NEWBURG.

Ladies' aid fair and boiled dinner Friday, Oct. 9. All invited. The ladies are arranging to make this the very best of their popular meetings of this kind for which they have a deservedly fine reputation. Dinner will begin at 4 o'clock and continue until all are full.

Miss Emma Johns of Detroit visited her aunt, Eliza Clark, who fell and hurt herself some days ago, but is much better now.

Miss Ethel Passage called on friends here last week.

Epworth League literary and business meeting with Mr. and Mrs. Dean Saturday evening was well attended and a pleasant time enjoyed.

Mr. Hutton of Northville took charge of the Epworth League meeting Sunday evening in a very pleasant and effective manner, which was enjoyed by a large company. Mr. Carpenter of Ypsilanti will address them next Sunday evening. All invited.

P. Grow had the misfortune to sprain his ankle in a runaway accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Meinhart were called to attend the funeral of a grandchild at Farmington last Friday.

Mrs. Murray and Rob. have moved to Detroit.

As our young people are now using the Pentecostal Hymns they have decided to sell the Gospel Hymns, of which they have a number.

Mrs. Rose Hall is visiting her old home for ten days.

D. Dickerson and W. LeVan came home for Sunday. Mr. L. found his son was at the Ann Arbor hospital and visited him, finding him getting along nicely since the operation.

Newburg now has a telephone.

E. J. Norris and F. Genny, wife and son attended the wedding of Miss Mary Norris at Caro last Wednesday.

Mrs. James Stoneburner will give a missionary talk at Sunday-school next Sunday.

The official board of our church will hold their annual meeting at the hall this Friday evening.

Mrs. F. Lang, who is in a Chicago hospital, does not improve much.

Wm. Rawlinson left Wednesday for his work in Greenbush, Alcona Co.

Mr. Hodge is building on his lot. Z. Woodworth is building a nice ditch, so has to give him a good outlet.

Rev. Stephens preached a very interesting sermon last Sunday from the text "He that winneth souls is wise."

Chicken thieves got in good work last week, taking G. Chilson's. Thos. Davey's, J. Stoneburner's, W. Brown's and G. Dean's. C. Grow's dog made a big fuss and no doubt saved him.

J. Bennett is improving but slowly. Senator Chas. Smith shipped Mrs. J. L. Smith a fine collie dog last week.

A very pleasant gathering was that of the family at the home of Mrs. Hoisington, it being the birthday of the hostess. There were three sisters and two brothers and an aunt and uncle, both past three score and ten, a lot of nieces and nephews. The combined ages of the sisters and brothers was 302 and their weights 812. After a good dinner and a friendly visit, they dispersed to their several homes, widely apart, hoping to all meet at the home of their brother, William Sherman.

Mrs. Philport, who has spent a number of years in New York, is moving into her house here.

Master Geo. Corwin is spending a few weeks with his grandma at Salem. Mrs. Lukes is visiting her brother and sister here.

Miss Benton of Northville is the guest of Mrs. J. J. Starb.

Mr. and Mrs. George King have settled their difficulties.

M. King of Detroit is visiting here.

A Boy's Wild Ride For Life.

With family around expecting him to die, and a son riding for life, 18 miles, to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, W. H. Brown, of Leesville, Ind., endured death's agonies from asthma; but this wonderful medicine gave instant relief and soon cured him. He writes: "I now sleep soundly every night." Like marvelous cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds and Grip prove its matchless merit for all Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Hubbell's drug store.

Doctors could not help her. "I had kidney trouble for years," writes Mrs. Raymond Cramer of Shelton, Wash., "and the doctors could not help me. I tried Foley's Kidney Cure, and the very first dose gave me relief and I am now cured. I cannot say too much for Foley's Kidney Cure." Hubbell's Pharmacy.

PERRINSVILLE.

James Tait, while returning home from Wayne with a half ton of coal, was hurt quite badly. As he was getting out of the wagon to go to pick a few hazel-nuts which he saw along the road, the horses started and the wagon struck him, knocking him under it. One of the hind wheels passed over his head and shoulders, cutting an ugly gash in his chin and fracturing some of his ribs. Dr. Hodges was called and took several stitches in his chin. He is getting along nicely now.

Lean Meldrum, while out in the field after a load of fodder corn, fell from the wagon, striking his head and shoulders on the hard ground, which caused him to have a very lame neck.

Also James Lyle fell from a load of hay, striking on his hip and laming him quite badly.

Rev. Gibson occupied the pulpit here last Sunday and preached Rev. Bird's introductory sermon. His text was from 12th chapter Romans, v. 1 and 2. He preached a splendid sermon.

Mrs. Norton visited her daughter, Mrs. Law, at Northville a few days last week.

Mrs. Hollingshead, of Strickland visited with Mrs. Wm. R. Robinson Monday and Tuesday of this week. She was an old resident of this place.

Alonzo Hanchett of Plymouth was down this way last Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. Baehr visited with her sister, Mrs. Hattie Stephenson, last Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Edith Meldrum visited with Mrs. Mabel Hanchett last week Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hanchett and children visited at Plymouth last Monday evening.

Henry Tanger and wife of Plymouth and Miss Sophie Tanger, of Saginaw, visited at Wm. Hirschlieb's last Sunday.

Used For Pneumonia.

Dr. C. J. Bishop of Agnew, Mich., says, "I have used Foley's Honey and Tar in three very severe cases of pneumonia with good results in every case." Refuse substitutes. Hubbell's Pharmacy.

LIVONIA CENTER.

We are experiencing some very fine weather just now, though the severe frosts give us quite cold nights.

There was a very large crowd met at Henry Johnson's Saturday evening to attend the social and something like $27 was realized. The society wish to thank the public for their kindness in helping to make it a success.

John Base and wife entertained several of their friends last Sunday at dinner. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Krieger and Miss Miller, of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Lyon of Plymouth and Will Cook and wife of Base Line.

Mrs. Minnie Hart, of St. Joseph, has been visiting relatives around here the past week and returned to her home Monday evening.

What is Life?

In the last analysis nobody knows, but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living means derangement of the organs, resulting in Constipation, Headache or Liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly re-adjusts this. Its gentle, yet thorough. Only 25c at Hubbell's Drug Store.

8 Cents

Eight cents a pound is what a young woman paid for twelve pounds of flesh.

She was thin and weak and paid one dollar for a bottle of Scott's Emulsion, and by taking regular doses had gained twelve pounds in weight before the bottle was finished.

Eight cents a pound is cheap for such valuable material. Some pay more, some less, some get nothing for their money. You get your money's worth when you buy Scott's Emulsion.

We will send you a little free.

Ah, well! Peary won't be happy until he gets it.

It is a wonder the professional thieves don't organize a steal trust.

Mr. Harry Lehr has been quite commonplace for more than a fortnight now.

The advertising that some men get doesn't cost them anything but reputation.

Britannia may rule the waves, but the Yankee yacht can beat her skimming through them.

At one of the equine watering places it is common gossip that Major Delmar is running after Lou Dillon.

What a clash there will be if the unspcakable Turk declares war against the unpronounceable Bulgarian!

Perhaps the Colorado earthquake was for the purpose of leveling the snowdrifts that the wind had piled up.

A woman can get as much fun out of a letter of condolence as a man can out of an old pipe with a cracked stem.

The man who is always trying to get something for nothing generally ends by getting nothing for something from a swindler.

A branch of Yale university in China would at least determine to what extent the pigtail can be taught to handle the pigskin.

The king of Portugal has just been made an admiral in the British navy, but he will not be called upon to fight if England goes to war.

Another squaw doctor has been killed because she failed to effect a cure. Doctors in civilization have much to be thankful for.

Even vast wealth has its disadvantages. John D. Rockefeller receives more anonymous letters than any other man in the whole country.

Even if you are now in doubt how to pronounce Miss May Golet's last name, if you will wait two months you may pronounce it Rocksborrow.

Another attack on the women's clubs in the name of the "home." Of course men, being at home all day, are at liberty to go to their clubs in the evening.

The use of automobiles in war will prove a great success if the enemy can be persuaded to sit on the fence while they go around the track until a tire bursts.

A New York office boy has broken down from overwork. Another argument against this epidemic of double headers at the close of the baseball season.

John Atkinson of Boston said it was a "terrible" mistake when he was arrested and fined for spanking women on the street. What the women said is not reported.

A society of the girls who have been engaged to Hobson would be too unwieldy. Better organize a society of the girls who have not been engaged to Hobson.

Dr. Arnold Tompkins, addressing 400 teachers in a normal school in Chicago the other day, said grammar is no longer essential to success. Certainly not—in Chicago.

As long as the industry of assassinating Christians is not interrupted the sultan probably feels that he need not particularly mind the spectacular demonstrations of the powers.

It is reported that the dwellers in the island of Papua are gradually losing the use of their legs. Perhaps this is a rest cure retreat for the American telegraph messenger boy.

The indorsement by the navy of "The Star Spangled Banner" may serve to dispel the notion in our insular possessions that "A Hot Time in the Old Town" is our national anthem.

No wonder school teachers are scarce in Pennsylvania. Some of the unromantic school boards there require each teacher to give a bond that she will not marry until after the term is ended.

Those Paris aeronauts who are preparing to cross the ocean in a balloon argue with much force that their method of travel insures immunity from seasickness, card sharps and collisions with icebergs.

The news that convicts in the Philadelphia state prison have been busy engaged in counterfeiting was discouraging to all the hopeful people who believe that prisons are instruments of moral improvement and reform.

