Avenging of Joseph Dain

By GEO. T. PARDY

John Wilson Murray in a New Sort of Case.

On a cold, dark winter's night in March, 1875, two men stole quietly along in the black shadow of the house walls in Yonge street, Toronto, Canada. Each of the midnight prowlers took an opposite side of the thoroughfare. They slipped swiftly and softly out to the corner of Bloor street where the city limits ended in those days.

On a corner of Yonge and Bloor streets lived the Dains, rich drovers and butchers. The family consisted of Mrs. Dain and her three sons, Joseph, James and Major. The latter were wealthy business men and carried large sums of money on their persons for cattle buying.

Upstairs Joseph Dain was sleeping soundly in his room, his trousers lying on the chair beside his bed. A slight noise, a faint creaking, awoke him from slumber and he opened his eyes to see a tall figure dimly perceptible in the gloom, standing beside his bed, rifling the pockets of his trousers in which he had a large amount of money. A powerful, active man of fearless disposition, Dain was quick to realize the situation and act on his first impulse. Springing from the bed he clinched with the intruder and a short but desperate grapple followed. Exerting all his strength the robber broke away and fled down the stairs with Dain in hot pursuit. The waiting man swung the door wide open to allow his partner free egress, slammed it shut again in Dain's face, and the two burglars sped out through the darkness, separating as they fled and running in opposite directions.

Headless of the menacing challenge Dain sprang toward the speaker, when a shot rang through the frozen air, and he reeled and fell to the ground with a bullet in his abdomen. Pocketing the smoking weapon the burglar resumed his former pace, and passed out of sight.

In the meantime he who had stood as sentry on the outside of the house had run swiftly across Yonge street. Fate willed that he should trip over the extra overcoat he was carrying and fall headlong. Before he could regain his feet he was seized by a passing baker on his way to work, who held him until a policeman made his appearance on the scene and took the captured burglar to the lockup. Dain was carried indoors, attended to by surgeons and rallied considerably after the operation, although it was not expected that he would recover from the effects of his terrible wound.

The officer selected by the Toronto authorities for the task of running down Dain's murderous assailant was John Wilson Murray, formerly of the United States secret service force and now in the employ of the Canadian government. Murray's first step was to visit the captured burglar in the lockup. His wide experience in the criminal world stood him in good stead, for at the first glance he recognized the prisoner as Charles Leavitt, a desperate American burglar and thief. Buffalo was his home town, but the police there knew him so well that he seldom dared to visit the place. Looking carefully over the overcoat found in the captive's possession, Murray discovered the mark of a Cleveland tailor.

He at once started for the city in question, and looking up Leavitt's American record found that one of his intimate friends was Frank Meagher of Cleveland, a skilled burglar, clever crook and one of the ablest and worst "rough ones" at large.

Leavitt was tried, convicted and sentenced to Kingston penitentiary for life. He submitted doggedly to his fate and sternly refused to give any information which might have led to the arrest of his comrade. Dain did not die immediately, but lived over one year and a day. According to English and Canadian law, a man cannot be convicted of murder and hanged if his victim lives for one year and one day after the crime is committed. Dain dragged out a lingering existence of agony for a couple of months over the year and then died. Hernia resulted from the bullet wound in his abdomen and finally killed him. Under the circumstances Meagher, if found, could be punished, but would not suffer the extreme penalty of the law.

Arriving in Indianapolis, Murray visited the penitentiary in company with Detective Muncie of Cleveland, who knew Meagher well, and they identified Armstrong as Meagher, thus making assurance doubly sure. The next step was to arrange for the removal of Meagher to Canada. Murray went to Terre Haute and secured the services of Daniel Voorhees of that city, one of the best criminal lawyers in the Hoosier state. He induced Voorhees that the state of Indiana had a criminal serving a sentence for a crime committed subsequent to the commission of a far graver crime in Canada, and that he wanted to take him back at once to pay the penalty of his prior deed. Voorhees took the case and accompanied Murray to Indianapolis, where a fine point of law had to be argued. The prisoner was in the Indianapolis jail, where he was kept, and ling the outcome of the case, and had been informed of a conditional pardon and the case going against him. He was what is known as a "bad man" in every sense of the epithet. Three times in his career he had escaped from prison and had shot and killed a deputy on one occasion. He had a brother, Charles Meagher of Cleveland, also a thief, burglar, and desperate, resourceful crook. He had many friends; and Frank Meagher, then a fine looking, well-educated chap of 28, was highly respected and much admired among the denizens of the underworld for his daring and cleverness.

Murray was certain that the chances were all in favor of complete plays having been made to rescue his man. He had all of his papers ready after midnight on June 20, and went direct to the jail. A train left at 4:35 in the morning and it was Murray's intention to get away on it with Meagher. It was about three in the morning when he arrived at the jail he knew an attempt would be made to rescue him. From the fact that he had gained possession of a revolver and club, it was easy to surmise that some of his friends were scheming to aid him. He thought of that 4:35 train, and turned to the sheriff.

"Just open that gate," he said, crisply; "I want to speak to him."

"Don't, don't," implored the sheriff. "He'll kill you sure! Remember, I warn you."

Murray looked at him grimly. "Open that gate," he said. "I'm going in there."

Yielding to the power of the other's determined will, the sheriff threw open the gate and Murray, without the slightest trace of nervousness, stepped inside and walked upstairs. When he reached the first landing the prisoner's voice rang out, sharp, tense and replete with deadly menace:

"Stop right there, Murray; don't you come near me!"

Murray halted. The shining barrel of the revolver, gripped in the accompanied by Detective Lou Muncie.

"Mr. Sheriff," said Murray, "I have come for Meagher. Here are my papers."

"I'm afraid we're going to have a lot of trouble with that fellow," remarked the sheriff, who was greatly excited.

"What's wrong with Meagher?" inquired Murray.

"He's armed, he's got up to the fourth floor, the top tier of cells, and says he will kill any one who goes near him," responded the sheriff in agitated accents, wiping the perspiration from his forehead. "I tell you, he's a desperate man, Mr. Murray, and he'll keep his word."

"That's your business," said Murray; "Kindly produce the prisoner."

