News from all Over the State in Brief Form For Busy Readers.

NOT ACCEPTED.

President Angell Starts the U. of M. Regents.

President Angell, of the University of Michigan, placed before the Board of Regents on Friday his resignation.

When informed of the action of the regents in refusing to accept his resignation, President Angell consented to remain at the head of the institution.

Secretary Wald, said the time has not yet arrived when the state can afford to part with the valuable services of the honored president.

President Angell was greatly moved at the confidence shown him by the action of the regents.

Tried For Murder.

Mrs. Mary Brown, charged with the murder of her husband, John Brown, in Hancock, last November, will be tried this week.

On the night of the killing, Brown went to Houghton, and when he did not return at the time expected, his wife went after him, finding the man, it is said, in an intoxicated condition.

Brown accompanied the woman home. Shortly after midnight Mrs. Brown alarmed other lodgers in the house by calling for assistance, saying that she had shot her husband.

To Test the Law.

Frank Donnell, of Hancock, is defendant on a charge of manslaughter in having killed a man while hunting.

Donnell's rifle was accidentally discharged, the bullet hitting Mayworm in the leg and causing his death from loss of blood shortly after.

Does Not Care.

May Wagner Smith, the 16-year-old bride of two months, whose kisses given to Morton Kimes, aged 16, led to the murder of Kimes by her 21-year-old husband, Charles Smith.

She was on the streets of Eaton Rapids after the murder, apparently not realizing the shadow that had been cast on her life.

Fought a Maniac.

While they were alone in their home, James Hand, aged 70, of Bay City, who has been slightly deranged, attacked his son James, Jr., and for two hours the son fought him to save his life.

Hand was taken to the county jail at Charlotte, he said: "I don't care if he is in jail. I was glad to leave him anyway."

Shot Three Hunters.

Tony Diebold, a saloonkeeper of West Branch, accidentally fired a load of shot that hit William Close, Wm. Schultz and Sidney McKee.

Close received a few shot in the arm, McKee was hit twice in the nose, and Schultz was badly wounded in the back.

Madden Will Not Resign.

Rumor had it that Edwin C. Madden, of Detroit, third postmaster general, is to follow Fourth Assistant Joseph L. Bristow's example and resign his office.

Mr. Madden has a record for method, the department officials say, which has never been equaled.

Frank Dempke, aged 21, of Cadillac, was killed while working in the woods in Cherry Grove township.

SHOT HIS WIFE.

In Presence of the Innocent Children

Mrs. Mary Hardy, a young woman of Marion, was shot Monday afternoon at the home of her father, by her husband, Elmer E. Hardy.

The children ran screaming from the room and Hardy coolly put his revolver back into his pocket and walked out of the house.

The children ran screaming from the room and Hardy coolly put his revolver back into his pocket and walked out of the house.

While Mrs. O. J. Townsend, of Anderson, Ind., was making up a folding bed, the bed closed catching her between the rails of the bed, breaking her neck and killing her instantly.

Since the intention of the legislature to raise the taxes paid by sleeping car companies became evident, it is announced that the Pullman Company will not furnish cars for a general junket, as heretofore, but there may not be one.

The senior literary class, Ann Arbor, voted to have a portrait of Prof. R. N. Wenzel painted by Percy Ives and presented to the university as a class memorial.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Work of the Session Now On

Farmers in certain sections of the state want the law protecting robins which eat up their cherries declared off.

The bill of Senator Peek, of Adrian, providing for the chemical analysis and certification of commercial, feeding stuffs, providing for the composition and preparation of all concentrated commercial feeding stuffs sold in the state, passed the senate.

The abolition of the 50-day limit, according to Speaker Master, has abolished a peculiar part of legislation in Michigan.

Speaker Master is keeping up his campaign for a short session as vigorously as he fought for the abolition of the junket.

Rep. Wallace, of Newaygo, introduced a bill calling for an appropriation of $20,000 to empower the state to take charge of the tuberculosis sanitarium of Dr. J. C. Branch, at White Cloud.

Rep. George Lord, of Detroit, is very confident that his bill providing for excise commissions to handle the liquor traffic all over the state will pass and become a law.

Rep. Moffatt presented a bill making an appropriation of $2,500 to be used for the completion of two buildings for patients of the Northern Michigan asylum.

Rep. Powers of Branch, introduced a bill in the house calling for a $40,000 maintenance appropriation for the state public school, for each of the fiscal years 1905-6 and 1906-7.

The senate bill to impose a tax upon all parlor cars and sleepers will be introduced by Senator Saeley, of Oakland.

Rep. Palmer was then recognized and read the articles of impeachment. Then the house managers withdrew and the senate dispatched a committee for Chief Justice Fuller.

Rep. Townsend said Tuesday that it appeared to be impossible to get a railroad rate legislation through the senate at this session.

Senator Ely on Wednesday introduced a joint resolution which provides for a constitutional amendment giving the state power to aid in the construction of wagon roads.

RUSSIA'S CRISIS.

Sunday and Monday were Days of Slaughter in St. Petersburg.

The crisis in the reign of the czar has come and the winter snow is stained with the slaughter of those who asked that he bear their complaints of oppression, in peaceful assembly on Sunday in the square before the winter palace.

The struggle developed into the primary stages of a revolution, and the end is beyond the view of those who observe the situation as it now appears.

Fr. Gapon, the priest whose agitation has brought Russia to the verge of a revolution, is only 23 years old. He is possessed of boundless courage and enthusiasm.

Though an orthodox priest, he tolerates no sectarian prejudices among his followers, who include large bodies of Catholics and Lutherans.

The reports from St. Petersburg Monday were of the most startling character. The number killed by the czar's soldiers, according to official figures, was only 76 and 233 wounded.

The unofficial version of the Sunday slaughter says: Sunday was a day of blood in St. Petersburg.

The number of strikers, led by Fr. Gapon, and accompanied by their women and children, was estimated at 100,000.

Representative Hepburn's railroad bill, amending the interstate commerce act and said to have the approval of the administration, was introduced in the house Saturday.

Rep. Harkimer, of Monroe, has revived his bill to prevent telegraph or telephone companies from framing shade trees or setting poles without the written consent of the owner.

Rep. Powers of Branch, introduced a bill in the house calling for a $40,000 maintenance appropriation for the state public school, for each of the fiscal years 1905-6 and 1906-7.

Rep. Palmer was then recognized and read the articles of impeachment. Then the house managers withdrew and the senate dispatched a committee for Chief Justice Fuller.

Rep. Townsend said Tuesday that it appeared to be impossible to get a railroad rate legislation through the senate at this session.

marched towards the czar's winter palace to present their petition asking redress from the "little father" for their industrial and political wrongs.

It is claimed that in addition to the petition which was to have been presented to the emperor, was Father Gapon's "insolent demand" in a letter to the minister of the interior, as follows:

"Your Excellency: Workmen of all classes in St. Petersburg wish to see the emperor at 2 o'clock p. m. Jan. 22, in the square at the winter palace, in order to personally express to him the needs of all the Russian people.

Strike of over 100,000 workmen who demand political as well as industrial betterment.

Disaffection in the army. Uprisings in Moscow, Caucasus and other places which threaten to end with the entire nation in revolt.

Personal weakness in trusting all to grand dukes whom the people especially hate.

Heavy taxes and dissatisfaction with church rule and government ownership of factories, which makes practical slaves of workmen.

Oppression of bureaucrats and police. Shameful conditions in judiciary.

St. Petersburg there is a tension felt rather than seen that is ominous. From Moscow comes news that disorders have begun there and the hull in St. Petersburg may be only the precursor of another storm.

Carl Stern, chief of police of Zion City, pleurisy, may die.

One-fifth of the residents of Zion City are said to be suffering from a strange malady which shows symptoms of something similar to the grip. It is strange the sufferers at least, and there is a physician there to make diagnosis.

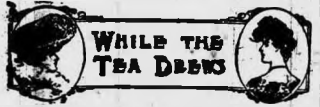

Asserting that the greatest of today's dangers is that from trusts and monopolies, which are crimes against God's bounty, the Rev. Thomas J. Ducey, preaching in St. Leo's Catholic church, New York, made a fiery attack on John D. Rockefeller and the Standard Oil Co.

Mayor Dennis Mulvihill, of Bridgeport, Conn., has had a bill prepared for presentation to the legislature providing for the reduction of one-third of his salary, which is $3,000 a year.

FOIBLES OF FASHION

Apple Sauce.
Pare and cut into small pieces twelve good-sized tart apples, put them into a sauce pan with half a pint of water, cover and stew them all till tender; add one cup of sugar, press it through a sieve or colander; pour into a glass dish and serve either hot or cold. Apples should never be stewed in rusty tins or iron pots, as they will spoil the appearance of the sauce.

While the Tea Dries
Turned surah is having a renaissance. Cashmere is becoming the vogue in Paris. Aureole is the name given a delicate pinkish blue. Bloused jackets look particularly well on small women. All the muffs are large and most of them inclined to fatness. Old rose, shading to a brick red, is a popular shade for a hat. A few are wearing bright green net face veils, with curious effect. The pearl-laced cap of the ill-fated Juliet is again a popular ornament. Women with very plump faces should never wear a thick neck ruche.

