There Was Trouble at South Lyon.

A large crowd of Plymouthites, including the ball team, went over to South Lyon to celebrate gala day, and every one of them wishes now he had staid at home, and all on account of the ball game between Plymouth and South Lyon. The first game between Plymouth and Milford was won by the former very easily by a score of 6 to 0, Wood and Riggs forming the battery for Plymouth.

About the time for the afternoon game to take place it began to rain and it continued to drizzle for some time, so that at five o'clock the field was very wet and muddy. James Bridson, who appeared to be the "pooh James bah" of the town, begged the Plymouth managers to go out to the grounds and play ball, saying their committee was "in the hole" financially and the gate receipts would help them out materially Against their judgment, the Plymouths consented. Trouble began in the second innings of the game. Bridson was umpire and he knew as much about the game as a cow does about China. He had it in for Plymouth and he "soaked it to 'em," in return for their kindness in playing ball at all, Protests were of no use, except it was made by a South Lyonite and no mat-ter if decisions had already been made they were reversed to suit the home Things went from bad to worse. club. Both Plymouth managers were walked off the field, protesting a decision. A man named Bay, said to be President of the village, brandished a pair of handcuffs and threatened to annihilate a number of Plymouthites for no other reason than that they were 'hollering' for Plymouth. In the last half of the ninth, with the score 9 to 8 in favor of Plymouth, a decision was so outrage ously rank, that the Plymouth mana gers pulled the team from the field and forfeited the game to South Lyon. The whole trouble is laid at the door of the umpire, who had no control of himself. let alone over the crowd, which greatly interfered with the game. Plymouth should have refused to play at all with Bridson as umpire, as he had stated when in this village he would get even with Plymouth if they ever came to South Lyon. South Lyon would have consented to make a change had they seen there would be no game and consequently no money in their cash box. A great deal of soreness exists that will no be eliminated right away. It is but just to say that the ball team is not blamed for any of the trouble, as they played on the same basis as did Plym

The town had also so wretchedly prepared itself for visitors, that many went without supper, because it could not be had.

There were fifteen present at the last neeting, which was considered a good representation in warm weather. Our country at the residence of Mrs. Will Harmon. Detroit's Greatest Crime

Detroit's Greatest Crime.

Beaten down with either a hatchet or a meat cleaver, while attempting to defend the many thousands of dollars worth of jewelry and other valuables in his puwn shop at 42 Monroe avenue, Detroit, Joseph Moyer, a wealthy Jew, 54 years old, was butchered in his shop early Friday evening while hundreds of persons were passing the place, and the robbers escaped with nearly $10,000 in cash and Jewelry. Moyer was not dead when found. He was unconsclous, but he never revived to whisper a word as to the description of identity of his murdeners. It was shortly before 7 in the evening when the dying man was taken from the shorty detore in the evening when the dying man was taken from the pawn shop, where he has been engaged in business for years, and carried on a stretcher to an ambulance. He was conveyed to St. Mary's hospital; where he died without regaining conscious he died without regaining conscious-ness and before his wife could reach ness and defore his wife could read him.

The story of the murder itself is written in blood on the floor of the pawnshop. In a narrow pathway between two showcases on the right hand side of the store Moyer was attacked. He was struck over the head, with blowe raining upon him, until attacked. He was struck over the head, with blows raining upon him, until he fell unconscious and bleeding to the floor. Then like an ox that had been stumed in a slaughter house he was dragged farther back to permit the finishing of the butchery. A trail of blood, smeared upon the floor shows how he was dragged from the place where he fell, scross the rear of the store through a narrow goor into the little back office where the job was finished and the victim was left to his fate. Here lay a puddle of blood.

What makes the crime unparalleled What makes the crime unparaileled in the annals of murder in the city is the boldness with which it was executed, the almost incredible brutality with which the helpless victim was slain and the large amount of booty that was secured it was, as Capt. McDonnell summarized it:

ANYTHING BUT A HERO.

The Russ, Novoe Vremya and other representative Russian papers counse patience for the brief interval befor the meetings of the peace plenipoten tiaries and dwell on the futility of at tacking men of straw before it is defi nitely known what terms the Japan ese propose.

ese propose.

