can safely say just what kind of weather we're going to have during the next three months. It's a safe guess, however, that it will not be of the summery kind, and it's an equally safe guess that most of us in the meantime are going to have "Colds." Have you a bottle of

"COUGH-KILLER"

in the house? It costs only 15 cents, but it's worth its weight in gold.

Miss Lillian Lawrence who is working west of Plymouth was home Sunday and Monday.

Miss Grace Edwards visited with Miss Edith Lyle Sunday.

Miss Sarah Schultz is visiting her aunt Mrs. Fred Schultz.

The meetings which were being held at the M. E. church closed last Friday evening.

Miss Lizzie Theuer and brothers Fred and Carl visited with Miss Amy Foster Tuesday evening.

The Ladies Aid was held at Mr. and Mrs. Albert Stephenson it was well attended.

A Life at Stake.

If you but knew the splendid merit of Foley's Honey and Tar you would never be without it. A dose or two will prevent an attack of pneumonia or la grippe. It may save your life. Sold by The Wolverine Drug Co.

ELM.

Chas. Ranks recently had a narrow escape from what may have proven a fatal accident. While engaged hauling gravel out of Wm. Rosenberg's creek, and having a cavity of about ten feet underneath a hard, frozen crust of two foot thickness, it suddenly came down on him, but fortunately and singular as it may seem, split in the center and covering Charles up to his neck, just leaving the head to protrude, which he says would have resembled an Indian wigwam if his picture had been taken.

A number from here attended the annual meeting of the German Lutheran church society at Clarenceville on Saturday last.

Will Rattenbury has hauled and loaded ten cars of fine oak ship timber out of Chas. Goers's woods, which he sold recently to Mr. Fogarty.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Shaw will leave for California the coming week, where they intend to remain until spring.

Pneumonia and La Grippe.

Coughs cured quickly by Foley's Honey and Tar. Refuse substitutes. Sold by The Wolverine Drug Co.

NEWBURG.

Senator Chas. Smith called on friends here Monday.

Mrs. Robinson, of Detroit called on friends here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Fish and son, of Ogemaw county, visited friends here last week. They sold their farm to Otto Schwochow, of Detroit.

Mrs. Jas. Norris is quite sick yet.

Mrs. Withie, of Ypsilanti, visited Mrs. W. LeVan last week.

Mrs. Jas. LeVan is at Wayne caring for the sick.

Jas. Rawson was quite sick last week.

The annual installation of J. and A. Ryder Corps, No. 84, was held Saturday, Jan. 7th, 1905, at Newburg hall and the following officers were installed:

Pres.—Emma Ryder
S. V. P.—Mary King
J. V. P.—Naoma Barrows
Treas.—Viola Bassett
Sec'y.—Katie Sackett
Chaplain—Anna Farwell
Guard—Fancy Peterhans
Com.—Nelle Grovsteen.

An oyster dinner was served at 1:30 p. m. Our visitors were Mrs. Babbitt, State Pres. of W. R. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence, of Northville, Mr. and Mrs. Lossee, of Stark, C. Ryder and Mrs. Ambler of Northville, who did the installing work for the W. R. C., Chas. Westfall of Belleville doing the work for the G. A. R. After the installing Mrs. Ambler was presented with a beautiful fruit dish as a token of love from the Corps and Post.

In Bed Four Weeks with la Grippe.

We have received the following letter from Mr. Roy Kemp, of Angola, Ind.: "I was in bed four weeks with la grippe and I tried many remedies and spent considerable for treatment with physicians, but I received no relief until I tried Foley's Honey and Tar. Two small bottles of this medicine cured me and now I use it exclusively in my family." Take no substitutes. Sold by The Wolverine Drug Co.

LIVONIA CENTER.

A general western hazzard stuck us Tuesday and is still here and looks as if it had come to stay.

Almost everybody has a hard cold. Some twenty-five children and grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Garbow, Sr., planned a surprise on the latter Sunday, as it was her birthday. All had a nice time and Mrs. Garbow received a very nice present in the shape of a set of furs from her children.

Report says John Mau will erect a new house just east of his father's on the Center road, for his daughter.

Mrs. Charles Greenlaw is a great sufferer with blood poison, caused from a sliver in her thumb.

George Creiger is about to move to the city.

Elmer Haberson's people moved to the city Tuesday.

J. M. Peck is quite sick with lagrippe.

Spotted Her Beauty.

Harriet Howard, of 209 W. 34th St., New York, at one time had her beauty spoiled with skin trouble. She writes: "I had salt rheum or eczema for years, but nothing would cure it until I used Bucklen's Arnica Salve." A quick and sure healer for cuts, burns and sores. 25c at The Wolverine Drug Co.'s and John L. Gale's.

TONGUISH

Geo. Eish has been confined to the house with a heavy cold.

Mrs. H. L. Read celebrated her 68th birthday on Monday in the usual way. Quite a gathering of relatives were present. A good dinner was served and all wished her many more returns of the day.

O. Trowbridge and wife, of Dearborn, were calling on relatives here Sunday and Monday.

Mr. Kruger, an old resident of Tonguish, died at the home of his son Lewis at the good old age of 83. The funeral was held at the house on Tuesday of last week and interment took place in Wayne cemetery.

The H. H. society held a short but interesting meeting with Mr. and Mrs. James King. The word for roll call in February is "Now." Adjourned to meet with Mr. and Mrs. John Hix the first Wednesday in February.

LAPHAM'S CORNERS.

Rev. Palmer was not able to fill his appointment last Sabbath on account of illness.

Elmer Rundall of Cairo visited his sister, Mrs. Harry Nelson, over Sunday.

Elmer Jarvis was home over Sunday.

School was closed at Salem on Friday of last week, on account of the illness of Mr. Burnett's sister, Mrs. Floyd Smith. She is still in a very dangerous condition.

Miss Tena Packard was obliged to close her school last week and a part of this on account of illness. An unpleasant case of tonsillitis being the cause.

The teacher in Lapham's district, Ed Doyle, had the misfortune to break his collar bone during the holiday vacation, so that he was unable to resume his duties at school. Miss Worden has been secured to take his place as teacher until he is able to return.

