In Memory of the Dead.

There was a large audience present at the opera house yesterday to listen to the Decoration Day exercises as prepared by the school children, some twenty members of the old army boys occupying seats. The program was carried out as printed in The Mail last week, all pertaining to the day we commemorate. The songs and flag drills by the little tots were very much appreciated. Myrtle Yorton's recitation, "Home, Sweet Home," was exceedingly well rendered. Eight girls from the 7th and 8th grades carried out very effectively in pantomime the sentiment of the song "Way Down Upon the Suwanee River," sung by a quartette of girls. The flag drill by 6th grade girls was very pretty. Rev. Ronald made some pertinent and effective remarks to all the old soldiers as well as to the children and young people, stating that though seemingly the day was given up to amusements and sports there was more reverence for the old soldier in the hearts of the people than ever before. The exercises closed with a medley of national songs and benediction.

For The Blue Ribbon Races.

Inside of a week from now the great movement of horses from the south to the training tracks of the middle states will begin in anticipation of the annual opening of the grand circuit at Detroit on July 22. Many of these horses which have wintered at Memphis and Lexington and others as for South as Savannah and Selma will be shipped to Cleveland, Libertyville, Detroit and other favored spots for the finishing touches which are to have them ready for the supreme effort when the bell first rings on the magnificent Grosse Pointe track.

Famous as have the other meetings of the Detroit Driving Club been in the many years of its usefulness to the harness turf, this promises to eclipse all previous efforts because of the unusual number of horses in training and the quality they have shown in public or private trials. Not only will the stakes have the largest lists of starters they have ever known, but the twelve purse events will be among the best races of the year.

Grosse Pointe has always enjoyed the reputation of excellent appointments and nothing will be lacking to make this Blue Ribbon week memorable. The naturally fast track will be at its best and a wholesale breaking of existing records is in order if the weather is of the desired sort.

My Best Friend.

SIDE LIGHTS ON MICHIGAN

A WILD BLIZZARD SWEEPED OVER THE STATE WITH HEAVY SNOW FALL.

GREAT DAMAGE TO CROPS

Snow Plows Busy at the Soo, Saginaw, Storm-Bound, and Other Cities Suffer Quite Severely.

Reports From Various Points.

Snow began to come down in quantity throughout the state Sunday night and continued Monday. It raged over the entire Saginaw valley, at times assuming the proportions of a winter blizzard; while at Mackinac straits no one can remember ever having experienced a worse day. At noon the wind had increased to 40 miles, driving thick snow before it, and all vessels sought shelter wherever possible. The snowstorm brought navigation to a practical standstill and heavy gales swept over the lakes.

Michigan cities suffered severely from the grip of the winter blizzard. In Saginaw, for example, the fall of the temperature was 25 degrees since Sunday, and the snowstorm which followed caused considerable suffering among the poor families without fuel, while business was practically at a standstill. The prize report for May 27 comes from Sault Ste. Marie. Eight inches of snow had fallen there and street railway traffic was delayed.

Shipping was tied up. From 2 to 4 inches of snow is reported throughout the peninsula, says this "Soo" report. High winds from the northwest drive this snow in clouds and street sweepers are running on the trolley lines the same as in midwinter. All business is at a standstill and the crop damage is heavy.

Three inches of snow fell at Alpena, accompanied by a northwest gale of 45 miles an hour. Grand Haven reports that several barns in that section were destroyed by lightning, and in the barn of County Treasurer Walter Clark a valuable driving horse was killed. A blizzard was raging at Muskegon and telephone wires put out of commission, while South Haven reports snow and a drop in the mercury of 50 degrees since Sunday.

So far as Detroit is concerned it has just been a case of measuring the rainfall. At 7 o'clock Sunday evening the total rainfall for the day was 62 inches at the Union Trust building. By 7 o'clock Sunday morning it had rained more than changed the figures to 98. The big storm here was very much expected, at least the weather observer says so. A week ago the storm was over Michigan and since that time it has been traveling slowly in this direction. The temperature Monday morning went as low as 39 degrees, but at that time was higher than at most other places in the state.

It is estimated that the storm will cause thousands of dollars in loss to the farmers and fruit growers. At Ludington they are reporting hailstones as large as robin's eggs, a fall of three inches and much damage to trees; and at Negaunee, after 24 hours of rain, it began to snow so that the ground became covered.

There was a heavy flurry of snow at Grand Rapids; six inches at Waterbury with a blizzard raging; six inches at Petoskey and the mercury hovering about the freezing point and the wind blowing a gale. At Cassopolis snow had been falling for several hours and Coldwater reports a snowstorm, with the mercury at 38.

One fatality is reported. Frank Walsh, a farmer of Puddletford, four and a half miles north of Jackson, was killed by lightning Sunday night while standing in the doorway of a barn. The barn was only slightly burned. A few miles north the residence of Joseph Lowden was struck.

"Stand by to Man the Yards."

Naval maneuvers on the Great Lakes will receive an impetus this summer under the direction of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Truman H. Newberry. It is reported at the naval militia headquarters. It is planned to have a board of officers from the regular service direct the joint work of the naval militia of the lake states.

The organizations from Illinois, Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin and Indiana will be brought together under a general order for joint maneuver. The officers who will direct the maneuvers will be made up from the complement of the ship Michigan. An inspection of the work of the organizations will be made by officials from Washington.

It is desired that the highest point of efficiency may be reached through service on the lakes, so that in time of hostilities there will be in the militia organizations a well trained corps at the disposal of the government as a reserve force.

A piece of shelving paper may be the cause of sending three men under arrest in Jackson to prison. Peter Ragfaski drank hard cider and when he came to a $100 roll of bills was missing and in its place was a wad of the shelving in the room in which he sat and drank with three "friends."

The big turpentine factory on the plains, near West Branch, is turning out a fine grade of turpentine from pine stumps found all over the plains, and has a whole township fenced in. The stumps are pulled with machines and roots and all are used. The company will turn the land into a big ranch when the stumps are used up.

It is believed that caribou and moose exist on Isle Royale. This is a matter that has caused much discussion in the past few years. W. H. Faucett, of Calumet, who is one of the owners of the Matson island resort, visited Isle Royale and while there saw antlers, which were shed by a caribou. The tracks of the animals could be seen in the snow and people who have lived on Isle Royale for some time say there are two herds of moose and caribou on the island, one at the east end and one at the west end of the island.

A statistical report of marriages and divorces in Grafton county shows that for 10 years no marked changes in the ratio have occurred. In 1906 there were 329 marriages and 80 divorces, a percentage of 24. There has been the same percentage so far this year.

John Hill, the harvester from East Leroy, who came to Battle Creek two months ago, sold his horse, left the carriage in the street and bought a ticket to Chicago, has been located on a farm in Dakota, through correspondence with his wife, to whom his disappearance was as much of a mystery as to the police.

FAIR FARES.

Does the Pere Marquette Have a Sliding Scale?