Discussing the supposition that a combination of the powers might exert pressure for the modification of extortionate Japanese demands, M. Neratoff, spokesman of the foreign of fice, declares that Russia never would be the mover of such a project, as it believes that all questions connected with the settlement of the war should be decided directly between the two countries interested. China, he said, had advanced no claim to compensation for losses sustained on account tion for losses sustained on account of Manchuria being the theater of war but no such claim would be considered Emperor Nicholas' martial message to the Orenbourg clergy, in which he expressed his determination never to expressed his determination never to conclude a peace dishonorable to Russia or unworthy of her greatness, is printed in every paper in Russia. It has struck a responsive chord in many quarters, even among the friends of peace. For example, the merchants of Moscow, who are largely old believers and who control much of the wealth of the nation; are sending an address to Gen. Linevitch to express confidence that the army will defend Russia's honor and that a humiliating peace will not be made. will not be made.

honor and that a humiliating peace will not be made.

The latest witness against him, a French merchant who remained in the fortress throughout the siege, but who is now at Marseilles, is very strong in its condemnation of Gen. Stoessel. He says: "Gen. Stoessel's conduct was disgraceful from beginning to end. His officers and men hated him, and they had good reason to do so. He never showed the slightest interest in their welfare or pity for their sufferings. He let the soldiers go without shoes and dressed in filthy rags, when the storehouses were full of uniforms and supplies of all kinds. He let the common soldiers, whose courage and patience surpassed anything I have ever seen, starve when there were plenty of supplies on hand."

This is now proved beyond all doubt, as the Japanese found, according to their official report, in the storehouses of the fallen fortress, $80 tons of sait beef, $1,00 pairs of boots, 6,000 tons of flour and grain, 102,000 suits of underwear, and 200,000,000 cartridges and shells. When Gen. Stoessel left the fortress is personal belongs filled 32 large baggage vans, while the privates were dressed in rags." WAR TO HUMILIATION.

The tone of the Russian press grows more warlike as the peace con-ference draws high and the govern-ment on all sides is urged to resist humiliating demands even at the cost of continuing the war. "Peace on the of continuing the war. "Peace on the Japanese terms as outlined by Mr. Sato." says the Russ, which is the first paper to comment seriously on the Sato interviews, "can only be an armistice." The Russ, which has now the largest liberal following, finds the Japanese demands far from moderate and sees little chance of the conference ending successfully, if Mr. Sato has corercity stated the Japanese position, but it appears to believe that Baron Komura's spoke and is acting "on his own responsibility," or seepts a possible bluff to pave the way for the acceptance of actual and more moderate terms by Japan.

Gov. Blanchard has issued orders to Capt. J. W. Bostick, in command of the Louisians naval reserves, to proceed with a sufficient force to Lake Borgne canal and adopt measures for Borgne canal and adopt measures for the protection of Louisiana fishermen, citizens and boatmen. The oyster commission has been instructed to turn over the oyster fleet to Capt. Bostick for service in this matter, and the naval commander has instructions to add by charter or impressment whatever boats he deems desirable for his mission. The boats will be fully airmed and each filled with a complement of naval militia. Gov. Harrible Work of Sluggers.

The tortures inflicted for three weeks on William H. Wilder by three Chicago bandits in an effort to get $160 he had concealed is now alleged to have been the work of union sluggers, who tupned Wilder loose a physical and mental wreck, after getting his money and torturing him in the most terrible way.

Every day and night Wilder's captors, who kept him naked and bound tightly, would visit him, prick him with brad awis, burn his feet with matches and his mouth with acid and poor water into his throat until he wag unconscious. Wilder's tongue is one soild bilister from acid and fire, his body is covered with burns, and his condition is covered with burns, and his condition is critical.

The police believe the case will furnish clues to mysterious murders. Headless bodies bearing marks of inhuman torture have been found in the river, and heretofore there was no clue at all to the perpetrators. The stistence of a sluggers' inquisition has been hinted at before, but the police scoffed at it.

Wilder has said that his $160 was discovered is his hat band by his captors the first day and that one of them remarked: "It is now good union money." Wilder, as claim agent for the Johnson, Express Ce, incurred union sluggers that they would "get him."

How vividly he re-called the conversation that set his brain aftre with the possibility of los-ing her. Could she have meant it when she told him that he was not re? Did she love Enrique, the mandant of the Rurales? If not had she taunted him last night when he urged her to marry him? Had she not told him that it is only the brave who are deserving of the fair, and when he had charged her with being in love with a soldier, had she not confessed that Capitan Enrique Bosalez had played bear under her window for many nights?

"Do you love him?" Jose had asked.

