NEWS OF THE WORLD

A Brief Chronicle of All Important Happenings

Colombia Rejects Canal Treaty.

A cablegram dated August 12 has been received at the state department from Minister Beaupre at Bogota, saying that the Panama canal treaty has been rejected unanimously by the Colombian senate.

President Roosevelt was immediately advised of the news.

Very little additional information concerning the action of the Colombian senate could be obtained at the state department. The information in the cablegram was meager and there was no intimation whether the treaty might not again be brought up for consideration.

Section 4 of the Isthmian canal act provides that should the president be unable to obtain a satisfactory title to the property of the new Panama Canal Company and control of the necessary territory and the rights necessary to the construction of the canal from the republic of Colombia, he shall make the necessary treaties with Costa Rica and Nicaragua and proceed with the construction of a canal by the Nicaragua route.

It will be impossible for President Marroquin to again submit the treaty to the Colombian congress in its present form. The senate having rejected it, the treaty cannot again come before that body except by the senate's own vote. President Marroquin, however, can send the treaty slightly amended to the senate and reopen the canal debate. It is believed at the Colombian legation that President Marroquin will adopt some such procedure.

Bulgaria Begs the World to Listen.

Bulgarian government has presented a memorandum to the powers setting out at great length the condition of affairs during the past three months in Macedonia since the Turkish government undertook to inaugurate the promised reforms. The memorandum constitutes a terrible category of murder, torture, incendiarism, pillage and general oppression committed by the Ottoman soldiers and officials.

Wholesale massacres, individual murders, the destruction of villages, the pillaging and setting fire to houses, the arrests, ill-treatment and banishment, the closing and disorganizing of churches and schools, the ruining of merchants, the collection of taxes for many years in advance—such, says the memorandum, are among the acts of the Ottoman administration of the vilayets of Salonica, Monastir, Uskud and Adrianople.

The Papal Navy.

Pope Pius asked Cardinal Vannutelli's nephew, formerly lieutenant in the Italian navy, to make an inventory of the rest of the former papal marine, with a view to selling same to the highest bidder. Among the ships are three old galleys, and a number of dispatch boats. It will be remembered that Pope Leo, several years ago, auctioned off the Vatican arsenals, guns, swords, cannon and ammunition. The new pope has seemingly decided to do away with the last remnants of old-time warlike conditions as far as the Vatican is concerned.

Leather makers are interesting themselves in a plan to raise goats on a large scale on abandoned New England farms for their hides.

Another Scandal.

Indian Commissioner Jones and others of the interior department think the administration of affairs of the Indian Territory should be given a thorough investigation. Recently reports have come in of great land frauds. It is alleged that several minor officials of the department are stockholders, directors, etc., in land companies. The outlook is very much the same, as to officials holding such jobs, as it was in the postoffice department scandals. It is rumored that some of these are Tams Bixby, chairman of the Dawes commission; Guy F. Cobb, internal revenue inspector for the territory; Gov. Mosely, of the Chickasaw Nation; George Wright, Indian inspector; Thomas B. Needles, a member of the Dawes commission; Charles A. Davidson, clerk of the United States court at Vinita, Indian Territory; James A. Huckleberry, assistant United States attorney.

Swam the Rapids.

J. W. Glenister, the New York athlete, successfully swam the Niagara river rapids Tuesday, thus accomplishing a feat which has never been performed before, and in which the world-famous English swimmer, Capt. Webb, lost his life 20 years ago. Glenister wore no cork jacket or protection of any kind. The man leaped into the maelstrom, one of the most terrible in the world, at the cantilever bridge, and made his swim in constant danger of drowning or being dashed to pieces on the sharp, concealed rocks on which Capt. Webb met his death. He was pulled out of the water at Devil's hole, five miles down the river from his starting point, having fought through the maelstrom and the upper and lower rapids. Glenister sustained a fractured rib, contusions of the right side, and a terrible grueling, and his condition is serious.

Cleaning House.

The investigation being made by Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow into the alleged crookedness that is said to have pervaded the department, is drawing near its close. As a result of the disclosures that have been made he has decided to recommend the dismissal of about 25 sub-chiefs and clerks. The cases of these men, while not criminal in character, are considered sufficiently irregular to call for prompt attention at the hands of the department. Among the cases of this character is that of W. C. Hazard, division superintendent of mail free delivery for the state of New York, who, it is charged, drew $4 per day from the government as if on active field duty while confined in a hospital under treatment for a gunshot wound.

A surly elephant, Tommy, of the Postock collection on Coney Island, killed a zebra with his trunk and tusks. The plucky striped horse was free and could have fled, but preferred to meet death as the end of the quarrel, pluckily biting and kicking the great beast.

To Patrick Sharpe, a leader of the miners in the Tamaqua, Pa. district, shot in Neshquehoning a year ago by a deputy, a handsome monument of Parre granite was dedicated in the St. Joseph cemetery, Summit Hill, Pa., Tuesday.

NEW COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

Plan for Main Building of William Smith College for Women.

