PASS PRIMARY BILL

Legislature Adopts Amended Law Before Closing Special Session; Five Vote Against It.

ONE PRIMARY NEW FEATURE

Retains 40 Per Cent Clause and Provides Nomination of U. S. Senators; Upper House Abuses Warner, Returning Message.

WHAT THE SPECIAL SESSION HAS DONE.

PASSED THESE BILLS.

General primary bill, fixing the first Tuesday in September as general primary day.
Military bill, increasing the per capita tax from five to six cents, appropriating $40,000 for state armories and providing pay for enlisted men.
Juvenile court bill, giving probate court charge of all such cases.
Bill for the annexation of part of the village of Fairview to the city of Detroit.
Bill authorizing the state asylum at Newberry to purchase land.
Bill amending act relative to the purchase of voting machines.

REFUSED TO PASS THESE.

Bill authorizing refunding of Wayne county road tax.
To place telegraph and telephone companies under the ad valorem system of taxation.
To authorize the state board of tax commissioners to value the ocean mileage of express companies in computing the valuation of these companies.
To restrict lobbying by requiring lobbyists to register, and compelling corporations employing them to make a statement of amounts paid them.
To restrict watering of stock and over-capitalization by steam and electric railroads by giving the board of railroad commissioners supervision over such matters.

Sensation followed session in the final session of the legislature. First, Governor Warner read the riot act to the legislature in a final message, when he took the members to task for failing to pass the kind of a primary election bill he favored. The members retaliated by endeavoring to secure a quorum in the senate in order that a stinging rebuke in the form of a resolution might be read into the record. In the effort to secure a quorum the Lansing chief of police and two officers were pressed into service, Lieutenant Governor Keiley refusing to allow senate officials to search for the missing men.

Shortly before time for adjournment a quorum was secured through the efforts of the police and the senate resolution was passed and went into the record. The vote was 15 to 2. The legislature succeeded in passing the boxers' primary bill, the administrationists capitulating at the last moment and running up the white flag. They declared the boxers' bill was better than none at all.

PRIMARY BILL FIGHT.

In token of defeat the senate administration force reported out the boxer primary bill and passed it with dispatch, meekness and resignation.

This decision was reached after a conference following the defeat of the Dickinson bill that had been sent over from the house.

It was a foregone conclusion that the session could not be held over another day and the administrationists came to the conclusion that they did not care to accept the responsibility of having the session close without at least abolishing the double primary system which has proved so costly.

Senator Fyfe acted as spokesman, and in reporting out the bill said that while it was not just the kind of a bill that ought to be passed, he was convinced that it was the best that could be obtained under the circumstances. The boxers were so taken by surprise that they could hardly believe their senses and there was a rush for the clerk's desk to see if some trick was not being played. The bill was gone over very carefully to see that no changes had been made and then the work of passing the bill was taken up.

Senator Fyfe wanted to insert an amendment that would make it clear that the 40 per cent provision applied to the governor and lieutenant governor, specifically, but even this was denied him, the others contending that the context showed very clearly what was meant.

On the final passage of the bill the vote was 28 to 2, Whitney and Ely voting against it, the former because he is against primary reform and Ely from obliquity.

The house had adopted the senate concurrent resolution to wind up business at midnight when the bill was sent over and it was decided to get the thing over with before taking any recess. Representative Dickinson devoted twenty minutes to explaining the provisions of the bill and pointing out the differences between it and his own bill, after which it was passed, 75 to 4.

So far as being a workable measure the new bill is vastly superior to the present law. In addition it provides for one primary day instead of two and gives the people a chance to nominate candidates for United States senator. The big point on which the governor lost out is the provision requiring that candidates for governor and lieutenant governor must secure 40 per cent of the vote cast to secure a nomination is retained. The practical effect of this is that unless some candidate for governor shows that he is the popular choice the nomination will be made by a state convention.

Cuban Bandits Surrender.
Havana.—The group of bandits under the command of Gil Galder, which recently had been committing extensive depredations in the vicinity of Ciego de Avila, surrendered Thursday to Gen. Wittmayer.

Accused of Criminal Libel.
San Jose, Cal.—Charles M. Shortridge, ex-state senator, editor of the Daily Times and former owner of the Mercury, was arrested Thursday on complaint of Congressman E. A. Hayes, on a charge of criminal libel. The action grew out of an assertion by Shortridge, in a public speech last Wednesday, that he had information that Hayes had burned his former mansion at Edendale for the insurance, which statement, together with another serious accusation, was published in Shortridge's paper.

Overcasting of Sleeves.
To overcast the sleeve seams and fasten them at the same time was the invention of one woman who was reared for time. By overcasting the sleeves the busting was avoided and here were no busting threads to pull out. Sleeves put in in this manner are easier to stitch on the machine.

SKIRTS FOR WINTER.

New Garments are Made in Three or Four Ways.

Skirts are made in one of three or four different ways. But just for the moment, the favorite is the plaited straight skirt. But it all depends upon the material after all and the fancy plaited skirt with the plaits set in below the hips is a model that is much worn.

Where materials will permit the ruffled skirt is popular, and the skirt, consisting of two deep ruffles, each one-half the depth of the skirt, is selected as the model in soft silks and poplins.

The seven gored empire skirt is one of the best models. This is a plain walking skirt. It is fitted around the hips, but spreads widely below. It is made without ornamentation of any kind, but is finished with two or three plain bands around the foot. These bands are of velvet, sewed upon the upper edge only, so as to set out well and make a pretty finish for the skirt.

The five gored skirt is also one of the popular designs, but it needs to be trimmed, and the wide, handsome border of heavy lace around the bottom is a favorite way of trimming this style of skirt. Still another popular method is that of applying a ruffle about a foot wide, with a heading of lace, or with a piping of silk, or some flat velvet bands.

The plaited skirt is much in evidence and there are skirts that are made with the plaits turning back sharply from the front. They are wide and arranged as to leave a very broad front panel, which is ornamented in some manner. This wide front panel may be trimmed with lace or with a braided design.

The use of lace upon winter skirts may seem a questionable stretch of appropriateness, yet when one sees the beautiful winter gowns that are trimmed with lacy materials one is forced to change one's mind as to the use of lace on winter gowns. Many of the handsomest winter costumes are trimmed with lacy materials. Lace dyed, tan lace, brown lace and laces in black and white are all much worn. The mixed fabrics are so pretty that they need little or no decoration, and many of the dressmakers absolutely refuse to trim them in anyway, declaring that it spoils a woman's lines to break up the pattern with trimming.

Making Plumbeous New.

Ostrich feathers which have been in use for some time often require reshaping as well as recurling. The quill of the feather should be held in the steam of a fast-boiling kettle until it is perfectly pliable. It may then be straightened out flat on a board and pinned down until dry, or curled round a linen collar if a rounded effect is required.

One clever woman has even dyed her plumbeous. They were a delicate blue until the summer sun turned them white. Desiring them blue again she simply mixed with gasoline enough blue from an oil paint tube to give the desired shade. Into this they were dipped. After that they were shaken gently and hung on the clothesline by the tip ends. When dry they were well shaken. The ends may be curled, if one prefers, by simply drawing the fronds between the finger and a dull knife.

French Belts.

Parisians are wearing very elaborate leather belts, the leather being much tooled and gilded after the fashion of old bindings, having solid gold buckles. With an ingenious eye for effect many women are wearing them back to front, the deep buckle coming in front, while the narrower one, with its holes for adjusting, goes at the back. This plan gives a pretty sloping line to the waist. The striped leather belt is very fashionable for the moment. The belts are of white suede and the stripes, about half an inch wide, run across. These have nothing at the back, and are fastened in front with a wide square or Byzantine buckle of bronze or gold.

Ribbon Trimmings.

For trimming children's afternoon dresses ribbons will be used a great deal. A last year's dress can be made to look like new if ribbon is skillfully used. Velvet, satin, gros-grain, and taffeta ribbons are the ones used. The trimming can be put on in almost any way one wishes.

