Visitors—Sadie Walker, Blanche Minehart, Clara Rathburn, Madge Harlow, Maude Green, Rosa Kruger, Bertha Farrand, Ethel Andrews, Eva Stevens, Arah Johnson, Bessie Wellman and Earl VanDeCar.

The annual field meet, which was held at Chelsea this year, was a good one, although no records were broken. The Chelsea people entertained the visitors in grand style and also turned out well at the meet. The Plymouth boys didn't win the meet, but they ain't "sore" over the results. Score—Wayne 51½, Chelsea 50, Plymouth 28, Northville 6.

GREAT CROWDS AT CIRCUS.

Many People Here Plan to See Barnum and Bailey at Detroit.

Plymouth will be well represented at Detroit on next Thursday, when the Barnum & Bailey greatest show on earth exhibits there on that date, for a great many of our citizens have already expressed themselves as having made up their minds to attend. A glance at the list of wonders to be seen with this big show would lead one to believe that the limit in tremendous size as well as number of novelties to be seen has finally been reached. Barnum & Bailey present this year under their city of 14 acres of tents, more things new than have been offered by all other shows in years. "Jupiter, the balloon horse," Karoly's troupe of 16 Hungarian coal black stallions, the musical elephants, celebrated Konyot troupe of equestrians, seven troupes of acrobats and hundreds of other artistic novelties all go to complete a circus performance that has never been equalled. The big menagerie has been augmented by the addition of many new strange beasts and is larger than all the zoological gardens in this country combined. The street parade so gorgeous and so tremendous in size, beggars description and in all is a fair index to the wonderful performances that follow.

"I shall never marry that man as long as I live!"

"Why not?"

"I have just learned that he is going to marry some one else."

COMPELLED TO BE PUNCTUAL

Business Men Come to Look Upon Habit as a Virtue, But Their Wives Do Not.

Most men are compelled to be punctual, otherwise they lose opportunities and often their jobs. Thus men get the habit of punctuality, and they come to regard it as one of the cardinal virtues. Most women are under no such compulsion, and the habit is accordingly, in many cases, undeveloped.

Asks New Trial Because Jury Posed.

Counsel for Eugene Tucker, who was convicted of murder in the first degree in the criminal court in Springfield recently, and sentenced to be hanged, will raise the point in an application for a new trial that the members of the jury while deliberating on their verdict and before returning the same to court repaired in a body to a local photograph gallery and had a group picture taken.

Tucker's counsel will make the point that in appearing in so public a place under such circumstances the jury was practically without the jurisdiction of the court and was guilty of an infraction of the law governing the conduct of juries in first degree murder cases.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Her Capacity. "If teeth do just as well without nerves?" she said to the dentist, "and stay just as white and don't break any quicker, why are the nerves put there in the first place?"

"I've often wondered myself," said he. "I don't know unless it is so you can suffer the pain of losing them. You'd be too happy, you know, unless you underwent a little suffering now and then."

"A little!" she shrieked. "You remember that tooth of mine last winter, and how I came within an ace of dying with the pain?"

The Turk is a Fatahat.

War is one thing that can rouse the Turk from his apathy. When the fight is over, the Mussulman returns at once to his "Kief." Why get excited about politics, science, philosophy and literature? Is not everything foreordained? Leave it to Allah. With a whole nation in this frame of mind, it is not strange that the Turk has neither thirst for knowledge nor any great passion. It is not strange that he has but little curiosity and no desire to travel, and that officials display such ignorance in regard to the elementary things.—Collier's Weekly.

Entitled to All Praises.

"He endeared himself to guardians, visitors, inmates and staff, and his beautiful Christian demeanor, constant cheerfulness and good temper made him beloved by all." Is the epitaph of the Huddersfield, England, guard upon a pauper who, after spending 20 years in the parish workhouse, recently died there at the age of 94. "Even in a palace-life may be lived well," says Matthew Arnold; but most people would find it quite as hard, if not harder, to maintain a blameless character in a workhouse.—York's Companion.

Traffic Shows Good Increase.

Traffic between the eastern and western coasts of the United States by way of isthmus railways and steamship lines amounted to $40,000,000 in value in 1906, a marked increase over any earlier year.

The Difference.

An opera singer, having snubbed another of her kind, was approached by a reporter in quest of information. "Will you deign to tell me," said the reporter, bowing low, "why a songster invariably has a misty temper, and her fathers and pecking at the feet of the flock?"

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITAL

Notes and Gossip Gathered in Lansing.

STATE LOSES ROAD CASE

Supreme Court Refuses to Abrogate Special Charter of Railway Under Which Specific Tax is Raised.

Lansing.—The supreme court decided adversely to the state the case in which the state sought to abrogate the special charter of the Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee railroad, under which that railroad is permitted to pay a specific tax of one per cent. on its capital stock in lieu of other taxes. The state sought to collect several hundred thousand dollars back taxes since 1900 besides seeking to change the method of taxation from the specific tax on capital to the ad valorem basis.

The supreme court disposed of the following cases:

Affirmed: People vs. Wolf; Soloth vs. Liep; First National bank of Durand vs. Shaw, in matter of Bright estate; Mallot vs. Turner; Heenan vs. Harris; Potter vs. Grand Trunk Western railway; township of Burdell vs. Grand Rapids & Indiana railway; people vs. Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee railway. Reversed: Fisher vs. Burroughs Advertising Machine Company; Nicholls vs. Boyne City Lumber Company; Nicholls vs. W. H. White Company; Newberry vs. Smith; people vs. Beebehyser; Bull vs. Adams; Pammel vs. Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company; in matter of Hodges estate; Gilbert vs. Williams; Brinwood vs. Michigan United Railways; Folkmire vs. Michigan United Railways Company; Merrill vs. Lelienting; Capeling vs. Saginaw Coal Company; people vs. Mindeman; Embury vs. Goodenough. Mandamus granted in Townsend vs. Jackson circuit judge and denied in Dumas vs. state veterinary board. Doetsch vs. Wetlaufer was modified. Certiorari was granted in Sturgeon & Co. vs. board of assessors. Order to show cause denied in Kohn vs. Homer, judge.

Hurt Shippers in Michigan.

Hal H. Smith returned to Detroit from Washington, where he represented the board of commerce at the national convention of railway commissioners, assembled to discuss a national code of demurrage rules. Practically all the leading railroads of the country were represented at this gathering, as well as more than fifty of the leading shippers. The proposed code was discussed at considerable length and Mr. Smith fears that the outcome of the deliberations may be a set of rules less favorable to Michigan shippers than the rules now in operation. The railroads unanimously opposed what is known as the average plan, which is the very thing that Michigan shippers are absolutely insisting upon.

"The commissioners," said Mr. Smith, "should confine themselves to such general principles as will easily permit local demurrage bureaus to adapt their rules to local conditions."

No Probing at Marshall.

Although the charges and counter charges of graft have been buried in the Marshall common council, the promised investigation into the building of the Marshall avenue bridge will not be held. The city refused to pay O. J. Reniger, the contractor, a balance of $1,000 due him because it appeared that the city in so doing would accept the bridge, and the National Bridge Company of Indianapolis, which claims infringement on its patents, would then come after the city for the royalty alleged to be due. Counsel has satisfied the city that no royalty can be collected. The city council has voted to pay Reniger but Mayor Sawdy vetoed this action, declaring there were rumors of graft which he wanted investigated. Now it is announced that Mr. Reniger will be paid his $1,000 and he will withdraw his suit for $5,000 damages which he had started against the city.

Railroad Earnings Gain.

Earnings of Michigan railroads for the first quarter of this year, as compared with the same period in 1905, show an increase, according to reports filed with the state railway commission. A statement for the quarter shows the total earnings to have been $12,717,750.53, an increase of $1,029,438.14. The freight earnings were $8,911,736.08, as compared with $8,149,513.33 in the first quarter of last year, while passenger earnings were $2,658,771.75 this year, and $2,585,354.75 last year, an increase of $70,417.07. The earnings for the transportation of mail showed a decrease of $9,081.40.

Convention Date Changed.

A change in the date of the approaching annual convention of the Spanish War Veterans of Michigan has been made. The convention is to be held in Saginaw July 14, 15 and 16.

Has Been Success in Lansing.

Urging it upon the delegates present that public utility plants owned by municipalities should be kept free from politics and that business men should be placed in charge of them, Mayor John S. Bennett of Lansing delivered an address at the annual convention of the Michigan League of Municipalities. The capital city mayor went into details concerning the light and water plants of Lansing, owned by the city since 1885, saying that the plan of city ownership has been a success.

MICHIGAN'S HALL OF FAME

FOUR SOLONS OF NOTE.

Senator Dickinson, Eaton County, Rep. Clarkin, Detroit.

Rep. Sanborn, Alpena, Rep. R. Y. Ogg, Detroit.

Military Funeral for Col. Foote.