An owner of one of the cottages in the Charlevoix district, who is not a member of any of the incorporated resort associations there, is in Lansing with evidences of discrimination in passenger rates on the Pere Marquette. If he cannot, through the legislature, get relief from the discriminatory rate against himself, he may appeal to the interstate commerce commission.

There are resort associations at Harbor Springs, Roaring Brook, Wagon-sing and two at Charlevoix, incorporated under the laws of the state. All of the resorts are reached by the Pere Marquette. People living in all parts of the state belong to one or another of the five associations. The Pere Marquette has in past years given a special rate to association members in the Detroit and Lansing districts of $7.25 for a round trip ticket. The railroad company, it is asserted, is already issuing books to association members at the same $7.25 rate, tickets to be good from June 1 on.

Cottage owners in the Charlevoix district who do not belong to any of the resort associations have been notified by the Pere Marquette that by strict instruction from the interstate commerce commission the company cannot sell them round trip tickets for less than $9.55.

Just how the company figures that it can discriminate this way against non-association members is what the latter would like to learn.

The Walkers.

The Overland Walking club, organized in Jackson, April 1, 1904, has planned some extensive trips for the summer. James M. Hutchinson, of Jackson, and Edward T. Buckley, of Bay City, will take their vacations together this year and will leave by train for Pittsburg from which place they will start overland on their tramp, taking in Philadelphia and the Jamestown exposition en route. For the year 1908 the tramp will be through the west, taking in the Dakotas, Yellowstone park, Colorado, and other western points.

In order to join the society it is necessary to walk 200 miles outside of business walks the first year, and each succeeding year 400 miles is the minimum. If this is not covered the member is ejected unless he agrees to walk 400 miles in four months.

RICH HAVE WIRY HAIR.

WALL STREET BARBER SAYS HE CAN TELL WEALTH BY BEARD.

Average Workingman Has Soft Whiskers According to Man Who Scrapes Millionaires—Latter Are Early Risers.

New York.—Joseph Bischoff, barber and hair cutter, in Wall street, who attends to the tonsorial wants of many of its most famous men, says that he can tell a multimillionaire by the hair on his face—that men of vast wealth have wiry and stiff whiskers and are hard to shave. The average workingman has a soft, fuzzy growth of hair on the face and can be scraped without special effort.

Thomas F. Ryan is Bischoff's most famous patron, and the barber goes to the financier's house every morning at 8:30 o'clock sharp. He also shaves members of the Stillman, Woodward, Rockefeller and Vanderbilt families, and says that in all his experience he has yet to meet the millionaire who wakes up in the morning with a grinch. Bischoff does most of his work at the homes of his rich patrons, and at his basement shop in Wall street during the day lesser lights of the financial district drop in for a shave, hair cut, or shampoo.

Bischoff can write a check for $200,000, and his signature will be honored in the great banking institutions with a celerity that will surprise his acquaintances.

The other day at the shop, while lathering the face of a ten dollar a week clerk, Bischoff gave his daily literary as follows:

"I get up every morning, including Sunday, at six o'clock. After shaving myself, dressing, and partaking of a mild breakfast, I hustle over to the residence of James T. Woodward, in East Fifty-sixth street, and reach there at 8:15. I find Mr. Woodward, who is the president of the Hanover National bank, fully dressed, waiting for his morning shave. He greets me kindly and is vigorous and bright eyed every morning.

"James Stillman, president of the National City bank, comes next, and I am booked to be in his dressing-room not later than 7:15. He lives in East Seventy-second street. I also take care of his son, James Stillman. While I am shaving the senior Mr. Stillman I often think of his cares, the enormous figures on his mind, and of his great responsibility. Then I look for lines on his face—lines of worry—and I am happy to say that I can't find them.

"Then comes Mr. Ryan. I reach his home on Fifth avenue at 8:30 o'clock, and let me say right now that I get there on the tick of the hour.

Generally I find him out of bed waiting for me. Sometimes he is in his pajamas. He slips on a dressing robe and says:

"All right, Joseph; do the job as quickly as possible."

"Everyone knows that Mr. Ryan is one of the greatest business men in the world, but I can say, after shaving him for almost 20 years, that he comes out of his sleep with a smile and a laugh, and is kindly, generous, and light hearted from the moment of his awakening.

"I rub the lather for five minutes, because Mr. Ryan has the strongest and stiffest hair of all the men I have ever shaved. The hairs are like as many wire nails. His eyes twinkle from the start of the shave to the finish, and I often wonder if he forms big corporations in his brain while I am shaving him.

"Just think, during the time I lather Mr. Ryan's face his investments will have made him $100. The scraping process takes up time enough for another hundred, and the bay rum and hair combing completing the shave increases Mr. Ryan's fortune about $300. He is liberal. I never have named a charity or a needy person to him that he has not asked how much it will take to mend the situation. If I say $2 or $100 it is all the same. Mr. Ryan has his hand in his pocket and gives me the sum I name.

"I next call on Mr. Ryan's sons in Liberty street. They are Allan, Clede and John—all chips of the old block. Then I go to Wall street and start the day's work in the shop. Among my callers are Vice President Vanderlip of the National City bank and Alexander Orr. I cut the hair of a lot of millionaire babies. William G. Rockefeller's boys are among them."

Dolly Bloom a Great Cow.

New York.—The world's record of milk production for a year by a single cow has been broken by the Guernsey Dolly Bloom, according to the report of Secretary William H. Caldwell, which was submitted at the annual meeting of the Guernsey Cattle club here. Dolly Bloom's record for the year was 17,297 pounds, or about 2,023 gallons. She is owned by F. A. Ames, of Boston.

Latest Portrait of Kaiser's Grandson.

FIRE AS A SOCIETY EVENT.

How a Female Reporter Described the Blaze for Her Paper.

Kansas City.—The regular reporter was taking a vacation, according to the Neodesha Sun, and the editor was busy in the office, so when it was learned that on the previous evening there had been a fire in a remote part of the city the young lady who writes the society news was sent to bring in a report of it for the paper. She came into the office an hour later with the following very interesting account:

"Quite a number of people, in this part of the city attended a fire last night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Blank, in Thirteenth street. Some went in carriages and buggies, but a majority walked. The alarm was sounded about 9:30 and many who attended the fire had just returned from church, consequently they were already dressed for the occasion. "Mr. Blank was not at home, being out of the city on business; hence the affair will be quite a surprise to him when he returns. Mrs. Blank wore a light percale kimono and had her hair done up in kid curlers.

"The firemen responded readily and worked heroically to subdue the seething flames. Most of them were young and fairly good looking. They were dressed in oilcloth coats cut short, with trousers to match. Their hats were narrow in front and broad behind and sagged down in the rear. The chief's hat was ornamented with an octagonal brass spike which stuck up above his head like a horn, giving him the appearance of a unicorn.

"When the flames broke out through the second story and cast a lurid hue over the surrounding buildings the view was one never to be forgotten. At a late hour the six-storyers went home and all felt that they had passed an evening full of interest and excitement."

From the State Capital

Information and Gossip Furnished by Special Correspondent at Lansing.

