the state for the support of the institution are growing right along. Rodgers declared that the home is being used as a boarding house for the whole Judd family. He said that the commandant's daughter-in-law is employed as a matron and pays nothing for her food, and Rodgers had also heard that Judd's son has taken his meals at the home for four years without paying for them. His motion was defeated.

Speaker Carlton is one of the strongest advocates for an early cessation of lawmaking. He said: "I can see no reason why we cannot finish our work in four more weeks. Of course, we could quit at any time, but I believe that all the work that is necessary to be done for the good of the people may be accomplished by the early part of May." It is said that some of the senators propose to put through a resolution providing for final adjournment on May 15.—The house may begin holding morning sessions next week, in order that the heavy list of bills now on the general order may be disposed of.

Ex-Senator Thompson, of Detroit, in briefly addressing the senate the other day handed out this warm one: "I believe that this legislature will be known for its omissions rather than for what it has done, and my advice to you is to adjourn and go home. One session in five years is enough. You will not do an injustice to Wayne county, or any other part of the state, by adjourning now. Of all the measures introduced affecting the county of Wayne, about nine out of every ten should be thrown into the wastebasket."

The ways and means committee of the house will visit Jackson prison this week, when Gov. Bliss will be there, to attend a meeting of the board of control. The committee will go to pass on the proposition of rebuilding the west cell wing. It is expected the question of having the staple manufactured supplies of the state institutions made in prison at cost price, will be taken up. Thomas J. Navin is one of the members of the board who prefers this plan to the contract system at present in operation.

The joint resolution submitting to the people the proposed amendment to the constitution permitting the legislature to provide for a railroad freight rate commission was reported favorably and placed on the house general order.

A joint session of the two branches was held in the afternoon in Representative hall to pay respects to the memory of the late Senator James H. McMillan. Tributes were paid by ex-Senator Patton, Senators Alger and Burrows.

The house did not rush business on Friday, but passed a few local bills, and after a session of an hour on unimportant matters, adjourned until next Tuesday night, Monday being election day.

The State Anti-Saloon league is planning to have 100,000 or more citizens of Michigan petition the legislature for the passage of the Holmes bill. Blank petitions are being sent to 2,000 congregations in the state.

R. L. Lewis, of Reed City, has been appointed circuit commissioner of Oscoda county by Gov. Bliss. Lewis was elected to the office last fall, but neglected to file his bond. Frank H. Stephens, of Ithaca, is appointed stenographer of the twenty-ninth judicial circuit.

The new chairs ordered for the house did not arrive in time for the McMillan memorial exercises, as proposed. Representative Hunt, who is chairman of the committee that ordered the chairs last January, says they'll be in place before the legislature adjourns; in fact, he expects them next week.

State land office bills are not proving very popular in the legislature. One of them, by which the commissioner would be empowered to lease state lands, has already gone down to defeat in the house. Another one, introduced by Rep. Stone, of Lenawee, has passed the house by the small majority of 15, and is now on the general order of the senate. Some of the opponents of this measure say the members of the house did not thoroughly understand what they were voting on, or results would have been different. Representative Sheldon, of Bay City, is frank in expressing his interpretation of the motives by which the bill was passed. He feels he has not had fair treatment in not being given a hearing by the senate committee before the bill was reported out, though one had been promised him.

Senator Doherty Ill.

Senator A. J. Doherty, of Chare, administration leader in the senate, was seized with abdominal pains after he had been in bed in the Downey home but an hour Monday night. Dr. H. A. Haze was summoned, and at first it was feared that the senator was suffering with appendicitis. The doctor remained with him a great part of the night, and he was easier this morning, though confined to his bed. It is now believed that the senator has appendicitis.

Work and Wages.

State Commissioner of Labor Griswold has completed his annual report for the year 1902. The daily pay rolls of the factories of the state aggregate $346,741.28. For each week $2,480,447.68. For the year, $108,183,279.36. The average workday was slightly longer in 1902 than 1901. The number of months factories were operated during the year was nearly one month greater than in 1901.

Thirteen Were Killed.

A furious cyclone is reported to have struck the town of Hanceville, Ala., at 2 o'clock Monday morning, killing 13 persons and injuring 25 others. Hanceville is a town of about 1,000 inhabitants in Blount county, directly north of Birmingham about 25 miles. Henry McCoy, a prominent farmer, and his entire family of seven persons, are reported among the dead, also a farmer named John Griffin, and son. No other names have yet been secured.

William J. Bryan announces that he will deliver political speeches in the states of New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey and Maryland in May.

A political riot was quelled by the police at Schulz hall, Chicago, Sunday night. Chairs were thrown and broken over heads, clubs and fists were used so freely that four were seriously injured.

B. P. Brown, of Redland, Cal., who was arrested for threatening the life of McKinley before the latter's western trip, has again been arrested for making a similar threat against President Roosevelt.

The raising of taxes on New York property causes landlords to raise rents, and wholesale evictions are the result. April 1 there were 350 cases on the docket, and 1,000 during March. Large tenements have raised rents from $2 to $5 per month.

Frederick Stebbins' body was found in a park at Rochester, N. Y., with a bullet hole through his head and a note to the coroner, saying: "To save you investigating, I wish to state that I was not held up and murdered for my money. I did it with my little revolver."

After shooting himself, once in the head and three times in the abdomen, Walter Hickley at Milford, Conn., lay down beside the railroad track to die. Remorse for his act caused him to signal a passing express train, which took him to New Haven. It is thought he will recover.

Hallman Sims, well known in the younger social set of Atlanta, Ga., and in charge of the collections of the Capital City National bank, is under arrest charged with diverting about $91,000 of the bank's funds to his own use. He had doctored the books for eight years to cover up his speculations.

