Bucklen's Arnica Salve drew out the poison, healed the wound, and saved his life. Best in the world for burns

STATE NEWS

THE ALLEGED MURDERER IDENTIFIED BY A DEFORMED LITTLE FINGER.

KALAMAZOO HAS A SMALLPOX SCARE AND PUBLIC MEETINGS ARE OFF.

VARIOUS MATTERS OF INTEREST FROM ALL PARTS OF THE STATE BRIEFLY NOTED.

A Murder Mystery.

A murder mystery in which the alleged murderer was identified by means of a deformed little finger was reported to the Kalamazoo police Tuesday morning. Bert Miller, aged 28, who came from Battle Creek about two weeks ago, was found dead in his bed in a back room over a saloon on Rose street. His skull had been crushed in with some rather thin weapon and the bed was soaked with blood. Apparently Miller had been dead eight or nine hours when the case was reported. The room in which Miller's body was found is about 8x10 feet in size, with a low ceiling and very poorly furnished. There was a small opening like a place for a window looking into the hall just over the foot of the bed, but there was no window in this. It was here that the police found a clue which they hoped might reveal the murderer. The dust had accumulated deeply on this window ledge and right in the center of this was the imprint of a hand as though some one had leaned over to look down the hall to see if the coast was clear. This hand print showed plainly and the little finger was very clearly deformed and crooked. So the police went after a man with a crooked little finger.

Within three hours after the discovery of the murder the police had taken into custody on suspicion an aged man known as Milo Sexton, the husband of the woman of whom Miller reared his room. Developments followed thick and fast then, and it was shown that Sexton was none other than Milo Keep, who was recently released from Jackson prison after serving 10 years. He made love to the woman under the name of Milo Sexton. She did not learn of his identity until after their marriage and then he threatened her life repeatedly. Mrs. Sexton recently secured an injunction to compel him to leave her undisturbed and she also sent for Bert Miller, who was her nephew, the son of her sister, to live with her for protection.

Keep was arrested within a block of the scene of the murder. He had blood on his clothes and there was paint and marks on his boots such as might have been made by climbing a wire trellis, like that leading to the second story of the building in which the murder occurred. The records show that, under the name of Milo Sexton, Keep married the woman Debra, aged 22, in 1904. She began suit for divorce against him about a week ago, and in connection applied for injunction restraining him from visiting her. Mrs. Sexton says that her husband saw her Monday night and said to her, "If you don't drop the divorce suit against me I'll kill you."

Smallpox Epidemic.

The smallpox epidemic is becoming a serious menace in Kalamazoo and the abrogation of all public meetings is being advocated by cool-headed citizens. Two high school pupils were taken ill with the dread disease within the past 24 hours and this in connection with the illness of two leading high school teachers is causing considerable alarm. Charles A. Carr was taken ill with smallpox Monday and removed to the detention hospital and the school board ordered the high school building to be closed. Tuesday Earle Goodenow, a high school senior, was also stricken and taken to the hospital. The situation is certainly more serious now than at any time and the most vigorous measures will have to be taken. Young Carr had the disease since Friday night and broke out with pustules on Monday morning, but did not go to a physician until Monday night. Carr carried a morning paper over the route on Saturday and Sunday mornings and it is feared that many exposures have resulted.

The Dundee Fire.

The worst fire that Dundee has experienced for many years occurred at noon Sunday when the Ann Arbor railway station and Frank Strong's grain elevator and feed mill were destroyed. Agent Ridge was building a fire in the waiting room and threw gasoline instead of kerosene on the kindling. He was badly burned, and before the alarm could be given the building was burning furiously and a high west wind had carried the flames across the tracks to the elevator and feed mill. A number of boxes on the side track, filled with merchandise, and the water tank were destroyed. The loss to the railway company is over $2,000, with no insurance, while Strong's loss is $15,000 or more, with $2,000 insurance.

Mrs. Frank Sheridan, of Pontiac, threw wood alcohol on the wood in her kitchen range to start a fire easily. She touched a match and in the resultant explosion she was completely covered with the blazing liquid. She rushed from the house completely enveloped in flames and screamed for help, but all of her clothing was burned off before a quilt could be thrown around her and the flames extinguished. She died in terrible agony in about three hours.

The cash balance in the state treasury at the close of business Saturday was $4,248,000.

STATE NEWS CONDENSED.

Congressman Sam Smith has secured a promise that nothing further will be done toward the construction of a public building at Flint until after the next session of congress.

Mrs. Anna Brady, widow of John Brady, died in Bay City Saturday morning at the ripe age of 90 years. She was born in France, and the mother of 12 children, eight of whom survive her.

Deputy Game Warden Thrasher had two men of Attica township before Justice Perkins, of Lapeer, for illegal fishing. They were given the choice of paying $10 and costs or 10 days in jail.

The R. E. Kimball grain elevator at Vicksburg, built in 1872, burned to the ground Saturday. Sparks from a passing engine are supposed to have caused the fire. The Kimball loss is $2,000, $700 insurance.

Ray Walker, of St. Joseph, has disappeared, and his friends think he has committed suicide. He has been despondent of late over his wife's poor health, and has been heard to make some queer remarks.

Fred Matteson, aged 28, employed by the Mass Consolidated Mining Co., at Mass City, was kicked and killed by his horse, which he was attempting to take home from pasture. A widow and child survive him.

After being struck by lightning, the Eaton telephone exchange building burned to the ground and 40 telephones were put out of commission. The large house and all belongings of Manager A. W. Strong were also destroyed.

Sidney Smith, aged 25, of Morrill, was arrested at Byron and brought to Flint jail on the charge of stealing a horse in Argentine, which was dragged behind a wagon until it dropped dead. The animal belonged to Milton Shepard.

John Folkertsma, aged 20 years, while trying to catch a ride on a switch engine on the Pere Marquette in Grand Rapids, slipped and fell under the wheels. His head was entirely severed from his body, rolling several feet away.

At a big mass meeting attended by 300 representatives of every business and trade in Marshall, resolutions were adopted protesting against the Knight circuit court bill, providing for alternate terms of court being held in Battle Creek.

George P. Tabert, a well-known meat dealer, of Bay City, fell over the banister in his home and landed on the floor 20 feet below. He dislocated his neck, broke his collar bone and is in a precarious condition, with little chance for his recovery.

Mrs. Louise Walker, whose husband, Ray Walker, disappeared from St. Joseph last Saturday, has returned to her mother's home in Niles, and says she is unable to account for her husband's disappearance, as there had been no trouble between them.

Edward Donohue, condemned to die June 10 for the murder in Indiana of N. Northrup of Benton Harbor, is a nervous wreck and requires the constant attention of a physician. He refuses religious consolation and paces his cell constantly, refusing to eat.

While an Alpena poker joint was being raided, a number of the occupants made a perilous escape by sliding down the rope of an abandoned elevator, leaving their coats and hats behind. Five arrests were made and the gambling apparatus broken to kindling wood.

A large granite monument is being put up for the late James Manning, who was one of the oldest residents of Clay township. He lived a hermit life, scarcely ever leaving his little shack. He was kept largely by friendly neighbors. He was 100 years old when he died.

The mystery in connection with the disappearance of Thomas Murphy, a well-known blacksmith of Saginaw 10 days ago, has been solved by the finding of his dead body in the river. He was 55 years of age, and leaves a widow. It is thought to be a case of accidental death.

Mrs. A. Hartzhorn, the woman from Holland, who has become a public charge on Kalamazoo county, because she refuses to work, gives as her reason that a lawyer refused to collect $150 for her from John Zourlader, a young man whose passage she paid to this country.

The decomposed body of James Connel, a former bartender in Sarnia, was found in the St. Clair river, below Stag Island, Sunday afternoon. He was one of the four men drowned last Thanksgiving night by the upsetting of a rowboat 50 feet from the Sarnia ferry wharf, while they were on their way home on the night ferry. Heavy rain in Josco county has extinguished the forest fires. Oshtoke township was the heaviest loser, 500 cords of hardwood, value $1,200, having been destroyed on one farm. Many hundreds of rods of fence were burned. A vast amount of cedar and logs were saved in the nick of time by the united efforts of the farmers. The long drought is now over and the farmers are happy.

