VOLUME XXII, NO. 24

PLYMOUTH, MICH., FRIDAY, MARCH 4, 1910

WHOLE NO. 1174.

Local Correspondence

NEWBURG.

Last Sunday Mrs. Jennie LeVan, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Ryder, Mrs. Hilliker and daughter Bessie and Mrs. Casterlane dined with Mr. and Mrs. James LeVan, it being their 55th wedding anniversary. Several presents were given the venerable couple by their relatives.

Mrs. Blanche LeVan-Kline, who has been in the hospital for nearly two months, is now nearly recovered and will soon be removed to her home at Detroit. Mr. and Mrs. Mark Joy were Newburg visitors Sunday. Three babes were left at home, the weather being too cold to take them out.

Mrs. Luella Chappel visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rosenberg last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Chilson have been the guests of relatives at Detroit for a week, returning home Monday.

Miss Lola Brown, formerly of this neighborhood, now of Milford, is nearly recovered in a hospital at Ann Arbor and will soon return home.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. King of Detroit Sundayed with his brother-in-law, N. Barrows.

Gideon Durfee of Plymouth was buried in Newburg cemetery Monday. He was aged ninety years.

Considering inclement weather the postcard social was fairly well attended at the hall Tuesday evening. The young people seemed glad to meet and play the usual old fashioned games, which rural people always indulge in to their great satisfaction.

Spring is a welcome visitor and the Blue Jay cheers us with his song. Although not as sweet a songster as other birds he certainly out vies the crow.

A Newly Married Couple

Is very happy, so is every person who has good health and is free from rheumatic pains; for those who are not, and for those who have neuralgia, sprains or contracted muscles, we discovered in Remme's Pain-Killing Oil the greatest help. A remedy that has been a favorite in thousands of homes for over seventy years. Once tried—always used. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by Pinckney's Pharmacy and Beyer's Pharmacy.

PIKE'S PEAK.

Mrs. Thomas Bridge of Perrinsville visited Mrs. James Bridge last Tuesday. A few from here attended the surprise party at Mr. Doby's last Friday evening.

Henry Klatt visited relatives at Milford last Sunday.

Mrs. Wright and son, Erwin, were Wayne callers last Monday.

John Sherwood and Wren Hix of Elm were on our streets Sunday.

Henry Klatt called on Alex Lyle of Inkster Monday.

Fully nine out of ten cases of rheumatism is simply rheumatism of the muscles due to cold or damp, or chronic rheumatism, neither of which require any internal treatment. All that is needed to afford relief is the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. Give it a trial. You are certain to be pleased with the quick relief which it affords. Sold by Beyer's Pharmacy.

ELM.

A happy surprise was planned by Mrs. Will Cort last Friday night by inviting in a number of friends and neighbors to help celebrate Will's 39th birthday. The evening was spent playing pedro and 500. A sumptuous repast was served by Mrs. Cort and none departed until the "wee sma" hours in the morning, with pleasing recollections of the happy occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hirschlieb and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pankow called on Mr. and Mrs. Will Wolf Saturday evening.

A. J. Shaw and Ira Wilson were in Detroit on business Monday.

Mrs. Earnest Frank of Detroit called on her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harter at Elm Sunday.

Mrs. Gams has been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Will Wolf the past week.

Fred Schroder had a narrow escape from being gored by a vicious bull a few days ago. He was cut up quite badly and is under the care of Dr. Holcomb of Redford.

O. H. S. C. P.

Not a fraternal society, but the above letters stand for one of the greatest helps in the world. Try them and see. Will relieve that tired feeling, sick headache and all disorders of the stomach and bowels. What are they? Dr. Herrick's Sugar-Coated Pills, a tried and reliable remedy which has been on the market over sixty years. Price 25c per box. Ask for a free sample. Sold by Pinckney's Pharmacy and Beyer's Pharmacy.

LIVONIA CENTER.

Rev. C. A. Knickerbocker of Boston, Mass., visited his sister, Mrs. C. E. Pitcher, the first of the week.

Miss Ada Pitcher is quite ill.

Asa Lyon of Plymouth called on C. F. Smith Monday.

And now all we hear is streetcar line. The board met with a party from Detroit Monday and a franchise was granted, but we will not look for the line to be put through at once.

Our church social last Saturday night was postponed on account of the rain.

Ed Peck of west Detroit visited his people here Saturday.

A very pleasant evening was spent with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hake Saturday evening by the Dramatic club. A sumptuous supper was served and a fine time reported.

Will Garchow's people entertained company from the City Thursday and Friday.

The past few days have been quite spring like.

Report says Emil Larden will move on the Geo. Flint farm this spring.

WEST PLYMOUTH.

"Don't be a primer scholar and bawl opinions at the algebra class."

Miss Eleanor Kinsler of Salem spent the last of last week with Kingsley's.

Will Mosher has sold his farm to Fred Orr. Mr. Mosher will move his family to Northville.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Gordon are visiting in South Lyon for a few days this week.

Mrs. Charlotte Rathburn has sold her farm.

A social for the purpose of raising money to purchase a school bell for district No. 7, was held at George Innis' last Friday night. A goodly number gathered and a pleasant social time was enjoyed by all. The net proceeds were between seven and eight dollars.

At the next to the last Grange meeting Mrs. Chas. Smith was presented with a gold brooch as a token of appreciation of her faithful work as secretary of the grange.

Grange met in Odd Fellows' hall Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Julia Schmidt of Detroit spent the week's end with Miss Helen Smith. Dan Murray is having his house repaired, preparatory to his moving into it this spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Spencer visited Mr. and Mrs. Angus Heeney Sunday.

H. C. Guilford will have a sale Monday preparatory to his leaving for his old home in Ohio the first of April.

Miss Christina Killet of Northville visited Miss Nina Stuart Tuesday.

Mrs. Festus Lucas is visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. Emery Shook in Northville this week.

James Lucas has buzzed 200 cords of wood this week.

George Innis has purchased two fine Holstein cows, paying $138 for one cow. Her record is over 1900 pounds of milk in 30 days. Compare this with the record of some of the $50 grade cows and the price seems very small.

Ford Becker is spending a few weeks in Fenton and vicinity.

W. C. T. U.

The meeting last Thursday was observed as Washington day and was made very interesting with a sketch of George Washington's life and a paper upon the custom of his time. Special music furnished by Mr. Harmon and Miss Eddy, which is always enjoyed. After adjournment the winter picnic, which consisted of dainty refreshments, was served by the committee, to which ample justice was given. We hope those who attended that meeting and do not belong will come again and often.

The meeting next week Thursday, March 10, will be in charge of Mrs. J. F. Root and Mrs. F. W. Miller. Current events will be given in response to the roll call. There will be select readings or recitations and extracts from Washington letters.