The Misses Ina and Orin VanAken visited the Bullock school one day last week.

Miss Grace Nelson is still on the sick list.

A nice crowd attended the Aid Society at Claude Bailey's on Friday.

Quite a few of Lapham's young people attended the dancing party at Plymouth on Friday evening.

Mr. Curtis' people attended a family reunion in Green Oak on Sunday.

This change in the weather makes one want to snuggle down into their fur coats and arctics.

Marshall Withee is still quite ill.

Mrs. Emeline Rich is suffering with an attack of congestion of the lungs.

CHURCH NEWS.

Services in the M. E. church Sunday morning and evening. Preaching by the pastor.

The Universalist Ladies' Aid Society will meet at the home of Mrs. Tuttle Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 18th.

The subject for Sunday morning at First Church of Christ, Scientist, will be "Truth." All are cordially invited.

The Episcopal service will be held at the Universalist church Sunday at 3 p. m., conducted by Rev. J. H. Eichbaum of Dearborn. All are cordially invited.

Rev. Dr. Wilmoat, of Detroit, will preach in the Presbyterian church next Sabbath morning. The pastor will preach in the evening. Christian Endeavor meeting at 6 p. m.

The Epworth League will hold a "talent social" Friday evening, Jan. 13th, at the home of Mrs. John L. Gale. All to whom talents have been given will be expected to come and give the results of their investment. To others the admission will be 10 cents or more according to their interest in the piano fund.

Greatly in Demand.

Nothing is more in demand than a medicine which meets modern requirements for a blood and system cleanser, such as Dr. King's New Life Pills. They are just what you need to cure stomach and liver troubles. Try them. At The Wolverine Drug Co.'s and John L. Gale's, Inc. guaranteed.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 13, 1905.

Counterfeit $2 bills are being circulated in Detroit. It is believed that a flood of the bad money has taken place. The bills are imitations of United States treasury notes and are said to be a very clever counterfeit.

Secretary of State Prescott issued the first official crop report of his administration Tuesday evening. He says the temperature during December was four degrees below normal. Two hundred and sixty-two correspondents reported that wheat was injured during the month, while 349 reported that it was not injured.

At a meeting of the German Farmer's Fire Insurance Co., of Washtenaw County, Jan. 10th, an assessment of $3 per $1,000 was ordered. This is the largest assessment in the history of this mutual company. There were forty-three fires last year, with a loss of $13,080.98. Twenty-nine of the fires originated from lightning. The total membership is now 1,944, with policies amounting to $4,733,093.

The postoffice appropriation bill was completed Tuesday. It aggregates $181,000,000, an increase of $10,000,000 over last year, and includes a deficit of $12,000,000 in the present fiscal year, due to the installation of so many rural routes. The rural routes show an average deficit of $600, caused by the fact that farmers are using the trolley lines and telephone to a large extent, which reduces the postal revenues.

Acting Treasurer Lee, in his answer to the suit brought by George C. Waldo, elected for the expiration of the term of the late F. F. Snow, says that Waldo was not duly elected, because no notice has ever been given by the board of supervisors; that such a vacancy would be filled at any regular or special election held since Mr. Snow's death. Lee says further that no legal declaration has ever been made of the vacancy in the office. Attorney Edwin Henderson appears for Mr. Lee.

The fifty-sixth annual fair of the Michigan State Agricultural society will be held in Detroit, beginning September 11, 1905. This decision was reached at a meeting of the new board of directors at the Hotel Hodges, Pontiac, Tuesday. There was some objection on the part of those opposed to the Detroit location, but it was a clear case of majority rule and the new board had not been in session but a short time before it was evident that the next fair will be in Detroit, and the directors say that this time it is a permanent location.

We are in receipt of a very neat calendar issued by the Michigan Agricultural College. It contains thirty-six views of college buildings, campus and forest scenes arranged in twelve groups. The institution has made a remarkable growth during the past few years. In 1900 the total number of students was 652. This year the number will reach nearly 1000. The advantages offered by this college are certainly worthy of very careful consideration by all parents who expect to send their sons and daughters away to school.

Bazaar and Entertainment.

The ladies of the M. E. church will give a Ladies' Home Journal bazaar in the church parlors Wednesday afternoon and evening, Jan. 18th. Supper will be served at 6:00 o'clock and an entertainment given afterwards, the charge for both being 15 cents. The ladies request that subscriptions and renewals for the Ladies' Home Journal be held until that date. Following is the evening program:

Instrumental—Miss Winnie Jolliffe.
Recitation—Mrs. Wm. Van Vleet.
Song—Misses Polley, Conner, Richwine.
Instrumental—Miss Rosa Pierson.
Recitation—Miss Zaida Briggs.
Instrumental—Miss Belker.

Bank Stockholders Meet.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Plymouth United Savings Bank was held in the banking rooms Tuesday afternoon, 520 of the 750 shares being represented. Practically the same board of directors were re-elected, as were also the acting officers, as follows:

President—C. A. Fisher
Vice Pres.—T. V. Quackenbush
Cashier—E. K. Bennett
Asst. Cashier—C. S. Butterfield.

The officers reported a most satisfactory condition of the bank's affairs, not a single dollar being lost, with a good surplus on hand, besides paying a fair dividend. The management of the bank is in most competent hands, safe, conservative and trustworthy. It is an institution in which every citizen should take pride and, too, in which he should feel a personal interest. The total footings of the bank on last Tuesday were a trifle over the half million mark, the largest in its existence.

What Will the Merchants Do About It?

It is alleged that a Detroit agent for a grocery firm visits Plymouth every two weeks and solicits orders for his firm, delivering them in wholesale lots on his next visit. Report further says that he secured over $100 worth of orders here last Friday. If this is true the merchants of the village should not lose any time in blocking this man's game. Plymouth merchants pay high taxes for the maintenance of Plymouth institutions and public business, and they should have proper protection from outsiders who pay nothing. It is possible these fellows shade the price a trifle on this or that article, but the average will be found to be higher than Plymouth merchants sell for, to say nothing of better goods. We do not know whether there is an ordinance on the books that would compel outsiders to pay a license to peddle goods in the village or not. If not, it is up to the merchants to see that the council enacts one as soon as possible. It is for their self-protection to do so, and we believe the council will take the proper view of the situation. The peddling of any article by people outside the village should be strictly governed by license.