The committees having in charge arrangements for the dedication of Ingham county's new county building have planned the formal opening for Tuesday, May 9. Speakers of note will be present, including Gov. Warner.

MORE RIOTS

THE POLAND RIOTS WERE RUTHLESSLY QUELLED BY RUSSIAN TROOPS MONDAY.

THE RUSSIANS ARE GIVEN RELIGIOUS FREEDOM, A GREAT BOON TO MILLIONS.

LINEVITCH GOES ON A KISSING MISSION AND THE MEN WEPT.

Might Have Been Worse.

Bad as was the rioting at Warsaw, Lodz, Kalls and other places in Poland Monday, and venomous as was the hostility everywhere displayed against the police and Russian authorities, the uprising was far less formidable and the results less bloody than anticipated. The authorities had given due warning of their intention to permit no demonstrations and the troops quelled the disturbances ruthlessly. All reports indicate that the demonstrations were comparatively few in number and that the vast bulk of the population fearing trouble remained indoors.

Kissed the Army.

A touching incident occurred during the Easter celebration at Gunshu Pass, Manchuria. After the morning service all the troops in the region around headquarters were drawn up in line before Gen. Linevitch's tent and the commander-in-chief came out, greeted the troops and passed down the line, saluting each and every soldier with a kiss. All the men were much moved and many wept. The incident served to increase their boundless worship of the old, gray leader.

Religious Freedom.

Real religious freedom conferred upon his subjects by Emperor Nicholas as an Easter gift is an historic event of the highest significance, in comparison with which the renouissance of millions of dollars of taxes to the peasantry, a long list of decorations and six pages of promotions of bureaucratic officials are hardly worth comment. Logically the emperor's action involves the complete reversal of the Russian policy of seeking national unity in conquered provinces in religious unity. He has accepted the axiom of the metropolitan Antonius: "You cannot hold strange children in the church against their will," and recognizes in religious variety good for the nation as well as for the church itself, a principle which, if acknowledged politically, would mean a federalized Russia. The emperor's act will also affect about forty millions belonging to alien faiths, such as the Jews, Catholics and Lutherans of Poland and the Baltic provinces, the Protestants of Finland and the followers of Islam and Buddha in the Urals, the Crimea, the Caucasus, Turkestan and Central Asia. These figures are only approximate, as probably millions who are nominally orthodox secretly profess other religions. Whole villages of Muslims baptized into the orthodox communion by a ruse petitioned in vain to be permitted to return to Mohammedanism.

Horrors in Warsaw.

The New York Herald's Warsaw correspondent cables that many more persons were killed in the conflict between workmen and troops Monday than were reported. The streets were filled with funeral processions. It is asserted that 70 people were killed at the corner of Jerusalem and Iron streets alone and four in the Praga district. All day Tuesday there was a crowd of excited people around the morgue. The correspondent says: "In an atmosphere reeking with the smell of carbolic acid I came to a sickening spectacle where 28 corpses were laid out stripped to the waist, with the upper garments lying in a heap over their hips. Eight of the number were women. The face of a girl was badly disfigured. One man had a gaping wound on the left side of his forehead. The majority were wounded in the head. None had the appearance of being poverty stricken. All wore good clothes that evidently were holiday garments. Most of the bodies have been identified."

Cossacks Killed Strikers.

Troops and strikers clashed at Czestochowa (142 miles from Warsaw), near the frontier of Silesia. Four strikers were killed and over a score were wounded by volleys fired by the infantry. The trouble began when the police arrested a number of workmen. As a protest all the workmen struck today and a crowd gathered and demanded the release of the men arrested. A large force of Cossacks and infantry was assembled and the strikers were ordered not to advance. The latter refused to obey, placed women in front of their line and came on. The Cossacks thereupon charged and dispersed the mob. One of the strikers fired a revolver and then the infantry advanced and fired several volleys as the crowd retreated. Czestochowa is an old, historical city and has a population of about 30,000.

William Plankinton is dead in Milwaukee, Wis., aged 60. Leaves $15,000, 000.

Hank Essler, just dead in Prairie du Chien, Wis., aged 107, was cutting his third set of teeth when he died.

After July 1 trading stamps in Nebraska will be redeemable in money under a law passed at the recent session of the legislature of that state.

Gov. Hoch, of Kansas, arch foe of Standard Oil, has been discovered to be a heavy stockholder in an independent refinery which will compete with the Kansas state refinery soon to be built.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

The senate elections committee after about an hour, decided by a vote of 4 to 0, Senator Brown not voting, to report favorably on the Ivory-Double-Dickinson primary bill. It will not come out on the floor of the senate in the same shape that it was received from the house a month or so ago. Senator Baird's threat to "go the limit" was carried into effect, and the bill was amended to provide for the direct nomination of all state officers. They didn't stop there, but included all city and county officers. It is broader than the Republican platform, it is broader than the bill that passed the house, and doesn't quite meet with the approval of the governor.

The legislators who have been in Detroit superintending the judicial recount are of the opinion that adjournment of the legislature is not more than 30 days distant and that some kind of a primary reform measure will be adopted. Both W. C. McMillan and Senator Alger have expressed their confidence that the legislature can be relied on to pass a satisfactory bill, and the senator adds: "The responsibility rests with the legislature, and we are in duty bound to give the measure a fair trial, though, personally, I have some doubts that it will prove as successful as its exponents believe."

One of the most important and revolutionary election bills yet offered in this session of the legislature is that of Rep. Nate Lovell, of Berrien county, and may be said to be a direct result of the Wayne county judicial recount revelation. The bill is to abolish the cross to signify the party the voter casts his ballot for and requires the voter to mark separately name of each candidate he desires to vote for. The bill follows the law of Rhode Island and other states.

The house by a vote of 82 to 8, passed Rep. Eichhorn's bill vesting interurban electric railroads with the power of eminent domain. There is no provision in the bill to burden the roads with the reciprocal obligations of common carriers, and the chances are that the farmer legislators who voted for the bill will have to make some explanations to their constituents when promoters begin to lay out lines through peach orchards and push hay stacks back a dozen rods or more. Rep. Gruesel, of Wayne, sounded an alarm and on account of the new principle that was to be established in the state, wanted the bill sent to the committee on private corporations for further discussion, but his motion was voted down. The farmers desired the bill, and the house passed it.

The bill as reported by the committee did not suit the members from the upper peninsula, where there are vested rights of the mining corporations to protect. So at the request of several upper peninsula members an amendment was inserted providing that electric roads shall acquire no rights in mineral lands beneath the surface, and that mining companies shall not be bound to protect the roads from the disasters of a cave-in.

Representative McKay, of Tuscola, has introduced a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution to limit the sessions of the legislature to 100 days. If such an amendment carried it would close off the talking about April 10 of each session.

Beginning May 2, the house will hold morning and afternoon sessions in an effort to pave the way for an early adjournment.

Senator Peek introduced a bill which provides for an annual appropriation of $5,000 for the House of Providence of Detroit. Several days ago Henry Blackwell, of Partridge & Blackwell, was in Lansing in the interest of such a measure.

The legislature has received an invitation for Michigan to participate in the tricentennial of the founding of Jamestown, Va.

A bill introduced by Senator Jones would abolish the fee system of compensation for circuit court commissioners which is in vogue in many counties of the state, and places such officials on a salary ranging from $400 to $1,100 a year, according to the size of their counties. The Wayne commissioners are already on a salary basis.

Two Towns Ruined.