Lansing.—One of the matters to be taken up by the senate at once is the reapportioning of the senatorial districts. Wayne county must be given a fifth senator and some of the other counties joined together. St. Clair would like to continue alone, but it is probable that Sanilac will be added to it. Senator Bland has introduced a bill along these lines, while Senator Peck introduced one which re-enacts the present law. Senator Fuller will introduce one which differs a good deal from the Bland bill and the committee will have to effect some sort of a compromise.

Say Law Retards Railroads.

Prominent electric railway men say that construction of electric lines in Michigan is retarded by the Michigan securities act which provides that unless electric railway companies have paid at least four per cent dividends on capital stock for a period of five years their bonds may not be taken by state banks. A bill introduced by Senator Tuttle amending the present law so as to authorize the approval by the securities commission of the bonds of companies having certain net earnings has passed the senate, but is pigeon-holed by a house committee. A majority of the members of the securities commission, consisting of the state banking commissioner, attorney general and state treasurer, are said to be opposed to the amendment. The Tuttle bill is regarded as most important, but up to this time it seemed to have escaped public observation. Officers of the Michigan United railways assert that under the law at present the bonds of no electric railway company except possibly the Detroit United can be held by Michigan banks. This is declared to be a handicap to electric railway construction in the state as eastern capitalists hesitate to purchase bonds that have no market in the banks of the state where they are issued.

Mourn Death of Maj. Conger.

The news of the death of Maj. Edwin H. Conger, former United States minister to China, was received with much sorrow in this state, where he was well known. Maj. Conger leaves three brothers and two sisters. The brothers are Rev. E. L. Conger, of Pasadena; Frank D. Conger, of Benton Harbor, and John W. Conger, of Mexico; Mrs. A. C. Baldwin and Mrs. Edwards, wife of Maj. Edwards, U. S. A., were sisters. Maj. Conger often visited his brother at Benton Harbor and was known and loved by a large number of the people of the county. Ambrose H. Rowe, a former mayor of Benton Harbor, served in the One Hundred and Second Illinois regiment in company K, while Mr. Conger was captain of company I of the same regiment and the two men became well acquainted and their friendship has ever been quite intimate. Maj. Conger's last visit to the city was on September 8, 1905.

Pay Fares to High School.

The Tuttle bill to allow school districts which have no high school to vote eligible pupils transportation to the nearest high school aroused oratory and applause in the house. Representative Campbell urged that American success has not been won by easy education, but by the uphill path. Representative Grousel said it was the duty of the state to do all she could. Representative Newkirk urged that Representative Campbell's argument would prevent state aid to the Grand Rapids fair, which could thereby do better if it had to struggle uphill. Representative J. J. McCarthy, of Arenac, pleaded vigorously and with emotion—with interruptions of much applause—for the boys who have to struggle for an education. A few members voted with Campbell, but the bill had a triumphant passage.

Stop Ticket Speculation.

The house committee of the whole passed the Newkirk bill prohibiting speculation in tickets to public amusements. Athletic Director Baird, of the U. of M., promoted the bill. Under penalty of a fine of $25 to $100 any person is forbidden to sell tickets to a theater, circus or athletic ground in excess of the advertised or printed rate. Tickets to these amusements must have printed on them the number of the seat and the price. The bill, Judge Newkirk says, is aimed at speculators in baseball, football and field day tickets at Ann Arbor. It is a copy of the Illinois law.

May Get New Wing for Capitol.

At least a partial victory seems certain for Representative Stanley Montgomery on the bill providing for a new west wing on the state capitol.

Vital Statistics of State.

Michigan's population increased 4,262 and decreased 3,212 by death in April, according to figures given out from the office of the secretary of state. Pneumonia led as a cause of death, there being 208 from that disease. Pulmonary tuberculosis caused 232 deaths, other forms of tuberculosis 28. There was one death from smallpox and one by lightning. Infant mortality was: Under one year, 521, from one to four years 700. The number of deaths of persons over 65 years old was 1,024.

Primary Bill in Senate.

The senate committee on elections reported the Dickinson primary bill and it was speedily taken up, with Senator O. B. Fuller in the chair. The first vote on the bill was a vote in committee, when the bill was reported. Senators Fyfe, Bland, Ely and Seeley voted to report. Senator Kane opposed it. The bill as reported eliminates the newspaper advertising clause and the clause restricting state employes from acting in campaigns. The opposition won in the first clash in the senate by refusing to concur in the committee's two amendments. Russell, of Kent, voted with the opposition, making the vote 17 to 15. The executive committee of the Michigan State Grange met and decided to recommend to the people and the legislature the Dickinson bill as passed by the house, without the 40 per cent restriction.

State to Make Analyses.

Secretary Shumway, of the state board of health, is already making preparations for establishing a state bacteriological laboratory, fully expecting that the bill passed by both houses of the legislature will be signed by the governor and give him authority to make the outlay. It is proposed to furnish free analyses to public officials of the state, and that the laboratory department will be of great benefit to the health department in ascertaining sources of contagion. Five thousand dollars is to be appropriated for the first year and $2,500 for each subsequent year for the maintenance of the laboratory.

No Ban on Cigarettes.

By a vote of 42 to 31 the house killed off the anti-cigarette bill. Its passage was urged by Representative Dickinson in the committee of the whole and opposed by Representative L'Esperance, and a motion to strike out all after the enacting clause carried 45 to 31. Later the house concurred. There is already a law on the statute books prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to minors under 17 years of age, but there are some who believe that more stringent measures should be formulated and their views are taken advantage of every session to put the manufacturers on the tenterhooks.

Glandered Horse Is Killed.

The state live stock sanitary commission reports that it has caused the destruction of a horse belonging to J. B. Page, 605 scribner street, Grand Rapids, the animal being afflicted with glanders, a disease extremely dangerous to man and beast. Very few cases of glanders are reported in Michigan. When the disease is discovered steps are promptly taken by the state live stock commission to wipe it out. The animal is condemned and no matter how valuable, its owner is awarded one dollar in order to comply with the law providing that property shall not be taken without compensation.

Debate on Fishing Bill.

The house held a session composed largely of flying waste baskets over Representative Campbell's bill to prevent commercial fishing in the inland lakes of the state. Representative Waters, of Washenaw, started the whole house to debating the bill, in all manners from the peculiar to the tragic. Representative Campbell finally moved to exempt the county of Kent. This was lost and the bill went to third reading for vote on final passage.

New Medical Board Bill Ready.

The new medical board bill, which has been reported by the house committee on public health for printing, may be reached by the house committee of the whole this week. As reported, it does not extend the powers of the state board of registration in medicine. It contains clauses more punitive for immoral advertisements. The bill in its new form will still be opposed by the homeopaths.

New Insurance Bills.

The house passed two insurance bills introduced by Representative Standart, of Detroit. One of them requires the deposit of the record of securities with the secretary of state to be made within a year from the application. The second forbids a new company to incorporate under a name similar to that of a company already incorporated.

Conferees Appointed.

Lieut. Gov. Kelly appointed Senators Wetmore, Allen and Bland as senate conferees on the constitutional convention bill, but Speaker Whelan has not appointed the house conferees.