Hubbell's Store to Open Monday.

Speculation as to the outcome of C. O. Hubbell's financial troubles has been the topic of conversation for several weeks. The Mail is authorized to make the following statement: In December, 1901, W. F. Markham purchased of the Michigan Drug Co., principally $1250 worth of drugs and furnishings, and turned the same over to C. O. Hubbell, taking a chattel mortgage as security. This mortgage was not placed on file by Mr. Markham for obvious reasons. Last July Mr. Hubbell gave the United Savings bank a chattel mortgage on his stock for $243. This mortgage was shortly afterwards assumed by Mr. Markham and then he placed his own on file. In November, a Detroit law firm, representing creditors to the amount of $1360, began an action before Judge Swan to have a receiver appointed for Mr. Hubbell and have him declared a bankrupt. It was found that Mr. Hubbell owed somewhere about $350, including Mr. Markham's claims. An attempt was made by the Detroit attorneys to show that Mr. Markham's mortgage was a fraudulent one, but they were convinced of their mistake and settled their claims for $650, including fees and costs, which Mr. Markham paid, and the receiver was discharged.

There are still claims outstanding aggregating some $750 and Mr. Markham is making an effort to settle these at 30 cents on the dollar, to assist Mr. Hubbell in the bankruptcy proceedings. If successful, the business will continue in some form. If not, the stock will be closed out to the best advantage to reimburse Mr. Markham, who does not believe he has been the victim of any intent, whatever, to defraud by Mr. Hubbell. It is not believed, neither is it apparent, that Mr. Hubbell has profited a dollar by his method of doing business.

Mr. Markham is at present in possession of the store and an inventory of the goods on hand is being taken. The store will be opened Monday, with Mr. Hubbell in charge, and all goods, excepting drugs, will be sold at a price that will turn them into cash quickly. In event of a settlement of all claims, Mr. Hubbell will continue in charge and will conduct business on a basis that will place him again on a good financial footing. In case Mr. Markham can not settle with the creditors, Mr. Hubbell will be declared a bankrupt January 23rd, by Judge Swan.

Resolutions.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Plymouth United Savings Bank, held in their banking office on Tuesday, January 10th, 1905, the following resolutions on the death of Peter Gayde were ordered spread on the record books of the bank to become a part of the records.

Whereas, death has removed from our midst, Mr. Peter Gayde, one of the stockholders of this bank, and

Whereas, we, his associates, desire to place on record our appreciation of his rugged honesty and sterling qualities, therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of Peter Gayde this bank has lost an earnest worker whose every act was characterized by an honest endeavor to make this bank a success.

Resolved, That we, his associates, will miss his wise counsel and genial disposition, his sound judgment and his willingness at all times to assume his share of responsibility.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the books of this bank and become a part of the records and that a copy of same be sent to the Plymouth Mail for publication, and another, together with an expression of our sincere sympathy in their great bereavement, to the family of the deceased.

Announcement.

Having sold my monument business to Mr. Edw. Yoxon, formerly of Wayne I wish to say to my friends and patrons that I am grateful, indeed, for the favors that the citizens of Plymouth and vicinity have bestowed upon me in the past, both in business and in many other ways, and I trust the same kind treatment may be received by my successor, who comes well recommended as an honest young man, worthy of respect and patronage. For nearly thirty-five years that I have been continually engaged in the marble and granite business here, I will say that if in a single instance I have not filled every contract faithfully as per agreement, or if I owe a single dollar that I have not fully paid, I now request any person to present their claim for adjustment at once, for I wish to retire in as honorable a manner as I have always conducted my business. To those who are indebted to me I invite them to call at their earliest convenience and settle by cash or note. My interest in our beautiful village, its people, its institutions, its success and prosperity, shall continue as heretofore. With good will toward all and ill will toward none, I hope to ever enjoy the friendship of its citizens.

Roy Andrews went to Saginaw Monday to take a physical examination preparatory to becoming a fireman on the P. M. There was some defect of his eyesight and he was rejected.

A party of young friends of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Macomber gave them a surprise last Friday evening. Refreshments were served and the evening was spent in playing various games. All report a fine time.

Sickening Shivering Fits of ague and malaria can be relieved and cured with Electric Bitters. This is a pure, tonic medicine; of especial benefit in malaria, for it exerts a true curative influence on the disease, driving it entirely out of the system. It is much to be preferred to quinine, having none of this drug's bad after-effects. E. S. Munday, of Henrietta, Tex., writes: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice, till he took Electric Bitters, which saved his life." At The Wolverine Drug Co.'s and John L. Gale's; price 50c, guaranteed.

An invoice of the C. O. Hubbell drug stock was taken yesterday, and the announcement is made that the store will be open for business next Monday morning with Mr. Hubbell in charge.

Northville pays its volunteer fire department 50 cents an hour to each member for the first hour's work at a fire and 25 cents per hour afterwards. The members wanted 50 cents each for every hour, but the council kicked.

The Mail unintentionally omitted to mention that Harry Bennett had been appointed to a clerkship by County Clerk Himes in his office. Mr. Bennett will prove himself a credit to the office and to the village which claims him as a resident.

A good New Year's resolution goes something like this: "I will never fail to say a good word for my home town; I will not spend my money anywhere else and will do all in my power to promote the interests of what I claim is the best town on earth."

The P. G. T. club dancing parties are gaining in popularity. Eighty-two couples were present at the party last Friday evening. The next party will be given Tuesday evening, Jan. 24th, when Whitmore's orchestra of five pieces will furnish the music.

The council held a special meeting in the office of J. D. McLaren & Co. Wednesday morning. The only business done was the ordering of a warrant drawn on the treasurer for $3,900 in payment of nine carloads of iron pipe for the water works extension.

The congested condition of the Pere Marquette freight business may be inferred when the crew of a train reported Monday that they had been 15 hours coming from Detroit. This may be a little exaggerated. It is said 600 cars are awaiting transportation at Ludington.

