BI-MONTHLY REPORT OF THE Board of County Auditors

Of Wayne County.

For the Months of May and June, 1907.

GENERAL FUND.

The New Farmer. The president's address last month at the Michigan State Agricultural college is so clear an expression of the conditions of modern farm life that a future historian may turn to it to read our times. All national leaders have told us that the farmer is the backbone of the nation. Washington and Jefferson were farmers, and good ones. The Illinois that bred Lincoln was one vast farm—Chicago was then only a small town. The president of 43-day, not bred in farm life, although he has been a practical ranchman, is the first to express the unity between farm labor and all other kinds, says Youth's Companion. The farmer to him is an expert mechanic and business man, whose problems are precisely those of the workman in the town, who depends for success on industrial and social cooperation. He must be an educated, aggressive participant in the work of life, competing with the farmer of Europe, inviting to his workshop of many acres the most skillful young men, learning from technical students and the practical experience of his neighbors the best that is known about his business. City workers, meeting in the friction of crowded life, have always learned their craft from one another. The farmer has until recently been in social and business isolation. Now he is a citizen of the world, often closer, in point of time, to the nearest city than his grandfather was to the farmers of the adjacent town. The difference between the townsman and the countryman in educational and intellectual opportunities and in industrial responsibility is rapidly diminishing. That means the diminishing of the old real or fancied disadvantage of farm life which drove ambition and initiative to the city for opportunity to show themselves. The advantage remains and increases, for no matter how near together modern instruments of unity, the trolley and telephone, bring city and country, broad acres still remain broad, and produce the conditions of free and independent life.

The Woman Worker. Woman's increasing ability to secure employment in gainful occupations is convincingly shown in some information gathered by the Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune. According to his statement, about one in every three women in the United States between the ages of 16 and 20 works for a living. There are over 5,000,000 workingwomen of all ages and classes in the country, 44 per cent being between 16 and 24, and the larger number in any one line may be found in the ranks of typewriters and stenographers. It would appear that women as a rule find work easier than men, as only 25 per cent of the males are less than 25 years old. But here is what differentiates the sexes as workers. Most of the girls drop out when they have a chance to marry and start homes of their own, while the men continue right along for life, or as long as they are capable of active effort. It is the old, old story, and no doubt will be while love and the domestic instinct exist.

Electricity, like fire and steam, is a good servant but a troublesome customer when it sets out to master, as has been shown on numerous occasions of late, sometimes with tragic results. There were lively times in portions of New York city the other afternoon when for a while the strong current which supplies power for moving the New York Central trains escaped from control and went cavorting where it would. There were shocks and fireworks in many directions as the mischievous fluid was distributed along the line of least resistance, and general demoralization of train service. But finally the power was shut off and the excitement ended with very little real damage done. It seems to have been a sort of electric half-holiday, with the subtle fluid out for a bit of a "racket."

A London savant says smoke causes snub noses. Down with the filthy chimneys! If smoke merely ruined people's lungs we might permit the smoke-makers to go on profiting at the expense of others, but we must positively decline to become a snub-nosed race even for the benefit of the gentlemen who regard the smoke ordinance as a nuisance.

A New York woman who recently secured a divorce wants it set aside because her former husband is preparing to marry another lady. She probably had an idea when she applied for freedom that he would let down somewhere and spend the rest of his life weeping for her. Women should be careful not to make such mistakes.

King Edward is said to be very fond of trips, but that a dainty dish to

SUBMITS TO AN INTERVIEW

Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy visited at Pleasant View By Boston Newspaper Man

Found Her to be in Full Possession of Her Faculties and is Convinced Beyond Question that she Manages her own Affairs—Remarks that During the Interview Mrs. Eddy Did Most of the Talking and that His Role was Principally that of an Interested Listener.

Arthur Brisbane, the editor of Hearst's newspapers, was granted an interview recently with the Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy to enable him to submit an authenticated article on the subject of her responsibility in the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Mr. Brisbane after his interview telegraphed to many newspapers throughout the United States that Mrs. Eddy was in possession of all her faculties, that she was thoroughly competent in every way, that the proceedings being brought by proclaimed "Next friends" was an injustice to her, a disgrace to the community and an imposition upon New Hampshire courts.

A great many newspapers up to the time of Mr. Brisbane's visit, and the announcement of the result of that visit, had honest doubts as to Mrs. Eddy's absolute accountability in every way, but one by one these doubts are being dispelled.

On Saturday last, Mr. Park, whom it is our pleasure to know as a very reliable gentleman and thorough newspaper man, had the same courtesy extended him, as a representative of the Globe, which had been extended Mr. Brisbane as the editor of all Hearst's papers, and the correspondent for the Cosmopolitan, and Mr. Park in a most plain and straightforward way, tells the story of his meeting with Mrs. Eddy.

Farlow's Version of the Malicious Animal Magnetism

In view of misapprehensions which recently appeared in the public press, it seems proper that we should devote some space to the consideration of the term "malicious animal magnetism," as used in Christian Science parlance.

In writing on this subject, we are well aware that we have undertaken a subject with which the general public is not very familiar, although it is not by any means new.

The lesson on animal magnetism is an advanced one in the Christian Science course, and ordinarily we would leave it for the future so far as concerns the public press, but since it has already been introduced and in large measure misstated, we feel compelled to discuss it in the interest of fair representation.

The word magnetism was first applied to a peculiar attraction of iron ore. It was discovered in the city of Magnesia. Later the term "animal" was joined to it and it was thus used in connection with electrical experiments with an animal.

The meaning of the term continued to broaden until it became comprehensive enough to include the peculiar influence which one person was able to exert over another by physical contact.

In later years the schools of psychology enlarged the definition still more and now, through Mrs. Eddy's teaching, the term "animal magnetism" has become broad enough to include any and all action of the human mind and is similar, if not identical, in meaning with the term mesmerism of the more modern term hypnotism.

From this description it may be noted that from the very introduction of the term to the present time, the word has been applied to that particular power, influence or force, which is possessed by the creature in contradistinction to the Creator.

BUT ONE POWER OR FORCE Christian Science teaches that there is in reality but one power or force, that is, God, spirit, mind, truth, love, and that, therefore, the Christian warfare is the struggle of mankind to become subject to "the Mind which was in Christ"—to become submissive to the divine mind and thus silence human will which the Scriptures denigrate the "carnal mind."

St. Paul described this warfare in the following words: "For the flesh lusteth against the flesh, and these are contrary the one to the other." Science always settles the battle on the side of Spirit, because "Spirit is the real and eternal, and matter (flesh) is the unreal and temporal."—Science and Health.

