GENERAL ALGER'S FUNERAL

Simple Service at the Home, Monday, Followed by Burial With Military Honors, Closed an Honorable Career.

The body of the late Senator Alger arrived in Detroit from Washington Sunday morning and was escorted to the Detroit city hall. Headed by 16 mounted patrolmen, under command of Capt. Spillane, the funeral cortege left the depot shortly after 10 o'clock, marching to Chopin's funeral march, played by Green's band, Detroit post No. 384, G. A. R., was followed by Fairbank post No. 162; Michigan post No. 393; O. M. Poe post No. 433; Military Order Loyal Legion, U. S. Grant command, United Veterans' association, R. A. Alger camp No. 11, National League of Veterans and Sons; H. S. Pingree camp No. 5, United Spanish War Veterans; Gen. H. M. Duffield camp No. 9, U. S. W. V.; Detroit camp, U. S. W. V.; Gilbert Wilkes camp, Army of the Philippines association; Michigan Association of Naval War Veterans, and Fairbanks post No. 17, G. A. R.

When the hearse with its escort arrived at the city hall the Bagley fountain was surrounded by several hundred people, while both the north and south sides of Fort street were lined with dense crowds.

As the cortege neared the south entrance to the city hall, Co. G, Seventh United States regular infantry, from Fort Wayne, under command of Capt. Thomas McA. Anderson, and Lieuts. J. J. Fulmer and J. C. Moore, presented arms while the company buglers sounded "The General." The bell in the city hall tower was slowly tolled as the committees from the United States senate and the house of representatives formed near the entrance, and the casket was borne to the bier that had been prepared in the main corridor.

Twenty thousand or more people passed before the bier while the body lay in state. In two long well-ordered lines, the throng moved through the crepe-draped corridor of the hall. There were seldom less than 80 persons a minute and often 100 a minute passing. This multitude included men and women from all ranks of life. The millionaire touched elbows with the laborer in humble industries. The workman was there. So was the working girl, the fireman, the policeman, the well-to-do middle class, and, now and then, a group of newboys.

The funeral was held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, with brief services in the family mansion, 160 Fort street west, attended by all the federal, state, county, municipal, business and social friends and companions of Gen. Alger, the services conducted by his pastor, the Rev. Dr. E. H. Pence, and the benediction pronounced by the Rev. D. M. Cooper, one of the oldest Detroit friends of the dead man.

There was a general cessation of business throughout the city during the hours of the funeral, and the principal streets presented a Sunday aspect, with doors of stores closed and shades drawn, but with crowds thronging the streets. There were variations in the closing hours, some closing from 1:30 to 3:30, some from 2 to 4, and some for the entire afternoon, but all business places of importance were closed for some of the time. The banks could not lock their doors, as paper falling due had to be looked after, but the necessary business was conducted as quietly as possible to the regular 3:30 closing hour.

When the casket was brought down the steps from the home and placed in the hearse, thousands of people stood around the corner and down Fort street towards the Campus, and all along the line of march.

At the head of the funeral cortege marched the First regiment band discoursing the slow, mournful strains of a dead march. Behind, and mounted, came Lieut.-Gov. Kelley and the governor's staff officers. Gov. Warner was still too ill to attend the funeral.

The First regiment, under the command of Col. John P. Kirk, of Ypsilanti, followed, the regulars of the Seventh U. S. Infantry from Fort Wayne under command of Lieut.-Col. C. A. Booth coming next.

Immediately back of the soldiers came the honorary pallbearers, the clergy, Revs. E. H. Pence and D. M. Cooper, who officiated at the services; at the house were next and the active pallbearers from the Spanish War Veterans, Senior Vice Commander Henry M. Pusch, Department Quartermaster George A. Dick, Junior Department Commander Edwin B. Nall, Commander Louis H. Funks, of Hazen S. Pingree camp; Commander John Falvey, Gen. Duffield camp; Commander Thos. L. Cowherd, Detroit camp; Past Commander John Consideine, Detroit camp; Charles F. Hayerman, Gilbert Wilkes camp, were immediately ahead of the hearse.

The "led horse" with the empty saddle followed close behind the great hearse, and the family and close friends came next in carriages. The senate committee, Senators Scott, Warren, Burrows and Dooliver, and the house committee of Reps. William Alden Smith, Denby, Gardner, McMoran, Loud, Fordney, Bishop and Sam Smith of Michigan, and Smyser of Ohio, and Burton of Delaware, followed.

The federal judiciary and officials, headed by Judge Swan and Collector Whelan, came next, and the Wayne county judiciary, headed by Judges Ronner, Donovan, Brooke, Murphy, Hooper and Mandell, and Prosecutor Robison followed with the city officials behind. Mayor Thompson headed the civic delegation, which consisted of Police Commissioner Smith, Park Commissioner Breitmeyer, D. P. W. Commissioner Haarer, representatives from the light, poor and fire commissions and city departments and the aldermen.

Department Commander Griswold, of the G. A. R., and past commanders of the various posts, together with the commanders and past commanders of the Loyal Legion followed, the officers and members of Corinthian lodge No. 241, F. & A. M., and citizens in carriages.

Before the Alger van Fairbanks post, No. 17, G. A. R., the oldest Detroit post, of which Gen. Alger was a charter member, were assembled under Commander E. E. Thayer and attended by Chaplain McWilliams, Maj. Elderskin, the veteran of three wars, was there, the bugler of Chapultepec, Drummer Deming was also present. Here another large crowd had gathered.

Chaplain McWilliams led in the responsive ritual of the G. A. R., passages of Scripture, recited alternately by the chaplain, the commander, the senior and junior vice commanders. Then the commitment prayer was recited by Chaplain McWilliams, and then bugle and drum "taps" were sounded over the silent casket and the hushed crowd.

SIDE LIGHTS ON MICHIGAN

GRAND RAPIDS WILL EXPEND LARGE SUMS TO AVERT FLOODS.

LONG, USELESS RIDE.

The Downey Case and Other Matters of Note of Recent Date in Various Parts of the State.

To Fight the Floods.

On the strength of the resolutions adopted by the mass meeting of 200 Grand Rapids business men, the common council voted $25,000 to be used in breaking up the ice jam, and City Engineer Anderson began the work Tuesday between the city and Grand Haven.