From his Kalamazoo home, Col. C. E. Foote was buried with military honors. Adj. Gen. Fayette Wyckoff of Lansing made the arrangements for the funeral. Nearly every state officer of the G. A. R. was in attendance. Commander Foote of the Michigan G. A. R., belonged to Post 73 and was a member of the Third New York cavalry. He held several offices in the pension department, was postmaster from 1878 to 1882 and was a representative to the legislature from the First district of Kalamazoo county. He was born in Franklin, N. Y., in 1840. When Sumpter was fired on he was an apprentice in a carriage factory, and he at once enlisted in Company D, Third New York cavalry. On his twenty-third birthday he received severe saber wounds upon the head and hand in a saber duel with a confederate soldier of the Second North Carolina cavalry and was reported killed in the New York papers. After recovering from his wounds he rejoined his company and served until the expiration of his term of service. In 1888 he was discharged by Secretary of the Interior Lamar. He at once returned to his home in Kalamazoo and opened a pension claim agency, which became one of the largest in the western states. He obtained for his clients over 3,500 pensions.

Go to Fight High Glass Duty.

A delegation of Grand Rapids furniture makers went to Washington to attend the conference of manufacturers relative to the proposed increase in the duties on plate glass. In the party were E. H. Foote, Albert Stickle, John Hout and John S. Linton, the latter secretary of the National Case Goods association. The committee was more interested in preventing the proposed raise in the present duties than in the passage of the Cummins amendment reducing the duties, and devoted its attention exclusively to the former end. A conference was held at Washington Monday night. Makers of plate glass favor a flat duty of 2 1/2 cents per square foot, which means a big increase in cost to the furniture manufacturer and eventually to the buyers of furniture.

Edwards Heads Foresters.

At the session of the grand court of the Foresters of America the following officers were elected: Grand chief ranger, Edwin Edwards, Calumet; grand sub-chief, J. W. Albro, Pontiac; grand secretary, A. H. Sanders, Detroit; grand recording secretary, Charles Durant, Amy; grand treasurer, Casper Kells, Mount Clemens; senior wood ward, F. W. Krapp, Detroit; junior wood ward, A. Sanders, Battle Creek; senior beadle, William J. Noble, Lansing. The following delegates were elected to represent the Michigan court at the supreme convention, to be held at Toledo next August: Henry Paul, Pontiac; W. B. Barkett, Hancock; W. E. Caskein, Pontiac; John Reddon, Detroit; Oliver Richards, Kearsarge; Leonard Frebe, Trenton.

Templars' Affair International.

An international tone was given to the parade which opened the fifty-third annual convocation of the Michigan Grand Commandery, Knights Templars, by the presence of three Canadian commanderies which formed one division of the mile-long line of white-plumed marchers. With Damascus commandery of Detroit as escort, the members of Ode de St. Amant commandery of Brantford, Windsor commandery of Windsor, Ont., and Cyrene commandery of Toronto made the fifth battalion of the greatest parade of Knights Templar ever seen in Michigan. Officers of the Canadian Grand Commandery were among the official reviewing party before which the marchers paraded at "present."

W. C. T. U. Elects Officers.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, which closes its convention at Battle Creek elected the following officers: Honorary president, Mrs. A. S. Benjamin, Portland; active president, Mrs. E. L. Calkins, Kalamazoo; vice-president-at-large, Mrs. Jennie Vockles, Plymouth; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Julia R. Parsh, Bay City; recording secretary, Mrs. Annie Anderson, Greenwood avenue, Detroit; treasurer, Mrs. Stella S. Enoch, Big Rapids.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS

Kalamazoo.—Five Battle Creek men—Roy Colby, Clyde Patterson and his brother Ed. Patterson, W. C. Herbstrith and Dole Patterson, a cousin of the other Pattersons—were in jail here upon charges of rioting. Only after a hard fight at Galesburg, in which Sheriff A. L. Campbell and Deputy Dorcey of this city received several bruises, were the men arrested. The raid of the five men upon Galesburg comes as the result of trouble a year ago between the Pattersons and the village.

Alpena.—Discovering a Detroit & Mackinac railroad locomotive standing unguarded with steam up, Joseph Jeakonski, 12 years old, climbed into the cab, pulled the throttle wide open and jumped to the ground again as the engine went spinning down the tannery sidetrack here toward a standing freight train. The wild locomotive and several freight cars were demolished in the resulting crash. The damage amounted to $3,000 and the boy was placed under arrest.

Ovid.—Ten years ago Miss Amy Frisbee of this place died and willed $2,000 to Mrs. Mary Witham, aged 70, an infirm woman who lived with her many years. The latter contracted with a nephew, James F. Walsh of Detroit, and a niece, Laura L. Shepard, wife of an Ovid attorney, to care for her and allow her ten dollars a month for the remainder of her life, she turning over the $2,000 to them and they giving a mortgage on a lot and store to bind the contract.

Flint.—Marquette prison, where each will serve years, holds no terrors for Frank Linden and William H. Barnhart. Both men were taken to that institution by local officers, Linden for grand larceny, after being arrested in Detroit, and Barnhart for forgery. The latter was caught in Toledo. The men spent Sunday singing in jail.

Grand Rapids.—"The Ultimate Authority for Mankind" was the announced topic for the meeting of the ministers' conference, but after the reporters were put out the subject was dropped and the matter of making Kent "dry" next spring discussed. It was decided that the conference should extend all the aid in its power to this plan.

Jackson.—Attorney Robert Campbell was convicted of forging a note for $600 payable to Pauline Ragotzky, an aged woman of this city, who was one of his clients and who had placed her money with him to loan for her. The name signed to the note was George J. Dodge, a hotelkeeper at Mullet lake.

Grand Rapids.—When Frank Sidle brought in two wheels to sell within two days, Fred Boos, a repairman, became suspicious and called detectives, Sidle, who says his home is in Okla-homa, broke down and admitted stealing the wheel from Clarence Perlee. He got $40 fine or 60 days and will have to go to jail.

Ann Arbor.—Theodore Koch, librarian of the university library, would be glad to know the whereabouts of a high-school student named Fischer whose home is in Farwell, and the police are bending every effort to locate the lad. A search of Fischer's trunk revealed the university library books, but Fischer had flown.

Muskegon.—A reunion of brothers after neither had seen the other for 30 years was brought about by the visit to Muskegon of Sylvanus Kniskern of Ashbury Park, N. J. He is 78 years old. The brother whom he is visiting after this long absence, Attorney William W. Kniskern, is 72 years old.

Owendale.—While digging a trench in the rear of a new feed barn, workmen came upon the body of a baby which had been wrapped in cloth and buried in quick lime. Sheriff Honeywell and the county coroner ordered an investigation made and a jury was drawn.

Kalamazoo.—Col. C. E. Foote, department commander for Michigan of the G. A. R., died at his home here. He had been ill for a month. Col. Foote was 69 years old. He served during the civil war in the Third New York cavalry.

Owosso.—Jobe F. Fuller, 55 years old, suffered a stroke of paralysis while working in his garden and lay unconscious on the ground two hours before he was discovered by a neighbor. His whole right side was affected.

Lansing.—News was received here of the death from pneumonia of Judge Henry Henderson at Salt Lake, Utah. Judge Henderson was a resident of Mason until his appointment by President Cleveland to be a federal judge in Utah.

South Lyon.—Elaborate preparations are being made by the Welcome Home club for two days of home-coming, August 19 and 20. Visitors will be entertained by bands of music, ball games and other sporting contests.

Grand Rapids.—John Stearns, charged with killing "Nigger" Williams, told his story to the coroner's jury. He claimed Williams attacked him with a beer bottle in a frisky of rage at finding Irene Vandervall in the rooms of Stearns' mother. Stearns asserted he was using the revolver as a club and did not intend to shoot.

Grand Rapids.—E. J. Booth, 86 years old, and a Kent county pioneer, died suddenly at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Frank Bady. He spent most of his life at Lowell, where he settled over sixty years ago, but came here a few years ago.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Rear Admiral Uriel Sebrée, commander of the Pacific fleet, on his arrival in Portland, Ore., made a plea for a large navy.

The trial of Richard Pines, the second of four negroes charged with the murder of Walter F. Schultz of Chicago, began in Alexandria, Va. Twenty-five boroughs and townships in Pennsylvania are under quarantine as the result of rabies, the spread of which is almost unprecedented.

Frederick H. Brigham, head bookkeeper of the Merchants' National bank of New Haven, Conn., was arrested charged with taking funds of the bank.

Daniel A. Sortwell, 25 years old, a broker's clerk, has been elected president of the Barre railroad at Boston, being the youngest head of a railway in the world.

Dr. Richard Cockburn MacLaurin was formally inducted into the office of president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Boston in the presence of notable guests.

Three soldiers were killed and 500 persons were wounded by the explosion of a powder magazine near the railroad station in Cracow, Austrian Poland. The explosion was caused by lightning.

As the result of an effort on the part of playmates to re-enact a hanging scene witnessed in a moving-picture show, Girard Williams, six years old, is in a critical condition at Atlanta, Ga.

Mrs. William E. Annis, whose husband was killed by Capt. Peter C. Hains, Jr., has announced she will be married to a New York real-estate broker when her theatrical engagements end.

Mary E. Gfil of Brooklyn was arrested charged with stealing fine clothes from a dry-goods store. She said she wanted to wear fine clothes so her husband would not be attracted to other women.

Two men of San Jose, Cal., have received from Joaquin Miller an acre of land each and will build cottages near the home of the poet in Fruitvale, Cal. It is said Miller will establish a colony of poets.