A light delivery wagon was being drawn along a highway and in the wagon were several cases of beer and a gravestone. "What an appropriate combination, the destroyer and the grave-marker." It is rare that we see the two delivered together, but too often we see the one followed by the other.—Supt. Press.

Are you frequently hoarse? Do you have that annoying tickling in your throat? Does your cough annoy you at night, and do you cough mucous in the morning? Do you want relief? If so, take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and you will be pleased. Sold by Beyer's Pharmacy.

ITALIAN COLONY IN AFRICA

Has No Commerce or Trade of Any Importance, and the Inhabitants Are Poor.

The Italian colony of Eritrea is largely barren, and with the exception of a small portion near Suakin produces little of value.

Massowah, the chief port, a city of about 5,000 inhabitants, has a very good harbor capable of accommodating vessels drawing 27 feet.

From Massowah a railway runs 33 miles to Ginda, a small station at an elevation of 3,117 feet, where it is necessary to have recourse to horses to reach Asmara, the capital of the province.

There are three gold mines at work in the colony, but it is impossible to get any data in regard to them.

The Adornment of Paris.

Paris was made the "City of Light" during the second empire. Now the deputies have authorized a loan of $180,000,000 for the purpose of further embellishment.

Unfamiliar Ground.

The tourist who had secured a guide within a few moments after his arrival in Rome spoke crisply to the man.

The guide engaged a carriage, into which the tourist jumped, and after a few words from the guide to the driver, the equipage started off at a brisk rate.

The Only Relief.

"Shall we have prayer for rain, Thomas?" asked the vicar of the clerk during a protracted drought.

"But don't you think it would be a good thing? Rain is badly wanted."

"You do as you please, sir. You'd better 'ave it if so as you do want it."

"Bless you, sir, you 'ave that that prayer if you be so sot on it, but it won't rain till the moon do change."

Showing Flight of Insects.

Moving pictures of the flight of insects have been made with exposures of 1/42,000 second.

Futile Dismissal.

"So you and your husband are always quarrelling," said the family lawyer.

"I sometimes happens that when an American hearse marries a foreign nobleman she forgets to remove the price mark."

PLEA IS FILED BY POWER MERGER

Asks Permission to Issue Bonds for $35,000,000.

UP TO RAILROAD COMMISSION

Attorney General Bird Will Act in Advisory Capacity to Commission—Merger Will Be Thoroughly Investigated.

Lansing.—The Commonwealth Power Company, which is the recently formed merger of the light and power companies in the southern and eastern part of the state, wants to change its name to the Consumers' Power Company.

It made application to the railroad commission for approval of the bond issue, and the commission set March 10 as the date for hearing the application.

Attorney General Bird will represent the people's interest and act in an advisory capacity to the commission.

The companies included in the merger are the Commonwealth Power Company, Grand Rapids; Muskegon Power Company, Grand Rapids Edison Company, Jackson Light & Power Company, Pontiac Power Company, Flint Electric Company, Saginaw Power Company, Bay City Power Company and Au Sable Electric Company.

Van Buren County Must Vote Again.

The supreme court has handed down a decision which means that Van Buren county, "dry" for 15 years, must vote on the local option question this spring.

The case came up on appeal from the Van Buren circuit court on appeal filed by the "wets."

The supreme court finds that, inasmuch as the legal number of signatures appear by name on the petition the supervisors cannot go back of the signatures, and must reconvene and prepare for the election.

This decision is exactly in line with the one recently rendered affecting St. Clair and Marquette counties, though it was the "drys" who won their point in the latter two.

To Camp at Sparta, Wis.

The Michigan state troops will not camp at Ludington next summer, but at Sparta, Wis., with the regulars of the department of the lakes and the state troops of Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio and Kentucky.

Sparta, where the encampment will be held, is situated in the hills in northwestern Wisconsin.

Raise Standard of the Art.

The Professional Photographers' society of Michigan was formally organized at the Ames studio in Lansing and the following officers elected:

This year the understanding is that all branches of the service, infantry, artillery and cavalry will go to Sparta.

Prospect State Lands.

Land Commissioner Russell has received a communication from a firm of upper peninsula prospectors asking if arrangements can be made with the state whereby the firm will prospect state lands for coal, gas, oil and minerals on the understanding that if deposits of value are found the firm is to receive pay, but otherwise no compensation is to be paid.

Rome Open to U. of M.

For the first time in its history the University of Michigan has been listed with the professional schools to compete for a fellowship in the American Academy at Rome.

What is a Steamship Company?

The receipt by secretary of state's department of articles of incorporation of the Raleigh Steamship Company of Detroit has raised the question as to whether navigation companies came within the state requiring common carriers and public utility companies to submit their articles of incorporation to the state railroad commission for approval before the articles can be filed.

No Journalism Course.

The committee from the literary department which was appointed to investigate the need for a course in practical journalism at the university has rendered an adverse report.

Home Rule Law May Be Tested.

Acting under the authority of the home rule law, rushed through during the last moments of the session of 1909, county law makers are manufacturing and forwarding in carload lots, so to speak, home-made legislation for the consideration of Gov. Warner, who, under the act, is required to approve or veto such measures.

As a result of the prospective confusion which it is expected will ensue because of the multitude of local acts, there is a probability that the county home rule act will have to take its place before the supreme court of the state for that body to say whether the supervisors have the power to enact such legislation.

St. Joseph and Calhoun county legislators have forwarded a set of laws which, if they are good, make it absolutely impossible for any sportsman to approach that section of the country unless accompanied by an attorney, a surveyor and a banker.

Victory for "Drys" of Gratiot County.

By the action of the supreme court in affirming the action of the Gratiot circuit judge, the local optionists in that county have won a victory and the question of reinstating the saloons will not be submitted to the voters at the spring election.

The "wets" wished to submit the question at the coming election and accordingly secured a number of signers to their petitions, which were given to the board of supervisors at the January meeting.

Later the "wets" secured more signers and requested the board to call a special meeting to consider the matter.

The lower court refused to act in this matter and the case was carried to the supreme court, which affirmed the action of the circuit judge.

Save Work of One Man.

Auditor General Fuller states that he knows of one reform the legislature may bring about in the line of doing away with duplication of work in the state's business.

Mr. Fuller suggests that one man could just as well do the work for both departments, and he adds that during his experience in the department so far he knows of no other duplication of work.

Don't Want Another 'Phone.

In a duel with revolvers at Vienna Baron Herrmann Widenhofer was killed by Dr. Oskar Meyer.

Fire in the five-story chemical factory of A. Klipstein & Co. in New York ruined that structure and spread to the adjoining building, causing damage of $150,000.

