Ex-President Classland, during his ojourn in New Hampshire the ummer, attended divine service in a chapel unique on an island in pictur-esque Lake Asquam.

Eighteen or twenty years ago Ernest Balch, who was then a student at Harvard college, conceived the idea of a summer athletic school for boys, and chose the island itentioned as the location. "Camp Chocorus" was there established, and had a very successful existence for a decade, being the plo-neer of the large number of such schools now in existence.

There was provided a chapel, original in conception with Mr. Balch. Its walls were the environing trees of the forest. Its ceiling was the everchanging sky. Rustic seats were built for choir and congregation. The most prominent feature was a mas-sive stone altar, surmounted by a heavy stone cross.

This chapel was at the eastern end of the island, and there the members of the camp, numbering half a hundred, would gather regularly every Sunday, whenever the weather permitted, for divine services the name of a mousand pigeons and which was conducted by a woman who had formerly been a bookkeeper in Philadelphia, was found one par-ticular fly and coop which was the abiding place of young doves that had reached the mating season, says the Era Magazine. These young birds were associated together so that they might select their life companions.

The interior of the walls of the coop was filled with boxes and those pigeons which had mated would select one of these boxes for their home and nest:

This period of courtship is one filled with excitement for the birds. Two young pigeon cocks, having selected the same hen for a mate, have been known to fight to the death in their rivalry. The method of combat is peculiar. The beak and wings alone are used, the combatants catching each other with their beaks by the

The occasional instances of infidelity cause discord in the coop, for when one pigeon tires of his mate and seeks another he meets a vigorous protest from the companion of the bird which he covets. When they have agreed to spend their lives together Mr. and Mrs. Dove select a box and the laying begins. The parent birds may then be less than eight months old.

The pigeon's worst enemy is the rat In the absence of the mother or the father bird, the rat will crawl into a nest, steal a young squab, drag it bod ily away and devour it. So a good cat is a necessity in a pigeon coop-s cat that is taught not to disturb the pigeons, but to be death to rats. Mice are a pest smong the pigeons, too but they eat only the grain, not dis-

The Lapham Store Burglars Caught.

The burglary of A. J. Lapham's atore a week ago Sunday night is cleared up. The Mail stated last week that suspicion rested on certain persons. (These suspicions were made a certainty and culminated in the arrest by Marshal Brown of Eldredge Hall, and Elmore Shippey of Plymouth and Lewis Yager and Otto Jahn of Detroit.

All the boys are under 16 years except Jahn. The ringleader of the affair was young Hall, who is a nephew of Mr. Lapham and had been employed in the store. The boys were brought before Justice Valentine Wednesday afternoon, Truant Officer Lawrence and a member of the prosecuting attorney's office appearing for the defense and the prosecution.

The original complaint against the boys stated that goods to the value of $30 had been stolen. This would have made it a circuit court case. Mr. Lapham, however, made a statement that he believed the goods were, not worth over $25 and a new complaint to that effect was made, the boys being discharged on the first. Young Shippey was not included in the last complaint. Under the law the boys could not plead guilty and neither could the court try the case. A jury was therefore the case. A jury was therefore empanelled and the case wroceeded with. No evidence was given except that of Mr. Lapham and that of the boys, who owned up the whole affair. After all had been examined the jury retired case for the case wroceeded with joyed a test this week.

The English III, have just been taught how to master the art of candy-eating and are daily using their knowledge effectively. for a few moments and then brought in a verdict of guilty. Mr. Lawrence HOLIDAYS. stated to the court that nothing else could be done with the two boys under 16 and recommended that they be sent to the Reform School until they arrive at the age of 17, and that inasmuch as Jahn. who is over 16, had been led into the affair by Hall, the court might im-pose a sentence of $10 fine or 30 days in the house of correction. Justice Valentine acted accordingly. The mother of the Jahn boy paid the fine and took her son away. Mrs. Yager was also present and pleaded with the officers of the law to allow her to pay a fine, but they were powerless to do anything for him. Young Hall acted in the spirit of a bravado and took his sentence undinchingly. His father was present, but had nothing to say.

