Free Press: That long-threatened examination of the county auditors' books is to begin at once, the Federal Audit Co., represented by C. A. Sinclair having been awarded the job by the supervisors' committee on ways and means Wednesday. There were a number of applicants for the work. All of the bidders offered practically the same figures and the question was decided in one vote. The Federal Co. will be paid $10 a day for the principal expert and $5 for his assistant. The work will extend back as far as 1898, when the last examination was concluded. "I don't think the examination will develop anything more than the last one did," said Auditor Christian, "but in view of all the talk there has been it is worth while to have a thorough examination."

MICHIGAN HAPPENINGS

BESSEMER'S HEIR TO THE THRONE OF NORWAY. MAY ACCEPT.

SAGINAW SUICIDE'S APPEAL.

Among the Hills With Stolen Money and Jewels—She Was a Michigan Girl—Vincent Pays Up.

May Be a King.

Bessemer may furnish a ruler for the new vacant throne of Norway. Invitations have been received by Representative Louis Munthe, from what is termed the legitimate wing in the Norwegian storting, to visit Christians and establish his claim as direct descendant of Haakon V., the last independent king, who died in 1319. Mr. Munthe has been a resident of Bessemer for more than a decade. He represented the Gogebic district in the state legislature in 1891, being the only Democrat ever elected to the legislature from this district.

The legitimist party in the storting insists that the Norwegian throne shall be filled by a lineal descendant of the native royal line. It is opposed to giving the crown to any other. It was because of this stand that the invitation was sent to Mr. Munthe, who declares that he can trace his descent from Agnes Haakandotter, daughter of Haakon V.

Mr. Munthe is now an old man, and even the possible achievement of a crown were he to return to Norway is scarcely attractive enough to persuade him to make the trip to his native land. Should further impertunity be made upon him, however, it is possible that he might accede to a pressing invitation.

To Young Men.

With bed clothes wrapped tightly about him just as he had pulled them in last convulsions, George O. Feige, of Saginaw, was found in a room at the Grand Union hotel, where he had committed suicide 28 hours before. Chloroform and strychnine found on the dresser left no doubt of the means employed. On a stand near the bed was a note giving his name and asking that Henry Feige, Jr., of Saginaw, be notified. A letter written in a clear, firm hand and addressed "To Young Men," gave an inkling of the man's history. In it he says:

"I began to go in fast company. My drinking and gambling habits became fixed. I lost the only good job I ever had. I braced up for a time, but fell back again. It got worse and worse till it has come to this. For God's sake, young men, stay away from liquor, gambling and women."

Fled With Money and Jewels.

Somewhere along the range of hills lining Lake Michigan north of Muskegon, Owen Comm, alias Louis Clarke, and his wife and child are believed to be hiding, having in their possession $15,000 of precious jewels and money stolen from along State street, Chicago, during the past three months by a gang of professional thieves. Comm and party left Chicago last Thursday, but sent a trunk on ahead of them. The trunk contained over $7,000 in money and the rest of the swag was on their persons. Their trunk was carted away from the Goodrich dock at Muskegon by an old farmer. Chicago detectives are aiding the Muskegon officers.

Lived in Marquette.

Mabel Beland, the young woman who is featured in the sensational $50,000 damage suit for alleged breach of promise against John O'Neill, a wealthy Chicagoan, for whom she was housekeeper, is the daughter of Mrs. Stack, of Marquette. It is some eight or nine years since she resided there. She was reported to have married the widower of her sister, a man named Keister. The news of her breach of promise suit is a big surprise in Marquette on that account. Her mother's second husband is a locomotive engineer.

Vicious Convict.

An ugly convict, in Jackson prison, Wm. Hennessy, found a rusty old shoe knife and with it he slashed convict John Kreiting as he was passing Hennessy's cell at locking up time. The wound is across the breast in a jagged line and though not very deep it is feared blood poisoning may result because of the condition of the knife. There was no cause for the assault.

Hennessy was sent up from Monroe a few months ago for 15 years. Kreiting was sent from Muskegon in 1900 for six and a half years for attempted murder and would soon have been released.

Hennessy has been placed in a dungeon, awaiting the result of Kreiting's wounds before a determination of his punishment. Kreiting is no worse, but is closely watched by the prison physician.

Perry Teller, teamster, Adrian, was instantly killed by a kick from a horse Saturday afternoon.

Game Warden Chapman says he will particularly watch the western portion of the upper peninsula.

The Outing Beach Resort association, of Traverse City, has been barred from the mails by the postal authorities. This is the concern which gave away worthless lots, collecting from each recipient something over $2 in fees, etc.

HEARST TO FIGHT

SAYS MCCLELLAN'S PLURALITY OF 3,483 IS FRAUDULENT.

HEARST TO APPEAL TO COURTS

JEROME WILL AID THE EDITOR—CANDIDATE IN TO UPSET THE RETURNS.

VOTE IN GREATER NEW YORK.

For Mayor.
McClellan, Dem. 228,651
Hearst, Mun. Owp. 225,166
Ivins, Rep. 137,040
Plurality for McClellan. 3,483
For District Attorney.
(Two precincts out.)
Jerome, Ind. 119,638
Cady, Tammany 108,188
Sheehan, Mun. Owp. 72,492
Flanagan, Rep. 13,348
Plurality for Jerome. 11,450

Whether George B. McClellan or William R. Hearst is to be the next mayor of the Greater New York must be decided by the courts.

Full returns from every election district give McClellan a plurality of 3,483, but this is so small, only a little more than half one per cent of the vote cast, that a recount and re-inspection of the ballots might easily sweep it away and show Hearst the winner.

Indignant at what he believed to be suspicious holding back of returns last night, and roused to passionate resentment by stories of violence and outrage at the polls told at his headquarters by scores of his followers, Mr. Hearst refused to admit defeat and declared that he would see that every man that voted for him got a fair count of his vote.

Jerome Supports Recount.
In his demand for a recount Mr. Hearst is supported by District Attorney William T. Jerome, himself victorious in his single-handed fight.

DEMOCRATS SWEEP OHIO.

Elect Pattison Governor and Get Both Houses of the Legislature.

John M. Pattison, Democrat, will be the next governor of Ohio, and his party associates on the state ticket have also all been elected, according to the indications of precinct returns and county plurality figures received here up to 11 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The exact figures are unknown, but there seems no reason to doubt the success of the entire Democratic state ticket by at least a safe plurality, while Chairman Garber claims more than 40,000 plurality for Pattison and the Democratic ticket.

Both houses of the legislature will be Democratic, the last hope of the Republicans vanishing with the report that the Hamilton county delegation was solidly Democratic.

Died of Menophila.

A peculiar disease known as menophila afflicts the family of John Prins. Within four years three sons have died of this disease. The third one dying Saturday. He was a boy of seven years old. He accidentally cut his tongue on Oct. 25 and died constantly since that time, until he wasted away. The physicians could not stop the flow of blood. The other two boys died at the ages of seven and eight respectively. The hemorrhage in each case was caused by having a tooth drawn.

Ghastly Find.

After two days' work dragging the harbor bottom along the course of the East Boston ferry, the police on Saturday brought to the surface a leather handbag in which the head of Susan Geary was found, together with 30 pounds of lead.

This bears out the story of Wm. Howard and Lewis H. Crawford, under arrest in New York, who confessed to disposing of the girl's remains.

The head is in a good state of preservation and was readily recognized by the officers.

A nurse named Dean is charged with having performed the operation which caused the chorus girl's death. She cannot be located.

James Richards and Peter Stevens, members of Dillon Wallace's expedition to Labrador, arrived at St. Johns, N. F., reporting they left Wallace, Easton and party in September, with provisions growing scarce. No news from Mrs. Leolinda Hubbard was brought by the mail boat. It is feared she may have been lost in Labrador.