Another trimming is plaid material. A dress of plain cloth is trimmed with bias bands of plaid or check material of some contrasting shade.

Braids are particularly fashionable or trimming both adults and children's dresses, and they are seen in many beautiful varieties.

Hat Trimming Hint.

The merely flower-adorned hat is becoming hackneyed, but the idea is still being carried out by the milliners, as it has met with so much favor. The simple field blossoms and rasses look quite exquisite in connection with new felt hats, of rich outer color. White hats are still seen with the trimming of pure white ostrich feathers. Velvet ribbon is making its appearance as a hat trimming, and it is very successful when mingled with illusion net. Brims are lined with colored or black silk, or use a little bias covers the edge.

Overcasting of Sleeves.
To overcast the sleeve seams and fasten them at the same time was the invention of one woman who was reared for time. By overcasting the sleeves the busting was avoided and here were no busting threads to pull out. Sleeves put in in this manner are easier to stitch on the machine.

From the State Capital

Information and Gossip Furnished by Special Correspondent at Lansing.

Lansing.—A bill placing telephone and telegraph companies under the ad valorem system of taxation was made the subject of a sharp debate in the house Wednesday afternoon and the supporters of the measure lacked but five votes of the necessary two-thirds to secure a suspension of the rules, which would have insured its passage. Wednesday morning the house judiciary committee decided by a vote of 4 to 3, to indefinitely postpone further consideration of the anti-lobbying bill on the ground that the bill was not well drafted, that there was no need of it at this time and that it could be passed by the next legislature if deemed advisable. A little later the committee on general taxation voted, 4 to 2, to postpone further consideration of the telephone and telegraph bill. Hearing of this action, the attorney general hastily found a copy of a bill introduced last session taxing car loaning companies and fast freight lines and fixed up a new bill to amend the title of the old one so as to include telephone and telegraph companies. It was introduced by Representative Jerome, who immediately moved a suspension of the rules in order to send the bill to the committee of the whole. This served to open up the fireworks and an hour was spent in debating the merits of the proposition. Representatives Galbraith, Campbell and Simpson contended that the operations of the bill would be unfair to the small telephone companies throughout the state and also work to the disadvantage of the Postal Telegraph company, as against the Western Union. Representatives Jerome, Dust, Miller and Walters talked in favor of the bill, arguing that a principle was involved and that responsibility of taxing the various companies rested with the state tax commission and not with the legislature. As 90 members had answered roll call it required 60 to suspend the rules, the motion being defeated, 55 to 33.

Potato Crop Is Large.

The continued wet weather held the frost back late enough in the season for the tubers, with the exception of the very latest ones planted, to ripen sufficiently to assure the farmers of a good quality. Farmers report the crop to be the best for several years back, not only in quality, but in quantity, due, they claim, to the wet weather in July and August. One farmer claims to have filled a half-bushel measure from four ordinary hills in his field and feels confident the field will yield on the average from 250 to 300 bushels per acre. The heavy rains of the last few weeks instead of damaging the crop by rotting as is reported in other sections of the country and other states, seems to have been what was most needed for the crop in northern Michigan, as the old farmer would say, "It has spoiled all my little potatoes—made them big." This year promises to be the best in many seasons for the tubers in this section of the country, both in quantity and quality.

Beet Sugar Making Begins.

Sugar making in the Saginaw valley factories has begun. The season promises well. Within the past few days weighing stations were opened at Brent Creek, Montrose, Arthur, Freeland, Lawndale, Graham, Birch Run and Hemlock, and all of the 16 stations in the vicinity of Saginaw are now in operation. Beets are coming in freely and indications point to about the same tonnage of beets as last year. Tests show the beets will run close to the coveted 16 per cent.

Celery Crop Is Good.

The celery crop in the vicinity of Holland, Zeeland, Vriesland and Hudsonville is nearly double the yield of last year, while the quality is excellent. The daily shipments are so large that the express company is being pressed to the limit of its carrying capacity, and old baggage cars are being used to transport it to the Chicago market. The celery is grown largely by Hollanders, who seem to be adepts at the business.

Many Die by Violence.

The monthly report shows 2,822 deaths and 4,151 accidents in the state during September. Of the deaths, 751 were those of elderly people and 728 were children, under one year. Violence caused the deaths of 224, consumption 151, and 153 died of cancer. Four deaths were from tetanus and one by lightning. The births increased 357 over last September.

To Talk Trust Curbing.

Gov. Warner has named the following delegates to attend the conference on combinations and trusts to be held at Chicago October 22-25, under the auspices of the National Civic Federation: George H. Harbour, W. D. Mackay, Ryerson Nichols, Hal H. Smith, J. B. Howarth, John F. Hogan, F. B. Smith, Detroit; J. Dallas Dort, Flint; J. W. Tower, H. S. Jordan, William Judson, Grand Rapids; H. A. Frankbach, Cheboygan; Carman N. Smith, Bay City; F. B. Woodward, Owasco; J. N. Burroughs, Marshall.

Exposes Chicago Sausage.

"Thank God, the time has come when a firm like Armour & Co. cannot continue to shove down the throats of the people of Michigan something that is in violation of the law." So said Deputy Attorney General Charles W. McGill in a fiery address before Judge Coolidge at St. Joseph. He was asking that the injunction imposed by this court against the state dairy and food department of the state restraining it from interfering with the business of Armour & Co. in Michigan be removed. "We object," said McGill, "to Chicago firms shipping Chicago water in here and selling it as sausage. That is what they are doing, and we are prepared to prove it. Our chemists have been at work on this matter for some time and I don't think that there are very many things about sausage which they cannot inform us about. They don't mention water in their complaint. They simply state that they are using cereals, nice, clean cereals, but they forget to admit that they are using the cereals for a sponge which holds up as high as 50 per cent water in the sausage." The Chicago corporation replied, alleging that it is well within the law and asking that the injunction be made permanent. The case was taken under advisement by the court.

New Primary Bill.

The new primary bill prepared by the attorney-general's department was discussed in caucus by the senate boxers and introduced by Senator Peck. Under the attorney-general's bill the first Tuesday in September is fixed as general primary day except in cities which do not elect municipal officers in November, when the date is fixed for the second Tuesday prior to the municipal election. All county conventions must be held within 15 days after the primary day to be fixed by the state central committee. The state convention is to be held within 40 days after the primary. It is expressly provided that unless candidates for governor and lieutenant governor receive 40 per cent of the enrolled vote at the primary election the nominations shall be made by the state convention. All voters are compelled to enroll under some party designation to be entitled to vote and various enrollment days are provided for. Where the part of any district has adopted the primary system it is not made compulsory to submit the proposition to the whole district, but it may be done on petition of 20 per cent of the enrolled voters. Nominations of candidates for United States senator are to be made by primary vote under the terms of the bill.

Will Test the Auto Act.

The state law regulating the speed of automobiles is to be tested from Kalamazoo county. William Dutton, who was arrested several weeks ago charged with violating the law by driving his machine 23 miles an hour within the city limits, the law placing the limit at 15 miles, took an appeal from the recorder's court. Judge Mills, in the circuit court, contended that the law was unconstitutional in that the state has no right to legislate as to speed within the city limits. If the decision is against Dutton in the circuit court the case will go to the supreme court.

Why U. of M. Is Famous.

In reply to the suit of the regents of the University of Michigan, who asked to have them restrained from selling copies of lectures delivered to the students of the law department, Edward Bros., stenographers, allege that they have permission of the professors who delivered them to circulate the lectures. They also say that their sale of the lectures has given the university a "world-wide reputation."

All Want Michigan Men.

One of the greatest demonstrations of the wisdom in the selection of university professors for Michigan is apparent. C. L. de Muralt was no sooner appointed professor than he received the commission of consulting engineer to the state railways of Austria in connection with the electrification of the Arberg tunnel under the Tyrolean Alps.

Legislature Adjourns.

The Michigan legislature adjourned, leaving much important business unfinished. The telegraph and telephone tax bill and the bill to prevent stock watering were both snowed under, but the primary election bill was passed.