It developed before the trial began that Elmore Shippey was not with the boys when the burglary took place but that he received a part of the stolen goods after they reached Detroit and which consisted of an overcoat. warrant charging him with receiving stolen property was sworn out and his trial will take place next Wednesday. Young Hall said he took the horse of Mr. Blount out of the Presbyterian church sheds. He engineered the whole job and led the other boys in with him

Mr. Ward, of Aun Arbor, a promotor of electricity, was in town Monday. Mr. Ward still has hopes of supplying Plymouth and a number of other towns with electricity for power and lighting purposes. As was stated in The Mail sometime ago he expects to erect a plant near Hamburg. The council members are favorably impressed with his proposition and may accept same. The village will be able to furnish current much cheaper to consumers besides saving in expenses. Of course the home plant would be left idle. Mr. Ward interviewed many of our business mey who also seem to be favorably impressed with the proposition he makes.

It was the old dame. I waited un-til she hebbled near, thinking the damsel had sent a message. I was mistaken. It was more jollity the lady wished.

"Take your fish, my Lord of the World," the nurse mumbled from between loose teeth, as she held out the basket of trout I had "left on the grass. "I'll answer for it that ye'll get ne'er bite nor sup to-day but these same, my Lord-my Lord Fishmong-

Then she cacchinated, echoed in the woods by a fresh young voice. Milady was enjoying herself immensely.

Such had been my meeting with Mistress Rosemary Allyn.

I laughed now as I recalled it. Mistress Rosemary Allyn thought me a boor, and because I dressed as the villagers, that I needs must be one of them. 'Sdeath! she might have seen with half an eye, had she not been so engrossed in her own little tempest, that my kerseymere was of the finest, and my linen heins from the finest, and my linen being from the hand loom to Nance was of as sheer a texture as any to be had in London, aye, or even Paris. Again, I laughed as I looked abroad. For as far as eye could see from the emi-nence we were upon, I looked upon any own land.

CHAPTER III.

We reached a point where two roads met. I took the lower one, tell-ding Gil that I should be home anon. Inclination and desire to again see Mistress Rosemary Allyn pulled my horse's bridle reins in the direction of Castle Drout

"London of course—London the home of handsome women and gallant men. "Whereabouts in London?" I per

"Seek and ye shall find," she briefly answered.

'If I should wish to see the maid,' I said, and I gave her a glance meant to be most taking, "where shall I find

"Seek her, too, and ye shall find," she said smiling audaciously. "But would you not like to see the bird's cage—I mean the Castle?"

I acquiesced and followed her for very idleness I think, through the portals into the house. We passed many rooms of old and quaint furnishings. We came to the end of a long hall in a wing separated from the rest.

She threw open a door in a mysterious, sly manner, and said in a raised voice while her eyes were de-murely dropped:

"The mistress's."

The room was daintiness itself in its extreme femininity, albeit the bed was disarranged as if milady had but just arisen. Lace fine as cobwebs was valanced about bed and dressing table. The table was bare of any toilet articles, save a box or two, but many silken bows stuck here and there filled up the barreness, and gave a touch of beauty to the whole. A large roomy chair of blue and white damask, an immense divan upholstered in the same material, with a few spindle legged chairs was about all the room contained. Such daintiness, such femininity

I came near the castle. It loomed atill and quaint as a deserted house. I got off my horse and left him to graze. I sat down on a bowlder not many yards from its postern gate. I supposed I was hidden from the eyes of its inhabitants, yet from my place of yantage could see if perchance any of vantage could see if perchance any of vantage could see if perchance any one either emerged or went in through the narrow portals of the gate. I had not been there many minutes siting with my chin resting upon my hands, when a voice said:
"What need to watch the cage when the bird has flown away?"

was the wierdest place; people came upon one without a sound.

I started and my face flushed.

Quickly I assumed an indifferent air. for one does not care to wear one's heart upon one's sleeve for daws to heart upon one's sleeve for daws to peck at, and certainly this was a daw — most pert one—that stood beside me. It was a red-haired maid with most pert one—that me. It was a rechaired maid with bold black eyes, which peered saucily into mine who had spoken. She was capped, aproned, and had all the other accessories that go to make up the riollet of a fashionable lady's maid.

"Bird? What bird, my pretty maid?" I asked. "As if the gentleman did not know?"

"I know that you're a deucedly pretty one," I affirmed, and I kissed

"Oh, lud!" she cried, with a moci

moved me like new made wine. grew hot for shamefacedness at my self—an intruder—going there. 1 turned away, but not before I had caught sight of a pale blue satin slipper hiding under a frail chair. To see was to desire—to desire was to obtain. But how? All sorts of ludi-crous ideas flashed upon me as a means of becoming the owner of that crumpled slipper. The maid-most acute observer-divined my thoughts ere I had time to say a word.