Twenty-one persons were killed and scores injured in Laredo and in New Laredo, Texas, by a tornado which tore through the cities late Friday night, crossing the Rio Grande. Rumors of others killed in places outside Laredo, lack confirmation. The property damage is large. A trip through Laredo fails to show a block which has not suffered from the storm. Trees, fences, telegraph and telephone poles, corrugated roofs, chimneys and walls and debris of all kinds strew the streets. Conditions in New Laredo, across the Rio Grande, are similar to those existing on this side. It is not definitely known how many dead or injured there are in New Laredo. When the storm struck Laredo the butts occupied by the poorer classes were razed, and as the wind increased in force, the more substantially constructed buildings were unroofed and in many cases were demolished. Lightning flashed vividly and continuously, adding to the fears of the people. The storm lasted about one hour.

A report comes from Saigon, Cochinchina, that Russian officers are reported to have declared that Admiral Rojstevsky is determined to fight Admiral Togo and will endeavor to vanquish the Japanese squadron or sink it with it. Admiral Rojstevsky has given every detail of the coming conflict his particular attention. Togo's flagship will be his objective according to a special plan.

LATE NEWS

THE RIOTING IN CHICAGO BECOMES MORE FIERCE AND BLOODY.

EMPLOYERS ASK FOR TROOPS TO PROTECT LIFE AND PROPERTY.

INNOCENT PEOPLE ARE VICTIMS OF FURIOUS MOBS OF THE STRIKERS.

Wholesale importation of non-union men from St. Louis and the arrival of "strike breaker" Farley from New York gave a new turn Monday to the teamsters' strike in Chicago. Immediately on his arrival Farley had a conference with representatives of the employers. Plans for putting him in charge of all "strike breakers" are said to have been decided on. Farley managed the men in the New York subway strike. Non-union men in forces said to be almost unprecedented are on their way to Chicago. President Roosevelt has agreed to give the Chicago striking teamsters an opportunity to present their petition when he reaches Chicago on May 10.

Bloodshed and rioting again Tuesday marked the progress of the teamsters' strike in Chicago. Strikers attacked a party of negro strike-breakers on Wabash avenue and gave several of them severe beatings. Henry Schultz, a striker, was seriously shot during the melee. Employers demand that team owners make deliveries to boycotted stores, if they do so 5,000 more teamsters will strike. One hundred strike-breakers struck when refused rifles for self-protection.

Secretary Job, of the Employers' association, announced Wednesday that a representative of the employers was on his way to Springfield to ask Gov. Deneen to send troops to Chicago at once. Fierce fighting lasting for nearly an hour occurred during the afternoon. It started at the Majestic hotel and was watched by thousands as the tide of battle surged along State street and turned into Madison. F. E. Buckminster, a private detective, and his men were recognized and all were badly beaten by the mob. Drivers of coal wagons, who had just left the Majestic were made the target for all sorts of missiles. Double police guards hurried to the scene and fought their way to the wagons. At Michigan avenue the caravan met the funeral of Thomas Galian, late Democratic national committeeman. The driver of the mourner's carriage cut in and prevented the caravan of coal wagons from moving. A colored teamster abused him and the coachman lashed him across the face with his whip. This renewed the rioting and the cortege became the center of a fierce battle. Finally the caravan broke through and a running fight was kept up for several blocks, when companies of police arrived at a gallop in patrol wagons and with clubs and guns drove the mob into side streets. Many travelers coming from depots and other innocent persons were injured.

EXILED QUEEN'S DILEMMA.

The former ruler of the island of Madagascar, who is forced by France to live in exile in Algiers, has petitioned the Governor for an increased allowance, claiming that she has barely enough to keep herself and entourage from starvation. She says she is willing to work, but that France will not permit her, as it would disgrace the nation which dethroned her.

Cassie's Victim.

A. B. Spear, cashier of the closed Citizens' Bank of Oberlin, wrecked by Cassie Chadwick loans, in the U. S. district court, entered a plea of guilty to one count of the indictment charging him with making false entries in the bank's books. District Attorney Sullivan recommended that all other indictments against Spear, containing 15 counts, be nolleed. Judge Taylor at once sentenced Spear to seven years' imprisonment in the Ohio penitentiary.

Safe crackers attempted to blow the safe in the bank at Jasper, but were frightened away before the vault door could be opened.

PLYMOUTH MAIL

BY F. W. SAMSEN.

FRIDAY, MAY 5, 1905.

The Council Does Some Business.

A full board was present at the regular meeting of the council Monday evening. Pres. Markham, of the Plymouth Athletic Association was granted permission to address the council and stated that it was desirable to have water on the new athletic grounds, and inasmuch as everybody was more or less interested in the matter, asked that the council fix a minimum charge for a water rate. The council promptly conferred in the matter and then passed a motion that if the Association will pay the expense of putting in the tap the water will be furnished free.

A petition was presented from residents on Adams street that the street be extended north to Harvey street. Petition was laid on the table.

Another petition from A. W. Chaffee, Mrs. Ella Safford and Miss Alice Safford, that a cement walk be built on the west side of Harvey street from Sutton to Church, was similarly disposed of, after it was discovered that the village was bound by contract to build a walk along the premises of Mr. Chaffee, formerly owned by Mrs. Bassett, there being no money available at the present time.

Funds are getting low and there not being sufficient on hand to pay bills allowed, the ways and means committee recommended that $500 be borrowed for 60 days, which recommendation was adopted.

The foot-bridge over the creek on Ann Arbor street was reported in a dangerous condition, and the street commissioner was asked to make temporary repairs until arrangements for a new structure could be made.

T. C. Brooks & Co., builders of the new water works main, asked for another $1,000 to apply on contract. A month ago the firm made a similar request, stating that would be all the money they would require until the line was completed. Under the contract, the council is privileged to hold back 25 per cent of contract price until completion and acceptance of work. Councilman Gale recollected an experience had with contractors when the original line was built and he did not want another. There is a great deal of work yet to be done on the present line and the firm has drawn close up to the limit. The council voted to pay the firm $500 and $500 more after ten days.

Supt. Richmond, of the D. P. & N. Ry., extended an invitation to the council to take a ride on the new car Wednesday morning. The invitation was accepted.

Chief of Fire Department Mimmack was present and again urged the council to make some arrangement for the payment of the members of the fire department, that its efficiency may be improved. He believed it to be necessary that the members get out for practice at least once a month and to make it an object for them to do so that they be paid 50 cents each month. Those absent get nothing. He thought it would take about $300 per year. The fire committee will hold a meeting and it is probable something will be done.

President Eddy was authorized to go to Detroit to see about getting iron coverings for the catch-basins on Main street. As the catch-basins are at present, most of them are practically useless, not to say anything about their unsightliness. An attempt was made to make some improvement on them and after two had been experimented with, it cost the village $24, and at that it was not what it ought to be. The council adjourned to May 15th.

A Whitmore Lake Tragedy.

A drowning occurred in Whitmore Lake last week Tuesday night. Milton Todd, Harry Lombard and Wm. McHugh went out fishing. In some way the boat was overturned, and McHugh, who could not swim, sank to the bottom in ten feet of water. Lombard dove and brought him to the surface. The young man tried to right the boat, but could not. The shore was over a quarter of a mile away. Finally Lombard said: "I'm going to swim for land and get help. You fellows stick to the boat. If I don't come back you will know that I went down."

At that he struck out and finally reached the shore. He went to the nearest farm house and after telling his story fell in a faint from exhaustion. The farmer rushed and got a boat and rowed with all his might to the rescue of the two men still in the water.

In the meantime Todd, who had waited twenty minutes, became impatient. "I'm going to try to make the shore—you stick to the boat, McHugh," he said, and he struck out. He had not gone twenty yards before he sank to his death. McHugh was rescued.

Cleared for Action.

When the body is cleared for action, by Dr. King's New Life Pills, you can tell by the bloom of health on the cheeks, the brightness of the eyes, the firmness of the flesh and muscles, the buoyancy of the mind. Try them. At The Wolverine Drug Co.'s and John L. Gale's 25 cents.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

By Nellie Booker, Earl VanDeusen, Orson Taylor and Leigh Markham.