A lamb that will chew tobacco, waltz to any whistled waltz air that is not too dreamy, chase cats and dogs and is the Judas who betrays its kind to the knife of the executioner, is a pet at the Pookooskee branch of Armour & Co.'s big Chicago packing house. He has been named Dick Armour. Dick meets incoming flocks of sheep and pilots them through the town to the abattoir, where they are placed in the buck and have knives stuck through their throats by butchers.

For the first time since 1838, licensed saloons in Minneapolis were closed Sunday. The closing was due to an order by Mayor Jones to enforce the "Sunday closing law" in hotels and saloons.

The medical supplies of the canal zone are purchased through the office of the surgeon-general of the army. They include, among other things, guinea pigs and white mice, which are used for experimental purposes; also wooden legs of assorted sizes. Orders are filled for bills and playing cards among others in the great variety of articles purchased for the canal.

KILLED AND MAIMED.

Escaping gas ignited by a candle carried by two men who entered the basement to investigate the cause of the leak shattered the "bolt" brick building occupied by the Miners' National bank, in Ishpeming, crushed out four lives and injured a dozen others more or less seriously, shortly after 9 o'clock Sunday morning. Strange to say, the men who carried the light that caused the explosion were uninjured, although they were blown through a rear window and into a box car standing near.

The dead are: Edward McGraw, aged 12; Stephen Goodman, aged 12, son of B. J. Goodman, logging contractor; Alice McGee, aged 10, daughter of James McGee, master mechanic on the D. S. & A., and Edward Kiser, aged 11.

The most seriously injured are: Jas. F. Mullins, manager of the Miners' National bank, whose injuries may prove fatal. He and Hans Gunderson, a real estate man, were in the building when the explosion occurred. Gunderson was blown out of the building up in the air and upon the roof of a higher building near by, his life being thus saved, as the fall would have killed him.

Fred Anderson and Erick Peterson were blown through the end of the building and badly burned. Thomas Flannigan, a retired merchant, had one limb fractured, as also did Miss Berdie Ruez. Others who were more or less cut and bruised are Ray Butler, Mrs. P. F. Small, Loretta McGee, Katherine Bright, Mrs. J. M. Keith, Mrs. Geo. Smeltz and Charles Dudon.

Those killed and most of those injured were on their way home from early mass. Had the explosion occurred a few minutes earlier there would have been many more fatalities, as most of the church people had passed when the explosion took place.

The force of the explosion was terrific. The stanch building was almost completely wrecked. Portions of the walls were hurled out and the debris was piled high in the street. Citizens were wrought to a high pitch of excitement, and the report spread that burglars had made an attempt to blow the bank's vault with dynamite.

Speedy relief for the injured was offered, and willing hands released those more or less buried in the wreckage. James Mullins was not recovered until two hours were spent in hard relief work.

Witte's Problem.

Count Witte is getting his hands on the helm and the Russian ship of state is beginning to right itself. Gradually the disorder that followed the promulgation of the constitution giving the people liberty is being put down.

The premier has met the immense difficulties confronting him and the pressure of the demands of the different classes of society with the energy and sincerity that are more and more giving to him the support of the moderate liberals, who have been frightened by the carnival of disorder into which the country has been plunged and the inordinate demands of the proletariat under the leadership of the "reds" and social democrats.

Freedom of the press and general amnesty, except for crime, have followed each other, but Count Witte has steadily refused to yield to the demand for the organization of a national guard on the ground that it would be equivalent to arming the social democrats to fight and destroy the whole government between midnight and morning.

CONDENSED NEWS.

Secretary Taft has sailed for Cuba. At a public reception tendered him in Colon, he made a speech praising President Roosevelt's administration.

Mrs. George B. Cronk, wife of a former grand exalted ruler of the Elks, has obtained a divorce in Omaha on the ground of cruelty and non-support.

Conscience-stricken while attending a revival in Pittsburg, Pa., Monday night, Charles M. Oldham broke out protesting his guilt of a forgery in Boston, eight years ago, saying that unless he was arrested within an hour he would kill himself. "We want him. Hold him," was the reply of Boston police to a telegraphic inquiry.

For ten years Mrs. Joseph McKenzie, of Ansonia, Conn., had been in the habit of looking under the bed for burglars. She found one at last one night and was so scared that she jumped out of a third-story window.

Thirty years ago a physician told William Booth, founder and generalissimo of the Salvation Army, that his (Booth's) life work was about done, and he had better retire to a quiet country place, where, if possible, there was good shooting and fishing. "I have had plenty of fishing since—for men," says the general, "and have had good shooting—at the devil."

FOREIGN EVENTS

ODESSA'S BLOODY HORROR IS APPALLING IN RESULTS.

NUMBER KILLED IS NOT KNOWN.

The Fury of the Mob Only Cooled From Absolute Exhaustion—There Were Nearly 5,000 Maimed and Wounded.

Unequaled Mob Ferocity.

Owing to the mobs being satisfied with two days' carnival of murder and destruction by flame, the revolt against law and order in Odessa began dying down on Saturday, partially, perhaps, because of lack of material upon which to prey. Almost the entire Jewish quarters of Moldavanka, Slobodka and Bugaiovka are devastated and their inhabitants have either been killed or wounded or have sought refuge in other sections of the town. It is impossible to ascertain the number of persons killed. Up to Saturday morning 5,657 wounded persons were reported to have been taken to the hospitals. The whole fury of the mobs was directed unchecked against the Jews. During the first demonstration over the emperor's manifesto and the sudden acquisition of "freedom" tens of thousands of men who had hated the Jews through generations became drunk with the desire for Jewish blood, swarmed into the Jewish sections of the town and killed for the very joy of killing.

In some instances the military aided instead of prevented the work of vengeance and fury which culminated Saturday in the quarters mentioned. Every Jew, man, woman or child, who was caught was slaughtered. The methods employed in the work of butchery were too revolting for description. Before the morning's dawn the material had become exhausted and the men who had for the moment become beasts, left the wrecked sections of the city, and though sulken, were easily driven back before the rifles of the infantry.

A trip of investigation over the Jewish quarters confirmed the stories of horrors and devastation. Some bodies, mutilated, of women and children were still unremoved from the deserted streets. The shops were closed and in the wrecked houses broken furniture was lying everywhere in heaps.

At the beginning of the massacres, the students' militia rendered some assistance and saved many lives, but the police, it is said, disarmed the students and even in some cases shot them with their own revolvers.

500 Died in Theater.

The revolutionary wave continues to subside in the Caucasus.

As details of what happened throughout European Russia during the upheaval arrive the story grows more revolting.

In the Baltic provinces murder, riot and incendiarism prevailed.

In Poland even the clergy, Catholic and Protestant, participated in the manifestations in favor of autonomy of the ancient kingdom. In southwestern Russia hardly a city or town escaped Jewish massacres.

At Tomak, Siberia, according to the latest reports received here, the whole population of 40,000 and the military stood by while 600 women and children were burned in a theater. The court house at Tomak and the mayor's residence, where the students and revolutionists took refuge from the mob, were burned, and those who tried to fly were killed in the streets.

In Moscow the social revolutionists and the Black Hundred and the Cossacks and police fought bloody battles.

The descent of the butchers of Moscow with their knives and axes upon the students was one of the most horrible chapters but not as pitiful, however, as the attack of the Black Hundred on a procession of school children carrying red flags. When the children sought to escape, a cordon of police barred the way and the youthful martyrs were beaten into insensibility and in some cases were actually torn to pieces.

In the Alexander garden at Moscow Cossacks lay in ambush in the shrubbery and set upon their victims with whips. Many were beaten to death and others were hardly able to crawl away.

Whitlaw Reid, American ambassador, at a meeting in London of the British Foreign Bible society read letters from President Roosevelt praising and congratulating the society on the completion of its centenary fund.

Too poor to support her child, Mrs. Ferdinand Decker, a year ago, placed her 7-year-old child in the care of west side Chicago relative. Now the boy has inherited $50,000 and for several months she has searched in vain for him. Advertisements in papers were of no avail, and now the German consul has taken up the quest.

