Big Deficit in State Treasury.

Figures made by those most familiar with the financial affairs of the State, indicate the deficit at the end of the present year in the state treasury will be at least $2,000,000 and that a cent will rattle loudly in the strong box, along about the first of next August. The legislature is powerless to avoid this, except in cutting appropriations for special purposes this year down to the minimum, and the ways and means committee of the house has announced that not a state institution will be allowed an appropriation this year for a new building of any description.

There has been talk among some members that it would have been wise to submit to the people this spring a proposition to bond the state or borrow sufficient money to take care of the deficit. The administration was strongly against any move this character and timid ones feared such a policy, with the result that employees will have to wait anywhere from three to six months for their pay and there will be many difficulties in taking care of the ordinary expenses of the government.

Chairman Rice of the ways and means committee says the budget will not exceed $10,000,000, but other legislators familiar with conditions, are not so sanguine and believe that it will run to at least $11,000,000 and perhaps $12,000,000.

Yost for School Commissioner.

At the election to be held on the fifth of April the important office of county commissioner of schools is to be filled. It is hoped that the voters do not overlook the good work that has been done by the present incumbent. Below is a clipping from the State's leading educational paper:

Commr. E. W. Yost of Wayne is the only candidate named for the office on the Republican ticket. He is acceptable to every school teacher in his big county. Honest, fair, clean, sympathetic, capable, level-headed and industrious 'tis no wonder the teachers like him, and 'tis creditable to the county that it keeps so good a man in the office.

W. C. T. U.

Our meeting last week was fairly well attended considering the cold March wind. Only one of the leaders could be present, but that one being always so well posted and so full of her subject—Sufrage—she made the meeting very interesting and instructive.

The meeting next week Thursday, April 8, is the annual meeting. Each member will have received a personal invitation to be present, with the privilege of bringing one friend. The decree has gone forth that this meeting will begin promptly on time, 1:30 standard; therefore, every one should remember it and be there, in order not to miss any part of the interesting program. This will consist of music, a little play by the children, reports of officers and superintendents and the election of officers for the ensuing year. Refreshments will be served and a social time enjoyed.
Our superintendent at Washington, Mrs. Ellis, writes that no wines were served at the inaugural ball and this at the request of President Taft. This is a step in the right direction.—Sup. Rees.

STATE LEGISLATURE; NEWS OF SOLONS

WHAT THE LAW-MAKERS AT LANSING ARE DOING—NEW BILLS UP.

WARNER ASKS A CHANGE

Would Place Wire Companies on Ad Valorem Tax Law Basis Instead of Assessing Them Specifically.

Lansing.—Gov. Warner Tuesday afternoon sent to the house a special message urging the passage of a bill placing telegraph and telephone companies under the ad valorem tax laws instead of taxing them specifically upon their earnings as at present.

Opticians Win a Victory.

The opticians of the state won the first round of their fight to obtain a separate registration commission of their own in the house, when the bill was agreed to in committee of the whole.

London, England.—Dr. Mariott Hutchins, president of the board of education of Lake county, Michigan, was robbed here of $1,000 and a diamond ring by means of a confidence trick.

Senate Kills Important Bill.

Senator Shields' bill to make the state banking commissioner elective and independent of the executive office did not succeed. The bill as drafted increased the salary of the commissioner to $5,000, that of the deputy to $3,000 and graded the salaries of the examiners from $1,500 to $2,500.

Indians to Get $130,000.

Special Indian Agent Horace E. Durant of Miami, Okla., was at Marshall and visited the reservation of Pottawatomie Indians at their village southwest of that city.

Tax Companies on Property.

The senate passed a bill to tax telegraph and telephone companies on the value of their property instead of the present tax of three per cent. on their gross earnings.

New Bill is Likely.

As the result of the defeat of the Ormsbee regulation bill, it is very likely that a new bill containing many of the "good features" of the Ormsbee measure, but drawn in the form of an amendment to the present liquor laws, will probably be presented to the legislature.

Pearson Fish Bill Agreed To.

The Pearson fish bill, which fixes the closed season for bass fishing from February 1 to June 15, was agreed to in committee of the whole by the house. The bill limits the catch of each fisherman to ten in any one day.

Morphine Sale Bill Killed.

The bill to prevent the sale of morphine except on physicians' prescriptions was killed by the senate. Senator Tuttle pointed out that persons addicted to morphine simply had to have the drug.

Denies Free Island Sugar.

While declaring that the country has accepted the Payne bill as the fairest tariff bill ever reported from the ways and means committee, Representative Diekema of Michigan delivered a speech in congress in which he criticized at length the proposition to permit the entry of 300,000 tons annually of Philippine sugar into the United States free of duty.

Speaking of the measure generally, Mr. Diekema said he liked the maximum and minimum schedule provisions, operating automatically, and that from the standpoint of Michigan, where the farmers are brought into contact and competition with Canadian products, he was highly pleased with the agricultural schedules.

"Not being able to produce tea ourselves, the tariff would be and remain a tax on the consumer and not an aid to the building up of a home industry. I hope also to be able to offer an amendment to the plate glass schedule, which I believe will give adequate protection to the producer and will be more equitable to the consumer."