Mrs. Grace Gayou, 19 years old, was shot and killed at a Kansas City store by Louis Hillson, who killed himself after he had beaten Jack Doyle, a rival for Mrs. Gayou's affections.

Representatives from Wall street flooded the internal revenue collector's office at New York with applications bearing on the new corporation tax law, the time limit for which expires March 1.

Gen. Estrada, head of the insurgent movement in Nicaragua, in a telegram to the consul-general at New Orleans, La., confirms the defeat and death of Gen. Romero at El Merrito and the capture of 200 prisoners by insurgents.

Mrs. Logan O. Swope made her tenth appearance on the stand at Kansas City, Mo., in the investigation of the Col. Thomas H. Swope poison mystery. Walter S. Haines, the Chicago toxicologist, will be the final witness.

The Denver City Tramway Company will increase the wages of conductors and motormen five cents an hour. The new scale will make the minimum wage 24 cents, while men in the service ten years will receive 30 cents.

When the land officials threw open the doors of the Shrine auditorium at Los Angeles, Cal., they received a throng of more than 900 men and women eager to enter their names for the 173 40-acre farms in the Yuma irrigation district.

Louis Paulhan, the aviator, has shown his ability to fit as well as to fly by avoiding a deputy marshal, carrying the writ obtained by the Wright brothers, who has followed Paulhan from New York to Arizona and back to St. Louis.

Eleven hundred passengers on the liner Uranium, which arrived at Halifax, N. S., had a stormy voyage of 19 days from Rotterdam. One passenger on the Corsican, from Liverpool, leaped into the sea because of the ship's plunging and was drowned.

A $50,000 monument to Elias Howe, inventor of the first sewing machine, is planned by Mrs. George Lilley, widow of the former Connecticut governor, who is a distant relative. It is proposed to have the shaft unveiled by Miss Elizabeth M. Kilbourne, now 80 years old, who ran the first Howe machine.

A joint resolution will be introduced in both houses of congress at Washington next week asking for a thorough investigation of the death of Lieut. James S. Sutton at Annapolis, Md., October 7, 1907. Despite the recent finding of a board of inquiry the mother feels certain that her boy did not die by his own hand.

COLONEL GUFFEY IS SUED

J. M. Myers Seeks to Recover $3,189,000 for Alleged Violation of Agreement.

Philadelphia, Mar. 1.—James M. Guffey, chairman of the state Democratic committee, oil magnate and general promoter, was made the defendant in a suit filed by J. Montefiore Myers to recover $3,189,000 with interest from June 1, 1909.

The suit was filed in the court of common pleas No. 3 and it charges Col. Guffey with violation of an agreement to promote a company to take over large coal fields in Virginia. The plaintiff says he was to have had charge of the bonds of this corporation and that Col. Guffey's failure to keep his contract deprived Myers of large profits.

SERIAL STORY

The Master of Craven

By Marie Van Vorst
Author of "Amazons of the Mill," "Miss Desmond," etc., etc.

SYNOPSIS.
Basil Tempest, world's greatest novelist and poet, retires to be further honored, and builds himself up in Craven, his country home. His gloomy meditations are broken by his housekeeper, who has disobeyed his orders not to admit any one. The visitor is Lucy Carew, an American who has come to England to write a study of the author, but more especially to get a synopsis of his new suite of poems. Having been promised a good position with a magazine if successful, Tempest, in anger, declares he will write no more, and asks her to go. Repeating of his rudeness in sending her out in the rain at night, he follows, but she refuses to return to Craven with him, and takes lodging with a cottager. Next morning Lucy receives a note from Tempest apologizing for his rudeness and offering to assist her in writing her essay. Tempest dictates to Lucy, who listens spellbound as she writes. He calls at the cottage and discovers that Lucy has left to take a train for London. He overtakes her and induces her to stay over and read the manuscript to him.

CHAPTER II.—Continued.

"Thank you very much indeed. I shall look for you this afternoon. Shall I send for you, or will you walk?"
"I'll walk," said Miss Carew, and he accepted her decision, saying:
"Then I'll mount and leave you here. You will simply tell Mrs. Ramsdill that you have planned to stay on for a day or two because of your message."
He shook her hand and, getting on his horse, took leave of her in the lane.
But at four o'clock his carriage came for her—he was not, evidently, in a mood to wait for her arrival.
Mrs. Ramsdill came in to Lucy Carew with the announcement and a note.

"Will you not dine here?" it ran. "If you are a rigid conventionalist Mrs. Henly shall sit and knit in her corner."

To Ramsdill's presence, to her slightly pursed-up lips, her "air," was due the response that went to Mr. Tempest, for looking suddenly up Miss Carew caught a slight of her sister woman's face and it gave her pause. Was she a coward, and did not dare to take her life without fear of a peasant woman's comment? Or did the look on the humble, good face reflect only what was in Lucy's own heart—a fear, a dread, distrust, and a certain shame?

She wrote a note and sent it in her stead. But she could not like a creature with no mind or will, entirely refuse the favor she had promised.
"I am sorry, but I cannot come today. I will go to Craven to-morrow between two and three."

CHAPTER III.

Tempest so intensely desired what he took the trouble to want at all that he had no rule for the bearing of disappointments, he had until lately admitted none. To accomplish what he desired to desire he put out whatever effort was required on his part, and with magnetism and intensity drew things towards him. The facility with which things slipped to his hands spoiled him. Petulant of habit, impatient and turbulent of temper, he never waited—when his wish for variety was delayed he went for it and snatched it to himself.

But lately this life had undergone a change. Precedent no longer would, he knew, be indicative of his future. His future! Curse the word and epoch! Why had he consented to accept one?

During the last three days his mind had been resting in the contemplation of gentle things. It had amused and entertained him to take pleasure in the society of this woman of another continent, whose presence alone was so extraordinary, whose advent was so droll and unusual.

He was with women as with other things—tyrannical, an absolutist, boldly asking and taking pleasure where he chose—with more of the brute, perhaps, than the angel in his composition, and a great fund of affection to give and waste, a great, hungry need of companionship to be filled. Except for the periods when he shut himself up in Craven, periods of isolation and fast, there had never been a time in his life not dominated by a woman. He had, for such as himself, scoffed at marriage, claiming that its ducal eschewage would fatally exorcise his inspirations and that he would make a devilish bad husband. During this last exile at Craven he had alternately given thanks for his liberty and the fact that no woman was forced to share his misanthropic humors, and alternately hated his uncompanioned hours.

forth scarcely cold on his face; he read and turned it over in hopes that she would on the last page change her cruel mind! Then he flung it down with an angry exclamation and looked about his lonely rooms. They had lately been to him worse than lonely, and an involuntary shiver passed over him as he glanced at corners where ghostlike habitants were growing tenacious in possession. At the side of the window-casing hung a mirror in an old brass frame between the vivid lights of the full afternoon. Tempest strode up to it, throwing his heavy hair from his forehead; gazed into the glass, peered in, searching the cold, reflecting surface as if he would tear from it some flaming, miraculous revelation of himself.