Held Up Standart Bill.

The house passed the Simpson juvenile court bill, the general measure supported by the county agents of the state board of corrections and charities. The Standart bill for Detroit, which is opposed by County Agent Sam Lawrence, of Northville, has been held up since Representative Gass Benton, of Northville, objected to an amendment exempting Detroit from the provisions of the county agents' bill. The Standart bill will be taken up again this week.

HIS MODESTY FORBADE.

A certain well-known humorist recently attended a banquet at which he was seated beside a man who seemed to have almost a mania for story-telling. He began with the oysters and had at least one story for each course clear down to the Roquefort. The humorist listened in patience, but did not smile or make any comment. Finally the story-teller noticed the fact that he was not eliciting any expressions of mirth, and, being one who was not at all afflicted with diffidence, he asked:

"Say, old man, what's the matter with my stories, anyhow? You haven't cracked a smile over any of them."

"If I haven't seemed to appreciate your stories you will have to blame my modesty."

"Your modesty? There's nothing about any of the stories I've told that ought to interfere with anybody's modesty. At least I supposed they were clean. If there's a double meaning in any of them, for heaven's sake tell me. I told nearly every one of them to a lot of women the other night."

"There's nothing at all the matter with them. They're good, clean stories. Nevertheless, my modesty forbids me to laugh at them. I wrote them."—Chicago Record-Herald.

"Remember, children," said the stranger who was addressing the Sunday school, "that manual labor is as useful and even as dignified as any other kind. "The police inspectors!" shouted the boys with one voice.—Chicago Tribune.

VALUE OF A RIGHT LEG.

Held by Surgeon Decrease Boy's Value Only 15 Per Cent.

Jersey City, N. J.—At just how much do you value a right leg, on which you have a foot, and mayhap toes with corns that smart and burn and tickle when damp weather comes?

When you are a half block from a speeding, tantalizing trolley car and making excellent time in its direction you think that the leg is invaluable, but the crudity of your estimate is impressed with severity on you when you realize that to be without that leg is only to detract 15 per cent. from your ability to get along in the world, according to a statement made by an expert on such matters, Dr. William J. Arlitz, a surgeon in St. Francis hospital. The physician testified to this in a suit for damages tried in the circuit court brought for a six-year-old boy.

The surgeon claimed that boys of tender years, when presented with a cork or wooden leg in exchange for one of the foot-bearing kind, with the accompanying corns and bunions, were able to become so proficient in its use that its presence was unknown to the ordinary observer, and that it could be detected only by careful examination.

"Why, boys can play baseball, ride a bicycle, run up and down stairs, and I have even seen one lad walk a slack wire after he had become accustomed to the use of the leg," said the surgeon.

SCIENTISTS VICTIMS OF A HOAX.

Discovery of Antiquities on Island Is Found to Be a Fake.

Paris.—That the practice of "salting" claims is becoming quite Europeanized is fully shown by a hoaxing of the grave Academie des Inscriptions et Belles-Lettres. Last August Dr. Capitan read a learned paper on the discovery of Egyptian antiquities on a small island off Marseilles. Discussion promptly followed, in which new theories of the history of civilization were constructed on the discovery which seemed on the way to becoming epoch-making until the other day, when Dr. Capitan read a second paper, apologetic and explanatory. An old man living in the island on whose property the antiquities were found fell very ill and confessed he had bought the objects from a Marseilles curio dealer and had strewed them on his property in hope it would be purchased for excavations.

New Primary Bill Dead.

A Free Press Lansing correspondent writes that the primary bill is dead so far as the present legislature is concerned. It has been once defeated and aside from the question of whether the lieutenant-governor had any right to vote on the motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill failed to pass there are sixteen votes against the measure in its present form. This is the most potent reason why the administration will fail in any effort made to revive the measure, even in the desire to submit the matter to a vote of the electors. This is only shifting the burden and nothing can be done to prevent the legislature from accepting the responsibility of dealing with the bill as it sees fit.

Opponents of the bill are irrevocably opposed to removing the 40 per cent provision. They are equally insistent that the amendment made by the house which would prevent state officials and employes from being used as a flying squadron in circulating petitions in favor of certain candidates and to the detriment of others be retained.

There seems to be absolutely no middle ground on which a compromise can be predicted. The governor and his friends want one kind of a bill while the boxers and their friends want another. Under these circumstances the present law will have to stand the test of the sharpest kind of a campaign so that its merits and defects will be brought clearly to the surface.

For the edification of those who are wondering what has become of the mortgage tax repeal bill, it may be stated that the measure is still in the hands of the senate taxation committee, where opinion is divided as to its merit. Probably the result will be that the bill will be reported out without recommendation and then passed by a close vote. It will then be up to the governor and if he stands by the position he has taken he will veto the measure, which will put an end to it.

Increases Property Value.

The Mail publishes the following from the Ann Arbor News, which may be of interest to some of its readers, inasmuch as it has a bearing on the "late" question of Main street improvement:

The News has said considerable of late anent the matter of putting money in the bank and still urges it and yet the step from thrift the penuriousness is oftentimes so short that it is worth while for an individual of a community sometimes to pause and ask—"Which?" But dribbling away money for which one gets no lasting return is one thing and placing it in some good investment which means a continuous source of enjoyment and profit is quite another. For instance down at our neighboring town of Dundee, half way between here and Toledo, the citizens are showing a commendable spirit as to the way they value money. They are planning the laying of about half a mile of brick paving through the business part of their town and eastward along Main street at a cost of about $30,000.00. The abutting property owners are enthusiastic and all that remains is for the voters to authorize bonds to the extent of $3,600.00, which appears likely to be done. These people have the right idea. They are telling of their money and getting something for it the benefit from which vastly outruns the possible four cents they might get from the bank. They are laying the money out wisely, they will get a "quid pro quo" as the lawyers would say and it will be constant source of benefit to all concerned. It bespeaks a mighty good word for the spirit of the citizens in that town.

And after all we come back to the matter of thrift. Those people have been putting something away until they have something that will bring about an accomplishment worth while.

"I suppose you have studied all the authorities on social and economic questions?"
"Not quite all," answered the professor. "My daughter's graduation essay is not out yet."—Washington Star.

Northville is Beaten.

Up to the sixth inning last Friday at Athletic Park the ball game between Northville and Plymouth was a very pretty contest. In the sixth Plymouth batters found German for six hits, which with bases on balls gave Plymouth six runs and cinched the game. In the seventh Plymouth "went into the air" after two men were out and Northville made three scores which was increased by two more in the ninth. Had the home boys "played ball," they would have shut out the visitors. The score:

Plymouth Wins Another Game.