Anton Rodonick, of Chicago, left his bed at 3 o'clock in the morning, attended only in a nightgown, walked barefooted four blocks, broke a plate-glass window in an undertaker's shop, entered and went to bed in a coffin. At daylight a policeman discovered the break and found Rodonick still asleep.

Anton Rodonick, of South Chicago, while in a somnambulist state walked out of his house in his night attire, broke a plate glass window of an undertaking establishment and entered. He was found several hours later asleep in a coffin. He was promptly taken in charge by the police.

Because she refused to let him inspect her lungs by means of the X-ray, a hunt for suspected tuberculosis terms, James E. Cook, mayor of Oakland, Wash., broke his agreement with Miss Roscoe R. Groves, and has been sued by that young woman for $25,000 damages for breach of promise.

School Notes.

The English Literature class has commenced the study of "The Merchant of Venice."

Nellie Rooke is "clawing the ivory" for us this week.

Please remember, dear Senior, it is customary to paper the ceiling, not the floor.

Russell Warner has proved himself quite a genius by making an "inclined plane" and presenting it to the Physics class. It is invaluable as a means of experiment. Last Thursday the Eng. II. class had a lively debate on the subject "Resolved: That Lincoln was a greater man than Washington." The negatives won out.

If you have any lingering doubts as to the behavior of the Geom. I. class, just take a peep at them some day; their sober looks and solemn actions would extract sighs of sympathy from a rail fence.

It is sad to relate that three of our dignified Seniors failed to sustain their dignity one day this week and—Oh, my!

The Seniors had a business meeting last night and the prospect is that they will have another soon.

Claude Henderson visited the High School one day last week.

The percent of tardy marks is steadily decreasing.

Is a wedding an acceptable excuse for absences?

The football game last Saturday at Ypsilanti between Plymouth and Ypsilanti high school, resulted in a defeat of the visitors by the score of 10 to 0. The Plymouth boys failed to come out of the trance until the second half when they not only held their opponents down, but clearly outplayed them. For Plymouth Cortrite, McLaren and Spicer play a star game. The next game will be on Athletic park Friday, Nov. 10th, against the Northville town team.

Maybe our dear little "uncivilized" freshmen will soon learn the task of good behavior from their older brethren, after they are kept from dinner a few more times. Meals of late have been at 12:30 instead of 12 m.

Mr. Isbell has just completed the reading to the high school of the book of "Life of Booker T. Washington." It has certainly been enjoyed and has been beneficial to all.

Julius Kaiser, an old time student of this school, made a call upon old students and teachers of the high school Wednesday.

is often as great as woman's. But Thos. S. Austin, Mgr. of the "Republican" of Leavenworth, Ind., was not unreasonable when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife, for female troubles. "Instead," he says, "we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was then so sick she could hardly leave her bed and five [5] physicians had failed to relieve her. After taking Electric Bitters, she was perfectly cured and now performs all her household duties." Guaranteed by The Wolverine Drug Co. and John L. Gale, price 50c.

THE NEW AND OLD IN ENGLAND.

Strange Mixtures to Which Visitors Must Get Accustomed.

I was never an enemy of the confusion of the old and new in Europe when Italy was all Europe to me, and now in England it was distinctly a pleasure. It is something we must accept, whether we like it or not, and we had better like it. The pride of the old custodian of the Exeter Guildhall in the coil of hot water pipes heating the ancient edifice was quite as acceptable as his pride in the thirteenth century carvings of the oak door and the oak-paneled walls, the portraits of the Princess Henrietta and Gen. Monk, and the sundials bestowed upon the faithful city by Edward IV. and Henry VII. I warmed my chilly hands about the medieval facts, and even fly to that uttermost antiquity when the Roman Praetorium stood where the Guildhall stands now. Still, I was not so warm all over but that I was glad to shun the indoors inclemency to which we must have returned in the hotel, and to prolong our stay in the milder air outside by going a drive beyond the city into the charming country.—W. D. Howells, in Harper's.

MOROCCAN'S IDEA OF A JOKE.

Vizier Thought it Sport to Rouse ire of Diplomat.

A Frenchman who lived many years in Fez tells how the Moroccans enjoy a joke at the expense of Europeans. An ultimatum had been sent to the governor demanding a letter of apology. No letter came and the French charge d'affaires went to the vizier, Si-Feddin-Garnit, to announce his departure. "Do not go!" cried the vizier. "You are our friend. The letter only needs the sultan's seal. It will be ready to-morrow." It was not ready on the next day, or the next, and on the third day the charge d'affaires, after refusing all retreatment, declared that he was leaving Fez immediately. Whereupon Si-Feddin-Garnit drew the letter from his leather wallet. "It has been ready for five days," he said. "You see, there was no need for anger."

Action and High Ideals.

When Horace Greeley was a boy one of his mates said to him one Saturday: "Come, Hod, let's go fishing." "Let's do our stent first," was young Horace's characteristic reply. Even in his youth he wanted to get something done promptly and well. What wonder is it that when he became a man, and an editor of one of the most powerful journals in America, he still wanted to do something with his paper, to have it strike heavy blows in behalf of human freedom, happiness and progress? And any man who cherishes high ideals of usefulness and governs his life by them will never be accused of going through motions. He will be able, on the other hand, to point to something done when the summons comes to go up higher.

The Garden of the Soul.

The soul is like a garden, that cannot safely be left unattended; for weeds grow much faster than wholesome plants, and there is no beauty of holiness that can be expected to come up of itself and keep itself free from contamination and evil contact. The sacrament of love is that flower on the holy life. It irrigates the soul with beauty, it fills it with fragrance, and sheds peace and rest upon the nature. It is the secret of the highest, devotedest natures. We look up to them with awe and longing, feeling that their gifts cannot be attained by us; but the power of love is open to us all. It is especially the attribute of the humble heart.—Chicago Post.

When Nuns Powdered.

The custom of powdering the hair dates back as far as the sixteenth century, and was first introduced by the nuns in French convents. Those who had occasion to leave the cloisters for any reason were wont to powder their hair, so as to make it appear gray and give them a venerable look. The fashionable dames were so struck with the novel effect of white powder on dark hair that they soon appropriated the device as one of the arts of the worldly toilet. Out of this grew the use of tints in the hair. The Roman women often used blue powder, and later, in 1860, Empress Eugenie set the fashion of using gold powder.

English Woman Praises Sisters.

The English woman may not reasonably claim to be the best-looking woman in the world, says an English writer. Of course, she would not pretend for a moment that all the essentials of good looks are in her possession, but when she comes to think that the women of no other nation manage to give such general satisfaction as Englishwomen, they may, I think, confidently conclude that in them is combined the largest proportion of good looks, grace and fascination to be found in any daughter of Eve all the world over.

Wanted to Help.

E. J. Dillon, writing in the Review of Reviews, tells this story: Among a group of happy, bright children the question was asked what they would like to be when grown up. One little boy who had remained silent and thoughtful, was the last to speak, and this is what he said: "I think I'd like to be a god." "What do you mean?" exclaimed one of the horrified elders. "Well, you see there is only one God now, and he has an awful lot to do and no one to help him."

Woman's Literary Club.

The third regular meeting of the Woman's Literary Club was held in the parlors of the Presbyterian church November third. Mrs. F. W. Voorhies as leader of the third division had charge of the program for the day, which was as follows: Early History of the Empire of Japan, a paper by Mrs. Hudd; Feudalism, Mrs. Dibble; a description of the Vocation Schools by Mrs. Voorhies, and in conclusion the story of King Arthur and the Round Table, by Miss Brisbane. The club adjourned to meet November 17, at two o'clock standard time.—Sec'y.

He Could Hardly Get Up.

P. H. Duffy of Ashley, Ill., writes, "This is to certify that I have taken two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure and it has helped me more than any other medicine. Before commencing its use I was in such a shape that I could hardly get up when once down." Sold by The Wolverine Drug Co.

An Accidental Drowning.