Michigan Day at Jamestown.

Michigan day at the Jamestown exposition, October 29, promises to attract many prominent men. Gov. Warner has received many inquiries regarding the trip from mayors of cities, county officials and others, and it now seems likely that the excursion from Detroit on Saturday, October 25 will carry a large crowd of Michiganders to the fair. The fare from Detroit to Jamestown and return is $18.00 and the sleeper fare each way six dollars for each person. Tickets are good for 15 days.

RESTAURANT AFFILIATIONS.

The waiter in the light-lunch cafe looked expectantly at the first of five men who had just entered.
"Bring me a coffee cake and a cup of coffee," ordered the first man.
"I'll take some milk biscuit and a glass of milk," said the second.
"Tea buns and a cup of tea, please," remarked the third.
"A piece of coconut pie and a cup of cocoa," said the fourth.
The waiter passed on to the fifth man.
"Don't say it, don't say it," he pleaded. "I know what you want. You want a slice of chocolate cake and a cup of chocolate."
"No, I do not," protested the fifth man. "I want a plate of ice cream and a glass of ice water."—Judge.

Never Recovered.

"No, I don't like her, she made a fool of me five years ago."
"Have you only been that way for five years?"—Washington Star.

STANDS TO REASON.

Babel—I would I were a soldier boy.
Clara—That you might—what?
Babel—That I might nothing. Haven't you noticed how often they become engaged in battle?

Someday.

Someday, when all life's lessons have been learned,
And guys with autos know a thing or two,
When their machines have twisted been and turned Into a pile of junk; when black and blue
Their bodies, then, perhaps, they'll regulate their speed,
And care about the way they risk their necks;
And maybe then we'll never have to read
About so many careless auto wrecks.
—Milwaukee Sentinel.

She Might.

"So," she said, "you have made up your mind never to marry?"
"Yes, after thinking it over for a long time I have decided never to ask any girl to be my wife."
"Pshaw! Don't feel that way about it. You never can judge by appearances how foolish some girls are. The very first one you asked might be willing to marry you."

Not Understood.

"What makes you think some women find it difficult to understand subjects like the tariff?" inquired the suffragette.
"The frequency," answered the mere man, "with which a number of them have recently been caught smuggling."—Washington Star.

Wooden.

"Whew!" exclaimed the young gentleman who had taken the object of his affections for a row up the river; "the sun is so powerful that my head feels on fire."
"Really!" was the unsympathetic rejoinder. "I thought I could smell burning wood somewhere!"

Masculine Ignorance.

A young lady, who often thought out loud, had just been shown through a garter factory.
"Heavens!" she exclaimed; "30,000,000 pair in one year? I don't see where they all go to."
"Neither do I," replied the young man, coloring slightly.—Judge.

That Kind.

Will They Do It?

Ann Arbor Times: The constitutional convention, of which much has been said and written during the past few months, will hold its initial meeting in the capitol at Lansing to-day and it will require but a few days to determine whether the work which it has assembled to do will be confirmed by the people or suffer the fate of the constitution written by the convention of forty years ago. The convention which organizes to-day will number in its membership many men capable of rendering the state excellent service, but it remains to be seen whether the intriguers, the men with axes to grind and the mere political adventurers who have crept in will develop a strength which will prevent sane action or whether the clean, able men who are well disposed will unite and control the convention and produce results worthy of adoption. The latter element predominates in the membership as matters now stand, but there are a few smooth gentlemen, men who stand well at home, but who out in the field of politics are time servers, and the fear is that being "up to snuff" and on the lookout all the time they will be able to control when they ought to follow. The few names mentioned by the Detroit papers by no means comprise all the men well equipped for the work in hand and that fact strengthens the hope that the better element will take and hold control of the convention.

Most Hearty Reception.

Fowlerville Standard: On Friday evening last, at the M. E. church was given a reception for Rev. Stephens at which nearly 200 were present. The church rostrum was handsomely decorated with autumn leaves and flowers. It was a very enjoyable occasion and the welcome accorded Rev. Stephens was cordial. After a pleasant visit and handshaking the company was served with ice cream and cake. Judging from present indications Rev. Stephens and family have made a most favorable impression with Fowlerville citizens and the Standard hopes that during their stay with us they may never find a cause for regret in coming to Fowlerville.

Women's Literary Club.

The Woman's Literary Club held its second regular meeting Oct. 18th. The meeting was presided over by the President. There were 17 active and 5 associate members present. Roll call responded to by quotations from J. G. Holland. The program was carried out by second division with Mrs. Wm. Rattenbury as leader. A paper on the Biographical Sketch of J. G. Holland's life was read by Miss Riddle. Selections from "Kathrina" were read by Mrs. F. Shattuck. "Current Events" were given by Mrs. J. S. Moon. Mrs. Wm. Rattenbury read a fine paper on The Achievements of the Nineteenth Century. After varied remarks on J. G. Holland's "Bitter Sweet," the Club adjourned to meet Nov. 1st 1907.—Sec.

What News Means.

Frequently you pick up a local paper and after glancing at it, wearily thrust it aside, remarking, "Nothing in the old paper!" Did you ever stop to think what that phrase means? It means that no misfortune has befallen anyone in our village; that no fire has wiped out a neighbor's worldly goods; that the grim angel of death has not crossed the threshold of a friend; that no man driven by liquor, hatred or fear, has taken the life of a fellow being; that no poor being haunted by the past or misdeeds of some other, has crossed the great divide by his own hand, and many other things that ought not to have happened. So next time you pick up a paper and its headlines do not announce a tragedy, give a little thanks instead of grumbling because there is no news.

Hard Times in Kansas.

The old days of grasshoppers and drought are almost forgotten in the prosperous Kansas of today; although a citizen of Odell, Earl Shamburg, has not yet forgotten a hard time he encountered. He says: "I was worn out and discouraged by coughing night and day, and could find no relief till I tried Dr. King's New Discovery. It took less than one bottle to completely cure me." The safest and most reliable cough and cold cure and lung and throat healer ever discovered. Guaranteed by The Wolverine Drug Co. and John L. Gale. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

James Lynn, step-father of the bride, performing the ceremony. The happy couple left on the evening train for the groom's home and will spend the winter in Florida. Congratulations are extended by the many friends of the bride at this place.

Miss Mary Gunther, of this township and Willard Hueston, of Canton, were married on the Mrs. Elton E. Nellis farm, north of this village, Wednesday evening of last week. Rev. Stedman, of Wayne, performed the ceremony before a large number of relatives and friends. Didn't Believe in Advertising.

Once there was a man who did not believe advertising could do him a bit of good [there are a few such in Plymouth]. One day he lost a $30 bill and he rushed to the newspaper office, not because he believed in advertising, but because he wanted to let the people know he had lost his money. The notice cost him 35 cents. The paper fell into the hands of an honorable man who had found the money and it was safely returned to its owner. Did it do the man any good to advertise? Suppose the man who found it had never learned who lost the money.

The members of Plymouth Hive met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Henry Andrews. It was with regret that the resignation of Mrs. Smuch as record keeper was accepted, the family having removed to Detroit. The members also regret the departure of Mrs. Romano for Traverse City. Plymouth's loss will be no loss to the order as both members will unite with Hives in their respective homes, realizing that they cannot afford to forfeit their membership in the order.

Mrs. George Schryer was elected to the office of record keeper. Several applications for membership were acted upon. After the business of the afternoon was finished, the literary program was taken up and proved very gratifying to the members. The Hive adjourned to meet next Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Hyde.

Invited to Dinner.

The Emotional Yankee—Come along to dinner. Pot luck. We always have something good to eat and enough for ten. To-night it will be chicken soup, chicken fricassee.

The Egotistical Englishman—Forget it! Forget it! There's one thing we Brits can't stand, and that is boiling the jules out of a chicken and making two courses of the bird. Now, if you had said roast chicken—

"Oh, well, I'll telephone to my wife to have a roast instead of a fricassee. That will be—"

"What! Roast a boiled chicken?" "Certainly. What do you do at your home when you boil a chicken, say an aged hen or veteran rooster?"