Some four hundred people witnessed the ball game yesterday at Athletic Park between the Selling & May and Plymouth teams. The visitors were quite a bunch of ball players and there was no kick on the article of ball put up by either side. Errors were made that counted in the run-getting, but Plymouth was lucky on that score, only once being in danger. Pitcher Armstrong was in rare form and had good support in the field. Our boys show that they can play ball this year and with a trifle more coaching and practice by one or two of the newer members, Plymouth will have a great ball team. The score:

As Will Calver, chauffeur for W. O. Allen, was coming with his machine around Leadbeater's corner onto Main street Tuesday, a part of the steering apparatus broke and the machine ran into a tree. No serious damage was done, as the chauffeur was running at slow speed. Lucky the break occurred at such a time, rather than at a time when going at high speed or down hill.

An Illegal Tax Levy.
The council held a meeting Monday evening to confirm the tax roll and although the law says the tax levy shall be made on the first regular meeting in June, the council took time by the forelock and gave Assessor Ladd the amount to be levied at this meeting. Waiving this provision of the law, the vote by which the levy was declared carried was also illegal and will undoubtedly invalidate the tax roll unless it is remedied. There were five councilmen present and the vote to levy four mills for street purposes was declared carried by a vote of three to two. The law says very plainly it must be a two-thirds vote of all members of the council-elect. This would require four ayes. For the general fund there was also levied four mills, for the electric light fund, two mills and for the sinking fund one-half mill, making 10½ mills in all.

Sure To Please You.
The Younger Brothers is a play which is written with a view to please all classes. Those who prefer quiet, pathetic incidents will be pleased at the beautiful language and sentiment and those who prefer to laugh certainly they in a large majority will find a rich vein of humor in this new melodrama. Everyone will have only words of praise after attending the performances. The only way to judge a play is by its ability to draw large audiences and to please those who attend. This play possesses those qualifications and proves by the large audiences who have attended it this season. It is not the relic of an old favorite traveling on its old reputation but a new production making its reputation.

It's New Detroit United.
A dispatch from Jackson would seem to indicate that the old D. P. & N. has almost fallen into the hands of the D. U. R. If the report is true the "dingley road" may give Plymouth some kind of a service in the near future. But here's the dispatch:
Jackson, Mich., May 25.—President Henry B. Case and Treasurer N. S. Potter, of the Jackson, Ann Arbor & Detroit Electric Railway Co., today entered into a contract with the Detroit United Railway, by the terms of which the latter agrees to purchase the former company's holdings.
The deal covers the franchises, tracks, roadbed and everything connected with the company's works. The line is the old Roland route started several years ago. It has the line between Plymouth and Northville, and the run from Grass Lake east beyond Chelsea.

The Mystery OF Carney-Croft

By JOSEPH BROWN COOKE

(Copyright, 1937, by Story-Prem Corporation.)

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

"Hope I didn't hurt you," Jenks said MacArdel, apologetically, when he had him securely pinioned. "I just want to have a little quiet talk with you, but I'm not quite ready yet."

We let the fellow up and seated him in a chair passing the hitching strap from the wagon about his waist for greater security.

"By the way, Jenks," said MacArdel, as we were performing this last thoughtful act. "Nobody can hear you if you shout, but don't do it anyway, or I'll have to gag you. Mr. Ware and I have some matters to discuss and we don't want to be disturbed."

We sat and talked about everything under the sun except Carney-Croft and its affairs, while I marveled at MacArdel's actions, but was unable to question him as to his plans or objects in the presence of the conquered Jenks.

MacArdel consulted his watch with gradually increasing frequency, and finally, when the hands pointed to ten minutes before 12, he said abruptly:

"Ware, you take this fellow down to the path where the ghosts come out and I'll go and get the widow. I've got her locked up in the house."

The behavior of Jenks was remarkable to witness, as MacArdel uttered these words for, although his capture and that of his accomplice effectually prevented the reappearance of the ghost, at least on this occasion, he could not have shown more evidences of genuine terror if he had expected to encounter an army of specters. After some difficulty I succeeded in getting him to rise, and, with his arms snugly bound behind his back, he shuffled with trembling legs down under the trees where we were joined in another moment by MacArdel and Mrs. Bruce.

The two guilty ones did not look at each other, but stood in sullen defiance waiting for what might come next. MacArdel placed them side by side, and, as we faced them, he began:

"You two have been circulating ghost stories about this place all over the country. You've even been here yourselves at midnight, wrapped up in sheets and trying to scare people out of their wits and injure this property. You were here last night and when we shot at you we hit you, Jenks, and wounded your hand. You dropped the sheets and a lot of other things and then you came back and got them all after we had gone to bed. You can't deny it, Jenks, for we found them in your wagon this morning, while you were asleep. Now, there's more than this," continued MacArdel. "There has been some queer doings inside the house, too, and you've got some way of getting in and playing your tricks."

He stopped speaking and eyed them closely for a moment before going on. Then he resumed, slowly and impressively:

"But there's something even worse than all this to be explained, and we are going to find out about the whole matter if we have to keep you here all night. Several of the pieces of cloth in that bundle have been used for something else than making ghost clothes. You know what they've been used for—"

"Oh, my God, help me!" screamed Jenks, and before I could reach him, he reeled and fell forward on his face. As I turned to his aid I saw the same pair of slimy figures glide slowly past us but with increasing speed as they neared the river, where, on the previous night, they suddenly vanished before our eyes.

The widow made no sound, but stood perfectly motionless with face like marble and eyes almost bursting from her head.

MacArdel stamped his foot impatiently and muttered:

"There's more in this than I thought. Help me get this fellow up, Ware, and we'll take 'em both back to the house."

CHAPTER XII.

A Second Note.

Half leading and half carrying the unfortunate Jenks and followed by Mrs. Bruce who walked as one in a dream, we returned to the house. Once on the veranda, MacArdel, unbound the fellow's arms and, noticing bloodstains on his face and shirt front, examined him closely to see if he had sustained any severe injury in his helpless fall. Nothing more serious than a badly cut lip was discovered, and we took the pair into the library, where a light was burning dimly. Turning up the lamp so that he could see distinctly, MacArdel sent me for a basin of water and a towel and stepped up the wound with material from his pocket instrument case.

Jenks submitted to this procedure in a stupor, and as soon as the little operation was completed and an improvised dressing applied, he again fell forward in a swoon.

"Get him a drink, Ware," said MacArdel. "There's whiskey in my bag, you know."

Jenks coughed and spluttered over the stuff in a manner nowise complimentary to the quality of liquor affected by MacArdel, and then, bursting into a cold perspiration, he began to tremble violently and beg piteously to be allowed to go home; while Mrs. Bruce, with pale, ghastly face, preserved the silence that she had maintained from the first.

"You may both go on one condition," said MacArdel, sternly, "and on one condition only! You must swear that you will never reveal a word of this night's doings without the consent of Mr. Ware or myself."

"Swear nuthin'," muttered Jenks, feebly. "I'll have the law on ye fur this, ye varmint!"

Like a flash MacArdel grasped his arm in a vice-like grip and said coldly:

"You remember how I handled you before, Jenks? Well, you know I'm your master when it comes to a fight, and unless you do as I tell you and do it at once, back you go to the path where the ghosts are!"

"I hain't afeared of 'em ef you hain't," mumbled Jenks, with a half-hearted attempt at bravado. "I reckon they won't hurt nobody none."