John Streng, Ben Mott, Harry Northrup and Tom Harris, a colored man, went fishing at McCormick's Lake, in Salem township, last week Thursday night. They arrived there about eleven o'clock, the night being quite dark. Mr. Streng says he did not like the looks of things when they were at the water's edge and he went back to where they had tied the horse and remained there. Mott and Harris got into a small boat, while Northrup remained on the bank. The men in the boat had proceeded but a short distance from shore when the craft began to sink, being overloaded. Both men were compelled to make their way to shore as best they could. Harris was a good swimmer, but was evidently taken with cramps, as he had gone but a little ways when he called to Mott "I'm a goner," and went down. Mott managed to get ashore in an exhausted condition and was at once hustled for home. As it was late at night nothing was known of the drowning until Friday by the relatives of Harris, and not until Saturday was any effort made to recover the body. In this they were unsuccessful until Monday afternoon when Lute Passage succeeded in bringing it to the surface grappling hooks. The body was viewed by Justice Wilbur Jarvis, of Salem, township and a coroner's jury and an inquest was set for Wednesday, but was then adjourned until next week. The remains were given in charge of Schrader Bros., undertakers. A deputy sheriff from Washtenaw county was in the village Monday and interviewed all the parties concerned in the affair and was satisfied the drowning was purely an accident and that no one was responsible.

The funeral of Tom Harris was held at his late home in Waterford Wednesday afternoon. He was about 35 years old and leaves a wife and one child.

Council Borrows Money.

The common council met in regular session last Monday evening, all members present except trustees McLaren and Wilcox.

After auditing bills, amounting to several hundred dollars, the council found it had no money to pay them. The proposition stated them in the face that with the year only about a third gone, before taxes are again due, there is no money in the treasury. The clerk and treasurer were instructed to borrow $1000 on ten month's time, and the council will have to borrow more. The fact of the matter is an 8 mill tax levy is too low with the present rate of expenses and 10 mills ought to have been the rate, and probably will be next year.

The electric light committee reported as inadvisable at the present time to grant the petition for a street light on the corner of Church and Harvey streets.

Street Commissioner Chilson was granted permission to grade up the street in front of his own residence without cost to the village, if latter will furnish gravel.

On recommendation of the park committee the village park was ordered raked clean of leaves at an expense not to exceed $6.

The committee on license was instructed to look up the matter of licensing pool tables and also to look up the matter of collecting license from transient peddlers.

Street Commissioner Chilson was instructed to make an extension of the 4 inch water pipe on Harvey street to the lot owned by John Lundy.

The electric light committee reported that they had been stopped by Oak street resident to run wires through the trees or to trim them. A resolution was passed directing them to go on and trim trees outside of lot lines wherever it was necessary, regardless of protest.

The clerk was directed to draw an order for $105 in favor of the Ypsilanti Cement Block Co., balance on contract for electric light building.

George Richwine filled his gasoline lamp Sunday and in trying to unscrew the top, broke it. Consequently when he lighted it, the gasoline took fire and for a few minutes there was some lively work done in extinguishing the flame. Some of the fluid dropped to the table below and a hole was burned in the table-cloth. Otherwise there was no serious damage.

The first number on the lecture course was presented by the Woman's Literary Club Wednesday evening. The Crampton Concert Co. There were four members of the company and their selections, mostly of a classical nature, were cordially received by the large audience present, all the numbers being encoored. The ladies were fortunate in securing this company of artists, each in his or her line, and are to be congratulated on the auspicious opening of the course.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lapham was the scene of a quiet wedding on Wednesday evening when their daughter Miss Helen A. and Mr. John L. Shackleton were united in marriage by Rev. W. O. Stovall of Detroit. The wedding march was played by the bride's sister Miss Lucy Lapham. After the ceremony a bountiful supper was served. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. The happy couple left in the evening for a trip and will be at home to their friends in Fayette, Ohio.

A Birthday Celebration.

Tuesday was the birthday of Mr. E. C. Leach, and his estimable wife thought it fitting that it should be properly celebrated. Accordingly she invited the older and more intimate male friends of Mr. Leach to a six o'clock supper and to spend the evening afterwards in social intercourse. Governor Warner was also expected, but was detained at Adrian and did not arrive. The weather also deterred some guests from the country in coming, but at the hour appointed, some thirty-two gentlemen sat down to the tables arranged—a party of four at each. The souvenirs were pink carnations, and the rooms were also prettily decorated with chrysanthemums. Mrs. Leach and her assistants saw to it that all were served in abundance and it is fair to say that every gentleman did justice to the occasion.

The tables were then cleared and the guests indulged in games of cards and social enjoyment until the hour for departure had arrived, when host and hostess were bidden a cordial goodnight with earnest wishes for many more birthdays for Mr. Leach. The occasion was certainly a very happy and enjoyable one for all present.

Impoverished soil, like impoverished blood, needs a proper fertilizer. A chemist by analyzing the soil can tell you what fertilizer to use for different products.

If your blood is impoverished your doctor will tell you what you need to fertilize it and give it the rich, red corpuscles that are lacking in it. It may be you need a tonic, but more likely you need a concentrated fat food, and fat is the element lacking in your system.

There is no fat food that is so easily digested and assimilated as

THE MISSING MAN

By MARY R. P. HATCH
Author of "The Bank Tragedy"

This letter was found by Detective Swan, or rather by Mrs. Fry, in the lining of Edes' coat, but through his efforts, and he transmitted it to Detective Bruce. It would be produced in court in due order of the testimony. The rest was known—the claim to Mr. Hamilton's estate and family. At this point nothing would be said about the motive, which was only too apparent, but allusions must be made to a serious charge against Henry Ashley, alias Primus Edes, for the murder of his wife, the beautiful, unfortunate Lenora, who died of poison but two weeks previous to the claims set up by Edes. She received by mail a poisoned ring, and was asked to wear it in remembrance of her husband, who would soon return to her. The name signed was Henry Ashley, and it had been proved that after wearing the ring a week she died. The body was buried, but afterwards disinterred, and it was proved that she was poisoned by the ring, without doubt. This charge would be proven by competent witnesses to be true. It was very startling when taken into account with Edes' infatuation for Mrs. Hamilton, and his claim that she was his wife.

"You will see how diabolical was his plan, and you can also see his motive. But for his love for Mrs. Hamilton he would never have dared to thrust his claim before the public; but as Samson was shorn of his strength by the fair hands of Delilah, so has many a weaker man been robbed of his reason by love of woman. Mr. Hamilton's course, has been straightforward throughout. Having nothing to conceal, there have been no efforts at concealment. He warned Edes not to come near his house, as you or I would have done. But when he heard the shot fired he jumped from his bed, rushed out, saw that he was lying wounded upon the ground, and forgot his displeasure in doing all that he at the time when he returned; and had had no other reason for her denial except the absurd one of 'individual odor,' something which never before had been broached in any court of justice. She had fainted when she first saw him, which fact spoke of instant recognition, but claimed to have immediately afterwards doubted him by the absence of the individual odor.

"The futility of such reasoning as this must be apparent to every one who heard it. A matter of breath or diet! It was not worthy of the least consideration. But other matters were. At the moment of his return Mrs. Hamilton was talking with Mr. Allen about the monument, which was just completed, to be erected to the memory of her husband. She was dressed in black; but she was far from being unhappy, for she had other hopes in her heart regarding the unknown Primus Edes, who in some mysterious manner had succeeded in getting a note on her heart and sympathies. She fainted because she saw her hopes dashed to the ground by the return of her husband, whom she had thought dead.

"But all this time her husband had been suffering with a mental malady that robbed him of memory. What he did or did not do at that time could not be discovered. He went away on Friday, the fifteenth of May; he returned January twenty-fifth; and the interval was filled in with labor to support his necessities. Could anything be simpler of understanding than this? "He took no cognizance of what went on during his absence—the bank troubles, his wife's hollow grief, the half-hearted search for him, the monument to be set up in the cemetery. He knew nothing of all this, and when he returned to Grovedale he was greatly astonished at the turn affairs had taken. He did his best to set them right, took up his place at the mill, and would have subsided into his old relation, unquestioned by any one, had it not been for his wife's infatuation for Primus Edes, a common workman as he chose to appear, but whom we now know to be a most accomplished villain. He saw the lady at church and was struck by her beauty. There can be little doubt but that he was allied by a wild, uncontrollable love for her this first time they met. He began to lay plans to possess her, knowing that her husband had left her, perhaps never to return.