Item in the court news of a Detroit newspaper: Mrs. Eliza Burden of Plymouth has commenced a suit by summons against Dr. Frank B. Adams also of Plymouth, claiming $5,000 damages. Adams had charged Mrs. Burden with the theft of a watch. A search warrant was issued, but the watch was not found on her person or premises.

The appearance of the Columbians on Tuesday evening, Jan. 17th, is an event which will be welcomed by all lovers of good music. Mr. Savin, the tenor, has toured with Patti and Damrosch, which should be sufficient guarantee of his reputation as a singer. The other members of the company are well known musicians of Detroit. Remember that in patronizing these entertainments you pass a pleasant evening and help to increase the fund for a public library.

The Mail stated last week that there was a case of diphtheria in a north side family. Since then two more cases have developed in the same family—mother and another child. The attacks are reported as not being of a severe nature, yet every thing is being done to prevent further contagion. The family mentioned is that of S. C. Hench. It is said that some two or three years ago a case of diphtheria existed in the same house and these cases may be resultant therefrom.

Every Two Minutes

Physicians tell us that all the blood in a healthy human body passes through the heart once in every two minutes. If this action becomes irregular the whole body suffers. Poor health follows poor blood; Scott's Emulsion makes the blood pure. One reason why is such a great aid is because it passes so quickly into the blood. It is partly digested before it enters the stomach; a double advantage in this. Less work for the stomach; quicker and more direct benefits. To get the greatest amount of good with the least possible effort is the desire of everyone in poor health. Scott's Emulsion does just that. A change for the better takes place even before you expect it.

We will send you a sample free. Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

"Oh, lawzy, no; on horseback," he replied.

"You have other guests then, landlord?" I questioned.

"Um, that's telling," he said and winked at me. Then glanced surreptitiously up at a window.

"Traveling masked—black-eyed maid—pretty as a picture, eh, landlord?" I said jocosely, and gave him a hearty tap upon the shoulder with the handle of my riding whip. With that I entered the well-lighted tap room.

In a moment I felt the warmth, smell the resinous wood, and heard the cheerful crackle of the fire, but there were so many hankers about the open fire place that I saw not its grateful glow.

I made a wide swath as I pushed my way to the fire. Some of the men fell back only to crowd up again, when Jock taking advantage of the momentary gap had obtained a chimney corner for me.

The other chimney corner was filled by a big bloated fellow with a pimply face. Jock was humbly gracious to him in spite of the fact that the fellow's mouth was constantly filled with indecent expostulations, which even a landlord catering for patronage might with credit to himself take umbrage at.

The reason was manifest (the law has an outwardly pacific effect upon some, and Jock was one), this gluttonous fellow was the pet constable, one of Jeffrey's men, as he had said, and they had begun to collect the criminals from the near-by places to take them to town where the assizes were to be held.

The criminals were usually a low-born set of rascals upon whom no one wastes pity. The man the constable had in custody that day was a different object—an object of both pity and sorrow. For who can gaze upon a person when the intellect, which made him a superior being is gone and not feel pity tug at his heart strings? He had been no mean creature else the pale-faced woman, young as regards years from her face, old as to events, had not clung to him.

Evidently the constable and his men had been at the Inn long enough to get effectually dried, and in accomplishing this had completely filled the space about the hearth, leaving the two miserable beings yet cold and wet huddled in a corner.

The boors, to leave a woman so bodragged out of the circle of warmth! I felt my temper rising like yeast in a hot room.

I stared insolently at the constable. He had his legs stretched out and took more than half the fire place. I let my eyes travel the length of his person, from his coarse-grained visage down to his rough shoes, with an insinuation not to be denied.

Heidgeted his bulky body, his face became redder, but with a hitch to his shoulders he fortified himself for the explosive "Damm!" that belched from his greasy lips.

"With pleasure," I said, and not waiting for his surprise to evaporate I continued: "Are these your fellows? They seem in favor of a monopoly."

He grunted.

I turned to them who equally obstructive occupied the middle seated at a table. "Out of the way, fellows," I cried.

They scampered to their feet more prompt than their master. I gave their table a twirl which sent it spinning backwards. I pushed my chair into its place, thus the chimney corner was made vacant.

"Come nearer the fire," I said courteously to the woman, "and bring the man. You are wet; dry yourselves."

It looked for a moment, as the constable cocked his gimlet eye, as though he might espouse the cause of his men, who recovering, had clustered about him. But the woman leading the man—a thing of shreds and patches, droil enough looking, too, with the old theatrical suit he had on the sort," he answered verbosely enough now, "he's a play actor. He's now acting the principal part for the first time. Listen how he rants! a fine actor, he! hah! hah!"

I Stared insolently at the constable.

"You may be mistaken as to his state," I said, and I bowed to give my words a graciousness and to take the edge off my sarcasm. For I added: "Men even with your ability have been known to be mistaken."

"Yes, damned mistaken," put in Gil, in his deep voice.

"Still justice must be done," I hastened to add, seeing his choleric coming up at Gil's words. "What has he done? Come, landlord, I called to Jock, 'another bottle of the same; 'tis heart warming I trow. Partake of it with me; it will help the flow of words while it flows from cup to lip.'" I added to the constable. It was far from my wish to anger the tyke at present.

"God's help! 'tis not much of a tale when all is told," he began, after he had for the moment slaked his thirst by a most copious potation. "Only another Covenanter and the way of the transgressor is hard."

He raised his eyes to the rafters overhead with a pious look more like Puritan than Established Churchman. The former no doubt he had been, but like many another who had served the Lord High Protector, upon the advent of Charles II had deemed it best to change both religion and manners.

"We have been upon the lookout for him some time. He somehow managed to escape us when the others were arrested years ago. But we have him fast enough now, fast enough!" He finished and rolled the words under his tongue as if the taste of them was good.

"Being a Covenanter would not make him apprehensible," I returned. "There is no act out against him."

"You think so?" he demurred.

"What if he had been one of the plotters who conspired against the royal person of the King?" he added slyly.

"Of course that is a different thing," I said.

I looked at the woman. She had risen and was trying to ejaculate something. She had a most pathetic face, and her arms were held out in appeal toward me. She was wayworn and weary, and the moisture was rising from her clothes in a cloud.