Senator-elect Smith will be asked to use his influence with the United States government in the project of future protection to the city. The common council committee recommended that City Engineer Anderson be instructed to employ tugs and ice breakers or use any other means to rid the river of the ice jams which cause the flood damage.

Action was also taken to prepare legislation to bond the city for future flood protection, which, it is estimated, will cost $1,000,000.

At the business men's meeting, William Widdicombs stated that his loss in 1904 was $1,000 and in 1905 it was $6,000. He declined to estimate the amount this year. The river shows a slight drop, but there is still an enormous amount of ice up the river.

Downey Not in Jail.

Oscar C. Downey, of the Downey house, Lansing, is still out of jail, notwithstanding his sentence last week to 30 days for keeping the hotel bar open on New Year's day. His physicians again reported that he was ill with bronchitis, and added pleurisy and stomach trouble to the first complaint, and insisted that he was too ill to go to jail. Judge West has ordered that Downey appear to begin his jail sentence or he will appoint physicians to represent the court. Meantime, Mr. Downey is in custody at the hotel with officers to guard and his sentence is rapidly passing.

Elovers Caught.

Fifteen-year-old Mary Jane Wilder, who was arrested in company with Miles Wilder, aged 46, a relative, as they stepped from the D. & M. train from Alpena, on arrival in Bay City, tells a pathetic story of their affair. Wilder lived with the girl's grandmother near Hillman and she alleges that they have been very good friends for some time and that finally Wilder planned an elopement. He came to her home late at night and awakened her by rapping on her window. She escaped from the house and they drove nearly 50 miles to Alpena through zero weather to catch the train. She says that Wilder gave her a pair of glasses to make her look older. The Hillman authorities got track of the pair promptly and wired the Bay City police to capture them.

Wants to Forget.

Mrs. Mary Rogers, who while living in Hanover lost her home, her jewels and her watch by an alleged bogus marriage with Dr. Carver, alias Stewart, of Port Huron, is not with the "doctor" on his honeymoon. She is living with her son, Van Rogers, in Battle Creek.

Mrs. Rogers, who dislikes to discuss the matter, says that after Carver used the money secured by embezzling her home, he took watch and rings for alleged safekeeping. Then he went away, telegraphing from South Bend that he would write, but not doing so. Mrs. Rogers, seeing she was duped, came there to live with her son.

Workman Electrocuted.

Charles N. Geddes, aged 42, was electrocuted Monday morning in a Battle Creek factory. He was engaged in inserting a fuse, and received a charge of 800 volts. He was unconscious, and probably dead when found, but was hurried to the office of a physician, who pronounced him dead. Geddes had no family.

BRIEFS.

L. B. Carpenter, representative of the Standard Oil Co. in Standish, has gone to Ann Arbor to receive the Pasteur treatment. He was bitten by a dog.

To put Van Buren county officers on a salary basis is said to be favored by a committee of supervisors which is investigating the county offices. County expenses are too heavy.

Although advised by his attorney to stand mute, Melvin Conklin, who took the life of his brother, Delbert, in Lansing, December 26, pleading not guilty and protested his innocence when arraigned, James E. Nichols was appointed by the court to defend him.

The had a promotion. I'm debating now instead of taking dictation," wrote Miss Myrtle Leonard, a 20-year-old stenographer to her parents in Battle Creek. She was married without their knowledge in Chicago to Arden Leach. Bride and groom are 20 years of age.

The proposed bill limiting boards of education to from five to nine members, according to the size of the city, is opposed by some members of the local board of education of Lansing, which has twelve members. The state superintendent of public instruction favors the new measure.

St. Clair county has presented a bill for 1906 to the board of supervisors for caring for a smallpox patient. It is claimed that the man ought to have been kept quarantined in that county, but escaped, and several persons in St. Clair county contracted the disease. The bill was referred to the judiciary committee.

Universalist Lecture-Entertainment Course.

The Universalist popular lecture-entertainment course will consist of three lectures and two entertainments, as follows: Lectures by Rev. Caroline Bartlett Crane of Kalamazoo, John S. Cook, D. D., State Superintendent of Universalist churches, and Lee S. McCollister, D. D., of Detroit.

First, Mrs. Crane is a leading member and lecturer before the Federated Women's Clubs. Was for ten years previous to her marriage, as Rev. Caroline Bartlett, pastor of the People's Church of Kalamazoo. She made this church, during her pastorate, an institutional church, and through its various clubs for old and young, what its name indicates, thoroughly a people's church, and very helpful to all classes. Since her marriage to Dr. Crane, a leading physician of Kalamazoo, Mrs. Crane has devoted herself to the interests of the Federated Clubs, especially that portion that came into touch more intimately with the public life of her own city. There comes up no question of public policy in its life in which she does not take an active interest and concerning which she is not found among the leaders in the formation of its public opinion. Many will remember her as agitating for and organizing the people of the city a few years ago upon the question of cleaner streets.

The date of her lecture is to be Friday evening, Feb. 8th. Her subject will be "The Folly of Minding Your Own Business." Those who have heard her speak know it will not be of the dry and dusty sort, but a rare treat. Mrs. Crane recently delivered this lecture, by invitation, before the Twentieth Century Club of Philadelphia.

Second on the list is a home talent play under the direction of Mr. A. E. Dako. The play selected is entitled, "In Missouri," and promises to be fully up to our best home talent productions. Among those who are scheduled to assist are Wm. Pettigill, Harry Robinson and Chauncey Rauch. All lovers of this sort of entertainment will surely be satisfied if they invest in this. Date, Friday, Feb. 22.

The third number is a lecture by John S. Cook, D. D. Dr. Cook was for some years a successful practicing physician in southern Illinois. His health failing him in this, he prepared for the Universalist ministry. After five years as pastor he was elected State superintendent of churches for Illinois, which office he held for nine years. In October, 1905, he took up the same work for the Michigan convention. For a number of summers he has been upon the Chautauqua lecture platform and is a pleasing and interesting speaker. His subject will be, "The Writers of the Middle West." The subject is one he handles in a very pleasing manner and those who hear him will not be disappointed. Date, Friday, March 8.

The fourth number in the course, being the second entertainment, will be a mixed program, made up of a chalk talk and musical numbers by a trio—vocal, violin and piano—the whole being furnished by the Detroit Conservatory of Music. This is expected to be a most excellent as well as novel entertainment, as the Conservatory recommends all the make-up of the program as in all points first class.