"We throw away the water and eat the bird; but we never think of making two courses of it!"

His Educational Limit.

A lawyer in Washington was telling some colleagues of neat retorts he had heard in court, when he was reminded of the interchange of compliments between a western judge and a sharp-tongued attorney from Chicago.

The judge, a quick-tempered man, had had several "run-ins" with counsel when suddenly he observed:

"I can teach you law, Mr. Perkins; but I cannot teach you manners."

"That is true, your honor," retorted the Chicago lawyer. — Harper's

TRAVELING BY ELEPHANT.

Uncomfortable Howdah—Fording Rivers and Passing Through Forests.

There were two elephants at our disposal and myself and the interpreter rode the first, each occupying half of the howdah. The howdah has a peculiar and objectionable habit of nearly succeeding in cutting your legs in two. If you hang your legs outside you may pad the edge as much as you like, but if you are new to the game you will wake in about half an hour from an uneasy doze with the painful conviction that the lower halves of your legs have dropped off.

On squirming up into a position from which you can view the outside world you will see they are still dangling there, but with an irresponsibility which suggests that they have been frayed through to the last shred. Abnormal efforts allow you to drag them safely inside and you think it will be better in future to keep them there.

The elephant is almost as fine a vehicle to see the surrounding country from as a London bus, and there is a considerable element of excitement in his progression. The elephant I rode had a fatal habit when it came to a river bank or bit of rough ground of looking around and picking out what seemed the worst bit he could see.

Down one side of a river it seemed as if he was engaged in trying to stand on his head and I could look out of the howdah, although I was lying therein, and observe the fishes darting over the stones in the water just under my lord's noble forehead. More than once on these journeys the beast would patiently slouch through the trees and bushes off the track in search of something edible quite regardless of the fact that the branches threatened to sweep howdah and everything else over the stern.

But quite one of the most peculiar sensations was when they took it into their heads to have a scratch against the telegraph poles. It would be a wonderful line which could withstand the solid work the elephant expects its posts to carry out and when the number two beast leaned too hard and the post snapped I could almost see the mild and somewhat indignant surprise reflected from one intelligent face to the other.—Singapore Free Press.

A Necklace Which Brings Ill Luck.

An eerie story is told about a necklace which formerly belonged to the Maharannee of Cooh Behar, India, and which is supposed to bring bad fortune to every one connected with it.

The history of the necklace—pearls and turquoises, which are not usually considered to be unlucky stones—is certainly peculiar. While it was in the Maharannee's possession she was robbed of a quantity of valuable jewelry, and the Maharajah lost some of his best racing ponies by death and breakdowns. The advice of a pundit was sought. He prescribed a change of ownership and a voyage across the sea in order to break the spell, and the necklace was accordingly given to a lady in England, says "Woman's Life."

As a result the Maharajah has begun to win races again and the Maharannee has recovered the stolen property, but the story goes that the present owner of the necklace has been the victim of persistent ill fortune from the day that it came into her possession.

Geese on a Cider Spree.

Martin Beck, a farmer on the Coneyago hills, is humiliated to admit that three of his geese went on a disgraceful spree after having eaten some pulp from a cider mill.

Some time after the eating of the pulp, the peculiar action of the fowls attracted the attention of the farmer. They swayed from side to side and cackled hoarsely. Finally one by one they fell limp and apparently dead.

Mrs. Beck carried the fowls into the house, with the intention of plucking them, when they revived.

Since then the geese have kept away from the cider mill, and have tried to prevent other geese from going near it.—Philadelphia North American.

Best Diamond Mine.

The Premies is by far the largest and most valuable individual diamond mine ever found in South Africa, and it is probably not an exaggeration to say that it is one of the most valuable mines of any kind ever discovered in the world. It is estimated that when its full plant is at work it will make profit at the rate of $9,648,000 a year, the life of the mine on this basis being well over 50 years.

A Trust Case.

"Do you refuse to answer on the ground that you might incriminate yourself?"

"I'll leave that to the court. If I told 'the truth' I'd get a year. The 'whole truth' would mean at least ten years, and 'nothing but the truth' would be life, sure."

So they rated him as immune and called a witness who knew nothing of the case.—Judge.

The goosebone prophets are now beginning to get in their work. One of them has doped it out that this coming winter is going to be like that of two years ago, when there wasn't any snow until well along into spring time. Another man just as learned as the other says it is going to be a regular old timer with a big storm October 31, and six or eight falls of snow every week until the middle of next April.—Tremont News.

The state tax rate this year will be $2.53 on $1,000 valuation and the county will approximate 28 cents. The total amount to be raised for county and state taxes is $1,324,877.83. The city will pay about 81 per cent. of the taxes and the county 19. The total amount to be raised for good roads is $70,000. This will be expended on Michigan, Gratiot, Grand River, Fort street and River road and in minor repairs on several other trunk roads in the county.

The managing head of one of the Hillsdale factories read recently in a newspaper or magazine that picric acid solution applied to a burn would afford immediate relief. One of the employes of the factory burned his hand badly one day this week, and the manager recommended a trial of this solution. The man was suffering severely from his burn but on securing the solution at the drug store and applying it, was relieved of his distress almost instantly. This is worth remembering. The yellow stains resulting from its use may be removed with boracic acid solution.—Hillsdale Democrat.

Pay Your Newspaper Accounts.

The unprecedented high price of print paper and the ascending scale of prices of every other commodity has brought the dollar-a-year country news papers up against a serious proposition. A good many publications—including many Michigan papers—are taking the opportunity to put the subscription price up to $1.50. The price of The Mail still remains at the dollar mark, but we would request that all renew their subscriptions promptly and those in arrears pay up at once. Under prevailing conditions it is a losing proposition to carry a delinquent list.

Happy Birthday Party.

On Wednesday last the home John Mathews was the scene of a very pleasant gathering, the occasion being Mrs. Mathews' birthday. Every year a party of her friends from Detroit help her neighbors and Plymouth friends to celebrate the day, which is looked forward to from year to year on account of the very pleasant time they always have, Mrs. Mathews being an ideal hostess. Two of the usual crowd were absent this year, one, Mrs. Brownell, who is in Chicago, and Mrs. Corns of Detroit, who has been taken home during the past year. Those present from out of town were Mesdames Albert and Milton Webb, Mrs. B. E. Tremaine, Mrs. Mary Ebner, Miss O'Leary, Mrs. Dill and George P. Magee, Mrs. John Halahan and Mrs. Anne Dempsey and daughter Alice, all of Detroit.

SERIAL STORY

The Princess Elopes

By HAROLD McGRATH

Author of "The Man on the Box," "Hearts and Masks," Etc.

SYNOPSIS.

Arthur Warrington, American consul to Barschelt, tells how reigning Grand Duke attempts to force his niece, Princess Hildegarde, to marry Prince Doppelkinn, an old widower. Warrington does not know the princess even by sight. While horseback riding in the country night overtakes him and he seeks accommodations in a dilapidated castle. Here he finds two women and an old man servant. One woman is Princess Hildegarde and the other a friend, Hon. Betty Moore, of England. They detain him to witness a mock marriage between the princess and a disgraced army officer, Steinbock, done for the purpose of telling the grand duke. Steinbock attempts to kiss the princess and she is rescued by Warrington. Steinbock disappears for good. Max Scharfenstein, an old American friend of Warrington's reaches Barschelt. Warrington tells him of the princess. Scharfenstein shows Warrington a pocket with a picture of a woman inside. It was on his neck when he, as a boy, was picked up and adopted by his foster father, whose name he was given. He believes it to be a picture of his mother.

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

"You poor old Dutchman, you! You can buy a genealogy with your income. And a woman nowadays marries the man, the man, it's only horses, dogs and cattle that we buy for their pedigrees. Come, you ought to have a strawberry mark on your arm," I suggested lightly; for there were times when Max brooded over the mystery which enveloped his birth. In reply he rolled up his sleeve and bared a mighty arm. Where the vaccination scar usually is I saw a red patch, like a burn. I leaned over and examined it. It was a four-pointed scar, with a perfect circle around it. Somehow, it seemed to me that this was not the first time I had seen this peculiar mark. I did not recollect ever seeing it on Max's arm. Where had I seen it, then?