The only answer was a shrug of the pretty shoulders of his adored one. The hot Latin blood surged through the velns of Jose. Dark thoughts filled his mind. Then came a calmness. He remembered that he was connected with the clergy. To be sure he did not wear the vestments and asy the prayers of the good padres whom he served, but he regarded him-self as belonging to their class. Was not he the bell-ringer in he great cathedral? Had not his father and his father's father been bell-ringers before him? He would not bring dis-grace upon his sacred calling by com-mitting a rash deed. He would give up Anita to the brave commandant. Did she love the capitan? That was Did she love the capitan? That was the question that Jose wished he could answer to his own satisfaction. He could hardly believe that Anita would trifle with any one's affections. She was doubtless honest in her belief that her love was for Capitan Environment of the proof lose the belief. righte and not for poor Jose, the bell

Jose had left her the night previous with doubt in his mind as to her love for him. It was now early morning and the chimes of the bells were still and the chimes of the bells were atmediated in the distance when Jose leaned out of the window of the bell-ringer's toft and breathed deep draughts of the fresh morning air that ug to be brave that he might come to the standard of Anita's thoughts of Capitan Enrique? No such thought was in Jose's mind. He did not belong to the recognized class of the brave. That was left to the soldiers. He looked down into the street below and watched the women as they left their homes and hurried silently along and entered the worship room of the great edifice to attend early mass. He knew that Anita would be among them. Many, many mornings had be stood at this same window and watched his level one as she left her home and wended her way to the cathedral to offer up her daily prayer. Jose stood at the window of the bell- | that she gave to him, her upturned face being to Jose the very light of his existence. Could be give her up? She passed into the portals of the cathedral. Over at the military barracks the reveille was being sounded. Perhaps Capitan Enrique would be waiting to receive from Anita a word of love as she entered her home upon her return from her devotions. Dressed in his bright-colored uniform, was it any wonder that Anita lost her heart to the brave commandant, mused

Jose. Suddenly, there was a creaking and crackling sound overhead. The sight that met Jose's eyes when he looked up chilled his heart. The heavy cross piece which had held upright the great bell for these many long years had given way to the ravages of time and wood worms and had broken square in its center. The bell, with its enor-hous weight, was tagged and sway-ing and threatening to drop at any moment. In its downward plunge it would land in the very front of the chancel. Its fall would mean the death of probably several worshipers, particularly at that hour. Jose's first thought was to give the alarm. To to this he must reach the ground before the bell could fall. There was but one way down, and that was by the ladder that followed the narrow opening directly underneath the great bell. Withmoment's hesitation Jose sprang he ladder and went down it with the agility of one long experienced in such descents. The safety of the worshipers depended upon his quick-ness. He had no thought of the dan-ger that threatened his own life. He reached the stairway that led into the large worshiping room when there was

DISCOUNT FOR MUCH CUSTOM: Birds with Large Appetites

Despite the fact that "the appetite of a bird" has become a common phrase for light eating, investigations show that birds are tremendous feeders. The diet of the average kestrel (a small European hawk) is calculated at 1,000 mice a month, to say nothing of insects and worms. The barn owl is as voracious as the kestrel. An investigator, after caging one of these birds, gave it seven mice one after the other. The first six immediately disappeared, each with a gobble and a gulp, and the owl did its very best to treat the seventh in a like manner. Limitations of abdominal capacity, however, prevented, and though the gobble came off the gulp did not, so that for twenty minutes or so the tall of the seventh mouse dangled from the corner of the bird's beak. due course it swallowed the body, and three hours later the pangs of hunger reasserted themselves and the

The following concerns "Fight-ing Jack" Hayes, the first sheriff of San Francisco county: "Hayes never drilled his command; with him it was 'Come on, boys,' and they followed where he led. After the battle of Monterey, in which his gallantry was conspicuous, a number of young lieu-tenants, graduates of West Point, visited his camp to pay their compli-ments to Fighting Jack. They found him frying bacon, surrounded by sol-diers, with nothing to distinguish him from those about him. Where can we find Col. Hayes?' inquired the spokesman. I think you will find him over yonder,' pointing to a group of men about a hundred yards away. Riding over to the group indicated the young men made the same inquiry. Michigan is the great automobile manufacturing state of the union, and the state labor bureau has begun a spe cial canvass of the industry. Detroit it is claimed leads all other cities in the United States in the manufacture o

Young men, says an exchange, when you see a beautiful girl passing along the street, "take a reef in your jaw," and do not make any improper remarks concerning her to your chums. It is not only poor breeding, but it brands you as a miserable, low-lived poltroon and unfits you for any young lady'.