Mr. Diekema then dwelt upon the advantages which already had been given the insular possessions and Cuba with reference to their sugar production, and said that such tariff concessions have naturally checked the development of the beet sugar industry in the United States.

"A reduction in our sugar tariff means the destruction of our domestic sugar industry," he declared. "When once destroyed it cannot be re-established. Governmental pledges could not be stronger than those under which capital was invested in the production of beet sugar."

"If these pledges are violated, and the $100,000,000 now invested in the business is sacrificed, capital will not again embark in the enterprise. Neither will it be possible to induce the farmer to again undertake the culture of beets. The creation of such an industry requires years of education and millions of money."

"If developed, our people would be at the absolute mercy of the importer and foreign producer of sugar. Every European sugar producing country has two prices for sugar, one for home consumption and the other the f. o. b. Hamburg price for export. The European pays, from three and one-half to six cents per pound more for his sugar than the export price."

"The European beet sugar industry is under governmental control. Destroy the domestic sugar industry of the United States and the European consumers' prices would be at once lowered, while the Hamburg export prices would be raised. The citizens of Europe would get their sugar cheaper and the citizens of the United States would be obliged to pay whatever price the foreign producer might demand."

Probe Allegation of Graft.

The house proposes to investigate the allegation of a railroad passenger conductor, as quoted to the effect that the ten-cent penalty bill might have been passed had there been something in it for certain members. A resolution was introduced in the house by Representative H. B. Baker of Cheboygan, calling for the appointment of a special committee to investigate the statement.

The resolution sets forth that the publication of such a statement is a serious reflection upon the honor and integrity of the house, and the committee is directed to report whether any member of the house asked: "How much is there in it?"

Gives Mining Companies New Power.

Senator Charles Smith introduced a bill in the house amending the act providing for the incorporation of mining companies, authorizing the stockholders of such companies to fix the minimum value of new stock issued. This practice has always been followed, though as a matter of law it has not been legal to sell new stock at more than par value.

Motor Cycle Like Auto.

The state supreme court in a decision Tuesday afternoon held that motor cycles are vehicles within the meaning of the law relative to motor vehicles, and upheld the conviction of H. G. Smith of Detroit for violating that law with a cycle. Smith had appealed the conviction on the contention that a motor cycle was not a vehicle.

Governor to Appoint Commissioners.

The senate judiciary committee agreed on the bill to provide a board of jury commissioners for each county in the state when the electors shall endorse the proposition. The bill, as drafted by the attorney general, provided for three commissioners, not more than two of one political party to be appointed by the supervisors, but it was changed so as to give the governor the appointing power, he to select the three from the list of names, one from each township and two to be made up by the judge.

MICHIGAN HAPPENINGS

Jackson.—Dr. Dayton Parker of Detroit was questioned by the grand jury as to the alleged "stringing up" of convicts in the staff prison under the Armstrong regime. Dr. Parker is a member of the state board of corrections and charities, and while visiting the prison in this capacity, he says, he saw prisoners "strung up" in the punishment cells. The board ordered Warden Armstrong to discontinue such a mode of punishment, on the ground that it was too cruel.

Alden.—As his wife and baby lay asleep in their bed, George Hopper slew both of them with a club and then nearly severed their heads with an ax. They went to the houses of several neighbors and told them what he had done, but at first he was not believed. Finally one man, thinking he was acting queerly, locked him in a room and went to investigate. Finding that Hopper had told the truth, he sent for the sheriff and Hopper was arrested. He is undoubtedly insane.

Manistee.—Both Democrats and Republicans held their city conventions and nominated the following tickets: Democrats—Mayor, C. A. Waal; clerk, W. J. Terwilliger; treasurer, H. W. Johnson; justices, F. W. Dunlap and E. J. Alway. Republicans—Mayor, W. J. Barnhart; clerk, J. R. Magnan; treasurer, W. J. Graham; justices, A. J. Erb and E. J. Richmond.

Traverse City.—The board of trade has completed negotiations whereby the Grand Rapids Cokerette Company will move here within two or three weeks and employ 50 men all the year around, with great probability of largely increasing this number. The company will be reorganized with a capital of $100,000.

Muskegon.—Establishing a record for the eastern shore of Lake Michigan, John and Vincent Vanderburgh lifted nets, finding safely caught in the meshes 32 mallard ducks. The birds had evidently gone under water after fish, being caught in the upper part of the gill nets.

London, England.—Dr. Mariott Hutchins, president of the board of education of Lake county, Michigan, was robbed here of $1,000 and a diamond ring by means of a confidence trick. The police arrested the three thieves at Northampton and recovered from them $750 and the ring.

Saginaw.—James McCrea, for many years proprietor of the Dunbar hotel and formerly a well-known politician here, died in St. Mary's hospital of general debility. McCrea had lived in Saginaw 35 years and was an older man many years. He was a prominent Elk and leaves a widow.

Adrian.—Edward Hadleigh, a young man wearing a badge of the "American Detective Agency," was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Cross of this city on suspicion. It subsequently developed that he was wanted by the authorities at Eaton Rapids for burglarizing a farm on which he was employed.