Ladies' Costume.
Fashion has decided that all smart costumes must be made with waists and skirts to match, and a charming design in plum-colored crepe de chine is here pictured. The full waist is made over a vest of embroidered batiste. Graceful fullness is given in front by tucks in the upper part, and the wide shoulder effect is successfully carried out by the shoulder straps that extend from the neck out over the sleeve. The full puff sleeve is prettily finished by a small turned back cuff. The skirt is one of the latest models and is exceedingly graceful. The fullness in the upper part is disposed of by small tucks around the hips, although the pattern provides for rows of shirring or for a plain gathered skirt. It is cut in seven gores, and wide tucks at the lower edge assist in giving the fashionable flare. All fabrics that are soft and pliable are suited to the mode, such as etamine, voile, chiffon cloth and liberty satin. The medium size requires three and one-quarter yards of forty-four inch material for the waist, and six yards of forty-four inch material for the skirt.

Parisian Trotting Gowns.
For morning saunters short skirts and long jackets are most popular. And every Parisienne who is a woman of fashion deems it her duty, as well as her pleasure, to wait for an hour in the mornings in the Avenue des Acacias, and to smart broughams and victorias are drawn up in a double line near this favorable promenade along which the elegant love to loiter and meet their friends. The only frivolous notes in the build of these tailor suits are the touch of color in the velvet of collars and cuffs and a line of embroidery upon a light velvet waistcoat.

Cashmere Very Popular.
The very latest fabric employed to build midwinter frocks is cashmere. This material has been, so to speak, put upon the shelf for several years, but its popularity is now reassured. It is one of the most attractive of light weight cloths, it lends itself readily to drapery and it is especially suitable for house gowns. Draped waists and full sleeves are now universally worn, and this sort of light weight material is particularly practical for the purpose. Perhaps the most popular is red, and cashmires are found in every shade from bright scarlet to the deepest claret or fuchsia tones. The pastel shades are as well-modish and elegant as brown is also fashionable. Velvet and silk braid is the popular trimming. Velvet is fashionable in ruches and in flat bands the same tone as the corsage. Another fashionable material is crepe de paris. There is as well a soft serge that has made its appearance, and it appears in new weaves and designs, and the diagonal serges in fine checks are much used for street costumes.

Vitality of Wild Mustard Seed.
In the Seed Laboratory at Ottawa, Canada, one hundred fresh seeds of Wild Mustard were planted in good soil in a box, and under the most favorable conditions only thirty-five of them could be induced to grow. The box was then placed in the open air for a week with the thermometer below zero. When again put in the germinator, seventeen more of the seeds produced plants. The soil was then allowed to become thoroughly dry and again put out to freeze, after which twelve more of the hundred seeds germinated. This operation was repeated several times, until finally every seed demonstrated that the mother plant had not lived in vain.

With the Housewife
To treat paint spots that painters have left on your panes of glass soak in turpentine. If they have been left long enough to be very stubborn scrape the spots with the edge of a penny. It will not scratch as would a knife. Mice have the greatest dislike to the smell of peppermint. A little oil of peppermint sprinkled round their haunts and holes will soon make them look for other quarters and forsake those which have become so disagreeable to them. A piece of camphor forms a popular barometer. If the lump of camphor remains dry when exposed to the air, dry weather is to be expected. If, on the other hand, the gum absorbs moisture and appears damp, rain may be anticipated.

To renovate a black felt hat brush the hat to remove all dust and then sponge with equal parts of liquid ammonia and boiling water. Rub this on the felt thoroughly, then set the hat on the table or some other flat surface to dry, for if this precaution be not taken the brim is sure to get out of shape.

Neck and Hat Sets.
With every hat there must go something for the neck these days, and the most beautiful creations are planned to go around the throat and to fasten in the front. There are lovely art nouveau boas made of ermine and decorated with art nouveau buttons, which are set on about six inches apart. And there are dressy things in peacock feathers to match handsome breast ornaments for the hat. It can be taken as a settled thing that neck trimmings must match hat trimmings and that they must be alike not only in one way, but in all ways. The colors, the materials and the general style must match. Perhaps the best hat and neck effects can be obtained with crushed velvet. A hat can be trimmed with a band of the velvet and the very same material can be used for a four-inch hand necktie. It must be about five inches wide and finished up precisely as though it were made of fur. Its ends are trimmed with fringe or with tails.

Handsome fluffy neck ruffles are made to match hats and there are ruffles that are in the most attractive shades of green to go with Charlotte Corday hats that are made of green velvet with flutings of green muslin and green chiffon.

Theater or Evening Waist.
Bodice of ivory colored silk, tucked at the top and draped below the bust. The slightly crossed fronts are bordered with a fine embroidery of silk cord to match and ornamented at the bottom with rosettes of the silk. The plastron is of lace, also matching the waist, and is ornamented with bows of lilac velvet ribbon. The little collar piece and the shoulder straps are composed of narrow bands of the silk, fagoted together. The sleeve is composed of two puffs, finished at the elbow with a little frill of the material and a deep frill of lace.

In Gray Velvet.
A fascinating frock of gray velvet has a skirt that fits the hips perfectly, and plaits are let in at the bottom to give the fullness desired. At intervals from below the hips are strips of braid reaching across from one seam to another, and then a space. The next breadth has the space filled in with the braid. The skirt frees the ground all the way round. The loose-fitting jacket has a loose-stitched girdle holding it closely to the figure, above which it blouses all the way round. Braid is applied at each side of the back seam and over the shoulder and down the front on each side of a white waistcoat embroidered in black and gray. Full puffed sleeves come below the elbows, and they are caught into deep cuffs of the embroidery.

Child's Winter Frock.
Child's frock of dark green cloth. The skirt is made with box plaits and trimmed with a band of ermine and straps of black braid. The blouse is box-plaited at the top (where it is trimmed with straps of braid) to a yoke of black astrakhan bordered with a band of ermine. The yoke is finished around the neck with a little collar of the cloth forming tabs in front, ornamented with buttons. The vest is of the material braided with black soutache, and over this is a little scalloped waistcoat, also of the material, embroidered with soutache. The sleeves are box-plaited and trimmed with the braid at the top, then are plaited in at the bottom to form cuffs finished at the wrists with bands of astrakhan. The girdle is of the material or of silk to match.

BRIDESMAIDS' GOWNS
The gown at the left is of white voile. The skirt is gathered at the top and trimmed at the bottom with wreaths of mousseline de sole roses, which are united by blue ribbons. The blouse has a yoke of gimpure bordered with roses and the bretelles are of the blue ribbon. The short puffed sleeves are finished with bands and knots of the ribbon. The wide, draped girdle is of blue or white silk. The other gown is of white mousseline de sole. The full skirt is trimmed at the bottom with little ruffles of the material, in two groups, separated by a band of gimpure. The blouse is entirely covered with the ruffles and is finished around the low neck with a band of gimpure. All these ruffles are edged with white taffeta, of which the girdle is also made, the latter finished on one side with a knot of the silk. The sleeves are each composed of two puffs, separated by a drapery of the mousseline de sole and finished with frills of the same.

Swayne Impeachment.
In spite of their hard work in his behalf, Judge Charles Swayne, of the Federal District Court for northern Florida, was this afternoon indicted of high crimes and misdemeanors by the house of representatives. The Senate will have to stand trial before the expiration of charges of falsification of expense accounts, tyranny, and grave misconduct. The speaker was authorized to appoint seven managers to present the case to the Senate and conduct the impeachment proceedings before that body. This action was the culmination of a debate which has been in progress for over a week and which has developed partisan feeling and personal vituperation.

Warning to China.
China's attention has again been indirectly invited by the American government to the necessity for a faithful maintenance of her neutrality, not only in her personal interest, but in the interest of the world's peace. Secretary Hay, on the receipt of the full text of Count Launsdorff's note expressing Russia's belief that China's neutrality had been repeatedly violated, today prepared instructions for the American charge at Peking, directing him to make inquiry of the Chinese government regarding the situation.

To Exchange Prisoners.
Japan's consent to an exchange of prisoners according to class and rank, has been received at St. Petersburg. Consequently in the near future three Russian officers captured on the Russian volunteer fleet cruiser Ekaterinoslav by the Japanese, will be exchanged for three Japanese officers captured on the Japanese transports Kinshin, sunk by the Russians in the sea of Japan, and Sado, driven ashore by the Russians in the sea of Japan. The question of an exchange of prisoners on this basis was raised by Russia last summer.

Clerk Watson Sentenced.
James M. A. Watson, the clerk in the auditor's office of the district government who was accused of embezzling $73,000 of funds entrusted to him by Auditor Petty, and recently convicted on two indictments involving $12,826, was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment in the penitentiary.

Buy Marshall Papers.
Ex-Judge of Probate William A. Lang and ex-Probate Register Dwight Waldo Knickerbocker purchased the Marshall Daily and Weekly News and succeed George E. Willits as editors and publishers. Mr. Knickerbocker is publisher of the Homer Index.

A Poultry Specialty

When a person confines his attention to one thing we call that a specialty. If a man on the farm keeps only one kind of fowl it is fair to call that a specialty. We do not advocate taking up a specialty. Some people are happy with a great variety of things. But the specialist has some things in his favor that the other man has not. He is steadily working toward one goal, and it is easier to reach one goal than several. In a way he becomes an expert relative to certain things. He can make a study of his fowls and become the possessor of more information on that particular breed than would be possible if he had other breeds.