Since science has introduced the proposition that God is the only real mind, the carnal mind in all its varied manifestations is naturally in the interest of self preservation arrayed against it.

fers to a supposed power independent of God; malicious, in keeping with the scriptural declaration, "Because the carnal mind is enmity against God."

ANTIPODE OF DIVINE SCIENCE Mrs. Eddy refers to it as the human antipode of divine science. It is a term which is broad enough to include all that is opposed to God. It includes every phase of evil, every phase of the human antagonism to truth.

In combating evil science does not regard it as person, but as a supposititious force which dominates false sense and which, in view of its false pretense of intelligence, is denominated "mortal mind."

St. Paul called it "carnal mind," evidently because all its promptings or inducements are based upon fleshly desires. Mrs. Eddy's definition of malicious animal magnetism is identical with our Lord's description of Satan. "He was a murderer from the beginning and jaded not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie he speaketh of his own, for he is a liar and the father of it."

The master referred to Satan as "he," but declared that he was never in the truth and there is no truth in him, but he is altogether a liar. It is neither person nor intelligence that lies, but a mere mystification or want of intelligence which declares a false sense of things.

The scripture refers to Satan as the power of darkness and as a deceiver. Darkness is not a real power; it simply obscures, and it disappears with the revelation of truth.

Science discredits the fabled devil, who is supposed to be endowed with intelligence, horns and hoofs, and shows that it is not a thing to be afraid of, but a pretense to be awake to.

The subtle arguments of malicious animal magnetism can have no effect upon those who are aware of its presence and who understand that God is the only real mind or power.

Malicious animal magnetism is an evil mental influence in belief, the opposite of science—that which the evil minded through mental malpractice seek to use in opposition to the good influence of the divine mind.

KNOWN TO PSYCHOLOGISTS. It is known to all students of psychology, and we think we may safely say, to all reasonably well informed persons, that one may be mentally dominated by another if he is not awake to this evil and prepared to resist its deception.

There are and have been for many years, schools which advertise their ability to teach a method of subjugating the will of another for the purpose of ruling him, and it is claimed that through evil mental suggestion fear and even disease and death may be produced.

It is well known that crimes of all sorts have been committed under hypnotic influence. In 1895 the court recognized the criminality of hypnotism or malicious animal magnetism, when a man by the name of Harry Hayward at Minneapolis, Minn., was hanged for having induced a Swede by the name Blizt to commit murder under his mesmeric influence.

We remember having read some years ago of a hypnotist who on several occasions went into a little confectionery store, bought candy, threw down a copper coin and obtained change for a five dollar gold piece.

He was finally detected by the police, who after considerable trouble made the clerk aware that the man had actually collected change for five dollars. Another hypnotist is said to have gone to the box office in a theatre where he threw down a piece of paper, procured a ticket and change for a bill of considerable size.

A detective who had been watching the man arrested him on the spot and finally made the clerk understand that he had given the hypnotist change for a piece of paper.

LAYS BARE DIABOLISM. Christian Science throws light upon this hidden practice, because through its understanding of right mental influence.

While many are sceptical in regard to the possibility of mental malpractice, its evil workings and evil effects are so well known to the careful investigator that they cannot be brushed aside.

The time has arrived when Christian Science is needed as a protection against the mental bandit; for, as a matter of fact, the understanding of God as the one Infinite Power is the only sure means of defense against the evil called malicious animal magnetism.

Jesus evidently had this in mind when he prayed: "Not as I will, but as thou wilt." This was on the occasion when he was struggling to defend himself against the almost overwhelming hatred of the rabble which was intense against him at that time.

There is no point of similarity between the belief of Christian Science concerning animal magnetism and what has been termed witchcraft.

Witches as we understand, were supposed to be controlled by evil spirits or demons which rendered them dangerous to the community in which they lived. Witchcraft was based wholly upon superstition.

In Christian Science animal magnetism is not believed to be a power, is not thought to be the expression of intelligence but of false belief.

It is not to be combated by smiting its victim but by understanding the truth, by relying upon the one power which neutralizes and destroys the false belief.

It is not to be combated by smiting its victim but by understanding the truth, by relying upon the one power which neutralizes and destroys the false belief.

In the light of Christian Science we recognize that the effects of the Black Curse and all other means of frightening folks are the outgrowth of delusion, or suggestion or auto-suggestion which become powerless in the presence of Christian Science, the apprehension of the truth of being.

The manifestations of human will are silenced by an understanding of the omnipotence and omnipresence of the divine mind.

A Memorable Day. One of the days we remember with pleasure, as well as with profit to our health, is the one on which we became acquainted with Dr. King's New Life Pills, the painless purifier that cures headache and biliousness and keep the bowels right. See at The Wolverine Drug Co. and J. L. Gale.

Charles Tow, a tramp about 60 years old, was waiting for the car at Newburg last Monday and when the car arrived he stumbled and fell in front of it, being under the influence of liquor, and smashed his nose. Dr. Patterson attended him.

Plymouth was defeated by Wayne in a listless game of ball Thursday afternoon by a score of 5 to 2. Rathburn in the box for Plymouth was hit quite freely and was replaced by Bentley in the eighth. Sylvester Ostrander of Newburg pitched for Wayne and with good support would have shut our out. "Syl" had the Indian sign on 'em.

A class of young ladies, eight in number, are in training for a silver medal contest to be held Friday evening, Sept. 27th, under the auspices of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. These young ladies are chiefly from the Plymouth High School, three of them having graduated in June last. Mrs. M. E. Butler of Detroit, an able instructor is preparing them for the occasion.

The Eastern Michigan Press Club took a trip to Chicago last Friday, leaving Detroit over the Grand Trunk Ry. The Mail publisher and wife going with the party, which numbered some 75. "The White City" was one of the attractions visited on Saturday evening and it bears out all the name implies and the things that has been said about it. On invitation of the management of the Illinois theatre, the club attended the matinee Saturday when "The Man of the Hour" was presented by a very capable company.

Clever Capture by Officer Springer.

Clyde Kibby and John Bowen, who claim Detroit as their home, broke jail at Howell last Thursday night, where they were being held on a charge of burglary. The Livingston sheriff notified Officer Springer Friday of the escape and that officer kept an eye out for the pair. Sunday morning while walking out in the railroad yards the officer espied his game and succeeded in landing both men in the coop. No resistance was made after the officer had put up a clever bluff. The fellows afterwards admitted, though, that they never would have been captured if they had not mistaken the officer for a "tourist," so well did he assume the characteristics. It was a clever capture just the same and George is entitled to a liberal "fee" from the sheriff for making it. Officers from Livingston county came Sunday evening and took the prisoners back to jail.