The people of Geneva, N. Y., were never more surprised in their lives, perhaps, than they were the other day, when William Smith, the millionaire nurseryman, and for eighty-five years a bachelor, announced the foundation of a college for young women. That he would do something for "the city by the lake" with the fortune saved by years of careful business and intense personal economy they fully believed. But the imagination of none was wild enough to suspect that one whom they had always believed a woman hater would give life and endowment to an institution for the higher education of these very women.

The newest college in this land of colleges and universities will be called the William Smith College for Women. It will have a frontage of 216 feet, with 165 foot wings on each end. The building will probably cost between $120,000 and $150,000, and will be so located in the thirty acre park as to leave room for future growth.

O. E. Guelich, of Detroit, is among the outsiders who have found themselves unable to secure contracts for asphalt work in Milwaukee until the courts have driven the trust city hall ring to cover.

Gen. Miles, on his way to the national G. A. R. encampment at Ft. Reno, was greeted at Colorado Springs as "Our next Democratic president." He was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Norman E. Mack, of Buffalo, at dinner. Mr. Mack, who is a member of the Democratic committee from New York, said Miles could be looked upon as a formidable candidate.

A sermon brought death in Ellen I. T. Tom Lanham, a cattlemen, criticized a sermon of D. Roach's father, and Roach fired at him; shooting and killing his own brother, J. O. Roach, by mistake.

An examination of the New York navy yard of the torpedo boat Decatur, which recently ran on Grindstone Neck, off Bar Harbor, Me., revealed the fact that the boat, instead of merely sustaining damage to its propeller blades, had narrowly escaped being wrecked. The underbody had been scraped by the rock for almost its entire length.

THE MASTER TEACHER.

Oh, much have we to learn of all
The peerless masters and their schools,
Their science, formulas and rules,
And knowledge polytechnical.

But there's one master schools his men
To higher wisdom, worth and power,
That shall outline the passing hour—
Oh, master with the strength of ten.

Aye, there's one master who doth share
The lesser burdens and the great;
One who is yet to graduate
Out of the schools of Work and Care.

In Master Toll's tuition we Are but beginners, learning how
To spin the brocade of Now
About the web of Eternity.

Aunt Hulda's Bear

"Aunt Hulda had some amazing pints," said the loquacious and intelligent man from the Knob country. "So had that b'ar. He was a genuine specimen o' what the Knob country could turn out in the way o' b'ar when it set out to do it, that b'ar was, and he had been raisin' the very old Ned amongst the pigs and farm produce generally for so long, and had kep' so regular and aggravatin' shet of all the traps and tricks that was sot and all tried to waylay and circumvent him, that at last what did old man Mose, over to the Eddy, do but declare he would give $20 in cash for that b'ar fetched in dead, or $30 if anybody'd run him in and hand him over alive."

"Alive!" folks hollered when they heard of it. "Anybody that tries to fetch that b'ar in alive," they says, "will more than likely find their own selves bein' fetched in dead!" they says; but folks didn't know it all, and they hadn't stopped to consider Aunt Hulda.

"Jeptha," says Aunt Hulda to Uncle Jep one day, jest about that time; "Jeptha," says she, "seems to me that if I was you I'd sort o' take a holiday this afternoon and wander over to'rds Big Injin Swamp. Mebbe you mowt run foul o' that pesky b'ar. Of course, says she, "you can't hardly expect to get him alive, but all things being mortal here below," says she, "you mowt accidentally git him dead. If you do," says she, "it'll be $20, and $20 will buy a cow," says she.

"Uncle Jep didn't see but what that'd be a proper idee, and he knocked off-stump-grubbin', took his old smoothbore rifle and started out. "Jonas went and borried that other gun o' mine, ding his pictur, and hain't brung it back yet," says Uncle Jep, as he started.

"The b'ar 'll fetch jest ezacly' as much if you git it with the smoothbore as it will if it had come a tumbin' down before the gun that Jonas borried," says Aunt Hulda. "So don't waste your time grubblin'," says she. "Go look for the b'ar."

"So Uncle Jep went, sayin' that if he got on to the trail o' the cunning old varmint he'd foller it if he had to camp on it all night. He got over jest this side o' Big Injin and hadn't see no sign o' that b'ar or any other b'ar, and was beginnin' to think that if him and Aunt Hulda didn't git a cow till they got it with the price of that b'ar they'd never quarrel about who'd do the milkin', when he heard somethin' snort. He turned, and there he see the b'ar, standin' right out in plain sight, and actin' as if he was afraid Uncle Jep was goin' on with-out seein' him. Uncle Jep knowed it was him, 'cause that b'ar was the only one in the hull Knob country that had a white spot on his briscket.

"This is the first time I ever was to a shootin' match for a cow!" says Uncle Jep, and the idee tickled him so that he had to take his gun down from his shoulder till he could git through his laughin'. "A shootin' match for a cow," says he, and he hauled up a gin and whanged away at the white spot on the b'ar's chest.