Turning away with a sigh, he rang for his man servant.
"Pack me a valise and order the motor car—we take the London express. Wire for rooms at the Carlton."

Either his desire for Miss Carew's society was not sufficiently strong to warrant his usual brusque storming of her door, or he may have felt a danger not before acknowledged in his relations with women. He did not go much as look towards the rose-covered cottage at the back of its cabbage and hollyhock patch as his motor flashed by it, and Lucy Carew, as chance would have it, was not there to observe his sudden departure. She had gone for a long tramp over fields, and even then was looking at Craven and its towers from a distant hill.

Lady Ormond was one of those women who are part of pleasure as flowers are of feasts. She and her type are needed to make part of the happiness—the festivals, rather, that are held in order to awaken what goes in love's stead throughout the lives of many men and to stimulate what is the more heavy-footed brother of ecstasy—excitement. She was a thorough woman of the world; intelligent, without ever having followed an idea to its source or conclusion; sympathetic, without ever having in her life been touched; caressing, without ever having known what love was in the course of her thirty-odd years. The nearest approach to reality had been her sentiment for the man to whom for several years she had given her time and her society, with whom fashion had linked her name. No nature could come into relation with Basil Tempest without broadening; were it as narrow as a hair, it must expand or break, and Letitia Ormond's had expanded to its utmost limit—so far that it created a gene with her at times that actually hurt.
Tempest had gradually drunk of the deepest waters she had to offer, and she knew it. The fact that she had no more refreshing draught to give him at his imperious demand, that he had reached the bed of the stream, would have desolated a woman who really loved. But Lady Ormond wanted to escape—not Tempest, exactly, but the fact of her deficiency. She knew she could never be again to another what she had been to him, and that if he could come to her as he had originally, with the like enthusiasm, the like forceful demand, she would be anew carried away by his charm. Such a Tempest could not come again. In their gradual drifting apart she had not suffered; she had prepared her interests, new claims were ready to assert themselves, and she grew to accept his frequent absences without reproach.

Lady Ormond was "up for Sunday" to entertain some Americans passing through London, and, standing under the careful adjustment of lights, surrounded by half a dozen of the most sought men in London, she looked with surprise to see Tempest making his way through the crowded room to her. His eyes were on her and he half stumbled against a chair in his way. Awkwardness was foreign to him—he was intolerant of it in others—and he was now so cruelly self-conscious that Lady Ormond flushed for him, reflecting the dark-red of his face Champagne.

It is said that when Sir Andrew Clark, Mr. Gladstone's physician, recommended a patient to drink wine, the latter expressed some surprise, saying he thought Sir Andrew was a temperance doctor, to which Sir Andrew Clark replied: "Oh, wine does sometimes help you to get through work; for instance, I have often 20 letters to answer after dinner, and a pint of champagne is a great help." "Indeed," when he came up and put out his hand.

"Every one has been asking for you. Why did you not come to Gossmere? When did you arrive?"

He had been given place by her with common consent. The men after greeting him gradually slipped away, all save the American guest, who gazed at Basil Tempest wide-eyed, as one might at a star.

"I have arrived in town within this hour," Tempest said.

"Mr. Tempest"—Lady Ormond turned to the American—"knows how to maintain his popularity—he goes away before his public have half enough of him, and returns before they are tired of wondering where he is. For my part I hate brusque departures. I want to be prepared—I don't like sudden good-bys."

She held out her hand to the American and said rather imperiously: "Will you ask Lady Winifred Sales to dance. Mr. Balmbridge? She is alone over there by the palms," thus cutting short Mr. Balmbridge's hero-worship.

"And"—Tempest took her up several phrases back—"sudden returns—you dislike them?"
She was femininely conscious that he had taken note of every detail of her sparkling beauty, and meeting his eyes agreeably said with grace:

"Your returns are never sudden. I am always bringing you back in my mind. You see, Basil, you are always expected."

His face brightened excessively. "That's the prettiest speech I ever heard a woman make. Come, come with me out of this crush, can't you? I have something especial to say, and you know that I do not understand the art of waiting."

She nodded and smiled, delighted to perceive herself glad to see him and that his sudden return without warning did not find her cold.

He followed her across the ball-room to the opposite side, where a room decorated with lilies and orchids gave them a corner planned and set apart for just such causeries intimates as Tempest determined it should secure.

Lady Ormond sat down in a corner of a little divan, Tempest beside her. "Letty"—he lifted her hand to his lips—"Letty, I exaggerate in my books—they would not be worth writing or reading if I did not. I never really transcribe real life, although they call me a realist. You never heard of a great photographer, did you? Do you think there will be one remembered by men in a hundred years from now? Not unless he has made his pictures as unlike life as possible. Well, I don't exaggerate in my life or speech. I am plain—you have even called me brutal. Now I am speaking realistically—I've been living in hell since I left London."

The marks of suffering were distinct on his face, he looked ill and changed; there was something appealing and touching in his expression, usually arrogance and pride itself. The flippant speech his statement would have called forth from Lady Ormond's humor did not pass her lips. She gave his hand a gentle pressure.

"Basil, you look horribly ill—what is the matter? You are changed."

"Am I?" He threw up his head rather defiantly and impatiently, as if to shake off commiseration. "I've studied my face enough, God knows, these days, but I find it the same."

"Where have you been—at Craven?"

"Yes. Shut up like a bear in his cage."

"And you come out to bite, I suppose?"

"Hush!" he said frowning. "Don't for God's sake be flippant. I am not in any mood for it. I've had them all—the mords—heaven knows, but this is a peculiarly grim one to-night. If you can, in any way, second it, I will be grateful."

She looked at him curiously but not unaffectionately. "I'll be as grim as you like, Basil. What do you want me to feel?"

Tempest had covered his eyes with his hands, a gesture growing now second nature to him. He laughed softly as she spoke. "How perfect of you, Letty! What do I want you to feel? Why, do you then command your sentiments at call? Can I have them up at touch, have you so many more for me than one?"

He uncovered his eyes and looked at her smiling. His expression was cynical and amused. "I don't want or not want you to feel in any particular way. I want to know how you do feel and to act accordingly."

She started—with him, at all events, a crisis was reached in their relations. She said, to gain time and to collect herself: "You are quite your most singular self to-night—Je ne suls pas une femme tragique, and I think you might return after a four weeks' absence in a little more soothing mood! You are mysterious, and I am bewildered at mysteries. What has gone wrong? Are you dissatisfied with some new creation, or have you lost money?"