Saginaw.—Thirty bids were submitted by contractors from all over the state for the construction of Saginaw's new armory building. James Kern & Sons of Saginaw were the lowest bidders and were awarded the contract at $22,200.

Grand Rapids.—Alexander Archer, an unmarried man, aged 46, attempted to catch a ride on a slowly moving Pere Marquette freight, and missing his hold, fell under the wheels. He suffered the loss of his right leg at the ankle and his left at the knee.

Grand Rapids.—Twelve "pay as you enter" cars have been ordered by the Grand Rapids Street Railway Company and will be here for use July 1. They have a wide vestibule, so that passengers can enter and leave the car at the same time.

Big Rapids.—A. V. Young was nominated for mayor at the Republican primaries, with H. I. Drecher a close second and Cornelius Murphy last in the race.

Bozette City.—The residence of John Clute was entirely destroyed by fire during the absence of the family. Loss, $1,200; no insurance.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS

Flint.—The seventeenth annual convention of the Michigan master plumbers closed here at the Hotel Dresden with a banquet at which 100 covers were laid. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, George Van Leneged, Holland; vice-president, W. J. Dowsett, Jackson; secretary and treasurer, William A. Decker, Grand Rapids; delegates to national convention at Detroit June 22-24—W. A. Booner, Calumet; Fred Stoyke, Calumet; G. A. Richards, Grand Rapids; S. H. Morgan, Detroit. Jackson won in the contest for the 1910 meeting.

Bay City.—An outbreak of typhoid fever amounting almost to an epidemic has caused much apprehension among physicians of the city, and while the board of health has taken no steps, the physicians individually are searching actively for a center of infection that seemingly cannot be found. The chief opinion is that either the many wells of the city are infected, or else a portion of the milk supply comes from a typhoid-breeding dairy.

Traverse City.—Without a second's warning of his intention, Alexander Ferguson struck Isaac Fuller over the head with a limb, killing him at the first blow. Both men were patients at the Northern Michigan asylum and had been close friends ever since they came there about six months ago. Ferguson from Charlevoix county and Fuller from Oceana.

Union City.—Never before in the history of this locality have there been so many changes in the possession of farms in northern Branch and southern Calhoun counties as this spring. Not only have scores of land owners sold or exchanged farm properties, but tenants likewise have been on the move.

Jackson.—Under the threat of local option the council, by a vote of 10 to 5, adopted the most drastic saloon ordinance ever known in the city's history. It reduces the number of saloons from 80 to one for every 700 population, or about 32; imposes a city license of $500 in addition to the state license.

Traverse City.—William Wurzburg, well-known blacksmith, arrested on the charge of having brook trout in his possession, was fined $50 with $11.54 costs or 30 days in jail. Wurzburg had his affairs well in hand and took 30 days rather than part with the money.

Alpena.—The large veneer mill of J. W. Walker & Sons was destroyed by fire. The loss is about $18,000, partly covered by insurance. The loss includes a large quantity of manufactured products. The plant will be rebuilt.

Battle Creek.—Chester Driscoll's effort to stop a M. U. R. limited car at Galesburg, while eminently successful, may prove very serious to Chester. He is at Nichols hospital with fractured ribs, a battered skull and gashed limbs.

JOYS of the ARMY ROOKIE

by EDWARD B. CLARK.

WASHINGTON.—In the last year or two congress has shown a disposition to be generous to the army. Among the other measures passed with a special view to the decreasing of the number of desertions was one which increased materially the pay of enlisted men. The non-commissioned officers particularly were well treated by the bill, for it was the intention to make army life so attractive for the sergeants and the corporals that they would be willing to re-enlist. Then again the amount of pay given the "non-coms" was intended to act as an incentive to the privates to behave themselves well and to stay in the service so that in time they might secure promotion.

There is an army post at Fort Myer close to Arlington, the national cemetery just across the Potomac from the capital. A good many old soldiers are stationed at Fort Myer, men who have enlisted and re-enlisted until the sleeves of their dress coats are pretty well covered with the stripes marking their years of service. These old soldiers tell many stories of the old days when the army life was not as pleasant as it is to-day and when the recruit's lot was far from a happy one. In those old days desertions were many and some of the stories which the veteran regulars tell to-day of the time when they were recruits lets one know readily enough why some men under the old conditions did not care to follow the flag.

Here is one story of recruit life in the army 20 years ago that is rewritten with no changes of fact and with only a little change of language from the way that an old soldier told it: "In the winter of 1888 I was stationed at David's island, New York harbor, a recruiting rendezvous of the army." There were about 300 newly enlisted ones stationed there at that time. The island is a little affair lying fairly low in the water and without any protection from the storms which blow in from the east through Long Island sound.

"January and February, 1888, were months of sunshine, and flowers were peeping on the sunny side of things before anyone could guess whether March was to roar in like the lion or to bleat like the lamb. Early in the second week of that March month, New York was overwhelmed by a tempest of wind and snow. It was in that storm that Roscoe Conkling met with the exposure which caused the illness leading to his death in a few days. It was the worst storm known to the history of the eastern country. The New Yorkers, however, did not experience its full fury, for their buildings gave them shelter.