Each breed has its own characteristics as to exercise. One breed will hang about the poultry house, no matter how large a range it has, while another is noted for its ranging propensities. Such things have to be studied and the feeding regulated accordingly. This is but one illustration out of many we might give. It is a pleasure to take one breed and see what can be done with it. If a man wishes to develop a strain of egg layers of exceptional ability he will need to settle down to one breed. It is by this process that our breeds have been improved. Long before the "hen fever" struck the country, about the middle of the last century, specialists were at work. In the main they did not strive to produce new breeds but only better strains of the breeds they already had. In this way the old jungle fowl of four thousand years ago, which laid 30 eggs a year, has been developed so that she produces five times as many eggs annually.

The need of development still remains, and hence the poultry specialist is still needed. As long as, in a laying breed of hens, some of them lay 200 eggs a year, others 100 and other 50, there is still room for improvement, in weeding out the tendencies that permit the production of only the smaller numbers of eggs. The hen that lays 50 eggs a year has in her makeup a large element of the primeval fowl. It is the force or tendency called atavism—the tendency to revert to the old form that is the cause of inferiority. The man that has a specialty in poultry must continually resist this tendency in fowls and must try by selection to eliminate it as much as possible.

Crowded Trees

In planting small trees in gardens and parks, they are usually put in from three to five feet apart. They have plenty of room to develop for a few years, then they touch each other, and go on until they become more or less crowded. This is a most common occurrence everywhere, and—if allowed to continue—is a great mistake, as the trees lose their beautiful individuality, and become an uninteresting mass. The choicer varieties are usually overshadowed by the more common kinds, which grow faster. Another bad result of overcrowding is that the trees only grow upwards, and thus the bottom branches die; then, when there is a clearance, they have lost all their fully furnished gracefulness. This is most regrettable, and happy are those who foresee this in time and take measures to thin the trees before the crowding has done any harm. Now is the time to see to this. Look over them all carefully, and mark all which ought to come out. Let the best sorts remain. They are established, and will become fine specimens sooner if not disturbed. Places for these to be removed may be found in other parts of the garden. Transplanting can be easily done in this case, and they are more certain of succeeding than bought trees. This thinning out and transplanting will be found very interesting work, for the whole process is cheerfully associated with the knowledge that such operations are all in favor of improvement. If the plants removed are to be used again, do not let them lie about, but as each one is dug up plant it in its new position. If there is no room to plant more it is better to remove the worthless and burn them than to let them remain to harm all the others. Neighbors are often glad to get the surplus, and plenty of people will buy them. Where a common tree grows in front and hides choice ones, the former should always be removed.

Coughs and Colds.
Dr. Richard H. Brown of the University of Illinois told the members of the Woman's Club of Settlement House at a recent meeting how to avoid catching cold and what to do after colds are caught. His subject was "Coughs."
He laid down the following rules for the prevention of coughs and colds:
Avoid spitters.
Sleep with the windows open.
Make yourself an oak instead of an orchid.
Keep the air indoors as pure as the air outdoors.
Do not let the temperature of your room get above 70 degrees.
Do not wear too much clothing, but just enough to keep warm.
Take a cool sponge bath every morning to harden the system against cold.
Do not overeat—as a nation we eat too much and foods that are too strong; drink more water.
After you get a cough:
Stay in bed and you will save time in the end.
Put on a camphorated pill jacket or flannel wrapping.
Avoid "dopers" parading "M. D." after their names.
Don't close up the room and poison yourself with impure air.
Don't neglect a single, simple cold, but get a good physician.
Don't overeat and don't starve yourself—strike a happy medium.

The Water a Cow Drinks

The water a milch cow drinks daily varies greatly with the animal. Some are great drinkers of cold water and some will hardly touch cold water. In some cases the teeth of cows are very sensitive to the cold and such animals find it a great hardship to be given very cold water. The writer remembers such a cow in a herd. When a pail of cold water was placed before her, in the winter, she would approach it, very gingerly, as if the cold water repelled her; then she would stick out her tongue and lap it for a long time before beginning to drink. Frequently, if the water was unusually cold she would suddenly turn on the pail of water and hook it over. The inference was that her teeth were so sensitive that the water hurt them. Such cows should be furnished tepid water. Since we have not yet come to cow dentistry we should make it as easy as possible for the animals with defective teeth.

But leaving aside the question of tenderness of teeth, cows differ greatly in the amount of water they drink, just as certainly as they do in the quantity of food they eat. This is natural, for the big eater requires much water to help digest her food. The system of the cow does not eat, it drinks. That is, the food in the various stomachs is merely worked over and reduced to a condition where it can be carried through the large intestines in a liquid condition. It requires a great deal of water to make solid foods liquid, when this water has to be in addition to what is cast off by the lungs. The nourishment from the food is absorbed through the walls of the intestines and has to be in a perfectly liquid state.

Now it is evident that the cow that is a light feeder and a light producer of milk requires less water than the cow that is a large producer of milk and consumes much food out of which to make milk. We have seen farmers in the winter time give each cow just so many pails of water—perhaps two. They would say "those other cows are regular hogs. Two pails of water is enough for these cows and they will have to get along with that amount." Well, if a man shuts off on the water a cow needs to help digest her food he must be satisfied with a decreased flow of milk.

Means of Cream Delivery

In a bulletin on cream gathering creameries by Profs. Dean and McFeeters, O. A. C., Guelph, Ont., the ways and means of delivering cream are discussed as follows:

Oblong or oval tanks have proved satisfactory for the use of cream collectors. The sides, top and bottom, should be well insulated, and the edges of the lids inlaid with cork in order to make a close joint. The inner lining should be of heavy tin (22 or 24 gauge), with as few seams as possible. Long, oblong tanks require some support, from the sides, and should have two square "wings" or partitions, extending from the top to within two or three inches of the bottom. These "wings" prevent, to some extent, the swaying and splashing of the cream from one end of the tank to the other while en route to the creamery. The oval shaped tanks, however, do not seem to require any special "splash wings."

Insulated or jacketed cans, holding from 30 to 35 creamery inches, are preferable in some ways to tanks. Where these are used a buttermaker is sometimes able to "grade" the cream when receiving it at the factory. If the contents of one can is found to be overripe or "off" in flavor, a maker may locate the source of trouble with much less difficulty than when tanks are used. On the other hand, however, well constructed tanks give better protection to the cream during transit. At creameries where both tanks and cans are in use, the temperature of the cream received from the tanks during warm weather is frequently 5 degrees lower than that delivered in cans.

The ideal system of delivery would find its nearest approach in the use of separate cans for each patron. The measuring or weighing and sampling would then justly fall to the buttermaker, who would be brought in close touch with the cream produced by each patron. This plan also enables the manager, if he wishes to do so, to grade the cream, and pay for it according to whether it is first or second class.

When cream collectors are provided with a means of straining each lot of cream, a patron's attention may be drawn to any curd or other matter found in the cream.

Townsend for a Third Term?

It appears to be the accepted opinion of sundry influential politicians of the second congressional district that Congressman Townsend wants a third term. It is recalled that upon the occasion of Mr. Townsend's first nomination in Adrian there appeared to be a promise on the part of the nominee that he would retire at the end of four years and support the Washtenaw claimant for honors. Mr. Townsend has enemies in his own county who are against him for a third term, prominent among whom is James O'Donnell, of the Jackson Citizen. Mr. O'Donnell thinks Mr. Townsend should stick to his alleged promise. If there is to be a "scrap" on ex-Congressman Henry C. Smith, whose popularity in the district has not diminished since going out of office, may re-enter the race, and if he does there is every indication that he will be successful, especially if it should be left to the people at a primary election to decide. Henry C. stands very close to the "populace."

The World's First Billionaire.

Detroit Tribune: The New York Commercial is a conservative financial journal. It has a tendency to underestimate rather than to exaggerate. And that paper states that in a few years the fortune of John D. Rockefeller will be fully one billion dollars, and that the oil king's present income is $6,000,000 a month.

As far as the actual possession of the money is concerned, the public is not harmed. The gold is not locked up. It has not been buried. The dollars are in circulation and passing through the hands of the butcher and baker and farmer and manufacturer.

And Mr. Rockefeller cannot eat them or wear them, or ward off disease or old age with them. As far as he is personally concerned, and beyond the million or two that he spends annually in gratifying hobbies and in actual living expenses, those dollars might as well be so much old junk, for all the good they do him.

But they do represent power. They do make it possible for one man to say who shall work and who shall starve, who shall engage in business and who shall not be allowed to be allowed to compete in the markets of the world. They make it possible to control legislation as well as the finances of the country. By centralizing industry and hogging opportunity, they force an increase in the number of those who must work for wages and decrease the number of those who would embark in business for themselves.

There are wise men in this country who see in this coming billionaire and what he represents a greater danger than America has ever known before and who believe that it can only be curbed by one of two methods: Legislation rigidly enforced, or revolution.

The last must not be. And while the world awaits the peaceful solution of this great problem the fortune that is too great for the human mind to comprehend is growing, growing.