Oscar Barcliffe, the engineer of the train that killed nine school children and injured 30 others at Newark, N. J., on Feb. 19, is physically well, but his mind is still unsteady and he raves about his engine. Near the hospital is a statue of St. Michael in colors and life size. The clock has a red cape and Barcliffe looking at the statue imagined the cape to be a danger signal. This aggravated the case so that he had to be sedated.

The annual statement of the Michigan Central shows that its earnings from passenger traffic last year were $103,057 greater than in 1901, and its total earnings were $233,501 greater.

Easter Pastimes to Amuse the Children

Much Easter amusement can be secured from eggs made into a variety of objects, such as great purple plums, watermelons and fine radishes, says the Delineator. To prepare them color some eggs and make the egg all solid hues, some a rich purple, some red, others brown or light green, one or two dark green.

Begin by making the radish. Gum a number of crisp tissue-paper leaves cut from Figure 1 on the big end of the red eggs. Fold each leaf lengthwise through the center, according to the dotted line; then slip a hat pin or the back of the blade of a table knife tight up in the fold and, holding the leaf in place with the right hand, gradually push it up together on the blade with the left hand; this gives the leaf a natural crimped appearance (Fig. 2). Take a small piece of raw cotton and dip it in the dye, or better still, color it with a little crushed red crayon; then pull the cotton into the form of Figure 3. Fasten this red point on the end of the egg and the egg will be a radish (Fig. 4).

Use a dark green egg to make the baby watermelon. Mark uneven, lengthwise bands around it with a soft lead pencil, and fasten in the stem with sealing wax. Bore a hole in the large end of the melon, making the opening big enough to admit the end of a small curved swig, which must form the stem; put on enough sealing wax to secure firmness (Fig. 5).

Convert the purple egg into a plum by fastening it on the natural twig in the same way you stick the melon on its stem. Gum two green tissue-paper leaves to the branch for the foliage (Fig. 6).

The funny big acorn must likewise be attached to a stem, and on its small end you should fasten with sealing wax a leaf bud from the lilac bush, if that cannot be had make the little point of cotton. Let a band of colored raw cotton or crumpled tissue paper be glued on to form the edge of the acorn cup (Fig. 7).

A neat little tea pot, one from which tea can really be poured out of the saucy wee spout, blow the contents from an egg. Have the sealing wax, if possible, of a soft gray color, delicate brown or quiet gray-green. With a sharp scissors cut a round hole in each end of the shell and another small one in the side a small distance from the top as an opening for the spout. Soaking the shell in warm water for nearly half an hour will render it less brittle. Make the bottom of the teapot of a round piece of stiff paper, cover the upper side of the paper all over with melting sealing wax and before the wax hardens set the shell down on it. For greater security drop mottled sealing wax on around the bottom where it joins the shell, as in Fig. 9. The spout (Fig. 10) should be cut from stiff paper, also the handle (Fig. 11); fasten both on the egg-shell with sealing wax in their respective positions, following the dotted lines. When finished test the teapot to make sure it is waterproof; then more than half fill it with water and have the fun of pouring the water in a tiny stream out of the spout. If the teapot leaks the least bit fill the crack with sealing wax. Be sure that the little gift is in perfect order before it leaves your hands.

Having completed the teapot, the sugar bowl will be easy work. Use two strips of paper for the handles; fasten them on with sealing wax, and set the round bottom of the half egg-shell in the soft sealing wax which you have dropped on a circular bit of paper. The paper being flat will give the sugar bowl a level stand, enabling it to sit erect and firm. (Fig. 12).

In old-fashioned country houses there is usually a pail of clear, cold spring water conveniently near, with a gourd dipper from which to drink in place of a common glass. The grounds are interesting, odd-looking drinking vessels, but cannot compare in quaintness to the little egg dippers fashioned from eggshells. A large half of an eggshell forms the bowl and a slender stick the handle. (Fig. 13). Bore a hole in one side of the dipper and slide the end of any kind of a slender stick through. Fasten this securely in place with hot sealing wax both outside and inside at the juncture of the bowl and handle, and in less time than it takes to tell it the dipper will be made.

Place all the unique Easter gifts you have manufactured on a table, where you may enjoy them, and in order that you shall get the full benefit of their beauty, look at them through a pair of opera glasses, but first you must make the glasses. Cut (Fig. 14) from cardboard, then bore holes in each end of two eggs, remove the contents and cut the openings large enough to see through. (Fig. 15) Attach the large ends of the shells to Fig. 14 by means of melted sealing wax; glue them on tightly and the opera glasses will be ready for use. (Fig. 16).

A Good Old Custom.
It used to be a custom among good Christians to salute one another with a kiss, but now, although indiscriminate osculation is no longer kept upon Easter morning, the habit, which is as old as the human race, still prevails, more desirably in shades of waving and with limited audience.

Jagged Bay.
Bay county has again been aroused by the revival of the attempt to steal Gibson township from Bay county. Citizens who visited Lansing some time ago were assured that the project was dead, and that Bay would remain intact. On Saturday the community was startled by the passing of the bill, and something will happen to local representatives if that measure be allowed to pass the senate. A delegation will protest at Lansing once more against further dismemberment of Bay, which, by such mutilation, has become only a jagged strip on the beach.

A Great Mill.
The directors of the American Sault Paper Co. have approved plans for the erection of pulp paper mills at Sault Ste. Marie. The plans call for a ground wood pulp mill of 100 tons capacity, a sulphite mill and a fibre paper mill of 125 tons daily capacity. The plans include water power and electrical power development in connection with the Chandler-Dunbar water power privilege and the Edison Sault Electric Co. The cost of the plant will approximate $1,250,000.