Editor Reed is greatly concerned about the problem. What shall the world do with its multitudes? There is only one more important question, and that is, how shall the multitudes be likely to do for the rest of us?

The Railroad Cases.

Four members of the state tax commission are in Lansing much against their wills, having been subpoenaed in the suit of the railroads against the state, by which incorporations hope to law.

Reuben Hancock, of Saginaw, has general charge of the case for the railroads, and those who were associated with him at the session this morning, were Henry Russell and O. E. Butterfield, of the Michigan Central; Alexis C. Angell, of the Lake Shore, and Fred W. Stevens, of the Pere Marquette.

The state is represented by Attorney-General Blair, Assistant R. L. Wyckes and Congressman Henry C. Townsend.

The testimony is being submitted to Charles L. Fitch, general examiner for the United States court of the western district of Michigan. It is the side of the railroads, the complainants in the case, that is now being presented, and they have two months in which to offer their evidence.

Although there are more than 20 cases in all, a stipulation has been made whereby all the testimony will be offered in the Michigan Central case, and the evidence on both sides will cover any matter that is relevant to any of the railroads.

Will Want $10,000 More. The deed for the site of the State Institution for the Employment of the Blind, in Saginaw, has been accepted and the plans of Architect Cowles, subject to modifications which he will make, were also practically adopted.

The institution will comprise four buildings, in a generally classic style of architecture, and the administration building and two dormitories, to face Houghton avenue and Bliss park. The machinery or factory building will be a substantial structure and comparatively plain. It is thought the buildings will cost $60,000, or $10,000 more than it was at first thought. It is also likely that a superintendent's residence will be erected at no distant date, this plan being thought preferable by some members of the board to that of providing a permanent superintendent's residence in the administration building.

Officers confiscated, near Kossa, Mich., on the Wisconsin & Michigan railway, Saturday, one of the largest and most complete counterfeit money making outfits ever taken in the country. They also captured the leader and took him to Marquette, Mich., for trial in the United States court.

The den of the counterfeiters was a small shanty on an isolated road, two miles from Kossa. Their outfit was a most complete one, and consisted of dies for the manufacture of silver from 10 cents up to a dollar, and gold from $5 to $20. Further investigation, it is thought, will reveal a complete system for distributing the bogus money throughout the country. The coin was well made and hard to detect, both silver and gold being used in the composition.

Found in the River. Grand Haven was greatly shocked Saturday by the discovery of the body of Dustin C. Oakes, cashier of the National Bank of Grand Haven, floating in Grand river. Mr. Oakes had left his bank but a few minutes before his corpse was found. He had suffered lately from stomach and heart trouble. The supposition is that he walked to the docks to get fresh air, was attacked with dizziness and fell into the river, either from the dock or a fishing tug tied near by. Indications are that the body never sank. Mr. Oakes had been cashier of the National bank for three years. Before going to Grand Haven he had been in the banking business in Copperville and Shelby. He was 50 years old, his birthplace being near Sturgis.

Deputy Spafford's Pardon. At a conference held in Grand Rapids Saturday it was decided that a pardon should be granted Deputy Game Warden Herbert Spafford, who was convicted of manslaughter at Frankfort. Those present at the conference were Gov. Bliss, also Deputy Harry A. Chase, State Game Warden Chapman, District Attorney Covell, Mayor C. C. Dunham, of Cadillac; Prosecuting Attorney M. J. Larmonth, of Benzle county; Deputy Game Warden Brewster. Sentence has not yet been pronounced on Spafford.

Mr. Coalge's Saloon. Frank Coalge, brother of Leon Coalge, who was electrocuted for the assassination of President McKinley, has sold his 40-acre farm, three miles west of Alpena, and will open a saloon in the residence district, near the city limits. The building he has leased was formerly a saloon, but has not been occupied as such for several years. Mr. Coalge has been a respected citizen of this locality for upwards of 12 years and has always borne a good reputation.

May Continue Spanking. Because her father took her across his knee and gave her a good old-fashioned spanking where it would do the most good, and was otherwise "impolite" to her, Ellen Malover, of Bay City, aged 15, but who is as fully developed as most girls of 18, caused the old man's arrest on a charge of assault and battery. The court told the father he did just right, and told him to continue the good work if necessary.

Patrick Boland, one of the earliest settlers in Inglish county, is said to be in his home in Meridian township.

A willow tree is eating all kinds of trouble in Flint. Its roots have followed and entered the tile of a sewer and it has become clogged as a result.

Michigan ranks fifth among the states in the manufacture of agricultural implements. There are 53 factories with a combined capital of $8,922,344.

Cadillac voted almost unanimously in favor of the establishment of a county normal school in accordance with the law passed by the last legislature.

Buyers for commission merchandise are offering 75 and 17 cents a basket for all the grapes obtainable in St. Joseph, and the price may go still higher.

Rev. Mr. Tanner announced to his flock in Grand Haven that farming was more profitable than preaching and that henceforth he intended "farming."

Arcene county has the distinction of being the first in the state to secure the establishment of a state normal training school under an act passed at the last legislature.

Murder is sentenced in the mysterious burning of the barn and body of L. H. Bradley, a prominent farmer and justice of the peace of Wales township, Tuesday night.

When Sarah Grimes, of Muskegon, wanted to get married she secured her own consent and straightaway issued the coveted document. Sarah was assistant county clerk.

Lightning struck the house of Martin Willoughby, three miles south of Henderson, Saturday, and burned the house and barn before there could be anything saved or insured.

At Battle Creek the other day a woman tried to commit suicide by drowning, but she was so fat that she couldn't sink and finally had to give it up as a bad job.

The question of adopting the county road system in place of the present antiquated township system will probably be submitted to the voters of Alger county in the spring.

While plowing an Algon farmer turned up an old copper medal bearing on one side the likeness of Lewis Cass, dated 1840, and on the other side the names of Cass and Butler.

Skunks must not be taken during the months of September and October, according to recent legislation. Most people wouldn't take 'em as a gift any time of the year.

Twenty-five Michigan Indians will attend Chicago's birthday celebration, November 26. Ancient Chief Blackbird, of Harbor Springs, will address his people twice each day.

Van Buren county Democrats are to have an organ. A new daily paper is to be established at South Haven which, the projectors say, is to be "Democratic, pure and simple."

Grand Rapids milkmen are getting up a combination, and it is easy to see that the weekly appropriation for milk in second city households will have to be increased somewhat.

Clas Skeels, of Lakeview, is the father of three children, 5, 8 and 11 years of age, whose birthdays all come on the same day of the month, and all were born about 7 o'clock in the morning.

When Royt. Raynar, of Battle Creek, met a stranger in the car who familiarly called him "Bob," he was somewhat baffled until the man convinced him he was a brother who had been away 11 years.

Beats are getting numerous in the vicinity of Cedar River. One attacked a bull-belonging to a farmer along the river. At the end of the contest the bull was found with a lacerated shoulder, but brain was gored to death.

Rumors are rife of a big food trust, to include the Force Food Co. of Buffalo; the Malta-Vita Co., of Battle Creek; and Toronto; the Maple-Flake Co., of Battle Creek and Buffalo; and the Cero-Fruto Co., of Battle Creek.

The rotting of thousands of bushels of fruit for want of a market has revived the talk of a canning factory at Petoskey, and the local board of trade will take hold of the matter and endeavor to get such a plant before another year.

At Menominee, a 3-year-old babe was waving her hands at a fast approaching train when the engine struck her and threw her 20 feet into a ditch. When the engineer went to pick up a lifeless body, he found the babe much scared, but unharmed.

Because the girl refused to again appear at the trial of David Harris in Lansing, the colored man once convicted of assault and afterward granted a new trial, the prosecutor nolle prossed the case and Harry goes free after being in jail 26 days.

The fall meeting of the Central Michigan Dental association will be held in Belding on Wednesday, November 14. Eminent men in the dental profession from Chicago and Detroit will be in attendance and a swell banquet will be given at the Hotel Belding.

The hogs of Sanilac county—the four-legged ones—have this year feasted on an unlimited supply of plums and pears. The crop of these two fruits was probably never before so large, and feeding them to the hogs was the only way the surplus could be disposed of.

The Kent county rail growers who last spring predicted that there would be but a quarter of a crop of peaches in that section seem to have struck it just about right. Last year 1,500,000 bushels were marketed at Grand Rapids, but this season the total was considerably less than 400,000. At the same time, the growers made a better thing out of their crop this year, as the prices remained steady and high.

Thursday night two valuable horses belonging to Thomas McKay, of Alpena county, on the Presque Isle county line, were horribly tortured during the night, their death resulting a few hours later.

The situation in the Canadian Soo Tuesday morning was quiet, though according to Chief of Police Downey, the request for regular troops is not rescinded. Two hundred and sixty of them were expected to arrive during the day. After the shooting of two rioters Monday affairs quieted. These men are in the hospital, one badly but not fatally wounded. There were seven arrests of rioters after the reading of the riot act and they are now in the local jail guarded by militia. Three hundred indigent employees of the consolidated companies are housed and fed at Tagoua Inn, belonging to the Consolidated. Forty or fifty more are housed in unfurnished rooms on the top floor of the International Hotel downtown, where they are kept at the company's expense. The only trouble to be feared is from the 200 woodsmen due to arrive Tuesday. The company were bringing them in and threats were heard on the train to storm the jail and release the prisoners. Orders were issued to the engineer to leave them at White Station, 10 miles out. He backed the coaches on to the side track, cut loose the engine and fled. As the engine passed the train the men broke all the cab windows with rocks. The men at once started to walk in. A score arrived at noon and joined the men at the Tagoua Inn.