"It was left for a few recruits of the United States army, the men on guard, to bear the brunt of the blizzard and to face the elements that gave them battle. On the night of March 11 the storm broke. At nine o'clock the sky over the sound was unclouded, and there was not a whisper of wind over the water. Within ten minutes the black clouds had banked up, and in another ten minutes they were shaking out their burden of snow, while the wind which had sprung to its full strength almost without warning, was roaring down the sound from the Atlantic. At midnight there were great drifts of snow against every obstacle which offered the least resistance to the wind. Out of doors speech was impossible for the blasts tore the words from one's lips and smothered them with their howlings.

"On that night I was on guard as corporal of the first relief. The sergeant of the guard a few moments after midnight stepped from the doorway of the guardhouse and was swept from his feet by the wind. He saw what a terrible night was ahead of us, had already come to us in fact, and he sent a man to the quarters of the officer of the day to ask permission to take in the outlying sentinels or to give orders to them to seek such shelter as they could find. The officer of the day's quarters were surrounded with heavy iron gates and the officer, looking out, did not comprehend how terrific the storm really was, and so word was passed that the chain of sentinels should not be broken.

"At one o'clock my guard relief was ordered out to relieve the men on post. No man who was on that island that night has in his keeping words strong enough to describe the awful fury of that eastern gale. The combined thunders of 20 mountain storms could not equal the noise of the roaring of the waves as they pounded the shore. The wind added its bellowing to the uproar and its strength almost took away the powers of motion and of speech.

"The relief started from the guardhouse. No man through the darkness brought by night and the tempest could see the outline of his nearest fellow. The whiteness of the snow would have relieved the blackness had not the lashing of the elements blinded the vision. I ordered the men to unfix bayonets because of the danger of cutting one another, and I gave the order passing from one man to the other and fairly following it into their ears. Then the order was given to 'secure arms' and to clasp hands. It was only by the handclasp that one man could tell that he had a companion.

"Into the teeth of the tempest we edged our way. Twice within 50 yards of the guardhouse the little squad was thrown from its feet. All sense of direction was lost and nothing but a collision with one of the low-lying barracks buildings after ten minutes' toiling progress gave the little command knowledge of its whereabouts. A half frozen sentinel whose post luckily was under the lee of the barracks, was relieved and took his place at the rear of the hand-clasping column.

"The hospital of the garrison stands, or did stand at that time, at the extreme east end of the island. Back of it along the stretching beach runs a sentry's post. A man walking there and looking straight eastward finds no land upon which his eye may rest. That night the lashing fury of the waves was spent mainly on that lonely sentry beach. The first relief managed to reach the front of the hospital which gave some protection. I ordered all the men except the one who was to relieve the sentry on the beach to huddle under the piazza while I took the relieving recruit to find the man on post.

"We rounded the end of the hospital. The blast threw us down. The wind was tearing down the sound and the salt spray and the snow commingled dashed into our faces. We dragged our rifles and edged our way through a wall of wind. A few feet of progress and the blast again threw our feet from under us. Holding hands we crawled digging our free hands and our knees into the ground until we reached a point where the waves stopped our progress.

"Thence we turned by the flank and toiled along the sand for the entire length of the sentry's beat, but no sentry could we find. I raised my voice and shouted. The man within two feet of me did not know that I had snuffer and tore his "Springfield" from his hand.

Then the garbage barrel was removed and the recruit was threatened with death if he made an outcry. He was forced to march at the bayonet's point to the shore of the island and then to run over the ice toward the mainland with his former prisoners at his heels.

When the deserters and their victim arrived near the New Rochelle shore a hole was chipped in the ice by means of the bayonet and the rifle was dropped through into the waters of the sound. Then the recruit was told that if he chose he might return to the garrison. He told his former charges that he preferred to throw in his lot with them, for if he went back he would be certain to get a heavy dose of the guardhouse for neglect of duty in suffering his prisoners to escape, and for the loss of government property in the shape of the Springfield rifle which was now at the bottom of the sound.

The deserters told the recruit that he could uttered a word. Back over the sand we went through the howling and the lashing. We lost our bearings and ran into an obstruction. I traced its outline and knew what it was. It was the hospital morgue, a wooden structure not more than 15 feet square. We crawled around it until we had reached the west side, where the shelter gave us breath; from the doorway of the morgue came a challenge that even the noise of the storm could not smother—"Who comes there?"

"The answer, 'Relief,' was yelled back by two voices in unison, and we crawled into the dead house. There, standing guard in the grewsome place, was a colored lad, only four weeks a soldier, and within touch of his hand, resting on its zinc bier, was the corpse of a man.

"Driven by the storm to seek shelter, that black recruit, rather than leave his post to get the protection afforded by the hospital, had chosen in the blackness of midnight, and with wind and wave raging without, to take up his watch by the dead, because the place where the body lay was on his post, which he was under orders not to desert."