Lieutenant Commander H. M. Caldwell, who was an aid to Admiral George Dewey and stood by his side on the bridge of the flagship Olympia during the battle of Manila, has resigned from the navy.

Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, founder of Christian Science, gave out a signed statement denying allegations of Mrs. Della Gilbert, one of her followers, that she "either was dead or a helpless, mindless puppet."

DIPHTHERIA CLOSSES SCHOOL.

Taft Institution Sends Pupils Home Because of Epidemic—President's Son Included.

Watertown, Conn., June 9.—Taft school was closed for the school year owing to the reappearance of diphtheria, which was epidemic recently. Knight Cowles of Chicago has been taken ill with the malady.

Charles Taft, son of President Taft, and a student at the school, has not been exposed to the disease, it was stated. The seniors will remain here for their college entrance examinations, but all other students will leave for home immediately.

DIES IN CONVENTION.

Des Moines Woman Stricken Among 2,000 Persons Attending G. A. R. Meeting at Fort Dodge.

Fort Dodge, Ia., June 9.—At the state encampment of the G. A. R. last night, Mrs. Alice Newman of Des Moines, wife of Adj. Gen. Newman, died of apoplexy. She was stricken in the convention hall. The first session of the encampment was held with 2,000 persons in attendance.

Judge Ethridge is Dead. Des Moines, Ia., June 8.—Judge S. E. Ethridge, aged 77, referee for the United States court of bankruptcy for southern Iowa, died suddenly of heart failure.

WOLVERINE NEWS BREVITIES

Jackson.—Henry F. Fogelsang, formerly cashier of the failed Springfield bank, who was arrested last December charged with making false entries in his books and incorrect reports to the banking commissioner, was discharged by order of the prosecuting attorney. In their six months' investigation the authorities have found that Fogelsang did not profit personally by his transactions, but was unfortunate in making bad loans of the bank's funds.

Marshall.—The city of Marshall kept its ordinances in a heap of mails for 21 years. Because the city recorder had been lax about writing the new ordinances into the ordinance book, Recorder Gauss this spring started to work to look them up. None had been copied in the book since 1889 and of course couldn't be enforced. The city engaged V. A. Lepper to search for them with the result mentioned.

Detroit.—Following the suicide of his partner, A. Milton Holden, Fred S. Osborne filed in the circuit court an assignment of all the property of the brokerage firm of Fred S. Osborne & Co. to his creditors. The assets according to the schedule aggregating $36,737, largely debts owed the firm by Detroiters, are turned over to Frank G. Smith, Jr., as assignee. The liabilities of the estate are listed at $45,525.

Saginaw.—As a result of a cloud-burst which visited the portion of the state northwest of here two railroad men of Saginaw lost their lives when their engine struck a washout on the Ludington division of the Pere Marquette railroad near Smith's Crossing, two miles west of Freeand. The dead are: John H. Schmidt, engineer; Ben C. Reynolds, fireman, Saginaw.

Grand Rapids.—Once well-to-do, a power in politics as secretary to Senator Zach Chandler, and the first instructor of Latin at the Michigan Agricultural college, Prof. Felix Ort died as a city charge at the tuberculosis sanitarium. Without relatives in this country, he had outlived his friends and when he died few knew more about him than his name.

Battle Creek.—Considerable damage was done to the M. U. R. right of way west of the city by heavy rains. Traffic was tied up for a while by a washout between this city and Sherman lake. Gull lake rose ten inches within a few days, washing over bathhouses and flooding the lawns of cottagers.

Holland.—While driving along in a rig to meet her brother and sister, Maggie Exo, 12 years old, was the victim of a daring hold-up. As she passed Centennial park a man suddenly leaped from the shadow of the trees, climbed upon the steps of the buggy and tore a wristbag containing ten dollars from her arm.

Saginaw.—The Lutheran synod, in conference here, re-elected Rev. F. M. Krause of Lansing, president. Rev. J. H. Westendorf of Saginaw was elected vice-president, and Rev. J. Gauss of Janairo, O., secretary. Doctrinal questions are occupying the attention of the synod principally.

Breckinridge.—While unloading freight at the freight house here, L. Young, a Pere Marquette brakeman living at Ionia, sustained serious injury to his back when an iron gate fell upon him. He was removed to a hospital.

Muskegon.—John Clark was arrested at Dowagiac and brought back to Muskegon. He is charged by Mrs. Fred Hamel, proprietor of a local vaudeville, with stealing $75 from the till at the vaudeville, of which he had been manager.

Battle Creek.—The largest class in the history of Battle Creek high school will graduate June 23 at the S. D. A. tabernacle, consisting of 60 students. Bishop Vincent of Chicago will deliver the commencement address.

Grand Rapids.—Contractor Joseph Rusche has just completed his big job of laying a water main under Grand river at Coldbrook street in order to better the water supply of the north end of the West side.

Marshall.—George Book, aged seven years, who lived southwest of this city, a few days ago fell from a beam in a barn and injured his jaw. Lockjaw set in and two operations were performed, but the lad died.

Deerfield.—The funeral of Frank E. Webster, who died suddenly in Detroit, was held from the home of a sister, Mrs. E. E. Burnham, here. Mrs. James Keadie of Wyandotte, was also a sister.

Ionia.—A band of gypsies camping north of this city, begged among the farmers, burned fences and otherwise annoyed the community to such an extent that Sheriff Cilley and his deputies drove them out of the county.

Coldwater.—On the charge of bootlegging, or selling liquor illegally, seven men were arrested. They are: Jacob W. Hurley, Charles Fitzpatrick, Fred Sick, J. Hide, Otto Vielhaber, Charles Breitls and William Declote.

Saginaw.—With the construction of the new building far advanced, it has been discovered that the bonds issued for erecting a large addition to the county poor house are illegal. The bonds, totaling $16,000, were voted at the last general election in November, and were awarded.

Saginaw.—The biggest fish caught in the Saginaw valley in years is reported by S. G. Hillis, president of the village of Inlet, as being taken from the Flint river near that place. The fish, a muskellunge sturgeon, measured six feet and two inches in length and weighed 125 pounds.

SERIAL STORY

THE LOVES of the LADY ARABELLA

By MOLLY ELLIOT SEAWELL

(Copyright, 1913, Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

SYNOPSIS.

At 14 years of age Admiral Sir Peter Hawkshaw's nephew, Richard Glyn, fell deeply in love at first sight with Lady Arabella Stormont, who, spurned his attentions. The lady, an orphan, was given a berth as midshipman on the Ajax by his uncle, Giles Vernon, nephew of Sir Thomas Vernon, became the boy's pal. They attended a theater where Hawkshaw's nephew saw Lady Arabella. Vernon met Philip Overton, next in line for Sir Thomas Vernon's estate. They started a duel which was interrupted. Vernon, Overton and Hawkshaw's nephew found themselves attracted by pretty Lady Arabella. The Ajax in battle defeated French warships in the Mediterranean. Richard Glyn got £2,000 prize money. He was called home by Lady Hawkshaw as he was about to "blow in" his earnings with Vernon. At a Hawkshaw party Glyn discovered that Lady Arabella was a poor but persistent gambler. He talked much with her cousin Daphne. Lady Arabella again showed love for Glyn. Later she held Glyn and Overton prisoners, thus delaying the duel. In the Overton-Vernon duel, neither was hurt. Lady Arabella humiliated Richard by her pranks. Richard and Glyn shipped on a frigate. Giles was captured by the French. Sir Peter arranged for his exchange. Daphne showed a liking for Glyn, who was then 21 years of age. Giles was released.

"And how I am to live until I get another ship I am at a loss, my boy," Giles cried quite cheerfully. "Two courses are open to me—play and running away with an heiress. Do you know of a charming girl, Dicky, with something under £100,000, who could be reconciled to a penniless lieutenant in his majesty's navy? And remember, she must be as beautiful as the dawn besides, and of good family, and keen of wit—no lunkhead of a woman for me." To this, fate impelled me to reply that Lady Arabella Stormont was still single.

"Faith!" cried Giles, slapping his knee, "she is the girl for me. I always intended to marry her, if only to spite her."

I was sorry I had raked up the embers of his passion of five years before, and attempted to cover my step by saying:

"She is still infatuated with Overton, whom, however, she sees rarely, and that only at the houses of others; but he has ever looked coldly upon her."

"She'll not be coldly looked on by me. And let me see: There is her cousin you used to tell me about—the Carmichael girl—suppose you, Dicky, run away with her; then no two lieutenants in the service will have more of the rhino than we!"

I declare this was the first time I had remembered Daphne's £30,000. She had the same fortune as Lady Arabella. The reflection damped my spirits dreadfully.