Will Return to Work.
After a long and stormy debate, representatives from all the local mining unions in the state Monday decided to accept the agreement entered into at Indianapolis between their representatives, the operators and John Mitchell, and to return to work. Under the agreement all are to receive 96 cents per ton, an advance of 10 cents per ton over last year, and the miners will continue to push the carts.

AROUND THE STATE.
Thomas J. Navin, of the prison board, and his family are quarantined, owing to one of the children having smallpox.

Fully 1,500 persons attended a meeting in the interest of the Salvation Army work in the auditorium Sunday afternoon. Congressman Henry McCormack was chairman, and Maj. Blanche Cox, of Detroit, spoke.

What is said will be the largest drug and chemical factory in the world is to be started in Grand Rapids by the Interstate Medical association, capitalized at $10,000,000, just organized by A. C. Wisner and N. S. Phelps, of Battle Creek.

Burglars raided the hardware store of Howell & Lawton at Cooperaville, Monday night, securing cutlery to the amount of $200. They left town on a handcar, going to Grand Rapids. This makes the third heavy burglary in the town in three weeks.

Rev. Fr. Van Straelen, of the Catholic parish in Sebewaing, has become violently insane, choking and otherwise abusing his aged housekeeper. Bishop Foley has ordered the demented priest to be removed to a retreat in Detroit, where he can receive proper treatment.

The special council committee which ran the municipal coal yard at Battle Creek last winter sold $4,920 worth of coal to citizens at much less than regular dealers asked, and the deficit to meet at the final closing of the yard was but $8.65.

Tom White, aged 18, a section hand on the Grand Trunk railroad, was killed near Owosso Friday morning by being run over by a hand-car, the only witnesses to his death being his three brothers, who are also section hands, and who were working with Tom.

LIVE CASTRATION.
From Farmers' Review: The objects of castration are to prevent reproduction, to increase the tendency to lay on flesh, to better the quality of the meat and to secure docility. Almost every farmer considers himself competent to do this work, and although the loss is not very great it could easily be reduced at least one-half by using proper care and better judgment. The heaviest loss from castration is due to the extremes of heat or cold and to the attacks of flies. Should the weather be extremely cold when the operation is performed the wounded parts are apt to become frosted. If performed in very hot weather complications may set in causing great inflammation and death of the animal.

The very young animal withstands the shock better than older ones and is little checked in its growth by it. The work, however, is much more easily performed on older animals. The age, then, should be such as to eliminate the tedious work with the very young animal and the injurious effect upon an animal well advanced toward maturity. When an animal is castrated it should be in good health free from constipation or any feverish condition and should have a good appetite. The animals should be lightly fed both before and after the operation, at least for one or two days. In fact the work should be done on an empty stomach. If possible, after castration turn the animal on grass. This with the pleasant days is the advantage of doing the work in the spring of the year.

With pigs, lambs and calves it is a good practice to castrate midway between birth and weaning time. With the ram-lamb intended for market it is not worth while for the small flock master to run the risk of losing individuals by castration. If well cared for these lambs may be fattened and placed on the market early enough to prevent any inconvenience or any deleterious effects to the meat product by not castrating them. Docking the lambs' tails when the animals are young will have but little effect in retarding growth. The ram lambs should not have their tails docked at the time of castration. Where the two operations are performed together there is greater risk of losing an animal. A lamb's tail may be cut off when the lamb is but one to three days old. Pigs freshly castrated should not be allowed to wallow. The introduction of mud alone into the open gashes lengthens the period of healing. Again inoculation of disease germs may occur in these fresh wounds causing the death of the animal.

If calves are castrated at the proper age and in good weather, little attention need be given them afterward. They seem to have the strength to overcome the shock with slight derangement of the system. However, local complications may set in and should be checked before the animal has become weakened. Calves not castrated from eight to ten months after birth often show the stag head which is so objectionable and which often reduces the price of the animal when sold either as a feeder or when fattened for the butcher's market. Early maturity demands the castration of the calves when very young. This makes the steer take on the appearance of the heifer and the development will henceforth be more uniform.

Colts are an exception to the general rule of castrating before the weaning period. A high-spirited animal with a large, well arched neck is very much desired and the breeder attempts to secure these features by allowing the colt to run stud until two or three years old. It is gradually becoming a practice among horse breeders to castrate their male colts when yearlings. The animal is much more easily handled at that age and the great inconvenience of caring for the colt and separating it from the other animals is dispensed with. There is also less risk of death incurred.—W. R. Anderson.

THE DRAUGHT'S BLACK-DRAUGHT THE ORIGINAL LIVER MEDICINE

A yellow complexion, dizziness, biliousness and a coated tongue are common indications of liver and kidney diseases. Stomach and bowel troubles, severe as they are, give immediate warning by pain, but liver and kidney troubles, though less painful at the start, are much harder to cure. The Draught's Black-Draught never fails to benefit diseased liver and weakened kidneys. It stirs up the torpid liver to throw off the germs of fever and ague. It is a certain preventive of cholera and Bright's disease of the kidneys. With kidneys reinforced by The Draught's Black-Draught thousands of persons have dwelt immune in the midst of yellow fever. Many families live in perfect health and have no other doctor than The Draught's Black-Draught. It is always on hand for use in an emergency and saves many expensive calls of a doctor.

Aniline, S. C., March 10, 1901.
I have used The Draught's Black-Draught for three years and I have not had to go to a doctor since I have been taking it. It is the best medicine for me that is on the market for liver and kidney troubles and dyspepsia and other complaints. Rev. A. G. LEWIS.

The following from the Detroit Free Press of last Monday will be of local interest, as the young lady in the case was formerly a student of high school and has an uncle living in the village.

Mrs. Helen Parry and her 15 year-old daughter, Winnifred, lodged last evening in the county jail. It was the last episode of an alleged attempt on the part of the mother to kidnap her daughter and remove her from the jurisdiction of the Wayne Circuit Court.

