THERE IS A DIFFERENCE

between the fruit sprayed with a common spray pump and one that is not. There is a still greater profit from fruit sprayed with the SPRAMOTOR. Why is it the entomologists get such bounteous returns while the average grower fails? Why do these experts who have used the Spramotor recommend it? Why does the Spramotor kill the San Jose Scale and let the tree live, while the ordinary spray pump kills the tree?

The SPRAMOTOR

will apply soap and oil, or bordeaux and oil and water, or any combination of them in the right proportion. The Spramotor will paint your barns and buildings with oil or Sparator Water Proof. A startling incident, is narrated by John Oliver of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim. No one should fail to try them. Only 10 cents, guaranteed, at Jno. L. Gale and The Wolverine Drug Co."

Important News From All Parts of Michigan

Happenings of the Week Chronicled Briefly For Busy Readers

Young Wife Murdered.

One of the most brutal murders in the history of the county stirred the quietness of Gaiher Tuesday. Thos. Payne, a wealthy farmer living north-east of the village, shot and almost instantly killed his young wife Zimble at 2 o'clock p. m. The couple were resting together on a cot bed when Payne suddenly drew a .38-caliber revolver from his pocket and fired three shots into his wife's breast, all of the bullets took effect, and Mrs. Payne died in thirty minutes after suffering severely. After committing the deed Payne fled into a wood some distance from the house hiding in a small log cabin, where he was captured and taken to jail. Payne is an old man, being 76 years of age, while his wife was but a little over 30. Payne had long been jealous of his wife, which is thought to have caused him to commit the deed. It is alleged that he had abused her on several former occasions, having been arrested a year ago for beating her nearly into insensibility with a stick of wood.

$200,000 Fire in Auto Plant.

A disastrous fire with spectacular and sensational features occurred at the plant of the Cadillac Automobile Co., Cass and Amsterdam avenues, Detroit, shortly after 8 o'clock Wednesday morning. The employees had only fairly begun the duties of the day, when the alarm of fire was raised. Instantly the windows of the large three-story building were alive with frightened humanity, and as the flames shot out from the center of the structure, panic seized the 500 or 600 employees, who made their escape as best they could, many leaping through windows or jumping from the second or third story to the ground. Only one man, Martin Gorman, foreman of the frame room, was severely burned, while two men and one girl were hurt by falls.

A Very Expensive Scheme.

The mayor of Detroit with others linked to Governor Bliss Thursday for nearly three hours on the importance of his calling the Michigan legislature in special session to enact a law requiring the Detroit United railway to give the citizens of Detroit three-cent fares with universal transfers. It was argued that the matter of primary election reform might also be brought up at the special session, and members of the legislature would be forced, having nothing else before them, to act on these two important matters. Gov. Bliss showed some incredulity in regard to the present legislature giving the people any measure of primary election reform. He said he would decide the request later.

Where Will the Fair Be Located?

The state fair is still to be located. The executive committee of the State Agricultural society could not agree at its meeting in Lansing Thursday night, but it remained in session until 3 o'clock next morning trying. Sixty ballots, it is said, were taken, but none showed a majority of all the members of the committee for one site. The balloting is said to have started with 11 for Pontiac, eight for Saginaw, and six for Jackson, but Ypsilanti received some votes during the session. When the committee realized it could not agree, it was decided to meet on the 15th at Battle Creek to try again.

The Water Germ.

Dr. Victor C. Vaughan, of the University of Michigan, has completed a series of tests of drinking water and finds that murky water is often safe, while clear, sparkling water may contain disease germs. He says that in all cold water there exists only one germ, typhus, which retains its virulence after being swallowed. Certain other drinking water bacteria are dangerous, but not under the chief condition that first imposes—coolness. The colon germ, which is found in the water supply of many cities, is declared responsible for appendicitis in some cases.

The Sault Indictments.

Former Chief of Police Nelson A. Burdick, former Police Capt. Frank Stevens and Frank Chapel, of Sault Ste. Marie, were arrested Saturday night by Sheriff Bone on indictments found by the grand jury. They are charged with conspiracy in connection with accepting money from gamblers and demimonde. The indicted officials some time ago left the service as a result of an investigation by the police commissioners. All gave bonds and were released to appear in the circuit court on May 14.

Potatoes have reached the highest price in many years in St. Joseph and are being eagerly sought by commission merchants, who are paying $1 per bushel for them. Wreck and Death.

Spreading rails on the Detroit & Bay City branch of the Michigan Central two miles south of Metamora, Saturday night, resulted in the wrecking of an engine and caboose, the destruction of the latter by fire and the death and cremation of Conductor Myron Vandecar, of Detroit. The train consisted only of an engine, tender and caboose, and carried, besides Vandecar, the engineer, fireman and brakeman, all of whom jumped as the train left the track and escaped without injury. The accident occurred at the top of an embankment, and as the caboose rolled over the stove was overturned, setting fire to the car and charring the body of the conductor, who was plucked under the wreckage. The track was torn up for several rods, and all traffic over this division stopped temporarily.

The News of the World Told by the Telegraph

ADMIRAL MAKAROF DROWNED.

Tusian Battleship Petropavlovsk Sunk by a Mine—800 Sailors Drowned.

It is officially announced that Vice Admiral Makaroff was drowned in the sinking of the battleship Petropavlovsk at Port Arthur. While going out to meet the Japanese fleet at Port Arthur the Petropavlovsk struck a mine in the outer roadstead, heeled over, turned turtle and sank. Practically the whole of her crew was lost. Intense excitement has been caused by reports spread broadcast regarding the disaster.

It is estimated that nearly 800 men went down with the battleship. About 20 were saved, including four officers, among whom was Grand Duke Cyril, the czar's cousin, who was slightly injured. His brother, Grand Duke Boris, witnessed the catastrophe through a marine glass.

On the Yalu.