The ball team went out for revenge on the Military Academy last Saturday and won out by a score of 10 to 5. They expect to stir things up at Milford on the 11th. Every one wishing to see a good game of ball will kindly report at Athletic Park May 13, when the Plymouth boys will be out for a battle with the Detroit College of Medicine.

The Athletic Association has purchased a new 12lb hammer and a shot of the same weight.

The boys were out last night for practice in the athletic park, where a 1-5 mile track has been laid out.

Miss Smith has interested her pupils in the planting of a fine window garden. On Wednesday morning last she was very much surprised to find pumpkins about a foot high, also the corn, beans and peas showing their heads above the earth. Wheat and oats were doing better than that outdoors. Another thing of interest is the aquarium. A crab has a clam attached to its hind leg, which is about an inch long. Minnows and other clams are also found in the water.

Our H. S. girls are right up to date. If they cannot gain fame playing ball and doing stunts field day, they can hustle to make every one else happy. Listen to plans reception, refreshments program, in fact everything but victory at the sports will be done to make the visiting schools want to come again.

Oh, this spring weather! My, it's awful! Can you blame a fellow for not working when every time he moves the perspiration fairly causes him to sweat. Perhaps you are acquainted with that malady called spring fever. Whew! Those far-away, longing glances come frequently now. If we could only go fishing, or sit "Under the Old Apple-tree," or "Speed Away" "Down where the Wurtzburger Flows!" As a general rule we all like to work, but there are sometimes exceptions and the present time is certainly an exception. However this may be, when an entertainment comes to town we are prepared with our ready-to-wit lippen collars on the front seat alternately laughing and wiping our faces. Now, see here, no joking, we certainly expect to witness a good all round entertainment this Friday night, May 5th. Of course, if you see it you must brave that "tired feeling" and decrease the weight of your pocket-book 15 or 20 cents' worth. If you're an outsider it will be 20; if on the inside among the "four hundred," it will only be 15. You cannot possibly miss the place—the red school-house, down there by the town hall—you know. Come on down and help us out.

Field Day! Streaming banners—those little sporty hats—sprinters—music in the air! Just listen! that is until May 13th and take the D. P. & N. electric railway to Plymouth's pretty little athletic park. All the conveniences, from buttered popcorn to hot sunshine. Bring a horn and tool—we need encouragement. On the other hand, people of Plymouth, do not be alarmed on account of our boys, we have the speed also the grit to stick to a good record when we get one.

Big Show Coming.

Undoubtedly a large percentage of those of our readers who visited the St. Louis Exposition were included in the vast throngs which for seven months daily patronized Carl Hagenbeck's wonderful trained wild animal show, not only the chief attraction on the gay and festive lake, but one of the most popular features, as well. Now that the greatest wild beast dealer and trainer in the world—the one who has supplied at least 98 per cent of all zoological gardens and circuses with their animal attractions—introduced an original and human system of training, and actually brought into being new species by crossing the ones of natural or spontaneous origin—has decided to tour the country with his exhibition, and to pitch his tents in Detroit, May 8, 9 and 10. The cloud of living witnesses and favorable walking advertisements thus legitimately made will doubtless perpetuate his success, and add still other hundreds of thousands to the number of his admirers. His menagerie and caravan are estimated to be worth at least a million dollars, not merely because of the inherent value of the incomparable specimens they contain, but because every one of them is a most extraordinary performer, and the majority of them acting members of mixed groups, made up of creatures in whom nature has implanted mutual deadly hatred, or fear, or both combined.

The Hagenbeck show is filled with new, novel and startling acts, and should be seen to be appreciated. A monster free street parade will be given in the morning of the day of exhibition and will be followed by two performances under extensive tents. The parade alone is worth going miles to see.

Saved by Dynamite.

Sometimes a flaming city is saved by dynamite a space that the fire can't creep. Sometimes, a cough hangs on so long, you feel as if nothing but dynamite would cure it. Z. T. Gray, of Calhoun Ga., writes: "My wife had a very aggravated cough, which kept her awake nights. Two physicians could not help her; so she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which eased her cough, gave her sleep, and finally cured her. Strictly scientific cure for bronchitis and Emphysema." At The Wolverine Drug Co., and John L. Gale's price 50c and $1.00; guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

Ten Years In Bed.

R. A. Gray, J. P., Oakville, Ind., writes, "For ten years I was confined to my bed with disease of my kidneys. It was so severe that I could not move part of the time. I consulted the very best medical skill available, but could get no relief until Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me. It has been a Godsend to me." For sale by The Wolverine Drug Co.

It is gratifying to know that Wisconsin and Indiana have passed the anti-cigarette law and the dealers are busy burning up the cigarettes and cigarette paper. It is hoped all the other states will follow suit.—Supt. Press.

On the election recount so far for Circuit Judge between Donovan and Frazer, the former is some 200 votes still ahead. By taking advantage of technicalities, such as omission of initials of an election inspector, Judge Frazer would undoubtedly secure the election. He has, however, written a letter to the recounting committee waiving all rights in this respect, as he believes the intent of the voter is clear and that the latter is not at fault if inspectors made a mistake. It is, therefore, most probable that Judge Donovan will be declared as elected. The position of Judge Frazer is a most commendable one and might be emulated by politicians of all classes.

Terrific Race With Death.

"Death was fast approaching," writes Ralph F. Fernandez, of Tampa, Fla., describing his fearful race with death, "as a result of liver trouble and heart disease, which had robbed me of sleep and of all interest in life. I had tried many different doctors and several medicines, but got no benefit, until I began to use Electric Bitters. So wonderful was their effect, that in three days I felt like a new man and today I am cured of all my troubles." Guaranteed at The Wolverine Drug Co., and John L. Gale's; price 50c.

What kind of a scheme would it be if the street in front of our business places were kept in cleaner and neater shape? If this were done, some of the old residents might not know the town.

Opening of Athletic Park.

While the crowd at the opening ball game on Athletic Park last Saturday was a large one, it would have been doubled had the weather been more favorable and the game played on any other day of the week. As it was some 300 people attended. The two clubs were escorted from the Plymouth House to the grounds by the Plymouth band, the latter also discoursing music during the game. After practice the M. M. A. and P. H. S. teams lined up in front of the grand stand and a picture was taken by Photographer Roy Lyndon. President of the Village J. O. Eddy then pitched the first ball over the plate and it was caught by W. E. Markham, President of the Athletic Association. Umpire Hiram Roe called "Batter up," and the game was on, Plymouth taking the field. Pitcher Wood, for Plymouth, had his thumb hurt a few days before and on this account was not as effective as ordinarily. The visitors scored one run in the first inning, but the game at no time looked serious for Plymouth until the sixth inning when the visitors made three runs, placing them one in the lead. In their half of this inning, however, Plymouth got on their batting clothes, and assisted by errors, five runners crossed the plate. After that there was nothing doing by either side. Roy Armstrong made a clean, three-bagger that was a beauty. The outfield was soft and batted balls that escaped the fielders lay almost dead where they fell. Plymouth secured 11 hits, the visitors but 2. The score was 10 to 5 in favor of Plymouth.

Mrs. L. C. Hall Hurt in a Trolley Smash-up.

Last Saturday the Detroit, Monroe and Toledo Short Line inaugurated a half hour schedule. Conductor Bale and Motorman Olmstead of a south bound car forgot about the orders and instead of waiting at a switch near the village of Newport, at about six o'clock, they continued on their way. They had not proceeded far when a car bound north came in sight around a sharp curve and before either motorman could check the speed of their respective cars, there was a terrific collision. Harry Wheeler, a traveling man, who is also well known in Plymouth, was so badly crushed in the wreck that he died shortly after being taken out. Conductor Carmon, of the north-bound car was severely injured and it was feared he would die. Motorman Olmstead jumped and escaped with some broken ribs.