Number five will be a lecture by Dr. McCollister upon the subject, "Tolstoi," and will be illustrated by stereopticon views. Dr. McCollister is too well known in Plymouth to need comment here further than to say that this lecture is one of his best productions. Date Friday, April 5th.

The aim is to make this in every way a popular course. The prices are for single admission, 25 and 35 cents. Course tickets $1.00, and this covers seat reservation. Reserved seats on sale at Mackney's Pharmacy Thursday and Friday, Feb. 7 and 8.

Rising from the Grave.

A prominent manufacturer, Wm. A. Feltwell, of Lucama, N. C., relates a most remarkable experience. He says: "After taking less than three bottles of Electric Bitters, I feel like one rising from the grave. My trouble is Bright's disease in the diaphragm stage. I fully believe Electric Bitters will cure me permanently, for it has already stopped the liver and bladder complications which have troubled me for years." Guaranteed at The Wolverine Drug Co's and John L. Gale's. Price only 50c.

CARD OF THANKS.—We desire to extend our sincere thanks to friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us in our sad bereavement; also the ladies that sang and those who sent the beautiful flowers.

FOR ONE LONELY VOTER.

Remarkable Election Held in a District in France.

A curious election took place at Les Sables, in the department of the Var, recently, when a single elector drew up the whole list of candidates and was the only one to vote. He naturally voted for his whole list, himself included. The commune contains about 500 inhabitants. Some time ago the municipal council resigned. Elections were held on November 25 last, when only four men came to vote. There was to be a second election last Sunday. The whole day passed and not a solitary voter appeared. A quarter of an hour before the legal limit of time elapsed a benevolent citizen at last appeared, drew up a list of ten candidates, including himself, and voted. A quarter of an hour later the election was declared legally valid, and the other nine candidates were duly notified of their election. They have since declined in a body to be elected by a single vote. The good natured citizen, therefore, who alone voted now constitutes by himself the town council of Les Sables. What is stranger still is that he may invoke a precedent. In fact, on a previous occasion, another citizen was also the sole voter at an election, and voted for himself, remaining legally in office for ten years. This would indicate that political activity is at a low ebb in the Var, and yet the French prime minister, M. Clemenceau, is senator for that department. Perhaps his energy makes up for the negligence of the rest.

SHERIDAN VERY MUCH ALIVE.

Good Joke Brought Off in the Days of the Regency.

The First Gentleman in Europe dictated to Sheridan a letter making fun of the grotesque appearance of a cory of the Prince's, Maj. Hanger, at a ball given in celebration of the Queen's birthday. The Major, on receipt of a letter, hastened to show it to the Prince, who insisted that only a duel a outrage could wipe out the insult. On examining the handwriting the Prince said he had no doubt at all it was Sheridan's, and the author of "The School for Scandal" was accordingly challenged. The duel was of such vindictive deadliness that it was not till three shots on either side had been interchanged, and till Sheridan fell, that the honor of the Major was satisfied. "Killed, by G—!" exclaimed Capt. Morris, in a voice of horror, and he and his principal, the Major, fled the field. Unspeakable was the relief of the remorseful Major when Sheridan turned up that night at the Prince's dinner table. "How—how—how is this?" he stammered. "I thought I had killed you!" "No, my good fellow," replied Sheridan. "I wasn't good enough to go to the world above; nor as yet quite bad enough to go to that below; therefore, I deferred my departure. But, I say, Hanger, didn't I die well?" It was then explained to the mystified Major how he had been hoaxed by the Prince, who had arranged that the pistols should be charged only with powder.

Will Plymouth have a new postmaster or not, seems to cause considerable interest just now. The matter is expected to be decided soon.

You Can Easily Operate This Typewriter Yourself.

Don't worry your correspondence. Don't write him anything by hand that makes him time to make. Don't have him in doubt—that he can't easily read. And don't all our legal papers or card memos—make out accounts or hotel bills in your own handwriting. It looks bad reflects on your standing, makes people think you can't afford a stenographer, and is sometimes ambiguous. You can write out your letters—make out an abstract—all in an insurance policy—make your card memos—make out your accounts, or a hotel memo—or do any kind of writing you need, on any kind of paper—thickness of paper, and space any way you want on

The OLIVER Typewriter

The Standard Visible Writer.

You can write any of these things yourself if you do not happen to have a stenographer. For you can easily learn, with a little practice to write just as rapidly and as perfectly, as an expert operator on the OLIVER. Besides the OLIVER is the simplified typewriter. And you can see every word you write. About 80 per cent more visible than any other typewriter, because it has about 80 per cent less wearing points than most other typewriters. It is so simple to write with than those other complicated machines that require "humorous"—technical knowledge—long practice and special skill to operate. Than machines which cannot be adjusted to any special abuse—with which it is impossible to write abstracts, insurance policies, or odd-sized documents except you buy expensive special attachments requiring experts to operate. You can adjust the OLIVER to any reasonable space—you can write on any reasonable size and thickness of paper right out to the very edge, without the aid of any expensive attachment or special, and your work will be most appearing, legible and clear. For the OLIVER is the typewriter for the doctor, the lawyer, the insurance agent, the merchant, the hotel proprietor—or any man who does his own writing. Write us now for our booklet on the simplified features of the OLIVER.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bennett Return Home from World's Tour.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bennett returned home on Tuesday morning from a trip around the world. Mr. Bennett is vice president and manager of the Daisy Mfg. Co., of this place, and made this journey in the interests of his company. Since his departure from New York city in July Mr. Bennett has visited twenty-two foreign countries and fifty-four of the principal cities of the old world and has traveled a distance of over 40,000 miles. Mr. B. reports a most favorable outlook in the countries of the Far East for goods of American manufacture, and especially the brands of air rifles as manufactured in this home town of ours. During his trip Mr. B. has visited Europe, Africa, India, Ceylon, Burmah, China, Phillipine Islands, Japan and other countries, but as a permanent place of residence claims the good old United States has them all beaten by far.

Woman's Literary Club.

The Woman's Literary Club held its eighth regular meeting, being open day, at the home of Mrs. Hugh Ronald. In the absence of the President, the meeting was presided over by the second vice, Mrs. S. O. Hudd. There were 21 active and 13 associate members present and also a large number of guests.
 No business was transacted. The program was in charge of the first division with Mrs. Frank Shattuck as leader.
 We were very pleasantly entertained for a half hour with humorous clippings given in response to roll call from both active and associate members.