Two army deserters convinced a certain raw recruit that there was something more than words in the saying he had once heard to the effect that republics always are ungrateful. It fell on this wise:

The recruit had marched on guard for the first time. The sergeant in charge turned two prisoners over to him with instructions to guard them while they drove a mule team and collected the garbage from the barrels in the rear of the quarters. It was the dead of winter, and for the first time in years the channel between David's island and the town of New Rochelle was frozen over.

The recruit plodded along after his prisoners, but, being green to such work, he kept close at their heels instead of trailing along at a distance of five paces as he should have done.

Guard and prisoners reached a point near the shore directly in the rear of the commanding officer's quarters. There one of the deserters seized an empty garbage barrel and an opportunity at the same instant. He threw the barrel over the sentinel's head like a candle come with them if he chose, and they started for a saloon in the outskirts of the town, a place known to them, there to wait until it was time to go under cover to the depot to take a train which made no stop for many miles beyond the place of boarding.

About an hour before the train was due the recruit told the deserters that he had "weakness" and that he would go back to the island to "take his medicine." They offered no objection and their companion started for the shore while they took a back road to the depot.

The recruit had soldier-making stuff in him. He had been maturing a plan all the time that he had been in the saloon. The deserters once out of sight, he made for a farm house, told his story hurriedly, secured a horse and rode at a cavalry pace for a hamlet a few miles east of New Rochelle. He was afraid to go to the depot to which the deserters had gone because he feared that they would see him and, suspecting his motive, would take to the woods.

At the little village to which he had gone heading on his horse, he secured the services of a constable readily enough—for there was a reward for the arrest of deserters—and by telling his story and by threatening the station master with all the penalties possible of infiction by the federal government, the recruit induced him to flag the train.

The deserters were caught, handcuffed and sent back to the island.

The board deliberated long if not wisely, and finally reached the conclusion that the country's treasury could not well bear the burden of the loss of the money represented by the price of one rifle, and so it was decreed that the cost of the weapon should be taken out of the pay of the recruit who had done his duty by the government and had showed pluck and understanding, even if he had lost a rifle.

There was a disgraced young soldier on David's island. He was not made of the stuff of deserters, but desert he did. The channel was still frozen and the morning after he learned of the order stopping his pay there was one soldier less to answer "Here," at reveille roll call.

A CONSTIPATION REMEDY FREE

There is no action of your daily life of greater importance than to see that your bowels move. They should move at least once a day naturally, and by that is meant without any help. If they do not move at least once a day you can consider yourself constipated and it is time you did something about it.

You will be glad to know there is a way out of the difficulty, Lemuel Landerdale, an old soldier at Quincy, Ill., Elmer McMillan, of Speed, Mo., Mrs. Monahan, of Stonewall, Miss., and many others were as you are now. But one day they awoke to the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin was curing their friends, so they bought it too and it cured them. To-day, they are loud in praise of it.

What Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin did for them it should do for you. Surely your constipation is no worse than theirs, one of whom had it since '61. It only remains for you to realize that salts are of but temporary good, and what you want is a permanent cure; that purgative tablets, cathartic pills and such violent things make a great show of doing something, but do nothing that is lasting. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a scientific preparation, a laxative-tonic, a mild syrupy liquid that contains ingredients that not only cure the constipation, but tone the intestinal muscles so that they learn again to work without help. A bottle can be bought of any druggist for the small price of 50 cents, and there is a dollar size for families who have already found out its wonderful value in stomach, liver and bowel troubles, in old or young.

Send your name and address to the doctor and a free trial bottle will be sent you so that you can test it before buying.

If there is anything about your ailment that you don't understand, or if you want any medical advice, write to the doctor, and he will answer you fully. There is no charge for this service. The address is Dr. H. Caldwell, 201 Caldwell bldg., Monticello, Ill.

Township Caucuses.

One of the largest attended Republican township caucuses seen in Plymouth for many years gathered at the village hall last Friday evening. A contest was on for supervisor and treasurer and friends of either candidate came out in large numbers, one gentleman being present who had not attended a caucus in thirty years—in fact it was his first appearance at such a gathering.

Running a newspaper is just like running a hotel, only different. When a man goes into a hotel and finds something on the table which does not suit him, he does not raise his hand with the landlord and tell him to stop his old hotel. Well hardly. He sets that dish to one side and wades into the many dishes that suit him. It is different with some newspaper readers. They find an article occasionally that does not suit them exactly and without stopping to think it may please hundreds of other readers, make a grand stand play and tell the editor how a paper should be run and what should be put into it. But such people are becoming fewer every year.