Sent to the Works.

Alvin Cook, boss of the gang of painters working on the P. M. depot, made complaint against one John Haines, a car repairer, for receiving stolen property. Cook missed a blanket from his car and accused Haines of taking it. He made denial but finally produced the blanket which he had hid under the office building in the railroad yards. The arrest was made Sunday by Officer Springer and the trial took place in Justice Valentine's court Tuesday afternoon. A jury found Haines guilty, though he pleaded his own case very strongly, and the Judge passed sentence of 30 days or 60 days in the house of correction. He's doing time.

The Oat Crop Being Damaged.

From all over the state come complaints of some insect or blight that is playing havoc with the growing oat crop. The plants turn yellow and then reddish and in some fields the trouble is said to be so bad that the oats have been plowed under.

The Michigan Experiment Station at Lansing attributes the trouble to a minute insect called thrips; but can offer no remedy except to say that the trouble will probably be checked by good hard rains.

My Hair Ran Away
Don't have a falling out with your hair. It might leave you! Then what? That would mean thin, scraggy, uneven, rough hair. Keep your hair at home! Fusses it tightly to your scalp! You can easily do it with Ayer's Hair Vigor. It is something more than a simple hair dressing. It is a hair medicine, a hair tonic, a hair food.

Nervous Women Suffer No More
Glands and Nerves You Deal with Fatigue, Burden That Won't Grasp Strong Men.
In this country to-day there are thousands of women who are filled with nervous suffering. There is the dull headache, the dizzy backache, the hot flushes, that swirl round the head and make it seem as if it were to go to bed. Men have little knowledge of the sufferer. They know she is tired, but they do not know that her women go through day after day. Many cases of illness are attributed to indigestion or the after effect of a cold when it is really a derangement of the nervous system caused by weakness or disease of the genital organs. It is a common, unappreciated source of pain when there is a general nervous prostration that makes perfect recovery impossible.
Zoe-Franks dispenses nervous diseases of women because it regulates the system, and relieves them of pain. It is wonderfully effective in the cure of prostrations because it strengthens the muscular support of the parts, and restores the nervous system. It removes all nervous inflammation, cures all unusual discharges from the genital organs, restores the vitality of the system, restores the strength and finally restores the system.
Zoe-Franks has helped hundreds and thousands of women to health, strength and the joy of living. The only way in which you may receive the same benefit, is to do as they did. Go to your druggist and procure a dollar bottle Zoe-Franks. Begin using at once according to the directions found in the package. If any further information or private advice is desired, the Zoe-Franks Company, Kalamazoo, Mich., will gladly answer all questions if you will send them a stamped envelope for Zoe-Franks—no other explanation need be given—and you will receive the medicine already prepared, completely sealed and in the original package, and put up in sealed, sterilized, one-dose bottles. Will you not now while the opportunity is before you?

The Mystery OF Carney-Croft

By JOSEPH BROWN COOKE

(Copyright, 1921, by Story-Press Corporation) CHAPTER XX.

Innocence Established. Miss Carney was not at breakfast, nor did she show herself during the day, and my inquiries concerning her elicited the information that she was constantly with Miss Weston, whose condition had become truly alarming.

I wrote to John Carney, as his sister had asked me to do, telling him all that I knew of Miss Weston's condition and of her strange connection with the mystery of Carney-Croft which, for the first time, I recited to him in full. Moreover, on the bare chance that he might, through his previous intimacy with Miss Weston, be in possession of knowledge that would give me a clew if not actually explain the present inexplicable occurrences, I asked him to cable me immediately any facts that might help to clear up the situation and put me on the right track in my war against the Bruce woman and her allies.

I did this, hardly thinking that he could be of any material assistance to me in my investigations, but, rather than leave any stone unturned, I related in detail the events of the last few months, not omitting my experience of the morning in the little hillside graveyard, and I closed by urging him most earnestly to return home by the first steamer.

This letter I posted at once, so that it would catch the next mail boat for England, and, to make sure that it would reach him promptly, I cabled to his bankers that an important letter was on its way and asked them to recall him at once to London if he was at any distant point.

When these matters were attended to I again set to work to organize a plan of campaign against the Bruce gang, and, as a preliminary step, I went into the village and made all the inquiries that I judiciously could concerning her and her character. To my surprise I found that she was respected and held in the highest esteem by the townspeople, and prominent in all the good work of the parish. Some of the people even said that she gave so much of her meager income to charity that she often suffered herself for the ordinary comforts of life.

As to Jenks, I could only learn that he was an honest, trustworthy fellow, that he was ardently devoted to the widow Bruce, but, with it all, I could not find a soul to say a word against the character of either; unless Jenks' keenness in striking a bargain, and the businesslike way in which he brought home the intoxicated frequenters of Hoskins' hotel when they had the money for their fare, and left them to get home as best they could when they had not, could be laid up against him as a crime.

His own occasional potations seemed to be entirely overlooked by the townspeople in general, or else wholly unknown to them, and, taking everything into consideration, Jenks seemed to be regarded by the community as a pretty fair sort of a citizen.

With these facts in my mind I tried to reconcile the doings of the early morning, as well as the other happenings of which I was cognizant, with the reputations borne by Jenks and the Bruce woman, and I freely confess that I soon became completely bewildered.

It must be admitted that I had no positive assurance that the little graves up on the hill contained the bodies of infants, except that their general appearance suggested as much, and the fragments of bone that I had seen served as a mute witness of some ghastly crime.

MacArdel, too, had identified the odor of the rags beyond all question of doubt, at least as far as he was concerned, but it still must be remembered that I had not opened the parcel and that I had no way of knowing that it contained anything more than rags, as did the one that we had examined so carefully in the summer.

The more I thought of it the less I was able to make out of it, and, finally, as I had determined to take a walk, and was leaving the house for this purpose, my astonishment was increased by meeting the widow face to face in the hallway as I descended the stairs.

She was dressed neatly in freshly laundered calico, with an immaculate apron of generous proportions, and, in her hand, she held a tray with a cup and some plates on it. We gazed at each other for an instant and then I said, in an unconcerned tone as I could muster up for the occasion:

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Bruce. Do you remember me? I am Mr. Ware, you know."

pleasantly as she spoke, "I remember you very well indeed, sir." She smiled at this in spite of myself and stopped her as she would have passed me and gone up the stairs.