A number of passengers were also more or less injured, among them being Mrs. L. C. Hall, of this village, who was on her way to Toledo to visit friends over Sunday. She was able, however, to extricate herself from the wreck and take the following car for Toledo. Some injury was sustained to her head and for two days she suffered from bleeding at the nose. A physician was immediately summoned on her arrival at her friend's home, and everything was done to check the flow, until Monday afternoon it was deemed advisable to take her to a hospital, where she obtained relief. Mr. Hall went down Sunday morning and remained all day. A report appeared in a Detroit paper Tuesday evening that she had died, but this was erroneous.

Tri-County Athletic Meet.

The fourth annual field day meet of the Tri-county High School Athletic Association will be held in the new Athletic park, Plymouth, Saturday, May 13th. Schools of Chelsea, Wayne and Plymouth will be represented. The events scheduled are running, jumping, pole-vaulting, discus and hammer throwing, shot-putting and a relay race. Plymouth carried off a number of prizes last year and this year our boys claim to be in better shape than ever before to capture leading prizes. They have been practicing for some time and show great improvement. The interest manifested by the boys should also manifest itself in parents and citizens generally, that there may be a large attendance. From the new grandstand in Athletic Park an excellent view may be had of all the events, in a comfortable manner, and the inconveniences of former years is entirely done away with. Supt. F. E. Gee, of Wayne, is President of the Association, Supt. W. N. Isbell, of Plymouth, vice president, and Supt. F. E. Wilcox, of Chelsea, sec-treas. An admission to the grounds of 20 and 15 cents will be charged.

At last and after many days, the promised "new" car on the D. P. & N. appeared Wednesday morning, making its initial trip to Northville with Supt. Richmond, President Eddy and members of the council and distinguished citizens on board. The car is an old one rebuilt and newly-seated and painted. A rear vestibule is provided and the power apparatus is arranged so that the motorman may be stationed at either end. The car looks neat and clean, runs smoothly and certainly is a great improvement. Another car will be similarly equipped and rebuilt as soon as possible. "The world do move" and Supt. Richmond is to be congratulated for his efforts in providing for the people what they have long needed.

Was Plymouth Product Inspected, Too?

Following out one of the cherished plans of Gov. Warner, says the Free Press of Sunday, the department for the inspection of dairy and food products of Michigan, yesterday conducted a series of tests at the cold storage plant of Raymond S. Webb, 285 Grand River avenue. Sixty samples of creamery butter and about thirty samples of cheese, collected by the department from the different creameries of the state, were put to test by E. I. Burrige, of Cleveland, O. The tests were witnessed by Deputy State Dairy and Food Commissioner Lilly and a party of professors from the Michigan Agricultural college at Lansing. A good part of the day was taken up in the work and in the course of the afternoon, Gov. Warner called to see what progress was being made. The tests as a whole were very satisfactory.

This procedure is but a part of a plan that has long been in Gov. Warner's mind toward making Michigan one of the foremost states in the union in the quality and quantity of dairy products.

During the present session of the legislature, several administration measures have appeared that tend to protect the dairyman of the state and to improve the general quality of dairy products. The governor has thus far met with the most enthusiastic support of the dairymen and farmers at large of the state.

I sat down on the boulder outside of the postern gate. How long ago it seemed—though in reality not so many weeks—since I had sat in that same place, and unconsciously I assumed the same attitude of that other time when I had watched and waited even as a Silivus for his Phoebe. Here Nell Gwyn, in all a serving maid's masquerade, had purposely surprised me. Had I then seen her as I did later up the stage doing her inimitable mimicry I had not been so taken in, for once seen she was never to be mistaken for anyone else.

I called to mind another and a prettier picture—sweet Rosemary in her farthingales! Rosemary (had ever name so pleasant a sound?) as she appeared when I killed her falcon. Some day she should have another like unto it, I thought fondly, and my lips curved as I recalled how she had flouted me. The rose in her hair had paled in beauty beside her, its cream tint not so delicate as the skin which it caressed.

I heard a little quivering sigh or sob. It was so like that other day of which I was thinking that I started up. There in the pathway she stood; out of the mist she grew, until from a wreath in pale cerements she came to be Rosemary of flesh and blood. Rosemary with eager eyes dilated and hands fluttering toward me.

"You!" she whispered. "They told me you were dead."

"Quick enough, love," I cried, as I took her trembling hands in mine and drew her to my breast. For a moment she lay there.

"I felt you were alive," she cried joyfully. "Would earth be so sweet if you were dead? Oh, no! I told myself so again and again, while I yet chided myself for being gay when they assured me that you were no more!"

I would have taken her again to my heart, but she held me off.

"You are pale and thin—you have been ill?" she asked.

"We Feltons are not loath to stand up before one we deem our enemy—but we could not strike a blow in the dark."

"No doubt of that, love," I said to still her suspicions, which, while she yet silenced, cut her to the heart; "witness how a slender youth stood before my long arm and rapier, and made me do penance for the killing of a falcon."

"Yes," she cried, throwing off her depression; "and to think you did not recognize me. I trembled in my boots for fear you might. The next time when Nell and I were at the White Swan and passed you, we were on our guard, for from the window we had seen you enter the court yard. Immediately I gave the order for our coach to be gotten ready, although we had intended to rest there most of the day. How we chuckled when you let us go, for in my pocket snug and safe lay the little paper you had won in so disgraceful a manner—see, sir, how could you?" She shook her finger at me, and before I could reply in a manner that permitted of no words, she added: "I thought, we shall see whether Mister Quentin Waters gets so much enjoyment out of that piece of paper as he expects to in London town. I will acknowledge, sir, that I did not love you then."

"And I loved you from the first moment my eyes lighted upon you," I said, reproachfully.

"And I, sir, I know not when," she said. "There is an old verse, old but true; I have oft heard it. I will repeat it for you:

"Pray how comes love?
Love comes unsought, unmet.
Pray how goes love?
That was not love that went."

"Now it is proverbially known that we Feltons are good haters, still this is the time when the exception proves the rule. I began by being angry with you about the falcon, and when I found the paper on the floor—oh, I assure you I was wild! I decided to punish you by not letting you know who I really was. The tops of London thought it a good joke and entered into the sport with a zest, even Nell lent a hand.

"It might have had a sad ending had I killed Raoul Dwight in that duel which we were to fight," I said.

"Ah! I believe in the luck of the Feltons," she laughed.

"Nevertheless, I thank God, providence, or the King, that it never came to pass," I said heartily.

"I think you have to thank my father for that," she returned dryly; "he it was who induced the King to forget his promise and have you imprisoned." Then she added tenderly: "I shall have to make amends to you, Quentin—my name fell softly from her lips—all my life, if you please."

"Ah, Rosemary!" I cried, "your name fits you like the petals of the rose its golden center."

I drew her to me and kissed her blushing face. For awhile we stood hand in hand absorbed in each other. Then I bethought me of Gill and his chagrin over the missing paper; and also the vow I had made at my father's grave.

CHAPTER XXIII.

"It was the Night Lord Waters Left Me," Rosemary told me about the locket," she said.

"Ah there! it came near to being your undoing—a woman's vanity," she sighed, yet looked archly at me as though demanding that I contradict her.

"Was the paper in it when you gave it to Gill?" I asked.

"Did I tell Gill so when I gave it to him?" she replied.

"It is lost, I said, and Gill asserts that the locket never left his person until he placed it in my hands—and there was none in it then."

"What matters it?" she asked lightly. "I was naught but an old bit of paper."

"It was valuable to me," I said.

"You would keep it?" she asked jealously.

"Indeed I would, if I could but find it," I answered.

"Do you know who wrote it?" she questioned.

"No," I replied. "My father gave it to me to find out, if possible, the writer—it is strange where it could have disappeared to."

"I am sure I could not have lost it," she affirmed. "I slept with it attached to a slender chain about my neck."

"You are sure you never laid it down?" I still persistently inquired.