"Come down, Meagher," piped the sheriff, in trembling tones.

Meagher spat viciously and bombarded the speaker with a volley of virulent oaths. "Come up here and get me," he roared. "I'll kill the first man that sets foot on these stairs."

"Now you can see how it is for yourself," appealed the sheriff to Murray.

"All I know is that there sits Meagher and I want him," replied that inexorable gentleman. "Here are my documents, so do your duty."

The unhappy sheriff, thus caught between the devil and the deep sea, swore frantically. "I know what my duty is, all right," he said pathetically, "but I ain't anxious to be shot like a dog, or see anyone else murdered, either."

hand of a ruffian whose unerring aim had sent more than one human soul to the great Judgment Seat in the past, was covering him with fatal accuracy. The spirit of death was hovering in the air.

Murray's voice had lost none of its habitual coolness as he answered the desperado's challenge. "There's no need for getting excited, Frank," he said. "I'm not coming up. I just want to talk to you so that everybody won't hear."

Meagher had risen to his feet and stood at the top of the stair, looking down upon the man just below him. The sheriff grew suddenly valorous. "Come down, Meagher, or I'll shoot," he cried shrilly.

"Shoot, blast you," responded Meagher, vigorously. "I'd rather be shot here than hung in Canada."

There was a moment's silence, and Murray heard Detective Muncie advising the sheriff to quit making a noise.

"You just shut up, sheriff, and leave this to me," shouted Murray. "Frank," he continued, addressing the prisoner, "you know you won't be hung. Dain lived over a year. You know you've got to come. You might kill me, but you'd have to go all the same."

While speaking, Murray mounted the steps slowly, until he stood within ten feet of Meagher, who pointed the revolver full in his face.

"Stop!" he commanded, harshly. "Stay where you are. Don't move an inch closer."

Murray paused and stared unflinchingly at the outlaw. He knew that never in his life had death loomed nearer than at that moment. Meagher's eye was cold and hard, yet as it glared at him he fancied that he could read something of curiosity in its murderous, merciless depths. Neither man spoke. Murray's hands were empty, his revolver lying useless in his pocket.

The prisoner was first to break the tension. "Murray," he said suddenly, but without shifting his eyes, "I have no fit clothes. I'm a gentleman, and I won't go to Canada looking like a pauper."

Murray smiled languidly. "The sheriff has a suit of clothes for you, Frank," he said. "It's a pretty fair suit, but if it isn't good enough, I'll wait until you get one."

A look of satisfaction crossed Meagher's stern features. Murray, watching him, knew that he was playing for delay, and became more than ever determined to take him on that 4:35 train. Meagher leaned forward and hurled a torrent of insulting oaths at Detective Muncie, possibly hoping that he might create a diversion by picking a quarrel with the Cleveland officer. Muncie made no reply, and the prisoner again turned his attention to Murray.

"I've got nothing against you, Murray," he said. "But don't come a step nearer me."

Murray reflected. He half turned his back and sat down on the stair. If Meagher had looked away for a moment he could have slipped out his gun from his pocket. But the prisoner's eye never swerved. Murray yawned listlessly and turned his back altogether upon him.

"It's like this, Frank," he remarked, quietly. "I don't want to get hurt any

"There's going to be trouble," said Murray, significantly.

Meagher was wearing leg irons, as well as handcuffs. Murray placed him in the middle, and examined the chambers of his revolver. Muncie also inspected his six shooter, and the two sat awaiting developments.

"You want to remember one thing, Frank," said Murray to his prisoner. "If there's any break made somebody is going to get killed before we do." Meagher did not reply, but a sullen gleam lit the depths of his somber eyes. He comprehended the meaning of the threat and knew that the speaker would keep his word.

An hour passed. Suddenly the front door of the car swung open and Red Jim Carroll entered with his three companions behind him.

"Halt there, Jim!" came the brusque order in Murray's resolute tones. Carroll stopped and eyed the threatening muzzles of two revolvers. Murray and his companion were standing erect, alert and threatening.

"Good morning, gentlemen," said Carroll.

"Are you in search of trouble, Jim?" demanded Murray.

Carroll grinned. "Not me," he declared. "Will you let me speak to Frank?"

"You may speak to him from where you are," conceded Murray.

Meagher, mindful of Murray's sinister threat, remained quietly in his seat. When his guards first rose to their feet he had started half up, but remembering the caution given him in time, sunk back again. When Carroll came to a halt at Murray's command the prisoner's face grew black with rage, and he cursed Red Jim and the latter's companions for a set of cowardly curs. Red Jim's hand slid to his pocket, but stopped half way when Murray ordered him to desist.

"What are you reaching for?" asked Murray suspiciously.

"I want to pass Frank a couple of hundred dollars," was the reply.

"Take your money to hell with you," roared Meagher, apparently moved to a frenzy of rage by the failure of the plot to rescue him.

Keeping Red Jim covered, Murray ordered him to reach no lower than his breast pocket with his hands, and to count out the money where he stood. Meagher again shouted that he would not accept the money of a cowardly gang of dogs that would stand by and see a friend dragged away.

"Sometimes the worst comes to the worst, Frank," said Carroll, with an odd touch of quiet dignity, "and people can't help themselves. This man Murray is a gentleman. He'll take no advantage of you and give you a fair show."

Thus speaking, Red Jim tossed the money at Murray's feet. "You'll have to excuse my not handing it to you," he said, apologetically.

"Good-by, Jim," was Murray's significant response.

Carroll hesitated, glanced again at the leveled revolvers, and nodded.

"Good-by, Mr. Murray," he said.

"Good-by, Frank. Good-by, Mr. Muncie."

He backed out of the doorway, preceded by his three pals, and closed the door. Murray picked up the money and gave it to his prisoner. Presently the train stopped at a junction, and when it pulled out again Red Jim stood on the station platform, waving a final good-by.

Murray and his prisoner went through to Buffalo, thence to Lewiston on the Niagara river, and thence by boat to Toronto. As the steamer passed old Fort Niagara, at the mouth of the river, and gilded out into Lake Ontario, Meagher stood on the deck. The American flag was flying over Fort Niagara, and Meagher raised his fettered hands and saluted it.