TONGUISH

The Helping Hand society will hold its February meeting with Mr. and Mrs. John Hix next Wednesday. Every one is invited to attend.

Quite a number of relatives and friends attended the funeral of Mrs. E. Procter on Wednesday. The funeral was held from the home of her son, Geo. Procter at this place.

Our young students who are attending school in Plymouth was home all Monday afternoon on account of having examinations.

Mr. Raymer, and his sister from the State of New York and J. J. Rhead and wife of Wayne spent Wednesday with the latter's brother, John Rhead, at this place.

M. O. Hancock, of Plymouth, was down this way on Sunday.

Jay Sackett is working near Wayne. Mrs. Golmyewski, who has been very ill with pneumonia is a very little better at last reports.

Sleighing is fine now-a-days. Henry Utter, formerly of Tonguish, now living in Ann Arbor, was taken very ill with appendicitis and it was feared would have to undergo an operation, but it was prevented by the timely use of powdered leaf.

Mrs. Fred Schoultz spent Sunday with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ben Schoultz and family, living east of here.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Editors—Earl VanDeCar, Lula Belknap, Virgie Thompson and Una Gynsolly.

School opened Monday morning as usual with opening exercises, after which Mr. Isbell read a piece concerning the Hoffman case, and then gave his pupils some good advice which we hope will be regarded by the boys especially.

War is over and we are at peace once more.

Lucy Lapham has returned to school again after a week's illness.

C. B. is not only noted for her smiling face but also her service to two of the sophs as a note carrier.

Grace Greenlaw has entered the 9th grade, after an absence of about four years.

The Ancient History class were evidently greatly disappointed when they entered the recitation room Tuesday to make it their final home.

A Review Arithmetic class will take the place of the Algebra II. Several of the Seniors will take part in this and we sophs fear our heads.

There will be no school on Friday, as there is going to be a teachers' institute. The scholars' answer to this is "good."

The pupils were much surprised Monday morning when Mr. Isbell informed them about eleven o'clock that they might go home and they need not come back any more that day. Students are always glad for a holiday.

A number of students of the high school attended a sleigh ride party to the home of Frank Shaw, one of the former members of this high school Friday night. All report a good time.

One of our bright little Juniors says that he "doesn't like coffee without trimmings."

The German class seems to have organized a class which meets after school. Oh, my! How studious!

Another farewell party was given Miss Lucile Lincoln Thursday night. After an elegant luncheon, they took leave of their school-mate at a late hour.

Captain Monte Wood and ex-Captain Henderson are now arranging their base ball schedule, which will be the best ever arranged, principally because it is intended to play a strictly high school team.

Squints from examination papers: "Figurative speech makes descriptions more livid."

The high school is now offering a course of study to non-resident students which is highly beneficial, as it better prepares them for the teachers' examinations which are held in March. We have a number of students who expect to become school-ma'ams and all are happy to avail themselves of this opportunity. Arithmetic, American history and the study in English classics are all presented. If you are thinking of taking the examination, come up and see what we can do for you.

Found:—A gold ring, owner can have it by calling at 1st Grade room.

A number of children are returning after being sick with colds.

Eleanor Kensler, Velva Larkins and Irene Fisher were neither absent or tardy during the first semester. Aylis Chilson was tardy but once.

Quite a few students from the grammar grades on the upper floor are absent.

Several young people spent an enjoyable evening at the home of Ethel Smitherman Monday night. Proverbs were the order of the evening.

The following pupils of the 6th Grade were neither tardy nor absent last semester—Maude Northrup, Mabel Henderson, Carl Stever and Donald Leith.

Plymouth rejoices in the right kind of a school board—a board that grants necessary supplies for the asking and sends the teachers away to an inspiration institute rejoicing in its privilege.

Teacher's meeting Monday evening proved most enjoyable. The opening chapter of Jean Mitchell's school were read, a lesson sinking deep into the souls of the listeners. What a responsibility does the American teacher feel when she realizes the making of future Americans, the very foundation of our commonwealth is in her power! What bundles of habits, what possibilities are found in every pupil!

Read What Newspapers and Patients Say of Him.

Daily Press, Pontiac, Mich.: Dr. W. C. Walker, of Detroit, has made regular professional visits to Pontiac for nearly nine years. This fact, together with his continued large and successful practice here commends him to all in need of skillful and reliable medical treatment.

WHAT PATIENTS SAY.

Mrs. J. E. Boyer, of Pontiac, says: "I am quite well known, but in very poor health for seven years, suffering from bronchitis and lung trouble. She says: When I consulted Dr. Walker I was coughing and raising phlegm all the time nearly night and day, and had been for a long time. I was so run down I could scarcely get around. Dr. Walker helped me right along and, after being under his treatment a few months, only I am now able to do my own work, cough is all gone and I feel like myself again. I give this statement to the public with pleasure."

MRS. J. E. BOYER,
27 Osman street, Pontiac, Mich.
Mr. Chas. Noedel, of Walled Lake, Oakland county, Mich., gives the following for publication. He says: "I have had three different doctors for stomach trouble, but found no relief until I treated with Dr. Walker, who makes regular visits to Pontiac. The doctor has made a complete cure of my case."

CHAS. NOODEL,
Walled Lake, Mich.
M. Walker Bartow, of Pontiac, says, after taking a course of treatment from Dr. Walker for catarrh: "Am now free from that very distressing and annoying disease."

WALTER BARTOW,
Pontiac, Mich.

Mr. Isaac Voorheis, a well-known citizen of Clarkston, Oakland county, Mich., says: "I had suffered terribly with stomach trouble for years, but after taking a course of treatment from Dr. W. C. Walker, of Detroit, I feel like a new man. I have also gained fifteen pounds in weight under his treatment."

ISAAC VOORHEIS,
Clarkston, Mich.

Mrs. Charles Todd, of Hamburg, Livingston county, Mich., says: "About four years ago my trouble began. The doctors called my disease 'consumption of the bowels.' From the time I was first taken I steadily grew worse in spite of all medical aid. I realized that I was on the decline and that death was staring me in the face. In this condition I went to Dr. W. C. Walker, of whose skill I had heard so much. After taking a course of his treatment, I am entirely cured. I feel very grateful."

MRS. CHAR. TODD,
Hamburg, Mich.

Mr. E. Myres, Detroit, says: "I have treated with seven different doctors; also taken several of the best remedies advertised, all of which did me no lasting good. Was permanently cured by Dr. W. C. Walker in a few months. Discontinued treatment about six months ago. I feel splendid. Have had no return of former troubles."

E. MYRES,
Detroit, Mich.

Mr. J. F. Arnold, of Oxford, Mich., cured of chronic eczema, 15 years standing.

Dr. Walker's methods for treatment and cure of diseases peculiar to women are unsurpassed. Also men suffering from Nervousness, Debility, Neurasthenia, Nervous Disorder, Defective Memory, etc., or any disease that weakens or impairs the physical or mental health, successfully and skillfully treated. Consultation free.

Remember Dr. Walker has made a Specialty of chronic diseases for many years and his success is well known.

No matter what your disease or ailment, if you have been unable to find a cure, consult Dr. Walker.

Persons applying for treatment on day of visit will please bring two to four ounces of urine, first passed in the morning preferred, for analysis.

"One Year in the Rebel Army" is the title of a lecture, which will be delivered by Rev. J. M. Barkley, D. D., of Detroit, in the Presbyterian church next Tuesday evening. The Doctor has delivered this lecture before many audiences and it should be heard by every one in Plymouth. Both the humorous and pathetic side of army life will be presented and taken as a whole, will prove highly entertaining. Tickets 20 and 15 cents.

Supt. Isbell is of the opinion that the Michigan school law, so far as it relates to truancy, is of but little use. Under the law children can be compelled to attend but four days a week and four months of the year. Mr. Isbell knows of instances where children stay out of school the fifth day out of the week and thereby lose much of the interest in school work, besides they do not keep up with their classes. The teachers of the State might bring a pressure to bear upon the legislature and have the fault remedied.

Sickening Shivering Fits of ague and malaria can be relieved and cured with Electric Bitters. THE above picture of the man and fish is the trademark of Scott's Emulsion, and is the synonym for strength and purity. It is sold in almost all the civilized countries of the globe.

If the cod fish became extinct it would be a world-wide calamity, because the oil that comes from its liver surpasses all other fats in nourishing and life-giving properties. Thirty years ago the proprietors of Scott's Emulsion found a way of preparing cod liver oil so that everyone can take it and get the full value of the oil without the objectionable taste. Scott's Emulsion is the best thing in the world for weak, backward children, thin, delicate people, and all conditions of wasting and lost strength.

Languages of India.

Among the 145 distinct languages spoken in British India are some possessing only a few hundred words, others rivaling English, as Dr. Grierson says, or Russian, as I would say, in their copiousness, some in which every word is a monosyllable, others in which some are elongated by agglutination till they run to ten syllables, like da-pa-locho-akan-taken-ta-tin-a—a Soutal word meaning: "He who belongs to him who belongs to me will continue letting himself be made to fight." Some of these divers loquaces lack verb and noun, others are as complex and systematic as Greek and Latin.—Nineteenth Century.

Preserving the Teeth.