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Three Rivers.—St. Joseph county thiristies were hit a hard blow when the city councils of Schoolcraft and Vicksburg, border towns in "wet" Kalamazoo county, voted to put all saloons in these towns out of business when present licenses expire, by refusing to issue or renew licenses. This action was taken on petitions numerously signed by citizens of the two towns, disgusted with continuous drunken carousals. With prospects of Cass county joining the "dry" ranks, St. Joseph thiristies will be compelled to travel to Kalamazoo to quench their thirst or become abstainers.

Lansing.—Four mysterious cases of alleged cheese poisoning which occurred in the family of C. H. Knaup at Dewitt are being investigated by the dairy and food department. With the exception of one child the entire Knaup family ate slices of American cheese at supper and several hours later all became violently ill. Dr. Banta called and successfully administered antidotes. Samples of the cheese are now being tested by the state department.

Grand Rapids.—While the trial of George Dudley, charged with wholesale forgery through western Michigan, was at its height in police court it was halted to permit Judge Hess to appoint a lunacy commission to examine the prisoner. The action was taken at the recommendation of Emil B. Ganser, his attorney. Ganser declared that dealings he had had with his client since taking the case had convinced him of Dudley's mental derangement.

Grand Rapids.—With the formation of the St. Alphonsus Young Men's society comes the announcement that the old church for which the new body was named is to be forsaken by the congregation and converted into a gymnasium. The auditorium will be fitted up with shower baths and gymnasium apparatus of every description within the next two weeks. A large stage will also be constructed for amateur theatricals.

Charlotte.—The city council has received the estimate of the expense of installing an electric light plant in connection with the pumping station and the question of municipal lights may be submitted at the regular spring election. The local company was recently purchased by the Commonwealth Company, but the situation is not clearing fast enough to suit the council members.

Muskegon.—The Racine Boat Manufacturing Company of Muskegon underbid eastern shipbuilders and secured the contract for a 98-foot government lightship to cost $66,000. The local concern has two larger lightships now on the ways here and has previously built two other steel ships for the government service on the Atlantic coast.

Traverse City.—As the culmination of a program of continuous trouble for the past several years, during which time it had been impossible to secure teachers for the district school in Acme township, the township board removed the school board from further duties. The board consisted of John Pulcifer, David Hanna and R. H. Read.

Kalamazoo.—William Strong of Oaktemo township claims the distinction of raising an ear of corn that is the nearest to perfection of any ever grown. Prof. L. R. Taft of the M. A. C., tested the ear, and it scored 97 points. Strong is to receive a share of the profits of a crop grown from this ear during the coming summer.

Pontiac.—Rev. Mr. Stedman of the Orion Methodist church has asked any member of his congregation who proposes to vote "wet" at the coming election to hand him their names and declare their intentions. Stedman says he will strike their names from the church rolls immediately upon their declaration to vote "wet."

Kalamazoo.—As the result of a cold contracted while he was attending the annual banquet of the Kalamazoo Lincoln club, Joseph B. Millman, a well-known merchant of Scott's station, died. He was well-known in political circles and had always resided in this county.

Flint.—Failure to support his family, as ordered by the court, resulted in the sentencing of Herschel Countyman to from 18 months to three years in jail. Judge Wisner, in pronouncing the sentence, recommended the maximum term.

Flint.—While working as a line-man 60 feet above the pavement, Charles Potter, employed by the Flint Electric Company, met instant death when he came in contact with the wires, causing 1,700 volts to pass through his body.

Lenox.—William Gierke, a local shoe merchant, has purchased the property known as Gleason addition on South Main street and will erect a $16,000 two-story brick block to be used as a department store.

Saginaw.—Six Polish societies are planning the erection of a two-story home in this city to cost $10,000.

Battle Creek.—St. Phillip's Catholic church will on March 6 dedicate a $3,000 altar, erected from white Carrara marble, in memory of Rev. Fr. Richard J. Sadler, who died two years ago, after 17 years of service to the parish. The money was raised by young women of the church.
Carleton.—Joseph McIntyre, one of the oldest residents of the village and a civil war veteran, died at the age of 81 years. He was one of a family of eight children, and running away from home at the age of 13 years, never heard from any of his relatives since that time.

QUICK ACTION PRESCRIPTION CURES COLDS IN A DAY

What is said to be the best and quickest prescription known to medical science for colds and coughs is as follows: "Get two ounces of Glycerine and half an ounce of Concentrated Pine compound. Then get half a pint of good whiskey and put the other two ingredients into it. Take a teaspoonful to a tablespoonful of this mixture after each meal and at bed time. Shake the bottle well each time." This has cured hundreds here. Be sure to get only the genuine Concentrated Pine. Each half ounce bottle comes put up in a tin screw-top case. Any druggist has it on hand or will quickly get it from his wholesale house. Don't use the weaker pine preparations.

Opera the Great Leveler.
At one of the Wagner operas a few days ago a woman nudged her friend and said: "Who's that distinguished man bowing to you over there?" Her friend looked in the direction designated and smiled in a return greeting. "That's my butcher," she said. "I see him here quite often. When I go marketing in the morning we always discuss the opera. He's a German, you know, and really knows a lot about other things besides cutting meat."—New York Sun.

Proposition Looks Good to Them

Some time ago Karl Hillmer wrote his father, Lewis Hillmer, from Flint, of a proposition to furnish funds for the manufacture of a gasoline engine, designed by a Flint young man, W. G. Griffith. Mr. Hillmer was not favorably struck by the proposition at first, but by persistent efforts of both the Flint young men, concluded last week to take a trip to that city, accompanied by E. N. Passage, and investigate the matter. What they saw and heard proved highly satisfactory and again on Monday last the gentlemen above named, together with J. D. McLaren, made a second trip to the vehicle city. At Flint they were joined by Harry Coe, of Lansing. The gentlemen made all tests of the capacity of the engine and were fully satisfied that it would do all Mr. Griffith claimed for it and more, so much so that they secured a 60-day option on securing stock in the concern.

It is proposed to sell $50,000 worth of this stock in Plymouth, complete the deal with Mr. Griffith, move the plant to this village and operate on a large scale. Only one engine has thus far been completed, but a dozen others are in process of making and Mr. Griffith claims sales can be made for all the engines that may be manufactured. He is now making a four-horse power, which sells at $290, the profit over cost of manufacture being about $225, it is claimed. Already a large block of the stock has been taken and it looks as if there will be no trouble in placing it all within a few days.

Village Caucuses.

CITIZENS

The Citizens' caucus was held in village hall Monday evening, being called to order by F. F. Bennett. Forty-seven was the highest number of votes cast. On motion Mr. Bennett was made chairman, Ralph Samsen secretary and Isaac Wright and Andrew Taylor were appointed tellers.