"Pretty, is it not?" she laughed.
"Pretty, indeed," I admitted, admiring her cunning.

"What will ye pay for it?" she asked.

"What you will," I replied, delighted at being able to gain possession so easily.

"A sovereign, please sir-" she said I put my hand into my pocket and drew out the gold piece. I passed it into her greedy palms—fat pink palms. Evidently Mistress Rosemany Allyn did not work her maid to the spoiling of her hands.

I picked up the slipper, and before I put it away balanced it lightly upon the tips of my fingers, while I yet stayed to banter the pretty maid, even to pinch her saucy cheeks.

I had my back to the door. The woman faced it. I read in the steady-ing of her too heavily bowed cupids lips that some one stood in its en-trance. I turned, and saw a youth beside whose beauty the bold dash of the maid's faded as the lesser beauty must always before the greater when brought together. He looked not more han sixteen. He was blue-eved, rave wigged, and as exquisitely appointed as a court beauty. Venetian lace fell over his jeweled fingers—ribbons knotted his low shoes. From his wrist a pouncet ball dangled and wafted all the odors of Arabja. He was a dazzling sight to behold.

"Mistress Rosemary's brother!" gasped the maid, and then she flopped

He stenned to the wall and took rapier from the rack hanging there. He held it out hilt to hilt with the one that he had, measuring them.

I intended to lesson him quickly and have done with the business, which conferred no honor upon me. Back and forth we swept. I would not forget he was her brother! I soon found that his slender wrists were like steel, and that he was as agile as a cat. I was warm parrying his dexterous thrusts and sought an opportunity to end the affair with as little harm as I could; but fighting gets into the blood when you have a bright point before you, and we both fought as though we loved it. I had him against the wall—he was Strange as it may seem, a drink can be made from sawdust. Here is the recipe:

Two tons of sawdust are boiled with sulphuric acid for three hours, the liquid matter then extracted by pressure, neutralized, left for eighteen hours to cool and clarify, and then fermented for four or five days.

The resulting alcohol is afterward distilled and rectified, but a yield of about nine and one half quarts of spirit to every hundred weight of sawdust is obtained. Quantities of this are consumed in France.

Habits of the Flounder

The expression "as flat as a fluonder" has become proverbial, but it does not apply to very young flourders, which differ so much from the adult ones that they can hardly be recognized as belonging to the same family as their parents. Most boys and girls are familiar with full-grown flounders, but very few of them, and few older people, know anything about the appearance of young flounders and the wonderful transformations they undergo.

The flounders begin life as do ordinary fishes. When they first emerge from the egg they swim vertically, with the head turned upward. Their bodies are symmetrical and their eyes are on opposite sides of the head. Gradually the position of the head. the body changes from vertical to horithe body changes from vertical to norizontal, and the fish remains thus for some time, swimming like ordinary fishes; but while still very small there is foreshadowing of the bottom life they are destined for, and they enter upon a series of remarkable changes. The most striking of these changes is in the position of the eye. In some flounders the eye moves around the front of the head; in others it moves directly through the head. This shifting of the eye's position is accom-panied by a change in the position of the body, which ceases to be upright and becomes more and more oblique. The side of the body from which the eye is moving gradually becomes in-ferior to the other, until by the time the change of the eye is complete the fish swims with its blind side underneath, and this position is ever after maintained. The flounder then ceases its free swimming habit and sinks to the bottom.

Danger in "Big" Shooting

The disturbing element in hunting elephant or seladang or rhino has been always, to me at least, the feeling of uncertainty as to whether or not I could stop the animal if I wounded it and it charged me, as it did on an average of once in three times.

Based on my experience, therefore, I should place the elephant first and the rhino third after the seladang, which is fully as formidable as the Cape buffalo, and is miscalled the bison all over India Each of these animals is dangerous on different and animals is dangerous on different and individual grounds; the elephant, though less likely to charge than any of the others, is terrifying because of his enormous strength, which stops at no obstacle, and the extreme difficulty of reaching a vital spot, especi-any if, with trunk tightly coiled, he is coming your way.