To preserve the teeth in health and beauty is a most important matter for thus one not only saves one's self pain and expense, but also actually prolongs one's life—the decay and loss of teeth being but the initial stages of the general break-up of the health. Artificial teeth are at their best vastly inferior to one's own teeth in good working order. To prevent decay of the latter, absolute cleanliness of the mouth is essential.

HIS EXPERIENCE TEACHES THEM

That Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure Bright's Disease. Remarkable case of George J. Barber—Quick recovery after years of suffering.

Estherville, Iowa, Jan. 23d.—(Special)—The experience of Mr. George J. Barber, a well known citizen of this place, justifies his friends in making an announcement to the world. Bright's Disease can be cured." Mr. Barber had kidney trouble and it developed into Bright's Disease. He treated it with Dodd's Kidney Pills and to-day he is a well man. In an interview he says:

"I can't say too much for Dodd's Kidney Pills. I had kidney disease for fifteen years and though I doctor-ed for it with the best doctors here and in Chicago, it developed into Bright's Disease. Then I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and two boxes cured me completely. I think Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best in the world."

A remedy that will cure Bright's Disease will cure any other form of kidney disease. Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to cure Bright's Disease.

Library and its Contents.

A library is like a butcher's shop; it contains plenty of meat, but it is all raw; no person living can find a meal in it till some good cook comes along and says: "Sir, I can see by your looks that you are hungry; I know your taste; be patient for a moment and you shall be satisfied that you shall have an excellent appetite."—G. ### CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

Gil being wrapped in his thoughts and his pipe, I bethought me of the letter given me by my father. I had been so busy getting ready and occupied with one thing and another that I had barely read it. It had a great interest for me. I had placed it in an envelope, sealed, and marked it with the word "Private." Then I had put it carefully away in an inside pocket of my coat.

Some man—possibly he might be dead—when he wrote those few words on that slip of paper committed as foul a crime as any in the category of sins. Should I ever run him down, and he be living, I would remember my father and my hand should not fall lightly. I wondered if perchance there was anything about the paper overlooked by which the perpetrator might be discovered. I would take it out again and examine it more closely— minutely.

I put my hand into my pocket, which was a deep one; it was empty, void as the air. I gasped with astonishment. Ah! no doubt, heedlessly I had changed it to another pocket. I began a search for it. No use, it was gone. I reined up my horse.

Gil came riding back. "What is it?" he asked. "My God!" I exclaimed, "I have lost my letter!"

"Letter?" he repeated, and looked as if he thought me daft. "Why thrash over the same ground? If the girl who stole the paper is not to be found, and you want the lady for a bride, why will you see what force can do." "Devil take that piece of paper," I muttered in my distress; "tis of the letter given me by my father I am speaking."

"Ah-h-h!" he said, and his guttural utterance was expressive of many things.

"It is of the greatest importance, Gil," I said; "in fact, on it hangs the reason Lord Waters sends me to London. Without it, why I might as well go back to Long Haut. My God! I am afraid it will be the death of him."

"Taken in again," muttered Gil, "and by petticoats."

"What do you mean?" I demanded severely. "This is no time for joking."

"Ride on and put up at the Golden Acorn," he retorted. "See that there is another horse awaiting for me. I will be back in five hours."

"I had better go with you; two pairs of eyes are better than one. Anyway, without the paper I can accomplish nothing," I returned dolefully.

"No, if one isn't enough, two will be no better," he replied. "I can attend to the business. If I am not successful we can then both go back home. Be sure the horses are in good condition ready to start upon my return."

So saying he turned his horse's head and went back over the road that we had just come.

There was an old grandfather's clock standing in the corner of the tap room where I sat moodily waiting. When the clock should strike seven the five hours given Gil by himself for the accomplishing of his purpose would be up. I assure you I had no hope; I had carelessly lost the paper on the way and this time the rain and the mud had blotted it out of all resemblance to the thing it had been. I was a discreet person to send upon a serious mission. I was loading myself with contumely. The clock began to clang the hour. I started (although I had on an average glanced at that clock every five minutes since entering the tap room), and looked up at the door opening and showed me Gil standing in the hallway lighting his pipe. Gil, in a state little short of demoralization, clothes half torn from off him, and a wound in his head from which the blood flowed. I was too crushed to do aught but gaze at him. His condition certainly did not bespeak success—it was impossible that he could have found it.

He walked over to where I sat and took a paper on the table at my right. I picked it up. It was the paper without doubt, minus the envelope, perfectly dry, only a little crumpled.

My elastic nature rebounded at once. I jumped up and hugged him. "You are a jewel of the first water, Gil," I cried. "Where did you find it?" Before he could answer I added: "But first before you begin let me look to that cut. You are hurt."

"Not much. I left those behind hurt worse," he answered, dabbing his wound with a napkin. "It will soon heal. Yes, I found the paper without much trouble following the clue I had. You remember at the White Swan, when Jock brought in your coat brushed and dried he laid it down on a chair. In your eagerness to see the ladies into their magenta colored coach you did not put it on until you returned to the room after their departure. I also went out, but I came back again to see 'pretty Alice Lynson' jump, rather too suspiciously, quick away from your coat when she heard me, and color over her pretty face. When you said that something was gone, I remembered the incident; and as I had not forgotten the maid and the other paper—well, women are great imitators, but poor strategists. I ran them down about five miles from the inn. I told her in a few words, but to the point, to give up what she had stolen or be taken back to the constable, who, no doubt, was quite ready to resume operations where they had been cut off, and this time she could come in for her share since she had winked at a prisoner's escape. She cried—she—My God; these women! they are born to cajole poor men till they get what they want, and then the devil may take you for a thank you."

"Yes, yes, what then?" I asked impatiently.

"The crying wouldn't do a bit—paper or jail, said I," he continued. "Then she gave it up and I read her a lesson on woman, and woman's gratitude. She told me this—you must take it for what it is worth; I believe no woman. She had been bought by

"Ah, I see," she said, sarcastically, the enemy, Sir Raoul Dwight. He knew her, no doubt, as 'pretty Alice Lynson.' It was for him she was to get a paper you had hidden on your person. Such had been her object when she left him yesterday, but on the way to the inn she had fallen in with the constable, who had just arrested her husband, Martin Toms. All thought of the paper was forgotten in the greater calamity, until we happened in at the White Swan. She said that if she had known that we were going to be so kind to her she would not have taken the paper for all the Raoul Dightws in the world. You understand she said this, I but repeat her words. She added with more blubbering that after she left the inn, instead of keeping to the main road she had branched off to Trefford, where she was to meet Raoul Dwight's man. He was waiting for her; she gave him the paper. He opened it, and then he jammed her for a fool and threw it back at her."

"I see. Sir Raoul Dwight had in some way learned that we were to go over this road to London," I said. "He thought to gain the promise of marriage. Strange he didn't come after it himself."

Gil mused. Presently he said apropos of nothing, "Pretty Alice Lynson" by her indiscretion having started him on his favorite theme—women:

"Woman is like a sparkling glass of wine, you feel as though you could never get enough, but God! how heavy they both fall upon you next day. I and lord, your bill. Come, let us be off."

"But you have not told me how you received that scratch?" I asked him. A fierceness came over his eye.

"I fell in with the constable's fellows," he replied to the point, "and they recognized me. They were coming from housing the constable."

"I wish I had been with you," I said. "It was too one-sided—three against one."

"It was brief. If I trusted them before, I finished my work by carbonadoing them now," he said, and laughed.

CHAPTER IX.

A World Worn Journey.

Only one day's journey from London! A day I felt that for me would stretch itself out even unto twelve times its original length before we should reach our bidding place, but, God willing, we hoped to hear the bells of Bow church ring out their evening chime.

We had been in the saddle all night, and I was galled from riding in spite of the many ways I had of easing myself. I was now riding with my legs hanging over one side as I had seen market men do to balance the weight of their horses.

It was yet early in the morning, the dew was on the gossamer. Gil boggled those last hours of the early morn with reminiscences of the times he had had in London, that "hotbed of iniquity."

The road had been for miles through a forest tract where the trees were so dense that, although the sun shone brightly, splashes of light were seen only in places. We came out abruptly into the open space. So clean cut was the division, it was as if a giant's knife had separated the woods from the open country. We were upon an elevation and looking down (we could see as soon as our eyes became accustomed to the glare) great lengths of rolling heath and hill, while the tapering road wound in and out like the delicate tracery on a piece of tapestry.

The boastings were hardly from his mouth, when he added: "Hasten, there is trouble ahead!" and put spurs to his horse.

I knew from his exclamation that his piercing eyes had caught sight of an object my more obtuse ones had not yet seen; that I was not long in finding out going at the pace we were.

We kept to the sides of the road so that the noise of the horses' feet coming on the turf should not be heard. When we had ridden near enough, we stopped in the sheltering shade of a clump of trees. It hid us from view. To the side of the road a post coach was standing on the two wheels of one side. The other two were in the air looking woefully out of place. The six horses plunged and trembled. At their heads were masked men—highwaymen—bold fellows, too, to be about their business in so open a spot on the country's face.

"Not the 'Magenta colored coach,'" ejaculated Gil.

In the stillness of the atmosphere we heard the high clear thread of a patrician voice.