Funeral of W. O. Allen.
The service in memory of the late W. O. Allen, held at the residence Monday afternoon, March 29th, marked the universal esteem in which Mr. Allen was held by his townspeople and friends in Detroit and elsewhere. The floral tributes were beautiful beyond expression and filled the rooms with their fragrance, mute witnesses that in the springtime of life there is death also.
Lee S. McCollester, D.D., of Detroit, conducted the services, speaking from his close personal acquaintance with Mr. Allen and rendering him a tribute as a loyal friend, an upright man and a gentleman in the true sense of the word. Harold Jarvis of Detroit sang comforting words in a voice that vibrated sympathy for the bereaved.
The body of Mr. Allen reached Plymouth from California and was taken immediately to the home. The funeral was held at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon and the remains consigned to the vault at Riverside cemetery, borne to the tomb by members of the Order of the Mystical Shrine, in which Mr. Allen was prominent. The bearers were Messrs. A. W. Chaffee, E. K. Bennett, A. H. Dibble, J. E. Wilcox, F. A. Dibble and Fred Eckliff.
Illustrated Lecture.
The illustrated lecture at the Universalist church Sunday evening will be upon the work of the Y. M. C. A. among our soldiers and sailors. Quite a portion of the views are devoted to the illustration of the work of the naval branch at Brooklyn, N. Y. This is the "Seaman's Rest," or "Sailor's Safe Harbor," which at the time of its building, received considerable public attention through the interest taken in it by Miss Helen Gould, and to the building equipment and work of which she has made considerable contributions. Miss Gould and Mrs. Russell Sage have given more than three-quarters of a million to the building fund alone.
This branch alone is most worthy of our attention, both from a philanthropic point of view and for the sake of understanding this progressive method of dealing with one of the great problems. The slides are those in use by the association staff, therefore the views will undoubtedly be good. All are cordially invited. Admission free. A collection will be asked.
"Just for Fun."
The play "Just for Fun" was a success, though it did not receive the patronage of which it was really deserving, there being neither night more than a moderate sized audience present.
The various parts were well rendered. Miss Ada Pitcher did the part of a pious would-be society leader perfectly; and Romey Wood and Miss Genevieve McClumpha very nicely portrayed the naturalness, dignity and appreciation of the really good and valuable things of life and the retiring modesty of the best types of English titled nobility and American people of wealth. Dora Townsend's interpretation of the hearty enjoyment of life and combination of ambition and curiosity to see something of society life and to have a good time of the average American girl, was thoroughly good and realistic.
Maurice Campbell and Miss LuLu Byrd very nicely depicted the popular humorous conceptions of the stiff, impossible dignity of the English lord, "heirless hunting," and the droll, easily excitable Irish servant. All the parts were well received and apparently enjoyed by the audiences.

NARAH'S MAN

By EDGAR WHITE

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

In the buoyant days when the territorial land boomers were hypnotizing the people of the eastern and middle states by the trainload with brass bands and free lager beer, Cornelius Cadogan, "municipal contractor," went out with a crowd of "th' by's" to 'leu the birth of "Royal Capital," and ake part in the event.

There was a flag-pole and a native n his shirt sleeves, seated on a leg, y these heralds of commercial enter- rise the engineer was enabled to know where to stop his train.

The commissary was unlocated, and be boomers began distributing maps of Royal Capital, so the citizens might ot lose their way. These exhibits ndicated with honest distinctiveness here the division shops, round houses, mion depot, federal building, hotels, totton gins, mills, saloons and other uxiliaries to metropolitan develop- ment were to be located, and all that was necessary for the straw-hatted sub- jects to do was to buy the lots and ill in the vacant places with stores and dwellings.

The sale went briskly on, accompan- ed by inspiring music by the band, and keged enthusiasm over in a tent, which flowed like water from the spring.

Everybody felt happy, social and generous. Lots were purchased all ound the "federal building," the "Merchant's exchange" and clear down "Arlington avenue" to the "union de- ot."

When Corney woke up in his tent next morning he found himself weight- ed with the cares of a property owner, ut relieved of the necessity of keep- ing his hand on his pocketbook. Un- der the combined encouragement of the commissary tent and "A Hot Time n the Old Town," by the Dutch band, e had swapped twelve hundred good American dollars for a 27-acre tract of soft-stone, which the auctioneer had told him could be terraced and igned into delightful, homelike lots. "Twelve hundred dollars wuth av

"Try Cadogan, Aw," said Corney, Surlily.

"cks," he murmured; "wat will Narah say to thot?"

He had a few dollars left and de- cided to wait and see what would be the end of the circus. Frame buildings were erected with feverish haste along the boulevards, and flaring canvas signs stretched across the streets.

Casual visitors lit and flew away after a brief sojourn. The brass band and free commissary had departed along with the boomers, and the real situation was mournfully apparent. There didn't seem to be the ghost of a reason for a town where "Royal Capital" was trying to stand. The lot owners, however, were game. They organized a commercial club, issued air castle literature and invited capital to come and get richer on the 'magnificent resources.' The fact that the commercial club was ex- pressing its hope rather than its knowledge was clear as moonshine to the sage gentlemen of means who received the invitations.

One day a unique traveler alighted on the small platform and handed his grips to the landlord of the "Conti- nental hotel." He looked like he might be a walking proclamation for some haberdasher, and didn't seem to be a hopeful prospect. Within half an hour the news went around town that "Ar- thur Van Zandt of West Virginia" was registered at the Continental, and that he lapsed on his talk.