I know of no sensation more awe-

smashing his way in your direction

The seladang is dangerous, partly because of the thick jungle he seeks when wounded, but more especially because of his tremendous vitality and his usual, though not invariable, habit of awaiting the hunter on his tracks, and charging suddenly, swiftly and viciously. It requires close and hard shooting to bring down ane of these six-foot specimens of Oriental cattle

The danger of the tiger and of the lion is in their lightning activity and ferocious strength; but you have the shoulder in addition to the nead shot, if broadside; or if coming on, the chest, all sure to stop if well placed. The reason the rhino is so formidable is because its vulnerable spots are so hard to reach.

Its brain is as small in proportion as that of the elephant, and may be reached through the eye, if head on some than standing ankle deep in or about three inches below and just clinging mud in dense cover, with the jungle crashing around you as though the entire forest was toppling, as the

Sea Water Good Bottled

"I have never understood," said a doctor, "why somebody didn't bottle the Atlantic ocean and sell the water

under a fine name as a mineral water
"The water of the Atlantic contains ome of the most wholesome mineral salts and has a decided value medicinally. Some of my patients keep it on hand much of the time, and profess to find it vastly beneficial.

"One of these men gets the sea water several miles off shore and at high tide so as to be reasonably sure that it is free from pollution. He botties it in good-sized demijohns, and lets it ripen much as the famous juni-per water of the Dismal Swamp is ripened for carrying to sea on board

"Did you ever smell any of those Kentucky sulphur waters after they have lain barreled in a cellar for a few weeks? The odor is pretty bad, but it isn't worse than that of ripening

"When you take out the cork the whole household knows it. After while the sea water loses its offensiv smell and then it is ready for use.

"I thoroughly like it, and if I in the habit of doing things that lead men to drink mineral waters before breakfast I think I'd prefer plain Atlantic water to a good many that I could name which sell at pretty high

"I don't know whether my patients have ever calculated the cost of bot-tled Atlantic, but if the bottling was done wholesale instead of retail it ought not to come very high, and it is certainly one thing that no trust could ever monopolize. I've a notion that the fellow who first puts up sea water in an attractive form and gets the attention of the public will make a handsome little fortune before his competitors can cut in and un or outsevertise him."-New York Sun.

ard of His Cwn. From the top of a mountain you can see into the valley around about-your horizon is very broad, and you can distinguish the details that it encompasses; but, from the valley, you cannot see the top of the mountain, and your horizon is limited, says Annie Payson Call in Leslie's Monthly.

This fillustrates truly the breadth and power of wholesome human sympathy. With a real love for human nature if a man has a clear, high standard of his own—a standard which he does not attribute to his own intelligence his understanding of the lower stand-ards of other men will also be very clear, and he will take all sorts and conditions of men into the region within the horizon of his mind. Not nily that, but he will recognize the fact when the standard of arother man is higher than his own, and will be ready to ascend at once when he becomes aware of a higher point of view.
On the other hand, when selfishness is sympathizing with selfishness, there is no ascent possible, but only the one little low place limited by the personal selfish interests of those concerned.

In this instance, as often, His Satanic Majesty proved a good guide to riches. Recently workmen were pa pering a wall in an old house at Per pignon, in the south of France. Music-Charmed Water Interesting experiments showing the influence of a tuning fork on jets of water have recently been made at the Royal College of Science in Dublin. A jet of falling water consists ordinarily jet of falling water consists or the of two parts—a clear column and a troubled portion. When the troubled part is photographed, with the aid of that it emits resembles that of a little the electric spark, it is seen to be composed of a succession of drops following one another too rapidly to be separately perceived by the eye These drops are irregular in size.

Let all your things have their level and the seen restricted the second of the s shape and distance from one another But if a vibrating tuning-fork is placed in contact with the stand from which the jet starts, the drops fall into order with beautiful precision, a drop being cast off with each vibration. Many remarkable effects may be produced. A continuous jet may be thrown into a form like that of a vibrating string.

RAPID SPREAD OF PLANTS.

Seize Wide Stretches of Land in Glorious Profusion

It is marvelous how rapidly some plants will spread themselves over wide stretches of land, says Long-man's Magazine. The writer was struck with the way in which the yel low charlock took possession of the line when the Meon Valley railway was being made a few years ago. The very next spring after the embankvery next spring after the embank-ments were thrown up their sides were clothed with this rampant and conspicuous crueifier. A line of yel-low across the country marked in many places the course of the railway. Poppies, too, for some unknown rea-sony will occasionally appear in strange and wonderful profusion. The striking instance related by Lord Ma-cathay may be quoted by way of illus-tration. After the batte of Landen the ground, he tells us, "during many months was strewn with skulls and bones of men and horses, and with fragments of hats and shoes, saddles and holsters. The next summer, the soil, fertilized by twenty thousand corpses, broke forth into millions of Poppies, too, for some unknown rea corpses, broke forth into millions of poppies."