"Blessed sir," at last she gasped, "how could he have been at the meeting of the Covenanters in Lyme, when he was playing at the Duke's theater in London?"

"O, so ye say, baggage," brusquely said the man. "We'll give ye an opportunity to prove your words; those lips will not rebutt then."

The prisoner had been silent for a time, but at the mention of the Duke's theater he began to rave, to mutter, and to sigh.

I hardened myself to it all for the time, even the piteous look on the woman's face.

Gil moved from where he was standing near my chair over to where the woman and prisoner sat. It posed for a cynic, yet would drop before the fire from a pretty woman's eye, sooner than any man that I knew, and became weak as water, and smooth as table oil. He leaned over the back of the bench on which they crouched with outspread hands over the blaze, and began to talk to the woman. She turned her body around, so that what she was saying in a whisper should not be understood from the motion of her lips—by the other occupants of the room. Such exclamations as "Sdeath, Fox me, Zounds," etcetera, fell from Gil's lips. He was deeply moved. I trembled for my plans.

The constable for one was not enjoying this. With his men it was different from the laughter and insinuating looks which they bestowed upon the woman in her eagerness laid her hand on Gil's arm. "She'll take up with him quick enough," one of them said in a loud aside, at which they all burst into what would have been a longer and perhaps louder laugh if Gil had not quickly jerked his sword from its scabbard, throwing off the woman's hand.

He twirled it rapidly in the air, even over the heads of the twain he was championing, and dared the fellow to repeat his remark. There was silence among the men.

"Many a fellow has bit the dust for less," Gil said menacingly as he slid his sword back with a rattling sound.

I called for yet more wine, and again the constable did justice to it. He took from his pocket his dice and rattled them persuasively.

"Ye play?" he asked.

"Why not?" I replied, stifling a yawn. "The sky yet remains dark; it will be hours before the rain stops it at all today."

Now throughout the room was heard the rattle, rattle of the dice as they fell upon the deal boards of the table, for Gil had also seated himself apparently on amicable terms with the other fellows, and they had begun to game likewise. Frequent curses alternated with the fall of the dice—they did not come from Gil—and told who was the loser. The air was dense from the smoke from Gil's pipe, for he was an inveterate smoker, and had suffered considerably from the habit, when it first fastened its hold upon him; gone hungry, been imprisoned, and came near to having had his ears cut off; yet nothing could make him give it up.

Dice throwing had been Gil's part in my education, as I said before, and although I was no rake to waste my patrimony in play with such scum, still I humored the man and let him win my money, while I kept his glass filled. After awhile he became maudlin and raved and cursed whenever I won, which was so seldom that his face had a leering, cunning look, as one who plays a deep game, and finds him successful in it.

Poverty and Politeness.

Last Christmas Mr. Sharp was summoned to his door by a ring; a chubby urchin stood without.

"Wish you a merry Christmas, sir," said the youth expectantly.

"Er—quite so," said Mr. Sharp blankly, following a rule he has invented for the discomfort of Christmas-box hunters.

"An' a'appy New Year," more expectantly.

"Exactly," said Mr. Sharp.

The urchin was nonplussed; but he determined on a final effort.

"An—an' all the rest of it, sir!" he said, desperately.

There was an impressive silence, and Mr. Sharp battered himself that he had crushed the young hopeful, but he hadn't.

"Sy, gov'nor," piped the urchin, "it wouldn't 'urt yer very much ter sy 'Sime ter you,' would it? If yer poor yer can, at least, be perlit!"—London Answers.

At O'Hea's Party.

The Irish Christmas party has become famous the world over, and last year at Mr. O'Hea's gathering our representative overheard the following delicious, characteristic dialogue.

Mr. O'Grady had just left the dancers, and had sidled up to Mr. Flynn:

"Sheep outside, Mister Flynn," he said. "'Tis after askin' ye a few questions I'd be."

They adjourned. Outside, Mr. O'Grady continued:

"'Tis the foina backyardd we have here, wid plenty av room. And now ye'll plaze be tellin' me, as bechune man and man, did ye iver say anythin' forntist the character of mesill or Mistress O'Grady?"

"As bechune man and man," said Mr. Flynn quietly, "O'nev did say anythin' derogatory to ye orid or Mistress O'Grady; but"—taking off his coat—"O'nev intind 'to'!"—London Answers.

He Understood Mules

On a street corner in the northwestern section of the city last Saturday forenoon quite a large crowd had collected. It had formed a ring, or rather, a square, about some object in the center, two sides having congregated on each side of the curb, while the others made a rather thin line on the other side of the square. The on-lookers to whatever was going on did not seem in the least excited, but there was every indication of much interest in the situation.

"Drunken women fighting," said one of two young women who were passing near by. "It's most disgraceful, and those people placidly looking on: if they were men they'd stop it," she said to her companion. "It's degrading."

An old gentleman in the same locality was explaining to another one that a man had been stricken with an epileptic fit. "Poor fellow," he said, "and no one knows what to do for him."

It was evident that the gathering was an inactive one, and the reporter whose duty it is to investigate everything hastened to the scene and found out that a stout, well-proportioned mule had slipped on the pavement and was apparently well satisfied with his recumbent situation. The fact was that he resented every well-meant attempt to hoist him from his contact with mother earth, while his disgusted driver, a colored boy about 20 years old, was actually sobbing with anger and vexation of spirit. All sorts of suggestions were hurled at him, but nobody seemed to want to help him in his distress. There was danger in it. The mule was wild-eyed and vicious, and used both forelegs as a battery to keep folks away from him, until at last the driver sat down on the shafts of the cart, which had been drawn away from the animal, and indulged in long, bitter thoughts.

Just then an old colored man, wearing an old-fashioned blue army overcoat and a red worsted comforter about his neck, stepped into the open space, walked bravely up to the now quiet quadruped and took hold of both of his ears. He seemed to whisper to the beast, but whatever he did acted like magic. The mule got upon his feet, permitted himself to be hitched again to his cart, and the crowd went away.