"Good-by, Old Glory, God bless you," he said, earnestly. "I suppose it's the last time I shall ever see that flag. I'd rather I was dying for it than for what I am."

He gazed after the flag until it was a mere speck against the skyline. The idea that he could still be executed for killing Dain had taken complete possession of him, and all his captor's assurances to the contrary failed to cheer him.

Having landed his prisoner safely in the Toronto jail, where he was held for trial, Murray realized that it would be necessary to obtain the evidence of Meagher's confederate, Leavitt, in order to convict the former. Leavitt, however, was sentenced for life, and being dead in the eyes of the law, was not competent to testify. Murray visited Leavitt at the Kingston penitentiary and learned that he yearned for liberty, and was willing to become a witness for the crown. On Murray's recommendation, the government commuted Leavitt's sentence to ten years, thereby making him a competent witness.

Leavitt accordingly told the story of the crime, in court, with the result that Meagher was sentenced to 18 years in the penitentiary. When Meagher heard his former ally testify he stood up and cursed him savagely.

"You traitorous bound," he said. "I'll kill you in this world or the next."

Leavitt was pardoned after Meagher's conviction, on Murray's suggestion that he would probably be killed by some of the other convicts, if compelled to associate with them. When last heard of he was living in Cleveland, and Meagher's threat of vengeance was still unfulfilled. But some day they may meet—and then?

IT WAS NOT HER BACK.
Woman Had No Idea of Being Proxy for Medical Treatment.

A missionary, discoursing upon India, told of a woman who had come to her complaining of a very sore back and desired that she pray for its cure. This Mrs. Jackson did, but the woman again appeared before her and declared that the back was still in a bad condition. Mrs. Jackson advised the use of an application of iodine, and brought out a bottle of the drug to apply upon the afflicted part of the woman's anatomy. But she regarded the bottle suspiciously and acted as though it would hurt her were she to use it. To allay her fears upon this score Mrs. Jackson applied some of the drug to her own finger and showed her that it would not burn, and that she had better allow her to put some of it upon her back.

"But," said the woman, "it would do no good."

"How so?" inquired Mrs. Jackson, sympathetically.

"Because," replied the woman, "it is my old man's back that is sore."

An Easter Song.

The golden sun climbs up the sky.
The shadows flee away.
Oh! weary heart, forget to sigh:
God sends the Easter Day!
Long was that night, chill was the air,
And grief o'er brooded long.
Yet is the new world white and fair,
Uplift thine Easter song!

The cross that bowed thee with its weight
By strength of prayer is stirred,
Till it shall bear thee soon or late,
As wings upbear the bird.
The life that thrills from star to star,
And beats in leaf and stem,
Is wider than the heavens are,
And blesses thee from them.

Wert thou cast down, wert thou dismayed,
Dear Child of One above,
Behold the earth in light arrayed;
The light of deathless love.
Oh! listen to the word that wakes
In every budding flower,
And take the bread the Master breaks,
In His triumphant hour.

For those who hear, and hearing yearn,
The King hath secrets sweet;
Their hearts within them thrill and burn,
They wait His coming feet.
Then swift the sun climbs up the sky!
The shadows flee away!
Oh! weary heart, forget to sigh,
God sends the Easter Day!

Easter in the World.

ACCORDING to an old tradition, when the Roman soldiers came to the Garden of Gethsemane Christ hid under the olive trees until the treacherous plover cried out "Buvick!" "Buvick!" "He is hiding!"

But if a Judas among the birds betrayed the Master of men in this hour of need, other faithful feathered folk ministered to him at the darker moment of Calvary. Then it was that the voice of the pitying turtle dove grew so plaintive that never has it regained its lost happy notes. Not only did the swallow perch on the cross and twitter tender words of consolation, but also in its small, sweet way alleviated the sufferer's pain by pulling out a spine from the crown of thorns. And the stork flying over the cross loitered on the wing to call down: "Stryk!" "Stryk!" "Strengthen!"

In certain old English gardens, there is a little spotted-leaved plant with deep blue flowers and red buds, called "Mary's Tears," for in the beginning this grew on Calvary—its flower the blue of the Mother Mary's eyes, the buds red as her eyelids swollen from weeping, and the leaves tear-stained with her grief.

And in the old English garden, too, is found the rosemary that puts forth new blossoms every Friday as though to embalm the body of the dead Christ.

Wonderful Passion Flower.

In the passion flower the reverent imagination has discovered not a cross alone, but also the pillar of scourging, the nails, the crown of thorns, and even spots to mark the five wounds of the crucified body.

The Spaniard will tell you that the aspen trembles because that was the wood of the cross. However this may be, there is a delightful old legend concerning the tree out of which the cross was made.

Aged Adam, weary of toil and sin and eager for death, sent to the angel guarding the Tree of Life to beg a boon. The messenger brought back the welcome promise that Adam should die in three days, and the added gift of three small seeds which were mysteriously to be placed under the dead man's tongue before burial.

From these seeds, the quaint narrative continues, sprang three saplings that later united, three in one, symbol of the Trinity. With this miraculous tree Moses and David each wrought many wonders. But King Solomon, his whole heart set upon the building of the temple, had the tree cut down, intending it for a magnificent beam. Strive as the workmen would, however, nowhere would the beam fit, and, cast aside, it was later used as a bridge across a nearby stream. When the queen of Sheba made her notable visit she refused to

THE CRACKING OF PAINT.

Property Owners Can Save Money by Learning the Cause.

Do you know what is wrong when paint peels, or cracks, or otherwise necessitates premature re-painting? Well, sometimes it hasn't been properly applied—the surface being damp or there being too much turpentine or too much drier.

But, nine times out of ten, the trouble is caused by adulterated white lead.

To avoid all such trouble, every houseowner should know in a general way, when a surface is in proper condition to receive paint, what kind of primer and finishing coats different surfaces require, and how to avoid adulteration in materials.

A complete painting guide, including a book of color schemes, specifications for all kinds of painting work, and an instrument for detecting adulterations in painting materials, with directions for using it, can be had free by writing National Lead Company, 1902 Trinity Bldg., New York, and asking for Houseowner's Painting Outfit No. 49.