"In his love for this woman he forgot all else—forgot he was a fugitive from justice, disguised to appear as a half-witted workman; forgot he had a wife already, the beautiful Lenora Ashley, who had clung to him, as some women will, through evil as well as good report; or if he did not forget it, he put these considerations on one side, and set himself to win the notice of Mrs. Hamilton.

"She, from the first, professed to see a resemblance in Primus Edes to her husband, and no doubt, he heard of it. But he made no use of this idea until after the return of her husband, and he was warned not to go near the premises of the Hamiltons. Then he shot himself one morning on some very premises with a pistol, without doubt stolen from Dan Fry, in the hopes of its being laid to Mr. Hamilton. He wished to make it appear that he was shot by Mr. Hamilton, and the wound on his head a slight one—was to be the groundwork of his scheme; for, no doubt, he planned the whole scheme of villainy before the shooting of himself.

"Mrs. Hamilton did not go near him. Indeed, she was prudent from the first; but when Mrs. Fry went for her to quiet her patient, who she thought was wilder than ever in his ravings, Mrs. Hamilton went over. Edes claimed her as his wife the moment she entered the room, and she did not gainsay him. The next thing was to lay claim to the Hamilton estates.

"But before this, nearly two weeks before the shooting, he sent the poisoned ring to his wife to remove her from his path. The letter was signed 'Henry Ashley,' and was a loving tender message that would have deceived any woman. She wore the ring a few days and died. There was so much talk about the matter that it led to disinterment of the remains, when it was found that she had really been poisoned.

Much more was said, but enough has been adduced to give some idea of Mr. Stone's able and effective plea. There was no doubt it had been well considered, and it evidently bore upon its face the individual belief of the lawyer. At its close friends gathered around him, and both he and Mr. Hamilton were warmly congratulated, for court had adjourned, it being near noon.

The claimant Edes came in for a good share of the popular attention during the plea, for he seemed instinct with determination and defiance. When allusion was made to Mrs. Hamilton he was seen to clench his hand and start wrathfully in his seat, and he leaned forward to say to his counsel, Mr. Stevens, that he was glad she was not present.

Mr. Stevens was not glad. He felt she had been in court Mr. Stone's speech must have lost some of its acrimony, and that her calm, ladylike demeanor would have presented a speaking contrast to his words. However, the opportunity had passed, and the counsel for the prosecution trembled for the result.

Mr. Stevens began his argument at about two o'clock, and he rejoiced when he saw Mrs. Hamilton enter the court room, for her presence nerved him to greater effort and belief in the justice of the cause he advocated.

He spoke of the able and exhaustive argument of Mr. Stone, and of the manner in which the evidence had been presented to make it show to the best advantage. "No men know better how to conceal weak points than they," but in this case they had overdone the matter.

When the two men met at Portland depot—as they most assuredly did meet on the Friday in question—the respondent had ample opportunity to see for himself the condition of the true claimant's mind at that time. It was perfectly evident that he had forgotten his own name; and when after the supposed death of his victim he came here to take the place of his brother, to fraudulently take possession, what course would look so plausible as to pretend he had lost his memory, as he knew the other to have done. This would account for the long absence, the probable manner of Hamilton on his way to Portland, and the inconvenient lack of knowledge regarding people and events which would of necessity recur to him. He could lay it to lapses of memory, as he had done more than once.

The respondent, who was in reality Ashley himself, was a man of great resources, of great fertility. He came to Grovedale to step into his twin brother's possessions, after the supposed death of the true Vane Hamilton; and he laid claim to the latter's manner, peculiarities, and so forth, much of which was natural to him. The great resemblance was true and undoubted, but probably no greater than is often observed between twins of both sexes.

Habit Was Too Strong.

The force of old associations, as Samuel Beverley learned one Sunday morning, is something against which to be on guard. After thirty years of service as a railroad man, chiefly in the capacity of conductor, Beverley had retired, and was spending his days quietly in his native town.

Just after he had taken his accustomed seat one morning in church, he was requested to perform the duty of an absent deacon, by assisting in taking up the collection. He was proceeding decorously along the aisle with the plate, when, halfway down the aisle, he came to the Atkinson pew. On this morning Mrs. Atkinson's Uncle Harvey, who happened to sit next the aisle, had dropped off into a pleasant little nap.

When Beverley espied the old man, he unconsciously doffed the demeanor suited to the place and in a twinkling became official. He tapped the sleeping man on the shoulder.

"Ticket, please!" he demanded, sharply and audibly.—Youth's Companion.

In Fly Time.

Charles J. Bonaparte, the new Secretary of the Navy, writes a neat and beautiful hand.

A reporter, on a hot afternoon not long since, complimented Mr. Bonaparte on his chirography, and to the compliment the secretary replied:

"At the seaside I once heard a little girl make a remark about her father's writing that would not have applied to mine.

"The little girl was reading with her mother in the hotel office. On the table before her was an ink bottle and some clean stationery, and as she read a fly got into the ink. The fly, after a hard struggle, emerged from its black bath and in an exhausted and dragged condition it trailed itself slowly and with great difficulty across a sheet of snowy paper.

"The little girl, regarding the fly's track across the page, exclaimed: 'Oh, mamma, look! Here is a fly that writes just like papa!'"

Diplomatic Small Boy.

To illustrate a point of statecraft Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the English statesman, has been telling his constituents a story of a small boy who went to his mamma and asked her to lend him a pencil. "But," said the mother, "I left a pen and ink for you to do your lessons with on the nursery table. Why don't you use that instead of a pencil?" Glanced hurriedly for a moment. "Don't you think, mamma," he said at length, "that the time is a very useful paper?" "Of course, I do," answered mamma; "but what?" "Well, you see," the little lad explained, "I want a pencil to write to the editor and ask him what he thinks ink stains out of a carpet."

CAPT. GRAHAM'S CURE.

Saves on Face and Neck—Tried Many Doctors Without Success—Gives Thanks to Cuticura.

Captain W. S. Graham, 1321 Eoff St., Wheeling, W. Va., writing under date of June 14, '04, says: "I am so grateful I want to thank God that a friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment to me. I suffered for a long time with sores on my face and neck. Some doctors said I had blood-poison, and others that I had barbers' itch. None of them did me any good, but they all took my money. My friends tell me my skin now looks as clear as a baby's, and I tell them all that Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment did it."

Walking a Lost Art.

The elevator and the street car are doing damage to man's anatomy. Every elevator boy can tell of instances where a man will push the electric button till it rings like a general fire alarm, call the elevator from the basement, get in at the seventh floor and as the car begins to drop shout "sixth!" There are busy men who will wait ten minutes for a street car to ride on block. As for long walks in the country and the exploration of fields and woods, why, perish the pernicious thought! On Sunday, after a week cooped up in the office or the shop, a man must spend his week's earnings to a buggy or an auto. Even the tramp would rather steal a ride on the truck of a freight car than be true to his name. People ought to walk more for recreation. It is a fine way of seeing the near-by country. It is exercise that gives strength to the body and the brain.—Washington Star.

Both Thought of Same Subject.

Herbert Russell sends a literary coincidence: "My father, W. Clark Russell," he writes, "had finished maturing the plot of his novel, 'The Death Ship,' which is a version of the legend of Vanderdecken. I was his amanuensis at the time. He said to me: 'Tomorrow we will begin the story.' On the following morning when I entered his study to take his dictation of the opening lines he showed me a letter he had just received. It was from Mr. W. S. Gilbert, the well-known dramatist, asking him why he did not write a novel about the Flying Dutchman."

Living Mummies.