"You seem to know how to deal with mules," said the reporter to the old fellow. "Deed I does, sub," was the reply. "I knows all about mules and they does me. 'Fore Gawd, boss, I wasn't brought up in old Missouri for nothing. Yass'r, muls and me is kindfols, sho's you bo'n. En I think dat Job's wuff ten cents. Don't you, boss?"

The crowd had melted away, and as there was no one else by to respond to this palpable hint the reporter did so. And thus the chapter ended.—Washington Star.

Thorough Work of Japs

One of the most unique and interesting features of the Japanese plan of campaign is the importance of the tasks assigned to the doctors. Maj. Louis Livingstone, Seaman of the United States army says in his recently published book: "The medical officer is omnipresent. You will find him in countless places where in an American or British army he has no place. He is as much at the front as in the rear. He is with the screen of the scouts with his microscope and chemicals, testing and labeling wells so that the army to follow shall drink no contaminated water. When the scouts reach a town he immediately institutes a thorough examination of its sanitary condition and if contagion or infection is found he quarantines and places a guard around the dangerous district. Notices are posted so that the approaching column is warned and no soldiers are billeted where danger exists. Microscopic blood tests are made in all fever cases and bacteriological experts, fully equipped, form part of the staff of every divisional headquarters.

"The medical officer also accompanies foraging parties and, with the commissionair officers, samples the various foods, fruits and vegetables sold by the natives along the line of march, long before the arrival of the army. If the food is tainted or the fruit is over-ripe or the water requires boiling, notice is posted to that effect, and such is the respect and discipline of every soldier, from the commanding officer to the file in the ranks, that obedience to his orders is absolute. The medical officer is also found in camp lecturing the man on sanitation and the hundred and one details of personal hygiene—how to cook and to eat and when not to drink or to bathe—even to the paring and cleansing of the finger nails to prevent danger from bacteria.

"Long before the outbreak of hostilities he was with the advance agents of the army, testing provisions that were being collected for the troops that were to follow. As a consequence of these precautions he is not found treating thousands of cases of intestinal diseases and other contagion and fevers that follow improper sustenance and neglected sanitation—diseases that have brought many campaigns to disastrous terminations."

Oddities of South Africa

"Though the days of the long treks over trackless wastes of South Africa are past, life in this country still has little diversities peculiar to itself," writes a correspondent. "For instance, a farmer named Long was recently troubled by a leopard that had been destroying his cattle. The natives surrounded it one day in the long grass and sent for the white man to kill it. While searching for the brute in the tangle of vegetation Mr. Long came across him sooner than he expected and the leopard got the jump on him. There was a fierce struggle and the white man was a good deal torn up. One of his negroes got in a lucky shot and killed the leopard just before the latter got at the man's throat.

"Odd things happen in the mines, too, once in a while. A miner named Wonacott recently passed through a most exciting experience at Dutoitspan. He had charged four boreholes with dynamite in the usual way and then endeavored to signal to the engine-driver, but failed to establish communication. He concluded, however, that everything was all right, and he lit the charges, expecting to be hauled up in the bucket. His second signal not being answered, he began to climb the rope in a hurry to get away from the dynamite. He was too slow and the concussion of the discharge knocked him off. He fell into the bucket, where he remained until all the charges had exploded. He was only slightly hurt.

"And there was a curious incident near Harding recently. A native was juggling along a pathway at sunrise, when he saw the head and arms of a man sticking out of the ground, the arms waving wildly in signal of distress. The fellow was imprisoned in an ant-bear hole, and wah half dead. When he was resuscitated he told how he had been coming back on foot from Johannesburg with some friends when he was taken ill. His friends thought he was going to die and stuck him in the ant-bear hole and deserted him. When he recovered he presented his friends and they went to prison."

When the Worm Turned

Here was the modern mania for "beautifying" things.

She went in strong.

For the Chinese gown.

And statues without wings.

Her walls were hung with draperies of her curious design.

And her pictures rare.

Arranged with care.

On no particular line.

And all her friends who saw the place, declared that it was "FINE!"

Her husband was a business man, on "just plain comfort" bent; And let her run the place, without dissent.

Great stacks of "beaten brass" she bought, and sticks of scented punk. In his secret soul Each brazen bowl He classified as "junk."

Although he never told her so, He didn't have the spunk!

And then the "Sanitation" craze possessed her for a while.

She routed germs In medical terms That only made the whole darn place She "sterilized."

Such "rules" observed

That steak was served On an anti-microbe plate! And still he never paid a word. But let her navigate.

She took down all the draperies and painted all the walls.

Until the rooms Resembled tombs

And whitewashed stable stalls.

Then she declared that hygiene prescribed the proper "rest";

She bought "stain" beds

And turned their heads Exactly "nor-nor-west."

And still her lord and master Hadn't courage to protest.

But then at last she hit upon a bigger, brighter fad:

She was elite. So up-to-date.

The new idea she had. She moved the beds out on the porch

To sleep in open air!

The scheme was bold—

'Twas bitter cold—

She thought he would not care;

But "Gee!" When he came home that night,

You should have heard him swear!

—Anna Marble.

Two Forms of Sutures.

There are two forms of sutures for drawing the edges of wounds together. They are the interrupted and continuous. The former is employed when only one or two stitches are used; the latter when the wound has to be regularly sewed, like a seam. By the continuous suture with each stitch, which is independently fastened, if the thread should break in one stitch the wound would be held.

An irregularity of seam is often seen in the continuous suture owing to the fact that, although the needle has passed at right angles to the incision at each stitch, there is an oblique pull upon the lips of the wound when the suture is finished. This is avoided by passing the needle after each stitch through the loop of the preceding one, thus making a sort of continuous chain called the "Glover suture," and making each stitch partly independent of the rest.

The Lobster's Advantage.

The lobster, says Four Track News, has been endowed by nature with two gifts which go far to offset the evils attending his lot—one is the ability to fight early, often and all the time, if necessary, and the other is the ability to grow a new member, an eye, a leg or a claw whenever the original is lost in the fortunes of war or by reason of any domestic unpleasantness. It is these two gifts which enable him to grow up and become a useful member of society, most of his members being second-hand, so to speak, by the time he is really grown.

Living Stones.