This company, the largest makers of pure white lead, invite tests, by means of the blowpipe (included in outfit), or in any other way, of the purity of the white lead sold under their famous "Dutch Boy Painter" trademark. That trademark on a keg of white lead is in itself an absolute guarantee of purity and quality.

The Secret of Success.

The motto of success was given in this tale, told at a banquet:
A Swede among the miners in the west was noted for always striking pay dirt. His fellows thought that there must be some secret to the unusual success of the Swede and questioned him as to how he always succeeded in finding the spot where the gold cropped out.

"Well, Ay don't know ef Ay can tell anyting 'bout dat," answered Ole. "Ay only know dat Ay stay keep on diggin'."—Milwaukee Free Press.

Partners in His Crime.

The hard looking customer had been arrested for stealing an umbrella.
"What do you have to say for yourself?" asked the police justice. "Are you guilty or not guilty?"
"I'm one of the guilty ones, y'r honor, I reckon," answered the prisoner. "The umbrella had the name of J. Thompson on the handle, G. H. Brickley stamped on the inside of the cover, an' I stole it from a man named Quimby."

The First Word.

"That is what I call an ideal marriage," Hardy declared to his wife as they were walking homeward after an evening at the Carrolls'. "Actually, I believe both think absolutely alike."
"Yes, they are certainly charming," assented Mrs. Hardy; "but about thinking, Joe, if you will notice, she generally thinks first."—Youth's Companion.

Value of Aspirations.

An aspiration is a joy forever, a possession as solid as a landed estate, a fortune which we can never exhaust and which gives us, year by year, a revenue of pleasurable activity. To have many of these is to be spiritually rich.—R. L. Stevenson.

The Plain Facts.

SISTER'S TRICK

But It All Came Out Right.

How a sister played a trick that brought rosy health to a coffee fiend is an interesting tale:
"I was a coffee fiend—a trembling, nervous, physical wreck, yet clinging to the poison that stole away my strength. I mocked at Postum and would have none of it."
"One day my sister substituted a cup of Postum piping hot for my morning cup of coffee but did not tell me what it was. I noticed the richness of it and remarked that the coffee tasted fine but my sister did not tell me I was drinking Postum for fear I might not take any more."
"She kept the secret and kept giving me Postum instead of coffee until I grew stronger, more tireless, got a better color in my sallow cheeks and a clearness to my eyes, then she told me of the health-giving, nerve-strengthening life-saver she had given me in place of my morning coffee. From that time I became a disciple of Postum and no words can do justice in telling the good this cereal drink did me. I will not try to tell it, for only after having used it can one be convinced of its merits."
Ten days' trial shows Postum's power to rebuild what coffee has destroyed. "There's a Reason."

One who suffers with headache or any form of kidney trouble wants a lasting cure, not merely a temporary benefit. Profit by the example of Rev. J. M. Suffield, of 2179 S. 8th St., Lincoln, Neb., who confirms a report of his cure after several years. "I told in a statement made for publication in 1900 how Doan's Kidney Pills had relieved me after other remedies had failed," said Rev. Suffield. "I have no hesitation in confirming that statement now. I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at various times and they have never failed me."

WORTH MOUNTAINS OF GOLD

During Change of Life, says Mrs. Chas. Barclay

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—Mrs. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
For more than 30 years it has been curing female complaints such as inflammation, ulceration, local weakness, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life. It cures but little to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, as Mrs. Barclay says, it is "worth mountains of gold" to suffering women.

"The Last Best West"

Western Canada the Present Winner

The government of Canada now gives to every actual settler 160 acres of wheat-growing land free and an additional 160 acres at $3.00 an acre. The 300,000 homes of American settlers making their homes in Western Canada is the best evidence of the superiority of that country. They are becoming rich, growing from 25 to 30 bushels wheat to the acre; 60 to 110 bushels oats and 45 to 60 bushels barley, besides having splendid herds of cattle raised on the prairie grass. Dairying is an important industry.

The crop of 1900 still keeps Western Canada in the lead. The world will soon look to it as its food-producer.

FRIDAY, APRIL 9, 1909.

Spring Election.

The usual spring election last Monday caused no unusual excitement, though a little quiet work was done in behalf of several candidates. The total vote shows quite a falling off in comparison to that cast last fall when in the neighborhood of 525 votes were polled. At the election Monday 448 votes cast. On the township ticket there were 97 straight Republican and 113 straight Democrat. Two hundred and seventy Republicans voted the State ticket, 84 the Democrat, 46 Prohibition, 30 Socialist and 2 Social Labor. The following is the vote in detail on the local ticket, Republicans first named, Democrat second:

Supervisor	Chas. W. Bradner	243-51

	Marshall Gleason	168
County Auditor	Milton Oakman	282
	William J. Nagel	91
County School Commissioner	Eber W. Yost	265
	Harry Burr	87

LIVONIA TOWNSHIP.

There were 281 votes in Livonia township, 78 being straight Republican, 71 straight Democrat. The result is a little mixed, Dan. McKinney, D., receiving a big majority. The complete vote: Supervisor—Fred Lee, R., 97; Dan. McKinney, D., 175. Clerk—John Harlan, R., 125; George Kulu, D., 118. Treasurer—Harry Wheeler R., 127; Wm. Garchow, D., 141. Highway Com.—Chas. F. Smith, R., 142; Matthias Miller, D., 125. Overseer Highways—Ernest Esch, R., 115; John Rattenbury, D., 150. Justice, full term—Ira Wilson, R., 138; Volney Gunning D., 126. Justice, vacancy—Chas. Board Review—John Nash, R., 102; George W. Smith, 80. Drain Assessor—Charles Truesdell, 102; Charles Knox, D., 78.

Local Option Wins.

Nineteen counties of the State voted for local option at the election held last Monday, while only eight returned a wet majority, among the latter being Monroe and Washtenaw counties. The "dry's" are consequently very much elated over the success of their campaign and are already preparing to make further attempts to put the saloon out of business in other counties of the State. A strong campaign was made in Ann Arbor, being the university city, where it was hoped success might attend their efforts for the sake of the welfare of the students, and it is to be regretted that it was not the case. The temperance wave is going on and State wide prohibition is not one of the impossible things within the next few years.