Winnifred is complaining witness against her uncle, Arthur L. Parry, of Romulus, Mich., who is charged with a serious statutory offense, and is at present in the county jail awaiting trial. It is averred that Mrs. Parry is unwilling to have her daughter appear against the prisoner, and on this account, some time ago a movement was made to have the girl locked up as a witness.

An agreement was finally entered into, however, that Winnifred should be given over to the custody of a second uncle, Charles Rutter, also of Romulus, and he guaranteed her appearance in court.

All went well until Saturday evening and then Deputy Sheriff E. J. Johnson received a telephone message from Rutter saying that the girl had disappeared and that it was supposed her mother had taken her away.

Yesterday morning, accompanied by Deputies Jos. Smith and Alexander McLean, both of Romulus, Johnson went to the Windsor ferry, and almost the first person he saw was Mrs. Parry. She was at once taken to the county jail and locked up. The officers then went across the river to locate the daughter. They entered the Continental hotel and Rutter, who was in the party, started to examine the register, but just then Johnson spied the girl passing through the hall and followed her to her room.

"I suppose that the mother will be let go to-day, and I understand that if the child is held in jail as a witness, the case will be one of the first to be tried this term."

Tuesday's Free Press: Mrs. Helen Parry says that she tried to get her 15-year daughter out of Wayne county, so that she would not have to testify against Arthur L. Parry, accused of a serious crime.

The mother says that the charges against Parry are trumped up, and that the girl's uncle is hostile to the mother's approaching marriage to Parry, who is a brother-in-law.

Mrs. Parry is a widow, her husband, Lorin, having died about six months ago. He left her a good farm near Wayne, and not long after, Arthur L., the husband's brother, began courting her.

John Streng subscribed fifty dollars last summer for promoting the Plymouth fair. John didn't pay up and the fair association, by treasurer Voorhies, brought suit for the payment of the subscription.

A Great Sensation. "There was a big sensation in Leesville, Ind. when W. H. Brown of that place, who was expected to die, had his life saved by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption..."

ABOUT SUGAR BEETS.

The farmers hereabout are being interested in the growing of sugar beets and some of them have already contracted several acres for this year as an experiment.

The Sanilac Sugar Refining Company of Croswell is meeting encouragement at most points in its territory. Nearly 500 acres are contracted about Decker-ville alone.

On this contract men about Harbor Beach are going to grow beets and haul them ten or twelve miles to the railroad. They say they can haul as valuable a load of beets as they can of hay.

The beet sugar industry has come to stay, if the farmer wants it bad enough to encourage it with a few acres on his own farm.

With the money paid for labor and paid for beets withdrawn from a community there is a difference such as the people of Sanilac Centre have experienced before to effect them and since.

The spring shoppers to Detroit, looking for entertainment after their arduous duties are performed will find many pleasing specialties on the Avenue theater program.

Consumption

The only kind of consumption to fear is "neglected consumption."

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

At the faintest suspicion of consumption get a bottle of Scott's Emulsion and begin regular doses.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

Neglected consumption does not exist where Scott's Emulsion is.

Prompt use of Scott's Emulsion checks the disease while it can be checked.

THE NEW COUNCIL MEETS.

The first regular session of the new council was held in the council chamber Monday evening, with all members present, President Robinson occupying the chair.

After the calling of the roll by clerk Lauffer, the President announced the following standing committees of the council, including a new committee on electric lighting.

Claims and Accounts—Allen, Eddy, Hamilton.

Ways and Means—McLaren, Hamilton, Jolliffe.

Streets—Allen, Eddy, Jolliffe.

Parks—McLaren, Hamilton, Jolliffe.

Health—Jolliffe, McLaren, Allen.

Ordinances—Jolliffe, Burrows, McLaren.

Public Buildings—Burrows, Eddy, Allen.

License—Burrows, Allen, Eddy.

Water—Eddy, Jolliffe, McLaren.

Fire—Hamilton, Burrows, Eddy.

Electric Lighting—Hamilton, Burrows, McLaren.

The President also submitted the following appointments, which were confirmed by the council without dissent.

President pro tem—J. O. Eddy.

Chief Fire Department—W. J. Burrows to continue for the present.

Marshal and Street Commissioner—Burton Brown.

Health Officer—Dr. B. Adams.

Superintendent Water Works—W. T. Connor.

Trustee McLaren, as a committee appointed by the old council, to secure from Union street property owners $600 for the purpose of purchasing the Bennett property that the street might be widened to its full width at its intersection with Sutton street, reported that he was unable to secure the amount, which report was on motion accepted and the committee discharged.

The matter of widening said street was subsequently again taken up and now the council will do as it ought to have done in the first place, assess the property owners interested and benighted sixty per cent of the expense the village to pay the other 40. A notice to the property owners will be found published in another column.

Several petitions were presented by householders whose cellars had been flooded with water since last summer, asking for relief. The council extended a privilege to one party and will proceed in a legal way to afford relief to sundry residents on Ann Arbor street.

Trustee Hamilton reported that he had some conferences with Detroit electricians relative to our prospective electric light plant, but was not prepared to submit anything to the council.

A meeting of the committee will be held at which some plans of work will be formulated and active preparations commenced. We believe the matter is in efficient hands and that careful consideration will be given to the end that the best for the money will be secured. The committee should not only consider present but future needs and install a plant that will serve many years, getting the best machinery, even if the appropriation is exceeded by a few hundred dollars. Much information can be gained by visiting other municipal localities and this will undoubtedly be done.

The council will meet again next Monday evening.