"Yes, sure," she began, and then stopped. "Once, now I remember, while at my bath it lay for a few moments on my dressing table," she added.

"Could anyone have entered your room then?" I asked.

"No one but my maid or Aunt Elaine," she admitted.

"Then rest assured that one or the other of them have it," I returned.

"What would either of them want with that old love letter?" she said; "besides I heard no one at the time."

"You say that Lady Dwight is with you?" I said. "I must see her at once—I have a message from the dead which admits of no delay—I have also to claim Raoul Dwight as a brother."

"Brother!" she exclaimed.

"Yes," I nodded. "Let us hasten to the Castle—too long has this news been on the way—there you shall learn all."

"It is dangerous," she returned; "for if the men see you they would set upon you and—" she shuddered.

"I shall try to hold my own," I grimly said; "but against Raoul Dwight I will never lift hand nor sword—I would be no second Cain."

"Ah, you would not, but would not he?" she asked. "He hates you!"

"Yes," I sighed, "we were ever biting and snarling. I would I had known sooner that he was my brother. I long to take his hand in good fellowship."

"With him love and hate war equally, as good and evil do, but then, you must remember he thinks he loves me," she whispered.

"I would he did not—I would he did not," I said. "Then it would be comparatively easy sailing. He would understand when he knew all. But how can he help it?" I looked at her with all a lover's fondness. I deemed the world might envy me and with cause.

She laughed deliciously at my look, whereat I took her into my arms and lifted her high (I was not such a weakling but I could do that) and kissed her lingeringly on her mouth.

"Come let us to Lady Dwight," I said soberly, when I had put her down.

She led the way through a disused kitchen and I followed. We met no one. The few servants were busy in the rear. We could hear them talking as we mounted the staircase. We had hardly reached the landing when Rosemary cried:

"Quick, in here."

She opened the door of a large room and we passed hurriedly in. Then I heard the sound of a man's heavy tread. She pushed me behind a hanging arras and stepped beside me, pulling the curtains together. I could almost hear her heart beat.

"I say you do wrong," said a high voice. It was Lady Dwight who was speaking. "I care not if he is my son—you shall not force her into a distasteful marriage—I shall not consent to it."

"Wrong? not at all, Madame," the strenuous voice of Lord Felton replied. "You should be pleased—she will bring to your empty coffers much gold."

His tone was ironical in the extreme.

"Gold—gold is not all in this world, let me tell you, my Lord Felton," she said. "Moreover, it is outrageous to keep us here in this ruinous old place. The damp is like to kill us—I felt a twinge of rheumatism yesterday."

"I am sorry, Madame," he said politely. "Why need you stay? The door is open."

Senile Conject.

James B. Hammond of New York, the noted typewriter inventor, was describing a concocted man.

"He is as concocted," Mr. Hammond said, "as an old fellow who lived in Germany while I was a student at the University of Halle."

"This old fellow sat one night in conversation with a group of men, and the talk turned to greatness."

"Numerous instances were mentioned in proof of the fact that the great die young. Finally it was agreed that there was more truth in this claim than there is in most proverbs."

"Yes," said the leading spirit of the party, "it ought to be a proverb, for it is true. The great die young. There is no doubt of it. The great, alas, die young."

"The old man, who had sat silent and impatient for a long time, now spoke up:

"If I'm not dead already, is it my fault?" he said."

Farming in the White House.

Mrs. Jackson died just before the general's first administration, and during the eight years that he was at the White House he practically managed the plantation himself from Washington, says Oliver Bronson Capen in Country Life in America. As a farmer Andrew Jackson was more successful than George Washington, and as a breeder of horses he was more successful than Henry Clay. And yet, so great were his achievements in pursuits as far removed from the pastoral as the poles, that popular tradition does not reckon with one of the most important sides of his character. Lawyer, politician, judge, statesman, soldier—closer to his heart than all these were a country home and a farm.

AGRICULTURE

Setting Out Strawberries.

Much depends upon this work in setting the plants, which should be thoroughly done and with the least exposure to the plants. For this reason procure a small, light box or basin to carry the plants in. Take a bunch of 25 or 30, as the case may be, and trim off about one-third of the long roots (some take off half). Provide yourself with a dibble (made of steel), or a wooden one will do if the planting is not to be a large one. A dibble is made like a medium-sized butcher knife with a handle across the end, the blade being about twice to three times as thick and provided with a double cutting edge, not so sharp as the knife. The wooden one can be made easily out of a piece of hard wood, osage orange being very suitable for this purpose. Take the dibble and push it into the soil (on the line), draw it toward you before withdrawing it, which will leave an opening for the roots of the plant to be set. Now, with your left hand take out one of the plants and place the roots about half way across the opening, and with the dibble in the right hand draw the blade of the dibble across the roots, and with the curved portion press the roots down into the opening in such a way that when the dibble reaches to the bottom the roots will not be doubled up, but be straight down in the hole. A little practice will soon show how easily it is done. Next, take the dibble and push it down about two inches ahead of the plant and draw the soil toward the plant, firming it well, so as to cover the opening. Make another draw a little farther ahead and the plant is set, which should leave the crown just peeping out of the ground. Continue the planting at from 18 to 20 inches apart. Some set two feet, others three feet apart, depending on the variety or the manner of after culture. Where it is intended that the cultivation is to be both ways the plants are set three feet apart.—Henry N. Wild.

Harrowing Alfalfa.

Your letter asking for an opinion on a question asked by Mr. W. H. Carter, of Kerby, Ore., has been referred to me for reply. Alfalfa that is three years old will certainly be benefited by harrowing with the common spike-tooth harrow or by the disc harrow. The disc harrow may be set so as to not throw the soil a great deal and can be weighted so as to cut as deeply as desired. I have even disked alfalfa both ways with a disc harrow, arranged as above stated, and it appears that the treatment would certainly ruin the alfalfa, but it proved to be a great benefit. Such treatment loosens up the soil above the crowns of the alfalfa and may cut some of them open and thicken up the stand in that way. In the alfalfa districts of Kansas where I have had considerable experience they consider the spring disking as essential as the cultivation of any crop. I have also practiced disking alfalfa after the different cuttings and found it a profitable venture. The spring disking should be done, however, before the alfalfa has made much growth, though it would be better to disc it or harrow it even after it had started several inches. In the case of the gentleman who has written you it would perhaps be best now to let the disking go until he had cut the first crop, then if he takes the hay off it would certainly be a good thing for the alfalfa to loosen the ground up before it has started for the second crop.

Anthraxnose of Beans.

This disease should be guarded against at time of planting. Its presence on the bean pods is shown by the appearance of deep dark pits, which materially decrease the quantity of marketable beans. The spores of this disease are carried over from one season to the next in the bean itself. If infected seed is planted, the plants soon show it by not growing at all, or, if they do, the disease soon spreads to other plants. The infected seed is often discolored and shriveled and beans having that appearance should not be planted. Where the disease has existed on the farm it is best to soak the seed for an hour in a solution made by combining three ounces of copper carbonate, one quart of ammonia and 18 quarts of water.

Ashes.

Ashes are valuable for fertilizer on most lands, but on some lands have the opposite effect, on account of the lime in them combining with some of the mineral elements of the soil. The great value of ashes is due to both lime and potassium contained. Hardwood gives a richer ash than soft wood and the hardwood trees differ in the mineral contents of the ash. The elm tree is especially rich in potassium. On acid soils ashes are especially valuable on account of the lime, which neutralizes the acids.

It is evident that the yield of wheat in this country is to be greatly increased in the next few years. A great many stations and private individuals are working unceasingly to improve the possibilities of wheat yields, and the fruits are now becoming apparent.

TALES TOLD BY OLD POTTERY.

Old Stoneware That Brings to Mind Half-Forgotten Customs.

Pottery students and collectors find much to charm them in the old wares they sometimes hit upon. For instance Micah Salt of Buxton, England, says the Philadelphia Record, has gathered eleven pieces of pottery illustrating the sports of bear-baiting, bull-fighting and cock fighting.