"It's a curious scar. Hang me, but I've seen the device somewhere before!"

"You have?"—eagerly. "Where, where?"

"I don't know; possibly I saw it on your arm in the old days."

He sank back in his chair. Silence, during which the smoke thickened and the pup whined softly in his sleep. Out upon the night the cathedral bell boomed the third hour of morning.

"If you don't mind, Artie," said Max, yawning, "I'll turn in. I've been traveling for the past fortnight."

"Take a ride on Dandy in the morning. He'll hold your weight nicely. I can't go with you, as I've a lame ankle."

"I'll be in the saddle at dawn. All I need is a couple of hours between sheets."

CHAPTER V.

That same evening the grand duke's valet knocked on the door leading into the princess' apartments, and when the door opened he gravely announced that his serene highness desired to speak to the Princess Hildegarde. It was a command. For some reason, known best to herself, the princess chose to obey it.

"Say that I shall be there presently," she said, dismissing the valet.

As she entered her uncle's study—so called because of its dust-laden bookshelves, though the duke sometimes disturbed their contents to steady the leg of an unbalanced chair or table—he laid down his pipe and dismissed his small company of card players.

"I did not expect to see you so soon," he began. "A woman's curiosity sometimes has its value. It takes little to arouse it, but a great deal to allay it."

"You have not summoned me to make smart speeches, simply because I have been educated up to them?"—traculently.

"No. I have not summoned you to talk smart, a word much in evidence in Barschelt since your return from England. For once I am going to use a woman's prerogative. I have changed my mind."

The Princess Hildegarde trembled with delight. She could put but one meaning to his words.

"The marriage will not take place next month."

"Uncle!"—rapturously.

"Wait a moment,"—grimly. "It shall take place next week."

"I warn you not to force me to the altar," cried the girl, trembling thus with a cold fury.

"My child, you are too young in spirit and too old in mind to be allowed a gateless pasture. In harness you will do very well." He took up his pipe and primed it. It was rather embarrassing to look the girl in the eye. You shall wed Doppelkinn next week."

"You will find it rather embarrassing to be so old in mind and so young in spirit?"

scandal of such magnitude. You are untamable, but you are proud."

When these two talked without apparent heat it was with unalterable fixedness of purpose. They were of a common race. The duke was determined that she should wed Doppelkinn; she was equally determined that she should not. The gentleman with the algebraic bump may figure this out to suit himself.

"Have you no pity?"

"My reason overshadows it. You do not suppose that I take any especial pleasure in forcing you? But you leave me no other method."

"You loved my aunt once,"—a broken note in her voice.

"I love her still,"—not unkindly; "but I must have peace in the house. Observe what you have so far accomplished in the matter of creating turmoil." The duke took up a paper.

"My sins?"—contemptuously.

"Let us call them your transgressions. Listen. You have ridden a horse as a man rides it; you have ridden bicycles in public streets; you have stolen away to a masked ball; you ran away from school in Paris and visited heaven knows whom; you have bribed sentries to let you in when you were out late; you have thrust aside the laws as if they meant nothing; you have trifled with the state papers and caused the body politic to break up a meeting as a consequence of the laughter."

The girl, as she recollected this day to which he referred, laughed long and joyously. He waited patiently till she had done, and I am not sure that his mouth did not twist under his beard.

"Foreign education is the cause of all this," he said finally. "Those cursed French and English schools have

"Poor, foolish child! What a terrible thing this might have turned out to be!"

"What do you mean?"

"Mean! Do you suppose anything like this could take place without my hearing of it? And such a dishonest, unscrupulous rascal! Some day I shall thank the American consul personally for his part in the affair. I was waiting to see when you would produce this. You virtually placed your honor and reputation, which I know to be above reproach, into the keeping of a man who would sell his soul for a thousand crowns."

The girl felt her knees give way, and she sat down. Tears slowly welled up in her eyes, and overflowed, blurring everything.

The duke got up and went over to his desk, rummaging among the papers. He returned to the girl with a letter.

"Read that, and learn the treachery of the man you trusted."

The letter was written by Steinbock. In it he disclosed all. It was a venomous, insulting letter. The girl crushed it in her hand.

"Is he dead?" she asked, all the bitterness in her heart surging to her lips.

"To Barschelt,"—briefly. "Now, what shall I do with this?"—tapping the bogus certificate.

"Give it to me," said the girl wearily. She ripped it into halves, into quarters, into infinitesimal squares, and tossed them into the waste-basket.

"I am the unhappiest girl in the world."

"It isn't as if I had forced Doppelkinn on you without first letting you have your choice. You have rejected the ruined you. And I was fool enough to send you to them. This is the end."

"Is He Dead?" She Asked.

"Or the beginning,"—rebelliously.

"Doppelkinn is mild and kind."

"Mild and kind! One would think that you were marrying me to a horse! Well, I shall not enter the cathedral."

"How will you avoid it?"—calmly.

"I shall find a way; wait and see." She was determined.

"I shall wait." Then, with a sudden softening, for he loved the girl after his fashion: "I am growing old, my child. If I should die, what would become of you? I have no son; your Uncle Franz, who is but a year or two younger than I am, would reign, and he would not tolerate your madcap ways. You must marry at once. I love you in spite of your willfulness. But you have shown yourself incapable of loving. Doppelkinn is wealthy. You shall marry him."

"I will run away, uncle,"—decidedly.

"I have notified the frontiers,"—tranquilly. "From now on you will be watched. It is the inevitable, my child, and even I have to bow to that."

She touched the paper in her hand, but paused.

"Moreover, I have decided, what on the duke, 'to send the Honorable Betty Moore back to England.'"

"Betty?"

"Yes. She is a charming young person, but she is altogether too sympathetic. She abets you in all you do. Her English independence does not conform with my ideas. After the wedding I shall notify her father."

"Everything, everything! My friends, my liberty, the right God gives to every woman—to love whom she will! And you, my uncle, rob me of these things! What if I should tell you that marriage with me is now impossible?"—her lips growing thin.

"I should not be very much surprised."

"Please look at this, then, and you will understand why I can not marry Doppelkinn." She thrust the bogus certificate into his hands.

The duke read it carefully, not a muscle in his face disturbed. Finally he looked up with a terrified expression.

princes of a dozen wealthy countries. We are not as the common people; we can not marry where we will. I shall announce that the marriage will take place next week."

"Do not send my friend away," she pleaded, apparently tamed.

"I will promise to give the matter thought. Good night."

She turned away without a word and left him. When he roared at her she knew by experience that he was harmless; but this quiet determination meant the exclusion of any further argument. There was no escape unless she ran away. She wept on her pillow that night, not so much at the thought of wedding Doppelkinn as at the fact that Prince Charming had evidently missed the last train and was never coming to wake her up, or, if he did come, it would be when it was too late. How many times had she conjured him up, as she rode in the fresh fairness of the mornings! How many he was and how his voice thrilled her! Her horse was suddenly to run away, he was to rescue her, and then demand her hand in marriage as a fitting reward. Sometimes he had black hair and eyes, but more often he was big and tall, with yellow hair and the blue-est eyes in all the world.

Animals Fight in Shack.

From Bristol's woods, in Southern Prospect, a village near Waterbury, Conn., a wildcat pursued a big deer until from exhaustion it fell through the roof of the side hill hen shack of Edson Black. Guinea fowls set up a great commotion, and with the deer's desperate struggles for liberty, cooped up in a shack 15x17, with nearly 80 fowls, there was such a racket that a trusty watchdog awoke Black. He went to the henhouse to find 32 fowls trampled to death, every pane of glass and all the roosts broken and the deer dying of a broken neck. Its flanks were decorated from the claws of the wildest tracks of which were in the shack, where it remained until fright drove away by the approach of Black.