To facilitate more accurate handling of mail by rural free delivery carriers, the postoffice department is arranging for the numbering of rural boxes. The delivery of ordinary mail matter of all classes addressed to boxes by number alone will be authorized the same as is now permitted in the case of postoffice boxes, so long as improper and unlawful business is not conducted.

The Michigans experiment station shows in bulletin that cow peas and soy beans without nodes on the roots are lacking in feeding value as compared with those which are supplied with the nitrogen fixing apparatus. Dispatches from! Washington state that the Department of Agriculture Thus prepared and is ready to begin 1,200 suits against railroad companies "stq.secure the imposition of a penalty of $500 in each case for every violation of the so-called twenty-eight hour law regarding the feeding and resting of live stock. Such cases as are not compromised will be filed in the circuit courts. The suits are to be begun in the name of the United States. They are to be civil actions for damages as the law makes no provision for either fine or imprisonment.

The fact that the United States has lender is one of such recent existence, perhaps, as to leave it yet unknown to most of the republic's people. England Japan, Mexico and Cuba are among the governments whose bonds to the extent of very large totals are now re posing in American vaults. And some recent loans which have been made to Russia by Germany and France were completed with gold borrowed from this country. The United States' stock of gold is at this time as great or greater than that of England and Germany combined, and one fourth greater than that of France. There is something of more value in these figures than the gold they represent, especially when memory is permitted to suggest the best lesson they contain. The United States as the money center of the world is not the position this country would now be holding if the repub-lican party had not been equal to a great emergency in a season of demoralization and danger.

Some think that few people read the newspaper advertisements, but most do and benefit by it. The most intelligent readers and as much interest there as readers find as much interest there as in many of the so-called news columns. The men could only work with ice an interesting fact in a most interesting manner, and under it lies the bulkwork of our prosperity, the almighty dollar. A keen business man can judge of the business life of some dis-tant place better by the advertisements The advertisements news columns. bespeak energy and enterprise, or lack of them. Women are close readers of advertising columns, for they have the shopping instinct and watch for bar-The children read hadvertisements, for they are inquisitive and like to know what is going on. If you think few see an advertisement, insert one attacking a neighbor and note how quickly he will know lit. The people of today are intelligent; and do their buying accordingly. Real Literary Curlosity.
On an evening somewhere about he end of the sixteenth century, a traveter from Sweden might have been observed at the door of the Rose theater in London. He was go-ing to see a new piece called "Titus Andronicus," and in order to follow ti in the native language bought a copy of the play, price algebra, the theater door. When he went home to Sweden he took the book with him to show wife and friends what strange stuff the foreigner rant-ed. For 300 years it was preserved and in 1904, being discovered in the ferred for safety to the Lund univer-sity. The book is the only one of its kind known to exist.

How Winter Palace Was Built Almost every stone of the walls and every square yard of the plaster lining the winter palace of the czars lining the winter palace of the czars cost a life. Nicholas had given the order that the palace must be rebuilt in a year, and what was human life against the despot's will? Six thousand men were kept at work day and night, with the palace betted at 30 Reamur to dry the walls rapidly, while the temperature outside was often 30 degrees below zero Reamur. The men could only work with ice Chileana Wear Overcoats indoors.

"In Sentiago, the Chilean capital, where I have been residing for some years, it in common to see people put on their overcoats when they enter a house aid take them off upon going into the street," said Mr. John W. Taylor, formerly of San Francisco. The cause of this is that the stmoorphere on the outside is warmer than within the residences. The Chileans do not heat their domicilies to any extent, and they are constructed of such tent, and they are constructed of such thick walls that they are a good deal on the order of refrigerators."—Wash-ington Feet.