Recitations were given by Miss Pelham, Miss McGill and Mrs. Harry Shattuck, also a most able paper on "Worry" was prepared and read by Mrs. Wm. Travis. Following the program was the social hour during which we were invited to the dining room, where we were served to dainty refreshments. The next club meeting will be held in the club rooms, Feb. 1st.

The lecture and electrical demon-was gained of the great possibilities of electricity.

The K. P. minstrel performance at Northville last Friday evening was greeted by an overflowing house, and the participants were given a very cordial reception. The proceeds of the three performances given by the K. P.'s will place a neat sum in the treasury of the local camp.

HEARTS AND MASKS

By HAROLD MacGRATH
Author of "The Man on the Box," etc.
With Drawings by Harrison Fisher

Copyright, 1908, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.

CHAPTER II.—Continued.

I drew out my wallet. I had arrived in town too late to go to the bank, and I was carrying an uncomfortably large sum in gold-bills. As I opened the wallet to extract a small bill, I saw the stranger eyeing me quietly. Well, well, the dullest being brightens at the sight of money and its representatives. I drew out a small bill and handed it to the proprietor. He took it, together with the mask, and slid over to the cash register. The bell gave forth a muffled sound, not unlike that of a fire-bell in a snowstorm. As he was in the act of wrapping up my purchase, I observed the silent customer's approach. When he reached my side, he stooped and picked up something from the floor. With a bow, he presented it to me.

"I saw it drop from your pocket," he said; and then when he saw what it was, his jaw fell, and he sent me a hot, penetrating glance.

"The ten of hearts!" he exclaimed, in amazement.

"I laughed easily.

"The ten of hearts?" he repeated.

"Yes; four hearts on one side and four on the other, and two in the middle, which make ten in all,"—gallery in my tones. What the deuce was the matter with everybody tonight? "Marvelous card, isn't it?"

"Very strange!" he murmured, pulling at his lips.

"And in what way is it strange?" I asked, rather curious to learn the cause of his agitation.

"There are several reasons,"—briefly.

"Ah!"

"I have seen a man's hand plined to that card; therefore it is gruesome."

"Some card sharper?"

He nodded. "Then again, I lost a small fortune because of that card,"—disidently.

"Poker?"

"Yes. Way will a man try to fill a royal flush? The man next to me drew the ten of hearts, the very card I needed. The sight of it always unnerves me. I beg your pardon."

"Oh, that's all right," said I, wondering how many more lies he had up his sleeve.

"And there's still another reason. I saw a man put six bullets into the two central spots, and an hour later the seventh bullet snuffed the candle of a friend of mine. I am from the west."

"I can sympathize with you," I returned. "After all that trouble, the sight of the card must have given you a shock."

Then I stowed away the fatal card and took up my bundle and change. I have in my own time tried to fill royal flushes, and the disappointment still lingers with a bitter taste.

"The element of chance is the most fascinating thing there is," the stranger from the west volunteered.

"So it is," I recalled, suddenly recalling that I was soon to put my trust in the hands of that very fickle goddess.

He nodded and returned to his revolver, while I went out of the shop, hailed a cab, and drove up town to my apartments in Riverside. It was eight o'clock by my watch. I leaned back against the cushions, ruminating. There seemed to be something going on that night; the ten of hearts was acquiring a mystifying, not to say sinister aspect. First it had alarmed the girl in Mouquin's, and now this stranger in the curio-shop. I was conscious that the latter had lied in regard to his explanations. The card had started him, but his reasons were altogether of transparent thinness. A man never likes to confess that he is weakly at cards; there is a certain pride in trying about the enormous stakes you have won and the wonderful draws you have made. I frowned. It was not possible for me to figure out what his interest in the card was. It was a westerner, his buying a pistol in a pawnshop was at once disclosed to me; but the inconspicuous glance of his evening clothes doubled my suspicions. Bah! What was the use of troubling myself with this stranger's affairs? He would never cross my path again.

In reasonable time the cab drew up in front of my apartments. I dressed, doffed my Capelin's robe and took a look at myself in the pier glass. Then I unwrapped the package and put on the mask. The whole made a capital outfit and I was vastly pleased with myself. This was going to be such an adventure as one rarely gets in the city. I slipped the robe and mask into my suitcase and lit my pipe. During these moments, like Miss, a man's courage and confidence were a matter of course. I crossed the street and, as I stepped into the door, a man in a black coat, touched the gas logs, and fell into a pleasant dream. It was not necessary for me to start for the Twenty-third street ferry till nine; so I had something like three-quarters of an hour to idle away. What beautiful hair that girl had! It was like sunshine, the silk of corn; the yield of the harvest. And the marvelous abundance of it! It was true that she was an artist's model; it was equally true that she had committed a mild impropriety in addressing me as she had; but, for all I could see, she was a girl of delicate breeding, doubtless one of the many whose family fortunes, or misfortunes, forced them to earn a living. And it is no disgrace these days to pose as an artist's model. The classic oils, nowadays, call only for exquisite creations in gowns and hats; mythology was exhausted by the old masters. Rome, Paris, London; possibly a bohemian existence in these cities accounted for her ease in striking up a conversation, harmless enough, with a total stranger. In Paris and Rome it was all very well; but it is a risky thing to do in unromantic New York and London. However, her uncle had been with her; a veritable fortress, had I overstepped the bounds of politeness.

The smoke wavered and rolled about me. I took out the ten of hearts and studied it musingly. After all, should I go? Would it be wise? I confess I saw goblins' heads peering from the spots, and old Poe stories returned to me. Pshaw! It was only a frolic, no serious harm could possibly come of it. I would certainly go, now I had gone thus far. What fool idea the girl was bent on I hadn't the least idea; but I easily recognized the folly upon which I was about to set sail. Heigh-ho! What was a lonely young bachelor to do? At the most, they my opera hat. Outside the storm, was still active; but the snow had a promising softness, and there were patches of stars to be seen here and there in the sky. By midnight there would be a full moon. I got to Jersey City without mishap; and when I took my seat in the smoker, I found I had ten minutes to spare. I bought a newspaper and settled down to read the day's news. It was fully half an hour between Jersey City and Blankshire; in that time I could begin and finish the paper.