The following message was received from Premier Ross, of the Ontario government, by Edward Barry, secretary of the workmen's committee: Your letter received. The government will in every way possible protect the interests of the workmen in the various industries. I main and subsidiary of the Consolidated Lake Superior Co., withholding subsidies and in other ways, if necessary, and will insist on the settlement of all claims for wages prior to everything else.

Copies of this dispatch were posted about town and the mob talk as if they find consolation in it.

R. Lorazo, E. Jansson, Frank St. Louis, Fred Winer, Charles Robinson and J. Laine are in the jail charged with being ringleaders in the riot and with attempting to destroy the office of the Consolidated company. Joe Deaunt, with a bullet in his leg, and Alfred Grenier, with one in his neck, are in the hospital as a result of an encounter with a police officer whom they ordered off the sidewalk.

It was announced on behalf of the company some ten days ago that all back wages would be paid the 28th. Failure to meet this promise is what precipitated the disturbance.

The chief agitator, who has been arrested, is known as "Jack" Dean. Dean is a typical labor agitator. He has never been in the employ of the company, and has not a cent coming to him. Nevertheless, it is alleged that he was the aggressive leader in all of the disturbances, haranguing the men whenever he could get an audience, urging the destruction of the works, the killing of the police and soldiers, and chaunting a reign of anarchy. Dean is likely to be up against a long term in the penitentiary for his activities, as the Canadian laws are strict and severe for such crimes as he is said to have been guilty of.

The agitators under arrest are charged with an attempt to incite riot, the penalty for which in Canada is life imprisonment.

A resolution was adopted demanding that the government or the city furnish the discharged employees with food and lodgings until their wages were paid, and that the wages when paid should be up to the date of payment in full. A committee was appointed to wait upon the mayor, but the latter, when communicated with, declined to meet any committee of the men. This increased the seriousness of the situation.

Shortly after the meeting, which broke up amid wild confusion, the troops started to march to the scene of disorder. They were followed by a mob, who stoned the soldiers repeatedly and hurled invectives at them. No response to these attacks were made. Arriving at the works, a "dead line" was established and no one was allowed to cross it.

The Ontario government continues to pour troops into the Canadian Soo for the purpose of policing the widespread properties of the Consolidated company and incidentally the ship canal. On top of 80 men, 30 horse and 50 foot, who arrived Tuesday night, three companies came in by special train Wednesday morning. The new arrivals were a company of Grenadiers in blue, of Rifles in red jackets and white helmets and of Highlanders. They disembarked in the C. P. yards near the depot and marched a mile through Main street to the company's works. The men are quartered in the deserted pulp mill across the canal from the main office of the Consolidated, and the officers have quarters at the International hotel. Col. Buchan is in command. This force, with the arrivals of last night, come from Toronto. People felt more secure since the arrival of the troops. That the situation is grave is too patent for denial; but that there is anything like the danger those responsible for the conditions, or those upon whom lies the responsibility of preserving the peace, express, is beyond the truth. There may be trouble, but not of so great extent that the forces now on hand cannot easily cope with it.

Yellow fever now has 37 cases in Laredo, Tex.

Sir Michael Herbert, the British ambassador to the United States, died Wednesday at Davos-Platz, Switzerland.

An effort is being made to secure a total disability pension for Frank Manson, of Muskegon, who is one of the two survivors of the Jeannette polar expedition sent out by the government in 1879. The other survivor is Admiral George W. Melville, who was recently placed on the retired list of the navy.

After passing sentence on a bunch of liquor law violators brought before him the other day, the circuit judge of Van Buren county—which, by the way, is supposed to be a prohibition county—said to them: "Now, gentlemen, when you get home again, cut the saloons out of the back end of your drug stores and give this court a rest."

CONDENSED NEWS.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Gown. Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, wife of the president of the Illinois Central and leader of the "400" in New York, in an interview in St. Louis criticized Mrs. Roosevelt in a very unpleasant manner. Mrs. Fish was talking about gowns worn by American women.

Mrs. Roosevelt said the great society matron, "dresses on $200 a year, and she looks it."

"I would not like to be a president nor a wife of a president, for I would not like to have to eat with negroes. Despite the efforts of President Roosevelt, Americans can never have negro equality. There will be equality only among the white people of the United States."

Long Voyage.

Orders were issued at the navy department Saturday detaching the first torpedo boat flotilla from the North Atlantic fleet, that it may prepare to proceed to the Asiatic station, via the Suez canal. This flotilla is in command of Lieut. Lloyd H. Chandler, and comprises the torpedo boat destroyers Decatur, Barry, Bainbridge, Cheney and Dale. They will fit out at Norfolk for their voyage, and will go under convoy of the Baltimore. The trip of the destroyers is the largest ever attempted by an American vessel of this type. They will permanently be attached to the Asiatic station.

The Army Maneuvers.

The opening of Camp Young at West Point, Ky., was made on Saturday, when all the regular troops representing every post in the department of the lakes, arrived and by nightfall had pitched camp. Eighteen special trains brought the troops to camp. The militia, which is to participate in the encampment, will not arrive for several days yet.

Peardist Jeff Moved.

Curtis Jeff, the Breathitt county feudist under sentence of death for the assassination of Town Marshal Thomas Cockrell, of Jackson, Ky., was brought to Louisville from Cynthiana for safe keeping. Jeff was placed in a cell at the jail reserved for condemned murderers. He expressed pleasure at the transfer.

THE DEADLY LOCO WEED

How great a loss is caused to stock raisers by the loco weed and other poisonous plants in Montana is depicted in a bulletin issued by the Montana Agricultural Experiment station.

The writer, J. W. Blankinship, estimates the annual loss from stock eating these plants at $100,000 and points out that with the increase of the herds and flocks the loss is bound to increase unless action is taken to exterminate the plants. The loco weed is a small pea like plant, six inches to a foot high, with conspicuous white or cream-colored flowers from a thick woody persistent root. It is distributed over nearly the whole plains region of the United States from Alberta and Assinibola south into Mexico, and from Minnesota and Kansas westward to the Rockies. Extensive losses of stock, attributed to this species, are reported in New Mexico, Colorado and Montana and to a less extent in most of the other states in the region mentioned. In some parts of the "loco zone" the losses sometimes average as high as 50 per cent of the lambs produced and in several localities the sheepmen have been compelled to dispose of herds and flocks the loss is bound to increase unless action is taken to exterminate the plants. The loco weed is a small pea like plant, six inches to a foot high, with conspicuous white or cream-colored flowers from a thick woody persistent root. It is distributed over nearly the whole plains region of the United States from Alberta and Assinibola south into Mexico, and from Minnesota and Kansas westward to the Rockies. Extensive losses of stock, attributed to this species, are reported

As to exterminating the loco plant, the bulletin states that experiments in digging it at certain seasons of the year have been most effective, and this seems to be the only remedy.

"I am not sorry," said Peter Lenousky, as he confessed the murder for which he is to die on the gallows in Wilkesbarre, Pa. Lenousky beat Anthony Sennek to death with a hatchet in the Exeter mine April 19, 1902, for robbery, and got but a few cents.

During communion service at the German Lutheran church in La Crosse, Wis., Herman Rosow, a painter, entered the church behind his wife and her mother, shot his wife twice, and then turned the weapon upon himself, inflicting a wound which will prove fatal. The woman may live.

An attempt to burn down the agricultural building at the world's fair at St. Louis was detected by the Jefferson guards. Straw and kindling saturated with oil were piled against a partition.

Hydrophobia may be the fate of Mrs. Henry B. Priest, of New York, a bride of two months, who was clawed and bitten by a cat while attempting to stop a battle between it and her pet dog. The dog was shot, and proved to have had hydrophobia, which was given it by the cat. Mrs. Priest's wounds were cauterized and she may escape.

Lock for the Milk Jar.

Who could blame a hungry man for removing a bottle of milk and a loaf of bread from a front doorstep early in the morning to satisfy his wants, especially when the food and drink were so temptingly placed in his way? In the judgment of many, the householder is equally to blame with the man who pilfered the goods for allowing them to stand within his reach. If the purchaser of the milk does not feel disposed to give it away, then the better plan would be to place it under lock and key until such a time as the first one up in the house could take it in from the doorstep. This is just what is intended shall be done, with the aid of the locking device we have here presented, the inventor's idea being that the bottle shall be securely attached to the door, in such a manner that it can be easily removed from the house by a passerby. The device consists of two slotted plates for opposite faces of the door, with a spring hook between the plates. When the loop formed at the end of the bale on the bottle is inserted in the outer plate the hook rises and then falls into the opening, where it remains, securely locking the bottle until the householder lifts the hook from the inside. He moves the bale from the slotted plate and carries the bottle of milk into the house.

The inventor is John C. Betts, of this city.

World's Fuel Inexhaustible.