"What are you doing here, Mrs. Bruce?" I asked. "I had no idea of meeting you in this way."

"Why you know, sir, I was a nurse in the old country, sir," she returned, in the same sweetly modulated voice that I had noticed before, "and when the young lady took so bad, sir, they sent for me to take care of her until the 'spital nurses came from town."

"Who sent for you?" I continued curiously, again impeding her progress up the stairs.

"Miss Carney, of course," she rejoined. "She asked the rector and he recommended me most 'ighly, sir. You know I do most of the nursing in critical cases 'ereabouts, when I can find the time for it, sir."

She caught her breath at this last clause, as if she would have wished it unsaid, and blushed violently as I remarked: "You are very busy most of the time, I presume?"

"Yes, sir, I am, sir," she retorted, defiantly, "and my business is my own, sir, and it ill becomes outsiders to meddle with it!"

With these remarkable words she swept past me and proceeded to Miss Weston's room with all the importance of an idealized Sairy Gamp from whom the objectionable qualities had been eliminated.

As I watched her ascend the stairs with a little self-reliant poise to her head and a manner of absolute nonchalance, I came to the sudden and positive conclusion that the woman had not a bad trait in her makeup, and that the only way to deal with her was to approach her frankly and in all honesty of purpose. I was convinced, too, that Miss Weston had played no small part in persuading Miss Carney to send for her as a ally.

"What!" she gasped, seizing him by the arm, "did he open the parcel and see what was in it—or take it away with him, Sam?"

"No," said the man, "he didn't do nuthin' to it, 'cept scratch the dirt off the top, an' when he got a whiff of it I guess it was all he wanted, fur when I seen him he was a-comin' down with him like th' old Nick wuz after him, I surmised what he'd been up to, an' so I went back an' covered it up again."

"Thank God for that," she murmured, "and you did not touch it or open it yourself, did you, Sam?"

"No," he replied. "I jest left it lay, like you've alius told me to do, an' covered it up again 'thout askin' no questions, one way nor t'other. But I tell ye, Matilda, it's all gold! 'eh be known 'fore long, an' I do wish ye'd tell me now, 'fore it's too late."

"Yes!" I exclaimed, stepping suddenly before them, "and I wish you'd tell me, too, Mrs. Bruce."

They sprang back in amazement, and for an instant I thought that Jenks was going to strike at me, but I continued earnestly:

"I have come here as your friend tonight to ask and beg of you an explanation of this mystery that is upsetting the whole place. I know, Mrs. Bruce, that you can put everything to rights if you will, and I am prepared to do almost anything that you want me to if you will only make a clean breast of the whole business. I don't believe there's been any very great wrong on your part, Mrs. Bruce, although I must admit that I did think so at one time, and I want to say now that I am sincerely sorry for the manner in which Dr. MacArdel and I treated you both last summer."

They said nothing, and after pausing for a moment, I continued:

"As I say, I come here as a friend to ask you to explain this matter once again."

"What!" she gasped, seizing him by the arm, "did he open the parcel and see what was in it—or take it away with him, Sam?"

SAVED FROM DREAD FAT. Kind Woman's Assistance Meant Much to This Tramp.

A certain lady, noted for her kind heart and open hand, was approached not long ago by a man who, with tragic air, began:

"A man, madam, is often forced by the whip of hunger to many things from which his very soul shrinks—and so it is with me at this time. Unless, madam, in the name of pity you give me assistance, I will be compelled to do something which I never before have done, which I would greatly dislike to do."

Much impressed, the lady made haste to place in his hand a five-dollar bill. As the man pocketed it with profuse thanks, she inquired: "And what is the dreadful thing I have kept you from doing, my poor man?"

"Work," was the brief and mournful reply.—Harper's Weekly.

WESTERN MEN IN NEW YORK. Brains of Mountain and Prairie in Demand in the Financial Center.

Ever since the early days, when D. O. Mills, J. B. Haggin and James R. Kpene "emigrated" from California to New York, the metropolis has been drawing largely on the west and south for its supply of "men who do things." Theodore P. Shonts, both a southerner and westerner, who has undertaken to solve New York's great transit problem, is the latest importation in response to the call of the east.

The promptness with which Thos. F. Ryan, of Virginia, turned the Equitable Life Assurance Society over to its policyholders, who now elect a majority of its Board of Directors, and divested himself of the control of the stock which he bought from Jas. H. Hyde, and the success of the new management of the Society under the direction of President Paul Morton, have created a demand for the strong men of the south and west that is greater than ever before. Under the Morton management the Equitable has made a better showing than any other insurance company in the way of improved methods, economies and increased returns to policyholders.

E. H. Gary, head of the greatest corporation in the world—the U. S. Steel Co.—John W. Gates, Henry C. Frick, Norman B. Ream, Wm. H. Moore and Daniel G. Reid are other westerners who are among the biggest men in New York.

SOMEWHAT OF A REFLECTION. Naive Comment of Debutante That Amused Hostess.

A charming hostess of one of the "big houses," as they are called by those who are welcomed into them, has the added beauty of premature white hair. That which seems to her contemporaries an added charm may appear to the crudely young a mark of decline, at least so it appears in one instance of which the hostess herself tells with enjoyment.

The lady is a connoisseur of antiques. At one of her teas a debutante rich with the glow of youth, but sadly constrained with her sense of novelty, was handed a cup of tea; the cup was beautifully blue and wonderfully old. The hostess desiring to lighten the strain on her youthful guest by a pleasant diverting remark, said: "That little cup is a hundred and fifty years old!"

"Oh," came the debutante's high strained tones: "How careful you must be to have kept it so long!"

Mixed Voices. Alice had been to Sunday school for the first time and had come home filled with information. She was overheard to say to her six-year-old sister, as she laid a wee hand over her heart, "When you hear something wiser here, you know it is conscience whispering to you."

"No such thing," responded six-year-old; "it's just wind in your tummy."—Lippincott's Magazine.

A SMALL SECRET. Couldn't Understand the Taste of His Customers.

Two men were discussing the various food products now being supplied in such variety and abundance. One, a grocer, said, "I frequently try a package or so of any certain article before offering it to my trade, and in that way sometimes form a different idea than my customers have."

"For instance, I thought I would try some Postum Food Coffee, to see what reason there was for such a call for it. At breakfast I didn't like it and supper proved the same, so I naturally concluded that my taste was different from that of the customers who bought it right along."

"A day or two after, I waited on a lady who was buying a 25c package and told her I couldn't understand how one could fancy the taste of Postum."