Living mummies exist in Tibet in small caves in the solid rock, each built up in front with stones and mortar. They have padlocked doors, tiny drains, and small holes, just sufficient for a man to pass his hand through. In these cells men are buried for life with the idea of thus 'attaining merit.' Once interred they are, in extreme cases, never seen again by mortal eye. Their death is only made known when they fall for several days to stretch out the hand for food.

All on Account of the Weather.

An Emporia man went around the other morning blaming the weather for making him sick. Before he went to bed he had three bottles of beer, several hamburger sandwiches with onions, cheese, rye bread and finished off with a particularly bad cigar. He says he didn't sleep at all, and no one wonders. But what has the weather to do with his health?—Emporia, Kan., Gazette.

Catch Fish With Poison.

The natives of Guam used to catch fish by poisoning them with the juice of the fruit of a tree known as the Barringtonia speciosa. The Spanish government forbade this wasteful method, but since the island has passed under American control it has come into use again.

OLD FASHIONED FARE

Hot Biscuits, Griddle-Cakes, Pie and Puddings.

The food that made the fathers strong is sometimes unfit for the children under the new conditions, but our changing civilization is constantly bringing in. One of Mr. Bryan's neighbors in the great state of Nebraska writes:

"I was raised in the South, where hot biscuits, griddle-cakes, pie and puddings are eaten at almost every meal, and by the time I located in Nebraska I found myself a sufferer from indigestion and its attendant ill-effects and pains after meals, an almost constant headache, dull, heavy sleepiness by day and sleeplessness at night, loss of flesh, impaired memory, etc., etc.

"I was rapidly becoming incapacitated for business, when a valued friend suggested a change in my diet, the abandonment of heavy, rich stuff and the use of Grape-Nuts food. I followed the good advice and shall always be thankful that I did so.

"Whatever may be the experience of others, the beneficial effects of the change were apparent in my case almost immediately. My stomach, which had rejected other food for so long, took to Grape-Nuts most kindly; in a day or two my headache was gone, I began to sleep healthfully and before a week was out the scales showed that my lost weight was coming back. My memory was restored with the renewed vigor that I felt in body and mind. For three years now Grape-Nuts food has kept me in prime condition, and I propose it shall for the rest of my days.

"And by the way, my 2½ year old baby is so fond of Grape-Nuts as I am, always insists on having it. It keeps her as healthy and hearty as they make them." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. There's a reason.

MOURNING THAT WAS SINCERE.

Loss of Mrs. L. S. Smith Evidently Was Deeply Felt.

The following appeared in a Maine newspaper a few years ago, only the names of the parties being changed: "Oh, how we miss dear Mrs. L. S. Smith, whom death has so recently taken from our midst! There was no one lady at the village whose loss would have been felt by so large a circle of friends as hers, for she was a dressmaker of extensive patronage and noteworthy patience. It will be a long time before we get accustomed to living without her. Why she was taken from us in one of the questions in the long list only to be answered in eternity. She leaves a companion, a sister and a brother. The beautiful home is so lonely without her beautiful presence there, we would quote a remark from Undertaker Jones. When he had finished his task he gazed for a moment into the casket, and then, turning away, he said: 'That is the handsomest corpse I ever prepared for burial.' She has a father, mother and sister in the spirit land. We trust they are an unbroken band, waiting to welcome the remaining ones as the death angel pilots them to the other shore."

Ack Your Neighbors.

Gelat, Pa., Nov. 6th (Special)—Mrs. H. W. Sterns, a well respected resident of Gelat, tells in convincing words, what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for her. She says:

"I was a great sufferer from Rheumatism, caused through my Kidneys being out of order. I was subject to it for years. It would take me without warning, and while the attack lasted I was so lame I could not get around. So I had to send for Dodd's Kidney Pills. I took them for three days, but didn't feel much benefit, but on the fourth day I noticed a great change, the lameness in my back was gone, and the pains I used to suffer were less. I kept on with Dodd's Kidney Pills and now I am glad to say I have no lameness nor pain of any kind. I feel as if I didn't know what Rheumatism was. I shall never be without Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house, and I bless the day I first heard of them."

Shock to Physiognomists.

Dr. Barnardo, the great London child saver, was once discussing crime and criminals with a Scotland Yard expert and expressed his disbelief in the theories of heredity and primal physiognomy. He produced two photographs of two well-known men and showed the faces only to the expert. "One," he said, "is that of a once notorious criminal and the other is that of a notably good man. Tell me which is which." Without hesitation the expert designated one of the photographs as that of the notorious criminal. Dr. Barnardo was triumphant. The expert criminologist had chosen the photograph of an archbishop of Canterbury.

Sisters and Brothers.

Don't snub your brothers. They are lovely things to have around, if only treated half-way decently. Unfortunately, girls forget that brothers also grow up, and they go on treating them as if they were boys. This leads to friction, and very often disagreeable partees, when it is least wanted, and is most disagreeable.—New York Press.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a ringing sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; since nine out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. CONSTIPATION AND STOMACH TROUBLE CAN BE CURED

J. S. Janssen, President of the Milwaukee Retail Druggists' Association, Talks on the Dangers of Constipation and Stomach Trouble.

"Have you noticed the large number of cases of typhoid fever lately?" said Mr. J. S. Janssen to a Daily News representative. "My notion typhoid fever, malarial fever, appendicitis and many kindred complaints are the result of constipation, which in many cases is allowed by the patient to run along without proper treatment. You will remember when you were a child and some doctor was called, his first prescription was a dose of castor oil. All physicians know the value of having the bowels thoroughly opened. People, when they grow up, allow constipation to become chronic through lack of attention. Constipation is the failure of the bowels to carry off the undigested food, which collects in the alimentary canal and there decays, generating poisonous disease germs. These germs find their way into the blood by means of which they are carried to every tissue. The fever thus created affects not only the lungs, kidneys, stomach, heart and nervous system, but in fact any organ of the body is liable to break down as a result. The blood becomes thin and watery. The sufferer loses in flesh and strength. Castor oil and pills will not cure an affliction like this. Something more than a laxative is needed. There are many phrases on the market, but we sell a great many, having probably the most popular name of the kind in the city. I do not often talk about manufactured medicine, but the high esteem in which Mull's Grape Tonic is held by the drug and medical fraternities has impressed me and I know from actual experience right here in our store that Mull's Grape Tonic cures constipation and stomach trouble positively and permanently. Mull's Grape Tonic is not a placebo, but it immediately clears the bowels of the decaying food because of the popularity strengthening effect it exerts over the organs of the digestive system. As a matter of fact it is superior to the most famous food liver oil compounds. It builds flesh faster and creates strength quicker than any other preparation known to medical science. The ingredients are positively harmless, made mainly from crushed grapes and fruits. Although a full bottle might be taken once, no inconvenience would result. I only wish that people paid more attention to these little details, which in themselves in the beginning are of so slight importance, but which grow in magnitude until the most serious trouble and some death is the result. Mull's Grape Tonic on the constitution. There is really no easier to take than Mull's Grape Tonic. I hope you, through the influence of your paper, are bringing the readers to a sense of the gravity of allowing constipation to become chronic."

could for the sufferer. Mr. Marks is a respectable man who was known to the Hamilton family in early life, and some old acquaintances were kindly received by my client. He has followed the calling of hotel agent, and lingered a few days in Grovedale Hill a consignment from the publishers should arrive.

Mr. Ferguson spoke with earnestness and eloquence, well sustaining his reputation. The counter-charge of murder against the plaintiff created no little excitement among those who were present for the first time.

Mrs. Hamilton's letter signed Calla Lily was produced in court and sworn to be genuine. Even she did not deny that it was hers, and she wrote to her husband, at least a year ago, and she professed to believe it additional proof that the claimant really was her husband.