A member of the company was unable to be present and Miss Katherine Eggleston, a noted reader, supplied the place and gave a number of readings in a charming manner that won for her enthusiastic applause. Mr. Gamble sang in his usual artistic style and he also was repeatedly encored. Mr. Merley presided at the piano with masterful ability. The ladies of the club may well feel proud of the seasons course of entertainments and as they have also been financially successful the public hopes they may be continued another season.

THE LION'S WHELP

A Story of Cromwell's Time

BY AMELIA E. BARR

Author of "The Bow of Orange Ribbon," "I, Thou and the Other One," "The Maid of Maiden Lane," Etc.

(Copyright, 1901, by Dodd, Mead & Company. All rights reserved.)

"I have only been in London three days. I was ill at de Wick. I became unconscious at my father's burial. You remember Anthony Lynn, the tanner and carrier, Jane?"

"Yes."

"He has bought de Wick from the old Parliament. He was very kind to me, and he knew his place; but on my faith! I nearly lost my fingers when I saw him sitting in my father's chair. Well, then, I am now in London; and all roads lead from London. I shall not longer spoil my eyes for the Fen country. But, oh, Jane, the melancholy Ouse country! The black, melancholy Ouse, with its swollen water and muddy banks. No wonder men turned traitors in it."

And Jane only leaned close, and closer to the sad, sick girl. She understood that Matilda must complain a little, and she was not unwilling to let the dreary meadows of the Ouse bear the burden. So the short afternoon wore away to Jane's tender ministrations without one cross word. Early in her visit she had yielded to Matilda's entreaties, had sent home her carriage, and promised to remain all night. She dismissed Della, and herself undressed her friend as tenderly as a mother could have done; and when the tired head was laid on the pillow she put her arms under it and kissed and drew the happy, grateful girl to her heart, and said some of those sweet, foolish words which, alas! too often become a forgotten language. Matilda answered them in the same tender, broken patois—"Dear heart! Sweet heart! Darling Jane! Go to the little drawer in my toilet case and bring me a picture you will find there. It is in an ivory box, Jane, and here is the key." And Jane went and found the miniature she had once got a glimpse of, and she laid it in Matilda's hand. And the girl kissed it and said, "Look here, Jane, and tell me who it is."

Then Jane looked earnestly at the handsome, melancholy, haughty face; at the black hair cut straight across the brows and flowing in curls over the laced collar and steel corset, and

"But for God's sake let me ask you you heard anything of Prince Rupert?"

"You know that he was made admiral of the Royalist navy; but, indeed, he is said to be nothing else but a pirate, robbing all ships that he may support the Stuart family at The Hague."

"He is the bread-finder of the King as well as his defender. So much I knew, and 'tis well done in him."

"The latest news is the drowning of Prince Maurice."

"That is the worst of news. Rupert loved this brother of his so tenderly. They were not happy apart. Poor Rupert! That affliction will bring him to shore, and then what will the King do for money?"

"He is said now to be in great need of it, though Prince Rupert sent home a rich prize this past summer; and 'tis further said he resigned his own share of it to his cousin, Charles Stuart."

"'Twould be most like him."

This conversation had many sides and deviations, and the night was far spent when Matilda was willing to sleep. And in the morning, while they ate breakfast together, the subject was renewed; for sorrow is selfish and Matilda forgot that she had never even asked after the welfare of Jane's family.

Jane returned to her home soon after breakfast, and her mother met her with a smiling face. "I was going to send the coach for you," she said, "for there is to be company to-night," and then she looked at Jane so intelligently that the girl understood at once what was meant.

"Is it Cluny?" she asked, blushing brightly.

"Yes. He has asked for an interview with your father, and I suppose that it is granted, for I was told of the matter."

"Mother, dear, will you speak in our favor?"

"If needs be, Jane. But I am of this opinion—some one has spoken already."

"Do you mean the Lord General?"

"I wouldn't wonder if he has said kindly and wisely." And Cluny bowed and went silently to seek his bed.

"Your father says we are to wait five years, sweet Jane; and 'tis a hard condition. I know not how I am to endure it."

And Jane smiled and began to talk over with her lover the hard condition, and somehow it became an easy and reasonable one. They soon saw it through Love and Hope and Wisdom, and so at the beginning of their probation, they rejoiced in the end of it.

Life soon settled itself to the new conditions of the Swaffhams. The General, in spite of his wife's and daughter's disapproval, bought the Sandys House near Russel square, and some of the most precious heirlooms of old Swaffham were brought up to London to adorn it.

Mrs. Swaffham was well content in London. Social by nature, fond of the stir and news of life, enjoying even the shadow of her old friends' power and splendor, and taking the greatest interest in all public events of the time, she was pleased rather than otherwise at the Lord General's determination to keep her husband near him.

Neither was Jane at all averse to London. Cluny was in London, and Matilda was there, and most of the girls whom she had known all her life long. And if Jane accepted willingly this change of life, Matilda took her phase of it still more enthusiastically. She was not long in discovering that it was in her power to be virtual mistress of the Jevrey mansion. Her youth, her beauty and her many sorrows inclined Sir Thomas Jevrey's heart to sympathy, and this prepossession grew rapidly to devoted affection. She was considering one morning a string of Orient pearls, wondering if they could be worn with her new damasse gown, when Jane entered her dressing room.

"Jane Swaffham," she cried with delight, "I'll swear I was just wishing for you. Stephen is here. Will you see him?"

"I will not," answered Jane positively. "I will not come to question about him if he is discovered. Do not ask me to put myself in such a strait, Matilda. It is far better I should be able to say, 'I have not seen him.'"

"Jane, I will tell you a piteous tale. 'Tis of our late Queen: She is so wretchedly poor, and since her son returned to his miserable little court in the Louvre, so broken-hearted, 'twould make you weep to hear of her. Stephen came with Sir Hugh Belward to get some money on Belward."

"How does Sir Hugh Belward hope to get money on Belward? He is proscribed."