Giles saw it directly, and in a moment he had my secret from me. He shouted with delight, and immediately began a grotesque planning for us to run away with the two heiresses. He recalled that the abduction of an heiress was a capital crime, and drew a fantastic picture of us two standing in the prisoners' dock, on trial for our lives, with Lady Arabella and Daphne swearing our lives away, and then relenting and marrying us at the gallows foot. And this tale, told with the greatest glee, amid laughter and bumpers of hot brandy and water, had a singular effect upon me. It sobered me at once, and suddenly I seemed to see a vision, as Macbeth saw Banquo's ghost, passing before my very eyes—just such a scene as Giles described. Only I got no farther than the spectacle of Giles a prisoner in the dock, on trial for his life. My own part seemed misty and confused, but I saw, instead of the lodging house parlor, a great hall of justice dimly lighted with lamps, the judges in their robes on the bench, one with a black cap on his head, and Giles standing up to receive sentence. I passed into a kind of nightmare, from which I was aroused by Giles whacking me on the back and saying in a surprised voice:

"What alls you, Dicky, boy? You look as if you had seen a ghost. Rouse up here and open your lantern jaws for a glass of brandy and rid yourself of that long face."

I came out of this singular state as quickly as I had gone into it, and, ashamed to show my weakness to Giles, grew merry, carried on the joke about the abduction, and shortly felt like myself, a light-hearted lieutenant of 21. I proposed that we should go to the play the next night—or rather that night, for it was now about four in the morning—and shortly after we tumbled into bed together and slept until late the next day.

Giles and I went to Berkeley Square in the afternoon, professing just to have arrived from Portsmouth. Giles expressed his thanks in the handsomest manner to Sir Peter for his kindness, and made himself, as usual, highly agreeable to Lady Hawkshaw.

Lady Arabella, too, Daphne were at home, but came in shortly after Giles had left. Lady Arabella made some slighting remark about Giles, as she always did whenever opportunity offered. Daphne was very kind to me, and I gave her to understand privately that I was ready to haul down my flag at the first summons to surrender.

The family from Berkeley Square was going to the play that night, and I mentioned that Giles and I would be there together. And so, just as the playhouse was lighting up, we walked in. After the curtain was up, and when Mrs. Trenchard was making her great speech in "Percy," I motioned Giles to look toward Lady Hawkshaw's box. Her ladyship entered on Sir Peter's arm; his face was very red, and he was growling under his breath, to which Lady Hawkshaw contributed an obligate accompaniment in a sepulchral voice; and behind them, in all the splendor of her beauty, walked Lady Arabella, and last, came sweet, sweet Daphne.

The first glimpse Giles caught of Lady Arabella seemed to renew in an instant the spell she had cast on him five years before. He seemed almost like a madman. He could do nothing but gaze at her with eyes that seemed starting out of his head. He grew pale and then red, and was like a man in a frenzy. It was all I could do to moderate his voice and his looks in that public place. Luckily, Mrs. Trenchard being on the stage, all eyes were, for the time, bent on her.

I hardly knew how we sat the play out. I had to promise Giles a dozen times that the next day I would take him to Berkeley Square. When the curtain went down, he fairly leaped his way out of the playhouse to see Lady Arabella get into the coach.

That was a fair sample of the way he raved for days afterward. He haunted Berkeley Square, where he was welcomed always by Sir Peter and Lady Hawkshaw, asked to dine frequently, and every mark of favor shown him.

Lady Arabella remained cold and indifferent to him. About that time Overton appeared a little in his old haunts, although much changed and sobered. Neither wounds nor illness had impaired his looks and charms, but rather he had become an object of interest and sympathy from his gallant behavior in the field. Sir Peter, who had always liked him, began to pester him to come to Berkeley Square, which he did a few times because he could not well decline Sir Peter and Lady Hawkshaw's pressing and friendly invitations. I believed, however, that in spite of his forced composure he felt cruelly abashed before Lady Arabella. She, however, showed an amazing coolness, and even began to be a little kind to Giles, from some obscure motive of her own. I believe every act of her life with regard to men had some reference to her passion for Overton.

All this time, though, from the night of the play, Daphne and I had been secretly happy; for on the very next day, catching her alone, I told her, in plain and seamanlike language, that I loved her, and when she showed a disposition to cut and run, I said to her, very boldly:

"Since you scorn my love, I have the resource that every one of my calling has in these days. I shall soon go to sea, and upon the deck of my ship I can find death, since life is nothing to me without my Daphne's love."

At which, without the least warning, she suddenly fell into my arms, crying:

"You'll break my heart, if you talk in that way!" and I perceived that she was only maneuvering for position.

I do not know exactly what happened next, except I was in that heaven, Daphne's arms, when I looked up and caught the butler and two footmen grinning at me. But it mattered not.

Next morning Daphne and I met in the drawing room, as usual, after breakfast; but what a meeting it was! We had barely time to scuttle back to our chairs when Sir Peter entered with the newspaper, and informed me that the Hellona frigate was being fitted for the West Indies, and he thought he could get me a berth in her, at which I felt myself grow weak in the knees, so great is the power of love.

Presently he went out. Then Daphne and I began to speculate upon Sir Peter's personal equation in our affairs.

"He will never let me marry you," she said. "He will say I am too young."

This depressed me so that I could say nothing in reply. Daphne continued, quite in an offhand manner:

"If we should elope, he would make a great hullabaloo."

This admirable suggestion at once commended itself to me.

"His hullabaloo could not separate us, if we were married," I replied.

"True," said Daphne; "and, after all, he and Lady Hawkshaw as good as eloped, and she was but 18—a year younger than I."

Thus was I supplied with another argument.

I again swear that I had not a thought of Daphne's fortune in all this. I would have taken the dear girl with nothing but the clothes upon her back.

True to his word, Sir Peter worked like a Trojan to get me a berth on the Hellona, and, meaning to do Giles the greatest service in the world, tried likewise for him; and mightily afraid we were that he would soon succeed.

This brought matters to a crisis with Daphne. I mentioned the word "elope" to her again, and she made a great outcry, after the manner of young women, and then began straightway to show me precisely how it might be done, protesting, meanwhile, that she would never, no, never, consent. We both agreed, though, that it was proper we should lay the matter of our marriage before Sir Peter and Lady Hawkshaw; but I saw that Daphne, who was of a romantic turn, had her imagination fired by the notion of an elopement.

"A pair of good horses and a light traveling chaise!" she exclaimed. "If only it were not wrong!"

"No, no! Four horses!" cried I; "and there is nothing wrong in either a two or a four horse chaise."

Daphne clasped her hands.

"A trip to Scotland—I have always longed for Scotland. I know a dozen people who have married in Scotland, and happy marriages, every one of them. But I forbid you, Richard, to think of an elopement."

"We shall set out at midnight; we shall not be missed until morning, and we shall have at least 12 hours' start. Then, at every stage we shall leave something behind, which will insure a broken axle, or a linchpin gone, for our pursuers."

We were both so charmed with the picture we had conjured up, that when I said: "Suppose, after all, though, that Sir Peter consents?" Daphne's face fell; but presently she smiled, when I said:

"If he does consent, why, then, there is no harm in our marrying any way we like, and he will excuse us for running away. And if he does not consent, there is no help for it—we must elope!"

I considered myself a casuist of the first order. I felt obliged to take the first opportunity of letting Sir Peter know the state of affairs, and, as usual, I determined to begin through Lady Hawkshaw.

"And," as Daphne shrewdly remarked, "they will certainly differ, so we shall at least have one of them on our side."

I sought Lady Hawkshaw and found her in her usual place, in the Chinese room. I began, halting, stammering, and blushing, as if I were a charity schoolboy instead of a lieutenant in his majesty's service, who had been thanked by Lord Nelson.

"M-m-my lady," I stammered, "I have experienced so much k-k-kindness from you that I have come to you in the greatest emergency of my life."

"You want to get married," promptly replied Lady Hawkshaw.

SPEND MUCH FOR AMUSEMENT.

Twenty-Five Millions Are Invested in Parks in This Country.

"It costs a lot of money to build and operate an amusement park on a large scale," says Frederic Thompson, in Everybody's.

"I suppose that more than $25,000,000 are invested in these parks in this country. Dreamland on Coney Island cost about $2,500,000. Riverview Park and the White City in Chicago cost about a million each.

"Luna park cost $2,400,000. The total annual expenses, including the cost of rebuilding, of putting in new shows and the operating expenses, average about a million dollars, and the season lasts four months. I spent $240,000 on one show, of which $68,000 was for animals, mostly elephants and camels—it was the representation of the Indian durbar—and I lost $100,000 on it. I charged the loss up to education, and it was worth it. It costs $6,600 a week to light Luna park, and $4,600 for the music. The salaries of the free performers this season are $2,300 a week. And all of these expenditures, as well as a good many others, go simply to manufacture the carnival spirit."

The Useful Man.

"Country constables who make a living arresting speeding automobiles wouldn't have half so much trouble stopping the scorchers if they used a little ingenuity," says one of the offenders. "Chains across the road and moving vans blocking the highway are all right to accomplish the purpose, but they're cumbersome. My idea for causing a prompt stop is to scatter a lot of grain in a row and turn a lot of hens loose. They would block the road all right, and if there's one thing that will make a chauffeur slow up it's a hen. Dogs are bad enough, but a hen always runs the wrong way, and if the machine is going at any speed usually ends up under her wheels. Hitting a hen will sometimes throw the front wheels out of the line and cause the car to swerve, so drivers almost invariably slow up and give poultry a chance to get out of the way. A hen speed trap is a great idea, to my way of thinking, and, of course, if one of the birds were killed the cost could easily be added to the driver's fine."