The visitor to the Falkland Isles sees scattered here and there singular-shaped blocks of what appear to be weather-beaten and moss-covered boulders in various sizes. Attempt to turn one of these boulders over and you will meet with a real surprise, because the stone is actually anchored by roots of great strength; in fact, you will find that you are trifling with one of the native trees. No other country in the world has such a peculiar "forest" growth.

John Stuart Mill's Advice.

Two or three things I commend to you: Keep yourselves in the full air of the world and play your part in the world's affairs. Always study rather than be passive. Do not be so unreasonable as to expect more from life in the world than life in the world is capable of giving.—John Stuart Mill.

Especially for Women.

Champion, Mich., Jan. 9th.—(Special)—A case of especial interest to women is that of Mrs. A. Wellatt, wife of a well known photographer here. It is best given in her own words.

"I could not sleep, my feet were cold and my limbs cramped," Mrs. Wellatt states. "I had an awful hard pain across my kidneys. I had to get up three or four times in the night. I was very nervous and fearfully dependent."

"I had been troubled in this way for five years when I commenced to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and what they caused to come from my kidneys will hardly stand description."

"By the time I had finished one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills I was cured. Now I can sleep well my limbs do not cramp, I do not get up in the night and I feel better than I have in years. I owe my health to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Women's illness are caused by Diseased Kidneys; that's why Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure them.

Beware of Objections for Catarrh that Contains Mercury.

Mercury will surely destroy the mucous membrane and completely derange and irritate the system. It is through the mucous membrane that the medicinal fluid should never be used except in the most dire cases. In the most dire cases it will do tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by E. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure, be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and is made in Toledo, Ohio, by E. J. Cheney & Co., Druggists.

MEDICAL EXAMINER

Of the United States Treasury Recommends Pe-ru-na.

Another Prominent Physician Uses and Endorses Pe-ru-na.

DR. LEWELLYN JORDAN, Medical Examiner of the U. S. Treasury Department, graduate of Columbia College, and who served three years at West Point, has the following to say of Peruna:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from your wonderful remedy. One short month has brought forth a vast change and I now consider myself a well man after months of suffering. Fellow sufferers, Peruna will cure you."

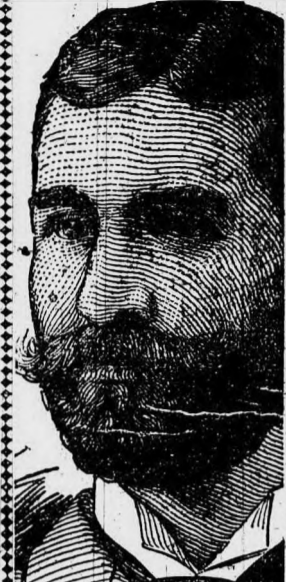

A constantly increasing number of physicians prescribe Peruna in their practice. It has proven its merits so thoroughly that even the doctors have overcome their prejudice against so-called patent medicines and recommend it to their patients.

Peruna occupies a unique position in medical science. It is the only internal systemic catarrh remedy known to the medical profession to-day. Catarrh, as everyone will admit, is the cause of one-half the diseases which afflict mankind. Catarrh and catarrhal diseases afflict one-half of the people of United States.

Robert R. Roberts, M. D., Washington, D. C., writes:

"Through my own experience as well as that of many of my friends and acquaintances who have been cured or relieved of catarrh by the use of Hartman's Peruna, I can confidently recommend it to those suffering from such disorders, and have no hesitation in prescribing it to my patients."—Robert R. Roberts.

Catarrh is a systemic disease curable only by systemic treatment. A remedy that cures catarrh must aim directly at the depressed nerve centers. This is what Peruna does. Peruna immediately invigorates the nerve-centers which give vitality to the mucous membranes. Then catarrh disappears. Then catarrh is permanently cured.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartmann, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

OLD CROSS OF LOUISBURG.

Interesting Relic Owned by Harvard University.

In a closet in the library at Harvard college is stored one of the few existing relics of the campaign of Sir William Pepperell and his New Englanders against the French stronghold of Louisburg, in the year 1745.

This relic is an iron cross that is believed to have adorned a church in Louisburg. How it came into the possession of Harvard is not known at this time, as no antiquarian has ever taken the trouble, it appears, to establish its history since it became a college possession.

About sixty years ago Mr. John L. Sibley, then librarian at Harvard, found the cross in a lot of discarded articles stored in one of the smaller buildings on the college grounds. It was marked with a tag which was written the statement that the cross was brought from Louisburg by one of Pepperell's soldiers. Mr. Sibley attempted to trace the history of the relic in order to discover under what circumstances, and by whom, it was presented to the college, but so far as his successor knows, he made no headway in his quest.

In 1841, shortly after its discovery by Mr. Sibley, the cross was stored in a small building that stood back of the Charles river national bank, near the college. The building was burned in 1843, and the cross was found in its ashes, undamaged except for slight pitting caused by the heat.

Taken in hand by Mr. Justin Winsor, then librarian, the cross was given a heavy coat of gilding, such as it had borne originally, and was fixed to the east wall of Gore hall, in the library building. Here it remained for many years, until alterations made its removal from the wall necessary.

It was next stored in the cellar of the library, remaining there until the early 80s, when it was firmly fixed in the stone peak of the gable over the entrance to the library.

The cross is made of soft iron and appears to have been the work of a Louisburg blacksmith, the workmanship being rougher than would have been produced by the skilled iron-mongers of France.

The cross to-day weighs about ten pounds. Its cross-piece is 2 1/4 inches long, terminating in fleur-de-lis, which are 4 1/2 inches wide by 6 inches long. An ornament of similar proportions caps the upright, or standard, the total length of which at present is 29 inches. Before broken off the cross was about 40 inches long. Both cross-piece and standard are 1 inch wide and 1/2 inch thick.

Dead Man's Wishes Ignored.