It is believed in Tokio that fighting has commenced on the Yalu river. It is known that the Russians occupy the right bank of the river in force. No direct information from the Yalu district has been received, but the position of the Russians is known, and while it is doubted that they will be able to prevent the Japanese from crossing the river, it is regarded as certain that there will be a serious engagement during the Japanese attempts to cross the Yalu.

A St. Petersburg dispatch says: Some further exchanges of shots occurred between the Russian and Japanese forces along the borders of the Yalu river. Major Gen. Piffing, in a dispatch from Mukden, denies the report that the Japanese advance guard has crossed the Yalu and engaged in a skirmish with the Russian troops.

Reliable information regarding the Russian military plans confirms the announcements that these plans will not mature until late in the summer. Gen. Kropotkin has insisted that the men and guns to be placed at his disposal shall cover the extreme limit required to settle the fate of the campaign. The Russian plans are predicated upon Napoleon's dictum, "that God fights on the side of the heaviest battalions," and they are being worked out and timed so as to apply to a superiority of numbers, on land and sea simultaneously. The army is designed to attain the enormous total of 500,000 men at the time scheduled for the reinforcement of Vice Admiral Makaroff's fleet with the Baltic squadron.

The Spring Blizzard.

Blizzards and snow are reported throughout all the northwest. In many places transportation is completely blocked, and even communication by telegraph cut off. The storm was apparently at its worst in eastern North Dakota Saturday. No freight trains were running in Minnesota and North Dakota, and passenger trains were behind schedule time. At Osceola, in central Wisconsin, there was six inches of snow and a severe blizzard reported everywhere. Many wires are reported down and the heavy snow in North Dakota leads railroad officials to rush all traffic over their lines before a general thaw and attendant floods begin. Dispatches say that North Dakota is buried under two and one-half feet of snow and sleet, and that Fargo is entirely cut off from all communication. The Great Northern tracks in Montana are under a foot of water, and the Missouri river is above its banks.

U. S. Commissioner Clarence L. Leeds, whose connection with Indian land companies has been under investigation, has resigned.

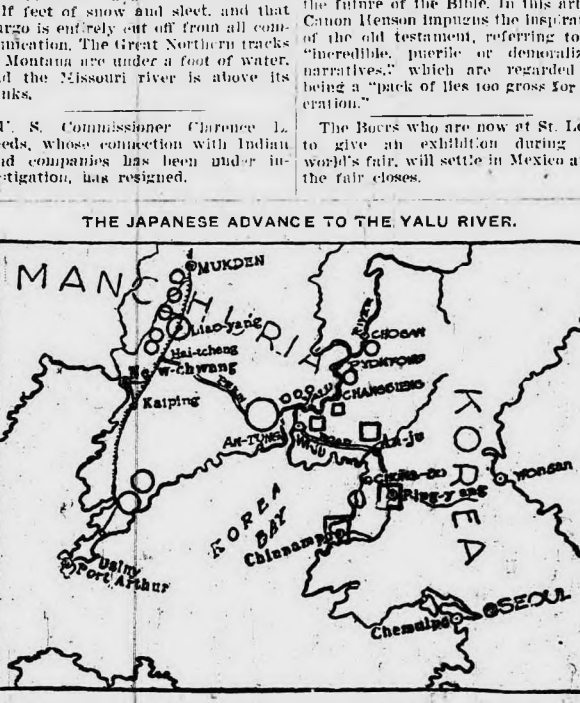

Ex-Queen Isabella of Spain, grandmother of King Alfonso, died in Paris Saturday morning of influenza with complications. The deceased queen had been one of the conspicuous figures of Paris since she left Spain. After her abdication, in 1870, she continued to live with queenly magnificence, giving largely to charitable and religious works. Isabella was 74 years of age and had lived in Paris since 1870, being forced into exile after a notorious career which began when forced into marrying a brute whom she hated. Her reign of 35 years was characterized by gross misgovernment, which caused her to be despised.

Attacks the Bible.

Canon Hepson, one of the chief dignitaries of Westminster abbey, London, and a select preacher of both Oxford and Cambridge universities, has raised a storm of criticism by an article in the Contemporary Review, in which he entered into the question of the future of the Bible. In this article Canon Hepson impugns the inspiration of the old testament, referring to its "incredible, purile or demoralizing narratives," which are regarded as being a "pack of lies too gross for toleration."

The Bucs who are now at St. Louis to give an exhibition during the world's fair, will settle in Mexico after the fair closes.

THE JAPANESE ADVANCE TO THE YALU RIVER.

Circles on above map show location of Russian forces. Squares show the Japanese. Dispatches state that the Japanese advance had reached Chang-siang, on the south bank of Yalu river. Small bodies of Russian troops are said still to be at Choson and Pyokking, on the same side of the river, although the main Russian force has retreated to the north bank, which is reported to be strongly fortified.

The West Side Bureau of Charities at Chicago has unearthed the luxurious home of a gang of child-beggar bosses for whose fair search has long been made. Every sign of wealth and lavishness was found, and the keeper of the children, a Mrs. "Missouri" Boehm, when brought before a magistrate, admitted having been a beggar for 10 years.

The conviction of Mrs. Cordelia Botkin at San Francisco of the murder of Mrs. J. P. Dunning and Mrs. Deane, of Dover, Del., by sending poisoned candy, has cost California over $80,000.

Malicious boys started a bonfire on the edge of the old St. Mark's cemetery at Orange, N. J. The dry shrubbery burned like tinder, cracking and ruining many headstones and monuments to revolutionary heroes and others.

William McQueen, anarchist, who fled from Paterson, N. J., while under $10,000 bond pending appeal from a five-year sentence, has returned from Iceland. He was arrested in 1902 for hitting the silk mills strikers, a rioting and was said to have been connected with Breach's assassination of King Humbert of Italy.

FRIDAY, APRIL 15, 1904.

Charles A. Frisbee.