Divorce Smashes Prettiest of Romances

NEW YORK.—Mrs. Frank Jay Gould has been granted a decree of divorce from her husband, the youngest son of the late Jay Gould. Not only does this add the third chapter to the list of marital infelicities written about the Gould family in the present generation, but it smashes to atoms what has been regarded as the prettiest romance of the multi-millionaire set.

The old feud of the Montagues and Capulets, which killed the dream of Romeo and Juliet, was not more bitter than the modern hatred which marked the connection of the first Gould and the first Kelly, so to speak—the father of Frank Gould and the grandfather of his wife. They fought each other on the stock exchange, in the railroad world and in the courts, their difficulties being in court most of the time.

Frank Jay Gould and Helen Kelly did not partake of the family vendetta. They were friends from their childhood—such close chums and companions that while they were constantly together none of their friends nor relatives ever dreamed of a love af-

Charitable Deed of Late Millionaire

ONE of the least known and most touching of the late H. H. Rogers' many charitable deeds was his care of Helen Keller, the deaf, dumb and blind girl, whose prodigies of learning have astonished the world.

Mr. Rogers had his attention called to Miss Keller when the girl had hardly reached her teens. Her case, a pitiful one, at once touched his heart. Secretly and through agents he interested himself in the girl and provided funds for the early attempts to bring the light of knowledge to the then darkened mind.

Miss Keller showed such aptitude for learning that Mr. Rogers continued his benefactions and saw that the most experienced and skillful teachers in the land were provided. As she advanced beyond the scope of the average instructors of those afflicted as she was, Mr. Rogers searched about

High Feasting for Umbrella Salesman

UNABLE to find the name of Maj. A. J. C. Bertie-McGreal in the British army register, officers of the United States army stationed at Governors Island believe they have been feasting and otherwise paying high honors to an umbrella salesman.

Several days ago a tall distinguished looking man with a monocle and the heavy English accent presented himself at the headquarters of the department of the east on Governors Island and asked for the officer of the day, Lieut. C. M. Janney of the Twelfth Infantry. The stranger's card, besides his name, carried the legend that he was commander of the Seventh Dragoons of the British army, stationed in Canterbury. He said he was stopping at the Hotel Knickerbocker with his secretary and a chauffeur and had a high power car with him. He also said he was accompanied by a commander, Maj.

Skyscraping Spite Fence In Gotham

SPITE fences are not unknown in any part of the country, but it has remained for a New Yorker to erect the first skyscraping structure of this kind. This remarkable fence, built of steel, is already 40 feet high and will be more than twice as tall before it is finished.

The cause of the erection of this fence, said to be the highest in the world, may be laid at the door, or entrance, of the Williamsburg bridge. When the city bought whole blocks of tenement-houses to make room for the approaches to the bridge one Silberman was among those forced to fair, but passed their relations as those of a particularly congenial comradeship, so that when, in 1901, announcement was made of their marriage two days before that event occurred, there was universal surprise. Miss Kelly was 17, a beauty and a Catholic. She had changed her religion to wed. The groom was almost a boy; who had just come into a big fortune from the paternal estate. There was no lavish display of fashion and wealth at the wedding.

For a time this pair were ideally happy. They spent much time on the husband's magnificent yacht, which he had named for his bride. Then there were stories of unhappiness, of the young woman's jealousy, of impending separations and reconciliations, of interference by the bride's mother which finally resulted in a request from Frank Gould that closed his doors to her, of a trip that he was to take around the world in his yacht while his wife decided what she would do. At one time in 1906 papers were filed for a divorce by the wife, but a reconciliation was effected by Miss Helen M. Gould. Then, in 1908, the suit was actually started.

The Goulds have two children, of whom both parents are very fond. Mrs. Gould is quite wealthy in her own right, having received approximately $1,500,000 from the estates of her grandfather, the late Eugene Kelly, and her father, Edward Kelly.

and found mentors for the girl who have been able to make her, without doubt, one of the brightest and most charming personalities in the world today, even when pitted against persons whose faculties are in no way impaired.

For more than a quarter of a century Mr. Rogers, as with all his deeds of charity, kept the secret of his interest in Helen Keller.

The story did not come out until Mark Twain, long one of Mr. Rogers' most intimate friends, revealed it when the Virginia railway was opened a short time ago. On that occasion Mark Twain, in an address at Norfolk, Va., related the then unknown story of Mr. Rogers' benefactions to the girl, who, through an attack of scarlet fever, had been deprived of sight, speech and hearing, and who, had it not been for the millionaire, would undoubtedly have been forced to endure the pitiful existence which is the lot of many not so grievously afflicted.

Mr. Rogers, Mark Twain said, had by his unheralded philanthropy provided the girl with accomplishments which are comparable only with those of Joan of Arc.

Banks of the Royal Navy who was inspecting the Brooklyn navy yard. "Maj. Bertie-McGreal" was warmly received by the army officers and for several days was extensively entertained. Maj. John S. Mallory of the Twelfth, and Capt. Halstead-Dorey, Gen. Wood's aide, gave him a semi-official dinner.

"Maj. Bertie-McGreal" was at Governors Island continually and among the many officers he took a special fancy to Lieut. Dewey. The lieutenant kept him over night several times but the other morning when the "major" appeared at the headquarters, after having had apparently a strenuous night, the lieutenant put him to bed again and called up the Hotel Knickerbocker to request that the "major's" automobile and chauffeur be sent down for him. Instead the hotel sent its house detective and demanded pay of a $52 board bill. While the stranger induced a young woman friend to advance the money for him a search of his one piece of baggage at the hotel revealed his connection with an umbrella house at Niagara Falls. He had no secretary, no automobile, no chauffeur, so far as officers could discover, and Commander Maj. Banks was not known.

Christian Science Lecture.

Frank H. Leonard Talks Interestingly of the Much-Talked-About Religion.

Weather conditions undoubtedly contributed largely toward a decreased attendance upon the lecture on Christian Science by Frank H. Leonard, C. S. B., at the opera house Monday evening, but even as it was the hall was nearly filled with people who wanted to hear more about the "demonstrable religion." Mr. Leonard was an entertainer as well as a lecturer and kept his audience in good humor all the way through, elucidating his many points by most apt illustrations. He said in part:

There is nothing in the world today which is so occupying the thought of the people as Christian Science, and there is a vital reason why, regardless of all misunderstanding and misrepresentation relative to the subject, people should still insist on knowing the truth about it.

People are awakening to the fact that the one great problem in life is that of individual salvation, and the more they think about salvation, the more they are convinced that they want it now, and the less willing they are to wait for it until after they have passed through "the valley of the shadow," with all the mystery and fear and doubt surrounding that passage. Heretofore people have read the Bible; today they are studying it; and the result is an awakening which carries with it the conviction that many things formerly believed to be real, essential, God-created and God-given, are now seen to be but misconceptions relative to God and what He creates, misconceptions which need to be corrected so that freedom may be obtained from that bondage wherein a mistaken belief has held mankind.

People want to live, they do not want to die, and yet their whole teaching has been that the first breath drawn by an infant is the first step toward death and the grave.

This teaching has been almost universal, and has been accepted by all as the truth, in spite of the fact that Christ Jesus said in so many words, "If a man keep my saying, he shall never see death." When one is brought face to face with this statement, it does not take an instant to realize that a serious mistake has been made in placing the responsibility for death upon God, for we all know that to follow the teachings of the Wayshower brings us to God, and in no way whatever shuts us out from participating in any of those good and perfect gifts which our Bible tells us come down from above.

Unconsciously we have all fallen into the error of thinking that eternal life will begin for each of us when our experience here has ended, but thoughtful consideration makes us know that eternal life never began and will never end, that it is the same yesterday, today, and forever. The fact that life is and is eternal, is positive proof that death is not, and leads us to search the Scriptures that we may find how to turn from death unto life.

It will be argued that this statement of Jesus referred simply to the spiritual life; and this is true, for there is only one Life and that Life is Spirit, God. The work which Christian Science is doing for mankind today is enabling us to eliminate from consciousness the belief that there is any life other than the spiritual, and is bringing dominion and power to the one who before was held in bondage,—subject to all things, master of none. When Jesus said, "If a man keep my saying, he shall never see death," the saying he referred to was this: "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father." The works he was doing when he made this statement were these: he was healing the sick, cleansing the lepers, casting out evils, and raising the dead, "by the Spirit of God,"—to His glory, and to the liberation of all those who turned to him.

There is no way whereby we can demonstrate that God is true, other than by doing His will and manifesting His supremacy in all things. The Bible teaches us that God is "a very present help in trouble." Mankind say that He is in cases of sin, but that if one be sick, he must turn to medicine if he expects to regain his health. There is nothing in the Bible that gives authority for any one to say in what kind of trouble God may be a very present help, nor to say there is a trouble that is beyond God's ability or desire to overcome and destroy; and Christian Science teaches that a man has just as much right to take a sick trouble to God as he has a sin trouble, and just as much right to expect freedom from one as the other.

The revelation of Christian Science came to Mrs. Eddy as the result of a lifetime spent in continuous search and desire for the spirit of the Word and the things of God. As a religious reformer she occupies a position unique in the history of the world—unswerving in her trust in the goodness of God, and unquestioning in her obedience to His commands. This calls on her for such meekness, humility, and self-sacrifice, that she never could live such a life were it not for the care of a real, livable, demonstrable religion, wherein she finds immunity from the sufferings of those who turn away from the Christ-concept of God.