Forty-two ballots were cast for President, W. J. Burrows 25, Louis Hillmer 14, scattering 3.

It took two ballots to settle the clerkship, Ralph Samsen being nominated. Henry Wright was nominated for treasurer without opposition, Fred Schrader was nominated for trustee in the same manner. Out of 39 votes Dewey Berdan received 25 votes for second trustee, and out of 47 Henry J. Fisher received 24 for third trustee. Am Joy was nominated without opposition for assessor. Chairman Bennett appointed the following as caucus committeemen: W. T. Rattenbury, John Laing and Louis Hillmer.

WORKINGMEN'S.

The Workingmen's caucus held in the village hall Wednesday evening was called to order by Dan Murray, who was made chairman of the meeting. Fred Hall was elected secretary. Harry Jolliffe and Albert Gates were appointed tellers.

The whole number of votes cast for President were 58. Louis Hillmer received 39, W. T. Pettigill 12, the rest were scattering.

Anson Hearn was nominated for clerk by a vote of 41 to 14 for Win. Hubbell. Chas. Rathburn received 44 votes for treasurer to Robt. Jolliffe's 13.

Rev. E. E. Caster, C. C. Allen and C. G. Curtis were nominated for trustees, the greatest trouble being experienced in securing men who would run. Neither Mr. Caster or Mr. Allen were present.

Two ballots were required to nominate an assessor, W. B. Roe securing a majority on second ballot.

A. J. Lapham, Arthur White and Eyered Jolliffe were named as caucus committeemen.

Do the people of Plymouth want another and a more direct railroad line to Detroit? That is the question for them to decide at the village election, March 14th, when they will vote on granting a franchise to the Detroit, Lansing & Grand Rapids railroad. It will require a three-fifths vote to carry the measure. The railroad people have submitted a franchise such as is asked of every township, village and city along the line, and no other was acceptable to them. These franchises when granted will be taken by the promoters to New York and capital will be interested to finance the road. Under the terms of the franchise two cents per mile is asked, same as steam roads, a provision not acceptable to Plymouth people who now ride for less money.

The promoters claim the rate of two cents is made uniform as it will enable them to more readily enlist the attention of capital, and if the road is built the people will not be asked to pay more than they do now over the D. U. R. They want the favor and patronage of the people and will not antagonize them. In passing upon the franchise, the village council did not relinquish its perfect right to control the streets and right of way over which the line may pass, and those who now feel apprehensive about that point may rest assured that the village will be fully protected in every respect.

The promoters claim they will run cars from Plymouth to the city limits in forty minutes. This is the strongest point in favor of the road. Think it over and vote as you think.

SCHOOL NOTES.

[Printed as written by Pupils.—Ed.]
The Seniors sit behind closed doors for hours at a time nowadays. I wonder why? (Freshman)

We are glad to welcome back to school Lynn and Vera VanVleet who have been kept out of school on account of scarlet fever in the home. Clara Reiman, too, is back after a second period of quarantine for the same disease.

The senior social held out at Marjorie Travis' last Friday night was a great success. The night and sleighing were fine, so that many were present. The first part of the evening was spent in playing games, then the girls' hands were sold by auctioneer Claude Robinson. The next half hour every one was busy with someone else over a lunch box. The seniors cleared nearly ten dollars.

Through these columns the seniors take the opportunity to thank Mr. Bert Robinson, who so kindly took a sleighload out to Mr. Travis' Friday night.

The English and History department has of late become not only the scene of would-be revised spelling but also of revised English, "more formality" has been suggested in consequence.

The following pupils of the second grade have neither been tardy nor absent the past month: Russell Holloway, Ernestine Roe, Elton Roe, Hazel Rank, Helen Stewart, Junia Trumbull and Harold Thomas.

The sixth grade has about a dozen large pollywogs to add to their aquarium. This beats the first robin.

Perry Hix has been compelled to leave school for the rest of the year because of serious eye trouble. He will be missed in the track team as well as in school.

The school voted recently by a small majority not to continue the self-government plan for the rest of the year. The decision must have been a welcome one to the members of the council as it relieves them of difficult and arduous duties—duties, by the way, they so faithfully and honorably performed as to be a credit to themselves and to the school.

The signs of spring apparent suggest our need for another Athletic Association cup to balance the one now in our High School. Can't you get it for us this year, boys? What about the track team?

Dorothy Wolz, who was called away by the serious illness of her mother five weeks ago is with us again, and teachers and students are glad to welcome her back.

Only three teachers at the senior social? What's the matter, teacher? Don't lose your school patriotism.

Visitors in High School this week: Arthur Humphries '09 and Miss Julia Smith of Detroit.

The editors of school notes wish to apologize for the inane so-called witticism "Oh Sliver!" appearing in last week's column. It was kindly contributed (unknown to any of the editors) by someone who was evidently more desirous of rushing into print than of showing his good taste.

The H. S. class rooms were fitted with new buzzers last week, one of which, at least, belies its name.

BZZZZZZ.

Buzzers may be two small lips; Their possessors take the "tripe"; Buzzers may be bumble bees, Which one oft in summer see.

Miss Hamford has a banner small, Which we think would heat them all; The wee thing does its work so well, We've christened it "the buzz-saw bell."

Easter communion will be observed Sunday morning, March 13, at which time the sacrament of baptism will be administered for infants and adults and candidates will be formally received into the church.

Conductor LaDu Killed.

Fred H. LaDu, who has been employed as yard conductor for the Pere Marquette Ry. since the first of the year, was instantly killed about 4:15 Sunday morning while working in the yard. Just how the accident happened will never be told. The last seen of him by the engine crew was when he was riding on top of a car being shunted with others in the string on a siding. He was expected to give signals to the crew, but not receiving any a helper went back and found him lying dead across the track, the wheels having passed across his chest, crushing it in like an eggshell.

Undertaker Schrader was summoned to take charge of the remains and Justice Valentine, acting as coroner, impelled the following as coroner's jury: George Schubolt, Elmer Perkins, Joe Eastley, Fred Rook, Fred Pincikney and Ray Smith. The jury viewed the remains and adjourned until Tuesday morning, when the evidence of Engineer Peter Rockendach, Fireman Ben. Nestle and brakeman Jas. Berriman was taken. None of them could throw any light on the matter, aside from the manner in which the body was found.

Mr. LaDu was a valued employe of the company and his pleasant demeanor had won him many friends among railroad men and acquaintances. He had arranged to purchase a residence of D. M. Adams and become a permanent resident here.

The remains were taken Monday to Coral, Mich., his home, for burial. Mr. LaDu leaves a wife, parents and three brothers and many sorrowing friends. Beautiful floral offerings were given by fellow employes and also by local tent of Maconabees, of which order he was a member. He also held a membership in the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Protective Home Circle.