Concerning the death of our beloved friend, it may truly be said—"Behold a king has fallen this day." No man ever possessed more ideally kingly qualities of character. His regal head and noble countenance commanded the admiration of strangers, as well as friends. Possessed of rare gifts, a strong will and intense nature, he was yet tender and simple as a child. Those who knew and loved him best, felt that it was his "gentleness that made him great." He hated meanness and hypocrisy, and possessing to an unusual degree the power of verbal utterance, he could clothe his detestations of wrong in forcible, and sometimes severe language. He was generous to a fault, and great enough to confess his own errors and to apologize to those whom he thought he had wronged or misjudged. He honored the church and loved the Christ, but humbly counted himself among the unworthy. His strong personality as a teacher, impressed for good, those who came under his influence. Nothing gave him greater happiness than to meet any of his former pupils, scattered now throughout the world, none of whom in visiting their former home village in recent years have failed to seek out, and call upon their early beloved teacher.

Mr. Frisbee stood before our community as an exponent of purity. He was a loyal friend of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and an honorary member of the local society. His unfinished work in behalf of the union lay upon his writing desk, at the time of his death, a sad reminder to us of his great helpfulness to our cause. We shall miss him, and in the words of Mary T. Lathrap, spoken at the grave of General Clinton B. Fisk we say:

"I wonder sometimes that the world goes on since his royal heart stopped beating. I wonder that men can still and plan. And women can smile their greeting. I wonder, that even the children at play. Do not pause, as if touched by sorrow. I wonder that any who loved him, can care for the losses or gains of to-morrow. Since never again, this day or another. We shall find what we lost at his going—our brother."

Same Old Tricks.

Homer Warren and his committee are posing before the people of the State as the quint essence of everything that embodies primary reform—spelled with a big R at that. But Homer is a dodger of the worst kind just the same. The Warren crowd were endeavoring to accomplish reform right at once and wanted the county committee to arrange for a primary election in this county for delegates to the State convention. Then it was discovered that most if not all of the townships of the county were lined up against Warren and for Warner. With a primary election it was seen these townships could and would send delegates to the State convention favorable to Warner. Presto change! The clamor for primary election ceased at once and Chairman H. M. Duffield has announced, so the dailies report, that the old-time "gag rule" will be again applied, the county delegates choked off and only Warren men counted in. This is about the size of the primary reform these fellows are working for. The dear people are being "worked" only that certain favorites may gain political advantage. Meanwhile Candidate Warner, the Farmington cheese man, is doing nothing but "sawing wood" or perhaps more properly speaking "cutting cheese."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

By Louise Gentr, Lucy Lapham, Arden Chilton and Arthur Whipple.

The Botany class are analyzing flowers this week. The new Herbarium have arrived and the class will soon commence work in them.

One of the editors of this column attended the wedding of her sister one day last week.

Tit, tat, toe, three in a row, a junior and soph, caught by Prof., playing tit, tat, toe.

Ye editor has heard of a Rose without a thorn and a woman without a heart and in fact Plymouth school has a teacher who went without one (?) from Friday until Monday.

A bad cold detained Sadia Walker from giving her oration with the rest Tuesday afternoon. Sadia had spent a great deal of time on her oration and we are all sure it would have been of good material and rendered nicely had she been able to deliver it.

Our athletic field is developing finely—into a frog pond.

We understand that a new mode of traveling has been introduced between Ann Arbor and Plymouth—walking alumnus tramps are the feature. Nothing to eat until kind farmers gave them simple sugar. In vain did the girls look for them on Sunday morning to take them to church for the tired pedestrians were too proud, dignified, etc., to present themselves in their traveling clothes.

Don't forget the orator who is to be at the M. E. church tonight, April 15. Price 10 cents. Benefit of Junior class.

The P. H. S. ball team have purchased a quantity of sticky fly-paper to catch the captain's flies with.

The boys of the high school seem to be more careless than the girls for they have broken their looking glass. Boys must beware how much they look at themselves, should a new glass be placed for the old, for fear it may again crack.

The Beethoven program and oratorical contest Tuesday afternoon proved both enjoyable and instructive, if we can judge by the kindly criticism of those present. At noon, the contestants chose their places by lot. Business and illness prevented friends of the school who had planned to act as judges from being present. In behalf of the school, the teachers, and those who contributed their talents to make the program a worthy one, we wish to thank Mrs. Perrin, Mrs. Jackson and Rev. Stephens for judging; also our fellow alumnus, and all members of the school for the able rendering of musical and literary numbers. Rev. Stephens in announcing the decision of the judges gave Dora Beckhold highest rank in thought and composition; Leigh Markham, in natural ability; and Una Gunsolly in delivery, the last mentioned to represent our school in the district contest to be held April 29.

In the flush of victory, it is the general who receives the congratulations; friends for the time forget the men in the rank and file who have borne the heat of the day, footsore, weary and wounded, remaining in the background waiting for the laurels. Time is so slow in bestowing. Nevertheless our school is no less proud of its members who have just represented us in oratory and scholarship, and return to their desks without the laurel wreath.

It is very surprising how very tender a teacher can be toward a little mouse.

Certain girls seem to be a great attraction for two of the sophomore boys. The boys never fail to pay them a visit the second period in the afternoon.

Secretary J. E. Meaffey, of the tri-county athletic association, has resigned.

Two of the high school boys (base ball magnates) busied themselves Saturday morning, constructing a new back stop at the fair grounds.

The president of the sophomore class sprained his ankle while practicing the high jump one day last week. He was unable to attend school Friday.

Henry Sage has moulded a new twelve pound hammer for the high school boys. Although the boys have made a good showing, no records have yet been broken.

Miss Dora Townsend attended the exercises at the high school Tuesday afternoon.

Not Yet Ready to Die for Her Country.