Ever since 1836 Mrs. Eddy's life has been devoted to the work of bringing to mankind this revelation of the way of salvation. She has done this with such singleness of purpose, that mankind is awakening to the recognition of her work as inspired, that Christian Science is the spirit of the Word which Jesus portrayed. Christian Scientists do not worship Mrs. Eddy, nor do they in any sense of the word deify her in their thought. The whole teaching of Christian Science leads us to put self under foot; to have no way and no will save God's way and God's will; and Mrs. Eddy asks the world, each one of us to follow her only so far as she follows Christ. In her following of Christ she has been the instrument whereby the feet of hundreds of thousands have been planted upon the rock of the proved truth of God's promises, and against that rock, in the words of the Master, "the gates of hell shall not prevail." We do love our leader, and we give her the allegiance and devotion to which her tireless labor in mankind's behalf is entitled.

Christian Science is the demonstration of that great, tender, compassionate love which Jesus Christ manifested to the world, not only in his word, but in his demonstrations of power. Christian Science is the revelation to mankind today that only as we live the religion of love, making its demonstration that of doing unto others as we would be done by, are we showing any conception of that religion, pure and undefiled, which the Bible commands us to demonstrate. Love brings no evil; Love brings no suffering to man; and the understanding of Love, as it is demonstrated in Christian Science, enables a man to reach out to his brother with a tenderness, a sweetness, a sense of consideration which the world, otherwise, knows not of.

Christian Science is the manifestation of that love which respects no person, that knows no relationship save the universal brotherhood, and which brings to mankind the satisfying consciousness that God is Love.

NEWSPAPER MEN VISIT MRS. EDDY.

Christian Science Monitor.
Newspaper men representing all the papers in Boston and several from more distant points gathered at 12:50 p. m. on Monday outside the grounds of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy's residence, Chestnut Hill, by special invitation to look over the premises and thoroughly assure themselves regarding her well-being.

Mrs. Eddy had just reached her carriage when the journalists arrived at the driveway. In describing Mrs. Eddy's leaving for her drive Fred J. Wilson, New England manager of the United Press Association, one of the party of newspaper men present, sent the following to the newspapers throughout the world taking the United Press service:

"And when she issued from the house for her customary afternoon drive it was no decrepit mindless woman but one in whose placid features shone the light of intelligence and purpose. As the carriage drew out from the porte cochere with Mrs. Eddy's secretary, Calvin A. Frye, and her coachman on the box and the venerable Christian Science leader and her companion, Mrs. Laura Sargent, inside, Mrs. Eddy drew near to the window and smiled and bowed. She looked not more than her years would warrant, and it is doubtful if there are many women of her age in whom the fires of life burn more brightly. As her carriage sped down the driveway Mrs. Eddy leaned back in her seat and with her placid face smiling brightly was gone."

Common Council Proceedings

All members and the president were present at the regular council meeting Monday evening.

A petition signed by property owners along Harvey street, from Sutton to Wing, was presented asking for a cement sidewalk along the east side of said street. Referred to street committee.

A long list of housekeepers' names was signed to a petition asking the council to enact an ordinance prohibiting the running at large of chickens. Gardens being dug up by neighbors' hens doesn't suit the people who take pride in their garden and flower beds, and chickens are a nuisance generally. Judging by the vigorous language employed by some of the councilmen there is no doubt but an ordinance will be forthcoming. Referred to committee on ordinances.

Carl Heide was given permission to place a curb along the street in front of his greenhouse and place flower-beds along the walk.

Street committee reported that the local telephone company and the D. U. R. had not complied with the ordinance requiring the painting of telephone and trolley poles, and recommended that the companies be notified to paint said poles as required. President Markham said he would look after the matter.

The public park committee reported that the committee had agreed upon the naming of parks as follows: The south or main park to be known as Kellogg park and the school park as Central park. The park in north village is already named Centennial park. The street committee was instructed to have suitable signs painted and put in place where the public may see and read.

President Markham stated Florist Heide would plant three flower beds in Kellogg park if the village would look after their propagation and care. The President said he would look after the plants and the required permission was granted.

The druggist bond of O. F. Beyer and that of Wm. Smitherman for building cement walks, were accepted.

Superintendent of Water Works Reiman reported that the reservoir was again leaking badly and that it ought to be repaired at once. The council will investigate the condition and make repairs.

Electric light wires were ordered strung along Harvey, Forest and Wing streets, in the southwest portion of the village. Estimated cost about $200.

On a motion Jenner street in the same locality above named was ordered closed, there being no objection made by any property holder.

Assessor Rastenburg presented his assessment rolls for approval, which was done. The total village assessment is $976,200.

The street committee was authorized to buy a suitable cart and Main street will be kept clean hereafter by a regular "white wing."

Bills to the amount of nearly $1000 were audited.

Rejuvenation of Turkey

BY WILLARD W. GARRISON

ABDUL HAMID DEPOSED SULTAN

MEHMED RECHED EFFENDI, SULTAN OF TURKEY

GETTING Turkey back into running order after its revolution and subsequent deposition of Abdul Hamid II. is like cleaning a house which has not felt the touch of a broom in years.

One could not say it within the sacred confines of the Sublime Porte, but it is chiefly a liberal application of "the salve," which bids fair to accomplish this feat for the new ruler, Mehmed V.

Hardly had the revolution been successfully accomplished by the Young Turks after the capture and occupation of Constantinople than the Young Turk soldiers at Saloniki made massacre threats if the Sheriat laws were not restored. Mehmed V. said of course they would be restored. There never had been any doubt about it in his mind and he declared himself deeply grieved that so trivial a matter should so thoroughly arouse his noble subjects.

In fact Mehmed V. is a whale of good nature and tact, say his courtiers, and when all else fails well adjusted, well chosen words to his countrymen turn the trick.

Despite the fact that he is a brother of Abdul Hamid, the deposed monarch, he has few of the traits of the latter and promises that he will never plead ill health when debtors press hard. That mode of meeting bill collections gave Abdul Hamid the name of the "sick man of Europe."

Contrary to Abdul's policies Mehmed V. has shaped his plans in such a manner that Turkey is to be given and, it is said, is now being given a thoroughly economical administration with the people at the helm to a large extent. The first two months of Mehmed's reign have seen him an object of worship by the people and the change in the order of things from the old way so thoroughly welcomed by the Turkish populace in general that the sultan evidenced his belief in the sincerity of his people by appearing on the streets upon several occasions when the same action by his brother would have produced a vacancy in the royal family.

Commercially Turkey is one of the world's richest countries and less than a hundred years ago was one of the great world powers. Its ships were then on every sea and lorded over by no one. A contrast was presented in the last quarter of a century when demonstrations before the porte were constantly planned and often executed for the sole purpose of frightening the sultan into paying his debts. They seldom frightened him that far, but at least extracted promise of payments on account.

The extent of the Ottoman empire to-day is over 1,500,000 square miles, while back in 1830, before Turkey lost many of its possessions through the despotic rule of Abdul Hamid, the realm totaled 1,692,150 square miles. Its population today is 43,000,000, well scattered, thus giving ample opportunity for agricultural operations.

It is said that to-day through the slavery laws and heavy taxation, opposed by the former ruler, there are 40,000,000 acres of uncultivated land in Turkey. Think of the vast revenue from the soil which is year after year absolutely going to waste. Much of this land is in the possession of the crown and what little duty was squeezed from it usually went into the coffers of the brother of the present ruler.

In evidence that Abdul Hamid was a wise financier and a merciless master are offered the discoveries of the cabinet members who were selected as advisors to Mehmed. In the palace and in the grounds surrounding there was unearthed over $10,000,000 in coin, and papers were found which showed the former sultan to have $118,000,000 in the banks of Germany, France, England and America. That was the state of affairs which Mehmed found and it gave him and his court a pang to think of the enormity of Turkey's debt while his brother Abdul had been silently but persistently backing away the country's money in his own private pocketbook—and Turkey with a debt which the world says will never be paid. But thanks to the Young Turks, Mehmed's sound business policies and a surrounding of loyal subjects, the word has gone out from the head of the Turkish cabinet that the debt will be liquidated as fast as money is piled into the Ottoman surplus fund.

A lowering of taxation rates is also promised by the new ruler. In years past the taxes upon the people of the empire have been so steep that thousands upon thousands of them have migrated to America, others going to countries in the vicinity of Turkey, where the yoke placed upon the subject's head is not nearly so heavy.

It was proved conclusively that Abdul Hamid himself ordered the Moslem fanatics of Asiatic Turkey to wipe out the entire Armenian race and with the advent of Mehmed V. to the throne everything within human power was done to stop the flow of Christian blood, with the result that with the exception of a few roving bands, the carnage makers were almost immediately hauled from their crimson assignment.

Then at orders of the new sultan the relief work in the stricken districts where the torch and sword had reigned but a few days before commenced with marvelous results. It was estimated that 40,000 Armenians had been slain during the few days which intervened between the order of Abdul Hamid and the successful termination of the revolution in the deposition of the despotic monarch.