There never was a newspaper those days that hadn't a war map in some one of its columns; and when I had digested the latest phases of the war in the far east, I found I quite naturally turned to the sporting page to learn what was going on among the other professional fighters. (Have I mentioned to you that fact that I was all through the Spanish war, the mix-up in China, and that I had resigned my commission to accept the post of traveling salesman for a famous motor car company? If I have not, pardon me. You will now readily accept my recklessness of spirit as a matter of course.) I turned over another page; from this I learned that the fair sex was going back to puff-sleeves again. Many an old sleeve was going to be turned upside down.

Fudge! The train was rattling through the yards. Another page crackled. Ha! Here was that unknown gentleman-thief again, up to his old tricks. It is remarkable how difficult it is to catch a thief who has good looks and shrewd brains. I had already written him down as a quack-swell. For months the police had been finding clues, but they had never laid eyes on the rascal. The famous Haggerty of the New York detective force,—a man whom not a dozen New could only ask me to vacate the premises, should I be so unfortunate as to be discovered. In that event, Teddy Hamilton would come to my assistance. She was really beautiful! And then I awoke to the alarming fact that the girl in Mouquin's was interesting me more than I liked to confess.

Presently, through the haze of smoke, I saw a patch of white paper on the rug in front of the pier glass. I arose and picked it up.

NAME Hawthorne
COSTUME Blue Domino
TIME 5:30 P. M.
RETURNED
ADDRESS West 87th Street
FRIARD'S

I stared at the bit of pasteboard, fascinated. How the deuce had this got into my apartments? A Blue Domino? Ha! I had it! Old Friard had accidentally done up the ticket with my mask. A Blue Domino; evidently it wasn't the only person who was going to a masquerade. Without doubt this fair comeliness was about to join the festivities of some shopping-masquerade, where money and pedigree are inconsequent things, and where everybody is either a "foidy" or a "genk." Persons who went to my kind of masquerade did not rent their costumes; they laid out extravagant sums to the fashionable modiste and tailor, and had them made to order. A Blue Domino: hump!

It was too late to take the ticket back to Friard's; so I determined to mail it to him in the morning. It was now high time for me to be off. I got into my coat and took down

York policeman knew by sight and no criminals save those behind bars, earthly and eternal,—was now giving his whole attention to the affair. Some gaily dressed lady at a ball would suddenly find she had lost some valuable gems; and that would be the end of the affair, for none ever recovered her gems.

The gentleman-thief was still at large, and had gathered to his account a comfortable fortune; that is, if he were not already rich and simply a kleptomaniac. No doubt he owned one of my racing cars, and was clear of the delinquent lists at his clubs. I dismissed all thought of him, threw aside the paper, and mentally figured out my commissions on sales during the past month. It was a handsome figure, large enough for two. This pastime, too, soon failed to interest me. I gazed out of the window and watched the dark shapes as they sped past.

I saw the girl's face from time to time. What a fool I had been not to ask her name! She could easily have refused, and yet so easily have granted the request. At any rate, I had permitted the chance to slip out of my reach, which was exceedingly careless on my part. Perhaps they—she and her uncle—frequently dined at Mouquin's; I determined to haunt the place and learn. It would be easy enough to address her the next time we met. Besides, she would be curious to know all about the ten of hearts and the desperate adventure upon which I told her I was about to embark. Many a fine friendship has grown out of smaller things.

Carry Much Freight.

One of the largest lake steamships can carry about as much freight as four of the most powerful locomotives can pull in four trains, on a level railroad of the best construction.

NUBBIN CHOPPER.

One That Can be Made at Home and Will Do Good Service.

I have a plan for a simple and cheap nubbin chopper which I think will be of interest to others, writes a correspondent of the Prairie Farmer. I have used this chopper for two years and find it satisfactory. I use it to cut up corn for feeding cattle.

The cutting blade is made of a heavy corn knife with a hole drilled in the end and fastened to a crib post with a one-quarter inch lag screw. The bottom of the chopper is made of a 2x6 plank nailed to the crib post under the corn chute with a 1x3 inch strip on the outer edge. The two form a trough along which I push the corn to the knife.

DRAINING LANDS.

Much Rich Land Goes to Waste Because This Work is Not Done.

Many undrained and unprofitable lands can be drained well, or at least considerably improved, should you only spend a day's work in scraping out ditches, with an ordinary two-horse scraper. Some of the ditches need not necessarily be wide nor deep.

It has been estimated that from one to thirty per cent of certain sections of good farming lands in some sections of the Northwest need draining. Some of this undrained land is reasonably productive in growing slough grass, which in many cases serves as feed for cattle in the winter, but a large fraction of these lands lie idle and are hotbeds for the propagation of weeds and undesirable insects.

The soil in sloughs and small swamps is usually fertile and rich in plant food, due largely to the decay of plant life, which has been accumulating there year after year. It is this land that should be brought into condition for the growing of crops. It will support plant growth better than the adjoining higher lands whose fertility has been considerably depleted by constant cropping. When drained well these lands make admirable fields for grasses, such as timothy and millet grass, also fodder corn. There is no work of this kind done if done at proper time and place but what will easily pay for the expense in the raising of the first few crops from lands.—J. F. Vojta, professor of agriculture, Gustavus Adolphus College.

BIG OR LITTLE FARMS.

The Size Depends on Location Writes an Iowa Farmer.

Whether a man should have a big or a little farm depends on his location. In this part of Iowa, writes a Clarke county farmer in Farmers' Review, we must depend on the more extensive methods of agriculture to give us a living. A man that has a farm of only 80 acres or 120 acres will have a hard chance to make a living. He needs at least 160 acres, and if he has 320 acres he will be still more fortunate.

It must be remembered that it takes a good deal of land to produce paying crops of corn, wheat and other cereals. If a man raises cattle he must have a large part of his farm in pasture. If he has but 80 acres and there comes a wet year or a very dry year, either of which will cut short his crops, where is he? But even then, if he has 160 acres he will be able to produce enough to meet his obligations.

The 80-acre farm is all right near a good-sized city, where truck farming can be followed largely enough to insure the farmer a living. He can then constantly get manure for use on his farm. But in the country away from the large cities it is far otherwise.

When Figuring the Accounts. When this year's accounts are all in and ready to figure, don't forget to give credit to the good wife, sons and daughters, for the excellent work they have done toward helping to keep the balance on the right side of the page.