Her declaration was evidently so simple that many gave it instant belief. They felt convinced that in some way the letter had come into the possession of Edes, perhaps with the key and notes. This was the same which Mrs. Fry found in the lining of his coat, and which she sent to Mr. Swan and by him was transmitted to Mr. Bruce. Two witnesses from the neighborhood where Mrs. Ashley resided testified to the manner of her death, and the various reports were read in court. The letter written by her husband, which they stated could not be found, but two witnesses, a woman, Mrs. Mann, testified to having seen and read it—that Mrs. Ashley showed it to her, and the ring, on the day of its receipt.

At the close of the testimony for the respondent it seemed a clear case in his favor, and, as the public judge, it must so appear to the jury. Still, the interest did not subside, and on the morning of the seventh day of the trial the court house was thronged to hear the closing arguments by the counsel.

CHAPTER XXII

The Closing Arguments. Mr. Stone, whose mind was particularly keen and alert, reviewed in a telling manner the evidence which had been presented for the defense. "It has been shown," he said, "that the case was one of identity only; but it was not so. It was a wife's unfaithfulness that was the root of the whole matter. That was the cause of the death of Mr. Hamilton, except his wife,

A TRULY IDEAL WIFE HER HUSBAND'S BEST HELPER

Vigorous Health is the Great Source of the Power to Inspire and Encourage—All Women Should Seek It.

One of the most noted, successful and ablest men of this century, in a recent article, has said: "Whatever I am and whatever success I have attained in this world I owe all to my wife. From the day I first knew her she has been an inspiration, and the greatest helpmate of my life."

Mrs. Beattie Ainsley

To be such a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, to inspire him to make the most of himself, should be a woman's constant study.

If a woman finds that her energies are flagging, that she gets easily tired, dark shadows appear under her eyes, she has backache, headaches, bearing-down pains, nervousness, white, irregular or the blues, she should start at once to build up her system by a tonic with specific powers, such as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Following we publish by request a letter from a young wife:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham: "Ever since my child was born I have suffered, as I hope few women ever have, with indigestion, (nausea), weakness, bearing-down pains, backache and wretched headaches. It affected my stomach so I could not enjoy my meals, and half my time was spent in bed."

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made my husband and I feel so grateful that I am glad to write and tell you of my marvelous recovery. It brought me health, new life and vitality."—Mrs. Beattie Ainsley, 611 South 10th Street, Tacoma, Wash.

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Ainsley it will do for every sick and ailing woman.

Brittany Marriage Custom.

Conspicuous among the adornments of the bridal feast in Brittany is an artistic and elaborate butter structure as fanciful and elegant as the most beautiful bridal cake, and into this structure the guests stick split sticks bearing ribbons of gold or silver.

Special Hearse for Giant.

A hearse had to be specially made at Rawtenstall, England, for the burial of James Nuttall, "the largest man in Lancashire." The coffin, which was six feet four inches long, three feet wide and two feet deep, was carried by twelve bearers.

IF YOU ARE A WOMAN

What Mrs. Ford Says Concerning Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will Sorely Interest You.

"I wish I could help other women get rid of certain physical troubles as completely as I have succeeded in getting rid of mine," said Mrs. B. B. Ford, of Pashmatula, Miss., recently. "You know," she continued, "that a woman's health depends chiefly on the regularity of just one function. If she fails to keep that properly regulated she has no end of physical misery. I suffered from that one cause for two wretched years, during one of which I was kept in bed all the time. I tried medicines enough to cure any illness, but nothing gave me the slightest benefit until I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They cured me. Why, I was suffering all the time practically from sickness of the stomach, dizziness or swimming in my head and pain in my back. Now I am entirely free from discomfort of that sort. I am not only able to keep on my feet, but to do my work as a teacher, and to enjoy the pleasures that come through the possession of sound health."

"Within three weeks after beginning the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I experienced such relief that I knew they must be adapted to the needs of my case. After using them for a short while longer I became and have since remained a well woman, and the reason why is simply that I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills make urticaria, rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, nervousness, create appetite, promote digestion, put color in the complexion, build up strength and health."

Every woman should send to the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N.Y., for a valuable booklet, entitled "Plain Talks to Women." It will be mailed free in sealed envelope to the address of any applicant. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists.

AGRICULTURE

The Time to Plan.

The time to plan farm work is several months ahead of each crop that is to be grown. The lack of planning is responsible for many of the failures in farming. If the planning is done too near the time of planting a crop, it will be found that something is in the way, that something has been overlooked. Thus, in the purchase of seed for the corn, wheat, oats and other grain crops of next year it will not do to wait till midwinter before laying all plans. If seed is to be purchased from a distance it is not always easy to get it, when the seedsman must send it out in company with a great multitude of other orders. It is necessary to send in the orders early, so that the seed may be received early and the farmer have time to make germination tests to ascertain if the seed is up to the required standard in germinability. If it is not, the farmer may have to send to another place for seed, which will in turn have to be tested.

In the sowing of clover seed, plans should be laid early. It will not be safe to wait till the middle of the winter before ordering the seed. In some localities the practice is general of sowing on the snow, and in that case March will be the month in some localities and February in other localities farther south. If the seed is ordered late it may not arrive till after the desirable conditions have gone. It must in addition be tested before being sown and this requires some time.

The more skillful a man is in planning his work the more likely is he to be successful in the work of the farm. In large establishments in the city, plans are often made years in advance and worked as carefully as one would work to a certain pattern in weaving a carpet or other fabric. This is absolutely necessary in some enterprises. Business should go like clockwork and the farm is a business place. There should be on it more bookkeeping and more planning of all work in advance.

Use of Fertilizers Increasing.

The use of commercial fertilizers in the United States has been growing since prior to the census of 1860. That was the first census that gave any information on commercial fertilizers. In the census year (really 1859) there were manufactured fertilizers to the value of $891,344. Ten years later the value was $5,815,118, and ten years after that it was $23,650,795. In the latter year, however, the farmers used more than were manufactured in this country by about $5,000,000, the total sum paid for fertilizers by farmers that year being $28,586,397. In the census of 1890 the amount of money spent by farmers for fertilizers during the census year (1889) was $38,469,598. Ten years later the amount spent for fertilizers by farmers was $54,783,957. Of this large total over 70 per cent was spent within a strip of territory about three hundred miles wide running north and south along the Atlantic seaboard. This comprises the older lands of the country, which were largely exhausted by bad methods of farming. This territory comprises quite fully the original thirteen states.

Agriculture a Skilled Occupation.

That agriculture would ever become a skilled occupation was not thought of in past centuries when any slave however unintelligent was thought skilled enough to do the work connected with the care of farm animals and the production of crops. But the same has been true with all other lines of human effort. House building was once the work of the merest savage, but house building is now a science. Agriculture has been slowly developing into a learned science under changed conditions. When land was worth nothing, any Indian squaw was a good farmer, for the demands on the land were slight. What the land did not produce was made up for by the living things in the streams, the woods and the air. But since man has so increased on the earth that he can no longer live by hunting and fishing, the land is laid under till to produce a living. The successful farmer of the future must be as skilled and intelligent as the successful civil engineer of the present day.

Pushing Grain Growing North.

How far north grain will yet be grown only the future can decide. That it will be grown much further north than at the present time no one can doubt. Already oats and barley are being grown three hundred miles north of the Canadian line. New wheats, barleys and oats, with shorter growing seasons, are being developed, and the difference of a few days in maturing means a difference of many tens of miles in the northern limits within which they may be grown. This means the opening up of new regions and virgin soil for the production of grain.

Deep Preparation of Land.

It pays to plow the land deep for any kind of fruit before the plants that are to bear that fruit are set out. On land that has never been plowed deeply, the roots of plants hold close to the surface. Perhaps they get enough food in this way; but it is much to their detriment in dry seasons at least, and the roots near the surface intertangle with the other cultivations of the ground. A mellow, soil invites the roots to strike deep instead of running along the surface of the ground.

Elephant Struck by Train.
Says the Shanghai Times: "Rangoon papers report the rare event of an elephant being run over by a train. It happened at the 106th mile on the Irrawaddy section of the railway. The elephant was straying on the line. The front portion of the engine was, of course, somewhat damaged, as is only to be expected, but nothing else occurred. There was no jettisonment of carriages."