Some essayists declare that the world's stock of fuel is being constantly decreased and that in a comparatively short time it will be necessary to husband our resources in this direction, or fall back upon water powers for manufacturing purposes. The president of the Institute of Civil Engineers in his address a few weeks ago showed that, in so far as coal is concerned, there is no occasion for alarm, there being millions of tons as yet untouched in various parts of the world, while concerning peat as a substitute for it, it is inexhaustible. As to water powers, the millions of horse power now going to waste in most cases, or but partially employed, are practically inconvertible. It is true that these powers are found in all parts of the world, and frequently far from markets or facilities for transportation, but it is noteworthy that in this country water powers are being utilized to a much greater extent than people generally have any idea of. Niagara and the falls at Saint Ste. Marie are examples near by, while in the West, the 132,000 horse power already placed, with more to follow. There is no doubt of exhausting nature's storehouses of power, but there is always the possibility that the present sites of industry may be shifted to other parts of the world, and possibly change the artificial boundaries of nations.—Iron Age.

Shovel and Ash Sifter.

Probably never before in the history of this country was so much coal saved by sifting the ashes taken from cook stoves and furnaces as last winter, during the great anthracite coal strike, when it was not always possible to obtain fuel even if provided with plenty of money to pay the high prices asked for what little of the coal was to be had. The coal sieve never before was in such enormous demand, and many families invested a dollar or more in this article to save several times that amount in coal to be re-burned. If the lesson in household economy thus brought home should continue to be taken advantage of during the coming winter season there should be a good field for the combination sifter and shovel here illustrated, which it would be possible to use in cleaning out the open grate in the library without raising any perceptible dust, returning the good coal to the fire and disposing of the sifted ashes in a receptacle to be carried out later. This shovel has a sifting grate, dividing it into two compartments, with an ash drawer forming one compartment and the grate drawer another compartment, neither of the drawers having rear end pieces. The ashes are taken up with the empty shovel, and the grate and ash compartment are then inserted, with the ash drawer uppermost. Upon reversing the shovel the ashes are dropped on the grate, and as the front is entirely closed the shaking necessary to separate the ashes from the coal cannot fill the room with dust. Upon withdrawing the two drawers the ashes can be retained in the lower one, if desired, and the good coal thrown back into the grate.

Frenchman Discovers New Metal.

German papers report the discovery by Edward Mollard, a Frenchman, of a new metal, called "selenium." It is stated that the discoverer claims that selenium costs about one-twelfth as much as aluminum, and is lighter and stronger. It does not rust, and is, therefore, suitable for use in shipbuilding, for the manufacture of pipes and for railroad construction. On account of its cheapness—and as it is capable of a fine polish, resembling nickel—it would be desirable for the manufacture of cooking utensils. Its hardness is said to be almost equal to that of iron, while its power of resistance is greater than iron, but less than that of steel. The melting point is 1600 degrees Centigrade, and while it contracts somewhat in the molten state, it is not impossible to use this wonderful metal in molding. Our consul general at Frankfurt, Germany, says in a report on the subject that it will be well to await more definite information concerning its properties.

Revolving Plant Cultivator.

Were the question put to the farmer as to which portion of his work he had the greatest aversion for, the reply would probably be, "Keeping the weeds free from the plants." There is a danger of the weeds choking them, but early in the season each plant must be carefully weeded several times or a good crop of weeds and a poor crop of vegetables will be the result. What backaching work this is can well be imagined, provided it is done by hand, but if the implement shown in the picture should be used for this purpose it seems as though it would be relieved of the greater portion of its tedium. It enables a man to maintain an upright position while at labor, instead of stooping over each plant, and should certainly do the work much better and with greater speed than would be possible with the hoe. The implement consists of a central shaft, ending in a rotary weeding rake at the lower end, and geared to the crank shaft at the top. This shaft is mounted in a frame, arranged to support the rake at just the proper height to enter the earth, stirring it up and removing the weeds all around the growing plant. The implement is light enough to be easily carried by the farmer, and one or two turns with the crank after the supporting legs have been disposed on opposite sides of the shrub will do the work.

An Improvement Over the Hoe.

Seth I. Titus, of Villardale, Ill., is the inventor.

Sensitive Electric Analysis.

To produce a couple of pounds of radium takes no less than 5,000 tons of uranium residue, and the cost of handling each ton is $200. To secure the chemically pure radium is enormously expensive, and it would be impossible to do this by chemical analysis; therefore, the far more sensitive electrical method is employed, and chemists say that they can detect the presence of a radioactive substance by the means of such a minute quantity that it would require 5,000 times this amount to show at all in the spectroscopic. And it is stated that this method of electrical analysis is thousands of times more sensitive than spectrum analysis and millions of times more sensitive than chemical analysis.

Artificial Birds.

Birds are to be worn more than ever in millinery, but the bird lovers need not despair, for these trimming birds are made in Paris and never sang a song. The stuffed birds, in fact, are being eliminated from millinery for what might be termed natural causes. They have come to be regarded as tasteless by French milliners, as they cannot be handled with at all the same ease and effect as the made bird can. The wings of the tufted bird are stiff, those of the made bird are pliable and easily bent to follow a crown or bend around a hat rim. The feathers of common birds killed for food or because they are nuisances are used to make these birds.

EMPLOYEETS NEW FASHION.

Ruler of China Kissed a Small American Girl.

Mrs. Archibald Little in a recent magazine article says in describing the Chinese court, that the empress dowager is of "the type so well known in every land where society exists. Were she an English mother, she would, one feels at once, marry all her daughters to eldest sons, irrespective of whether they were lunatics or confirmed dipsomaniacs." The emperor of China is of another disposition. At a party he repeatedly kissed a little American girl of 5 years. "How had the very idea of such a thing ever been suggested to him? No Chinese man throughout the whole length and breadth of the vast Chinese empire ever kissed wife or child unless he has been taught to do so by a foreigner. No Chinese mother even kisses her child. The nearest she gets to it is lifting her child's face up to hers and, as it were, smelling at it. Yet here was the emperor of China evidently versed in the practice, so that directly he saw this foreign little girl he took her up and kissed her as if it were the most natural thing in the world, whilst to the everyday Chinaman this would be a most unnatural and indeed repulsive process."

CAME EARLY FOR HIS MONEY.

Little Story Illustrates Thrifty Traits of New Englanders.

When Henry Harland was at Harvard he spent his vacations at Norwich, Conn. One Sunday he met an old friend of his to whom he owed a quarter. As he was leaving at 4:30 Monday morning for the long winter term, he called to the old gentleman and said:

"Deacon H., I owe you a quarter."

"Ah, my son, no business transactions on the Sabbath day."

Harland, hastily putting his money in his pocket, begged his pardon, and as he was leaving very early in the morning he called to the window to say to the cabman that he would be down directly, and there beside the cab stood a dark, motionless figure.

"Who can be good enough to see me off at this time in the morning," thought Harland.

When he came down he found that the deacon had come for his quarter.

Reached the Limit.

Homer Davenport tells of a Utica police court judge who formerly resided in Silverton, Oregon, where Davenport was born. Once an unfortunate man who was arrested for intoxication told the judge that he had played with Davenport in the Silverton corner band. The judge discharged the prisoner.

The incident was published in the newspapers, and in the following year at least five other prisoners who were brought before the judge explained that they had played with Davenport in the Silverton corner band. The other day the Utica judge telegraphed Mr. Davenport asking him of how many pieces the Silverton organization consisted. He concluded his message by saying:

"Hereafter no prisoners will be discharged on account of former membership in this band. The limit has been reached."—New York Times.

The Great Old World.

The dynamics mock her,
The red storms rock her,
The earthquakes shock her.

But on the rolls:
Downcast, faint,
For rain slated,
She still goes freighted
With human souls!

The great seas thunder
And rend asunder—
The white stars wonder,
As Time grows gray;
But—rejoice, sowing,
Her way she's going
To meet—unknown—
A Judgment Day.

But—joy go with her!
Nor silt his tether
When stormy weather
Makes grief and moan!
Tread—jest world—
Loud—rest world,
Still—still the best world
We ever have known.

A Hero in His Day.

At this time of much airship talk, one rarely hears the name of Pilatre de Rozier, one of the first to test the feasibility of aerial navigation, and yet he was the hero of his day. A monument was erected in France of the spot where he made his last and fatal attempt. When the balloon was first invented he scorned the idea that criminals should be sent to make test ascents. "It would be an honor to lose one's life, if need be, in such an enterprise," he said. He died some years after in trying to cross the English channel, and he is still the ideal of French aeronauts, because of his fearlessness, his enthusiasm and his love of the sport.

Deposits of Sulphur.

Vast deposits of pure sulfur, superior to that from Sicily, have been explored in Mount McCutcheon, Alaska, by a Swedish expert employed by New Yorkers. This diminishes by one the short list of necessities the United States must buy in other countries.

Correspondent Writes of Cork

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE)

Approaching Ireland from the south one is guided into the harbor of Queenstown, so named in honor of Queen Victoria's visit in 1843, previously called The Cove. The ship rounds Roche's Point. This is the point at which the steamship Chicago of the Inman line was wrecked in 1892. The promontory which attracts at entrance to the harbor is known as Kinsall Head. It was upon this cape that the renowned Irish general Hugh O'Neill met his defeat by England under the governor general Casew, in the seventeenth century, and following the successes of a hundred battles. Let it be recalled that this defeat ed up. It has appropriated Massachusetts shoe factory patents and shoe factories spell their signs in gold to the eye of the visitor. It was just below Cork where William Penn was born at Bloman Castle—1482—ten years before Columbus discovered America, and two years before Luther. On the suburbs of Cork is Blarney, where is Blarney Castle—the key-stone of whose crest arch in the world-renowned Blarney stone, long since consecrated as the inspirer of love's phrases and flatterers' arts. The castle is square in dimensions, of Spanish architecture—though constructed by Danish workmen for Lord here, resented followed as a result of Spanish treachery. The alliance previously entered into by O'Neill and O'Donnell with Spain was betrayed by Spanish officials, and the English forces were upon O'Neill before he could summon his forces to victory. This conquest by England was the real beginning of "England in Ireland." So potent had O'Neill become that Essex had advised Queen Elizabeth to come to terms with him. The queen died in 1603. King James followed. He was obstinate, refused all concession. Thus a hapless Ireland, full of trouble.