In the morning the tenderfoot put on some heavy boots and walked out to the "suburban residence district." When he returned to town he hunted up some of the owners and in a timid sort of way wanted to know what he could secure a few acres of their rocky bluffs at, explaining that he was a slate pencil manufacturer in a small way, and that he fancied the stone would make fair pencils. He wanted the privilege to prospect a little first and determine whether the rock was really soapstone.

There didn't seem to be much in it, and nobody shot off any fireworks over the owner's proposition. They let him dig his holes, and several parties let their findings of "eligible resi- dence lots," ore circulars with rock hills, in fact, pass over to the slate pencil man at $5 an acre. Some sold to him for less. Inside of a week he had acquired enough "soapstone" to make slate pencils for all the chil- dren in the world the next hundred years.

When Corney learned the high-col- lared haberdasher's sign had been bor- ing holes on Killkenny Heights his blue eyes blazed wrathfully.

"If that puddin' headed Jude thinks he's goin' ter git them lots fer his shiate pencil factory he's a bigger fool thin he looks, which be puttin' it sthrough as I know how," said Corney.

He studiously avoided the mild-look- ing stranger, as being a man beyond his contempt. He resolved if Van Zandt come around with a five-dollar- acre-proposition "fer them superbs ter tell 'im plain wat I tink av 'im."

But one bright morning Corney saw the slate pencil man making for him. "Good morning Mr.—aw—"

"Try Cadogan, aw," said Corney, surlily.

"Yes, Cadogan—certainly. Deuced funny how I should—aw—forget such an easy name."

"Not so vity funny; there be min wot says 'aw,' win there's nothin' ter 'aw' about. Thot's funnier."

The natty tenderfoot smiled sweet- ly. He was evidently not overly sen- sitive.

"Unfortunate habit of mine," he said, good-humoredly. "You will—aw—excuse me—please pahdon me."

"Wot's yer game?" remarked Cor- ney, abruptly.

"I wanted to speak to you about Killkenny—aw—Highlands."

"Thim's Killkenny Heights—risi- dence lots."

"Yes, a beautiful name. I've been out there. The view is—aw—chawm- ing. Such a vast reach of country— so gently rolling like the sea! And such superb air and sky, and the sun- sets—on my life I never witnessed such sunsets!"

Corney looked at him in amazement and gravely shook his head.

"I guess they be," he said, dubious- ly. "I think th' sun be settin' ivery day. Th' surveyor got tin o' my dollars ter put all them things on th' map, but I reckon he's left 'em out."

"Do you wish to part with your resi- dence property out there, Mr. Cad- ogan?"

"'Yis—but you don't git it at no five per. It cost me a coal twelve hun- dred."

"Indeed, I'm afraid you were—aw—"

"Schwindled? I was thot, but I can't go home till I make good wid Narah."

"I understand then," said the slate pencil maker, dropping his lip and talking like a man of business, "that you want to get back what you paid?"

"'Yis, an' thit some. Narah's bin writtin' me thot I needn't coom back shy of six thousand. She won't miss me, she says. There's a folne lot of saymin ter pick over out there."

Van Zandt started and looked keenly at the Irishman.

"What do you want for your 27 acres?" he asked, slowly.

"Th' only thing thot'll save me fr'im bein' a grass widerer," said Corney. "is $6,000."

"I'll take it."

Corney's blue eyes popped open wide. The slate pencil man suddenly became an object of real interest.

"Does yez nane thot?"

"Indeed I do, and I will write you a check soon as you sign the deed."

"Thit I wants ter say ter yez thot I'm downright sorry I called yez a Jude. Yez be th' whitest mon I've struck in this miserable coyote coun- try."

With the acquirement of Killkenny Heights, Van Zandt concluded his dealings at Royal Capital, and the cat jumped out of the bag. He was the representative of a large concern, and had been sent west to secure new fields. The rock around Royal Capital was specially adapted for the pur- pose, and its purchase for an almost nominal consideration meant a fortune to the big company, which soon established works out there, and gave employment to so many men that Royal Capital forgave the job put up on it by the smooth visitor from West Virginia.

Corney and Van Zandt returned east on the same train, and while enjoying their pipe and cigarette, respectively, one afternoon, Van Zandt asked a question which had long been pus- zling him:

"Corney, how was it that you were the only man out there who knew it was cement rock?"

"Bliss yer soul," said Narah's man; "I never dreamt it till yez told me."

"But you said there's a fine lot of cement to pick over out there."

Corney smoked reflectively for a few moments, then his moonface broke into a broad grin.

"Yez didn't quite catch me maning," he said. "Narah, my wife thot is, lives on th' coast of Jersey. I knowed if I didn't git back it wouldn't quite break her heart, because there's a folne lot o' saymin ter pick from out there."

"Seamen?"

"'Yis, saymin, I says."

"Corney," said Van Zandt, after some silent meditation, "if any profes- sor of language ever offers to smooth out that brogue of yours, you brain him on the spot. You need it to do business with."

A LITTLE KNOWLEDGE

Of Painting Requirements Will Save Much Expense.

When one sees the surface of a house or other building scaling, or peeling, or spotted or blistered, or showing other symptoms of paint "disease," it is evident that a poor painter has been on the job, and that poor paint was used—or possibly that a good painter, had been dominated by a property-owner who knew nothing about paint.