"His younger brother joined the Parliament, and he left the estate in his care. And his brother has turned traitor to him, and would give him nothing but permission to ride away as secretly as he came. But oh, Jane! the poor, poor Queen!"—and then Matilda went into some details of the piteous straits and dependencies and insults the widowed woman had been obliged to bear.

Jane listened silently, but there were tears in her eyes; and when Matilda said, "I have given me the jewel the gracious King sent me by my beloved Prince Rupert, and also, what moneys I could get from my Uncle Jevrey," Jane added:

"I have ten pieces of gold that are altogether my own. I will give them to her. I will send the gold by a sure messenger to-day."

Matilda did not urge her to remain, and Jane was eager to get away.

When she reached home, her father was walking about the parlor and talking in an excited manner to his wife. He showed much discontent, and as he walked and talked he rattled his sword ominously to his words.

HE STOPPED THE BELL.

Applicant Had Good Right to Demand a Free Seat.

The requests for theater favors in the small towns are very troublesome, says the Chicago Inter Ocean. Every person of local standing feels that he has a right to admission at least, while the trustees and the constable feel that they are entitled to private boxes. Some of the requests are decidedly unique.

Recently a company played in a small Southern city. The manager was taking the tickets at the door of the theater, and the natives were struggling to get in. "Suddenly," he tells, "a long, thin, bushy chinned individual divided the folding doors with his shoulder, whispered confidentially: 'I stop the bell.' I asked him to repeat. 'I stop the bell,' he said again, in a hoarse whisper. 'You will have to see the opera house manager and tell him what you stop,' I said, reaching for tickets. He tripped up several ladies while backing out. Soon the manager of the house came in, saying, 'He's all right, he stops the bell.' I allowed him to go in, and after the people were seated I asked the local man what he meant by he 'stops the bell.' 'Well,' said he, 'this man is the janitor of the Town Hall, right opposite, and on 'show nights' he does not ring 9 or 10 on the town clock. You see, he said, 'it would disturb the performance,' and so the poor people do not know what time it is until 11 o'clock when the opera house is open. If I had turned him down he would have rung out 9 or 10 every half hour to get even."

How He Won Her.

"Your ambition should be higher."

"He—I don't see why. You are nearly as tall as I am."

A Michigan man who is rich went crazy the other day and started in to eat his money. Many of us would soon starve to death on this diet. Dying, some men are saddened because they cannot take their money with them; others pass to the golden shore happy in the thought that for once in their experience it makes no difference whether they have money or not. The realization promises much and one would almost wish to die just to experience it. So far as we can recall, and we can gaze down a considerable avenue of the past for a young man, we have never been anywhere, day or night, wash-days or Sundays, when we didn't need money to secure the needs to which man is heir. There have been brief and transitory times when friends have told us our money wasn't good, but this is a fleeting deception and generally lasts no longer than the second "treat" around. Money is a clamoring, hammering, serious business. We all want money. No matter how much we have, we want more money. We are like the hen that never sees a bug cross her path, but she must chase it, though her crop be full to bursting. "We need the money," has become almost a national byword. It is no joke, either, for at the pace Americans are living, there are few who don't need it. Desires grow with wealth and the mad-crush at the money box-office has assumed alarming proportions.

"For wealth, without contentment, climbs a hill. To fell those tempests which fly over ditches."

Even though a man has no fastidious desires, he strives rackingly to get rich. There is so much excitement and satisfaction in accruing—and then, too, he can, like Carnegie, give it all away again. Philanthropists who have amassed great fortunes in the struggle, remind us of that famous general, Bill Jackson: "Bill Jackson had an army of 50,000 men. He marched them up to the top of the hill—Then marched them down again!"

And yet, we feel better toward the man who marches down again than the money grabber who camps on the top of the hill. There is little good in such a general, for it is the essence of truth that:

"There are, while human miseries, A thousand ways to waste superfluous wealth. Without one fool or flatterer at your board, Without one hour of sickness or disgust."

Yes, we all need money. If we do not need it for those we love, we need it for those we should love—the human family. There are pains and aches and sorrows that money can allay, there are hearts that are breaking and souls that might be saved with money. If the love of it is the root of all evil, the possession of it, when rightly used, is the golden grail that opens the way to peace on earth and comfort unadorned.

Some Iowa editors are busily engaged in a discussion of open work hosiery, feminine gender. The consideration is entirely uncalled for and foreign to the upbuilding of the commonwealth. It is a subject, too, that they are presumed to know little about, hence cannot write of intelligently. The bachelor editors of the Hawkeye state, be it said with regret, seem to be the most interested, their editorials exceeding in length those of the benedictines who may have had some trifling experience along this line. In their distracting considerations they are entirely neglecting the "Iowa Idea," and a possible candidate for the Presidency. All this is to be deplored. As a son of Iowa, we respectfully, but vehemently, expostulate at such carrying on! There is danger in thus meddling with the perquisites of woman. As a whole, woman is all right. Even Samuel Johnson was fond of the company of women; he liked their beauty, their delicacy—and also their silence. Others have expressed themselves, but none of the great men has gone on record as to open work hosiery! What the noted men of yesterday had not the courage to do, the Iowa man of to-day had better not attempt.

Byron says, speaking of women:

"What a whirlwind in her head, And what a whirlpool full of depth and danger."

Is all the rest about her."

This "all the rest" includes open work hosiery and the goblins will get some of those Iowa editors, "if they don't watch out."

Although we are compelled to hold a pillow slip in front of our face when we read it, and are prompted to reprint, for the benefit of President Eliot of Harvard, the following except from one of the leading daily papers:

"There's fight in the old boys yet. The bride of a seventy-two-year-old G. A. R. man has just given birth to a lovely baby girl. Shake, comrades!"