Some of them are of Nottingham make and probably date from the seventeenth century. They are all drinking vessels. The bears are shown muzzled and in various attitudes. Shakespeare has references to the sport of bear-baiting. Bear gardens, each kept by a bearsward, were common in his day. Bull-fighting and cock-fighting are also illustrated. The figure of the cock is formed of the ware which is characteristic of the Asbury-Wood period and previous to the cream ware development of Josiah Wedgwood. The yellowish white is shaded by patches of brown. The black eye is characteristic of the period.

Trying Chinese Bride's Temper.

On the day of a Chinese marriage uninvited friends and neighbors, or even perfect strangers, are allowed to come in and see the bride and they may make any remark about her, or to her, they please, says the Boudoir. Sometimes things horribly rude and disgusting are said:

To try her temper a man will say: "Fetch your husband a cup of tea!" If she does so, all will say jeeringly: "What an obedient wife you are!"

If she sulks and does not do as she is told they remark: "That is a pretty vixen with which to begin married life. We cannot congratulate you on that tartar," and other words to similar effect.

Then the poor thing is made to stand on an inverted cup to show how small are her feet.

Find Oil Paintings.

In the recent overhauling of an ancient moated farmhouse near Birmingham a collection of oil paintings was found under an old rotted floor. The pictures date back as far as the sixteenth century and are considered very valuable.

A VOICE FROM THE PULPIT.

Rev. Jacob D. Van Doren, of 57 Sixth street, Fond Du Lac, Wis., Presbyterian clergyman, says: "I had attacks of kidney disorders which kept me in the house for days at a time, unable to do anything. What I suffered can hardly be told. Complications set in, the particulars of which I will be pleased to give in a personal interview to any one who requires information. This I can conscientiously say, Doan's Kidney Pills caused a general improvement in my health. They brought great relief by lessening the pain and correcting the action of the kidney secretions."

Indian Head, N. W. T., Jan. 30th, 1904.

Immigration Branch, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada:

Am sending you the return of two fields of wheat grown on my home farm last year. These returns are perfectly accurate, and not over-estimated.

I summer-fallow about one-third of my farm every year, and afterward take off two crops and summer-fallow again. The summer-fallow is ploughed twice during the summer, first shallow, afterwards deep and no weed allowed to grow. The stubble is left as long as possible when cutting the first crop, and is burned the following spring, drilled directly afterwards, and harrowed after drilling. This gives much better result than fall-ploughing.

THE END OF THE GRIP

REACHED AFTER EIGHT YEARS OF COMPLICATED TROUBLES.

Dizziness, Hissing Sounds in Head, Stomach Disorder, Palpitation of Heart and Debility Overcome at Last.

Mr. Newman certainly had a very tough time with the grip, and it is no wonder that he thinks that the remedy that cured him can't be beat. His case shows how profoundly grip poisons the system and how obstinately it resists all ordinary efforts to eradicate it.

Few cases can be worse than Mr. Newman's for he had head, heart and stomach troubles combined with great weakness. He recently said:

"The attack of grip which I had eight years ago left me in a very bad fix. I became nearly deaf and my head ached continually and was filled with hissing and roaring sounds. My heart fluttered and had regular running-away spells. My stomach was so sore that I could hardly bear a touch on that part of my body. I had a great deal of pain in the region of my liver and the doctor said that organ was enlarged. My kidneys ached so at times that I could hardly stand."

"Didn't you give up and go to bed?" he was asked.

"No, I simply wouldn't. My head and my back ached dreadfully, but I obstinately dragged myself about, kept growing worse and finally ran down to almost nothing."

"What did you do to get relief?"

"First I tried a doctor, but he did me no good. Then I took all kinds of advertised preparations but nothing proved helpful until I began to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. As soon as I got them I knew that I had at last hit the right remedy for my case. The very first box did more for me than anything else I had ever taken. They gave me relief right away and in three months they positively cured me. I think I was scarcely ever in better health in my life than I am at present."

Mr. William A. Newman is a well-known Camden county farmer, living at Sagrada, Missouri. His case was a severe test for any remedy, but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills met every requirement. Other remedies merely drive the poison of the grip into hiding, but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills drive it out of the system. They are sold by every druggist.

A TRAINED NURSE

After Years of Experience, Advises Women in Regard to Their Health.

Mrs. Martha Pohlman of 55 Chester Avenue, Newark, N. J., who is a graduate nurse from the Blockley Training School, at Philadelphia, and for six years Chief Clinic Nurse at the Philadelphia Hospital, writes the letter printed below. She has the advantage of personal experience, besides her professional education, and what she has to say may be absolutely relied upon.

Many other women are afflicted as she was. They can regain health in the same way. It is prudent to heed such advice from such a source.

Mrs. Pohlman writes: "I am firmly persuaded, after eight years of experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that it is the safest and best medicine for any suffering woman to use."

"Immediately after my marriage I found that my health began to fail me. I became weak and pale, with severe bearing-down pains, fearful backaches and frequent dizzy spells. The doctors prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I would blot after eating and frequently become nauseated. I had an acrid discharge and pains down through my limbs so I could hardly walk. It was as bad a case of female trouble as I have ever known. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, however, cured me within four months. Since that time I have had occasion to recommend it to a number of patients suffering from all forms of female difficulties, and I find that while it is considered unprofessional to recommend a patent medicine, I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I have found that it cures female ills, where all other medicine fails. It is a grand medicine for sick women."

Money cannot buy such testimony as this—merit alone can produce such results, and the ablest specialists now agree that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most universally successful remedy for all female diseases known to medicine.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhoea, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone," and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles.

The needless suffering of women from diseases peculiar to their sex is terrible to see. The money which they pay to doctors who do not help them is an enormous waste. The pain is cured and the money is saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Experience has proved this.

It is well for women who are ill to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. In her great experience, which covers many years, she has probably had to deal with dozens of cases just like yours. Her advice is free and confidential.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

OLD PORTRAITS IN HORN.

The Likenesses of Many Historical Characters Thus Preserved.

Most of the specimens that have been handed down to us of impressed horn work, so greatly valued at the time, says the London Queen, date from about the sixteenth century to the very early part of the nineteenth; but it was from the middle of this period, about 1750, that the best specimens have been left us.

When the well-dressed beaux in Queen Anne's reign took to carrying snuff boxes this gave a great impetus to an art produced by softening the horn in hot water, and so pressing it into molds, which were specially sharp cut and clear of outline. In this way many portraits have been handed down to us, not always of those living at the time but from some cause or other brought prominently forward. The Stuart kings found special acceptance with the Jacobites, and the arms of noted families have been perpetuated with their portraits.

The two most famous artists in horn work were John Osborn, who was hard at work in Amsterdam in the second decade of the seventeenth century, and John O'Brisset, whose handiworks were executed in England early in the eighteenth.

Tortoise shell, turtle, elk horn and wood were treated in the same fashion. The wooden impressed work appertains to Germany, and among other examples one depicting Louis X., king of France, survives.

Many of the finest examples of this horn work are set in silver, and the profiles here shown of William and Mary.

WOVEN BY GIANT SPIDERS.

Beautiful Piece of Silk Exhibited at Paris Exposition.

One of the wonders of the Paris exhibition of 1900 was a piece of silk, eighteen yards long and eighteen inches wide, woven from the web of the giant spiders of Madagascar. Into its manufacture entered 100,000 yards of spun thread of twenty-four strands of spiders' web. Twenty-five thousand spiders had to be brought into requisition for the purpose, and these were procured by offering the natives so much a hundred; but not knowing or ignoring the purposes for which the insects were required, and having a "get-rich-quick" desire, they brought them in by the basketfuls—mostly dead. So that it was found necessary for the winding-off machines to go to the spiders, instead of calling in the spiders to the filatures. However, the piece of cloth was finally completed, and was of a shimmering golden-yellow color.