Don't keep your cows too long. Much loss results from keeping them until they are valueless when put on the market.

WORK IN THE TOOL SHED.

Where a Good Many of the Winter Days Can Be Profitably Spent.

One of the many profitable winter jobs can be found in the tool shed in going over, cleaning up and repairing the machinery that will be used next summer. After a season's work there is nearly always something about a mower, binder, or cultivator which needs fixing. When one wants to use a tool he seldom has time to fix it, and if it must be repaired the work is usually done as quickly as possible with an eye only to the work immediately at hand.

Plows may now be cleaned off and oiled, hoes and mattocks sharpened, scythes ground, etc. Then there are always bolts to tighten, fractures and breaks to patch up, and adjustments of various kinds to make. If any machine needs repairs that must be ordered from a distance this should be done during the winter and the machine made ready for use. If this is neglected now, remarks Farm and Home, you may forget all about it until you want to use it, and then you will be in a hole.

A few hours' work at odd times will have all the tools ready for use when the time comes. If they are stored in a shed or room where you can get at them and the rain and snow cannot. If they are left, as many tools are, out in the weather, they will be in bad shape when you go to use them. So if you have no tool shed it would be a good winter job to build one.

WHAT TO FEED WITH CORN.

Missouri Experiment Station Proves That Linseed Oil is Best.

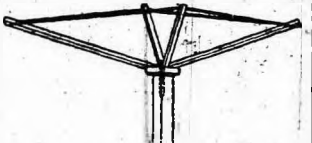

That some other feed should be used with corn to secure the best results in pig feeding is known by all practical feeders. The gains are better than on a pure corn ration, and if the other food is well chosen the gains may be made at lower cost. In a test at the Missouri experiment station a comparison of wheat, middlings and other purchased feeds used with corn meal was made.

With corn at 25c a bushel it would be an even thing so far as the cost of gain is concerned, whether corn be fed alone or with oil meal at $30 per ton. In these tests, linseed oil meal proved to be better than wheat middlings as a food to use with corn. The oil meal ration was so much more palatable than the middlings, that much more of it was eaten daily. They made more rapid gains and seemed to thrive better upon this feed. To be equal to oil meal at $30 per ton, middlings would have to be bought at from $14 to $15 per ton. As oil meal is usually cheaper than $30 in Missouri and middlings worth $15 or more, these tests show that linseed oil meal is one of the best feeds to use with corn.

SAVE THE WOMEN.

Revolving Clothes Horse Which the Wife Will Appreciate.

There is no little thing that will save the household so much as a revolving clothes horse, so near the back stoop that the clothes may be hung upon it without stepping out in the snow. A solid post should have a hole bored in the top and the arms may be beveled and spiked to a piece of plank through which a bolt passes into the post, or each arm may be bored to let the bolt pass through it.

Revolving Clothes Rack.

Three, four or five arms may be used as desired and of any length, provided all are of one length. No skill is required in making it, says Farm and Home, as the rope holds the arms up simply by being tight enough. It is well to set the post before measuring the arms, so that they may be sure to reach the veranda. Some laths may be nailed together at first to make a model if you are not sure of your ability as a carpenter.

FARM ITEMS.

Ventilate the cellar. Keep it cool, but do not let it freeze. Sort the apples frequently.

Of all the new money-making schemes, none of them beats the old-fashioned way of earning a living—Farm Journal.

Sandy soil can be greatly improved by plowing in barnyard manure or other things that will add decaying matter.

Spinach is an easily grown garden crop, and there is, perhaps, no other of its kind that will give as good satisfaction. Three or four ounces of seed planted in the autumn after a summer crop has been harvested from the land, will produce an abundance of greens for the average family during the late autumn and early spring.

Cattle Prices High.

The reports from the beef market indicate a demand in excess of the visible supply, and that good prices for cattle will be maintained for sometime. This will stimulate the rearing of cattle, remarks Farm Journal and will doubtless induce more prosperous conditions among eastern and middle west farmers.

Invigorate the Digestion.

To invigorate the digestion and stimulate the liver and bowels there is nothing so good as that old family remedy, Brandreth Pills, which has been in use for over a century. They cleanse the blood and impart new vigor to the body. One of two every night for a week will usually be all that is required. For Constipation or Dyspepsia, one or two taken every night will afford great relief.

Brandreth's Pills are the same fine laxative tonic pill your grandparents used and being purely vegetable are adapted to every system. Sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar-coated.

Revolt Against Trading Stamps. "No more trading stamps," is the slogan of a campaign which English workmen are carrying on. One of them, whose shop is in East London, says: "There is not a small grocer in England who earns 15 per cent on his capital. Ten per cent is average profit and the cost of trading stamps leaves him only about 6 1/2 per cent."

MAYOR OF SUNBURY Says Peruna is a Good Medicine.

Hon. C. C. Brooks, Mayor of Sunbury, Ohio, also Attorney for Farmers' Bank and Sunbury Building and Loan Co., writes:

"I have the utmost confidence in the virtue of Peruna. It is a great medicine. I have used it and I have known many of my friends who have obtained beneficial results from its use. I cannot praise Peruna too highly."

HON. C. C. BROOKS.

THERE are a host of petty ailments which are the direct result of the weather.

This is more true of the excessive heat of summer and the intense cold of winter, but is partly true of all seasons of the year.

Whether it be a cold or a cough, catarrh of the head or bowel complaint, whether the liver be affected or the kidneys, the cause is very liable to be the same.

The weather slightly deranges the mucous membranes of the organs and the result is some functional disease.

Peruna has become a standby in thousands of homes for minor ailments of this sort.

Canadian Government Free Farms

Over 200,000 American farmers who have settled in Canada during the past few years testify to the fact that Canada is the greatest farming land in the world.

OVER NINETY MILLION BUSHELS

of wheat from the harvest of 1906 means good money to the farmers of Western Canada, who the world has to feed. Cattle Raising, Hairy Leg and Mixed Farming are also profitable callings. Coal, wood and water in abundance, churches and schools convenient; markets easy of access. Taxes low.

PRAYERS OF THE RIGHT

Request for Special Exhortation Put Rather Strongly.

The late Gen. Alfred Hoyt of Dover, N. H., was for many years general-in-chief of the militia forces of the state.