A Massachusetts shoe factory has just completed a contract to make a pair of shoes for a negro in Arkansas. The Tribby-covers are fifteen inches long and as wide as the middle of the road. If they don't fit, the darkey is respectfully advised to try the Chinese habit. A "coon" ought not to have to squeeze his feet much to get them in shoes of those dimensions.

There is an old and honored saw that a man with big feet has a good understanding. When we were a boy we went to school with a "kid" whose feet had spread during his early infancy. His mother stood him on his pedal extremities before he was fully out of the nebulous and waxy state, and his feet flattened. They not only spread as a babe, but they continued to elongate and broaden in that period of life when he was supposed to have known how to cross a honey-bee field without trampling all the honey-bees to death. It was a common sight to see him in those days sitting on a bumble-bee in his mad desire to pick the stingers from the leathery bottoms of his lower extremities. This unfortunate arrangement kept him in the air most of the time, and he continually wore one hand on the bottom of his trousers while the other was engaged in explorations on the flat side of his feet. It was customary with him during these sad but exciting moments to croon maddening little snatches of grief, accompanied by a slobbering sobbing that always touched our heart.

As he grew to manhood, he quit crossing the path of the mad honey-bee, but the sterner years brought him even less of comfort. His feet continued to grow and every time he went downtown six boys and a shying mule would stop on him and fracture his corns. He couldn't buy shoes big enough and when he went barefooted his feet were the sensation of the hour. One lucky day, however, he fell in love—at a distance—and after worshipping his innamorata as the tiny flowered looks upward to the glowing sun, he got the woman in a corner, planted his feet firmly in front of her and popped the question! She tried to break and run, but she could not climb over the broad expanse of feet, and at last, thoroughly exhausted, capitulated, providing he would promise always to keep his nails bluntly manicured and take the family darning out when the washing got too heavy for one woman and a hired girl. A man with as big feet as he had will promise anything when a woman is kind to him, and he took a solemn oath to not only do this, but to stunt his feet from further spreading if possible. That was years ago. They have lived happily "over afterwards," and once during an awful flood, when the waters came up about the house, this school friend of ours shouldered his wife and their big footed brood and carried them all safely to dry land, walking gracefully upon the surface of the water as a boat skims the tide. Contrary to all expectations the woman has not sued for a divorce, nor does she seem discontented, except at times when her husband, grown absent-minded, leaves his shoes in the middle of the floor, and she gets up in the night to stop the mad gambols of the colic in the baby's interior. On these occasions she is prone to fall into the yawning spectacles with more or less aggravation of temper, but as the husband is a light sleeper and usually brings the ladder in an hour or two that she may clamber out, she is fairly well content. It will be seen by this little tale that a man may be seriously handicapped in life by big feet but still, with a good understanding, may come out as the owner of a happy home and two pairs of shoes, hand made. As a rule, however, the ordinary man is satisfied with the expanse of his own feet and is glad they are no broader or longer or thicker, because every square inch of area is a possible stamping ground for more corns.

This trouble in the family business is joy wrecking. Just at present there is something akin to a man on a raft in our happy home. When there are skeletons in the closet, flatirons in the air and heart's blood all over the foreign rug in the conservatory, the most natural thing for a man to do is to go outside of his own domicile for sympathy. In fact, if he can't be loved at home and agreed with, he is going out into the wicked world to look for love and the soothing comfort of a woman's lily-white hand. That is why we are talking you into our confidence. Now, our wife owns a horse. He is, we must admit, a handsome brute, with a white face and eyes that appeal to you for more sugar lumps, but he is a horse, nevertheless, and he shies at automobiles, jumps at the fire wagon, cavorts at the elevated and breaks loose to roll on the sandy beach at every opportunity. Add to this the fact that he eats about twice as much money every month as an auto, and you have one side of our case. The other side, however, is much more important. For some reason or other our wife has allowed a great and massive affection to grow in her heart for this "boss." To such an extreme has this love gone, that she thinks several times as much of the equine as she does of us. That is the other half of our case. Because of this we are advocating a sale of the horse and a purchase of an automobile, on the grounds that she can't very well love a bucking devil-wagon. A woman is more or less of a clinging vine, and she insists on clinging to this four-legged lover of hers, despite the fact that we lavish on her all the kindness of our exceedingly kind nature. What would you do in such an emergency, and do you blame us for taking the public into our confidence? What make of automobile are you most favorable to and how much does it cost?

PASSION AND THE HEALTH.

Some Emotions Tend to Prolong and Others to Shorten Life.

"The passions' effect on the health is not sufficiently regarded," said a physician. "The passion which is best for the health is avarice. It keeps one cool, encourages regular and industrious habits, leads to abstemiousness and makes against all excess. And hence, the avaricious, the misers, live to a great age. The misers of history were all noted for their longevity. Rage is very bad for one. This passion causes an irregular, intermittent beating of the heart, and the intermittency in time may become chronic. Hatred creates fever. If we hate we grow lean. This hot passion eats us like a flame. Fear is bad for the nerves, the heart and the brain, and, therefore, we should never permit ourselves to be afraid. But the strangest effects of all have been caused by the passion of grief. The medical books record cases where, coming suddenly, in a violent shock, it has caused a loss of blood from the lungs in one person, paralysis of the tongue in another and a failure of sight or temporary blindness in a third."

A Farmer's Good Story.

Velpen, Ind., April 6th.—Wm. O'B. Sullivan, a highly respected farmer of this place, tells a personal experience to show that there is still some genuineness and honest worth to be met with in this age in which so many frauds are reported.

"Yes, I have been humbugged," said Mr. Sullivan, "and when I was so ill with the Rheumatism, Kidney and Heart Trouble, I used a good deal of stuff that claimed to be remedies for these diseases only to find them worthless."