On the headlands jutting over the channel entering Queenstown the forts of Camden and Carlisle mottled with cannon confronts each other in grim moroseness. Around the former the Spanish armada slipped and became lost in its own convolutions; the night was dark and wrapped in mist. Drake with the English squadron followed and by freak of sudden changed winds was blown around the other headland as a train turned by a tongue switch to a diverging track. Both fleets concluded the other had escaped—and each went its way; both to meet six months following in a victory for Drake which six months before at Queenstown would have been reversed, had the fleets known each was in an arm's throw of each other, and the map of Europe changed for all mankind. "Drake's Pool" is the christening given the place to commemorate Drake's visit and confusion while MacCarthy, who built it. The Blarney Stone is hooked to the top edge of the castle roof by bands of iron whose arms hug the stone—of shape of a carriage carbstone—with curved arms to prevent the rock from falling. The castle is fast succumbing to the roads of time. The stone bears the legend that "he who kisses never misses being eloquent." The writer declined to visit his kisses on so stony hearted a mistress. One must be let down head downward—held by the feet, and when the head is far enough down to reach the stone the suspended enthusiast must turn his head up as does a chicken held by the feet, and swinging forward kiss the under portion of the rock, now worn smooth by the million "lippings" that are forever lost to envious love.

Returning to Cork one is reminded as he approaches the miraculous spot of Sunday's Well; that it was here that Thackeray says, as an evidence of the education of Cork boys in the past, that he overheard two new boys in a wrangle as to who was the greater man, Themistocles or Hercules. Speaking of Thackeray—he it was who said that beholding a Cork young man playing the violin as he approached and said: "Young man, do you play by note?" "No, sir," said he. "Well, do you play by ear?" "No, sir," he again responded. "Well," said Thackeray, "how do you play?" "By main force, sir," he answered. The King of England closed his visit to Ireland at Cork. FRIDAY, OCTOBER 2, 1903.

The Merchant and the Local Newspaper.

The merchant who doesn't do all he can to make the local newspaper a success, financially and editorially, is only excused in short-sightedness by the merchant who vigorously opposes the improvement and advancement of the town he lives in.

The newspaper may be opposed to you in politics; its editor personally disagreeable to you, but the fact remains that from a strictly selfish standpoint, it is one of, if not the most valuable adjuncts to your success. It is as far and away the cheapest, best and most effective way of extending your trade, and that should be the prime object of your business existence. It is reported that Jay Gould was once asked upon the witness stand, "What are your politics?" He replied, "I am a Gould man." Asked for an explanation he said, "Well, I am sometimes a Republican and sometimes a Democrat, but always for the party that best represents the Gould interest." In this day of "the survival of the fittest" in all business matters, it behooves the merchant to think with his head and not with his emotions.

We are generally Democrats or Republicans, Baptists, Presbyterians or Catholics, to a large extent at least because our parents were. But we are generally merchants, and our general merchandise business of our own choice. We should sink prejudice (not principle) in our efforts to be a business success, and we will find that toleration and kindness not only adds to our prosperity but makes us broader, better men and citizens.

A well read, widely circulated local newspaper affords a field for the exploitation and extension of a well conducted business, where the proprietor has the insight and capacity to utilize its capacity far in excess of any other force. Help your newspaper, not only by doing a considerable amount of advertising in its columns, but by taking pains to give it every item of news or interest that comes to your knowledge. You will find that this is indeed "bread cast upon the waters."—The Ad-Writer.

Indicted by Grand Jury.

The Wayne county grand jury in session for a number of weeks, made a report last Friday, bringing in indictments against six persons, among them being ex-Commissioner Dewey Moreland. There were six counts against Moreland and his bail was fixed by Judge Donovan at $5,000, and was promptly furnished, among the bondsmen being Chas. Miller of Plymouth and Ed. Shafer of Northville. Considering the hue and cry made by the Detroit newspapers about the alleged hoodlums, frauds and stealings, and the big expense made to the county, the result of the findings of the jury is rather disappointing to the people. In fact Prosecutor Hunt has had but little reward for his trouble, past and prospective, for the accused have yet to be tried. Only one side of the story has been heard, it must be remembered.

Northville Record:—Supervisor Benton says he has falsely been credited by some Detroit papers as being a tool to further the interests of County Auditor Hawley Christian for another term and to receive as a reward an appointment from the county auditors. "I have not fully decided to become a candidate for the responsible position of county auditor at the coming primaries, believing there is ample time yet for such announcement. In case I am not a candidate I assure my friends I will not betray their confidence and will support any supervisor in preference to Mr. Christian."

Michigan's state tax levy this year will be the largest in the state's history, it having now reached the $4,000,000 mark, in spite of the increase in railroad taxes and the imposition of inheritance and other special taxes. Wayne county's share of this enormous tax burden is $753,373.28.

CHURCH NEWS.

Preaching services in the M. E. church Sunday morning and evening, by the pastor. Subject for morning: "Causes of Failure in Spiritual Power."

Services in the Presbyterian church next Sabbath morning and evening. The pastor will preach in the morning. In the evening the pastor will begin a series of Sunday evening lectures on the Life of Christ, illustrated by lantern views and interspersed with familiar hymns. All are cordially invited.

Worship with preaching by the pastor at the Baptist church Sunday morning and evening. The hour of the evening service has been changed for the winter months. The young people's meeting will begin at 6 o'clock and the preaching service at 7 o'clock.

The new First Church of Christ, Scientist, is completed, except the seats. These will be put in in about ten days and then the church will be dedicated. Services will be held in the reading room of the church, entrance on Dodge street, beginning with Sunday, Oct. 4th, until the seats are in. The subject for next Sunday will be, "Are Sin, Disease and Death Real?" Services at 10:40. Sunday-school after service. Wednesday evening meeting at 7:40. All are cordially invited.

W. G. T. U.

The meeting on Thursday of next week will be in charge of Mrs. V. E. Hill. Subject, "Purity."

The members will please remember that envelopes were given to them at the annual meeting in April in which to put an offering occasionally for work in the First District. These should be brought in and handed to the local treasurer before the meeting of the convention. If any one doesn't know just where they put the envelope please look about a little. If it is lost, please bring it in.

A new switchboard is being installed in the local telephone office.

A reception will be tendered Rev. W. G. Stephens next Tuesday evening by the ladies of the M. E. church.

ODDITIES IN PET NAMES.

Varying Terms of Endearment in Different Countries.

"If a man in this country calls his wife a cat, the foundation is laid for a divorce suit," said the man who travels. "But a French woman takes the same word as a term of endearment. It's odd how the choicest phrases in the vocabulary of affection of one people are used for quite an opposite purpose by another nation. One of the most familiar and most coveted phrases of endearment among the French, for instance, is 'my little pig,' and 'my little puppy dog' is also well liked.

"But if the Frenchman were to call Mme. Narcisse 'duck,' as an American husband might call his better half, she would be very much offended. One of the oddest pet names that I ever heard of was that used by a famous German general, who always called his wife 'my little kernel of coffee.' They were divorced at last, however, and a cynic said that the general's pet name should have been 'my dear little stack of hayonets,' for the lady was said to have had a very sharp tongue. I know a devoted disciple of Walton, who, when writing to his wife while on a fishing expedition, calls her 'my dear little speckled trout.'"

A Polite Pickpocket.

In the gentle art of separating a man from his wealth the French are not so far behind the times as might be supposed. An Englishman, with all the egotism and assurance of his race, was displaying his money and his other "milor" attributes on the Boulevard des Italiens the other day when a polite Frenchman approached him and said in good English:

"Would monsieur be so kind as to stand still for five seconds until she succeeded in taking a photograph of Milor's face, which, she declared, exhibited beau-coup characters?"

"Oh, certainly."

"Just a little turn of Milor's head, if you please. There, that will do. A thousand thanks."

And the Frenchman departed with Milor's watch. Vanity had stuck out all over the Briton, and the Frenchman had been quick to take advantage of his weakness.

Strange Freak of Earthquake.

An earthquake recently occurred in Bohemia. The principal fun at Gratz owns a musical penny-in-the-slot machine which had been out of order for a long time. When, however, the earthquake shook the house the machine began to work, and "Hoch der Kaiser!" rang out above the cries of the intimidated guests. Many of the latter being old soldiers, the patriotic air did much to quiet the natives, particularly as the machine went on playing without stopping for pennies. It "hoched" the Kaiser for the rest of the night, and might be still at it if an official of the company had not come along and readjusted the machinery.

VARICOSE NERVOUS DEBILITY CURED

If you have transgressed against the laws of nature, you must suffer. Youthful ignorance, later excesses and nervous diseases have wrecked thousands of promising lives. Treat with scientific physicians and cured. Avoid quacks. E. A. Sidney, of Toledo, says: "At an early age I was the victim of youthful complaints. I treated with a dozen doctors, who all promised to cure me. They got my money and I still had the disease. I had given up hope when a friend advised me to consult Drs. K. & K., who had cured him. Without any confidence I called on them, and Dr. Kennedy agreed to cure me or no pay. After taking the New Method Treatment for six weeks I felt like a new man. The weakness ceased, wormy veins disappeared, nerves grew stronger, hair stopped falling out, urine became clear and my physical system vitalized. I was entirely cured by Dr. Kennedy and recommend him from the bottom of my heart."