"I know just what is the matter," she said, "you put the coffee boiler on the stove for just fifteen minutes, and ten minutes of that time it simmered, and perhaps five minutes it boiled; now if you will have it left to boil full fifteen minutes after it commences to boil, you will find a delicious Java-like beverage, rich in food value of gluten and phosphates, so choice that you will never abandon it, particularly when you see the great gains in health."

"Well, I took another trial and sure enough I joined the Postum army for good, and this seems worth living since I have gotten rid of my old liver stomach and kidney troubles."

THE FARM GARDEN. A-HAY BARN. Style of Structure Which Will Allow of Easy Handling of Hay.

When a considerable quantity of hay is to be stored, the style of barn should be such as will permit easy handling both in unloading and reloading. To store 60 tons of hay, with a 14-foot driveway between each bay and with 12-foot bays 18 feet deep, would require a length of 64 feet, the floor space would then be 38x64 feet, divided into two bays 12 feet wide, of four 16-foot bents each.

The filling can be expeditiously handled with the horse fork in two ways, explains Central Herald—first, filling each bent by itself from a carrier running lengthwise along the ridge of the shelter, dropping the hay in the center of the 14-foot space of that bent and filling this bent with one kind of hay; the second and third bents would be filled in the same manner, and the horse fork could be worked from either one or both ends as desired. If the first unloading is to be done by hand, the hay can be unloaded by driving crosswise, stopping the wagon opposite either of the 12-foot spaces or the 14-foot space.

If the center driveway is to be kept free for more expeditious removal of the hay, the simplest and most convenient method of handling the fork is represented in the cut, where the hay fork is represented as working on a track suspended under the ridge of the roof, and running the full length of the barn. Beneath the forkful of hay is represented a tilting platform which, when inclined as represented in the cut, throws the hay on the right side; if tilted in the opposite direction, the hay would fall on the left side of the driveway; but if the tilting platform is not under the forkful of hay the hay would fall in the center. With such an arrangement as this, the hay can be delivered on one side or the other of the driveway, or it may be dropped in the middle, at the will of the operator on the bay, and hence the arrangement can be used equally well for entirely filling each bent of the shelter at once, and thus diminish the labor of distributing the hay, over what would be required if each forkful of hay was dropped at one place.

This tilting platform can be made in various ways—most simply in the form of a series of slats made of inch boards and carried on a central axis on which it turns. The length of the slats would be determined by the width of the driveway, and must be long enough so that the hay falls on the bay after sliding from it. The width of the platform should be in the neighborhood of 12 feet, and it should be carried on parallel tracks, as represented in the figures. A bar should connect each pair of rollers carrying the platform car, just below the rollers, so that as the platform is tilted it stops when striking this bar, causing it to deliver its load at the proper place.

THE FARM GARDEN. By Laying Out in Long Rows It Can Be Cultivated With Ease.

Too many farmers think they do not have time to bother with so small a thing as a garden, says Coleman's Rural World. The women and children manage to get the seed sown, but the task of keeping it clean is too much for them, and long before fall the garden is a waving patch of weeds. It is a mistake to think of the garden as a small thing, for if properly managed it will furnish half the living for the family during the summer months. By laying out the garden in long rows almost all the work of cultivating can be done with horse tools. The modern cultivator can be adjusted so as to do almost the work of a hoe and an hour or two each week will keep the weeds down and the soil in the best condition for rapid growth. Another thing that will save much vexation is a chicken tight fence around the garden. Such a fence will pay for itself in a very few years.

Slow Growth of Sorghum. Don't be afraid if the sorghum makes a slow growth at first. It grows very slowly for the first month, and for this reason the seed bed should be as free from weeds as possible, before the sorghum seed is put into the ground.

Running a Farm. It takes time, labor and money to run a farm successfully, in return for which the successful farmer brings plenty of money for the labor, and time to enjoy it.

TO SET STACK OF HAY. Directions for Building It So That It Will Shed Water.

Setting a stack of hay appears simple enough to those who have had no experience with it, but those who have had quite a little hay "spoil" by the rain soaking into an improperly set stack know it is easier said than done. I don't remember whether the first few hay stacks I set shed rains properly or not, but those I make nowadays never "rain in" more than a few inches on top.

I have a system in hay stacking—as I like to have in everything else—after the stack is a few feet high, writes a successful Wisconsin farmer in Farmers' Review. We first carry the nearest hay cocks by hand with two light poles between the stack foundation. A cock is set in each corner, and as many between and in the center as we have room. After these have been made even, my systematic stacking begins. Some more hay having been carried to the incipient stack or hauled down with a wagon, as is most convenient, one man pitches it onto the stack, while I commence at one corner to lay a layer of hay around the outside of the stack. I aim to stay away for several feet from the outside so they will stay loose and thus settle more than the central portion.

When the first layer around the outside has been finished, I start another one several feet nearer the center, but enough onto the first one so it will hold this one well. This second one must be thicker than the outside one. After this each succeeding layer is made thicker until the center of the stack is reached. After the center has been well filled and tamped down, the stack will decline towards the outside on all four sides. (I make my stacks oblong, not round, as some one might understand from the above.) The greater the slant the better. This depends somewhat on what kind of hay is being stacked. With prairie and marsh hay the decline from the center to the outside cannot be so steep as with tame hay without the first layer slipping out.

After the first course another one is started on the outside and this is continued until the stack is finished. I like to start my stacks considerably narrower than they are to be, and afterwards keep on widening them, till near where they must be narrowed again.

The "drawing in" should be gradual, so that water will not have a chance to soak in anywhere on the side. There is perhaps not much trouble here, though, for I think the rains generally soak in from the top of an improperly made stack. This comes about by the center not having been kept high enough nor tight enough.

GOOD WEED CUTTER. Sled with Cutting Blades to Run Down Between Rows.

For sled use two pieces 2x8 by 6 feet. Fasten a wagon tire to bottom of runners and have runners six to eight inches apart on inside. Use any heavy iron, as a buggy axle, for an arch to hold the runners in position. Bolt on inside of runners, a little in front of where knives are attached. Two bolts through runners and tires hold the knives in place. Knives should be three feet long, and set at an angle that will keep them from clogging and yet will let them reach nearly across the ridge between rows. Attach them between the runners and the tires, slipping in between the two bolts. A niche in the forward end of the knives catches in the forward bolts, so the knives can be taken out when desired. Drawing shows weeder complete and one knife detached, showing the niche that catches over the front bolt. These weeders are handy in case the weeds get a big start in listed stuff. The knives run under the ground an inch or two, and when the weeds are large this is about the only way to get them.