"But, as you know, I did find the genuine remedy after all and I had not been taking Dodd's Kidney Pills very long before I knew that they were an honest remedy that would do all and more than was claimed for them. They cured me, made a well man of me and I am now as sound as I ever was."

"I can testify that Dodd's Kidney Pills are a genuine remedy for Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble."

NAME FITTED THE HORSE.

Westerner with Most Profound Sense of Humor.

A member of the United States geological survey was telling recently of an experience he had had in the West while on government business, says the New York Tribune. The nature of his work called for much horseback riding, and a prerequisite to its accomplishment, therefore, was the purchase of a horse. This is a matter of easy accomplishment in the West, and so the government official found. The mettle of the beast or his inability to work is, however, another and a different matter, and this, too, the government official found out.

"What's the animal's name?" he inquired, as the sale became an accomplished fact, and he was about to enter into possession of an animal that resembled the pictures of a horse in that he possessed four legs, a head and a tail. "Enoch," replied the sorry plug's late owner.

"Enoch?" queried the purchaser with a strong interrogatory note. That's a queer name. Where did you pick it up?"

"He's named after some old sharp in the Bible," was the brief explanation, and the twain parted.

Enoch developed peculiarities suspicious to his new owner, and so he determined to look up the original Enoch and find out what his particular claim to fame had been. In Genesis he found that Enoch walked 365 years with the Lord. As he read the words a profound reverence for the westerner's sense of humor came to him, for his own particular Enoch had a name that closely fitted him.

THE VALUE OF TREES.

Time Gone By When War Upon Them Was Necessary.

Time changes all things, and time is changing the public and private estimate of trees in this country. When the pioneers came upon a vast wilderness the trees were as much opposed to their making comfortable livelihoods as were the copper-skinned savages. They made war upon the forest with more zeal than judgment; they slaughtered and laid waste. With such beginnings of the people their constituted authorities have been slow to make laws for protection of mere trees, though gradually the worth of the latter have come to be understood by the many.

Old trees soon will be held, as they should be, to be sacred, and young trees as something to be encouraged, fostered and trained in the way they should go. It is only a few years since Dr. Marshall of Pennsylvania, astonished the public by bringing suit against a telephone company for hacking branches off some stately trees because they interfered with the stringing of proper insulation of its wires. The courts sustained the doctor's contention that the ancient trees are treasures. The telephone company will not soon forget the fact, for it was compelled to pay smartly for the destruction it wrought.

STORY OF COTTON SEED.

Now Worth Millions, But Once Considered a Nuisance.

One of the romances of the census is the story of the cotton seed and the millions of dollars it yields annually, where a few years ago the seed was a nuisance, outlawed by the states of the cotton belt. In the Mississippi laws of 1857 was one imposing a fine of $20 for every day that cotton seed was left around a gin-house to menace public health. In 1870 a process for extracting oil from cotton seed had been discovered and a product worth $14,000 was realized. What was deemed a nuisance in 1857 continued to prove valuable through invention until in the census year of 1900 it gave a return to the mill operators of over $42,411,000. Cottonseed oil is used on the table, rivaling that of the olive and threatening to drive the latter from the market. The oil also enters into soap and butter making and is burned in miners' lamps. The hulls are used in making paper, fuel and fertilizer, while enormous quantities of the seed itself find a market as food for cattle.

To Bashful Lovers.

He sat with his head bowed, and a sad, far-away look in his eyes. "What's the matter, old man?" his friend asked.

He sighed, pulled a little slip of paper from his pocket, and answered: "I saw this 'ad.' in one of the weekly papers. Read it."

"How to Win the Girl You Love.—Full directions furnished in plain, sealed envelope. Send one shilling postal order, or thirteen stamps. Address—"

"Well, did you send for the formula?"

"Yes; here's the answer: 'Get a million dollars, and let her look at it.' Then he heaved another sad sigh, and his head dropped forward again.

THE LADY FROM BOSTON.

Child of Seven Years Makes Sociological Investigation.

A little Boston girl of seven, just settled in the metropolis, and possessing a natural but restrained and tempered curiosity to know something about her new place of residence, began yesterday the first of a series of tours of sociological investigation, says the New York World. Accompanied by an older person, a man, she applied at the West Sixty-eighth street police station for a pass permitting herself and her mother to inspect the station. This permission being granted, the young investigator at once availed herself of it and examined the station house interior carefully. She expressed herself as shocked by the primitive accommodations for prisoners. Then she visited a firehouse near by.

Ideas come early in Boston. Perhaps in this little girl Sergt. Burns was entertaining a future Susan B. Anthony or a Julia Ward Howe unaware. At any rate she is started early on the right road to distinction as Boston knows it. Another trip may take her to the East Side, and a few years see her a full-fledged social settlement worker presiding over a settlement of her own for the uplifting of fallen humanity in bad neighborhoods and writing learned papers thereupon for the magazines. She is a credit to her native town. Little New York girls of seven may take a livelier interest in toys and candy and dolls. She is of superior clay, one of the plain-living and high-thinking kind who redeem the world of its triviality.

Precocious Chinese Boy.

George Dewey Fong, a 16-year-old Chinese boy, is said to earn a salary of $7,000 a year in a tea and coffee house in New York city. Young Fong was born in America, but both of his parents are natives of China. He received his early education in the primary schools of California. Two years ago he came east and settled in New Jersey, where he became quite a favorite of ex-Gov. Voorhees. His brother was the only Chinese officer in the British army during the South African campaign, and at present is writing a book on soldier life in South Africa.

Danger of Colds and Grip.

The greatest danger from colds and grip is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, how ever, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these diseases, we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous disease. It will cure a cold or an attack of the grip in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale at Meilers drug store.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.