"The b'ar give a start, felt his chest with one o' his paws as if somethin' was ticklin' of him there, and then turned a look on Uncle Jep, as much as to say:

"Look a-bore, now! What a you 'sassin' that gun so ding here, sound here for?"

"The b'ar looked mad, too, and Uncle Jep was so took back at the manly look of the critter's hot temper and glaring eyes, that he hain't brung it back yet," says Uncle Jep.

"If that ain't a dirty, mean trick I wouldn't say so!" says Uncle Jep.

"Pulled It Tight and Jumped Behind the Big Pine Tree."

"Sneakin' away like that, you pig-stealin' thief o' the night, you!" says he. "If I'd had the gun that Jonas borried and hain't brung back yet, I bet you wouldn't a-done it, conarn his pictur! But since I'm on your trail I'll foller it, by cats, and show you some tricks that maybe you hain't heard on yet!" says Uncle Jep, and he follered the b'ar till night, and then bunked in at Eli's, 't'other side o' the swamp, so's he could be on hand early next mornin' to show the b'ar them tricks.

"Aunt Hulda woke up in the night some time and heard the pig squealin'. She jumped out o' bed and run to the winder. The moon was shinin' bright as day. Aunt Hulda jest give one look, and then says:

"'B'ar arter the pig!" says she. "A sockin' big b'ar and he'll have that piggen smasher down in less than a jiffy," says she. "And there ain't a gun in the house! If there was," says she, "I'd sneak out and blow the top o' that b'ar's head off," says she. The idee o' Jephtha lendin' his one gun to Jonas, who hain't brung it back yet, and then goin' off with 't'other one and campin' all night on a b'ar's trail! Conarn that Jonas! If I had him here I'd—no, I wouldn't, neither!" hollers Aunt Hulda, who'd been looking out o' winder all the time she was talkin'. "No, I wouldn't, neither!" she hollers, clappin' her hands. "It was a smillin' Providence that made Jephtha lend that gun to Jonas and kep' Jonas from fetchin' of it back!" she hollers, and then she scooted down to the kitchen, grabbed her clothes line, tied a slippin' noose in one end of it, and started out on a run to'rds the pigpen.

"The b'ar stood on his hind feet bargin' away at the pigpen, and the splinters was flyin' tremendous. Then the door went smashin' in, and the b'ar reached in an' yanked the pig out. He hadn't much more than done it, though, when from round the barn Aunt Hulda come a rushin'. She give a yell. The b'ar dropped the pig like a hot p'tater, and fore he could turn and see what it was that had skeery him Aunt Hulda dropped the noose end of the clothes line down over his head, pulled it tight, and jumped behind the big pine tree that stood jest a comfortable jump away.

"It was a smillin' Providence," says she, "that made Jephtha lend his one gun to Jonas and kep' Jonas from fetchin' of it back," says she. "T'other-erwise me and Jephtha would be out jest ten dollars!" says she.

"The b'ar come to himself and sprung arter Aunt Hulda. He slung his big fore legs around the tree to ketch her where she stood, holdin' on to the rope, and in less time than it took him to fetch a good breath Aunt Hulda had circled round that tree several times, so that him to the ground as snug and fast as if he'd been a meat growin' there, and she key right on whar! The rope around him, and the tree till the rope was all used up and the b'ar was a prisoner at the stake.

"Then Aunt Hulda went back to bed and was snorin' away as if nothin' more had happened than only jest gittin' up to give the baby peppermint. Long in the forenoon o' next day Uncle Jep come a-stragglin' home.

"Hulda," says he, "if it hadn't been fer Jonas borryin' that other gun o' mine and not fetchin' of it back, I'd a killed that pesky b'ar dead, yisterdy, an' wor them $20," he says, "ding his ugly pictur's!" he says, meanin' Jonas.

"Well, Jephtha," says Aunt Hulda, "it's an all-pervadin' good thing that you didn't do it," she says.

"What fur?" says Uncle Jep, hardy believin' his ears.

"Why, 'cause if you'd a killed that b'ar dead yisterdy," says Aunt Hulda, "I couldn't a ketch'd him alive last night," says she.

"Arter Aunt Hulda got through laughin' at Uncle Jep standin' there starin' at her with his mouth wide open and his eyes almost bulgin', she took him out to 't'other side o' the pigpen, and there, sure enough, was the rampagin' old b'ar that was worth $30 alive tied so fast to the big pine tree that he couldn't hardly holler. Uncle Jep didn't say nothin'. He couldn't. He jest chopped down the tree, trimmed the limbs offea it to make it a log, hooked the steers to it, and drug it and the b'ar over, to the Eddy. Old Mose forked over the $30 one too quick, and $10 besides for the pine log, so that Aunt Hulda and Uncle Jep didn't only git their cow, but they had quite a snug figger to stuff in the old coffee pot fer future reference, besides. And what did Aunt Hulda do? She made Jonas a present of the borried gun and thanked him fer borryin' it and not fetchin' it back.

"'Though I dunno as I ought to thank you, neither," she says to Jonas. "It was a smillin' Providence that done it," she says."—Ed. Mott in New York Times.