That was the first step in the Turkish house-cleaning and it has been followed by others of greater import to the subjects of the sultan. The minister of the interior has personally toured the provinces nearby and also the outlying districts with a view towards learning the wants of the citizens. A thorough reorganization is still in progress and already results are beginning to show themselves.

Reasons for Abdul Hamid issuing the fatal secret order for the massacre of all Armenians are assigned to his desire to stem the tide of growing strength of the Young Turks and give another bit of play for the idle hands to accomplish in order that the destructiveness might be turned in a direction other than Yildiz Kiosh.

To all intents and purposes he succeeded. As far as destruction went Abdul Hamid was successful, but the terrific wave of opposition to his rule refused to spend itself in the massacres in Asiatic Turkey. Thus he brought about his own downfall.

But to-day a different sight than that of the previous quarter century of retrogression greets the eyes of the visitor in Turkey. Prosperity is in the air. The spy system, so thoroughly organized by aides of Abdul Hamid, is practically abolished. Under Abdul's regime men feared to whisper their beliefs at their own firesides for fear a spy listened without or—fraught with even more danger—for fear members of their own families were in the pay of the sultan. Christian works at that time were punishable by penalties more severe than some of those which are administered for manslaughter in this country. To be confined in a Turkish dungeon for any length of time practically meant death because of the vermin, lack of food and insanitary quarters.

The task which Mehmed faced was that of reorganizing perhaps the most corrupt government in the world. It was a government in which graft reigned openly and unquestioned. And from the findings at Yildiz Kiosh, the former sultan was the kingpin of his fellow grafters. The subjects were the only ones who did not graft and they were the ones upon whom the grafting was inflicted.

The people in Constantinople, according to consular reports forwarded from Washington, highly respect the new ruler and their hope for a new order of things has not been dissipated, for the regime of the present occupant of the Ottoman throne has ousted the most pernicious grafters of the old monarchy and honest men form the new ministry.

Capitalists are scanning the situation in Turkey with eagle eyes for they realize that the opening of the country to outside financing will produce investments which cannot be overlooked. The Ottoman empire is one of the largest of the old world. It embraces extensive territories in southeastern Europe, western Asia and Northern Africa, grouped mainly around the eastern waters of the Mediterranean and along both sides of the Red sea, the west coast of the Persian gulf and southern and western shores of the black sea.

Revolve in your mind the various assortment of industries which may be carried on in that fertile country and then ask yourself whether it is any wonder that lots of American money will go to aid Turkey by being invested in its industries.

The rejuvenation of Turkey is going on from the inside as well as from the outside. The powers of the world want to give Turkey a chance to retrieve itself and they realize that the new sultan must be depended upon. Every official action which goes forth from the palace is quickly communicated to the governments of Europe and America. In fact the whole world is just now sizing up Mehmed V. He is being watched as closely as if he were out on parole.

Mehmed is believed by the Turkish people to be in some manner a descendant of Mohammed, father of the religion which reigns supreme within the confines of the Ottoman empire. It was that fact which kept Abdul Hamid on the throne for so long a time while Turkey longed for his life blood and thousands of plotters were praying for a chance to effect his demise.

Finally, however, the people of Turkey took the view that it was the office of sultan which they honored and not the occupant of that position. So the Young Turk party was formed with the primary idea of restoring the constitution of 1876. The decrepit ruler, after many promises of a "New Turkey," gave them the constitution they wished. Then by machinations known only to himself and perhaps one or two members of his court, he took away all the grants, still leaving the subjects in possession of the constitution of 1876, which then amounted to nothing more than an empty promise.

sword, the crown and occupied the raiment of a great monarch. So there was little surprise expressed in other cities of the world when the news "The Porte has fallen," was flashed over the wires. The end of despotism in Turkey was in sight, diplomats at Washington said.

The following day came the official bulletin from the head of the church announcing that the ruler had been unseated, his office turned over to his brother and making grave charges against Abdul Hamid, now an old man.

"It is the will of Allah," sighed the old man, his shoulders seeming even more stooped after the strenuous events of two days.

Carassa Effendi, a member of the deputation from the national assembly, which conveyed the fetva (announcement) to the Yildiz palace, tells a graphic story of the dramatic scene which closed six centuries' domination of the boundless power of the Padiashahs. When the deputation arrived at the palace the scene was one of utter desolation. The investing army had cut off the water, gas and electric supplies and had stopped the ingress of food, so that all the palace officials already were suffering from hunger and panic.

While waiting to be introduced to the sultan the members of the deputation carefully examined their holsters and pistols, and, according to Carassa, had Abdul Hamid shown an armed hand he would have been shot on the spot. After much delay the unwelcome visitors, surrounded by 20 black eunuchs, were ushered into the sultan's apartment, where stood the sultan's son, Prince Abdur Rahim.

Presently the sultan entered in a bewildered manner. He was dressed somewhat negligently, as though his clothes had been hastily donned, in civilian attire. His arms hung at his sides and his hands trembled.

After a silent salute Esad Pasha pronounced in slow tones the decree of deposition, at which the sultan shuddered.

There was a painful silence, followed by an equally painful colloquy, lasting a quarter of an hour. Abdul Hamid appealed for his life and for the lives of his family. He protested his devotion to the people and his innocence in recent events.

The youthful prince burst into tears, and after vain efforts to restrain his feelings, retired behind a screen, where he broke into bitter sobs. For a moment tears trembled in the sultan's eyes. Then he supplicated the soldiers in attendance to swear that they would not take his life. The deputation brought the interview to a close and Abdul Hamid humbly saluted them as they departed.

Why the Muscles Grow Tired

Nearly half the weight of the human body consists of muscles which connect the bones and, by contraction, move them into various positions. In the best steam engines only one-tenth of the potential energy of the fuel is converted into mechanical work, but the muscles utilize in work from 34 to 58 per cent. of the energy of the food and probably much more, as the experiments which furnished these figures were performed with muscles removed from the body, not with living muscles richly supplied with blood. The less the contraction of a muscle the greater is its efficiency. A steam engine which is maintained in good condition works hour after hour and day after day, always consuming the same quantity of coal in performing the same amount of work.

With the muscles, however, it is different. For their waste products from combustion accumulate and cause fatigue. The poison of fatigue gradually is washed away by the blood, and in light and slow work it is carried off as rapidly as it is formed by the activity of the muscle, while in heavy, violent, or greatly prolonged labor it accumulates in the muscles.

It is the sensation of fatigue that causes us unconsciously to select the easiest way of doing things—for example, to ascend a mountain by a winding rather than by a straight path, although we thus increase the total quantity of work.

BURDENS LIFTED

From Bent Backs.

A bad back is a heavy handicap to those of us who have to work every day. Nine times out of ten, backache tells of kidney weakness. The only way to find relief is to cure the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills have given sound strong backs to thousands of men and women. Mrs. Wesley Clemens, 311 Marion St., Manchester, Ia., says: "Constant work at a sewing machine seemed to bring on kidney trouble. The kidney action was irregular and the pains in my back and loins so severe I could hardly endure it. Doan's Kidney Pills made me feel better in a short time, and I took them until entirely free from my trouble."

Prominent Women Aid Good Cause.

A large number of women occupying prominent positions in society, or on the stage, are taking an active interest in the anti-tuberculosis campaign. Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt has recently given $1,000,000 for sanitary homes for consumptives. Mrs. Keith Spalding of Chicago has erected a sanitarium for the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute at a cost of about $50,000; Mrs. Collis P. Huntington and Mrs. Bordeu Harriman have given largely to the consumption fight. In Porto Rico, Mrs. Albert Norton Wood, wife of a prominent army officer stationed at San Juan, has stirred the entire island through the anti-tuberculosis crusade she inaugurated. Mrs. Emma Calve is a most enthusiastic worker, and has given largely of her talent and money for the relief of tuberculosis sufferers, and Miss Olga Nethercole has even lectured before the public on tuberculosis.

Couldn't Stand It.

A Raleigh, N. C., woman not long ago received into her house for "training" a "cracker" girl from the mountains.

Endeavor was made to inculcate in the girl a love for order and cleanliness, but suddenly this discipline ceased, for the "poor white" fled to her home in the fastnesses. Thither the Raleigh woman traced her after some difficulty.

"Why did you leave me, Mary Jane?" she asked. "Mis' Morgan, I jes' couldn't stay!" exclaimed the girl. "I was jes' cloyed with neatness!"

Obedience.

Prompt and unquestioning obedience is the corner stone of the foundation of success in life. No man can give orders properly who has not learned to take them, and "save he serve, no man may rule." It will be found that the men who have won their way to positions of power and responsibility have invariably been the men who did not reason or argue or even "respectfully represent," but who promptly did as they were commanded without questioning. It is the large man, not the little man, who recognizes a superior authority.

MAKING SUNSHINE

It is Often Found in Pure Food.

The improper selection of food drives many a healthy person into the depths of despairing illness. Indeed, much sickness comes from wrong food and just so surely as that is the case right food will make the sun shine once more.

An old veteran of Newburyport, Mass., says: "In October, I was taken sick and went to bed, losing 47 pounds in about 60 days. I had doctor after doctor, food hurt me and I had to live almost entirely on magnesia and soda. All solid food distressed me so that water would run out of my mouth in little streams.