Ellsworth, Kan., Reporter: Died at is home east of Ellsworth, on Monday July 10th, 1905, Ezra S. Rice aged 55 years, three months Mr. Rice was born in Collins, Erie Co., N. Y; moved to Creston, Ills. with his parents when quite young and lived there until he married. About twenty years ago they came to Ellsworth county and remained here for some time, when they moved to Michigan, where they remained a few years. About ten years ago they moved back here, where they have resided since and prospered. Services were held at the home yesterday afternoon at 2:30 conducted by Rev. J. R. Terry and on the early train this morning his remains were taken to Creston, Ills., for interment, accompanied by the widow and her two sons, Fred and Harry. The deceased was a good and just man, a kind husband and father, a man who was held in highest esteem by a host of friends. He leaves a wife, two children, two sisters and three brothers to mourn his death

Frank Polley died early Monday morning, after an illness of many While his death had been ex pected for some time past, the shock in the community was nevertheless sev erely felt when the news was spread about. Mr. Polley was an old resident of the village, a man of sterling charac-ter and worth and who numberd his friends by the score. Quiet and of undemonstrative manner, yet his words had weight and impressiveness when opinions or advice was sought. For many years he had been employed by the Markham Air Rifle Co., as foreman and superintendent, and he had the unbounded respect and confidence of employers and of the men working under him. His place there will be hard to fill.

Mr. Polley was born in Stratford, Ont., April 22, 1858, and with his parents came to Plymouth when five years of age. With the exception of nine years spent in Carbondale, Pa., where he was married, he had been a resident of Plymouth all his life. He leaves a widow and three children to mourn their loss.

The funeral took place at the M. E. church Wednesday afternoon, there being a large attendance, including all the officers and shopmen of the Rifle Company. Rev. Godlie preached an eloquent sermon and at its conclusion spoke feelingly of the last few weeks of life of the deceased. Rev. Stephens of Northville, also made a few remarks. The remains were taken to Riverside for burial. Beautiful flowers, gifts from his former associates and friends oovered the casket and attested to the love and esteem in which he was held.

Thousands of Women ARE MADE WELL AND STRONG

nooses of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetalis Campound Rests Upon the Fact that it Really Does Make Sick Women Well

Thousands upon thousands of American women have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Their letters are on flie in Mrs. Pinkham's office, and prove this statement to be a fact and not a mere boast.

Overshadowing indeed is the success of this great medicine, and compared with it all other medicines and treat-with it all other medicales and item-ment for women are experiments. Why has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vege-table Compound accomplished its wide-spread results for good? Why has it lived and thrived and done its glorious work for a quarter of spread results for good?

Why has it lived and thrived and done its glorious work for a quarter of a century?

Simply and surely because of its sterling worth. The reason no other medicine has even approached its success is plainly and positively because there is no other medicine in the world so good for women's ills.

The wonderful power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the diseases of womankind is not because it is astimulant—not because it is a palliative, but simply because it is a palliative, but simply because it is the most wonderful tonic and reconstructor ever discovered to act directly upon the uterine system, positively curing disease and displacements and restoring health and vigor.

Marvelous cures are reported from all parts of the country by women who have been cured, trained nurses who have witnessed cures, and physicians who have recognized the virtue in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are fair enough to give credit where it is due. If physicians dared to be frank and open, hundreds of them would acknowledge that they constantly prescribe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in severe cases of female ills, as they know by experience that it will effect a cure.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, backaehe, bloating (or flatulence), leacorrhea, felling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration, or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences and he restored to health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Anyway, write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice. It's free and always helpful.

Who Has a Scheme for the Eradication of the Cactus in Queensland?-Find an Alloy in Diamond Cutting That is Without Danger to Health

FOR MEN OF BRAINS

Many persons, no doubt, will con-clude that there is practically no chance of securing such desirable prizes as the large sums of moneyfive prizes each worth £8,000-offered by the Nobel bequest, where it is ab-solutely needful to have attainments of both a learned and brilliant nature; yet, says Tit Bits, a study of the fol-lowing particulars of prizes which are being offered to-day will show that there are other splendid opportunities well within the scope of most people.

Among the many varieties of cactus there is one which is known as the prickly pear; it is a rather attractive looking plant, but its leaves are covered with hair sharp enough to pierce the hands of any one who is so rash as to touch it. The plant came orig-inally from America, but after it was introduced in some manner or other into Queensland it spread so rapidly and to such an extent that in some districts it has practically destroyed all other vegetation. The Queensland government is still offering a reward of £5,000 to any one who can devise a method by which it can be completely eradicated.

The Britsh consul at Palermo not long since sent a dispatch to the For-eign Office containing information re-garding a premium of £2,000 that the municipality of Catania is offering. In order to encourage local industrial enterprise this sum is to be awarded to the individual who establishes to the individual who establishes some new industry in the town. This trade is to be of such a nature that it will employ not fewer than 100 workmen. A further £1,000 will be paid for every additional fifty hands that are afterward employed. These sums would be payable at the end of the Year in five equal instalments. the Year in five equal instalments.