Flays Free Use of Water.

Dr. K. Beerwald of Berlin is opposed to the free drinking of water, so often advised. He says: "Excessive water drinking not only produces temporary disturbance, it also creates direct organic disorders; the heart and kidneys are particularly affected by the excess, and in these cases the vascular system is overcharged and the heart and kidneys overworked."

Why Churches Are Locked.

Several rural clergymen at a diocesan conference at Carlisle, England, recently stated that, the reason churches were kept locked up on week days was to prevent sheep coming in. One remarked, with some bitterness, that he kept his church open till some sheep came in and carried off his offertory box.

Limits Use of Royal Arms.

The London Gazette recently published an official notice that any person who, without proper royal authority, uses in connection with any trade, business, calling or profession the royal arms or any device, emblem or title, may be restrained by injunction or interdict from continuing to use the same.

Startling Method of Protection.

Dr. Barnardo, the London philanthropist, had a startling way of protecting the papers upon his desk from the devastating tidy housemaid. In a waste paper basket under the study table basked two snakes. This "worked like a charm," according to a personal friend of the doctor's.

Brides Remain Hidden.

At a Yezedee marriage the bride is covered from head to foot, and when she reaches her new home she hides behind a curtain, where she stays for eight days, and no one can see her. At Drusse the bride is hidden with a red veil, which is first removed in the bridal chamber.

"Ay, There's the Rub!"

Effect of Lightning on Trees.

The shattering effects of lightning upon trees may be accounted for, in some degree, by the sudden evolution of heat and expansion of gases in the wood and the vaporizing of the water in the sap. A veritable explosion may thus be caused.

When a man has become utterly selfish and regardful only of himself in the world, the devil may well afford to spare him any of the comparatively milder discomforts of a hereafter.—John A. Howland.

Celebrates 104th Birthday.

James Bellows McGregor of North Newport, N. H., believed to be the oldest Free Mason in America, celebrated his 104th birthday recently. He has voted the Democratic ticket since he was of age.

Advertises Her Financial Value.

The true worth of a girl in Albania is sometimes readily estimated. When she desires to marry she collects all her money and mounts it on her head, so that observers may note her financial value.

Elephant Resents Teasing.

An elephant at Jena, Germany, seized a man who was teasing him with a knife and dashed him to the ground. Three days later the man succumbed to his injuries.

Safety in Proprietary Medicines.

Replying to the charge that certain popular proprietary medicines contain narcotic drugs, an authority says: "Some years ago one of the leading pharmacists of America, in connection with some official work, undertook to ascertain, by an elaborate inquiry in representative cities of the country, what percentage of physicians' prescriptions contained a narcotic drug of some kind. Out of 100,000 representative prescriptions, dispensed in drug stores in all parts of the United States, it was found that 70 per cent contained opium or some one of its preparations."

"Proprietary medicines are almost invariably accompanied by the most detailed and specific directions for use, while the directions accompanying physicians' prescriptions are generally very brief and sometimes illegible. It is also true that but a moderate proportion of proprietary medicines contain any poison or narcotic, and when they do, it is generally in such small quantities or so protected by accompanying antidotes, as to carry with it no danger whatever."

Only Restrained by the Law.

Farmer Johnson was a lifelong resident of Bennington county, Vt., and a typical Yankee. One summer he was not able to get a competent man to help in haying, and so hired two boys instead. They were, as he said, "as good as a disappointment," and gave him no end of trouble.

"One day he lost patience with them entirely, and complained to his son's wife of their playing, loitering and shirking of work. She said: 'Father, why don't you kill them?' He replied: 'It wouldn't be no sin more than to kill a cat, but there is a law agin it.'"

A Lesson in Humility.

Says a Billville philosopher: "The automobile makes you feel too proud for this world. To get to heaven you've got to be as humble as the ox-cart and go slow and sure."—Atlanta Constitution.

SMALL BEGINNINGS OF FIRES.

Unconsidered Trifles Frequently Cause Heavy Loss.

Dust is a wonderful producer of fires. There have been instances in post offices where the dust of the mail bags suspended in the rear of a close room exploded with terrific force. Dust explosions are of frequent occurrence in flour and drug mills. The origin of many fires in tailor shops may be traced to the so-called dry cleaning of clothes. A rag dipped in naphtha is frequently used in removing grease spots from garments. The rag soaked with inflammable fluid is thrown upon the floor. When the shop is closed up and the air is confined, the naphtha-soaked material will of itself generate fire. Bales of cotton placed in the hold of a ship are often the cause of disastrous fires. Frequently a spark from a cigar finds a resting place in a cotton bale, where it smolders for weeks. The dark hall in tenement houses is the indirect originator of fires. Greasy matting or small heaps of paper lie about. A match not extinguished or a cigarette stub is thrown down and a blaze results.—Fire and Water.

PATRON SAINT OF MILLINERS.

Character in English History Has a Good Claim to Title.

St. Edith should be a favorite with her sex, as the woman who triumphantly defied a mere man saint on behalf of the great feminine privilege of dress.

This daughter of King Edgar was brought up in a convent at Wilton, a voluntarily destined to the life of the cloister; but she had a weakness for wearing clothes that seemed too fine and gay for a nun.

St. Ethelwood, who ventured to upbraid her, received the crushing reply: "God's doom, that may not fall, is pleased only with conscience. Therefore I trow that as clean a soul may be under those clothes that are arrayed with gold, as under thy slight fur-skins." St. Edith's views should have made her the patron saint of milliners and dressmakers.

Pretty Wives Become Plain.

One reason why the average woman wears out and grows old and plain is that, through a mistaken idea of duty, she lays out for herself at the beginning of married life a scheme of duty of which every hour is filled with work.

This she follows religiously for years, feeling that she has done her duty. She, however, soon becomes merely a machine. Can any woman keep brightness originality of thought, or even good looks with such a life? And, without those things, how can she keep her husband and children full of loving admiration?

Constant association of others of her own age, with her children and their friends, and an occasional period of recreation, is what the average woman requires to make her attractive.—Chicago Journal.

A Close North Carolinian.

"I knew an old fellow down in North Carolina, who was a hard fisted citizen," said N. B. Turner of Wilmington.

"He was a well to do farmer, but his meanness was proverbial. One of his customs was to have breakfast before it was daylight in order to get his hands out to the fields by dawn of the day. When the breakfast was put on the table a solitary candle gave the only illumination, and even this was but for a second. 'You all see where the victuals is,' remarked the head of the family, and, puff, out went the flickering candle light. It was an extravagance in his eyes to waste even a fraction of a candle when people could easily feel how to help themselves."—Washington Post.

Length of the Irish Mile.

Irish miles are longer than American miles, in fact, eleven of them make fourteen of such as are measured in this country. American travelers soon find out, and if they are disposed to complain of the character of Irish roads they learn that the Irish think it unreasonable of the stranger to expect both quality and quantity. To one such grumbler the answer was: "If the quality is inferior, we give you plenty of it, anyhow." To another visitor who complained of the narrowness of the road the retort was, "Well, what ye lose in the breadth ye gain in the length."—New York Tribune.

See Beauty Only in Utility.

The idea of beauty is peculiarly developed in the heathen Esquimaux. He regards beauty solely from the standpoint of utility. For instance, a rock projecting out of water only appears beautiful to him when it is visited in summer by water birds who breed there. A foaming torrent is only beautiful if it contains many salmon. Clothes are not put together with any idea of regularity of color, only their practical utility being considered. Huts are made of snow and stones, with domed tops, but without any architectural design.

Too Rich for Consumption.

A visiting nurse the other day took a dozen big oranges to a little sick patient on New York's east side. Three days later, in making her regular visit, she noticed that the oranges were still on the table, untouched. "Doesn't Jacob like oranges?" she asked the child's mother. "Fehmm," was the reply. "Why doesn't he eat some of these, then?" "We don't like to get away with dem, 'cause they look aw wealthy on the table," was the explanation.