Chicago papers recently gave a very pretty account of Miss Tei Morita, the little Japanese lady who two years ago was a student of Adrian college, afterward of the university and now of Chicago, and who gave a lecture in the Methodist church here about a year ago. When the Jap-Russ war suddenly broke out Windy City reporters visited the domicile of Miss Tei Morita and found her posturing on the poly-colored carpet in the squat style of all Japanese ladies, contemplating what she might do to help skin the bear. She said she was willing to die for her country, did little Miss Tei Morita, in charming pig-geon as she shot the sweetest and most liquid of glances at the lead pencil gang. The boys were "all gone" on the petite mite of oriental loveliness coiled on the rug and wrote passionately of the graces and Spartan devotion to her native land of the oblique-eyed little beauty, with the motto: "My country is everything, and I am nothing!" Presto! Now she's married, is Miss Tei Morita. The wedding took place in Chicago, to Suetji Miyamori from Japan, and when Tei dies for her country it will be hereafter. It doth further appear that this was not the first time she had been pre-empted by a bridegroom, and that in fact she was a divorced widow-ah, and mother of a promising young son, who resides in his native land.

A Great Sensation.

There was a big sensation in Leesville, Ind. when W. H. Brown of that place, who was expected to die, had his life saved by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. He writes: "I endured insufferable agonies from Asthma, but your New Discovery gave me immediate relief and soon thereafter effected a complete cure." Similar cures of Consumption, Pneumonia, Bronchitis and Grip are numerous. It's the peerless remedy for all throat and lung troubles. Price 50c, and $1.00. Guaranteed by Jno. L. Gale and The Wolverine Drug Co.

THE GIRL AT THE HALFWAY HOUSE

A STORY OF THE PLAINS
BY S. HOUGH, AUTHOR OF THE STORY OF THE COWBOY
Copyrighted, 1908, by D. Appleton & Company, New York

CHAPTER XXVII.

The Hill of Dreams.

Franklin found himself swept along with a tide of affairs other than his own choosing. His grasp on the possibilities of the earliest days of this new civilization had been so full and so strong that he needed now but to let them build the house whose foundation he had laid.

Yet ever a chill struck his soul as he thought of the last battle at the Halfway House. There was now grass grown upon the dusty trail that once led up to the log-cabin house. The green and gray of Nature were shrouding the two lonely graves of those who had fought the frontier and been vanquished in that night of terror, when the old West claimed its own. The Halfway House of old was but a memory. And Mary Ellen, the stately visitor of his sleeping or his waking dream, no longer might be seen in person at the Halfway House. Recreant, defeated, but still refusing aid, she had gone back to her land of flowers. It was Franklin's one comfort that she had never known into whose hands had passed—at a price far beyond their actual worth—the lands of the Halfway House, which had so rapidly built up for her a competency, which had cleared her of poverty, only to re-entrench her in her pride.

Under all the fantastic grimness, all the mysticism, all the discredited and riotous vagaries of his insubordinate soul, Franklin possessed a saving common sense; yet it was mere freakishness which led him to accept a vagrant impulse as the controlling motive at the crucial moment of his life.

To a very few men Edward Franklin had admitted that he once dreamed of a hill topped by a little fire, foot of the hill. There were no longer banners of dust where the wild game swept by, nor did the eye catch any line of distant horsemen. It was another day. Yet, as did the candidate of old, he left his horse at the foot of the hill and went up quite alone.

It was afternoon as he sat down. The silence and solitude folded him about, and the sun sank so fitly slow that he hardly knew, and the solemn night swept softly on. Then he built a little fire. * * * In the night, after many hours, he arose and lifted up his hands. * * * At the foot of the hill the pony stopped cropping grass, tossed his head, and looked up intently at the summit.

It was morning. The sun rose calm and strong. The solitary figure upon the hill sat motionless, looking out. There might have passed before him a perspective of the past, the Plains peopled with their former life; the oncoming of the white men from below; the remnant of the passing Latin race, typified in the unguided giant who, savage with savage, fought near by, one brutal force meeting another and both passing before one higher and yet more strong. To this watcher it seemed that he looked out from the halfway point of the nation, from the halfway house of a nation's irresistible development.

Franklin had taken with him a small canteen of water, but he thinking himself that as of old the young man beseeching his dream neither ate nor drank until he had his desire, he poured out the water at his side as he sat in the dark. The place was covered with small objects, bits of strewn shells and beads and torn "medicine bundles"—pieces of things once held dear in earlier minds. He felt his hand fall by accident upon some small object which had been whose smoke dipped and waned and caught him in its fold. In brief, he got into saddle and journeyed to the Hill of Dreams.

The Hill of Dreams dominated the wide and level landscape over which it had looked out through hundreds of slow, unnoted years. From it once rose the signal smokes of the red men, and here it was that many a sentinel had stood in long before a white trace was ever seen upon the Plains.

Here on the Hill of Dreams, whence the eye might sweep to the fringed sand hills on the south, east to the river many miles away, and north and west almost to the swell of the cold steppes that lead up to the Rocky Range, the red man had sometimes come to lay their leaders when their day of hunting and of war was over. Thus the place came to have extraordinary and mysterious qualities ascribed to it, on which account, in times gone by, men who were restless, troubled, disturbed, dissatisfied, came thither to fast and pray.

Hither they bore the great dead. It was upon the Hill of Dreams that his people buried White Wolf, the last great leader of the Plains tribes, who fell in the combat with the not less savage giant who came with the white men to hunt in the country near the Hill of Dreams. Since that time the power of the Plains tribes had waned, and they had scattered, and passed away. The swarming white men—Vigilantes, Vandals—had found out this spot for centuries held mysteriously dear to the fret peoples of that country. They tore open the graves, scattered the childlike emblems, picked up pieces of the little packages of furs and fawns, sifting at the "medicine" which in its time had meant so much to the man who had left it there.

Toward the Hill of Dreams Franklin journeyed, because it had been written. As he traveled over the long miles he scarcely noted the fields, the fences, the hedges and herds now clinging along the path of the iron rails. He crossed the trails of the departed buffalo and of the vanishing cattle. West his mind looked only forward, and he saw these records of the past but dimly. There, on the Hill of Dreams, he knew, there was answer for him. It he sufficiently sought; that answer not yet learned in all the varying days. He seemed sure to him that the should have a sign.