"I wish you would publish this let-ter so that others suffering as I have may be helped. For months awful sores covered my face and neck, scabe forming, itching, terribly day and night, breaking open, and running blood and matter. I had tried many remedies, but was growing worse, when I started with Cuticura. The first application gave me instant re-lief, and when I had used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment, I was completely cured. #### The Russian Conscience

In Carl Joubert's "Russia as It Reat ly is" the author gives the following anecdote: "A Jewish peddler of Grodno dealt in pirrogs (meat ples). and two hungry muzhiks traveling in the third-class rallroad car with him were so overpowered by the appetiz-ing odor of his wares that, not having money to buy them, they slew the Jew without further ado and threw the body out of the window. They were apprehended and to the astonish ment of the pristav (police sergeant) the whole supply of ples was intact. Why did you not eat the pir-rogs and throw the basket away? asked the pristav. 'You forget, said one of the muzhiks, that to-day is Friday and it is not allowed to eat

German Author, Fond of America. German Author, Fond of America.
It was a peculiarity of the late Balduin Mollhausen that in nearly all his novels the scene is placed partly in Germany, partly in America. He was extremely prolific, his stories and travel sketches making up nearly two hundred volumes. He spent many years in the western prairies and the Rocky mountains before he became librarian at Potsdam. To the last he kept his enthusiasm for the west. He left to a Berlin museum four albums containing pictures of America, "as one who will ever again see it."

At is sometimes interesting to watch the curves imitators make to get the public to buy imitations of genuine goods.

Every now and then some one will think there is a splendid opening to fix up something like Postum Coffee and advertise the same way and take some of the business.

An imitator is naturally ignorant of food values and how to skillfully make a cereal coffee, on scientific lines.

Such men first think of preparing something that looks and tastes like the original, with no knowledge of how the grains should be treated to prepare them so that the starchy part is transformed properly and the val-uable nourishing elements made diment of Malefactors in England in Year 1663.

In the early days of public execu ons, it was no uncommon thing for the condemned man to be hanged on the scene of the crime, or even at his home. Mr. Pepys attended such a spectacle on Jan. 21, 1663, for we read he following entry in his diary:

"Up, and after sending my wife to Aunt Wright's to get a place to ee Turner hanged, I to the 'Change, and, seeing people flock in the city, I inquired and found that Turner was not yet hanged; so I went among them to Leadenhall street, at the end of Lyme street, near where the rob-bery was done, and to St. Mary Axe, where he lived. And there I got, for a shilling, to stand upon the wheel of a cart, in great pain, above an hour be fore the execution was done, he delaying the time by long discourses and prayers, one after another, in hopes of a reprieve; but none came, and at last was flung off the ladder in his cloak. A comely looking man he was, and kept his countenance to the end. I was sorry to see him. It was believed there were at least 12 or 14,000 peo

The Wedding Ring Finger.
The wedding ring was placed on the left hand, as nearest the heart, and on left hand, as nearest the heart, and on the fourth finger because that finger was supposed to have its own "private wire" (in the shape of a delicate nerve) to the heart. That finger, too, was called the medicine finger, and the belief was that by virtue of the little nerve it could detect a danger-ous polson if simply inserted in the liquid. From that belief the idea that wedding rings—the rings worn on that wedding rings—the rings worn on that inger—had special curative qualities had its rise. To this day wedding rings, are rubbed over an obstinate sty on an eyelid.

She has made a little floor pad three inches thick, big-enough to stand comfortably upon. It is used when she stands in front of the ironing hoard with the in front of the ironing board, with the result that she is far less tired at the end of the day. Another labor-saving device is a little board, which can be held on the lap, so that she can sit down while she is ironing all the small pieces, napkins, collars, stock-ings and handkerchlefs.

The Obliging Passenger.

Londoners take their gruelling very cheerfully; indeed on the whole a fog improves the manners of companions in misfortune. One night, for example, there were seventeen people in a London and Southwestern compartment. Another tried to squeeze in and falled. "Can't get any further," cried a man inside; "there is a man here with a wooden leg blocking the way." "Oh!" said the man with the wooden leg "excase me half a moment." He was wooden leg and put it on the way."

USE FOR OLD BOOKCASE.