Medicines that aid nature are always most successful. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy acts on this plan. It loosens the cough, relieves the lungs, opens the secretions and aids nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition. Sold by Beyer's Pharmacy.

barrel. Besides the above he sold $450 worth of windfalls. He was enabled to get the price by having a choice lot of apples and he obtained them by proper care and spraying. The latter item cost him $900.

Light Plant Pays Expenses.

What was said several years ago about the electric light plant paying for itself is proving true, and the people have cause to congratulate themselves.
Figures have been deducted from the report published elsewhere showing that the receipts for current this year exceeds the actual running expenses, not including interest on bonds, by $450.48.

If these figures are correct, our street lights and porchlights have cost the taxpayers nothing. However, during the year $3,296.45 was paid out for equipment, including extensions, meters, transformers, dynamo, wire, poles, etc.,
not properly chargeable to actual expense account but adding to the value of the plant. The total receipts for current during the year was $3,973.82, the actual running expenses, $3,523.34.

Packard Fined $50.

D. W. Packard was fined $50 by Justice Doty of Ann Arbor Wednesday for cruelty to horses. The trial occupied six days and was by jury. The evidence on the part of the people was to the effect that Packard turned out in a field in Washtenaw county last fall some 58 horses and that several of the animals died during the winter of starvation.

Packard contended they had been properly taken care of and that they died of disease. The costs of the trial amounting to $185 were assessed to Washtenaw county. Packard gave notice of an appeal to the circuit court.

If all is true as alleged by witnesses on the part of the people, Packard escaped very easily. It also exhibits a peculiar sense of eccentricity on the part of Mr.
Packard in purchasing and keeping valuable horses and allowing them to starve, when he is abundantly able to provide feed, being worth, as is claimed he testified on the stand, some $75,000 to $100,000.

Cut Rate Gallery Seats.

OBITUARY.

Gideon Durfee was born in Palmyra, Wayne county, N. Y., April 26th, 1820, and died at his home in Plymouth February 25th, 1910, his death being due to injuries sustained by falling from a ladder and striking on the floor of the barn.
In 1827 he moved to Michigan with his parents and settled on a farm about three miles east of Plymouth. At the age of 27 he was married to Sarah F.
Wood, who died shortly after their removal to Plymouth, about thirty years ago.

December 4th, 1861, he was united in marriage to Frances E. Davis of Vernon, who, together with their three children, Frank D. of Schenectady, N. Y., Stark A. and Florence D. of Plymouth, survive him. In early life he gave his heart to God and has ever stood by the principles of right. Besides his wife and children he leaves a host of nephews, nieces and friends to mourn his loss. Mr. Durfee was the last of a family of ten children to depart this life. He is gone but not forgotten.

The funeral was held Monday from the family home on Sutton street, conducted by the Rev. Frank P. Russel of Ypsilanti, and the remains were quietly laid to rest in Newburg cemetery to await the dawning of the Resurrection Day.

Joseph Tessman, a well-known former resident of Plymouth, died at the home of his daughter Mrs. Hassinger, in Detroit, Tuesday, March 1st, the result of paralysis, of which he had three strokes.
The remains were brought to Plymouth yesterday afternoon and interred by the side of his wife in the old Baptist cemetery.

Mr. Tessman was born in Schleswig-Molstein, Germany, 79 years ago and came to Plymouth when a young man of 26. He enlisted in Co. I, 4th Mich.
Cavalry, in the war of the rebellion, being seriously wounded in the battles of Stony Creek and Murfreesboro, incurring disabilities that necessitated his discharge. He built six houses during his 45 years' residence in Plymouth and was one of the progressive, honest and upright citizens of the village. In 1902 he went to live with his daughter in Detroit. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Lewis Hassinger and Mrs. Wiest of Detroit, and two sons, Joseph of this village and Fred of Tecumseh.

What is to Become of Our Sixteen Million School Children?

BY JAMES CREELMAN
COPYRIGHT BY PEARSON PUBLISHING CO.

THE shrill morning clamor of nearly 3,000 Jewish children gathering in Public School 31, New York, had died down. All were assembled in neat ranks on the four floors of the splendid stone building. In the streets, with their shawled mothers and push-cart peddlers, were picturesque huddles of toddlers waiting for a chance to enter the crowded place.

A fair haired young teacher sitting at the piano on the top floor bent her head and struck a long, deep chord.

Instantly 600 dark-eyed boys and girls arose from their desks and a stately psalm filled the great sunlit room. Presently the fresh young voices swung into "Who Is Sylvia?" and "Where the Bee Sucks." Against the ugly noises of the crowded, sordid metropolis they sang the fairest, tenderest fancies of Shakespeare.

PHYSICAL TRAINING FOR BOYS

A PUBLIC SCHOOL COOKING

MANUAL TRAINING IN PUBLIC SCHOOL

Then there was silence. A pale, flat-chested Jewish boy lifted a large silk American flag from its place against the wall, bore it with solemn step and reverent face to the head of the middle aisle, dipped it slowly and then raised it high with a gesture of simple pride.

There was something inspiring as well as pathetic in the young eyes in which the oppressed blood of European ghettos looked through its emancipated helms upon that sacred symbol of equity and liberty. The room was as still as death. Every face was earnest.

The young teacher struck another deep chord from the piano.

At this every right hand was lifted in salute to the brow and then stretched out toward the flag, while the boys and girls chanted:

"We salute thee! We, the children of many lands, who find rest under thy folds, do pledge our lives and our hearts to love and protect thee—our country—and the liberty of the American people forever."

I have seen the American flag saluted in many lands and on many seas, but never have I witnessed a greeting that meant so much as that childish pledge in which one civilization lovingly surrendered to another.

Bitter complaints against the public schools of the country spurred me out to learn something of the present training of our nearly 17,000,000 school children.

I went honestly to condemn; I came back to explain and praise.

Nor is there a more misrepresented or misunderstood subject in America than this question of the public schools; and he is a lucky man who can make the American mothers and fathers of to-day realize what is being done to the American mothers and fathers of tomorrow.

The business man loudly insists that the public schools are not what they are intended to be and are not what they used to be; that the interest and enthusiasm of both teachers and pupils are wasted on nature studies, paper cutting and folding, straw plaiting, art work, folk dancing, music, cooking, sewing, and all manner of fads and frills, while the essentials of education, the old-fashioned school subjects grouped together as the "three Rs," are deliberately neglected; and that this is an outrage upon the children and a defiance to the taxpayers.

The immensity of the subject may be judged by the new report of the United States commissioner of education, which shows that a year ago there were 16,820,386 pupils enrolled in the 259,115 common schools of the nation, with 475,238 teachers.