HOW TO COOK VEAL

SEVERAL DAINY DISHES PREPARED FOR TWO PEOPLE.

Braised Cutlets à la Creole That Will Prove Appetizing—A Chafing Dish to Dispose of Left-Overs.

Copyright, 1917, The Delineator, New York.

Braised Cutlets à la Creole—Melt a tablespoonful of lard in a frying-pan. Chop four small onions fine and let them fry for a moment in the hot lard. Then season four chops, or cutlets, with salt and pepper, dredge them with flour, and place them on top of the frying onions. When they have simmered for a few minutes, turn them; and, at the expiration of another two or three minutes, add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, a little chopped parsley, a threaded clove of garlic, a bay-leaf and some thyme. Turn the veal from time to time, until it has browned on both sides; then add a coffee-cupful of hot water, cover the pan, and let the water come to a boil quickly. At this point, remove it to the back of the stove, where it can do no more than simmer, and leave it for two hours. Remove the garlic and bay-leaf, garnish with freshly chopped parsley, and serve.

Perfection Stew—Much as many people object to the stew, or to any dish that savors of it, the cook who is willing to take some pains in preparing the vands for her table can serve a veal stew in such a manner that the fact that it is a "stew" will never be suspected. To do this she must first make a rich white sauce by using a heaping tablespoonful of flour and a goodly proportioned piece of butter to a cupful of good milk, or cream. When this sauce has commenced to boil, she must take some thin slices of cold veal and lay them in it, adding half a dozen mushrooms, chopped, and a little minced parsley. Simmer until the meat has become heated through, when it is ready for the table.

Veal in Chafing Dish—The appearance of a chafing dish at supper, or even at luncheon, often adds materially to the delights of the repast, so if you have a chafing dish that can be called into service, try it some day when you want to dispose of some left-overs from the roast of veal. To do this, melt some butter in the pan, and fry some chopped onions in it until they have browned nicely; then add a cupful of veal gravy, or white stock, and lay the slices of veal in it. Season with salt, pepper, and mushroom catsup, and, at the end of two or three minutes, add a well-beaten egg, and serve immediately.

English Veal Cake—When so much of the roast has been used that it is no longer possible to get slices, there are still several methods by which it can be prepared most appetizingly. Purchase a few slices of boiled ham and two eggs, and you can serve one of the famous English veal cakes. Here is the recipe: Take about a pound of cold roast veal; remove all fat, etc., and chop it into small pieces. Grease a plain mold and put into it alternate layers of chopped veal, hard-boiled eggs, and boiled ham in slices, with chopped parsley and salt and pepper between each layer, until the mold is nearly full. Next, take some good stock and flavor it with tarragon, mace and pepper to taste. Pour this over the other ingredients until the mold is filled almost to the brim. Bake it for half an hour, but do not serve it until it has become so cold that it can be sliced neatly. Served with a garnish of crisp watercress, these slices of veal-cake make a most acceptable hot-weather luncheon dish.

Russian Croquettes—Another minced-veal dish that will appeal attractively to lovers of nice eating is known as "Russian croquettes." To make them, mince a pound of cold veal, and season it with pepper, salt, a little nutmeg and half a teaspoonful of grated lemon peel, and moisten with a sauce made as follows: Heat a coffee-cupful of milk to the boiling point; then add a slice of onion, a stalk of celery, chopped, a bay-leaf, half a dozen peppercorns, and parsley, thyme and mace. Do not let the mixture actually boil, but keep it simmering steadily for fully 15 minutes. Then strain, season to taste with salt and pepper, and thicken with a blend of flour and butter. While this sauce is being prepared, roll some puff paste very thin, and, when the sauce and meat have been combined, shape a tablespoonful of the mixture into the shape of a croquette, and roll it up in a strip of the puff paste, pressing the ends together closely. Have some lard ready and fry the croquettes brown. Drain carefully, and serve with mustard, cream, or sorrel and bits of lemon. They must not be put on a cold platter nor kept standing, because, to be really delectable, croquettes should be served very hot.

Quaintest of Wraps.

The quaintest of wraps to be introduced this season is the shawl of chiffon, thin silk or crepe de chine edged with tiny flounces headed with baby velvet ribbon and draped with the same ribbon. They are drawn down the middle of the back with the ribbon.

For Embroidery Edges.

Many garments are spoiled by having the embroidered edge split and frayed by a careless laundress. The garment can be made to last twice as long and many dollars saved by stitching around the scallops twice this makes a strong, firm edge and does not detract from its appearance.

Mrs. L. G. P.

FIVE MONTHS IN HOSPITAL.

Discharged Because Doctors Could Not Cure.

Levi P. Brockway, S. Second Ave., Anoka, Minn., says: "After lying for five months in a hospital I was discharged as incurable, and given only six months to live. My heart was affected, I had smothering spells, and sometimes fell unconscious. I got so I couldn't use my arms, my eyesight was impaired and the kidney secretions were badly disordered. I was completely worn out and discouraged when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, but they went right to the cause of the trouble and did their work well. I have been feeling well ever since."

A GOLDEN BALL.

British Soldiers Played the National Game With It.

Probably no game of ball, by professional or college team, was ever watched with such inner interest but with such outward indifference as one described in Gertrude Vanderbilt's "Social History of Flatbush." It happened in revolutionary times, when the British soldiers were stationed on Long Island. The inhabitants had hidden their valuables in all possible places. One lady concealed some gold coins in a ball-shaped pincushion of the kind worn by the Dutch housewife, suspended at her side.

She was sitting sewing one day when a party of British soldiers entered the room. A young officer, spying what to him was a novelty, cut with his sword the ribbon by which the cushion was hung and began a game of ball.

Soon the rest of the company joined the sport. Boisterously, from hand to hand, the ball was batted to and fro. It was roughly snatched and tossed, and sometimes it fell into the ashes of the fireplace, and barely escaped conflagration. Now and again a soldier would catch it on the tip of his sword and send it spinning on with a rent in its side.

Every moment threatened to reveal the precious contents. To show the least anxiety was to betray the secret, and the owner was forced to sit unmoved, apparently intent on her work, and to see her fortune flying through the air, at the mercy of the enemy. At last the cushion, torn and battered, but still guarding its treasure, was returned to its mistress, and the intruders, tired of their play, left the house.—Youth's Companion.

A Whistler Criticism.

The late James McNeill Whistler was standing bareheaded in a hat shop, the clerk having taken his hat to another part of the shop for comparison. "A man rushed in with his hat in his hand and supposing Whistler to be a clerk angrily confronted him.

"See here," he said, "This hat doesn't fit."

Whistler eyed the stranger from head to foot and then drawled out:

"Well, neither does your coat. What's more, if you'll pardon my saying so, I'll be hanged if I care much for the color of your trousers."—"Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree" in Everybody's.

WHEN MILESTONES CHEER.

They Always Gladden the Heart of the Pedestrian.

In a walking-trip a milestone along the way is the most companionable fellow in the world; your spirits rise as you near him as though you were about to greet a human friend, and they keep almost constantly on his high level till his brother a mile distant advances to meet you.

And when you overlook one of this friendly company because of an encroaching bank or screening boughs, says the Travel Magazine, his neighbor further on comes to you doubly welcome. At the latter end of this passage in the journey your spirits flag a trifle as though oppressed by a sense of desertion. You may even scowl at the overhanging bank which is more than a party to this concealment.

Those worthy persons who attend to the roads should see to it that every milestone within their province stands out frankly from its leafy background. Observance of this, however, would rob the wayfarer of that leap of the heart which is his when the stone tells the story of two miles done rather than one. For however much the landscape and the minute world at his feet may claim the footfarer's admiration he is still keenly alive to the virtue of decent distances covered in his day's journey.

IN LIFE'S BRIEF SPAN.

Experiences, Joys and Sorrows of the Human Existence.