"Pray, good sir, go easy," it said. "Tis not so I have heard it said that gentlemen who take to the road are wont to treat the gentler sex. They use them courteously, I assure you."

"Your pardon, madame," answered a deeply musical voice. It came from the rogue standing by the coach door. "Allow me. Only one moment shall I inconvenience you, for which I again crave pardon."

With that the scamp helped the lady out of the coach and proceeded to search it.

"Ah, I see," she said sarcastically, "you are truly one of those gallant ones who lighten the purses of wayfarers."

"By my faith," said he, "some need relieving."

"That's as it may be," she retorted. "Men must take the chances of war I care only where it affects myself. Now if you would imitate that world-renowned highwayman, Claude Duval you would request the honor of a dance on the green, and in payment—" She gave a suggestive shrug and wave of her hand. Then she lifted her dress in one hand to show her feet, and most wantonly took a few steps in the minut. Her manner was bewitching.

THE ROLL IN THE ROLL.

True Use of the Pompadour Disclosed in a Railroad Dining Car.

"We live to learn," said the traveling man. "For the past four or five years I have admired the pompadour style of dressing woman's hair; but until recently it had never occurred to me that this mode of arranging the locks might possess practical utility as well."

"I was in the diner of a train about an hour out of Chicago when I perceived a particularly stylish brunette with a girl friend sitting at the table just ahead of me. What especially caught my eye was the mass of beautiful hair piled up on that girl's head."

"While the arrangement of it was entirely becoming to the comely young woman, yet I'll venture to say that her pompadour rose to the height of some eight inches from the forehead."

"The two young women had about finished their dinner when I entered the car and were fumbling in their purses for the wherewithal to pay for the meal. Between them they managed to rake up some 56 cents."

"Well," observed the stunning brunette with the big pompadour, "it looks like I shall have to go into my roll."

"And with that the glorious creature calmly removed her hat, ran her fingers through the mass of dusky hair and fished out a bundle of money."

"There," she exclaimed when the operation had been completed, "I have it. I always carry my money in my hat when I'm traveling. It's so much safer than any other way."

Gotham's Child Labor Evils. Robert Hunter, the wealthy head worker of the university settlement in New York city, declares that despite the child labor law, and undetected by the labor inspectors, there is one factory in which are at work 300 children under 14 years of age. In another factory, he adds, one boy 9 years of age was employed; his sister, at the age of 7, and a younger brother, 4 years old, earning 19 cents a day. In another place a girl of 3 was at work.

LIVE STOCK

Beet Pulp for Sheep.

The Record-Stockman of Denver is authority for the statement that about 5,000 sheep are being fattened at Greeley, Colo., by the Greeley Sugar company. They are divided up in pens of 700 to 800 sheep each, each pen being in charge of a feeder whose business it is to watch them closely. Oct. 11, at the time they were put on feed, they averaged seventy-four pounds each, and during the first three weeks made a gain of two and a half pounds per head per week. The ration is ten pounds of pulp to one-half pound of alfalfa hay per day per head. To this ration it is expected to add a small ration of sugar beet molasses. Experiments last year indicated that the molasses tended to make a firmer flesh, and that sheep fed with it as part of the ration shrunk less in shipping. The sugar company expects to feed during the season approximately 15,000 head of sheep and 500 to 600 head of cattle. The results last year were a profit of 90 cents per head for the pulp feed sheep. Experiments were conducted last year in feeding pulp and alfalfa and corn, with the result that the pulp and alfalfa fed sheep gained from 15 to 25 per cent more than those which received the corn in addition.—Wallace's Farmer.

Care of the Bull.

In the care of the bull gentleness is the first consideration. He learns that no one is going to abuse him and he does not look for trouble. Firstly, a bull should be raised right, then there is no trouble. It takes many months to tame a badly raised bull and our advice is to let such a bull alone. Have a small stable or pen by the barn or other convenient place where the bull may be kept. An exercising lot is essential to his health. Brush him off daily and feed him a little grain. Feed only clean hay, and salt should always be before him. Water him regularly. Good service from him is only had by giving him good care. When a bull is kept up and a record is made of each cow bred, all the calves may be saved that bad weather would kill if they came at such times. Have a sort of system about things in the care of cows.

Clover Hay for Hogs.

So far this season there has been abundant pasture for hogs, continue to be until the ground freezes up this fall. Where farmers have a supply of good clover hay, either of the first or second cutting, they should make very free use of it, particularly with brood sows and shoats. It will give them a cheap supply of protein, which this class of hogs particularly needs.

A good supply of it in the fattening pen will not be amiss. It will furnish variety, especially where the hogs are fed wholly on corn, and will at the same time tend to balance the ration. We are so accustomed to regarding hay as fit only for cattle and horses that we forget that the hog will eat a certain quantity of it with great relish and to great advantage. If you do not believe that hogs will eat good clover hay, just give them a chance.

Catching Sheep by the Wool.

We are almost out of patience when we see men who have kept sheep for years catch them by seizing hold of their wool. It is cruel, shamefully cruel, and a man with any heart in him would never do it a second time if he could see the red, blood-settled looking flesh always found under such a spot if the poor sheep is killed shortly after the abuse. It is almost as easy to catch sheep by the neck or leg, and if it were not it would be no excuse, tearing, as it frequently does, the skin from the flesh just beneath it. The sheep is so delicately made and the skin is made so tender by the close protecting fleece that it is a much more serious thing to pull the wool of a sheep than the hair on one's head.

An Automatic Lice Killer.

An ingenious method of applying kerosene or other liquid lice destroyer to hogs has been discovered by an Indiana hog raiser. A good solid oak post a foot or a foot and a half in height is placed in position in the hog lot. One hole is bored in the top to the depth of about eight inches and two at right angles from the sides at the bottom of the vertical hole. Soft pine pins are driven into the side holes. The upright hole is filled with kerosene, and stoppered. Next a bur-lap strip eight or ten inches wide is wrapped around the post over the side plugs. This after a time becomes soaked with kerosene and the pigs will rub against it at the place where it will do the most good.

Sheep a Farm Necessity.

To stock a farm with sheep does not require a large amount of money, and the risk is small, as with proper care very few, if any, will die. "Sheep on the farm will make the land more productive and profitable, with less labor and expenditure, than other domestic animals. During the grazing season their droppings are more evenly distributed over the fields than those of any other animals, and by keeping their yards and sheds thoroughly well littered a large quantity of the best fertilizing material can be obtained. Again, sheep are excellent weed exterminators and they eat with relish many varieties of woods other animals will not touch. Every farmer should own a flock of sheep.

CONSTANT ACHING.

Back aches all the time. Spoils your appetite, weakens the body, worries the mind. Kidneys cause it all and Doan's Kidney Pills relieve and cure it.

H. B. McCarver, of 201 Cherry St., Portland, Ore., Inspector of freight for the Trans-Continental Co., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills for back ache and other symptoms of kidney trouble which had annoyed me for months. I think a cold was responsible for the whole trouble. It seemed to settle in my kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills rooted it out. It is several months since I used them, and up to date there has been no recurrence of the trouble."

Appreciated 'Clarissa.'

Edward Young, author of "Night Thoughts," wrote in 1749 to the Duchess of Portland a letter containing an enthusiastic reference to Richardson's "Clarissa," and this letter has just been published among the Longleat MSS. "Has your grace read his 'Clarissa'?" says Young. "What a beautiful brat of the brain is there! I wish your grace would staid godmother and give its name 'Clarissa the Divine.' That romance will probably do more good than a body of Divinity. If all printers could turn such authors I would turn printer in order to be instrumental in promoting such benefit to mankind." The modern author may well sigh for such appreciation.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rubbing sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; also cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh of the Membrane of the Middle Ear. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure, and for circulars, free.

Free Meals for Children.

One of the charities of London is the Southwark free meals fund, the aim of which is that no child in the borough of Southwark shall go hungry during the winter months. Last year it gave away 133,000 breakfasts and dinners.

Capital Punishment in Sweden.

In Sweden confession is necessary before capital punishment can be carried out. If, however, the culprit persists in protesting his innocence in the face of overpowering evidence, the prison discipline is made extremely strict and severe until the desired confession is obtained.

A GREAT SUFFERER

LAY HELPLESS AND SPEECHLESS FOR HOURS AT A TIME.

Sinking Spells, Headaches, Rheumatism, All Caused by Poor Blood—Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

When Mrs. Williams was asked for some details of the fearful illness from which she had so long suffered, she spoke as follows:

"Ever since I had nervous prostration, about thirteen years ago, I have had periodical spells of complete exhaustion. Any excitement or unusual activity would throw me into a state of listlessness. At the beginning my strength would come back in a moderate time, but the period of weakness kept lengthening until at last I would lie helpless as many as three hours at a stretch."

"You were under medical treatment, of course?"

"Yes, when I became so bad that I had to give up my housework, in May of 1903, I was being treated for kidney trouble, and later the doctor thought my difficulties came from changes of blood. I was not only weak, but I had dizzy feelings, palpitation of the heart, misery after eating, hot flashes, nervous headaches, rheumatic pains in the back and hips. The doctor did me no little good that I gave up his treatment, and finally feared that my case was incurable."

"What saved you from your state of hopelessness?"