Ten Thousand Churches

In the United States have used the Longman & Martinez Pure Paints. Every church will be given a liberal quantity whenever they paint. Don't pay $1.50 a gallon for linseed oil (worth 80 cents) which you do when you buy this paint in a can with a paint label on it. 8 and 6 make 14, therefore when you want fourteen gallons of paint, buy only eight gallons of L. & M., and mix six gallons of pure linseed oil with it. You need only four gallons of L. & M. Paint and three gallons of oil mixed therewith to paint a good sized house. Houses painted with these paints never grow shabby, even after 18 years.

Smoke was discovered coming from the large pile of coal at the P. M. coal shutes Tuesday noon, and an alarm of fire was turned in. The three companies of the fire department responded promptly and a line of hose was laid from the hydrant near the depot to the shute and filled with water, but as no fire was visible, the water was not turned on. After a half hour's delay the hose was ordered reeled up and returned to the houses, and a large gang of men were put to work shoveling the coal away. But at 12 o'clock mid night the companies were again called out and a few of the men were kept at the fire until late Wednesday evening. This perhaps saved the P. M. Co. a lot of coal, but at the same time all the hose of the fire department was at this fire (which is outside the village limits) while the down town part of the village was without fire protection for nearly 24 hours, which should not have been, as the P. M. Co. could easily have made a connection with their tanks at the junction, where they have plenty of water.

Probably Nothing Done Until Spring.

President Robinson informs us that Hon. H. D. Earle, who is authority on road building, will not be able to come to Plymouth until Oct. 25th, in response to an invitation by the council to address the people on the subject of good roads, with especial reference to Main street, Plymouth. It is therefore unlikely that anything will be done by the council this fall looking towards a permanent improvement of the street. However the situation has reached a stage when it is necessary that something must be done and the council next spring will undoubtedly take up the proposition early in the season. At least everybody hopes so.

Fire was discovered in a 5000-ton pile of coal at the Pere Marquette coal dock Tuesday noon. An alarm was turned in to which the fire department responded promptly, although the boys were on the way to dinner. A line of hose was laid, but no water was thrown on the coal. Instead the company sent in a gang of Italians by special train, who at once began shoveling the coal until the seat of the fire was reached, and which kept them busy until next day. The fire was generated by heat in the bottom of large pile.

THE WIPER'S STORY.

How McGrath Got an Engine.

PART 2

BY FRANK H. SPERMAN.
 Copyrighted, by F. H. Sperman.
 In Three Parts

But the memorable morning for Aloysius came shortly thereafter. It was one of those keen October mornings that bite so in the hills. The construction train, Extra 240 West, had started at about 5 o'clock from the head of the pass with a load of steel for the track layers, and stopped for a bite of breakfast at Wind River. Above the round house there is a switchback. When the train pulled in the crew got off for some hot coffee. Johnnie Horigan was second playing the good fellow, and he climbed into the cab to run the train through the switchback while the crews were at the eating house. It was irregular to leave the engine, but they did, and as for Johnnie Horigan, he was regularly irregular. There were sixteen cars of steel in the string, besides a cabooseful of laborers. The backing up the leg of the wiper was easy. After the switch was newly set Johnnie pulled down the lower leg, and that, considering the whisks, was too easy.

When he pulled past the eating house on the down grade he was going so lively with his flats that he was away before the crew could get out of the lunchroom. In just one minute everybody in Wind River was in a trouble; the crew because their train was disappearing down the canyon; the eating house man because nobody paid him for his coffee, and Johnnie Horigan because he found it impossible to stop. He had dumped the sand, he had applied the air, he had reversed the engine. By all the rules laid down in the instruction car she ought to stop. But she didn't stop, and this was the embarrassing feature—she was headed down a hill twenty miles long, with curves to weary a boa-constrictor. John hung his head wildly over the drivers, looked back at the yelling crew, contemplated the load that was pushing him down the grade, and his head began to swim. There appeared but one thing to do; that was to make a noise, and as he feared the roundhouse he whistled like the wind. Aloysius McGrosey McGrath, at the alarm, darted out of the house like a fox. As he reached the door he saw the construction train coming and Johnnie Horigan in the gangway looking for a safe place to light.

The wiper exhausted the situation in a moment's second. The train was running away and Horigan was leaving it to its fate. From any point of view it was a tough proposition, but though propositions come rarely to ambitious railroad men, and Aloysius was starving for any sort of a propo-osition that would help him out of the snarl. The laborers in the caboose, already bewildered, were craning anxiously from the windows. Horigan, opposite the engine house, jumped in a moment, the round shot past Aloysius, boarding was out of the question.

Threw himself across the gap.

But on the siding stood a couple of men empty; and with his hair straight as centres the little wiper ran for them and mounted the nearest. The steel train was jumping. Aloysius touched his muscles, ran the length of the two flats for a head, and from the far corner threw himself across the gap, like a bat, on a load of the runaway steel. Scrambling to his feet, he motioned and yelled to the hoboes, who were pouring frantic out on the hind flat of the string, to set brakes; then he made ahead for the engine.

It was a race with the odds all wrong, for with every yard Aloysius gained the train gained a dozen. By the time he reached the tender, breathless, and slid down the coal into the deserted cab, the train was heading into Little Horn gap, and every Italian aboard yelling for life. Aloysius pumped into the levers, poked his head through the window, and looked at the drivers. They were in the back motion, and in front of them the sand was streaming wide open. The first thing he did was to shut half of it off—the fight could not be won by wasting ammunition. Over and over again he jerked at the air. It was refusing its work. Where so many a hunted runner has turned for salvation there was none for Aloysius. He opened and closed, threw on and threw off; it was all one and all less. The situation was as simple as it was frightful. Even if they didn't leave the track, they were certain to smash into Number Sixteen, the up-passenger, which must meet them somewhere on the hill.

"What can I do?"

Aloysius' fingers closed slowly on the sand lever. There was nothing on earth for it but sand, merely sand; and even the wiper's was oozing with the stream that poured from the tank on the whiskered rails. He shut off a bit more, thinking of the terrific curves below, and mentally calculated—or tried to—how long his steam would last to reverse the drivers—how he could shovel coal and sand the curves at the same time—and how much slewing the Italians at the tail of the kite could stand without landing on the rocks.

The pace was giddy and worse. When his brain was whirling fastest a man put a hand on his shoulder. Aloysius started as if Davy Jones had tapped him, and between bounces looked, scared, around. He looked into a face he didn't know from Adam's, but there was said in the eyes that met his.

"What can I do?" Aloysius saw the man's lips move, and, without taking his hands from the levers, bent his head to catch the words.

"What can I do?" shouted the man at his elbow.

"Give me steam—steam," cried the wiper, looking straight ahead.

It was the foreman of the steel gang from the caboose. Aloysius, through the backs of his eyes, saw him grab the shovel and make a pass at the tender. Doing so, he hearily took a header through the gangway, but he hung to the shovel and braced himself better.

With the next attempt he got a shoveful into the cab, but in the delivery passed it well up Aloysius' neck. There were neither words nor grins, but just another shoveful of coal a minute after, and the track-layer in spite of the dizzy hunching, shot it where it belonged—into the furnace. Feeling that if one shoveful could be landed, more could, Aloysius' own steam rose. As they headed madly around the Cinnamon bend the dial began to climb in spite of obstacles and the wiper, considering there were two and the steam and the sand to fight the thing out, opened his valve and dusted the whisksers on the curve with something more than a gleam of hope.

If there was confusion on the runaway train, there was terror and more below it. As the spectre flitted past Pringle station, five miles down the valley, the agent caught a glimpse of the sawtooth face of the wiper at the cab window and saw the drivers whirling backward. He rushed to his key and called the Medicine Bend dispatcher. With a tattoo like a drum-roll the dispatcher, in turn, called Soda Springs, ten miles below Pringle, where No. 16, the up passenger, was then due. He rattled on with his heart in his fingers, and the answer came on the instant. Then an order flashed into Soda Springs:

"To No. 16.
 "Take Soda Springs siding quick. Extra 240 West lost control of the train. DR."

There never was such a bubbling at Soda Springs as that bubbling. The operator tore up the platform like a hawk in a chicken yard. Men never scattered so quick as when No. 16 began screaming and wheezing and backing for the clear. Above the town, Aloysius, eyes white to the sockets, shooting the curves like a meteor, watched his lessening stream of sand pour into the frost on the track. As they whipped over bridges and hills the caboose reeled like a dying top—fear froze every soul on board. To leave the track now meant a scatter that would break West End records.

RODE ON THE ENGINE.

Khedive of Egypt Astonishes His Attendants.

The khedive of Egypt visited Paris recently. The way of his return was unconventional and interesting. At Calais he expressed a wish to ride to Amiens on the engine. There was a moment's consternation, but every objection was soon overruled, and presently, swathed in a long gray overcoat, he climbed up into the engine's cab. The young ruler of Egypt insisted on "working his passage," and he was asked to shovel coal, which he did with a will, the engineer chaffing the "monsieur," of whose identity he had not the remotest notion. Into Amiens the great train rushed after a trip of 105 miles without a single stoppage, and in those 105 miles had been made up a good eight minutes of the delay in starting. Often the train ran at sixty miles an hour and over, or twice the speed of Egypt's fastest train. At the station a little group of officials in full evening dress had gathered opposite the door of the special state saloon provided for the khedive, and there was surprise when he could not be found there. Then down the platform a very dirty man in a long overcoat came hurrying. He wore no cap and his straight black hair was all disheveled, while the white teeth and the white-rimmed eyes, a little blood-shot, laughed out of the dirtiest face the khedive had ever worn. He shook hands with the gentlemen in evening dress and clambered into the state carriage, while the crowd, which had realized what the khedive had done, cheered lustily.