Friends and neighbors of Mr. Marr have the deepest sympathy for him.

Hurricane in the State.

Dispatches in the daily newspapers yesterday tell of the disastrous results of the hurricane which prevailed the day before in Michigan and other States. Five lives were lost in this State, besides three men who lost their lives trying to cross the turbulent waters of Detroit river at Wyandotte on a bet. In Detroit property was damaged to the amount of $50,000 and thousands of dollars' worth was destroyed in other parts of the west. For a time Wednesday morning the wind in Detroit is reported to have attained a velocity of 70 miles, the average from 8 to 9 being 64 miles. While it "blew some" in Plymouth no serious damage was done anywhere.

Co-operative Delivery Probable.

The grocermen and meat dealers are considering the proposition of a "central delivery." At the present time each groceryman and meat cutter maintains a separate delivery wagon at great expense. Under the central delivery system the contract is let to one man to deliver for all the dealers, and no orders are solicited by wagons. The latter feature is regarded as a great nuisance to dealers. A meeting of all dealers was to have been held last evening to form a plan and undertake to obtain the formal agreement of each. We understand all grocermen are favorable to the project. We believe the system is a meritorious one, of advantage to both dealers and customers. Deliveries would be made at 7 and 8 a. m. and 3 p. m.

Gayde Bros' Handsome Window.

We note with much interest the way some of our enterprising local dealers are putting forth every effort this spring to make their stores attractive. This week Gayde Brothers, whose progressive attractive advertisements in our columns, have a fine window devoted entirely to house paint.

On close inspection one finds not only the usual display of paint cans but long cards showing rows of houses in new and handsome combinations of colors for exterior painting. An attractive window border brightens the appearance of the whole store and draws much attention from the passers-by. Its four corners attractively illustrate how easily and well any shabby surface in or about the home can be fixed up.

Gayde Bros. deserve much credit for this window and we are sure it will prove of much benefit in reminding people of the many things around their homes that can easily be beautified at house-cleaning time.

The Exposition at Seattle.

Visitors from Michigan to the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition at Seattle this summer will find a hearty welcome for the Michigan club has perfected arrangements for raising a large sum of money to be used in the entertainment of visitors from their native state during the exposition period, and complete the Michigan building on the fair grounds.

During the progress of the exhibition visitors from Michigan will be accorded a hearty welcome at the Michigan building and there they will find a register kept in alphabetical order giving the names and addresses of former Michigan people now living in the state of Washington. This register will also show the county in which they resided in their native state and will be complete as it is possible for the Michigan state society to secure the names.

The exposition is now so near complete that it would be possible, if necessary, to open the gates May 1, one month before the official date for the opening of this great exhibition of the Pacific. On June 1 the Michigan building will be ready to receive visitors as will every building large and small on the exposition grounds.

German Red Tape.
A Danzig, Germany, paper tells a story of incredible red tapeism recently witnessed in that city. A fire broke out at a big sugar factory and great damage was done in a few minutes. The flames were rapidly spreading, but it was hoped that the storehouse containing 13,000 sacks of raw sugar, each holding a hundredweight, might be saved, and all efforts of the fire brigade were turned in that quarter. Here, however, several custom house officers suddenly appeared and forbade the firemen to enter the warehouse, on the ground that the duties had not yet been regulated. Despite energetic opposition the officers stuck to their principles, and the whole stuff was consumed by the flames.—Baker's Weekly.

Tone and Tune.
When your vitality is low you need "toning up." Why not "tuning up"? Same thing. We are all pianos, just a mass of sounding boards, keys and strings. We get out of tune and tone; we run down, just like an eight-day clock, and require rewinding. Look at your wife to-morrow morning and see if she is out of tune. If she is cross you will say she got out of bed with the wrong foot foremost. Not a bit of sense in that. She simply got up from her night's rest out of tune, or tone. Tune her up! Tone her up! In her finest health she may be a G sharp; when not so well she may be at D. Have your family kit of tuning irons; give her a test; then bring her up to pitch.—New York Press.

Was Once Great City.
No city has a happier name than Ispahan—the "rendezvous." When visited by the traveler Chardin in the early part of the eighteenth century, it contained 173 mosques, 48 colleges, 1,800 caravansaries and 273 public baths. But the Afghans, the local vandals, who did not care for bathing, destroyed the aqueducts and slaughtered the bathers. In the matter of great public squares Ispahan can easily outrival any European city. The Meydan, or great square, is a third of a mile in length and about half that breadth. It was once encircled by a canal bordered by fine plane trees, but these have long since vanished along with the canal.

Not in the Work for Money.
Gypsy Smith, the evangelist, recently held services in Kansas City. A report that he receives $20,000 a year for preaching the gospel reached him, and he promptly issued a strong denial. "My salary is not one-fourth of $20,000 a year," he said. "It is a most modest salary. People would be surprised if they knew what my salary is. I am not out to make money. I could make a lot more money than I do if I were to make my own plans instead of having them made for me. I have had offers on the lecture platform that would take four or five years of my time in this country alone."

Defense of Canned Products.
That foods properly canned do not deteriorate with age was a statement made at a dinner of canners in Chicago a few days ago. "Suppose a customer desired a can of corn on February 22, 1920," said one of the speakers, "and was given corn canned in 1909. It would be rejected with a demand for something fresher," and, although the 1909 article would be found as fresh as that of 1920 it would be lost. At a recent banquet in London canned fruit taken from the ruins of Pompeii was found to be fresh and fine. There should be a law to compel the canning of all products in such a manner that they would keep for ages."

Where Robin Feels at Home.
"For some time past," writes a correspondent from Nantwich, "a robin has used our house for meals. We have only to open the window and call 'Bob,' when he flies at once into the room."
His favorite dining room is the nursery, and if the window is closed he will try every other window, and when he has found one open will fly through the house to the nursery. If he finds all the windows closed he flies about until he has found a room where someone is sitting, when he will tap at the window until it is opened.—London Daily Mail.

The Phonograph in China.
American phonograph companies do a big business in China. The most famous Chinese bands and palace singers are engaged to make records. They are brought from all parts of the empire to the three record-making centers—Peking, Shanghai and Hongkong. Here the apparatus for making the master records is set up and the recording done under the direction of an expert. A record popular in the north of China seldom is popular in the south.