One particular year the muster at Barrington, N. H., was looked upon as of more than ordinary importance in that the governor of New Hampshire was the guest of honor.

Gen. Hoyt did not fail to appreciate the importance of the occasion. It was the custom to open the military exercises with prayer, and Elder Sherburne of Barrington was the chaplain of the town regiment.

"Elder, this is a great day for Barrington! She will never see another like it on the Lord's earth! We've got the governor here, and a bigger crowd than we'll ever see again! Now, elder, all I have to say to you is, go in and pray your best!"

PLEA FOR PLAIN WORDS.

Historian Objected to Use of Greek in Conversation.

Freeman, the historian, it was said was apt to grow irritable over matters of intellectual difference.

Whereupon Freeman began to growl at the use of a Greek word.

"Why can't you speak English?" demanded he, "and say home rule, instead of speaking Greek, which you don't know?"

One of the guests flushed with anger and ventured to reprove Freeman, calling his attention to the respect due their host, and at the same time paying tribute to Mr. Macmillan's remarkable abilities.

A New Device for Seances.

A German spiritualist, writing in Psychic Studies, describes a new apparatus for obtaining what is known as direct writing.

Founded on Self-Respect.

Certain outward social forms may be acquired by a study of etiquette, but true politeness does not consist in the intentional, or even conscious, observance of any code of manners.

A truly polite man, consequently, does not think out or learn a special line of conduct. He simply does that which his instincts prompt him to do, never worrying himself or others to decide what ought, or ought not, to be done in a given set of circumstances.

Real politeness is much more than a question of external conduct. It is an expression of character on the part of one who combines sympathy for others with a proper degree of self-respect.

New Style of Paper.

"Right in the middle of a story, my paper gave out," said a newspaper woman, "and I sent in haste to the local stationer's around the corner. I wrote a note as follows: 'Please send a pad of yellow paper, 8x10, unlined, preferable.'"

The maid brought back the pad, on the wrapper of which the proprietor had written: "Hope this will do. It is yellow and unlined, but we are all out of preferable."

Absent-Minded.

Stranger (with suitcase)—Can you direct me, sir, to the nearest route to the hotel here?

The Native—Straight ahead three blocks. Two dollars, please.

Stranger—Is that?

Native—By no means. Force of habit, my dear, I'm Dr. Foster.

A PLAIN AIR RHAPSODY.

Draft, Not Cold, is the Thing That is Harmful.

Keep your thoughts on pure air in the home. Don't be afraid if it is a little cold. None of Peary's party caught cold all the time they were in regions away below zero.

It is not the cold that hurts; it is the draft, which disturbs the temperature of the body and consequently the equilibrium of the circulation, which in turn stuffs up the capillaries, and there you are—sneezing, wheezing, coughing, hocking, grunting and making yourself a public calamity.

Therefore, flood your home with fresh air, cold or hot, better cold, but keep an eye on that draft; it is always just on the outside, waiting to catch you unawares; it is a mean conspiracy and usually aims at nice, thoughtless people.

EASY ROAD TO MINER'S HEART.

Child Beggars in Camp Early Become Worldly Wives.

"The mining camp child usually develops into the greatest beggar as a class that child life ever sees," said H. D. Smith, of Milwaukee.

"A story is told of a little girl in Dawson who made it her custom to ask every miner she saw for a nugget. She was a cute little thing, and her request was nearly always acceded to.

"In camps where they are not thus supplied with gold they usually are free with their money and the begging child is tossed anything from a nickel to a dollar."

Bethnal Green.

Bethnal Green, whose lawless state has just been revealed before the police commission, seems, in the past, to have been as idyllic a spot as its rural-sounding name suggests.

"That day he sits begging for charity. 'He is the good father of pretty Beesee.'"

It is a far cry from Peppy's strawberry-growing days to Matthew Arnold's "squalid streets of Bethnal Green!"

Wood Pavements.

The five cities in which the largest amounts of wood pavement are found are, in order, Indianapolis, New York, Minneapolis, Toledo and Boston. Together these cities have more crooked wood pavement than all other cities in the United States combined.

Welsh Rabbit Flasco.

"When I was starting my apartment," remembered the bachelor, "several of my lady friends wired me they would bring a small party of people up for Welsh rabbit. I went out and bought a chafin dish, the handiest I could find; a dozen plates, silver knives and forks and spoons and napkins, and a table to set the rabbit out on, so that the rabbit, which at a restaurant would have cost me about a dollar all told, cost me about $25. And then they didn't come."

Shopping Pathos.

"Never about my dear," said the mother, gently. "But, mamma," objected the little girl, "suppose I don't know the name of the things?"

"Then let the salesman show you all he has in stock until he comes to the article that is desired."

BEGAN SELLING RAT TRAPS.

A Millionaire Made His First Money in That Way.

Joy Morton, the Chicago millionaire and president of the International Salt company which has extensive salt interests in Hutchinson, Kan., made his first money by selling rat traps, says the Kansas City Star.

Joy Morton and his brother were on their way west the other day and were at luncheon at the Hotel Baltimore when he told the story.

"In those days the patent right was not in such bad repute," he said. "A man came to Nebraska City with a patent rat trap and I purchased the privilege of selling the device in and about the vicinity of my town. The rat trap was a device fearfully and wondrously made and the price was five dollars each. It consisted of a large grab hook on a strong, heavy spring. When a rat nibbled at the bait he tripped the spring and the hook swung over and nipped him. The trap had one fault. It was good for only one rat, for after it had killed one none of his companions would go near it again for a long time, because they scented the blood on the wire. The eligible customers in my territory conceived that five dollars per rat was too extravagant a plan of extermination and I sold only six traps. It was the first money I ever made."

PUT END TO ONE CROP.

Last of Persistent Questioner, if Instructions Were Followed.

A well known congressman was addressing an agricultural meeting, and in the course of his remarks expressed the opinion that farmers do not sufficiently vary their crops.

One of the audience opposed to him in politics asked him what crops he would recommend.

"Everything in turn," he replied.

"Well," said his interlocutor, "if Swedes don't come up what then?"

"Sow mustard," said the congressman.

"And if mustard doesn't come up, what then?"

"Oh, sow yourself, and I hope you won't come up."

Cabby Found Out.

Cabby is very often a most sagacious person. One night Rev. John Williams, a newly-returned missionary, took a cab in a dubious frame of mind. He had been invited to dine with some friends at the house of an acquaintance whose name he had forgotten.