A Bottled Brother.

Dr. Gillespie, the present moderator of the Church of Scotland, tells how he was nonplused the other day by a ragged urchin with whom he got into conversation. He said:

"My boy, who looks after you?"
 "Nacuddy," was the quick reply.
 "Where is your father?"
 "He's deid."

"Have you a mother?"
 "She's deid, too."
 "Have you not a sister, then?"
 "I never had yin."

"But surely you have a brother?"
 "Yes, but he's at Glasgow College."

"Well, cannot he spare some time from his studies to look after you a bit?"

"Na, sir; for he was born wi' two weids, and they keep him in a bottle."

Sharpening Her Teeth.

Mrs. Samuel Sloane Chauncey, whose engagement to Lord Rosebery is rumored, was Miss Alice Carr of Louisville in her youth. Her sister, who was Miss Grace Carr, is married to Lord Newborough.

Lady Newborough sometimes tells a story about a Louisville maid servant employed by her family in her childhood. The maid, fresh from the old country, was very green. One day a guest of the family, a young woman, was late for dinner, yet she was in her room.

"Go to her room," someone said to the maid, "knock at her door, and find out why she doesn't come downstairs."

The maid departed, and in a little while returned. "The lady'll be down in a moment, ma'm. She's just sharpenin' her teeth," she said.

A Strange Voice Calling.

The blackbird charmed me from my quiet chamber.
 As in a dream I heard his sweet voice calling:
 The garden plots were paved with pearl and silver,
 And all about the walks white petals falling.

Came hid within the misty green-velled thickets
 That strange voice drew my heart beyond believing;
 And as I leaned across the orchard wicket
 I knew not what it was that I grieved for.

But this I know—'twas to no earthly shadows
 He called me hence from out his dim wood hollow;
 He bade me to the place of dreams and shadows,
 And one day he will call and I shall follow.

CUPOLA SKETCHES
 By BYRON WILLIAMS

Louise.
 Louise is pretty.
 Louise is fair;
 Louise is witty,
 And has gun-kissed hair.

Louise is saucy.
 A gay coquette;
 Louise is flowery,
 "But I'll win her yet."

Louise is waxy.
 Her heart's a dures;
 Louise, the fairy,
 She will not confess!

Louise, I'm gazing,
 Deep in your eyes—
 See hope amazing
 And a paradise.

Louise, you're blushing!
 Louise, your cheek
 With love is flushing,
 What your heart would speak!

Louise, caressing.

Louise.
 I hold you tight,
 Louise, I'm pressing,
 For your "Yes" to-night
 Louise, you're clinging
 To my breast;
 My heart is singing,
 And at love's behest!

A Bouquet.
 ON THE SUBURBAN TRAIN.
 Fair were the phlox and lilies
 And pale "sweet-william" bloom
 Wrought in the Master's image
 Upon Dame Nature's loom.

Rich in their royal innocence,
 All we with morning dew
 Bade them in flower language,
 "Good morning!" on the "Q."

Brought by a basketful native
 From fragrant dell and fur,
 Spoke they to hearts aware
 Upon the crowded car.

Glowing in scented beauty,
 They sang to dooms there,
 Songs of the land out yonder
 Where His own people are.

One from the peaceful country
 Suppressed a wistful sigh—
 She was a farmer's daughter
 From bonny land and sky.

Flowers of home, she loved these,
 Lily and phlox and rose—
 Sore was her heart with aching,
 Her soul was sick with woe.

Long, gazed the maid, in woe
 Into the great bouquet;
 Tears to her eyes came walling,
 Despite her will at base.

And once again she fastened
 Her gaze upon the flow'rs—
 Smiles wreathed her face suddenly
 As sunshine follows showers!

Fragrant and sweet, a message
 Of tender hope they brought—
 God, in the flower's faces,
 Had sent the Peace she sought!

Honestly, I don't care much for the theatre. If I could go three or four nights a week, twice on Sunday and take in a few of the matinees, I'd be satisfied. This spending all one's time at the theatre isn't what it's cracked up to be.

What Did Katy Do?
 Katydid, Katydid,
 What did Katy do?
 Every night now for a week
 I have listened to your wail:
 "Katydid! Katydid! Katydid!"
 Pray, what did Katy do?

Katydid, Katydid,
 Are you sure she did?
 May be Katy did not do
 What you are alluding to!

WHAT DID KATY DO?
 "Katydid! Katydid! Katydid!"
 Please, what did Katy do?
 Katydid, Katydid,
 What did Katy do?
 Further back than I can see,
 Ever since the birth of man,
 You've insisted Katy did!
 Come, what did Katy do?

Katydid, Katydid,
 What did Katy do?
 Must have been an awful sin,
 For three thousand years you've been Katydiding, Katydiding!
 What was this awful scandal?
 Oh, what did Katy do?

TRIED BY TIME.

Mixed Rations for Farm Horses.

Many horse feeders regard oats as almost necessary, and it is doubtless true that in large regions of the United States the most common ration for horses consists of oats and hay, with an occasional bran mash. In the South and West corn seems to be the most common feed, especially in rural districts. Many experiments have been reported which support the theory that horses may be satisfactorily fed and reasonable combination of wholesome materials which supplies the required nutrients in due proportion. In other words, protein and energy are required by the animal body rather than any special feed. Beleving that more horses should be raised and that an economic system of feeding would be an incentive to horse breeders, C. W. Burkett of the New Hampshire Station, recently studied the comparative value of a number of mixed rations with the station farm horses during a period of two years. The rations were so planned that an abundance of nutritive material was supplied by grain mixtures which were cheaper than oats. Throughout the greater part of the experimental period hay was fed with the grain. During a part of the time corn fodder was used. The comparative merits of the following five rations were studied in the first test: Hay 10 pounds, bran 2 pounds, corn 6 pounds, and gluten feed 6 pounds; hay 10, bran 2, corn 6, oats 8; hay 10, corn 8, and bran 7; hay 10, corn 8, linseed oil meal 4; and hay 10, cottonseed meal 1, bran 7 and corn 8. Each of the five horses included in the investigation received one of the rations for one month, the rations being rotated, so that during the five months of the test each horse was fed all the rations. The following were some of the conclusions arrived at:

Any food stuff or combination of food stuffs furnishing the desirable nutrient at least cost should be considered in preparing rations for horses. A mixture of bran and corn, half and half, is a good substitute for corn and oats for feeding work horses. Corn stover is a good substitute for timothy hay for winter feeding of horses because of its feeding value, the yield per acre and commercial value. A change from a grain mixture, consisting partially of linseed oil meal, slowly or abruptly, does not cause a decrease of weight in horses if a proper substitute ration is fed. The average total cost per year for actual food supply per horse was $74.32. The average cost for food per hour's work done during two years was 34 cents.

Care of Sheep.
 A Canadian shepherd says: The lamb crop, like any other, to be successful, must be prepared for beforehand; therefore, as the breeding season approaches the ewes ought to be getting in good condition, and it cannot be done easier than by giving them the run of the stubble-fields after the grain is stacked. Before the breeding season is over the winter will have set in, and the flock will be in their winter quarters. No elaborate building is necessary. A hay rack running round the inside, with a small door in the center, just large enough for one sheep to go in and out when the big door is shut. It must be dry and entirely free from drafts. The racks should be built on feet will be ample accommodation for a hundred good-sized ewes, until lambing time. The winter feed should be wild hay, oat straw or oat sheaves. They may be allowed to run at the oat stack, if care is taken to remove the overhanging portions as they eat it, away from under, to prevent the chaff from getting into their wool. The hay is fed in the rack inside, and only what they will eat up clean. Always clean out the racks before the next feeding. I have often heard it said that sheep won't drink water, but that is a mistake; they will drink large quantities of water at the right time and place. They won't drink out of a water hole on a cold day, but watered in their pens and in troughs, a hundred head will drink almost two barrels a day. I think good water is most important. Keep salt where they can get it at all times, summer and winter.

Raise More Pigs.
 When pigs are handled in a proper way they prove profitable to the farmer. There are ways of handling and feeding that will make them unprofitable and there are ways of handling that will make them profitable. The variety to be kept will often determine the results. When there is little pasture for them the number kept should be small, as pigs fed a ration of grain only cannot generally yield a profit. It is possible to have so many pigs that they will be unprofitable; but the trouble is generally the other way. Not enough pigs are being raised on American farms. The farmers are all too generally depending on one crop of pigs a year to give them a profit. The high cost of winter feed has stimulated this movement; but the process should be reversed. We must have more fall pigs and use our wits in getting cheap feed for them.

The permanence of effect is one of the most valuable characteristics of farmyard manure, as, if once applied in a rotation, it benefits all the crops in the rotation.

No man can hope to be happily married unless he is a good listener.