"In July of 1903 I had a very bad spell, and my husband came in one day with a little book which told of remarkable cures effected by a remedy for the blood and the nerves, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He bought a box for me, and that was the beginning of my return to health. My appetite grew keen, my food no longer distressed me, my nerves were quiet, and my strength began to revive."

"How long did you take this remedy?"

"For two months only. At the end of that time I had regained my health and cheerfulness, and my friends say that I am looking better than I have done for the past fifteen years."

Mrs. Lizzie Williams is now living at No. 416 Cedar street, Quincy, Illinois. The pills which she praises so highly, cure all diseases that come from impoverished blood. If your system is all run down, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the very best remedy to take. Any drug-gist can supply them.

The Sea Beyond the Bar

Just looking at the bar
We should not dream that far
The ocean rolled on its limitless way
Beyond the bay.

The bar bounds all, and lies
Where meet the earth and skies.
We see no surging waves, nor hear their mystic tunes
Beyond the dunes.

Across the bay, my barge
Cruises to that dim marge,
Or fast or slow my course, it endeth at the bar
That lies afar.

There, there shall meet my sight
A sea of living light.
There shall the ocean of God's love upon the shore
Break evermore.

A MODERN KNIGHT ERRANT

BY WALTER BEOWNE

(Copyright, 1905, by Dally Story Pub. Co.)

"Terrible disgrace to his family! An awful thing that such a bright, promising young fellow as Jack should be a self-confessed burglar. Caught in the act, by Jove!"

These words, spoken by a mutual friend of Jack and myself, staggered me. Jack a burglar! The notion seemed grotesquely absurd. Jack—light-hearted, handsome, honest Jack, whom I had regarded as the soul of honor, a midnight burglar, caught and admitting his guilt! Such a story seemed utterly impossible.

I had known this great overgrown boy for years and never had believed him capable of anything mean. I had even thought him too scrupulous and stupidly good at times. His life was an open book. His only fault, if fault it was, lay in a foolish friendship which had existed between him and a well-known and extremely handsome comic opera singer called Connie Calcium.

While her infatuation for the athletic young civil engineer had perhaps been too conspicuous, the one thing I had most admired in Jack was the manly way in which he had always guarded her good name, and his readiness to resent any disrespectful allusion to the lady at any time.

Jack and I had been in Mexico for months building bridges and battling with fevers. On returning to the States I had stayed a week in Washington, attending to some private business, while he had come on to New York.

Only a few days ago we had parted, both full of bright prospects for the future. True, I remembered that Jack's ready money was running low; that he would have to economize for a month or two until some unfinished work was done. But to imagine he might become a burglar—a common thief—was impossible. Still it was said, it was printed in all the newspapers, that he had been caught at midnight in a millionaire's house in Fifth avenue, caught on the threshold of a room occupied by Mrs. Vickersby, the millionaire's wife, and wherein was many thousand dollars worth of diamonds. It was even suggested that, had he not been provisionally discovered, he might have added murder to his crime.

What should I do? He must withdraw his plea. He must at least be properly defended. I was in an even worse financial plight than he had been, and in all the world I could only think of Connie Calcium, who might aid him. But how could I find her? While in Washington I had heard some vague rumors of her having married and left the stage. Even if she could be found, I disliked the idea of appealing to her in Jack's behalf.

I went to Jack's old rooms and with some difficulty obtained admission from the crusty landlady, who vowed her house had been disgraced by having harbored a "second-story sneak thief." Looking sorrowfully around, I saw on his desk a new photograph of silent grip of the hand, he turned away from me. I left the prison, thoroughly bewildered. I could not believe Jack guilty, and I determined to clear him, before he came up for sentence, if possible. In my dilemma I decided first to call at the house in which he had been arrested and hear from the millionaire's own lips those details which Jack refused to tell me.

It was a big brown stone house in Fifth avenue. The servant who answered my ring told me that Mr. Vickersby was out of town. Mrs. Vickersby was at home. Would she do?

I answered "Yes," and after suspiciously examining my card, the flunky condescended to carry it to his mistress. I was left standing in the hall. In a few moments I heard the swish of silks, and a beautiful woman floated down the stairs. Instantly I recognized her, in spite of her changed surroundings, in spite of an unwonted sorrowful expression and eyes which looked like weeping. It was Connie Calcium, the one-time merry little comic opera soubrette.

She led me to her elegant boudoir, and between sobs of real sorrow, in agony of heart, she told me the true story. Then I knew. I knew why that noble, great-hearted, chivalrous boy, that modern knight-errant, had cheerfully taken upon himself so terrible a punishment; had submitted to the stigma of being regarded as a self-confessed burglar.

Jack had not known of Connie's marriage to Vickersby. She had heard of his arrival in New York, and sent for him; in the absence of her husband. When Jack's presence would have compromised the woman, her husband had unexpectedly returned. Then, to shield the reputation of the erring wife, his former fickle lover, Jack had freely sacrificed himself.

What did I do? Let Jack go to ruin for a jade like that? Not I. There was a big scene, but justice is justice, and I had no sentimental feelings for either Connie or her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Vickersby have since resided in Europe "on account of the lady's delicate health." Jack is now one of the leading civil engineers in New York city.

visit Jack in his cell and get his permission to enlist the aid of his former sweetheart, to the end that he might at least have efficient counsel.

I saw him, but he emphatically declined to have the lady associated in any way with the matter. He forbade me even to seek her and tell her of his trouble. He told me if I valued his friendship to let matters take their course.

I asked him to explain the circumstances of his arrest. I implored him, by an old friendship, to tell me he was not guilty. All he would say was that he had been caught by the master of the house and had no excuse to make, no defense to offer. "His plea of guilty must stand. When I squarely told him I believed he could clear himself if he tried, he laughed and said he was sorry, for my sake, but it was really none of my business. Then, with a

"The World of Medicine Recognizes Grip as Epidemic Catarrh."—Medical Talk.

La Grippe is Epidemic Catarrh.

It spares no class or nationality. The cultured and the ignorant, the aristocrat and the pauper, the masses and the classes are alike subject to la grippe. None are exempt—all are liable.

Grip is well named. The original French term, la grippe, has been shortened by the busy American to read "grip."

Without intending to do so, a new word has been coined that exactly describes the case. As if some hideous giant with awful grip had clutched us in its fatal grasp.

Men, women, children, whole towns and cities are caught in the baneful grip of a terrible monster.

Have you the grip? Or, rather, has the grip got you? If so, read the following letters.

These testimonials speak for themselves as to the efficacy of Peruna in cases of la grippe or its after-effects:

A Southern Judge Cured.

Cured in a Few Weeks.

Miss Jean Cowgill, Griswold Opera House, Troy, N. Y., is the leading lady with the Aubrey Stock Co. She writes the following:

"During the past winter of 1901, I suffered for several weeks from a severe attack of grip, which left a serious catarrhal condition of the throat and head.

"Some one suggested Peruna. As a last resort, after wasting much time and money on physicians, I tried the remedy faithfully, and in a few weeks was as well as ever."—Jean Cowgill.

FEEDING WORKING HORSES IN WINTER.

After the ground freezes up in the fall, many farmers have not enough work to give their horses proper exercise and particularly when horses are first confined to the stables they have trouble with swelled legs and other derangements. This state of affairs may usually be avoided by adjusting the food to the changed conditions. Horses that do little work during the winter do not require much grain if they are getting hay and we have kept horses in excellent condition and have fed only a small amount of grain where they were fed straw instead of hay. A fair proportion of the winter grain ration should consist of bran. Bran, in addition to having a rather high nutrient value, acts as a mild laxative and keeps the digestive system in a healthy condition. An occasional mess of boiled grain is also a fine thing for farm horses in winter. Boiled barley is very much relished, but when it is not at hand, we use oats. We would feed a mess of boiled grain at least once a week and have fed it as often as once per day. Carrots are excellent for horses during the winter and most horses are very fond of them. They have a beneficial effect on the system and add succulency to the ration. Under favorable conditions carrots yield a very large crop and though they may require considerable labor in growing them, if once given a trial, farmers would not care to be without them.

Mr. W. T. B. of Canton, Mo., writes: "Have just moved here from Iowa. Bought a farm with an orchard on it. The man last year used concentrated lye in making whitewash, and has destroyed a large per cent of the orchard. Shall I replant with apple or some other variety of tree?"

In reply to our correspondent will say that if the former owner used much lye in his whitewash, you will find that all the trees that were so treated will die. If the orchard is old, or at least fifteen or eighteen years of age, we would advise selecting a new site for starting a new orchard. You will get an orchard easier, quicker and the trees will be more uniform. Then you can plant just such varieties as has proven best in your part of the state. In the old orchard referred to, if there are a number of the trees that will survive, we would plant the rest of the ground in cherry trees, as the cherry does very well in that part of the state.

DAIRY NOTES.

Milking when it happens is a good way of letting the cows know that you do not care whether dairying pays or not, and they are not long about learning it, too.

The best method in handling butter to make it weigh well and be of fine quality is to churn the cream at 55 degrees. The wash water should be fifty-three degrees.

Manipulate the churn carefully and stop churning when the granules are no larger than wheat kernels.

Sprinkle the salt in the butter and let it stand one-half hour and then work.

You will find all the salt dissolved and the butter will be moist and have plenty of grain.