NUBBINS. A new file is a good friend to carry along in the garden or field when hoeing time comes.

When you sell wheat and buy bran see that you get more than an even exchange with time and hauling thrown in.

Squashes and cabbage require strong manure and a generous quantity of it. They are great feeders. They also "use up" a good deal of moisture.

The thing most lacking in farm houses is good ventilation, particularly in the sleeping rooms. A window should always be open at night. If it makes a draft on the bed put in a screen covered with coarse cloth.

A good way to increase the fertility of the farm is to raise more clover, feed the hay to the stock, and return the manure to the land. Be sure to get a stand on the winter wheat belt. Alaska is especially good on new ground.

It is claimed that Luther Burbank has an apple tree on which he has placed 528 different grafts, all of which will bear fruit.

Running a Farm. It takes time, labor and money to run a farm successfully, in return for which the successful farmer brings plenty of money for the labor, and time to enjoy it.

"A neighbor advised me to use Peruna. I began to improve at once."

"Peruna has done me a great deal of good since I began taking it and I am always glad to speak a good word for it. Three years ago I was in a wretched condition with backaches, bearing down pains, and at times was so sore and lame that I could not move about. I had inflammation and irritation, and although I used different remedies they did me no good. A neighbor who had been using Peruna advised me to try it, and I am glad that I did. I began to improve as soon as I took it and I felt much better. I thank you for your fine remedy. It is certainly a godsend to sick women. Catchers of the Internal Organs. Miss Theresa Bertles, White Church, Mo., writes: 'I suffered with outcure of the stomach, bowels and internal organs. Everything I ate seemed to hurt me. I never had a passage of the bowels without taking medicine. I was so tired mornings and ached all over. I had a pain in my left side, and the least exertion or excitement made me short of breath. Now, after taking Peruna for six months, I am as well as I ever was. Peruna has worked wonders for me. I believe Peruna is the best medicine in the world, and I recommend it to my friends.'

Tone Up With Good Paint

It is good business to keep property "toned up." A coat of Pure White Lead Paint not only makes things look better and gives them a higher selling value, but it makes things wear better and gives them a higher value for long wear. Pure White Lead gives an opaque, durable coat that protects and preserves from the ravages of time and weather. Prospective buyers of Pure White Lead have heretofore been subject to much attempted fraud in adulteration and substitution. You are now protected by the Dutch Boy trademark which is found on the side of kegs containing only Pure White Lead, made by the Old Dutch Process. Look for the boy.

The Rebellion of Jackie

By Susie Bouchelle Wight

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

"What a perfectly exquisite child!" exclaimed a passer-by to her companion after a glance at little Jack. Jack's mother edgitted with complacency, and looked admiringly at the vision at her feet—a vision of golden curls, rich, creamy complexion, and the most tempting briar-rose cheeks—a small boy, clad from top to toe in spotless white. He was a pretty boy. She knew there was no denying that fact, and so she did not tarry to ask herself the meaning of that inscrutable look that was dawning in the great brown eyes. A look new and strange, it would have seemed to her, for she was all a flutter with maternal vanity. Mrs. Perham sighed.

"How fortunate you are Mattie," she said. "Jack is such a perfect gentleman, and takes all the lovely dressing you can think up for him, but my James—" She sighed again, and Jack's mother laughed, for the mere mention of James, the unspeakable, usually provoked smiles in Oldtop. "You needn't laugh, Mattie. I assure you it is anything but funny to be the mother of a freckled little tough, that will not stay clean two minutes after he is dressed."

Jack's mother laughed again. "Oh, James is all right, only it is a pity that he looked like the Perhams instead of like our family—that is all! I do believe, though, Jennie dear, that if you would pursue a different course with him, you could mold him as much to your liking as Jack is to mine. Now, no matter if he does rebel at blouses and frocks and other things that he ought to wear as a matter of course, you ought to make him understand that your will is to be his law about his dress for a good many years to come yet."

"How can I? I told him only last week that if he would wear a sweet little brown linen sailor suit to the Fourth of July celebration I would give him a dollar—now what do you suppose Jim said to that? Why, he simply looked up from his paper and said, 'Take her up on it; son, and get your dollar, and then father will give you another to go out and roll in a mud-puddle with that suit on.'"

"Jennie Perham! You don't mean to say that Jim Perham set your authority at naught in that way?" "Oh, he didn't mean to set it at naught—but he is always saying that he cannot bear to see country people trying to put on city airs—" Mrs. Perham stopped suddenly and bit her lip at a recollection of the connection in which he had said this, but Jack's mother did not seem to feel hit, so she continued: "He is given to abetting James in all of his shames, anyway, and I simply haven't the backbone to undertake the quelling of the two of them."

"There's where you and I differ!" said her sister. "Now listen to me. Go right on and make that linen suit for the Fourth, and when the time comes let him choose between wearing it and staying at home all day, and you will see that he will come to terms; then, when he has worn it there will be no more trouble. Don't say a word to Jim about it, and above all, do not try to hire James—just be firm and positive and you will see that you will carry your point readily. He really would be a strikingly handsome boy if he were well dressed, and whether you will believe me or not, his freckles and his snagged teeth look a great deal worse to you than they do to anyone else."

They left the room and Jackie, aged seven, looked out of the window across the street at his cousin James turning a handspring in the dust of a vacant lot, and then down at his own immaculateness, with envy and rebellion in his soul.

The Fourth came. It was in the south, where the sound of fireworks did not smite the morning air. Early in the morning the people began to gather from all the country round, for Oldtop was to do itself proud this day, and was keeping open house.

Jack's mother, flushed and charming in white and lavender—the first appearing in anything else than widow's weeds for a long time—came down the street, leading her lovely child by the hand. He was all in white, except for a tiny bow of blue ribbon, which peeped out from under the broad-rolling brim of a handsome white sailor—the bow of which tied back the long front locks, which were saving for subsequent use. His little shoes were white, too, so he had to walk circumspectly, to avoid mud and dusty spots.

They paused a moment at the gate for Mrs. Perham, who came down the walk, drawing on her long white silk mitts.

"Why, Jennie, where is James?" asked Jack's mother. "James is in bed," replied Mrs. Perham, firmly. "I have locked up all his other clothes, and laid out the linen suit and the tan shoes, and he can either wear them or spend the day in bed."

"That's right—be firm and positive, and you will carry your point, as I have always told you—but what about Jim?"

sound of a muffled kick and howl came from James' room. Jack's mother stood a moment in thought, then said: "Jackie, dear, suppose you go back and talk to your little cousin, and then you can help him dress, too, and come on to the pavilion with him. If you persuade James to get up and come right on, mother will buy you a beautiful new book."