Pronunciation of Caesar, Cicero.
The word Caesar is pronounced as though spelled se-zar, the accent on the first syllable, the "e" long and the "a" pronounced as in far. The word Cicero is pronounced as though spelled si-se-ro, the accent on the first syllable, the "i" short, the "e" short as in "prudent" or "difference," and the "o" long.

Canada to Import Yaks.
A herd of six fine yaks is to be imported by the Canadian government, and started in business on the experimental farm at Ottawa. The animal is about the size of common cattle, but is better fitted to endure the cold. It is valuable for milk, beef, hide and hair, and is easily nourished on sparse vegetation.

It looks as if the Plymouth ball players might be classed with the "hold-outs," at least there seems to be a disposition to hold back in the organization of a ball team. With the fine ball park we have it would be a sad commentary on base ball enthusiasm if a ball team were not organized. "Get-together," boys, and "play ball!"

Impure Water.

So much has been written on the danger of impure drinking water, and so many epidemics of typhoid fever have been traced to this source, that it seems almost needless to utter a warning against the use of unboiled water when there is the slightest suspicion that such water may not be absolutely pure.

Fashion is sometimes derided for excesses and condemned because of alleged evils wrought, as for instance when it encourages the destruction of useful birds to secure decorations for the ladies' bonnets.

The servant problem, which in its most exasperating aspects began in the United States, has gone round the world. France was long free from trouble under this head, and the hard-working, honest, cleanly Breton "bonaparts" who performed domestic services in Parisian homes made their mistresses the envy of American women residing in the French capital.

The sudden demand for "possum in the south is giving the toothsome marsupials an uncomfortably active time in dodging hunters; but the experience may be a good thing for the animal, as it is becoming evident that something must be done for them in order to make possum a possible delicacy in the future.

Discussion arose at a meeting of the Ballycastle (County Antrim) board of guardians on a letter from the local government board in London asking what order the guardians had made on a former letter from the board requesting that the papers should be supplied with forks at meals.

British automobile exports now amount to a value of $22,500,000 a year. Factories are full of orders as a result of the recent automobile show at the Olympia in London.

School teachers are getting as high as 30 cents a day in some parts of the state. Just think how much they have to know for 30 cents! Most of them are women and they would turn brick-bats in a minute.

STATE LEGISLATURE; NEWS OF SOLONS

WHAT THE LAW-MAKERS AT LANSING ARE DOING—NEW BILLS UP.

COLBY LOSES FIRST ROUND

Attempt to Get Around Speaker's Ruling Affecting Primary Bills Meets with Failure—Substitute for Pending Ones.

Lansing.—Representative Colby intended to make an effort to amend the house rules so as to void the ruling of Speaker Campbell that a committee cannot report out a substitute for more than one bill, but his demand for a call of the house was defeated, 37 to 33, which postponed the fight.

The committee held another session and voted in favor of a substitute for the Dickinson and Colby bills, but it was not reported out on account of the large number of absentees. It takes a two-thirds vote of all the members-elect to amend the rules, but the committee can follow another method by reporting out the substitute and then appealing from the decision of the chair, which would only take 51 votes.

Thinks Liquor Fight is Won.

"We have broken the backbone of liquor traffic in Michigan." That was the expression to which Superintendent George W. Morrow of the Michigan Anti-Saloon league gave vent in a talk at Detroit shortly after the returns were brought in which showed him that 19 of the 27 counties in Michigan counties had been won by the "drys."

Iosco county at first accounts was said to have gone to the "drys," but later information showed it to be "wet" and consequently it was transferred to the liquor column by a narrow margin.

Election of Charles A. Blair of Jackson and John W. Stone of Marquette to seats on the supreme court bench was well received by political leaders and it was estimated the Republicans won a victory by a plurality of 75,000.

In the small cities of the state mayors were elected and for the most part the Republicans carried away the trophies of the ballot chase.

The option campaign was unique. It made a total of 30 "dry" counties, 11 having previously renounced intoxicants among the 83 districts of Michigan. It was a hard fight for the "drys," but they won in the greater number of fights. Berrien county was one of the notable failures of the anti-saloonists to put it over on the "wets." The failure in that Gretna Green is said to have been due to the fame of the spot as a resort. Some business men made the declaration that if the county was to go "dry," it would hurt St. Joseph and Benton Harbor, the two largest cities, which depend upon resorts for a great share of their revenue.

The great resort interests of the twin cities with the special privilege act endorsed by the foreign voters, the election for the "wets" seemed assured before the ballots were cast. The Anti-Saloon league of Michigan made the most desperate effort in the history of the state to carry Berrien county, but failed. They employed temperance speakers of national fame, including the famous Seaborn Wright of Georgia and C. W. Trickett, who made Kansas "dry." Women's votes played a large part in the election of the members of the Detroit school board. This is the only office for which women have the franchise, and they turned out by the thousand, as a result of an unusually bitter campaign against a number of members of the present board who are seeking re-election.

Under the central counting board system in vogue it was a long time before definite results were known, but the throngs of women at the polls indicated a record-breaking women's vote.

Push Work in the Senate.

Lieut. Gov. Kelley has named Senators Ming, White and MacKay, as the steering committee, to push legislation in the senate and keep the important bills to the front for consideration. Neither house had a session Friday for lack of a quorum, most of the members having gone home early for political fence-building in view of the election Monday. Not a member was left in the city, for the first time since the session began.

Creates More New Jobs.

Senator Collins introduced another bill to provide for a system of uniform accounting throughout the state. This bill would establish a department of public accounting, to consist of a chief accountant at $3,500 a year; first assistant at $3,000; second assistant at $2,500, and not to exceed three clerks at $1,900, all to be appointed by the governor.

Correct Defect in Law.

A bill was drafted in the attorney general's department for introduction in the legislature to provide a new statute to take the place of the one declared invalid by the supreme court, which authorized probate courts to allow the sale of an estate as a means of preserving the estate. Since 1897, however, there have been many transfers of real estate under the defective statute, and the proposed act will not only provide a new and proper act, but it will also provide that sales of estates are valid.