Memories of Lady Tennyson. Shortly after Lady Tennyson's mar-riage one of her women friends wrote the following: "We would find Mrs. Tennyson alone in the large drawing room-always writing-arrayed in a room—always writing—arrayed in a dress of soft gray merino trimmed with velvet or fur, and with a long train, a piece of rich old lace, worn instead of a cap, drooping over her hair behind and coming to a point in front. She was extremely kind in lending us books; among these I particularly romember Eighte's philosophe. ticularly remember Fichte's philosoph ical works, which she admired greatly Her manner was always most graciou and dignified—perhaps rather languid, but this arose chiefly from lack of vi-tality or physical strength."

I have spent twelve years at the niversity of Cambridge and nine University University of Cambridge and nine years of this period I have spent in teaching. I have always found that the fool at sports is the fool at books. Conversely, the good athlete is also a good student. The explanation is perfectly simple. A man or woman with out brains cannot learn anything. They will be as great fools at games as they are fools at study.—Letter in London Mail.

ture is printed above, and Miss Claussen, prove beyond question that thousands of cases of inflammation of the ovaries and womb are annually cured by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Dean Mrs. Pinkham:—Gradual loss of strength and nerve force told me something was radically wrong with me. I had severe shooting pains throught the pelvic organs, cramps and extreme irritation compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor said that I had ovarian trouble and ulceration, and advised an operation. I strongly objected to this and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon found that my judgment was correct, and that all the good things said about this medicine were true, and day by day I felt less pain and increased appotite. The ulceration soon healed, and the other complications disappeared and in eleven weeks I was once more strong and vigorous and perfectly well.

"My heartiest thanks are sent to you for the great good you have done me."—Sincorely yours, Miss Margaret Merkley, 275 Third St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Miss Claussen Saved from a Surgical Operation.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—It seems to me that all the endorsements that I have read of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound do not expressone-half of the virtue the great medicine really possesses. I know that it saved my life and I want to give the credit where it belongs. I suffered with ovarian trouble for five years, had three operations and spent hundreds of dollars on doctors and medicines but this did not cure meatter all.

However, what doctors and medicines failed "However, what doctors and medicines failed to do, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did. Twenty bottles restored me to perfect health and I feel sure that had I known of its value before, and let the doctors alone, I would have been spared all the pain and expense that fruitless operations cost me. If the women who are suffering, and the doctors do not help them, will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, they will not be disappointed with the results."—

The hue and cry maue over the misdoings of Coroner Hoffman seems to be gradually subsiding. A great effort was made to have him indicted by the U. S. grand jury and it was the inten tion to have him tried in the U.S. court first as being more likely to be expeditious. But this case for some reason, was side tracked and now Hoff man is to be tried first in the Record er's court, the date set being tomorrow Ten chances to one Hoffman will es cape entirely and take the office of sheriff to which he was elected on January 2nd. That's the way it lock now. The politicians apparently see they made a mistake when the coroner's graft was allowed to be aired.

Horton For Primary Reform.

In his address to the 400 delegates of the thirty second annual session of the Michigan State Grange, at Lansing Tuesday, Worthy Master George B Horton of Fruit Ridge declared that not only were they to register the will of the entire membership on the questions of Grange usage, but, to discuss and proclaim upon various matters of public opinion being one of the chief duties of the Grange.

In the discussion of public affairs Mr Horton, who was a primary reform candidate for the nomination for gov ernor, but who supported the Republican nominee, says that the question of direct nominations has been forced upon the non-office holding public by the over-aggressive and often self dis covered aspirants for public place "through methods so wrong, so disgraceful and so disfranchising, yet so well known to all that it is not neces sary to enumerate them here. Can uses and conventions as managed to day do not represent the people. The direct nominations plan seems to be the best way out of the serious difficulyet been presented in opposition.

said, "became pledged to a general law, one by party platform, and the other by public promise to endorse the other by public promise to endorse the conclusions of the legislature on the subject. This placed the matter in a position that whichever party should win, the passage of a direct nominating bill, such as the members of the legislature have pledged the Grange legislative committee to pass, was assured. It may be truly stated at this time that the people now hold the governor-elect responsible for the securing of the law."