Franklin looked out over a deserted and solitary land as he rode up to the wetted by the wasted water. Later, in the crude light of the tiny flame which he had kindled, this lump of earth assumed, to his exalted fancy, the grim features of an Indian chieftain, wide-jawed, bearded, with low brow, great mouth, and lock of life's price hanging down the neck. All the fearlessness, the mournfulness, the mysticism of the Indian face was there. Franklin always said that he had worked at this unconsciously, kneading the lump between his fingers, and giving it no thought other than that it felt cooling to his hand and restful to his mind. Yet here, born ultimately of the travail of a higher mind, was a man from another time, in whose gaze sat the presence of a coming day. The past and the future thus were bridged, as may be done only by Art, the enduring, the uncalendared, the imperishable.

Edward Franklin, a light-hearted man, rode homeward happily. The past lay correlated, and for the future there were no longer any wonderings. His dream, devoutly sought, had given peace.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

At the Gateway.

In a certain old Southern city there stands, as there has stood for many generations, and will no doubt endure for many more, a lofty mansion whose architecture dates back to a distant day. Wide and spacious, with lofty stories, with deep eaves and many narrow windows, it rears far back among the ancient oaks, a stately memorial of a day when gentlemen demanded privacy and could afford it. From the iron pillars of the great gateway the white front of the house may barely be seen through avenues made by the trunks of the primeval grove. The tall white columns, reaching from gallery floor to roof without pause for the second lofty floor, give dignity to this old-time abode, which comports well with the untrimmed patriarchal oaks. Under these trees there lies, even to-day, a deep bluegrass turf which never, from the time of Boone till now, has known the touch of ploughshare or the tool of any cultivation.

It was the boast of this old family that it could afford to open a portion of the earth and own it as it came from the hand of Nature. Uncaught by the whirl of things, undisturbed essentially even by the tide of the civil war, this branch of an old Southern family had lived on in station unaffected, though with fortune perhaps impaired as had been those of many Southern families, including all the Beauchamp line.

To this strong haven of refuge had come Mary Ellen Beauchamp from the far-off Western plains, after the death of her other relatives in that venture so ill-starred. The white-haired old widow who now represented the head of the Clayton family—her kin somewhat removed, but none the less her "cousins," after the comprehensive Southern fashion—had taken Mary Ellen to her bosom, unbending her for ever dreaming of going into the barbarian West, and listening but little to the plea of the girl that poverty had driven her to the company of those who, like herself, were poor. Now, such had been the turn of the wheel, the girl was nearly as rich in money as her elder relative, and able to assume what little of social position there remained in her ambition.

Mary Ellen was now well past twenty-seven, a tall, matured, and somewhat sad-faced woman, upon her brow written something of the sorrows and uncertainties of the homeless woman, as well as the record of a growing self-reliance. If Mary Ellen were happy or not none might say, yet surely she was dutiful and kind; and gradually, with something of the leadership she had learned in her recent life, she slipped into practical domestic command of this quiet but punctilious ménage. By reason of an equal executive fitness Aunt Lucy rose in the kitchen also to full command. The Widow Clayton found her cousin Mary Ellen a stay and comfort, useful and practical to a degree unknown in the education of the Southern young lady of the time.

Of her life in the West Mary Ellen spoke but little, though never with harshness, and at times almost with wistfulness. Her history had seemed too full of change to be reality. For the future she made no plans. It seemed to her to be her fate ever to be an alien, a looker-on. The roses drooped across her lattice, and the blue grass stood cool and soft and deep beyond her window, and the kind air carried the croon of the wailing mocking bird; yet there persisted in her brain the picture of a wide, gray land, with the sound of an urgent wind singing in the short, tufted grasses, and the breath of a summons ever on the air. Out there upon the Plains it had been ever morning. Here life seemed ever sinking toward its eventide.

This old family and the family house were accepted unquestioningly by the quiet Southern community now, as they had ever been, as a part of the aristocracy of the land, and as appurtenances thereto. The way of life had little change. The same grooms led out the horses from the stables, the same slow figures cut the grass upon the lawn. Yet no longer were the doors thrown open upon a sea of light and color. The horses were groomed and broken, but they brought no great carriage of state sweeping up the drive between the lion-headed pillars of the gateway. When Mrs. Clayton feebly sought to propose brighter ways of life for the young woman, the latter told her gently that for her, too, life was planned and done, the struggle over, and that she only asked that she might rest, and not take up again any questions for readjustment.

"You will change after a while, honey," said her protectress; but Mary Ellen only smiled. It was enough to rest here in this haven, safe from the surging seas of doubt and hope and fear, of love and self-distrust. Let it be settled. Let it be ended. For her no cavalier should ever come riding up the graveled way, nor should lights ever set dancing again the shadows in the great dining hall over the heads of guests assembled in her honor. It was done—finished. And Mary Ellen was not yet twenty-eight.

JAPS GIVEN TO ATHLETICS.

From Early Infancy They are Trained to Develop Their Muscles.

Considering their size the Japanese are undoubtedly the strongest people in the world. Time and again these little brown men have demonstrated their ability to endure fatigues that would break down the most sinewy Europeans. In any Japanese town one cannot walk far without being confronted by athletes in one form or another. In the streets you can rarely escape the painted and gaudily dressed tots who turn baby hand-dresses, execute somersaults and do other infantile stunts in a wheeling effort to secure the "hairy foreigner's" wealth. A Japanese matsuri were not the fair it purports without the be-spangled tight-rope performance, the bamboo ladder climbing youngsters, the wrestlers, tumblers, sparsmen or fencers.

So deeply rooted is the native love for the strenuous life that the national sports of other lands have been tried in Japan. The minkado, with many of the imperial family, attends the annual spring races in Yokohama, but nothing in the line of imported sports so appeals to the Japanese as cycling and baseball. Cycling clubs are scattered all over the empire, thousands of American bicycles spin across the island and the foreigners experience difficulty in keeping even a few of the records and trophies out of native hands.