"I had terrible night sweats, and my doctor finally said I had consumption and must die. My good wife gave up all hope. We were at Old Orchard, Me., at that time and my wife saw Grape-Nuts in a grocery there. She bought some and persuaded me to try it.

"I had no faith in it, but took it to please her. To my surprise it did not distress me as all other food had done and before I had taken the fifth package I was well on the mend. The pains left my head, my mind became clearer and I gained weight rapidly.

"I went back to my work again and now after six weeks' use of the food I am better and stronger than ever before in my life. Grape-Nuts surely saved my life and made me a strong hearty man, 15 pounds heavier than before I was taken ill.

"Both my good wife and I are willing to make affidavit to the truth of this." Read "The Road to Wellville," in page "There's a Reason." "Never read the above without a new and improved Grape-Nuts in hand. The new granules, sweet, and full of health interest."

CALLING ON ROSINA

GOLLNICK is a bachelor. He had been dining with the Tessdales, and over the coffee Tessdale produced the letter.

"Most curious thing, this letter," Tessdale said. "Good paper, written in the most extreme fashionable stilted hand and, with the assurance of one who expects to be understood. Says she knows I'll be glad to hear she has come to Chicago and expects to remain permanently, and hopes I will come to see her, with graceful references to our former friendship. Signed 'Rosina Hitch'—and I don't know and never knew any Rosina Hitch! I never even heard of a human being named Rosina!"

"And I believe him," corroborated Mrs. Tessdale, a trifle defiantly, catching Gollnick's eye. Gollnick hastened to resolve his face into a picture of trust and faith. "Certainly!" he said. "How extraordinary!"

He fingered thoughtfully the note which Tessdale had passed over. Then the idea struck him.

"Of course," he said to Tessdale, "it wouldn't be proper for you, a married man, to pay any attention to this note. You couldn't do it, you know. Could he, Mrs. Tessdale? Your role is to treat it with a cold reserve if not a suspicious contempt. But it would be entirely correct for me to answer it, Tessdale? Now, wouldn't it?"

"I'd kind of like to get to the bottom of the mystery," confessed Tessdale. "I'd like to know who Rosina really is."

"Go on and answer it," urged Mrs. Tessdale, who was cheerfully without scruples when Tessdale was not concerned.

Thereupon Gollnick answered the note on Mrs. Tessdale's best stationery. His was a beautiful note, considered from all points. It was the acme of polite interest, of courteous pleasure in the fact that Chicago was from now on to be blessed with the presence of Rosina Hitch, of deftly vague references to the mysterious past days when they had known each other, of intimations that the writer would be charmed to pick up again the thread of their acquaintance. And Gollnick signed it with Tessdale's name.

"I have to!" he insisted. "She wrote to you, didn't she? She doesn't know me, does she?"

"She's welcome to know you," said Tessdale, "for all of me. All right, let her go!"

So Gollnick mailed the letter on his way home that night. Three days later Mrs. Tessdale telephoned him that there was an answer, and Gollnick hastened to his friend's house. He was beginning to feel an eager interest in Rosina Hitch. Gollnick always said that a person could be judged by the way he or she wrote a letter, and Rosina's letter had been very nice. The second one was even more so. She said she'd be glad to see Tessdale the next evening.

"I'm going!" Gollnick announced.

"But you don't look like me!" objected Tessdale.

"What difference does that make?" demanded Gollnick, with malicious cleverness. "You say Rosina never set eyes on you!"

Sometimes, much as he liked Gollnick, Tessdale was greatly irritated by him, and this was one of the times. "Don't you get me into any mix-up!" he growled. "Not that he wanted to call on Rosina himself, but somehow he felt that Gollnick was too superabundantly joyful in his freedom to do so."

"I'm going!" Gollnick repeated.

He really dressed very carefully for that call. It was an adventure and he was excited. Not since his college days had he been so excited. He did not go so far as to say that Rosina was tall, with waves of dark hair and large eyes, but he felt assured she was charming. She must be, from those notes.

The address Rosina had given was on a very good avenue, and it was a modestly impressive house. As Gollnick waited in the inviting reception room his satisfaction grew. He knew at once that Rosina's family was the right sort. He rose to his feet as he heard her coming.

With the Colosseum doing a zigzag waitz before his startled eyes, Gollnick found himself holding the hand of a plump, motherly woman of 60, with her hair parted and smoothed down. It surely was a basque she had on—nothing more modern!

"Why, where's Tommy Tessdale?" the nice old woman asked at once. "I haven't forgotten what he looked like, though I haven't seen him since he was a boy, when I visited his mother. I went through the seminary with his dear mother, and she was my best friend! Has anything happened?"

As has been said, Gollnick is a very clever man. He looked straight into the kindly eyes of Rosina Hitch, the old-fashioned woman with a faded new-fashioned stationery.

"I came in Tessdale's place," he said. "He—he was detained by business. He will be very glad to see you, Mrs. Hitch. He and his wife."

"Fancy Tommy Tessdale married!" beamed Rosina Hitch, sitting down. "Tell me all about him."

HARDLY FOR IMMEDIATE USE

Boy's Purchase Not of Such a Practical Nature as Fond Father Had Hoped.

On the day the Boy was 11 years old he visited an artist friend. The artist likes boys. He entertained the Boy royally. He gave him a gun and cigarette coupons worth $2.50. The Boy was proud of the gun, but he thought still more of the coupons.

"What are you going to get with them, son?" asked his mother.

"I don't know," said the Boy.

His mother was about to offer a few suggestions, but the Boy's father interfered.

"Just let Jim alone," he said. "Let him pick out his own prize. He knows what he wants."

"But he'll get something foolish," argued the practical mother.

"No, he won't," said the father. "That boy's got the best judgment of any boy I ever saw. He won't throw his money away. He'll come home with something useful—something that he needs right on the spot. I wouldn't be afraid to bet on that."

So the mother finally gave in. On Saturday the Boy went downtown to exchange his coupons for a prize. When he came home the family was gathered at the dinner table talking about him.

"Come, dear," said his mother, "show mother what her little man got."

They sat expectant while the Boy unwrapped his prize. After a little they spoke. The mother said: "What did I tell you?" and the father said: "Well, I'll be darned!"

The Boy had bought a razor.

NOT JUST WHAT SHE MEANT

Fair One's Loving Protestation Sounded Somewhat Odd to Pasionate Wooer.

It was, indeed, a beautiful night. The gentle zephyrs played musically amid the delicate fronds of the turnip-tops, and wafted from far-distant fields the subtle perfume of the luscious onion and the fragrance of decaying cabbages.

"Betsy," he whispered, as they sat together on the fence surrounding Mrs. Filligan's pigsty, "ow beautiful you be! Jes' think of it, Betsy. When us be married us will have a pig of our own! Think of that, Betsy!"

"Jan," she whispered, a note of resentment in her voice, "what do I care for pigs? I sha'n't want a pig when I've got you!"

Then all was silent once more, save for the musical frolics of the zephyrs already mentioned.—London Tit-Bits.

"Pretty stiff blow."

"Yep, Ninety-mile-an-hour. Th' cunnel says he crawled out of the cyclone cellar after it was all over, an' what do you suppose was the first thing he saw?"

"Gave it up."

"He looked across his back lot, an', by gum, there was his hired man still sittin' on th' fence!"

Twelve years ago Charles E. Kenyon, now sheriff of Ogemaw county, and a former resident of Plymouth, while leading a horse was thrown to the ground. Half an hour later he missed his watch. He returned to the spot where he was thrown, but no watch was found. He had forgotten the affair until Monday night when he received in his mail a box which contained his long lost watch. The supposition is that the watch was found soon after it was lost and that the finder, stricken with a troubled conscience after all these years, took this means of returning the watch.

Don't grumble. The most unfortunate class of people living upon this green earth are the grumblers. They rob the home of its joys, society of its dues, and themselves of the best things of life. From the days the children of Israel "grumbled" and were sent on their tedious wanderings "for forty years in the wilderness," up to the present hour the world has been full of grumblers. It is "too hot" or "too cold," "too wet" or "dry." People in reasonable circumstances have visions of the poor house, while the rich grumble that they can't get rich faster.

THE HOUSE IN THREE STATES

Remarkable History of Three Brothers Born in the Same House, But All in Different States.

Montana is believed to possess three brothers with a history more remarkable than has heretofore been known. The story is vouched for by Col. Thomas C. Marshall of Missoula, Republican national committeeman from Montana.

"I believe," said Col. Marshall, "that the history of the brothers stands unprecedented in the annals of American history. That they should be born in the same house, and at the same time, each born in a different state, seems incredible, and all the more so when it is stated that the house stands on its original site.

These brothers are named Wright, and are now residents of Missoula county, Montana. When the elder of these three brothers was born, that particular section of the county was in Oregon, as a portion of the Louisiana purchase.

"Several years later a second boy was born to the Wright family, but in the meantime Idaho had been segregated from the original territory, and therefore he was a native of Idaho, and his elder brother was an Oregonian.

"Again a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Wright, but he was neither an Oregonian nor an Idahoan, but a Montanan, the treasure state having been sliced from Idaho in the meantime. Thus three brothers were born in the same house and each in a different state.

"They are getting along in years, but the house still stands and is still occupied by the Wright family."