One Woman Made !deal Receptacle for Child's Toys.

One woman, finding herself with a growing boy and an old bookcase on her hands, set about to find out what to do with his toys. His nursery oc-cupied a space in the sitting room and that space was an eyesore. About this time they installed a new system of book shelves. One old bookcase, a four-shelf affair, was about to be sent away, when it occurred to her it was just the thing to house her son's toys The broken glass in the door was re moved and the space filled with two art moderne panels in wood. These were pyro-etched with two scenes from "Mother Goose." Should this be too expensive one could use a chromo lithograph, a suitable poster or four smaller pictures, all neatly pasted on to a thin wooden foundation. Well varnished over, these paper pictures would last a long time. The more poetical legendary pictures are preferred, except one finds the fascinating Dutch scenes so delightful in their exploitation of child life

People often get intensely excited in listening to music letting their emotions run rampant and suffering in consequence a painful reaction of fatigue, says Leslie's Magazine. If they would learn to yield so that the music could pass over their nerves as it passes over the strings of a musical instrument, and then, with the new life and vigor derived from the enjoyment, would turn to some useful work, they would find a great expansion in the enjoyment of the music as well as a new pleasure in their work. If we enjoy good music and gloat over our personal pleasure in it, so to speak, it takes the life out of us. If we let the music carry us along instead of trying, in our excitement, to carry the music, it brings new life

Did Not Favor Luxury. The meeting house in Hillsboro, N

H., when the early settlers worshiped, like most churches at that time, had no arrangement for heating. After a time some of the members expressed a wish to purchase stoves and make the house comfortable There was much opposition, and a meeting was called to consider the matter. Gov. Pierce (father of President Pierce), protested against the proposed change, and vehemently de-clared he would use every effort in his power to prevent the introduction of the instrument of hell into their meeting house. It was not, however, until 1823 that stoves were provided.

Pruning Two-Year-Old Vines.'
After the vines have made two sumers' growth they will be old enough at they may safely be allowed to oduce, some fruit. In pruning a vine fruiting age the following points could be kept in mind: The fruit is oduced on shoots which start in ring from the new wood that formed he season before, and it is best that his new cane which formed the sea-son before be attached to wood only one year older than itself. It is de sirable, then, to keep the bearing wood as near the root system as possible by annually cutting back the vines. It is also well to produce two new shoots from near the ground each year which are not allowed to produce any fruit the year they are formed, but which will be retained as the bearing canes for the subsequent year. Keep-ir these points in mind, the pruning of the bearing vine should be as fol-First, select the two new strong shoots nearest the roots of the vine and cut them back to short spurs containing three buds each. These short spurs are for the purpose of producing the bearing wood for the suc-ceeding year. If fruit forms on the canes produced from these spurs the first year it should be pinched off. As soon as these two spurs have been cut back select the next two strong canes above them as fruiting canes for the current year and cut each of them back to three or four feet in length. After being pruned then the wood of the vine is restricted to the two short spurs near the ground and to the two fruiting canes of new wood above the spurs. If these two fruiting canes contain side branches during the win-ter these side branches should be cut off at the time of pruning .- Prof. J. C. Whitten.

After taking no end of pains with tomato plants, starting them in the hotbed, setting out in cold frames, watching and caring for them through the vicissitudes of spring, it is humiliating to find that some of those which were self-seeded in the garden bore fruit nearly as early as those raised at the early as early as tables raised at the earl of so much trouble. Then, too, how productly they are! Varieties are now so early that they do fairly well when grown by open air culture, even in the short Northern summers. It had a habit of retting up in the spring at the first opportunity and for a short time was passably good. Its place in the garden could not be filled, even by the earliest of vegetables. It would take care of itself when once planted, and would hold its own against grass and weeds if given an equal opportunity with them. It might yet be given a place in many a garden to the benefit of the owner.

Digging and Storing Celery.
Leave the celery in ground as long as it is safe. If soil is dry, celery will as it is safe. If soil is dry, celery will stand 12 degrees below freezing; if wet, only 3 to 4 degrees. To take it up, plow a furrow from each side of row and loosen with spading fork if quantity is large; if small, use spading fork only. It may be stored in boxes in one corner of a cave or cellar in trenches. In whichever way, a little dirt or sand around the roots to keep them moist is plenty. Give plenty of fresh air and light occasionally if wanted for family use, but if for market keep is small, warm place and 2