Jack faced obediently about, and when his back was well turned, he made a wry face which would have curdled the blood of a Goop, for he had overheard his Aunt Jennie say, admiringly:

"Now, isn't Jackie the sweetest thing! I don't see how it will be possible for James to persist in his naughtiness after he sees him."

Jack felt very doubtful about his mission, for he knew that James did not approve of himself or his mother, but the unusually smart raiment with which he had been decked out made him wildly reckless, and he longed for something to break the monotony of his perfect propriety, and even felt equal to the fatcuff which he half expected. If James should get the best of him, as he was altogether likely to do, still there would be the satisfaction of wearing tumbled clothes in consequence, and oh, sweet hope, perhaps in the melee the blue ribbon would be loosened and fall from his hair!

James lay sprawled out in the middle of the bed, with his feet propped up on the pillows, a neat array of holiday garments lying on a chair by the bed. "They sent me back," said Jack, "to help you put on your little clothes." "Shoot!" cried James. "I guess papa'll see me through this thing!" With a bounce he landed on the floor, and snatched from the wall a long-discarded Astrakhan cap.

"Come on, little gal-boy!" he called. "I'll take care of you, and we'll go right on to the pavilion and hear the band play."

"Oh, Jamie, you wouldn't ever?" panted Jack, as he raced along at James' heels, and watched the pink nightshirt flopping.

"Oh, you come on, little frill-breeches!" was all the answer he received, and then Jack made a grab for James, just as the gate clanged behind them. He planted one small fist plump in the back of his cousin's neck and then they both stopped and squared off. James gave Jack another of those puzzled looks, and then dropped his fists. "I couldn't bear to hurt a little thing like you!" he said, and then he had to dodge Jack's fist again. "Stay Jack!" he said, as a sudden thought struck him, "I dare you

"Oh, You Come On, Little Frill-Breeches!"

—I double-dare you—to stomp in your sundown!"

In a twinkling the lovely white suit or hat was trampled in the dust, and a blue ribbon lay beside it. "Jimmy! But won't Aunt Mat skin you for that? Dare you to roll over in the road!"

The words were scarcely out of his mouth before a little white figure was kicking and tumbling in the middle of the street and Jack was thinking as actively as his legs were working. He was relieving the pent-up feelings of all the weeks that had gone by since his first realization of the fact that he was not as other boys of his age. He had thirsted for a fight, but this was even better, and he gave a final roll as he saw a team drive past.

"You're a sight!" James remarked, coolly, when Jack straightened up. "Want to dare me some more?"

COULD HARDLY TOTTER ABOUT.

A Vivid Description of the Most Insidious of Diseases.

Miss Emma Shirley, Killbuck, N. Y., writes: "Kidney disease mysteriously fastened itself upon me two years ago and brought awful headaches and dizzy spells. I was all unstrung, weak and nervous, could scarcely totter about. Pains in the side and back completely unnerved me. My food distressed me, I looked badly and the kidneys were noticeably deranged. I sank lower and lower until given up and at this critical time began with Doan's Kidney Pills. Details are unnecessary. Twelve boxes cured me and I weigh six pounds more than ever before. They saved my life."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

MAN AND HIS WAYS.

Fertile Brain Has Evolved a New Style of Cradle.

A new cradle has been invented—and by a man. Which latter statement is a redundancy—for no up-to-date woman would really ever think of inventing anything so perilous to her infant's welfare. Has she not become enlightened to the dreadful ill of that time-honored institution of our ancestors? Dare she imperil the intellect that is to away the twentieth century by untimely "juggling" in its embryonic stage? Poor modern babe!—When colic's gripes assail, it may not know the luxury of a steady tramp swung across father's shoulder—strange to say, men do not jeer at this dictum of the new motherhood—much less will it experience the bliss of being lulled to rest in a wooden-slatted cradle or stuffy bassinet, swayed by the foot of a wondrous being who swings and croons, swings and croons, till baby woe is merged in blessed sleep. Its maker claims that sideways rocking is, indeed, injurious to babykins, but to his eyes, not his brain. Therefore has he constructed a cradle that swings lengthwise, and is shaped like a boat!

SCALY ERUPTION ON BODY.

Doctors and Remedies Fruitless—Suffered 10 Years—Completely Cured by Cuticura.

"Small sores appeared on each of my lower limbs and shortly afterwards they became so sore that I could scarcely walk. The sores began to heal, but small scaly eruptions appeared. The itching was so severe that I would scratch the sores until the blood began to flow. After I suffered thus about ten years I made a renewed effort to effect a cure. The eruptions by this time had appeared on every part of my body except my face and hands. The best doctor in my native county and many remedies gave no relief. All this was fruitless. Finally my hair began to fall out and I was rapidly becoming bald. A few months after, having used almost everything else, I thought I would try Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap. After using three boxes I was completely cured, and my hair was restored after fourteen years of suffering and an expenditure of at least $50 or $60 in vainly endeavoring to find a cure. B. Hiram Mattingly, Vermillion, S. Dak., Aug. 18, 1906."

A Famous Pitcher.

Elmer Stricklett, the "spit ball" pitcher, had been listening a long while in a New York club to the boasting of a rival. "Well," he said, exhausted at last, "you are pretty good, Mike; but out in Mountain View there is a young fellow who can beat you. You'll hear from him next season. His specialty is the slow ball. This young fellow has such a slow ball that when he pitches it and sees that it is going to be hit, he can run after it and fetch it back again."

Quite Desirable.

The Hold-up Man (as he takes large watch from victim's pocket)—I suppose you're thinkin' I'm a real undesirable citizen, eh?

ENTICED BY THE BAR.

Strenuous Actions Mildly Explained by the Minister.

Many stories are told of the eccentric doings and sayings of an old clergyman who lived in Maine some years ago. At one time there had been a fight among some men, one of whom was seriously hurt. A trial took place, and the old minister who had seen the affray was summoned as a witness.

"What was Salson doing?" was the first question.

"Oh, he was slashing around."

"Well, sir, just what do you mean by that?"

"Why, he was knocking about him here and there."

"Now, sir, kindly tell us plainly what Salson did to this man."

"Why, he—he enticed him," said the old minister slowly. "He enticed him with a crowbar. He used the crowbar to persuade the man—to entice him; and by a series of pokes and blows he succeeded in doing it," said the minister, mildly.

THE STORY OF A WISCONSIN MAN IN WESTERN CANADA.