MR. POOLE AND THE PRINCE.

Tailor Who Made King Edward's Clothes to Be Knighted.

Poole, the London tailor, is about to receive the accolade. Why not? Has he not done more to make Edward VII presentable than all other artists in the United Kingdom put together? Clothes make the king as well as the man. Poole makes the clothes; ergo, Poole makes the king. When Edward was simply prince of Wales he owed Poole at times as much as $100,000, and even suffered the tailor to address him in public places without fear of the tower. There are several distinguished Pooles in England, but none so famous as Tailor Poole.

Speaking of Poole, one of his customers says: "His accounts are rendered once a year, just around Christmas. If not paid, he waits twelve months and sends a second bill. Such as do not pay on receipt of the second statement are dropped from his books, and never again are they allowed to give an order in his establishment."—New York Press.

Your Dietary.

Eat when you are hungry—if you leave the price. Drink beer with your ice cream if you like to. Eat grated cheese on your raw onions if you think it good. Drink milk with your cucumbers and sleep the sleep of the just man made perfect. Take a cracker with every drink of liquor and live to be 1,000 years old. Drink whisky with your bananas and forget the cramps. Take vinegar with your salad; it retards digestion. Eat cherries with milk and sugar. Drink Chinati with macaroni. Drink tea while eating meat. Avoid salt; it dries up the skin. In plain English—do as you please—so long as your "stomach" is able to stand it. Violate all the established rules of health and you may live to a good old age.—New York Press.

Superstitions.

If two persons raise their glasses to their lips simultaneously they are indicating the return of a friend or relative from foreign parts. The same intimation is conveyed by bubbles in coffee or by the accidental fall of a piece of soap on the floor.

A flickering flame in the fire or an upright excrement in a burning candle is interpreted as predicting the arrival of a guest, whose stature is judged by the length of the flame or excrement.

If one drains a glass of the contents of which some one else has partaken he will learn the secrets of the latter.

A Floral Clock.

In the public gardens of Edinburgh, Scotland, is a great floral dial made of golden feather pyrethrum with the twelve hours marked on it. A zinc receptacle in the shape of a clock hand, planted with dwarf vegetation, is moved by clockwork and marks the time with great correctness.

Origin of Ox-Tail Soup.

Ox-tail soup, now regarded as a national English dish, was first made by the very poor of Huguenot refugees from France, after the revocation of the edict of Nantes, because ox tails then had no market value.

The Ivory of Fate.

A lady purchased a nice new steamer the other morning with the word "welcome" stamped thereon in glowing letters, and the first to come along and put his number eleven on it was a tax collector.

ANCIENT POMPEII

EVIDENCES OF CHRISTIANITY

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE)

Were there Christians residing in Pompeii at the period of its destruction? Or, rather, are there any evidences or remains which would lead people to accept this probability?

There are several plausible reasons for conjecturing that Christianity might have reached Pompeii. In the Acts of the Apostles it is related that when St. Paul was on his way to Rome in consequence of his appeal to Caesar, he landed at Puteoli, the modern Pozzuoli, where he was met by Christians, "brethren," who desired cal narrative had penetrated into Pompeii; Jews from Alexandria, dwelling in a Roman city, must have possessed the Septuagint translation of the Bible. And Nicolo Lazzaro of Naples declares that the facts of the Old Testament were unknown to the pagans, because they were jealously guarded by the Israelites, and they have come down to us by the transformation of Judaism into Christianity.

Of another fresco, discovered at the same time as the "Judgment of Solomon," less has been said, though it him to tarry with them some days. The distance between Pozzuoli and Pompeii is about thirty miles. It is not unreasonable, therefore, to expect that, if there were Christians in Pompeii during the twenty years that elapsed between that date and the destruction of it in A. D. 79, Christianity made rapid strides, and it is quite natural to think it reached Pompeii, thirty miles from Pozzuoli, within the space of twenty years.

The most interesting, and, indeed, the most remarkable of discoveries, more or less associated with this subject, was that made in June, 1882, a fresco in which what seems the "Judgment of Solomon" is clearly represented, though the figures are dwarfs. When it was brought to light it was described as the first representation of a sacred subject yet found in Pompeii. It was transferred at once to Naples museum, where it may now be seen. It is 5 feet 6 inches in length by 19 inches high, and is surrounded by a black line about one inch in width.

"The scene," wrote Mr. E. Neville Rolfe, the British consul at Naples, who was, I believe, the first to make its discovery known to the English-speaking world, "the scene is laid upon a terrace in front of a house adorned with creeping plants and shaded with a white awning. On a dais, represented as being about four feet high, sits the king, holding a scepter, and robed in white. On each side of him sits a councillor, and behind them six soldiers under arms. The king is represented as leaning over the front of the dais toward a woman in a green robe, who kneels before him with disheveled hair and outstretched hands.