His very manner showed that he was quaking in his shoes, and MacArdel was quick to note it and make the most of it.

"You won't have me with you, Jenks," he continued, impressively. "We'll tie you to a tree and leave you there alone, unless you do as I say. Do you understand?"

That Jenks understood there could be no doubt, for his terror was obvious as he hastened to exclaim:

"I'll swear, mister! I'll swear teh never dreamed of at first, and if you hadn't been so busy with Jenks when he toppled over you'd have seen what I mean."

"Well," I returned, "they were both frightened nearly out of their wits by the spooks, and I don't believe they know any more about 'em than we do!"

"Nonsense!" cried MacArdel. "You did not watch them as closely as I did, that's all. I confess they were frightened, but each in a different way. Now, Jenks was scared almost to death, and you may take my word for it that his terror was genuine, and that he believed the things to be supernatural. But it wasn't so with the widow. She knew all about them, you may be sure, and when they came so close to us she was only afraid that we would capture them or shoot them or do something of that sort. Of course this Jenks knows about the bundle of cloths because he had them last night when you shot him, in the hand, but I don't believe he has any idea of what they had been used for. I tell you, Ware, the widow is at the head of this whole job and Jenks is nothing but her tool."

"Well," I replied, "it may be as you say, but I wish we were out of it. You may be right in your deductions, but they've got a perfect case against us if they choose to take it into court, and with the popular prejudice that exists around here against the Carneys, a jury of these farmers would give us the limit of the law. It isn't a matter of fine, either, Mac. It's a felony that we've been committing tonight, and that means a term in prison. I want you to understand!"

Closing up the house we retired to our room and, as we were making ready for the night, I said:

"Why didn't you make them sign some kind of a paper that would have exonerated us? It would have been anything, if we'll only let us get outen this place an' go home!"

There was a small Bible on the library table and MacArdel caused Jenks and the widow to place a hand upon it as they successively took upon themselves a solemn obligation to preserve absolute secrecy concerning the affair of the evening. This done, MacArdel addressed them briefly but impressively:

"Do not think for a moment," he said, "that I have changed my opinion as to your knowledge of the things that are going on here. I'll admit that there is more to it than I thought at first and that more people are mixed up in it than I had supposed. But that only makes it the easier for us, because, in affairs of this kind, there is danger in numbers, and, while I am convinced that you two are the ring-leaders in the whole business, the more confederates you have the sooner will we be able to make one of them confess."

"You may go now, but mind you remember the oath you have taken, tonight or it will go hard with you both. As long as you keep this thing to yourselves you won't get into trouble, but the moment you start any fuss about it you will hear from us in a way that will make your hair stand on end! And whatever you do, don't forget that I'm a doctor, and that I know, just as well as you do, what those old rags have been used for!"

With this significant remark, MacArdel opened the door of the room and we followed them out of the house and watched them as they clambered into the wagon and drove rapidly away.

"When they were out of earshot I said abruptly:

"This is a pretty mess that you've made of things, Mac! Do you realize that these people can have us up for assault and desert, and I don't know how many other crimes into the bargain, and yet we're no wiser than we were before!"

"Oh, yes we are!" said MacArdel. "We know a lot of things that we just as easy as swearing them to it and it would be hard for them to overthrow it in court. I might have thought of it myself, I suppose, but as I have been following you blindly all the evening without any definite idea of what you've been driving at, my brain wasn't working as quickly as it should have been. I tell you, Mac, I wish we had some sort of documentary evidence to show that we wouldn't be clapped into jail within the next day or so."

"Little good it would do to you," said MacArdel. "If you treated it as carelessly as those things you have in your pocket, you'll lose 'em out in another minute!"

I extracted from the side pocket of my coat, as it hung upon a chair, a folded paper which was on the point of falling to the floor, and as I did not remember having seen it before, I opened it and read with interest and amazement. On it was written in a bold flowing hand:

"If you persuade Miss Carney to remain away from Carney-Croft and leave the house closed as in the past, the ghosts will make no further appearance, and neither Jenks nor Mrs. Bruce will disclose the affairs of tonight. Otherwise BEWARE!"

I handed it without comment to MacArdel who read it attentively and then exclaimed in triumph:

"What did I tell you, Ware? It's just as I said. The widow knew what to expect when I locked her in the house and she wrote this note so as to have it ready in case she needed it. Then she watched her opportunity and slipped it into your pocket as she stood by your side. I told you I was on the right track, old man."

"Maybe you are, and maybe you're not," I grumbled, as I curled up in bed and reached to see if my pistol was handy before I closed my eyes.

THE WOMAN IN THE CAR

By J. H. LEONHARDT

(Copyright by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Bracebridge stood on the steps of the Casino. He had just tempted Fortune, and for once the jade had proved a brute, and he was left with a broken purse. To describe his remorse would be impossible; he wondered dully what his mother would think when he would seek her out that night in their unpretentious hotel that overlooked the bay of Monaca and tell her that the trip would have to be postponed; that they must hasten home without delay. He knew very well that she would do—how she would take his head on her shoulder and lay her soft, faded cheek against his ruddy one and say, "Never mind, boy." He cursed himself for a fool, and then chuckled grimly as he thought of the surplusage of money he would have when he had pawned various articles of apparel, the proceeds of which would go to buy tickets for home.

"Just enough for a box of cigarettes," he muttered as he stumbled down the steps to the street.

"Sir, can you not understand even English," spoke a delicious musical voice. Bracebridge scrambled slowly back to earth from the realms of despair into which he had descended. A big red limousine car stood by the curb, and from its window protruded a vision of pink and gold and fluffiness that caused Bracebridge to uncover with a haste that was more worshipful than grateful.

"Eh! What do you want?" he asked, rudely, for his dulled brain was not as quick as it was wont to be, nor his tongue as smooth; but the next instant he blushed in confusion at his own gruffness. "I beg your pardon, madam; can I be of service to you?"

"Ah, you can," she sighed, relieved. "Come into the car," and she threw open the door, making room for him beside her.

"But," said Bracebridge, hesitating.

"Come, if you are going," she spoke impatiently, at the same time rising and grasping his wrist and trying to tug him inside. Bracebridge, though it may sound paradoxical, could not resist that ineffective tug on his arm; he stepped from the curb and dropped on the seat beside her.

"Away, Adolphe!" she cried, sharply. The chauffeur started the machine with a rush.

Bracebridge had a sensation of a swift journey through the night, but it was a dim one, for he was busy drinking in the woman's beauty as she sat beside him, her neck encircled by a pearl collar, an expensive opera cloak thrown over her nude shoulders. Surely he had never seen the equal of this woman for beauty; she seemed almost set aside from him, a goddess; he could not converse with her. Once he tried to speak, but could get no further than "Madam—" whereat he became confused, and stammered himself into silence again. The girl laughed mischievously at his sorry attempt, then looked at him sideways, out of the corner of her violet-colored eyes, and said lowly: "I am human; you act afraid, as though you might be in the presence of a deity. I would not harm a living creature, and surely not you, you see." She ranged her tiny gloved hand in the white kid beside Bracebridge's larger toes.