The Tokio baseball team is an efficient organization and it frequently drags the teams from other parts and cities. At the Yokohama cricket grounds excellent and sturdy contested games may be witnessed occasionally between the Tokio, native team and the Yokohama foreign organization.

Canadian Cheese in Great Britain.

Canadian cheese is apparently taking a very high place in the market of Great Britain. It long ago drove out American cheese, which had obtained a bad name from the amount of filled cheese that was sent from this country under the name of full cream cheese. Last year Canada supplied 68 per cent of all the cheese used in Great Britain, the money received from Canadians from this source being over $21,000,000. So much for honesty in a manufactured product. Legislation has much to do with the success of the business of a country, as is seen in the case in hand. When Americans were debating whether it was right to prohibit the making of filled cheese, Canada had already passed a law prohibiting the manufacture of a pound of that kind of cheese for any purpose. Some men said that it was tyrannical, but others said it was good business foresight. The money that has rolled into Canada since that time on account of its good cheese has proved that the legislation was the best kind of a business policy. After that time the United States passed a law making it practically impossible to manufacture filled cheese for sale in this country, but we still permit the manufacture of filled cheese for export to foreign countries. Some of our manufacturers are taking advantage of the law to make for English trade the same kind of cheese that lost us our trade in the first place. It goes out of the country properly branded, but it is very doubtful if it is retailed on the other side of the water as filled cheese.

Preservatives in Milk.

From Germany comes the report of the invention of a new milk preservative so powerful that it will destroy all bacteria in milk and will then dissipate itself in water, making it impossible for the chemist to discover its presence, especially if it has been kept a day or so before being tested. There is no doubt that if this preservative were introduced into this country it would have a ready sale with some of our milk handlers. Their policy has been to buy those preservatives that cannot be detected. First they were using borax in one form or another, but the chemist had no trouble in detecting that kind of a preservative. Then the users of preservatives changed to salicylic acid, but the chemist followed them. After that some one suggested that formaldehyde could not be detected and at once there was an enormous sale of this deadly chemical for the use of milk handlers. It took the chemists some time to find a way of detecting formaldehyde, but they did find a test in the end. Now the sellers of these compounds are looking for something else that can be used to mystify the chemists.

How many deaths have been caused by the use of these drugs in milk we will never be able to guess. What ever preservative is used in other food materials, none should be used in milk that has a harmful effect on the human system. We say harmful, because there are preservatives, like sugar and molasses, that are not in themselves harmful to the digestive systems. As yet many of our states have taken no action to prevent the use of preservatives in milk.

A Check on Siberian Butter.

During the last few years Siberian and Russian butter has become a very important factor in the European market. About 16,000 tons of Siberian butter went to England each of the recent years, and several thousand tons more to other European countries. It had been improving in quality to such an extent that it was proving a strong competitor to the butter made in Denmark, France and other countries. The Russian government was fostering this trade, going to the trouble of providing refrigerator steamers to carry the butter from Baltic ports to England. But now the outbreak of the war in the East has apparently paralyzed the whole trade, at least so far as Siberian butter is concerned. The government has found it necessary to use the Siberian railway almost exclusively for the transportation of troops and of army supplies. As it is a single-track road it does not require very much of a traffic to test its capacity. It is therefore very doubtful if the butter can at the present be shipped west. Perhaps the government will be able to take the entire output of the Siberian creameries for use in its Asiatic army; but in any event the butter must temporarily disappear from the English market.

Dairy Progress in Iowa.

The Agricultural College at Ames, Iowa, expects to have a new dairy building in the near future, the said building to cost about $75,000. The legislature is being asked to appropriate this sum to be expended as indicated. The legislature is also being asked for an additional $25,000 to be used in the purchase of land with the object of creating a first class dairy and poultry farm. As the attendance at the college increases the demand for milk becomes so great that little can be obtained for college use and experimentation.

Much depends in getting the dairy better in the habit of calving at the time of year when they will bring in the most profit.

ALL BUILT WITHOUT NAILS.

Peculiar Construction of Dwelling Houses in Burma.

In Burma a dwelling house is built without a nail. It is hung on four upright posts of teak or bamboo; seven or eight feet from the ground the planking of the floor is tied to the uprights with rattan; the walls are made of split bamboo plaited into beautiful and fanciful patterns. The roof consists of the leaves of the toddy palm, which have been soaked in salt water to make them insect-proof. There are no windows, but large flaps of the plaited bamboo walls are raised in the daytime to admit light and air. The house consists, in the case of the poor, of only one good-sized room, but when there are several chambers they lead off from the common room and are separated from it by partitions of plaited bamboo. These are generally raised one or two feet from the floor of the common room, but in no case is one floor above the other in a Burmese house, it being thought a great indignity to have any one's feet over one's head. The thatched roofs are highly inflammable and leaning against every thatched house may be seen a long hooked stick with which to pull off the roof should it catch fire.

Why War Has No Terrors.

The Japanese women are as active and strong as the men. An English writer on physical culture suggests that, this may account for the Jap's courage in war. After he has settled his domestic problems with a wife as muscular and agile as himself, war has no terrors for him.

The Doctors Failed.

Killgore, O., April 11.—A rather remarkable case has just come to light in this place. Mr. John T. Riegle had been suffering for some time with an aggravated form of kidney disease which had caused him a great deal of discomfort.

He tried the treatment of several doctors, but did not get any better. At last he chanced to read an advertisement of Dodd's Kidney Pills, a remedy which has been making many wonderful cures, and he bought some at once and began to use them. He says of the result:

"Dodd's Kidney Pills do just what they are advertised to do. I can praise them for the good they have done for me. They cured me completely after the doctors had failed and I wish that every poor sufferer could hear of them, for I know they will cure kidney trouble."