"In the center of the court is a three-legged table, like a butcher's of an importance. In a house in one of the narrower streets of Pompeii, in the quarter supposed to have been inhabited by the primitive Christians, there is also a fresco of a woman riding on an ass, with an infant in her arms, and a man by her side, in which some see a representation of "The Flight into Egypt." If such be the subject of this early fresco, it is by some centuries the earliest representation in art, so far as is yet known, of that memorable event; and it is evident that the work must have been produced at a comparatively short time after the event it commemorates, at a time indeed when the story of it might be told by contemporaries.

The tendency of the evidence derived from these discoveries made at long intervals of time, taken in conjunction with the great probability that Christianity had reached Pompeii some years prior to the destruction of that city, is all towards furnishing an affirmative answer to the question, Were there Christians in Pompeii?

Of the other people of Pompeii we know much. It is no exaggeration to say that of all the ancient cities of the earth no one has revealed so much of its inner life and manners and customs, its vices and its arts, its beliefs and its costumes, and all that can be known, as Pompeii.

Here on one side we wander into the Temple of Venus, where the worship of that deity prevailed; anon we pass into the semi-ruined amphitheater, once clamorous with the shouts of maddened multitudes, now abandoned and silent save for its marvelous echo.

The empty houses, with the painted columns, rising into the blue air, and now supporting nothing, for the roofs are gone, make the place desolate and lonely to the sensitive mind. Yet block, upon which lies an infant, who is held in a recumbent position, in spite of his struggles, by a woman wearing a turban. A soldier in armor, and wearing a helmet with a long red plume, holds the legs of the infant, and is about to cleave it in two with his falchion. A group of spectators completes the picture, which contains in all nineteen figures. The drawing is poor, but the colors are particularly bright, and the preservation is excellent.

How such a subject came to be represented here is a puzzle. Italian archaeologists, and a writer, are generally inclined to think that the biblthere is a joy in wandering in and out of these residences now in ruins, once so elegant and refined, and so rich in works of art, such as the house of Castor and Pollux. The house of the Vetii, a recently excavated dwelling restored in accordance with the ancient style of construction employed in the city, and with nearly all its paintings and statues and gardens, just as they were eighteen centuries ago, is one of the most interesting spectacles that the past has bequeathed to the present.

Of the seven presidents France has had, only one has served a full term.

The Injured Battleship.

The injuries to the battleship Massachusetts caused by striking on Egg Rock shoal, on the coast of Maine, are more serious than the first examination indicated. Not only are the forward compartments full of water, but the ship is leaking farther aft. She floats in a natural position, but is drawing about ten inches more water than usual. Considering the great weight that was taken from her by the collar and tug, it is very evident that an enormous quantity of water must be inside in order to put a ship of her size down ten inches. The anchorage was changed so that the ship might be in shallow water in case she leaked worse and sank. Orders have been sent to the Brooklyn navy yard to get the dock there in readiness for the Massachusetts which is to go there for repairs. One hundred thousand dollars was spent on Massachusetts when she grounded in New York harbor in 1899. The pilot of the vessel was suspended for this accident.

Labor Riot Was Fierce.

From 5 o'clock Saturday night until 1 o'clock Sunday morning the streets of Benwood, West Virginia, were the scene of a wild riot. The striking machinists and the non-union men who replaced the men at the Riverside plant of the National Tube Co. clashed, and many shots were exchanged. For four hours an indiscriminate battle raged between the two forces. Although 1,000 shots were fired, but two men are known to have been wounded by the flying bullets. The beginning of the hostilities asserted itself at about 5 o'clock when an aged man was set upon and badly beaten by a crowd of strikers. He was badly cut and bruised about the head and shoulders and is in a serious condition. This was followed by two other assaults upon non-union men, who were terribly beaten on their way home from work. The non-union men then armed themselves and battle lines were drawn. It was 3 a. m. before quiet was restored.

Another Cup Won.

Irondequoit, the American challenger, lifted the famous Canada's cup Thursday by making it three straight, defeating the defender, Stratheona, in the fifth and deciding race by 1 minute and 22 seconds. The colors of the Rochester Yacht club floated proudly, and the wildest excitement prevailed in Toronto, where the cup races have stirred up remarkable enthusiasm. While the Canadians are disappointed, they acknowledge, one and all, that the better boat won the cup. Its trip to Rochester will mean, they say, a grand trip next year to bring it back to Canada.

EXTENT OF LIFE INSURANCE.

United States Easily Leads the Rest of the World.

Every one knows, of course, that life insurance has made great progress in this country of recent years. The United States easily leads the world in this matter. The American companies do a big insurance business abroad, especially in England and Germany, and have so aroused the jealousy of some of the German companies that they have tried to induce the government to shut out American life insurance, or at least, so discriminate against it as to discourage the business.

In the matter of States, New York makes the best showing, then Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Ohio, Illinois and New Jersey. -New Orleans Times-Democrat.

FIRST THING IN THE MORNING.

Maid Obeyed Employer's Instructions Very Literally.

The wife of D. S. Ritterband of New York, recently engaged a new maid who had arrived from Ireland only six weeks before her engagement. She is an earnest young woman who implicitly obeys instructions. The other evening Mrs. Ritterband asked the maid to get her some sealing wax the first thing the following morning.