And then the eternal masculine asplundeness of soul arose in Bracebridge. He could not tell from whence came his sudden courage, but with a bounce he captured her fingers and drew his muscular arm around her; she struggled hard to release herself, but saw it was useless. She stopped, panting.

"You are musing my frock; I will call Adolphe, you insolent man," she said, between gasps.

Bracebridge let go her hands and grasped her bare arms, facing her towards him. His eyes were burning; he felt a weakening sensation as he touched her white flesh, a feeling of longing—longing and desire that he could not control. To know that this beautiful creature was in his mercy exhilarated him; he leaned slowly toward her, nearer and nearer; he could feel her shortened breath on his cheek. He gazed into her eyes, and she blinked, then shut them tightly, murmuring weakly, "Your shining eyes—they blind me." He bent still closer to her, and pressed his lips to hers in one shuddering ecstasy of joy and love. He could have sworn that those two rosebuds returned the pressure of his lips. She gave a surrendering sigh and laid her head upon his shoulder, her arms slipping around his neck. He crushed her to his breast victoriously.

Their one little second passed quickly. The car ran to the curb and stopped with a jerk, and they slipped apart. When the door was opened Bracebridge was saying: "I am clumsy, madam, in arranging your cloak, and I greatly fear your ruffles will be spoiled." He stepped out and looked around; they were back in front of the Casino again.

"I thank you greatly that you will aid me at all, sir," she said, smiling. "I abducted you on a wager, sir; I could carry off the first gentleman saw at the Casino."

"And may I see you to-morrow," he asked, his soul in suspense.

"The heart cannot be controlled," she whispered, softly. "Drive on, Adolphe." The machine whirled away.

"And now to purchase those cigarettes," said Bracebridge. Something crackled in his coat pocket; he felt, and it was a newspaper.

"How did I get that," he asked himself, opening it absently. The flaming headlines caught his eye:

WOMAN IN RED AUTO

ROBS ENGLISH LORD.

Most Daring Scheme in Years—Lord Algernon the Victim.

He put his hand in his change pocket, where reposed his last five-franc note, "a remnant of the last battle."

"The devil; that girl has touched me!" he cried. "I was a fool not to think before what her game was. . . . But thank the gods that I am only a common person; they'll never know what a fool I've been, as they know about the Englishman. I don't believe I will smoke cigarettes to-night," he added, as an afterthought. He pulled out his old briar pipe, lighting it in silence; then he slowly took his way toward the hotel.

"This sad to lose your money and your ideal on one summer's eve," he quoth, very crestfallen.

INDOOR PARTY GAME.

Musical Terms Can Be Made to Give a Pleasant Half-Hour.

In playing this pretty game each guest is given a dainty card, to which is fastened a small pencil by a cord or a ribbon. They are then told that the "music room" is full of articles of interest and that they are to discover them and write down their names.

They may hunt singly or in couples, working their lists out separately or together, as the hostess desires, and the best answer receives a prize, a box of candy in the form of a musical instrument being appropriate.

Such attention is called to the articles about the room, which are numbered, and opposite to corresponding numbers on their cards they must write the names.

Each object numbered must have some musical significance, and one need not be musical to guess them, as certain terms are so common that every one knows them.

Here is a list of articles that might be used in the game, with the significant answer to each:

1. Quire of paper (Choir).
2. Three dolls dressed alike (Triplets).
3. Carpenter's brace (Brace).
4. Watch (Time).
5. Razor (Shave).
6. Chin-rest of a viola (Rest).
7. Card bearing the letters XL (Forte).
8. Some one's name (Signature).
9. Pair of scales (Scales).
10. Base of a table bell (Bass).
11. Peck measures containing two heets (Two beats in a measure).
12. Heavy string (Chord).
13. Flatiron with the letter B on its face (B flat).
14. Cardboard letter C hung on chandelier (High C).
15. Lump of tar (Pitch).
16. Pipe stem (Stem).
17. Half-tone picture (Half tone).
18. Bank note (Note).

MADAME MERRIL

The Pace That Kills.

Attaches of the British legation in Washington are beginning to wonder how long Ambassador Bryce will be able to keep up his present pace in the matter of public dinners and addresses. Since his arrival in this country about two months ago he has been involved in an endless chain of such affairs. The demands upon his stomach and vocabulary have been incessant and, while his accomplishments are many, his versatility great and his capacity for productive achievement large, his friends remember that he is nearly 70 years old and that perhaps it is time the venerable diplomat should be relieved from such a test of his endurance.

Sagacity of Ancients.

Many quotations came from the works of Thales, the Greek philosopher and one of the seven wise men. It was he who said, "Know thyself." "Few words are a sign of prudent judgment;" "Search after wisdom, and choose what is most worthy;" "There is nothing more beautiful than the world;" "Time is the wisest thing, for it invents and discovers all things." He also said that it was the hardest thing in the world to know oneself, and the easiest to admonish another. In his youth Thales was urged to marry; but he said, "It is too soon;" and later in life, upon being urged again, he said, "It is too late."

An Insinuation Feared.

Clergyman—Madam, you must be consoled with the thought that your husband is at rest.

Widow—Do you mean that he died? I have any before he died?

Cure the Kidneys and the Pain Will Never Return.

Only one way to cure an aching back. Cure the cause, the kidneys. Thousands tell of cures made by Doan's Kidney Pills. John C. Coleman, a prominent merchant of Swainsboro, Ga., says: "For several years my kidneys were affected, and my back ached day and night. I was languid, nervous and lame in the morning. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me right away, and the great relief that followed has been permanent." Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box.

SAHARA GROWING DRYER.

French Observer Says the Oases Are Shrinking and Will Disappear.

C. F. Gantier, a French explorer, is authority for the statement that the Sahara is continuously becoming drier to such an extent that the oases are perceptibly drying up and will disappear altogether in a relatively short time. He quotes historic records and physical signs to show that springs were at one time more plentiful than now, and that the extent of the patches where vegetation flourishes were much greater even 50 to 100 years ago.

As the climate of the region has undergone no change in perhaps thousands of years, he believes that the disappearance of the water must be due to purely mechanical causes. He considers that it is due to the continual advance of the great sand masses to the north, thus forming an impenetrable barrier against the watershed of the Atlas mountains.—N. Y. Sun.

Seven Billion Gallons of Milk.

The 7,500,000,000 gallons of commercial milk annually consumed represents an enormous white river pouring across the U. S. in every direction and yet few people realize that it is fast becoming a veritable river Styx, for it is so disease laden that millions of people are day-by-day drinking disease in various forms from this greatest of disease-spreading agents. Chiefest among these diseases is Consumption. Health office reports show that 25% of the Dairy Cows have Bovine Tuberculosis and through the milk and meat are dealing out Consumption to the people at an alarming rate. An effective remedy is recently claimed in the simple feeding Rasawa in small doses to the cattle. The remedy is cheap and a few cents worth procured at any Drug Store will render a cow entirely immune is the claim made in a free booklet issued by The Mutual Mercantile Co., Cleveland, O. ## LOCATION OF EDEN

MANY REGIONS ASSOCIATED WITH LOST PARADISE.