MICHIGAN'S HALL OF FAME

W. H. QUILLIAMS.

Representative W. H. Quilliams is a Benton Harbor man. Just recently he scanned his district and was not surprised to see it go "wet," when the votes in the recent option election were counted. Berrien county has always been "wet," declares Mr. Quilliams, and perhaps will be. This Berrien county summer resort business, he says, is the lever upon which citizens of the section voted. Berrien county people think all resorts must have wet goods, says the Benton Harbor legislator, and so it was really not the people of his district who decided the question, but the ever-present thirst of the Chicago visitors. So despite the fact that Superintendent Morrow in Detroit black-penciled Berrien county on his new "dry" map of Michigan, it really isn't the fault of the Berrien folks.

Minor Legislative Doings.

The Clarken bill providing for a prison industry commission to report to the legislature regarding the best system of labor to employ convicts, and prohibiting any new contracts being made for the employment of convicts by private firms, was passed by the house.

The house passed a concurrent resolution adjourning until Tuesday night.

Representative Whelan of Vernon, who had been after the state highway department all season, finally won a victory when he got through a resolution calling on State Highway Commissioner Earle to appear before the house and explain why he has not filed his report.

The MacKay bill providing for two judges of probate in counties over 400,000 population, was agreed to in committee of the whole in the house, along with the Stewart bill which provides for the appointment of a commission and $1,000 appropriation for the exercise incident to the unveiling of the Custer statue in Monroe.

Senator Tuttle succeeded in calling attention to a joker he found in one of the three bills, introduced presumably for bettering the system for the inspection of illuminating oils. One clause provided that every man appointed would get a house phone at the expense of the state, and it was cut out in committee of the whole, 12 to 10.

The Straight bill which requires labels on all packages of cereals showing the weight of the contents was passed by the house after another change had been made in it. This is the bill which was endorsed by the Michigan Millers' association.

Sues Her Father-in-Law.

Mrs. Eva Lawrence of Rochester has begun suit in the Macomb county circuit court against her father-in-law, Warren Lawrence of Romeo, claiming $20,000 for the alleged alienation of her husband's affections. Mrs. Lawrence married John C. Lawrence, son of Warren, 13 years ago. Four years ago they separated, the husband going to Philadelphia, where he is now engaged in business. She alleges that her husband's father was the cause of trouble between her and his son, which led to their separation. The suit is believed to have been prompted by her husband starting suit for a divorce.

Give Commission Full Power.

The house agreed to Representative Hoeft's bill repealing the maximum carload law for short hauls. This law prescribes the rates for hauls up to 30 miles and the attorney general held that where the legislature fixed a rate the railroad commission had no power of review. It was thought best to let the commission deal with the justness of all rates.

Kelley Files a Running Mate.

Lieut. Gov. Patrick H. Kelley, who is an avowed candidate for governor, has been conducting a quiet personal search for a running mate. The running mate whom Kelley has picked out is none else than Senator William H. Aikin of the Port Huron-Seminole district, who is serving his first term in the senate.

Cuts Pawnshop Licenses to $25.

Quite a lot of trouble was experienced with the provision of the new constitution providing that no bill must be altered or amended on its passage through either house so as to alter its original purpose. A case in point is the MacKay bill amending the law relating to charged mortgage concerns, which passed the senate. When it got to the house various police officials called attention to the fact that the bill prevented the police supervisor over property that might have been stolen.

STATE NEWS

Election Results.

Detroit.—Twenty out of the 27 Michigan counties which held option elections went "dry." This makes 31 of the state's 83 counties "dry," 11 having given victories to the anti-saloon element at former elections. Following are the results: "Dry"—Alcona, Allegan, Benzie, Branch, Calhoun, Clare, Eaton, Emmett, Genesee, Hillsdale, Ionia, Iosco, Isabella, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Livingston, Newaygo, Sanilac, Tuscola, Charlevoix. "Wet"—Berrien, Huron, Montcalm, Mecosta, Ottawa, Washtenaw and Monroe.

The Republican state ticket, which was elected by a majority of 75,000, is as follows: Justices of the supreme court, Charles A. Blair, Jackson, and John W. Stone, Marquette; regents of the University of Michigan, William L. Clements, Day City, and George P. Codd, Detroit; member of the state board of education, William J. McKone of Albion; members of the state board of agriculture, William H. Wallace, Saginaw; I. R. Waterbury, Highland; R. J. Doherty, Clare; R. D. Graham, Grand Rapids, and W. L. Carpenter, Detroit.

Prompted by the great mineral baths excursion and resort industry with the solid support of the foreign voters which are represented in strong numbers in the rural parts, Berrien county rejected local option by a sweeping majority of 2,000.

MAYORS ELECTED.

- Albion—A. F. Cooper, R. Alma—Dr. N. F. McClinton, D. Ann Arbor—William Walz, D. Battle Creek—John W. Bailey, D. Belding—William Santell, R. Charlevoix—O. E. Wilbur, R. Allegan—Gustav Stern, R. STORMS IN ILLINOIS

TORNADOES CAUSE MUCH DAMAGE AT MARION, PITTSBURG AND BRAIDWOOD.

PROPERTY LOSS IS $200,000

One Person Killed When Wind Wrecks Farmhouse Near Kokomo, Ind.—Fatalities Reported in a Cyclone in Mississippi.

Marion, Ill., Apr. 7.—Many persons were injured and considerable property was damaged by a tornado which struck this city and its vicinity yesterday. The greatest damage was done at Pittsburg.

The storm came from the southwest and was preceded and followed by heavy rains. It was 5:30 o'clock when the "twister" struck here and few persons were on the streets. In the business section, several store buildings were partly demolished and in the residence section many of the small homes occupied by miners and their families were unroofed.

The storm passed across the country, it ripped open barns, and other farm buildings and then apparently spent its force on Pittsburg. Monetary Loss About $150,000.

Flying debris wrecked store fronts there and uprooted trees, crashed upon dwellings, one of which collapsed and caused two deaths.

The monetary loss occasioned by the storm is estimated at $150,000.

In Marion the Edwards mill was unroofed, the ice plant damaged and the A. F. White business college, Marion State and Trust bank, Holiday grocery building and a number of offices were partly blown down.