Eugene E. Lario, of 751 Twentieth Avenue, ticket seller in the Union Station, Denver, Col., says: "You are at liberty to repeat what I first stated through our Denver papers about Doan's Kidney Pills in the summer of 1899, for I have had no reason in the interim to change my opinion of the remedy. I said when first interviewed that if I had a friend and acquaintance suffering from backache or kidney trouble I would unhesitatingly advise them to take Doan's Kidney Pills. I was subject to severe attacks of backache, always aggravated if I sat long at a desk. It struck me that if Doan's Kidney Pills performed half what they promised they might at least help. This induced me to try the remedy. It absolutely stopped the backache. I have never had a pain or a twinge since."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mr. Lario will be mailed to any part of the United States on application. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists. Price 50 cents per box.

THE TABLE IN SUMMER.

Hostesses at Newport Discard the Accepted Covering.

"We don't use any tablecloths in summer," said a clever housekeeper the other day, "and you can't think what a saving of work it is. The laundress has so many tub frocks and shirt waists to do up each week she's quite overwhelmed as it is. Rather than tumbled cloths I prefer a bare table. Beside, even for dinner at night, the polished table, with its handsome centerpiece, its flowers and its silver and pretty china, is attractive. It seems to me quite as elegant as a table with a white cloth over it, and it is infinitely more summery. Through the summer we try to live in a summertime way, leaving for cold weather the amusements and customs of winter and civilized life. We find it lends variety and zest to existence not to eat and do and wear the same things all the year round. Don't you think there's something in it?"—Newport News.

Only His Watch So Far.
 There is an old negro living in Carrollton who was taken ill several days ago and called in a physician of his race to prescribe for him. But the old man did not seem to be getting any better and finally a white physician was called. Soon after arriving Dr. S. felt the darky's pulse for a moment and then examined his tongue. "Did your other doctor take your temperature?" he asked. "I don't know, sah," he answered feebly. "I ain't missed anything but my watch as yit, boss."

Deafness Cannot be Cured.
 By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

COLD FACTS VERSUS SCIENCE.

Physician Tells of Danger of Hastily Formed Opinions.

In talking to a class of students recently, a prominent hospital physician of this city cautioned them against hastily forming and expressing opinions as to the nature of patients' diseases. He emphasized his warning with two stories from his own experience. He was once present at a clinic, the subject of which was a man evidently suffering from some disease of the heart.

"A strange, unnatural, murmuring sound could be heard from that organ," said the doctor, "and the pupil of one of the man's eyes was much dilated. The peculiar appearance of the eye struck all present, and seemed to have some connection with the cardiac, or heart, affection. We wondered what the precise nature of this relation could be, and more than one of us had out a note book as the discussion grew animated. But they were put away in a hurry when the patient remarked that his queer looking eye was made of glass.

"At another clinic the professor in charge was talking learnedly and pedantically about the importance of attending carefully to minor symptoms. "For instance, gentlemen," said he, "I have no doubt but that certain things might be confidently affirmed as to this woman's condition by the appearance of her teeth."

"He was forging ahead with particulars when the patient interrupted him. "Here you are, sir," she said, taking out her teeth, "you can hand them around if you like."

THE CHANGES OF HISTORY.

Napoleon's Coup d'Etat Compared With That in Serbia.

An English writer says: "It is now stated that the number of those who have fallen victims to the coup d'etat at Belgrade is fifty-four. The massacre has aroused the disgust and indignation of all Europe, which cannot find a parallel for such a hutchery in modern annals, but the world would appear to have forgotten Louis Napoleon's coup d'etat of Dec. 2, by which he extinguished in blood the French republic and raised himself to what was practically the imperial throne. On that occasion the surper scribbled not to deluge Paris with the blood of its citizens, hundreds of whom lost their lives, so that, as far as murderous results were concerned, the crime of 'Napoleon the Little' was even more flagitious and unjustifiable than that of the conspirators who have now abolished the Obrenovitch dynasty. Yet within five years Queen Victoria, on the steps of Windsor castle, presented her cheek to the perpetrator of the coup d'etat."

The Differences in Races.

The late R. H. Stoddard was fond of contrasting the English and the French workman, to the great advantage of the former. One of his comparisons dealt with the death of Dickens. "A short time after Dickens died," he would say, "a friend of mine of the scene of his last hours, and, in search of Dickensians, stopped in a neighboring inn. He spoke of the novelist's demise to the waiter. "A great loss," he said. "A great loss indeed to us, sir," the waiter agreed. "He had all his ailments sent from this house."

"Contrast with that," Mr. Stoddard would exclaim, "the answer of a waiter to whom, on the afternoon of Mirabeau's death, a guest said, 'A fine day.' "Yes," the waiter answered, "it is a fine day, but—Mirabeau is dead."

A Nile Village.

A traveler of the upper Nile thus describes a typical native village: "The houses are built of Nile mud, each house accommodating a family of no matter of what size, the inhabitants of each village almost all related to each other, comprising sometimes several hundreds of people. Their streets are littered with filth, animals of every kind obstruct one's path, dogs growl and snarl at the appearance and intrusion of a stranger; women rush about, hiding their faces in their yashmaks lest a white man should behold their features. Flies in swarms settle on the children and lay their eggs on their eyelids, unwashed, because they believe it to be contrary to their religion to wash or remove the flies from their eyes."

Electoral Commission Survivors.

Only three of the fifteen members of the famous electoral commission of 1877 survive—ex-Senator Edmunds, Senator Hoar and General Egga Hunton of Virginia—the two last having been chosen on the part of the House of Representatives. All of the five justices of the Supreme court who sat on the commission long since passed away.

Most of the 4,000 or 5,000 parrots that are brought to New York every year are of the sorts known as the "double yellowhead" and the "red-head." The former are the best talkers, and as young birds sell for $15 or $20.

CARRYING IT TOO FAR.

Irishman Had Traveled Too Long a Distance for a Joke.

The late George T. Cline, the eccentric Chicago millionaire, had a passion for violins and Irishmen. Though on himself he would never spend more than fifteen or twenty cents a day, he would readily pay $2,000 or $3,000 for a violin, and he thought nothing of buying Irishmen sumptuous dinners, with champagne, in order to hear them talk in their musical brogue.

An Irishman once played Colonel Cline false. He stole a pair of boots from him. Discovering his theft the millionaire pursued the Irishman, overtaking him as he was about to enter a pawnshop with the boots in his hand.

"Those are my boots; you have stolen them," said Colonel Cline. "Sure, it was only a joke," said the Irishman.

But the inexorable millionaire hauled the thief before a magistrate, and here again the man repeated:

"It was only a joke, your honor."

"Only a joke, hey?" said the magistrate. "Well, Mr. Cline, how far away from your house had he carried the boots when you overtook him?"

"Over a mile, sir," replied the millionaire.

"Held for court," said the magistrate. "This is a case of carrying the joke too far."

THE DEPTH OF DEPRAVITY.

Innocent Maid the Victim of Perfidious Society Man.

"My dear Julia, I'm so glad to see you, for I've just had such a shock. I want to tell you about it. You know George Billings—such a nice fellow, apparently. Well, my dear, would you believe it, he's the most underhanded, deceitful fellow in the world. You know I've been having quite a desperate flirtation with him for some time—dances, tete-a-tetes, hand squeezing, and all that sort of thing. Of course, I'm engaged to Tom, and I wouldn't be false to him for the world, but then there's no harm in a little flirtation now and then. Well, this affair with George got to be very desperate and I was afraid Tom might hear of it, so I thought I'd give George a little warning. Last night I met him at the Tompkins, and managed to hint some things about my engagement. He just laughed and said:

"Oh, yes; I know all about it."

"What do you think of that, my dear? Isn't that deceitful and underhanded to flirt with a girl whom he knows is engaged? But that isn't the worst. He told me that he was going to be married next month. Wasn't that perfectly scandalous? Why, it was perfectly outrageous. Just think of his acting in that way when he was engaged. His depravity is really shocking."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Sunday.

On Sunday no alarm shock "To Work!" beats on the tired brain; What bliss to wake, to scorn the clock, To smile and go to sleep again. And joy goes dimpling through the town, On heart-strings her sweet tune she strums, And care-worn brows forget to frown, When Sunday comes.

On Sunday there's no breathless haste "To mill or mart on tireless legs; And oh, how beautiful the taste, Of leisure in the ham and egg; To munch your breakfast at your ease, To jerk at time and snap your thumbs— You only get such joys as these, When Sunday comes.

When Sunday comes the little girls, Before the glass with huke delight, Take out of jail the little curls; That they have had in pins all night. The little boys don't "Sunday best," With glad heart's inward rites and drums; And by clean collars they're oppressed When Sunday comes.

When Sunday comes how grand to sit, "To read a bit, and doze a bit; Until they bring the supper by, With music of the jingling spoon And saucer, while the kettle hums An extra pleasing Sabbath tune, When Sunday comes.

When Sunday comes with that a glow A man may puff his pipe and say (As Horace said some time ago)— "Lord of myself I live to-day!" So here's to Sunday, three times three; With glad heart's inward rites and drums; And—keep a corner, please, for me, When Sunday comes. —Kansas City Independent.

Of a Different Breed. President Mellen of Northern Pacific was telling one of his Wall Street friends about the prospects in the Far Northwest.

"I never saw so many lambs and sheep on the farms as there are this year," he concluded.

"We have more than the average ourselves," said the broker with a sigh, "but we are not boasting about it."

"The bread I mean are worth $6 apiece," replied the railroad man, laughing.

"And there's where you have us beaten," sadly admitted the Wall Street man.—New York Times.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured.