Three Years Ago Worth Only $2,000; To-Day Is Worth $13,000.

The following is a copy of a letter, of which the Agents of the Canadian Government throughout the United States receive similar ones many times during the year: Cayley, Alta., Dec. 7, 1906. Agent Canadian Government, Watertown, S. D.

Dear Sir: Your letter dated Nov. 27th at hand and was very glad to hear from you. I see that you are still at work persuading people to move into the Canadian Northwest. I must tell you that I owe you many thanks for persuading me to come out here, am only sorry that I wasn't persuaded sooner, and there is still plenty of good changes for many more right at the present time. I hope that you will be able to induce more to make a start out to this part of the country.

Now I must tell you what I have accomplished since I came out here and it won't be three years till the 1st of July. I shall shortly receive my patent for my homestead, the homestead cost me $10.00 in all, to-day it is worth $30.00 per acre, but it is not for sale. Then a year ago last May I bought 320 acres at $7.00 per acre and sold this fall for $20.00 per acre and cleared a profit of $4,160.00. How is that for the Northwest? I now have 320 acres of land and all paid for, 15 head of horses, 30 head of cattle, 22 pigs, 2 sheep and about 150 chickens and other poultry, and all new machinery and everything is paid for. We also bought 8 lots in Calgary and 7 in High River. We gave $470 for the 15 lots and they are paid for. At present I consider myself worth $13,000.00, and when I left Wisconsin less than three years ago I had about $2,000.00. This year I threshed a little over 4,000 bushels of grain, have about one thousand bushels of fine potatoes and about five hundred bushels of turnips. Mrs. Beisiegel sold about $200 worth of garden truck and poultry this fall. Now there are lots of others in this community who did as well as I did in the same length of time.

The family and myself are all well at this writing and hope this letter will find you the same. Yours very truly, (Signed) PHILIP BEISEGEL, Cayley, Alta., Canada.

Vacation.

The secret of rest is to get rid of detail for a time. Why is it that a sea voyage is regarded as the best of tonics? Simply because the entire change of surroundings wipes out the mass of complications attendant upon the daily routine of the ordinary worker. We all need occasional freedom from the bondage of the tiny strings that bind us to wearing tasks. The man who realizes this and plans his vacation accordingly makes no mistake.

FOR SOLDIERS' HOMESTEAD RIGHTS

All soldiers who served ninety days or more in the federal army or navy between 1861-1865, and who made homestead entries for less than 160 acres on or before June 22, 1874, means that an additional right is due someone and that it can be sold to me for spot cash, no matter whether patent issued or not. If soldier is dead, his heirs are entitled. The right descends as follows: First, to the widow; and second, to the legal heirs, or next of kin. Talk to soldiers, their wives, children, or next of kin about this class of additional rights. Get the right now and find some of your relatives who made homestead entries in early days. It's easy money. For further information address our office W. E. Moses, 81 California Building, Denver, Colo.

W. N. U., DETROIT, NO. 29, 1907.

Grand Trunk—Grand Rapids.

At the eastern approach of Grand Rapids new solid concrete bridge in the new passenger station of the Grand Trunk Railway System.

It is seldom that a site so centrally located can be approached by trains without more or less annoyance on account of many street crossings, noise and smoke; but, in this instance, all these troubles have been overcome by the Grand Trunk System's large investment in one and one-half miles of concrete wall on the east front of the river on the top of which are located the tracks.

The building was designed by Spier & Bohns, Architects, Detroit, Mich., and erected by C. Hoertz & Son, Grand Rapids, Mich. It is constructed of Maine granite, semi-glazed pressed brick, laid up in Flemish bond and trimmed with Bedford limestone.

LINGERS IN MEMORY

MARK TWAIN RECALLS "STUNTS" OF BICYCLE DAYS.

His Efforts to Tame the Wild and Unruly "Ordinary"—Deserved Compliment Paid Him by His Teacher.

Susy's next date is Nov. 29, 1885, the eve of my fiftieth birthday. It seems a good while ago. I must have been rather young for my age then, for I was trying to tame an old-fashioned bicycle nine feet high.

I was full of enthusiasm over this insane amusement. My teacher was a young German from the bicycle factory, a gentle, kindly, patient creature, with a pathetically grave face.

Sea Firing on Land.

Considerable interest is being manifested in naval and military circles on the northeast coast by the installation of the drill ship of the First Durham Royal Garrison artillery volunteers at Sunderland of a model sea range for artillery practice, says the London Express.

Abstemious.

"Don't you drink wine, Mr. Clayton?" the charming daughter of the host asked, lifting her own glass and smiling across at the young man.

"Lord Partington."

The duke of Devonshire, now in his seventy-fifth year, and very ill, is simply a name in the dispatches to the average "American of the day."

GOT THROUGH WITH WINGS

They Could Be Transferred to the Rival Company.

"You may have read," said the traveling agent of an oil company to the Rochester Democrat, "you may have read that at an investigation by interstate-commerce commissioners, witnesses said even ministers of the gospel were bribed to help the oil of a certain company along."

"Well, deacon, I hope to convince you yet that my kerosene will give more light than any other made."

"Yes, I believe I have said something to that effect."

"No people on earth observe family ties so closely and hold so many family reunions as the Chinese. The Scottish clans have no closer bonds of union than the families in China."

Down on the Farm.

The unsophisticated chap from the city had passed his first night in the old farmhouse.

"Wall, neighbor," drawled the farmer at breakfast, "how did you sleep last night?"

"Sleep?" blurted the city chap in disgust. "Why, man, I was turning and turning all night."

"The old man laughed uproariously. 'Kept turning, did you, neighbor? Wall I told you that you would sleep like a top.'"

"Funny, eh?" Well, do you know there was so much loose straw in the mattress it kept getting in my ears and nose all night?"

"Just so, stranger. When you asked about the bed, didn't I say it would tickle you to death?"

And then the old farmer passed over the left-ovary pie and black coffee.

Indian Prince's Jewels.

When the steamship Arabia arrived at Tilbury, England, recently, four cases of undistinguished appearance were handed over to four men employed by tourist agents.

The mysterious boxes contained the hereditary jewels of the Maharajah of Bikaner, who arrived in London a short time ago. The jewels, which are valued at about $25,000, were guarded in India by an armed escort.

Taking No Chances.

An old woman was ill in a tenement, and a kindly neighbor took a bottle of whisky to her. The neighbor said she would give the old woman a glass of the whisky then, and another in the morning.

"You're better, let's have the other one," he heard of an angry sudden death.