There seems to be no case of Kidney Trouble, Rheumatism or Backache that Dodd's Kidney Pills will not cure perfectly and permanently.

Penny Savings System.

FARM LANDS!

If you are looking for a home or an investment, do not forget that the best farm and timber lands in the Northwest are along the line of the Minneapolis & St. Louis R. R., where crop failures are unknown. Good soil, good climate, good people there. Farm values are rising rapidly and the time to buy is now.

Low excursion rates from points on the Iowa Central and Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroads, if you wish to investigate. For particulars address, A. B. CUTTS, G.P.A., Ia. Cent. and M. & St. L. R. Minneapolis, Minn.

Use Sulphur to Protect Vines.

All the large vineyard owners of California sulphur their vines as a protection against mildew and thrips. The method used is the sulphur balloons, which is so constructed that the operator can expel material without excess, thereby saving a large percentage. There is a receptacle on top of the bellows proper which is filled with powdered sulphur. A tube passes from the bellows through the sulphur to the lid. This tube has a cap which has four long holes cut in it and is kept on the tube by a little brass spring. When forcing air through, the tube lifts the cap up to the holes and forces the powdered sulphur out of the discharge tube.

Animal's Idea of Numbers.

Many animals have an idea of concrete numbers up to a few units and some go even farther. A dog which is accustomed to receive only three pieces of sugar will not ask for more after he has had his quota. In certain mines where horses are required to make thirty trips a day they walk at once to the stable after making the thirtieth trip. Montaigne tells of oxen employed in the royal gardens of Suza, that refused to perform more than their daily task of turning the great irrigation wheels through one hundred revolutions.

Origin of Eastern Navies.

Russia's navy had its origin in a boat which Queen Elizabeth sent to Ivan the Terrible, and with which later Peter the Great got the "sea crabs." Japan's first European type of ship was built by Adams, an Englishman. Holland and Denmark, however, did most of the training of the officers of Japan's modern fleet. Some of them, as is well known, were trained in the United States.

Seat of the Trouble.

A little Maine girl came to her mother one morning and said, "Mama, I don't feel very well." "Well, that's no bad," said mama, "where do you 'set the worst'?" "In school," was the prompt reply.

WOMEN BREAK DOWN.

Sometimes women drift into a condition of "half invalid." Constitutional languor, all tired out, run down, backache, nerves shattered, headaches, terrible pain, no appetite, poor digestion. In some cases out of ten it's because the kidneys fail to do their work of filtering the poisonous system waste from the blood. The kidneys are weak and need the strengthening help of Doan's Kidney Pills. Read how these pills repair a weakened physical condition when this condition is caused by sick kidneys: Mrs. Sadie Mettles of 384 W. 4th Ave., Columbus, Ohio, says: "Prior to the year 1898 I suffered considerably from backache, pain in the head, languor and depression and weakness of the action of the kidney. The pain was always worse in the morning, and I felt miserable. I was induced to procure a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and I began their use. They proved prompt and effective. They cured me and there has been no return of the trouble since taking them. I owe all the credit to Doan's Kidney Pills."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Mettles will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale at all druggists, price 50 cents per box.

BLOOD AS A FERTILIZER.

Gave Renewed Life to Tree That Was Fast Dying.

For several seasons a very ancient walnut, with long, gaunt boughs carrying much dead wood, had been struggling to live, but each year manifested signs that its life was fast disappearing. The keeper in front of whose house the tree stood took to slinging the carcass of each deer he killed over one of its boughs for dressing. During the process all the blood dripped on the ground and was absorbed. The following spring this tree put forth an astonishing crop of leaves, and in less than three seasons it was making new wood and showing all the vigor which had characterized it thirty years before. Its renewed youth was entirely attributable to the fertilizing properties of the blood with which it had been so liberally dressed.—Country Gentleman

Where Four States Meet.

The only place in the world where four states, territories or provinces join, is where the boundary lines of Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Arizona meet. It is the only "four corners" combination of political divisions of the kind on earth, and the United States has marked the place with a stone monument, the names of the four divisions being inscribed on the shaft. The spot is in the heart of a country once densely populated by cliff-dwellers, and access to it is so difficult that few tourists make their way there. Mancos, Colo., is the nearest railroad town, and it is one hundred miles distant. Were it not for the boulders lying about a wagon could be set down with each wheel in a different state.

ARMY TRIALS.

An Infantryman's Long Slogs.

This soldier's tale of food is interesting. During his term of service in 17th Infantry in Cuba and Philippines, an Ohio soldier boy contracted a disease of the stomach and bowels which all army doctors who treated him pronounced incurable, but which Grape-Nuts food alone cured.

"In October, '89, when my enlistment expired, I was discharged from the army at Calulut, Philippines, and returned to the States on the first available steamer that left Manila. When I got home I was a total wreck physically and my doctor put me to bed saying he considered me the worst broken-down man of my age he ever saw and after treating me 6 months he considered my case beyond medical aid.

"During the fall and winter of 1900 and '01 I was admitted to the Barnes Hospital in Washington, D. C., for treatment for chronic inflammation of the stomach and bowels but after 8 months returned home as bad as ever. "I continued taking medicine until February, 1902, when reading a newspaper one day I read about Grape-Nuts and was so impressed I sent out for a package right away.

"The result is quickly told for I have used Grape-Nuts continually ever since with the best results, my health is so I can do a fair day's hard work, stomach and bowels are in good condition, have gained 40 pounds in weight and I feel like a new man altogether.

"I owe my present good health to Grape-Nuts beyond all doubt for medical science was exhausted." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Had he consulted any one of several thousand physicians we know they would have prescribed Grape-Nuts immediately.

Michigan University Day at the Exposition.

June 24th has been set aside by the authorities of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition as "University of Michigan Day." The influence of this University in the development of the Louisiana Purchase territory has been extensive. The University of Michigan was the forerunner, and in numerous respects the model, of the state universities that are a peculiar feature of education in the West as distinguished from the East. Through the teachers, physicians, engineers, lawyers, or other graduates there is no western state, perhaps not a western country, that has not within it a Michigan graduate or non-graduate former student. The influence of the alumni of the law department is especially noticeable.