"What do you want?" "I want 5 cents' worth of sealing wax right away," replied the maid. "Well, you'll run right back home and go to bed without any sealing wax," snapped the disheveled and disgruntled clerk.

John Wesley's Presence.

A small man physically, John Wesley had in a remarkable degree that which we call "presence." Men felt, as they heard him speak, and came under the domination of his personality, that he was a man of power. He did not seem small to them. Indeed, he often seemed more than man, says Louis A. Banks in Everybody's for July.

Olive Oil as a Diet.

Olive oil—the pale, green, opalescent kind, not the yellow, peasant brand—is recommended by many physicians as a fattener and nerve food. It is very digestible—almost as much so as unsalted butter—and it seems to possess healing and soothing qualities that make it especially valuable in cases of chronic indigestion and dyspepsia.

It Depended.

Dr. Leonard Bacon, well-known not only in his own state, Connecticut, but in many parts of the United States, had several sons who were clergymen. One of them was for several years the popular pastor of the First Church of Christ in New London, Conn. Being in delicate health, Mr. Bacon was advised by his physician to drink lager. So one day he went into a beer saloon and inquired the price of the beverage.

Wesley's Loving Cup.

A loving cup of old English oak-wood, once owned by Bishop Asbery's mother, and frequently used as a sacramental cup by John Wesley when he administered the sacrament to the little band of Methodists at the Anbury House, has just been given to the Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn.

Gored by a Bull

Henry Amrhein, who lives about a mile northeast of the village, was attacked by a bull in the barnyard Tuesday evening, thrown down to the ground and severely butted and trampled upon. Fortunately his brother was near and he succeeded in driving the infuriated animal away. The bull had been deborned or Amrhein's injuries might have been serious if not fatal. As it was, two of his ribs were broken and he was also ruptured.

Council Buys Property

At the council meeting last Monday evening the special assessment roll for the Union street opening was accepted and adopted and ordered placed in the hands of the village treasurer for collection. A resolution was passed authorizing the purchase of the Bennett property and also authorizing President Robinson to sell the house on the land. Only one member of the electric lighting committee was present at the meeting and nothing was done relative to building a powerhouse.

Made a Serious Charge

Maude Worvie, of Northville township, a young lady of nineteen, made complaint before Justice Valentine last Monday against Marion Angle, aged twenty-one, also of Northville township, the charge preferred being bastardy. His examination was placed for Thursday, the 20th, his father going on a bond for his appearance. Later the case was settled out of court and the charge withdrawn.

Barns Struck by Lightning

During the thunder storm which passed over the village Wednesday forenoon, two barns were struck by lightning. One was that of Henry Root, west of the village, which was more or less damaged and one horse killed. The other was the barn of Wm. Both carried insurance. It is fortunate the loss to life and property was not more serious.

Rio Grande

The Northville Maccabees, assisted by well-known Northville and Plymouth talent, will present the thrilling western military drama, "Rio Grande," at the opera house, Plymouth, this (Friday) evening. The performance was given at Northville last Friday evening and scored an immense success, the house being crowded. Many Plymouth people were present and upon their wishes, the Northville people consented to give a performance here. Therefore, inasmuch as it has a personal interest to Plymouth people there should be a crowded house tonight. Special acts will be introduced between acts by C. A. Gardner, of Northville, Harry C. Robinson, of Plymouth, and Thos. Pattison, of Detroit, all of whom are excellent amateur vaudeville artists, and will not fail to please. Tickets 15 and 25 cents. Reserved seats without extra charge at the Wolverine Drug Store.

Band Excursion to Tahmoo

The joint excursion of the Northville Masons and Plymouth band, Tuesday was quite largely attended, the total attendance being 750, of which 452 were from Plymouth and 300 from Northville. The railroad company had provided plenty of cars and there was no crowding or lack of seats. Together with the home crowd and from other places, the steamer Tahmoo was crowded, it being estimated that there were over 3,000 persons on board when the steamer left the wharf. Arriving at the park dinner was first in order, after which each enjoyed himself or herself as best they could, a ball game being one of the features, between Northville and Plymouth. The young people sought the dancing pavilion. All arrived home about eleven o'clock at night tired out and perfectly satisfied of having obtained their money's worth. The day was an ideal one for the occasion and nothing occurred to mar the general enjoyment and pleasures.

Australia allots its senators and members of the house of representatives $2,000 a year without distinction. New Zealand differentiates. Senators of the Canadian parliament are rewarded with $1,500 a year salary and expenses at the rate of $10 a day during the session, with a maximum of $1,500. How Convert Was Made.

A lay delegate to the Episcopal convention of the Newark diocese which recently elected the Rev. Dr. Lines of New Haven as bishop was very zealous in advocating the selection of another candidate. One of those he approached objected to his candidate on the ground that he was not sufficiently strenuous in his methods.

"Why, you must be thinking of some one else," said the layman in surprise. "Let me give you an instance of his methods."