It is an easy matter to be informed on paint and painting. A complete painting guide, including a book of color schemes, either for exterior or interior—specifications for all kinds of painting—and an instrument for detecting adulteration in paint material, with directions for using it, may be had free by writing National Lead Company, 1902 Trinity Bldg., New York City, and asking for House-owner's Painting Outfit No. 49.

Then, every houseowner should make it a point to get only well-known reliable brands in buying his materials. Pure white lead is especially important, or the paint will not prove satisfactory. The famous "Dutch Boy Painter" trademark of National Lead Company, the largest makers of pure white lead, is an absolute guarantee of the purity and quality of the white lead sold under it. That trademark is a safeguard against paint trouble.

HUMOR BURNED AND ITCHED.

Eczema on Hand, Arms, Legs and Face—It Was Something Terrible.

Complete Cure by Cuticura.

"About fifteen or eighteen years ago eczema developed on top of my hand. It burned and itched so much that I was compelled to show it to a doctor. He pronounced it ringworm. After trying his different remedies the disease increased and went up my arms and to my legs and finally on my face. The burning was something terrible. I went to another doctor who had the reputation of being the best in town. He told me it was eczema. His medicine checked the advance of the disease, but no further. I finally concluded to try the Cuticura Remedy and found relief in the first trial. I continued until I was completely cured from the disease, and I have not been troubled since. C. Burkhardt, 236 W. Market St., Chambersburg, Pa., Sept. 19, 1908."

TWO YEARS OF FREEDOM.

No Kidney Trouble at All Since Using Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. J. B. Johnson, 710 Wee St., Columbia, Mo., says: "I was in misery with kidney trouble, and finally had to undergo an operation. I did not rally well, and began to suffer smothering spells and dropsy. My left side was badly swollen and the action of the kidneys much disor- dered. My doctors said I would have to be tapped, but I began using Doan's Kidney Pills in- stead, and the swelling subsided and the kidneys began to act properly. Now my health is fine." (Statement made Aug. 1, 1906, and confirmed by Mrs. Johnson Nov. 16, 1908.)

VISIT LINCOLN'S SPRINGFIELD

WHILE EN ROUTE BETWEEN CHICAGO AND ST. LOUIS

No traveller passing through the State Capital of Illinois should fail to stop off and view at least some of the objects of interest in that historic city. For a quarter of a century Springfield was the home of Abraham Lincoln, and there are yet to be seen many things associated with the life of the "Great Emancipator."

You can arrange to visit Springfield for two hours between trains by arranging with agents of "The Only Way." Practically no loss of time on your journey.

VISIT THE LINCOLN MONUMENT THE STATE HOUSE

GOING SOUTH You arrive on the "PRAIRIE STATE EXPRESS" early in the afternoon and depart on "THE ALTON LIMITED" two hours later—thus giving you time to visit the principal points of interest.

GOING NORTH You arrive on "THE ALTON LIMITED" at noon and depart on the "PRAIRIE STATE EXPRESS" in the afternoon—thus giving you over two hours in Springfield.

THE CHICAGO & ALTON is "THE ONLY WAY" that enables you to do this. By any other route, if you see Springfield, you must take a whole day for it.

A Children's Home.

Some time last fall Siron Kellogg deeded to the associated Children's Societies of Detroit a large part of the old fair grounds, and he is now contemplating the purchase of additional land of nearly a hundred acres with the purpose of donating it to the same societies. If this land is secured, the societies say they will join together and build a large children's home, with all modern appliances and conveniences. The affair is still in embryo form, but as Mr. Kellogg has in the past year been a liberal contributor to the children's societies of the city, the project may yet be fully realized. It would certainly be a great and lasting monument to Mr. Kellogg's benevolence and also mean much to the village of Plymouth at large. An institution of the kind named accommodating several hundred children would be no mean addition to Plymouth and we hope to be able in the near future to announce that plans to that end have been successfully completed.

As it is, if no additional land is secured, the societies expect to put up several temporary buildings, capable of housing a number of children, who will be brought out here for the summer months.

Let the citizens of Plymouth give every encouragement to securing the home, not only words but deeds as well.

No More "White Bread?"

"White bread is abolished in the United States," it is stated in telegraph dispatches, referring to the ruling of the secretary of agriculture that millers must not bleach flour. The ruling went into effect last week, but millers have until June 3 to dispose of the bleached flour still in stock. It is declared that there will be as much difference between bread made from unbleached flour as there is between angel cake and sponge cake. The flour will be of a creamy color instead of white, and the bread will be light golden in color. But there will be no difference in flavor, and the bread will have an additional quality to commend itself to the consumer, because it will be just like that "mother used to make," in the good old days before the craze for bleached flour came into vogue.

"S&S"?

The characters printed above mean nothing to you when they are used collectively. But when used in their proper places they possess greatest significance. So it is with the threads of the story: "Avenge of Joseph Dain" by George T. Purdy. Cleverly woven together the threads of the tale, which will be the leading feature of the next issue of this paper, make perhaps the most entrancing story which ever appeared in these columns.