The University of Michigan Day at St. Louis is intended of course for former students of Michigan, wherever they may now reside. Suitable exercises will be held during the day. Further information can be secured, as plans are developed, either of the Secretary of the Alumni Association, Ann Arbor, Mich., or of the chairman of the special committee, Mr. Sim T. Price, Security Bldg., St. Louis.

TREE OF GARDEN OF EDEN.

Natives Believe It Grows in Island of Ceylon.

In Ceylon grows a tree called "Eve's Apple Tree." It is the fruit of this tree which makes it remarkable. It is a beautiful fruit to look at, deep red on the inside and orange on the outside, and out of each fruit a piece appears to have been bitten.

The simulation of a fruit which has recently been bitten into is perfect. You can see the very marks of the teeth, and anyone not knowing the facts would be deceived.

For this reason, and because the fruit is a deadly poison, the natives declare that the tree is that which grew in the Garden of Eden and was called the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil.

After Eve ate of the fruit, and thus brought death and sin into the world, the fruit assumed the appearance it has now, as a perpetual reminder of her rash and disobedient act.

WHY IT WASN'T LEGAL.

Students' Flippant Answer That Was the Actual Truth.

In the New York law school at a recent lecture on the making of wills the case of a woman in one of Rider Haggard's books was cited. The woman had a man's will inscribed in ink on her back. And the will was held regular and legal because it had been made in writing.

After giving this practical illustration the professor called on John Smith, saying:

"Is a will so inscribed regular and legal, in your opinion?"

"No," answered Smith.

"Why not?" asked the professor.

"Because it's a skin game," replied Smith.

The professor felt angry enough to order Smith out of the room, but the class laughed so much that he decided to overlook the student's flippancy.—New York Press.

The Heart That Knows.

See the cherry blossoms whiten all the way.
Locusts swing their censurs, jonquils glow with light.
High the plumes of lilac in the south wind sway:
Roseate as the peach blossom comes the Day from Night.

See the tender oak leaves, weaving in the sun
Lace work of their shadows on the sheep-cropped grass.
Can there be another when this day is done?
Hold O, heart, and grasp it—do not let it pass!

Yet, O, love, you tell me: "All the days shall shine
If we meet them loving: lilac, cherry, rose."
Have a constant message for your heart and mine
Have a constant message for the heart that knows.

"To each heart that knows, love, in the kind earth lies
The force that tints the aster or turns the rose to fire.
A hidden flame and subtle which never, never dies.
A changeless flame that burns, love, for the world's desire."
—Maurice Francis Egan, in Smart Set.

Medicinal Value of Fish Oil.

The Welsh consider the oil from the liver of the sting ray to be good for burns and other wounds, while the Norwegians use the oil from the liver of the king of herrings (chimæra monstrosa) for treating some disorders of the eyes. The latter is also said to be good for all wounds and bruises. The oil of the turbot is considered a good external remedy for swellings, while the ball is said to be excellent for affections of the eyes. The oil from the liver of many fishes is used medicinally, the more notable examples being the cod and the oolachan, or candlefish, of the Pacific coast.

Developing Her "Ego."

The modern girl talks glibly about her "personality" and spends a great deal of time, she will tell you, in "developing" it, though she has only the vaguest idea what is meant by the process. "What are you going to do now you are grown up?" asked an elderly maiden aunt of a niece who had just emerged from the schoolroom. "I am going to cultivate my ego," was the composed reply of the debutante.—"A Countess" in the London Outlook.

Not True to Life.

One of the leading portrait painters of London had sittings not long ago from a lady of wit and fashion. Her husband, a peer, went to see the portrait when it was finished, and was asked by the artist to give his opinion of it. He was not an art critic, and he replied quite innocently, looking first at the lady and then at the portrait: "It is very good; it is excellent; but I think there is a little too much repose about the mouth."

Prima Donna Auctioned.

For the paltry sum of $32 a prima donna once famous was recently sold at auction in London. True, the singer died centuries ago, and it was only her mummy that the purchaser obtained. A faint hieroglyphic inscription on the mummy showed that the singer had held a leading position in the Temple of Ammon, where in old days the masterpieces of Egyptian music were performed.—New York Herald.

Altitude and Voice.

Generally speaking, races living at high altitudes have weaker and more highly-pitched voices than those living in regions where the supply of oxygen is more plentiful. Thus, in America, among the Indians living on the plateau between the ranges of the Andes, at an elevation of from 10,000 feet to 14,000 feet, the men have voices like women, and women like children, and their singing is a shrill monotone.

98 IN EVERY 100

The medical societies of the world disclose the astounding truth that 98 persons in every 100 suffer from some form of Kidney and Bladder Trouble, or some irregularity, disorder or symptom of those terrible diseases.

These are vital facts—facts which should appeal to you and be given your immediate and deepest thought. Think of it, only two persons in every hundred free from these diseases.

Ninety-eight persons in every hundred drifting on to the dire consequences which always follow these subtle and serious afflictions unless their development be checked at once. Nature is trying to warn you—we ask you to heed its warning before it is too late. You need not suffer longer—you can be cured. Don't delay another day. Attend to this at once.

It kills disease germs of every kind and fortifies the system against them. It tones up, renews and invigorates the entire body. It is purely vegetable, perfectly harmless and leaves no disastrous "after-effects."

Cured by Dr. Gossom's Kidney and Bladder Cure After Doctors and Other Medicines Had Failed.

I had been suffering for the past ten months with pains in my back and stiff joints. I could get no relief from medicine. I tried many doctors and used many medicines. I am happy and thankful to say that three boxes of Dr. Gossom's Kidney and Bladder Cure positively cured me. I can always cheerfully speak a good word for this wonderful remedy.