"When he first took charge of his present parish he was the same fine specimen of physical manhood that you see to-day, but withal displayed a lovely character of gentleness, except when you tried to corner him. There was a worldly minded young man in the town who held several medals won in athletic contests, especially in boxing matches.

"The physique of our rector excited the admiration of the champion, and one day in a fit of athletic frenzy he said, meaning no disrespect, but being governed by his ruling passion:

"My dear doctor, if you were not a minister I should like to have you put on the gloves with me. I believe I could knock you out."

"The rector, like most modern preachers in the Episcopal church, is fond of athletics and had stood pretty well up in football at his college. Besides, he is tolerably broad ecclesiastically. So he said to the young champion:

"I will make you a proposition. I will put on the gloves with you for a quiet bout. If you knock me out I will agree with your friends that you are the champion. If I knock you out you shall attend church every Sunday, unless hindered, for one year."

How Convert Was Made.

"The young athlete extended his hand on the proposition. He was in a glow about it, not so much because he was sure he would win as he was an admirer of the rector's physique.

"I don't know where the contest took place. I could not swear that it ever did take place. But very soon after the incident I have mentioned that young athlete became a regular attendant in our church. Then he was confirmed, and, of course, is now a full-fledged churchman. All inside of a year.

"And while he is fond of hunting, fishing and cross-country running, etc., he never speaks of boxing any more. But he is the best churchman in the parish. I think the rector knocked it out of him. Don't you think that a preacher who could do that is strenuous enough to be a bishop?"

The delegate whose support was being solicited replied that he was in favor of type of man for bishop, and he pledged his vote then and there. The vote was not delivered, however, for the rector refused to be a candidate before the convention. The layman who tells the story added:

"That's the sort of preachers the church needs to-day—preachers who can knock a man into the church if it can't be done in any other way."—New York Sun.

How the Pelican Feeds.

Charles F. Holder, the naturalist, describing a pet pelican which he formerly owned in Florida, says: "I cannot recall that the pelican ever refused food. After the most impossible feeding it had the same dejected, half-starved attitude and the same asthmatic cry for more. It was only after many months that I discovered that the pelican can never be satisfied." He thus describes the fishing exploits of these birds: "In feeding they generally flew twenty to thirty feet above the water with rapid motion of the powerful wings, holding the head slightly upon one side that they might observe the schools of sardines. When the latter were sighted they would plunge blindly downward, opening the mouth widely just before they reach the water, endeavoring in this clumsy manner to catch the fish, which, not being able to see upward, were entirely ignorant of the nearness of danger. Rising after the plunge the pelican invariably wags his diminutive tail—a self-congratulatory act which confirms the bird's stupidity, for the chances are one to five that it has caught nothing. The bills are held upward, the water allowed to run out of the enormous pouch, and then if any game has been caught the pelican tosses its beak upward, which throws the fish forward or toward the point of the beak, where it is often held a few seconds, from here being dropped, as it were, into the throat, which is a very small orifice in a veritable waste of pouch. At this moment, perhaps, a laughing gull robs the pelican. Sometimes it alights on its back, again on its head, and the stupid bird makes no resistance, the gull often uttering its victorious 'ha-ha' in advance. Just as the fish is thrown to the tip of the beak and protrudes from the side the laughing gull leans forward, snatches it and rises aloft—in turn, he is followed by the swift man-of-war bird. In this simple way a pelican will be robbed by successive birds and will swallow but a small percentage of what it catches, which possibly explains why it is always hungry."

Made Fitz's Head Swim.

"The worst two minutes I ever had in the ring," said "Lanky Bob" Fitzsimmons to an admiring acquaintance the other day, "was with Peter Maher in New Orleans in 1892. I guess I got a little careless and let him punch me on the head." Fitz's head fits a 6 1/2 hat. "It seemed like a trip hammer had struck me. My head buzzed and swam and got light. My brains didn't work. I didn't seem to know what to do. I was on my feet all right, but I had lost all sense of generalship. The only thing I did while I struggled to pull my addled brains to their senses. The round was nearly over when I came to. The first thing I realized was that jabbing was just what Maher needed, so I kept it up through the fight and won in the twelfth round without striking another blow."

The second meeting between Fitz and Maher occurred at Lantry, Tex., in 1896. The Cornishman declared openly that he intended to settle the fight with one blow. "I have never forgotten that time Maher hit me in the head," he said, "and I'm going to make him sorry he ever did it. I'm going to hit him once. He'll lie down when I do it. Listen to what I'm saying. I'm going to hit him once." After the battle Fitz said to his friends: "I never saw anything like it in the ring in my life. When Maher stood up before me I could see a look of awful fear in his eyes as they saw me put out my left as if I meant to do some jabbing. His hair almost rose on end. He hadn't got over that awful punishment in four years. My left must have stuck in his craw. He made a swing at my head. I stepped aside and as his own head went down my right met him on the point of the chin. The floor was his, and he stayed there. I said I'd hit once, and I did."

When One's Nerve Fails.