Those Awful Ham Sandwiches. The careful hostess happened casually to follow with her eyes a guest who had just taken a ham sandwich. As he took the first bite she noticed an expression on his face which she had not hitherto associated with the consumption of ham sandwiches, and her glance immediately ceased to be casual. The guest, unconscious of observation, made his way slowly but surely to the fire, and with infinite dexterity cast away the ham sandwich. In great agitation, the hostess watched the remaining sandwiches, and with deepening emotion saw another and another guest execute the same maneuver. She had the rest of the sandwiches removed, and tried to forget them for the time being. Afterwards a searching investigation revealed the awful truth. One of her small children had abstracted all the ham from the sandwiches, and substituted pieces of an old red flannel garment, carefully trimmed to sandwich size.—Exchange.

Memories of Last Night. Across the gray of last night's skies The stars like white narcissus cling. And, sweetheart, mirrored in your eyes The halo of their glory hung. While far and wide the moonlight flung. And somewhere, in our world apart, A mocker's sudden music swung—Last night, sweetheart. The song below, the stars above, Seemed but to meet and melt into A silver symphony of love. That thrilled our listening senses through: And, close within my arms, you knew The depth of each unspoken thought. While life for me held only you—Last night, sweetheart. And, oh, can there be more than this Beyond the mystery of the skies? A heaven sweeter than your kiss? An Eden dearer than your eyes? I am not good, nor great, nor wise, And yet by some strange chance Fate wrought I found the way to paradise—Last night, sweetheart. —New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Church Holidays Mixed Up. In Constantinople three Christmas celebrations, two New Year's days and two other holy days follow each other in quick succession. As the "old style" calendar brings December 25 two weeks after the same day "new style," two Christmases, the first Latin and the second Greek, are inevitable. And as stormy weather kept a delegation of Armenians from attending an ecumenical council at Chalcedon in 451, at which council the date of Christmas was changed from Jan. 6 to Dec. 25, the Armenians have ever since kept their old day.

Wanted to Get Even. A correspondent sends us the following extract from the pious petition of a good old colored brother, in a Georgia settlement: "Lawd, we wants a blessin' fer ever one, 'cept one; en dat one is a yaller nigger what boarded de railroad train en runned off wid de whole collection what wuz took up ter pay my salary wid! Lawd, please make de train jump de track—don't hurt de yuther passengers, but take off one leg fum dat nigger!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Protesting Against Rate Reduction. Atlanta, Ga.—The recent proposition of J. Pope Brown, Chairman of the Georgia Railroad commission, to reduce the passenger rate in Georgia from three to two cents per mile was protested against by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Order of Railway Conductors, and unions of the blacksmiths, machinists and telegraphers, boiler-makers, railway trainmen, carpenters and joiners; clerks and car men. These organizations employed an attorney especially to represent them, who urged that such a reduction would work against the prosperity of the state and lead to a reduction in the number of railroad employes, as well as of their wages. The Travelers' Protective Association also protested that a reduction, as proposed, would result in fewer trains and poorer service.

When Mrs. Stowe Awoke. A friend of mine, a Northern woman long resident in Florida, once gave me the following account of a visit from Mrs. Stowe: "I had invited her to spend the day, with several other ladies, at my villa. She came with an old white fur tippet wrapped about her neck. She sat all day near the open fire, occupied apparently with her own thoughts, for she spoke to no one. When the day was well nigh spent, one of the guests related the remarkable experience of a woman who had passed through some danger, I forget of what sort. Mrs. Stowe presently started us all by inquiring, with some show of interest, 'Did the woman live?'—Julia Ward Howe's Article on Harriet Beecher Stowe, in the Reader Magazine.

FAMOUS ATHLETES PAY GLOWING TRIBUTE TO PE-RU-NA

As a Spring Tonic to Get the System In Good Shape.

"I advise all Athletes who are about to go in training to try a bottle of Pe-ru-na." —J. W. Glenister.

John Glenister, Champion Swimmer and Only Athlete to Successfully Swim Through the Michigan Whirlpool Rapids.

PE-RU-NA Renovates, Regulates, Restores a System Depleted by Catarrh.

John W. Glenister, of Providence, R. I., champion long distance swimmer of America, has performed notable feats in this country and England. He has used Peruna as a tonic and gives his opinion of it in the following letter:

New York. The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio: Gentlemen—"This spring for the first time I have taken two bottles of Peruna, and, as it has done me a great deal of good, I feel as if I ought to say a good word for its worth. "During the springtime for the last few years, I have taken several kinds of spring tonics, and have never received any benefit whatever. This year, through the advice of a friend, I have tried Peruna and it has given satisfaction. "I advise all athletes who are about to go in training to try a bottle, for it certainly gets the system in good shape." Yours truly, JOHN W. GLENISTER.

ATHLETES realize the importance of keeping in good bodily trim.

The digestion must be good, the circulation perfect, sleep regular and enough of it.

If the slightest catarrh condition of lungs or stomach is allowed to remain, neither digestion nor sleep will be strength-sustaining.

Those who lead very active lives, like athletes, with good muscular development, find the spring months especially trying.

Athletes everywhere praise Peruna, because they, of all men, appreciate the value of a tonic that dispels physical depression.

The vacation of some men may allow them to endure the depressing feelings incident to spring weather, but the athlete must never allow himself to get "under the weather."

He must keep in the "pink of condition" all the time.

In order to do this he must avail himself of a spring tonic upon which he can rely.

Therefore athletes are especially friendly toward Peruna. Peruna never fails them.

"The Squawman" at the Detroit Opera House, May 11, 12 and 13.

William Faversham comes to the Detroit opera house on May 11, with a brand new play, a four act comedy drama by Edwin Milton Royle, entitled "The Squawman," in which he is to appear under the management of Liebler & Co., and in which he has already scored a veritable triumph in Buffalo, Toronto and other large cities where he has appeared. Several newspapers do not hesitate to say that it is the best as well as the newest American play.

The story of the play, briefly told as possible, is that of a young Englishman who, to save the head of his noble family from punishment for embezzlement and a woman he loves from disgrace, takes the crime upon his own shoulders and makes off to America, where he becomes a cattle ranchman in a western state. There he marries an Indian girl who saves his life. Hence the title of the play, for in the west when a white man marries an Indian woman he becomes a "squawman." The Indian wife eventually commits suicide, when her husband attempts to take their son away from her to send him back to England to be educated for the title which he has himself inherited, but which he renounces in the child's favor. Freed by the death of his wife, the Englishman determines to return and claim his inheritance for himself, but before he departs, an Indian uprising gives him an opportunity to rescue his former sweetheart, and when the curtain falls, it is upon one of those happy endings that the majority of theatregoers delight in.

To the reader, the story of the play thus told, may indicate a melodrama. It is not so, however, for Mr. Royle has labored to make his play as natural and as true to life as possible, and in the rehearsals the same object has been kept in view.

The hero is a manly, good-looking, courageous man, just such a character as Mr. Faversham knows best how to impersonate, and in it he is said to have scored the greatest success of his career. The cast of "The Squawman" is an exceptionally long one, including more than thirty speaking parts, each of which is played by a well known actor or actress especially selected with a view to his or her suitability for the character.

Instead of making his Indian characters speak the usual absurd pigeon English of the stage red man, Mr. Royle has provided his Indian with lines written in the real Ute language. Mr. Roberts, for instance, speaks exclusively in this tongue, and what he says will be interpreted for the benefit of the audience, by Baco White, a full blooded Ute Indian, from the Indian school at Carlisle, Pa., who has for some time been the official interpreter of his tribe, and who is making his professional debut as an actor in "The Squawman." This little touch of realism is only one of many that Mr. Royle has introduced into the production of his play, and which he hopes will make it extremely effective.

Mr. Faversham will give four performances of "The Squawman" at the Detroit Opera House—Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings, and Saturday matinee, May 11, 12 and 13.