The loves and friendships of individuals partake of the frail character of human life, and are brief and uncertain. The experience of a human life may be shortly summed up: A little loving and a good deal of sorrowing; some bright hopes and many bitter disappointments; some gorgeous Thursdays when the skies are bright and the heavens blue, when Providence, bending over us in blessings, glads the heart almost to madness; many dismal Fridays, when the smoke of torment beclouds the mind and undying sorrows gnaw upon the heart; some high ambitions and many Waterloo defeats, until the heart becomes like a charnel house filled with dead affections, embalmed in holy but sorrowful memories; and then the chord is loosed, the golden bowl is broken, the individual life—a cloud, a vapor, passes away.—Matthew Hale Carpenter.

WHAT IS PE-RU-NA?

Is it a Catarrh Remedy, or a Tonic, or is it Both?

Some people call Peruna a great tonic. Others refer to Peruna as a great catarrh remedy.

Which of these people are right? Is it more proper to call Peruna a catarrh remedy than to call it a tonic?

Our reply is, that Peruna is both a tonic and a catarrh remedy. Indeed, there can be no effectual catarrh remedy that is not also a tonic.

In order to thoroughly relieve any case of catarrh, a remedy must not only have a specific action on the mucous membrane affected by the catarrh, but it must have a general tonic action on the nervous system.

Catarrh, even in persons who are otherwise strong, is a weakened condition of some mucous membrane. There must be something to strengthen the circulation, to give tone to the arteries, and to raise the vital forces.

Perhaps no vegetable remedy in the world has attracted so much attention from medical writers as HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS. The wonderful efficacy of this herb has been recognized many years, and is growing in its hold upon the medical profession. When joined with CUREES and COPAIBA a trio of medical agents is formed in Peruna which constitutes a specific remedy for catarrh that in the present state of medical progress cannot be improved upon.

From a theoretical standpoint, therefore, Peruna is beyond criticism. The use of Peruna, confirms this opinion. Numberless testimonials from every quarter of the earth furnish ample evidence that this judgment is not over enthusiastic. When practical experience confirms a well-grounded theory the result is a truth that cannot be shaken.

The Sinful Human Heart.

A clergyman was addressing a youthful class in Sunday school. To illustrate the idea of regulating the sinful human heart he took out his watch and held it up that all might see it.

"See this watch," he said. "Just imagine that it does not keep good time—that it goes all ways but the right way. What ought I to do with it?"

"Instantly a little boy held up his hand. 'I know!' he shouted. 'Sell it to a friend.'"

Ugly Appendages.

"Heav'n! Wouldby got his coat-of-arms yet? Why, he told me he was going to look up his ancestry the first chance he got and—"

"Well, I believe he got a chance to look up his family tree, but he saw some things hanging to the branches that discouraged further research."—Catholic Standard and Times.

SOME THINGS YOU CAN'T DO IN THE FATHERLAND.

Fine of Five Dollars for Rebuking a Telephone Girl—A Kiss in the Streets of Russia Costs Three Dollars.

There are places in Germany where you must be very careful what you say. In Saxony you are liable to get run in as a socialist if you don a red tie, and at Katschendorf a visitor received a visit and reprimand from the local police because he wrote them a letter in red ink.

Ems has put its foot down about long trains. Ladies are forbidden to wear them while taking the waters or attending the promenade concerts. The notice points out the danger of causing dust to fly where there are so many invalids. There is a grain of comfort for the smart woman visitor at the end of the notice, in the shape of an order that men shall not smoke during the hours when the invalids are taking their walks.

The town council of Herrnskreechen goes further than that of Ems. Its law runs: "The dragging of ladies' dresses is forbidden on pain of a fine of 20 crowns." A similar enactment has recently come into force at Nordhausen. A fine of two dollars is the penalty for the first offense, $2.50 for the second, and a day's imprisonment for the third.

Germany, take it all around, is more full of ridiculous and tiresome rules and regulations, than any other country on earth. Paragraph 68 of the municipal regulations governing burials at Glessen, in Hesse, was as follows: "Interments are only permitted after death has taken place. In all other cases a certificate signed by the mayor is required." Moral: Don't incur the enmity of the mayor of Glessen or you may find yourself underground before you are ready.

Seriously speaking, there is one thing which the visitor to Germany should be most careful about; not to insult any government official. The German idea of insult is different from ours. A tourist who, after long delay at a Carlsruhe telephone, cried: "Are you asleep, miss?" was arrested and fined five dollars for "an unjustifiable insult."

In Hamburg the street car regulations are no dead letter. When the car is full a sign "Besetzt" is hung out, meaning "occupied." Supposing a lady, then, gets in and a man gets up, and offers her his seat, he, unfortunately fellow, is promptly ejected by the conductor.

In Russia kisses given in public, whether in the street or a restaurant, or even at the open window of a private house, are actionable. A kiss in the open streets costs the offender three dollars. It is a sober fact that in Russia a man may not kiss his wife in public.

France has a number of laws which strikes the stranger as odd. It is, for instance, illegal to take water from the sea. You see, you might be going to make salt, which is a government monopoly. Another enactment, not a bad one in its way, but which would be very likely to be infringed by American families traveling with children, is to the effect that no solid food may be given to babies under one year old. Also nurses may not use for their charges any sort of feeding bottle with a rubber tube. The idea is that rubber tubes harbor poisonous impurities.

Nothing is more apt to raise the suspicion of the foreign official than the ordinary camera. In many places, such as Metz and Strasburg, it is as much as your liberty is worth to be seen snaphooting, at least anywhere near the fortifications. In Pompeii you must pay for each photo you take; in Morocco the camera is a source of danger to its owner, and at Constantinople it is forbidden to carry any photographic apparatus anywhere near the sultan's palace.—Baltimore News.

Cattle Industry in Mexico.

The cattle industry of the state of Tamiapas is coming to the front. One stockman and commission man alone, Bartolo Rodriguez, shipped 48,000 head last year to Cuba and Yucatan, which amounted to $1,500,000. He has a fine ranch near the City of Tampico called Monte Alto, with 300 head of cows and bulls, costing about $500 a head, imported from the United States and Switzerland. Careful estimate made by the shippers to the north of Tampico places the total number of cattle and horses in that area at 2,000,000.—Mexican Herald.

NO STAIN ON HIS RECORD.

That's Where the Driver Had the Best of the Preacher.

A New York clergyman, who often spends his vacation in fishing the streams of the Adirondacks, was on one trip adopted by a handsome setter dog, which insisted on following him from camp to camp, as he moved along the stream.

One day he met a party of men working upstream with a native guide. The guide immediately recognized the dog as his own property.

"Trying to steal my setter, are you?" he shouted at the clergyman. "I'll have you to jail for this! There's a law in the woods just as big as you have in the city."

The clergyman endeavored to explain that he was an unwilling companion of the dog, which had refused to be driven away, but to little effect until he added a two-dollar bill to his arguments.

"It's queer what strange things happen to a man up here," he said to the stage-driver who later carried him away from the woods. "That is the first time I was ever accused of stealing a dog."

"Yes, sir," replied the driver, sympathetically, and added, after a moment's pause, "For myself, sir, I have never been accused of stealing anything."—Youth's Companion.

Saw It Come Out of a Cow.

A little city boy and his sister Dorothy were taken to the country for the first time.

The two children were happy as the day was long. In the late afternoon they watched the cows come home, heard with delight the tinkling cowbells, and the little boy even went to the barns to see the milking done.

At supper, just as Dorothy was lifting her glass to her rosy lips, the boy cried out: "Oh, Dotty, don't! You musn't drink that milk. It's not fit to drink. It came out of a cow; I saw it."

Not to Be Wasted.

Ben Cary had near his house a swamp, which was a breeding-place for herds of man-eating mosquitoes. Some enterprising neighbors, who learned of the crude oil treatment, went to Ben and tried to persuade him to exterminate the pests.

"Exterminate 'em?" said Ben. "Not much. Not much. Why, Mis' Cary an' I just paid $32 for screening the side plazer that she's been pestering me about for years. How we goin' to get any good of it, if we kill off the skeeters?"—Youth's Companion.

OLD SOAKERS

Get Saturated with Caffeine.