In a plain deal coffin, carried on a tradesman's cart, the body of Dmitri Ragoskip, aged 104, was recently borne to its last rest at Kharkoff, Russia. Very different was the funeral planned by Ragoskip for himself. For the last seventy years every penny he saved went into a fund, which was to remain intact until the day of his death in order to provide him with the most magnificent funeral possible. When he felt old age creeping on him he set about making his own coffin, carving and inlaying it regardless of expense. In the sides were two panels of beaten gold, supplied by a St. Petersburg firm, and on the top were the monomaniac's initials set in turquoise and small pearls. When Ragoskip died his relatives sold the gorgeous coffin and silken shrouds and divided among themselves the $15,000 accumulated for the funeral. The local undertakers are up in arms.

Conditions a Century Ago.

A copy of the New Hampshire Gazette published at Portsmouth, N. H., in September, 1810, informs us that there were at that time 29,474 slaves in the territory of New Orleans on which a tax of $2,000 was paid. In the election returns it shows that Lisbon, then called Concord, had 145 voters and was strongly republican.

WHY WE GROW OLD.

Sickness is Result of Ignorance and Wrong Thinking.

We grow old because we do not know enough to keep young, just as we become sick and diseased because we do not know enough to keep well, says Orison Swett Marden in Success. Sickness is a result of ignorance and wrong thinking. The time will come when a man will no more harbor thoughts that will make him weak or sick than he would think of putting his hands into fire. No man can be sick if he always has right thoughts and takes ordinary care of his body. If he will think only youthful thoughts he can maintain his youth far beyond the usual period.

If you would "be young when old" adopt the sunbather's motto: "I record time but hours of sunshine." Never mind the dark or shadowed hours. Forget the unpleasant, unhappy days. Remember only the days of rich experiences, let the others drop into oblivion.

It is said that "long livers are great hoppers." If you keep your hope bright in spite of discouragements, and meet all difficulties with a cheerful face, it will be very difficult for age to trace its furrows on your brow. There is longevity in cheerfulness.

GOOD LOOKS AND CONCEIT.

Vanity Largely a Matter of Sense of Humor.

The man's Apollo is generally a comely specimen of flesh and blood, with a blooming cheek and bright eye, who is a credit to his tailor. Women admire a more rugged type, or a type in which a tinge of asceticism is combined with intense nervous strength; or the picturesque may take their fancy. Roughly, the good-looking are vain or not, in proportion as they are dowered with the saving salt of humor.

So with the women. The pretty dolls may be vain; the nobler and more interesting beauties are probably less so than their plainer sisters; for the simple reason that their physical charms are undoubted, and have been tacitly acknowledged ever since they can remember. They shine without effort, and their attention is preoccupied with other things.—London Chronicle.

Sand Aids Digestion.

Sand as a digestive for a human being, seems a curious idea, but it was recommended in a paper read before the Society for the Promotion of Health. To quote from the journal: "What we all need," says the gentle doctor, "is grit—the real grit that is furnished by the silica in the sand. To get that we must swallow a little clean sand every day with our meals. The presence of the grit will assist in the grinding process, and our food, instead of distressing us, will nourish and cheer us. Six five-grain capsules of pure sand should be taken with each meal."

An East Side View of the Sun.

In the course of her experience as a teacher on the East Side Myra Kelley once received the following composition from an 8-year-old child upon the comparative importance of the sun and moon: "The moon is of great use, for, it lights up the dark nights, but the sun is not much use, for the days are always light anyway."—New York Press.

Oddity of the Congo Valley.

A peculiarity of the southern part of the Congo valley is that one side of the hills is usually bare, the other covered with thick vegetation. This difference is due to the fact that one side gets little moisture while the other is damped by fogs blown against it every morning. The natives often shave off the hair from one side of their heads, the effect presenting the same appearance as the hills of the country.

Handy Man in Demand.

A recent number of the Cape Mercury contained this advertisement: "Wanted for German West Africa a man to look after one horse, two cows and three pigs. One who can impart the rudiments of French, singing and the piano to children preferred."

ALL DONE OUT.

Veteran Joshua Heiler, of 706 South Walnut street, Urbana, Ill., says: "In the fall of 1899, after taking Doan's Kidney Pills I told the readers of this paper that they had relieved me of kidney trouble, disposed of a lame back with pain across my joints and beneath the shoulder blades. During the interval which has elapsed I have had occasion to resort to Doan's Kidney Pills when I noticed warnings of an attack. On each and every occasion the results obtained were just as satisfactory as when the pills were first brought to my notice. I just as emphatically endorse the preparation to-day as I did over two years ago."

Mrs. L. C. Glover, Vice Pres. Milwaukee, Wis., Business Woman's Association, is another one of the million women who have been restored to health by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: I was married for several years and no children blessed my home. The doctor said I had a complication of female troubles and I could not have any children unless I could be cured. He tried to cure me, but after experimenting for several months, my husband became disgusted, and one night when we noticed a testimonial of a woman who had been cured of similar trouble through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, he went out and bought a bottle for me. I used your medicine for three and one-half months, improving steadily in health, and in twenty-two months a child came. I cannot fully express the joy and thankfulness that is in my heart. Our home is a different place now, as we have something to live for, and all the credit is due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Yours very sincerely, Mrs. L. C. GLOVER, 614 Grove St., Milwaukee, Wis." Vice President, Milwaukee Business Woman's Ass'n.

Women should not fail to profit by the experience of these two women; just as surely as they were cured of the troubles enumerated in their letters, just so certainly will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure others who suffer from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability, and nervous prostration; remember that it is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is curing women, and don't allow any druggist to sell you anything else in its place.

An Indiana Lady Tells of a Wonderful Cure:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: It is a pleasure for me to write and tell what your wonderful medicine has done for me. I was sick for three years with change of life, and my physician thought a cancerous condition of the womb. During these three years I suffered untold agony.

"I cannot find words in which to express my bad feelings. I did not expect to ever see another well day. I read some of the testimonials recommending your medicine and decided to write to you and give your treatment a trial.

"Before I had taken half a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to sleep. I have taken now six bottles and am so well I can do all kinds of work."—Mrs. LIZZIE HINKLE, Salem, Ind.

If there is anything in your case about which you would like special advice, write freely to Mrs. Pinkham. She can surely help you, for no person in America can speak from a wider experience in treating female ills. Address is Lynn, Mass.; her advice is free and always helpful.