Finding of Spot Has Always Been One of the Fascinating Pursuits of Ages, But Quest Seems Hopeless.

Every once in awhile an ingenious theorist arises with the announcement that the Garden of Eden has at last been located. The world is concerned more for the restitution to the race of a large measure of the innocence and happiness that is associated with the lost paradise than it is with the location of the place which is woven into the majestic lines of Milton in his pictures of the creation and the tragedy of the garden. Nevertheless, the strength of human interest in the facts of human origin makes the location of the Garden of Eden one of the fascinating pursuits of the ages. As there is no known spot upon the face of the earth that corresponds with the features attributed to the location of Eden, and as, even admitting the validity of the Bishop Ussher chronology, there has elapsed sufficient time for the utter transformation of the physical aspects of Eden as described in Genesis, the hunt for the actual Eden seems hopeless.

The cradle of the race undoubtedly lies somewhere in the east, and, accepting the Indo-European theory of race identity of the Caucasian races, it would seem as though the approximate birthplace of this branch of the human family could be placed. But ethnologists are themselves astounded as they endeavor to track the path of humanity and to trace the breakup of the race into its many branches, through the evidence of language and other enduring records. They are nonplused and cannot arrive at a common agreement, excepting that, after research has reached to the farthest limit, the borderland of civilization appears to be brought little nearer.

Nevertheless, there is no tradition among the nations so entrancing as that of Eden. Hardly a nation of the ancient east but that retains the story among its folklore. But the tradition has traveled westward and has spread over the whole world. Even the Sandwich Islanders, the people of the Pamirs, and it is even said the Eskimos, have traditions of Eden not dissimilar from the story of Genesis. The records of the Aztecs disclose the story of the serpent delineated unmistakably in the picture language of that ancient people. But while the valley of Mexico has the credit of being one of the spots identified with the location of Eden, on the other hand the north pole is a candidate for the honor, it being claimed that Eden was wiped out by the advance of the ice sheet during the glacial ages. South and Central America, Mexico, the Sahara desert, the jungles of the dark continent—almost every tropical country—has its defenders in this respect.

The point of these claims usually rests upon evidence of the existence of a race earlier than any of which history has knowledge. But as these ancient stocks are scattered throughout the globe, this appears to prove nothing. But tradition, world-wide, enshrines the Garden of Eden among the beliefs of widely dissimilar peoples, and this fact itself indicates the early identity of the races of mankind. The Mexican tradition, relating as it does to this continent, has especial interest. This assumes there was a race of human beings on this continent many thousands of years ago, and this is to some extent confirmed by discoveries along the Pacific coast of South America. Traces of a race and a civilization have been discovered there, which go far back of recorded time. It also seems that in some way or other there was land connection between America and the east. This appears to be given some plausibility by explorations of the oceans. There are reasons for believing that a continent which once stood between this country and the east sank into the sea and the fabled Atlantis was a part of it.

Medicines Worth Much Money.

"Speaking of spring tonics," said an auctioneer, "I have often auctioned off a single pill for as much as $25,000. "I once sold an antibilious pill for $7,500. For a consumption, cancer and hair-growing pill I got $8,500 in 1901. It was a headache pill that I sold for the record price of $50,000, a large blue pill of sweetish taste. "Of course I mean that I sold, along with these pills, the recipe for their making—sold, in other words, the business. And what a business is sometimes represented by a tiny pink or white or brown pill—a business of 40 or 50 years old and yielding an annual profit of $10,000 or $20,000."

Acme of Art.

Donald, who was a fisher, started to dress his own flyhooks. He was met by a croonie one day, who said: "I hear ye're beginn to dress yer ah hooks too, Donald. Is that true?" "It's a' that," answered Donald. "An' can yer put them up anything natural-like?" inquired the croonie. "I diana ken for that," replied Donald, "but there wis a spider ran awa' wi' two o' them yesterday."

Fair Division of Property.

"Well, they are divorced." "Amicably?" "Oh, yes. He got the dog and she got the rubber plant."

Before Breakfast.

Shall we walk before breakfast? Assuredly? Why this eternal yearning for breakfast? Forget it. Dr. Latson says: "We get to-day's strength (not stimulation) from yesterday's food, not from to-day's I have walked many hundred miles without breakfast. In fact, all the walking I have done in the last four years has been without breakfast—for I never take any." George Sand used to walk in the daytime and write at night. Dickens used to say that a ten-mile stunt afoot was the best preparation for his daily literary work. Daniel Webster and George Washington were great walkers.

Phonograph Proved Case.

In Brussels lives a lawyer who recently made good use of a phonograph in a lawsuit. He had been continually annoyed by the noises of hammering at an iron foundry in his near neighborhood. Finding that complaints were unavailing, he brought the matter into court. But before doing so he placed a phonograph in his library for one whole day. When the case came before the court he produced the phonograph and set going the specially prepared cylinder. An uproar and din as from the forge of Vulcan was the result, and the ingenious lawyer won his case.

Pays for Stolen Apples.

Horace Richardson, for many years a leading grocer, but now retired, is in receipt of a letter mailed in this city from an unknown writer, reading: "Mr. Richardson, when I was a girl, a few years ago, I was in your store, with other girls. I took some apples unknown to you, which we ate. I didn't know it was wrong, but I have learned since I grew older, and I inclose 25 cents in stamps, which will fully repay you for all loss by my act."

No name is signed to the letter, but the writer adds: "You do not know who I am, but if we both go to heaven then you will know."—Indianapolis News.

Poor Horse!

"You look grouchy this morning," said the first horse. "What's the matter, are you sick?" "No," replied the other; "sick and tired. I feel like an automobile."

"I heard the ostler telling the boss yesterday I was 'out of order.'"—Philadelphia Press.

Not Altogether Without Hope.

"But," said the lawyer, "your case seems hopeless. I don't see what I can do for you." "You admit that you beat your wife."

"Yes," replied the defendant, "but my wife's testimony will discount that. She never admits she was beaten."

Pathmasters Are Out.

Gov. Warner has signed a bill that ends the system under which farmers from one end of the state to the other have built and repaired their roads since the days of the territorial government.

The bill was introduced by Senator Ely, himself a farmer. In the earlier days all farmers paid their road taxes by working a given number of days on the roads with their teams. Then, as the counties were settled and farmers became prosperous, many of them accepted the option of paying their taxes with money. But the system was always far from satisfactory, because there were often scores of pathmasters in a single township, and they built and worked roads independently of each other; sometimes intelligently, sometimes otherwise.

The new law abolishes the office of pathmaster and requires that in every organized township all road taxes must be paid in money. Each township is made a single road district. Two funds are created, a road repair fund and a permanent improvement fund. All road work shall be done under the supervision of one township road inspector, who shall have one assistant. The town meeting annually shall designate the amount to be raised for the roads, but it shall not exceed 50 cents on each $100 valuation.