"What am I to do?" he asked of his driver.

"Never mind, sir," was the reply. "I'll find it for you."

"But you can't; you don't know his name."

"Leave it to me, sir—leave it to me; I'll find him."

They drove to Harcourt street, and the man, beginning at the end, knocked at every door and made an inquiry. Halfway down the street he rejoined his employer and said: "It's all right, sir; it's here."

"How do you know?"

"I asked, sir," does Rev. Mister Williams live here? And the maid said: 'No; but he's dining here to-night.'"

Stray Stories.

Through Long Use.

"Ask any sea captain of long standing," remarks a veteran skipper, "and he will tell you that long use of the telescope, the quadrant, and other instruments for making calculations at sea, has the effect of drawing the light from the left eye into the one which peers so eagerly and often through the instruments.

"This peculiarity of vision is common to all skippers and other ships' officers who have had very long experience on the sea. I can discern objects at an enormous distance with my right eye, but am scarcely able to read with my left. The tendency of Nature to adjust itself to conditions is heightened in this case by the bright glare from the waters, which makes the strain on the eye especially trying."

An Epic on the Sofa.

The only article of furniture that has had an epic all to itself is the sofa, though, considering the many hours of sweet repose which must have been spent upon it by tired humanity, it deserves to have had many Cowper's placid poem upon it was inspired by his friend, Lady Austen, who suggested the sofa as a subject for his muse, and out of this beginning grew the whole structure of "The Task."

Woman, Lovely Woman.

Fair Guest (at wedding)—They say the groom is a bright literary light.

Another—Yes, but she really ought to have married a railway conductor.

Fair Guest—Why, Maud, how you talk! Why should she have married a conductor?

Another—He might teach her how to manage a train.

THE COAT ON THE ARM.

Showing Importance of Making "Front" in New York.

It is better to put on a stiff front and keep a stiff upper lip in this town than to have no front at all and bite your lip. It is not always the man who strolls down Broadway wearing a blasé smile with a faded "mum on the lapel of his coat and with his overcoat carelessly swung across his arm who dines at Del's or who owns a seat on 'change or who goes to Europe every year to buy pictures for his gallery.

ALASKA'S GREAT FISH RIVER.

Nushagak the Basis of Important Canning Industry.

How many readers ever heard of the Nushagak river, asks the Youths' Commission. Not many, it is safe to say. Yet the department of commerce and labor pronounces this river of western Alaska "one of the important fishing streams of the world."

Valuable Chairs.

The value of chairs is strictly relative. Enormous prices have been paid for chairs in recent years, notably the $100,000 for a set of half a dozen Louis XIV. chairs upholstered in Gobelin tapestry, originally made for Marie Antoinette.

Hit Back.

Walking along a road in the remote west of Ireland, two tourists were passing one of the cottages, or, as they are better known in the country, "cabins," of the peasantry.

"I say my boy," he said, "does that chimney draw well?"

"Shure, this, it does," was the prompt reply; "it draws the notice of every fool that passes by!"

Not the New England Variety.

"O! they're real swell people," said the Chicago man; "an old 'Mayflower' family, I believe."

"You mean their ancestors came over in the 'Mayflower'?" asked the visitor from the East.

"O! no, I mean they made their money in 'Mayflower Hams'; oldest brand o' hams in this section."

Succeeded.

Bacon—You say Grafton is a successful man?

Egbert—He certainly is.

Bacon—But I understand his business methods are questionable; what does call him a successful man?

Egbert—Because he kept out of it.

EXCITING INCIDENT IN CHURCH.

Burning Hat Not Unnaturally Cause of Great Commotion.

An exciting incident occurred in a church at Heaton Moor, Manchester, England, during a recent service. While the congregation were singing the last hymn a tall waving plume in a young lady's hat was ignited at a gas bracket and began to blaze. The flames were observed by a member of the choir, and he immediately left the choir stalls and ran down the chancel. Pulling off his coat as he went he rushed past the lectern and down one of the aisles to where the lady was standing.

TO BREAK INTO SOCIETY.

One Must Be Able to Contribute to the General Gayety.

Some one has said that to get into London society you must feed people, amuse people or shock people. In New York, according to Good Housekeeping, you must at least attract their attention.

Having once attracted their attention you must make it evident, if you are an outsider, that you have something to bring; Beauty, if it is conspicuous enough; brains, if they are coined into the small change of social intercourse; money, if you know how to use it.

It is not enough to be well born, well bred, well off, well dressed, well educated. Not a block of the residential parts of New York but is filled with people who are all of these.

There is another requirement in order to be desirable socially, namely, to have something to contribute to the general gayety. Men have grasped this fact in business. A man does not go and ask another for a job on the ground that there is nothing against him, but women seem to feel that an absence of any qualification should not prevent them in society at once.

Voices of American Women.

Why is it always the women of America who are rebuked for their way of speaking when it is really the men who deserve a scolding? American women have their peculiarities, but their voices and their accents are at any rate careful, and have a refinement of their own—not an English finish, but a very perceptible one, says a writer in the London Chronicle. On the other hand American men very seldom have what one must call, so as to be understood, an educated voice.

Told by the Teeth.

"A man carries a good barometer in his teeth," declares a dentist of large experience. "The teeth are peculiarly affected by damp weather, especially bad teeth. When strangers begin focking to my consulting room complaining of toothache and pains in the jaw, I know that we are going to have a spell of bad weather. A good bit of it is neuralgia, but it is a sure sign."

"This rush of business keeps up until the bad weather is well set in, and when business falls off I know that we shall soon have better weather. When toothache patients are few and far between I am assured that we are in for a spell of fine weather."

Is Marriage a Failure?

Maria, the colored maid, had been neglecting her work shamefully. Her mistress remonstrated, but in vain. Finally Maria's carelessness called forth a sharp rebuke. To soften the sting the mistress added:

"Maria, I think you must be in love."

Maria, who was resting ruminatively on her broom handle, drew herself up and replied with great dignity:

"Deed, ma'am, I's a married 'oman!"—Judge.

One Exception.

Ned—I called upon Miss Outertown last night, determined to win her. She accepted me all right.

Dick—Good for you! Carried every thing before you, eh?

Ned—Not everything. When I started to catch the last train home I carried her father's bulldog behind me.