As illustrating both the facts stated above the writer can never forget seeing a woman tight-rope whose rope had been left too slack. She was performing at a great height and when she got to a certain distance along the rope, the latter sagged so that she could neither advance nor retire. The public knew nothing of the danger till the manager in an agony tried to get two immense ladders, tied together, up to the rope. But this arrangement fell short, and even if it had not done so, no one would have dared to rest it against the swaying rope. At last the ladders were held boldly upright by strong men till the topmost rung just touched the rope, and then the gallant young fellow a sailor, went up while the ladders swayed about as though in a breeze. He snatched the woman on the rope and held her, just as she fainted and dropped the balancing pole.

also to thank thee for this timely succor, and the boys are yet undecided as to which was the winner."—New York Press.

Cost of Hauling Freight.

The cost of freight hauling per ton per mile on the London Northern railway, England's most important line, expressed in cents, is $1.49; on the Pennsylvania railway the cost is .404 of a cent, and on the New York Central .416 of a cent.

TO PUT DOWN FLIRTING.

Yeaths of St. Petersburg Form Peculiar Club.

There is an Anti-Flirtation club in St. Petersburg, which, as its name implies, is to prevent wanton trifling with the affections of susceptible young people in the Russian capital and elsewhere. At a meeting recently there were present thirty-seven young men belonging to the higher ranks of society, who exchanged a solemn promise to refrain from the pernicious habit and to prevent others from flirting. Those breaking their promise must contribute for charitable purposes $500 the first time and $2,500 the second time. After the third offense the guilty one will be expelled from the club, and may only be readmitted after the expiration of one year.

Modern Dancing.

Rev. Reginald Campbell, of the London City Temple, during his voyage to America on the Campanian, said a number of amusing things. One of them concerned dancing. A young girl asked Dr. Campbell if he did not consider dancing graceful. "Professional dancing," he replied, "is, I admit, graceful enough in some cases. But what is there of grace in the dancing of amateurs? A man and a woman, close together, spin solemnly about a room; the man's long black coat tails flap. Such persons always look to me as if they had been hired to dance, and were doubtful if they would get paid."

Kissing Law in Serbia.

The Servians have a curious custom of giving a parting kiss to their deceased friends before final burial, and the observance of it has caused a serious epidemic of diphtheria. The police prefect of Belgrade has accordingly issued stringent orders against the custom, prohibiting it for the present, however, only in case of those persons who have died from that malady.

Wonderful Easter.

Dr. H. L. Bonner of Marion, Indiana, claims to have the biggest appetite of any man in the world. He began one of his recent meals with a 5-lb steak and twenty-four hard-boiled eggs as an appetizer. Then he went on to a 10-lb steak, fourteen cans of cold oysters, and half a pound of cheese. He is still alive.

The Italians are wise before the act, the Germans in the act and French after the act.—Italian proverb.

brance be located in the head or other organs, the discharge of mucus is sure to occur.

This discharge of mucus constitutes a weakening drain; the system cannot long withstand the loss of mucus, hence it is that women afflicted with catarrhal affections of the pelvic organs feel tired and languid, with weak back and throbbing head. A course of Pe-ru-na is sure to restore health by cutting off the weakening drain of the daily loss of mucus.

An Admirable Tonic.

Congressman Mark H. Dunnell, National Hotel, Washington, D. C., writes: "Your Pe-ru-na being used by myself and many of my friends and acquaintances not only as a cure for catarrh but also as an admirable tonic for physical recuperation. I gladly recommend it to all persons requiring such remedies."—Mark H. Dunnell.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Pe-ru-na, when at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will faithfully give you his valuable advice gratis.

paid on deposits from the day of deposit to the day of withdrawal. Interest compounded semi-annually.

The Detroit United Bank Limited commenced business September 3, 1902, in the handsome new Banking building at 204-206 Griswold Street, which was erected for it. For convenience, light, solidity, security and artistic design, this building will compare favorably it is believed with any banking structure in this country.

The Detroit United Bank Limited is strictly a savings bank. No loans are made on commercial paper, nor under its charter can it take any commercial risks whatever. Its funds are invested only in first mortgages upon centrally located improved real estate not exceeding 50 per cent of present cash value of security in any case.

The favor with which the public regard this bank and the conservative system for which it stands is evidenced by the many hundreds of depositors it already has both from Detroit and from outside towns.

It has been open but three-quarters of a year and at this time has upwards of a quarter of a million dollars of deposits. It has depositors in seventy-six cities and towns outside of Detroit, the aggregate of such deposits exceeding $100,000. It already has in its vaults over a third of a million dollars of first mortgages on real estate, worth at least double the amount of mortgage in each case.

It is seeking to interest savings depositors whether residing in Detroit or elsewhere. You are invited to open an account, and at all times are assured of courteous treatment and every facility which a first-class modern savings bank can provide.

Send for booklet on BANKING BY MAIL, fully illustrating the system introduced by this bank, under which it is as easy for persons residing at a distance to carry their savings accounts with a strong metropolitan bank as for those residing in Detroit.