Many people work butter too much. It should be pressed together. Never use a rubbing motion.

If worked as soon as salted the butter will be dry, as all the water will be worked out, will consequently weigh less and the flavor will not be so fine.

If butter is to be used at once, one washing is sufficient; if it is to be kept a long time, wash two or three times.

Never let water stand on butter. Never churn until the last added cream has been mixed twenty-four hours in winter.

Churn in a room as near 60 degrees as possible. Never in a very hot or a very cold room. Never fill the churn more than half full.

Churn at medium speed—about forty-five revolutions per minute. Never pack butter when it is soft. Never attempt to churn without using a thermometer. Guess work doesn't pay in butter-making.

Where cold storage cannot be had one of the best ways to keep apples from rotting is to place them in open barrels in a cool cellar that is of free access to a troop of growing boys or girls.

A GREAT BEEF BREED.

The distinguishing color of the Hereford breed of cattle is red, with a white face, chest and belly; white flank and white tip to the tail, white on the legs, white mane and often a white line along the back. They are especially noted for their beef qualities, the meat being very superior. It is also claimed that the breed is all right as a dairy animal.

Open the front cellar windows on cold nights; keep shut on warm days; this advice will be worth while, if heeded.

BAD INFLUENCE OF DIRT.

Undoubtedly Exercises a Deleterious Moral Effect.

Dirty is contagious. If anybody doubts it let him observe the streets. Littered with all sorts of rubbish, they offer a positive invitation to everybody to toss or sweep his surplus matter into them. If the streets were kept in a proper state of cleanliness no decent person at least would think of throwing anything upon the road way or in the gutters. There is also a moral effect. Cleanly surroundings beget clean habits. Children going to and from school are unconsciously influenced by what they see, and dirty streets being a standing example of untidiness in those to whom they naturally look for leading, they grow in different and careless. Thus the tolerance of dirt on the streets becomes not only a menace to health, but an influence for evil. Considerations of this sort may have no place in the average alderman's mind, which seems to take its inspirations from medieval times when the public thoroughfares were the common sewers—Chicago Journal.

TWO DUELS NOT FOUGHT.

Bismarck Figured in Both, But Scored Only in One.

Bismarck and Rechberg, the Austrian premier, decided to fight a duel upon a certain morning. "Why not now?" said Bismarck; "we have our pistols here." And they agreed to a duel there and then. But first Bismarck had to write a dispatch to his government giving the cause of the duel. This he asked Rechberg to forward in case he (Bismarck) fell. Rechberg read the report and his passion cooled. "What you say is quite correct," he remarked, "but is it really worth fighting a duel for such a reason?" "That is exactly my opinion," said Bismarck, and the matter ended on the spot. That was Bismarck's triumph, but Rechberg scored when the "Iron chancellors" challenged him. "Here are two sausages," said Rechberg, "one filled with trichinae, the other perfectly wholesome. But they cannot be told apart. Let his excellency do me the honor to eat one and I will eat the other." The duel was not fought.

Newton Had Jealous Mother.

The bachelorhood of Sir Isaac Newton was a puzzle to some of his contemporaries, but others knew he remained single solely on account of his mother. He thought the world of her and her affection for him was unbounded, but her maternal love was marred by jealousy, and whenever her son thought of marriage or even a passing interest in a pretty face she wept and wrung her hands and managed somehow to check true love's course. He finally told her he would give up all notion of marriage as long as she lived. After her death he found himself too deeply absorbed in his scientific work and too mature to think of matrimony.

Virtue in "Holy Wells."

Practically all the ills to which the flesh is heir can be cured by one or another of the holy wells of Fagad. It is claimed, St. Nuan's, in Cornwall, is said to restore lunatics to sanity, but the patient must be immersed in the water and held there until the breath has nearly left his body. This seems a heroic measure. But even this is not so severe as the treatment which must be endured if a madman is to be cured at Llandegla Well, in Wales, for after the victim is nearly drowned he is trussed like a fowl and laid under the communion table of the neighboring church for the night.

Friends in Affliction.

In one of our homes for aged, indigent and crippled old men are a blind contractor and a deaf mason named respectively Shofer and Grube. An automobile started by "What be that?" asked Shofer. Grube explained: "It's a vast, noisy beast, for sure," commented the blind. "Noisy?" "I didn't hear no noise," said Grube. "But I seen it right enough. You be sore afflicted, 'nfer not to have the use of your eyes." "It don't trouble me, it don't," returned Shofer. "but I thanks the Lord every time I looks at ye I'm sparin' my her eye." Thus one man's affliction is another man's score.

Woman's Literary Club.

On Jan. 21st the Woman's Literary club held its 8th regular meeting, which proved to be a pleasant and profitable one. After the Shakespeare lesson, the program, in charge of Mrs. O. H. Loomis, chairman of the 7th division, was taken up and the following paper ably given:

Whistler—"Citizen of the World," by Mrs. W. O. Conner; Study: "Portrait of my mother," Mrs. Loomis; American Illustrators, Mrs. R. E. Cooper. A discussion on the American school system closed the work of the afternoon. Sec'y.

Extending Rural Delivery.

Thirty-two thousand rural free delivery routes will be in operation in the United States on July 1, 1905. This service will cost the government a little more than $20,000,000. In the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1905, 6,000 additional routes will be established, making a total of 38,000. The cost of extending and maintaining rural free delivery in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1905, is estimated at $26,000,000. There are now pending, awaiting action by the Post-office Department, 4,000 petitions for routes as compared with 11,000 when Fourth Assistant Bristow took charge of this division of the postal service.

A Unique Institution.

The State University holds a unique place among the state institutions of Michigan. When the constitution of 1850 created the Board of Regents and committed to it "the general supervision of the University, and the direction and control of all expenditures from the University interest fund," it created a department of the state government that, within its sphere, is co-ordinate with the legislative, executive, and judicial branches. It is as independent of them as they are of it. The legislature indeed holds the public purse; it gives or withholds financial assistance as it sees fit; moreover, it imposes its own conditions upon its appropriations, which the Regents are not at liberty to disregard if they accept the money, but it cannot invade the proper sphere of University operations. This central fact is more and more clearly perceived as time goes on.

The contention between the legislature and Board, which goes back to the early days of the present constitution, is in no way strange; it is a part of the old contention between the law-making power and the other branches of government. The Regents, pursuing a conservative policy, have shunned antagonism with the legislature as far as possible, but the facts show that they have taken higher ground with the passage of time, and that the Supreme Court has sustained them with increasing firmness. Still other questions will no doubt arise, involving the old issue. But the general principle involved is now well established.

It is a source of congratulation to the people of the state, as well as of credit to the legislature, that that body has not as a rule, been disposed to proceed to extremes. It has never withheld, or long withheld needed appropriations from the University, because a majority of its members held one theory of the constitution while the Regents held another theory. Had the legislature been of a different temper, insisting upon denying appropriations, unless the Regents should conform to its wishes, it would be difficult to imagine how different the history of the University for the last thirty years would have been.

is daily enacted, in thousands of homes as death claims in each one another victim of consumption or pneumonia. But when coughs and colds are properly treated, the tragedy is averted. F. G. Huntly, of Oaklandon, Ind., writes: "My wife had the consumption, and three doctors gave her up. Finally she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which cured her, and to day she is well and strong." It kills the germs of all diseases. One dose relieves. Guaranteed at 50c and $1 by The Wolverine Drug Co. and John L. Gale. Trial bottle free.

The Farmers' Institute.

On account of the severe weather the Farmer's Institute yesterday was attended by but a small but attentive audience. P. W. Whitbeck presided over the meeting which opened at 1:30 in the afternoon by E. A. Croman's talk on the "The Dairy Herd and its Care." Mr. Croman is a dairyman of Grass Lake and gave many facts concerning the best cows for dairy purposes and feed best adapted for giving milk and the care that should be given them. Many questions were asked him which he answered according to his own experience.

The pupils of the second and third grades, under the leadership of Miss Pierson, sang a song which was greatly enjoyed.

The pupils of the second and third grades, under the leadership of Miss Pierson, sang a song which was greatly enjoyed. A discussion on "Cucumbers and how to Grow them" followed, led by Asa Joy, who gave his experience in raising cucumbers for the Wideman Pickle Co. He thought it a profitable crop to raise, but would not advise farmers to put their whole farms into cucumbers.

A song by the pupils of the eighth grade was rendered and they responded to an encore. A few more questions were asked concerning the raising of cucumbers, when the meeting was adjourned.

MURRAY'S CORNERS.

Mrs. Will Burrell is ill with typhoid fever.

Mrs. Hanford has been very ill for the past two weeks but is slowly recovering now.

Willard Pooler is very ill.

The horse known as "Old Charley," belonging to Hiram Murray, died Tuesday night at the age of 32 years.

Mrs. Silas Howson is on the sick list.

Ralph Pooler returned home from Asheville, N. C. Monday.

While going from his house to the mail box Saturday morning Herbert Bradford fell on the ice striking on the back of his head and producing a severe bruise but he is slowly recovering from it.

There was a good attendance at the aid society at Mrs. Cole's yesterday in spite of the cold weather and deep snow. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Frank King, Feb. 2nd.

Miss Satie Spicer visited at S. W. Spicer's over Sunday.