When a person has used coffee for a number of years and gradually declined in health, it is time the coffee should be left off in order to see whether or not it has been the cause of the trouble.

A lady in Huntsville, Ala., says she used coffee for about 40 years, and for the past 20 years has had severe stomach trouble. "I have been treated by many physicians but all in vain. Everything failed to give relief. Was prostrated for some time, and came near dying. When I recovered sufficiently to partake of food and drink I tried coffee again and it soured on my stomach.

"I finally concluded that coffee was the cause of my trouble and stopped using it. I tried tea in its place and then milk, but neither agreed with me; then I commenced using Postum. It hit properly made and it was very pleasing to the taste.

"I have now used it four months, and my health is so greatly improved that I can eat almost anything I want and can sleep well, whereas, before, I suffered for years with insomnia. "I have found the cause of my troubles and a way to get rid of them. You can depend upon it, I appreciate Postum." "There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville," in page.

DID NOT WANT TO BUY.

The Great Musician Had No Use for His Production.

A great tenor had been singing for some hours into a phonograph. "The phonograph," he said, "is a wonderful thing. It almost realizes the wish of the Scottish poet, the wish that we might see ourselves as others see us. We can now, at least, hear ourselves, a thing impossible before. The phonograph teaches us many valuable lessons. When I was in the army, before I realized the capabilities of my voice, I played the flute. A phonograph salesman brought a phonograph to my quarters and tried to sell it to me on the instalment plan. I was undecided. Finally the man took out a blank cylinder.

"See," he said, rather reluctantly, "here is a blank cylinder. You may make a record on it, then we will run it off and you shall hear yourself. It's a costly favor I am doing you, but it will show you what a fine instrument this is.

"I was delighted. 'I'll get my flute,' I said. 'I'll play a flute solo.'

"Well, I played my best into the machine. It seemed to me that I had never combined before such feeling with such accuracy. I was more than pleased with myself. Then the man put in the cylinder, and the music began to issue forth. I frowned.

"Is that me?" I said.

"Yes, sir," said the man.

"Really me, just as I played?"

"Precisely, sir, precisely. And now," said he, "do you want to buy the phonograph?"

"No," said I; "I want to sell the flute."

SKIN SORE EIGHT YEARS.

Spent $300 on Doctors and Remedies but Got No Relief—Cuticura Cures in a Week.

"Upon the limbs and between the toes my skin was rough and sore, and also sore under the arms, and I had to stay at home several times because of this affection. Up to a week or so ago I had tried many other remedies and several doctors, and spent about three hundred dollars, without any success, but this is to-day the seventh day that I have been using the Cuticura Remedies (costing a dollar and a half), which have cured me completely, so that I can again attend to my business. I went to work again to-night. I had been suffering for eight years and have now been cured by the Cuticura Remedies within a week. Fritz Hirschclaff, 24 Columbus Ave., New York, N. Y., March 29 and April 6, 1906."

Something New in Tablecloths.

She had come into the store to buy tablecloths and she stated in the beginning that she wanted something "new."

The salesman was patient and showed her everything in stock, but nothing suited. "Oh, dear!" she exclaimed, finally, "haven't you anything different?"

The clerk brought out one of the discarded tablecloths that he had put back on the shelf, and said with an air of interest:

"Here is one of the very newest designs, madam. You see, the center is in the middle and the border runs right around the edge."

"Why, yes! Let me have that one," she said eagerly.

Hospital Story-Telling.

It is curious that philanthropists in search of a novel means of doing good do not engage lecturers and story-tellers to visit hospitals and amuse the patients. A rich man in New York engaged Marshall P. Wilder, the diminutive entertainer, who has given pleasure in nearly every city, to visit regularly certain hospitals in New York. Mr. Wilder was welcomed enthusiastically by the convalescent patients, and his merry stories did them good.

FIRE-KILLED TREES

THEY ARE NOT WORTHLESS AS IS GENERALLY SUPPOSED.

More Serviceable Than Green Timber, Says the Forestry Bureau—Are the Best for Mine Timbers.

A study of the amount, location and quality of fire killed timber, and of the extent to which it is used, has been made by the forest service in a number of the national forests in the southern Rocky mountain region. This brought out very strikingly, first, that sound dried timber is valuable, and, second, that though widely used, in some localities, it is regarded as not worth using in others. The timber which was not being used was found to be fully as good as the other, and the only cause for rejecting it proved to be ignorance of its true value.

The area covered by the study was approximately 13,000,000 acres. On this area there is estimated to be 500,000,000 feet of board measure of merchantable stumpage. About 50 per cent. of this, per cent. of the total merchantable stumpage. About 50 per cent. of this, especially of the larger dimensions, is fit for saw lumber, and all of it can be utilized in the round. There is also a large amount of cordwood, suitable only for fuel, charcoal and similar purposes.

Fire killed timber should be barked soon after it is killed, in order to prevent decay of the surface. If the bark has been left on the sapwood is somewhat decayed. Lodgepole pine and Engelmann spruce have about the same durability; after 25 years about 50 per cent. is usually standing, and the fallen timber, if not flat on the ground, lasts five or six years. Balsam lasts about one-third as long. Standing Douglas fir lasts almost indefinitely, and even when flat on the ground decays but slowly. Yellow pine decays more rapidly since it occurs mainly below an elevation of 9,000 feet. On the other hand, on account of the openness of its stand it is rarely killed by fire.

In many places it is the popular opinion that dead timber is very much weaker than the seasoned timber. It is even held that timber which has been dead a number of years is weaker than green timber and that the longer it stands the weaker it becomes. These views are quite wrong. By actual test it has been shown that sound timber, as a matter of fact, is almost as strong as seasoned green timber, and much stronger than green timber before seasoning.

The chief use to which dead timber is now put is for mine timbers. For this purpose it is even better suited than green timber, because it is perfectly seasoned and is light.

It is estimated that the mines of Leadville, Col., use each month 350,000 feet of board measure of dead timber. There are also many other large mining camps that use it in wholesale quantities. In these camps it is decidedly preferred to green timber.

For 15 years dead timber has been used for railroad ties in the Pike's Peak national forest, where it has proved entirely satisfactory. Wherever dead timber is located sufficiently near the track it is readily sold for ties. Douglas fir, lamber pine, yellow pine, range pine, and, occasionally, Engelmann spruce, are the species used.

In Denver, Col., dead timber has been used for a number of years for boxes, with excellent results. The species used were mainly Engelmann spruce and lodgepole pine. Lamber pine and Douglas fir were also used in small quantities. The first two did very well, especially the spruce, which was used for such exacting packages as cracker and biscuit boxes. Dead timber is eminently suited for making boxes and crates, because it is odorless and is perfectly seasoned. In smaller quantities dead timber has been used for telephone and telegraph poles, dimension stuff and fence posts.

Trade of Porto Rico.

During the 50 years prior to American civil administration of Porto Rico there were but four years in which the balance of trade was in its favor, and this balance aggregated but a little over $2,000,000, while the balance against the island was over $75,000,000. The first two years of civil administration showed a trade balance of $750,000 each against the island, while the last five years show a balance of $7,250,000 in its favor.—Review of Reviews.

A Good Institution.

Matrimony must be a pretty good institution. Judging from the vast number of widows and widowers these days who are willing and even anxious to try it again, "unsight, unseen."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Great Song Town.

Philadelphia prints more than one-quarter of all the music in the United States, and the total amount of it is six times as great as it was 15 years ago. But, while Europe shows no such increase as that, this country's total output is still less than half that of Leipzig, Germany, and less than that of several other European cities. In this city the amount of instrumental music printed used to exceed that of vocal music. This was due, it is said, to the cheapening of pianos in recent years and the popularity of band and guitar music. Now, however, the piano, at least, has lost some of its popularity, and the gain in vocal music—until it is about equal to the instrumental in quantity—is attributed to the current prevalence of musical comedies. In vocal music the comic and the sentimental keep about even. The gain in religious music has not been as great as that in other lines.—Philadelphia Record.