The African Methodist church was also wrecked and the Methodist church South, Copeland Greenhouse, A. H. Joseph Clothing Company and W. H. Hundy's drug store were badly damaged. At Pittsburg the Methodist church was blown down.

Braidwood Has Big Storm.

Joliet, Ill., Apr. 7.—A big windstorm in the vicinity of Braidwood, 20 miles south of here, last evening destroyed $40,000 worth of property. No loss of life was reported. The wind picked out certain spots in which to exhibit its specialties. It swept off the roof of David Jack's hardware store and tore away the top of Fred Brown's residence. An old factory building formerly occupied by a planing company collapsed. Several cows which were stabled in it were killed. The whole front of John Baker's residence was blown into the street. Many windows were broken, trees and telegraph poles were torn out of the ground.

Heavy Rain at Mount Vernon.

Mount Vernon, Ill., Apr. 7.—A terrific rain, electrical and wind storm raged here, doing $10,000 damage to stock and other property. The cupola of the courthouse was damaged by the storm. The heavy rains impeded traffic all over the county.

One Killed in Indiana.

Kokomo, Ind., Apr. 7.—A destructive storm struck this locality last night. At Miami, ten miles north of here, the Masonic Temple and several other buildings were badly wrecked. The farm residence of Mrs. Gammons was blown down and the family of six was caught in the wreck and all were more or less injured. One daughter, Clara, was killed.

Mississippi Storm Fatal.

Memphis, Tenn., Apr. 7.—It is reported that the town of Aberdeen, Miss., was damaged badly by a tornado and that several persons were killed.

Coming Down Easy.
Inquiries after the welfare of Patrick Conroy were answered by his devoted friend, Terence Dolan, who was at the Conroys' in the double capacity of nurse and cook. "No, he's not dangerous hurt at all," was Mr. Dolan's reply to a solemnly whispered question at the door.
"We heard he had a bad fall, and was all broke to pieces," whispered the neighbor.
"Tis a big story you've heard," said Mr. Dolan, in his cheerful roar. "Thru, he fell off'n the roof o' the Brady stables where he was shingling, and he broke his left leg, knocked out a couple o' teeth and broke his collar-bone.
"Mind ye, if he'd have fell clear to the ground, it might have hurted him bad, but sure there was a big pile of sthones and old lumber that broke his fall."—Youth's Companion.

Ostrich Farming Profitable.
A new industry which promises great possibilities has been started in Australia. At Nardoo, Coonamble, ostrich farming is meeting with success. There are 120 ostriches on one farm. The firm is using incubators, the same as those used to hatch out the modest product of the domestic hen, only that the egg drawers are made deeper for the purpose, while the temperature for a successful hatch is 102 degrees Fahrenheit. Artificial incubation is preferred to natural. The young ostriches require careful handling for the first month or six weeks of their existence, the one essential being green food, such as lucerne. The value of the feathers produced by each bird a year is $40. They can be plucked at any time after they are large enough, and yield feathers black, white and drab in color. The male bird yields the most valuable feathers.

Learn to Plan Homes.
Two years ago the University of St. Petersburg decided that women might attend the lectures, as it seemed probable that this course could not contain anything that could make politicians of the students. Recently there has been an exhibition of the work of the architectural students, and experts who saw it were surprised to find that the work of the women students compares so favorably with that of the men. In the work of planning homes especially the women were most original in their ideas, and carried out details that would, as a general thing, have been beyond the men students. It is predicted that especially in home architecture the women will make a success of their work.

Chance for Students of Fevers.
The Mexican Academy of Medicine has appropriated $25,000 for the purpose of discovering the cause of typhus, and to develop a cure for the fever. Of the amount $10,000 will be awarded to the person or persons discovering the cure. A like amount will be given to the person or persons discovering a serum which will kill the typhus germ in the blood. In the event of any person solving both problems an effort will be made to have the government give a proper reward. Five thousand dollars will be distributed among the persons who have most efficiently helped in solving the problem.

Sets Law of Kitchen.
A "law of the kitchen" has been set forth in England in an opinion by a county judge. He holds that where the mistress of a house goes to the kitchen to aid the maid of all work the two are brought on terms of equality such as would not be tolerated in larger establishments. The case was that of a cook and general maid who sought to recover a month's wages from her former mistress in lieu of notice. The mistress asserted that the servant always "answered her back," but the judge held that under the circumstances this was not sufficient to justify dismissal.

Man's Contrariness.
One of the most curious traits of that most curious creature, Man, is the fact that the very things he most admires in a sweetheart he condemns or ignores in a wife! Before they were married, when she coquettishly stuck a flower in her pretty curls he went into rhapsodies of romantic fervor. After the honeymoon, when she tries the same little Cupid's trick he most likely does not even see that she has adorned herself with a floral wreath to win a compliment or a kiss.—Annesley Kenealy, in Woman's Life.

Live and Let Live.
A neatly attired but somewhat wan faced middle-aged Italian woman dressed in black, leading a little boy with each hand, called at a lawyer's office in the Land Title building recently and arranged with him to apply for a divorce. After going over the history of her case the lawyer said: "Well, I suppose you want to get all-mony?" In slightly accented, though nearly perfect English, the client replied: "I would just like to get part of his money, that's all."—Philadelphia Record.

A Dog and a Button.
A boy ten years old, at Chester, Pa., held a button in his mouth while playing with the cat, and some movement of his sent it into his gullet. He could do nothing to relieve himself, and, choking and gasping, he ran along the street to find a doctor. Seeing him running, a dog took after him and bit him in the leg, and the yell the boy gave sent the button flying out of his mouth and ten feet away. It is cheaper to be bitten by a dog than to pay the doctor.

Valuable Scientific Discovery.
Prof. Florence has devised a new method of examining and photographing opaque microscopic objects. Applying this method to the examination of traces of blood on weapons, he was able to recognize distinctly red blood corpuscles which had escaped discovery by expert examiners. The method, which is susceptible of other than medico-legal applications, is characterized by the fact that the light by which the object is illuminated is admitted into the tube of the microscope, whence it is reflected by prisms to the object glass, which converges it upon the object.