The yearly expenditure on schools is $330,680,801—equal to about a third of the whole expenditures of the national government—and the value of the school properties reaches the staggering total of $343,309,410.

The enrolled school children of the United States almost equal the combined populations of Holland, Sweden, Portugal and Greece.

It will be seen that if the education of the children of the country is drifting into the hands of eccentricities and experimentists, and the practical elements of school training are being neglected in order that modern pedagogy may exploit unsound scientific theories, the matter concerns not only fathers and mothers, but touches the character of the nation as a whole.

Hope for the future of the great republic rests upon its school children. Never has such a weight of responsibility been thrown upon the school house as to-day.

New York, the second city of the world, is a good field in which to investigate the angry tendency of public school education. The metropolis has, including high schools, 651,325 children enrolled in its 514 school houses, which cost $99,133,000, and has a teaching and supervising force of 16,489 persons, whose combined salaries amount to $17,581,000 a year.

For weeks I went from school to school, from class room to class room, from teacher to teacher, from principal to professor, observing, questioning, comparing, analyzing the old idea of the common school with the new, particularly looking to see how theory consisted with practice and results.

To start with, I had the fact that there is general complaint that the boys and girls who come from American public schools write badly, spell badly, and are weak in grammar and arithmetic.

But facts are hard things to overcome, and the more I searched for evidence with which to shame and confound modern pedagogy and its methods, the less was I disposed to condemn, until finally it became plain that I, in common with the general public, was mistaken, and that an attack upon what is known as the "new education" could not be justified. That there is some waste and much that is experimental in it cannot be denied. But the great groundwork of it seems to be sound and practical.

It is claimed that the old system of teaching children in the schools was based on an ignorant theory of the human brain. The idea was that a stern, high drill in a few subjects developed mental power that could be used in all subjects. Teachers have assumed that the mind was a group of general powers or faculties, such as observation, comparison, attention, logic, memory, language, and so on, and that an intensive study along the line of any mind faculty would develop that faculty as a whole and practically for all purposes.

It is now held by leading educational authorities that the brain, instead of being a collection of a few general faculties, divides itself on investigation into countless specializations, and that mental power developed in one function of the brain cannot as a rule be transferred to another function.

That discovery upsets the foundations on which education has been based for centuries, and, together with the modern demand for technical and manual training to meet industrial problems, accounts for the sweeping changes observable in the public schools.

To-day the teaching profession has grown to enormous proportions. There are in the United States alone more than half a million teachers and college professors. That is more than a third of the membership of all the professions combined. The teachers of the country outnumber the lawyers or physicians more than four to one.

Pedagogy has suddenly become a conscious profession which seeks to establish itself upon a firm scientific basis.

The new idea is that a broad curriculum, embracing, in addition to the three Rs, manual training, art, science and nature studies, touches all the latent possibilities, tastes and ambitions of the child; arouses, interests and develops its capacities; and, so, prepares it for self-realization in its life vocation.

Such investigators as Prof. Edward L. Thorndike, professor of educational psychology in the Teachers college, Columbia university, declares that actual scientific tests show that the specialization of the human mind is "even greater than ordinary observation leads one to suppose."

That thrillingly beautiful ceremony in which 600,000 New York school children and their 16,000 teachers begin each morning's work by stretching out their hands to the American flag and solemnly pledging allegiance to it is an education of the emotions, a cultivation of the mystic elements of patriotism.

Who can doubt that the daily salute to the symbol of American liberty, equality and justice as something high and sacred stirs in the childhood of the restless, changing, profane metropolis those fine, almost unspeakable feelings to which the national flag may appeal when even the study of American history fails to arouse the imagination?

But it is not wholly on psychology that the modern public school and its methods depend for justification.

The old style public schools, aside from drilling spelling, arithmetic, grammar, geography and history into the minds of children, principally by stern memorizing of the words of text books, were conducted on the theory of preparation for high schools. The truth is that not one public school pupil out of ten in the country enters a high school. The high schools were largely a preparation for college. But not more than one high school pupil out of ten completes a college course, even in New York, where collegiate education is free.

It will be seen that only one out of a hundred of the entire school population, in New York, for instance, has the means, inclination or ability to pursue the academic course even at the public expense.

If only one child out of a hundred can take advantage of collegiate education, are the remaining 99 to be left to face the struggle for life with only the three Rs, or perhaps a smattering of Latin and the higher mathematics?

Germany has risen to power and riches among the industrial nations through her technical and trade schools.

In the development of mechanical invention we have forgotten that the machine is not everything. Already the labor unions have restricted the apprentice system until American industry is put to its wits' ends to find substitutes for highly skilled artisans.

The public school teachers of the country and those who train and direct them are apparently fully awake to the magnitude of the new task which changing industrial conditions have thrown upon them. Teachers, principals and professors alike talked to me of Germany's great success through her technical and industrial schools.

This keen consciousness of the modern school problem, shown alike by slender young misses and by gray and wrinkled veterans, was one of the most significant and impressive things I encountered in the public schools.

The challenge of industrial Germany is to be answered by American pedagogy.

Dr. Thurston of Cornell university, has declared that in order to bring the American people up to technical and industrial equality with Germany, this country needed at present "1,100 university professors and instructors and 11,000 students studying the highest branches of technical work; there should be 1,000 college professors and 15,000 students in technical schools studying for superior positions in the arts; and 20,000 teachers engaged in trade and manual training schools, instructing pupils, 400,000 in number, preparing to become skilled workmen."

There are more than three female teachers to every one male teacher in the public schools of the United States, and yet I found in all schools the same virile thought, that, aside from writing, spelling, arithmetic, grammar, geography and the rudiments of history, the first great duty of the teaching profession in America was, by manual training and other culture outside of the three Rs, to develop the whole intelligence of children, to accustom their bodies and minds to work together, to assist them in gradually discovering what their true vocation in after life ought to be, to fit them for it, and from the kindergartens through every grade, up to the sewing dressmaking and cooking classes for girls, and the technical drawing and car penter classes for boys—with a simple grounding in art, science and commercial methods—to increase the economic power of the population.

In spite of the general complaints of business men against the public schools, which were the text of the article I intended to write, simple honesty compels me to confess that the average penmanship, spelling, arithmetic and original English composition worked out before my very eyes in New York public schools, visited at random and usually without notice, seems better, much better, than the average of the public schools of 15, 20 or 25 years ago.

A comparatively new idea is the "study period," in which pupils, with their text books before them, are taught how to study. The teacher explains to the class just what it is expected to get out of the books.

In the public school attached to the Training School for Teachers in Brooklyn I saw a good illustration of how modern pedagogy strives to make children think, instead of merely training them

OWES HER LIFE TO

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chicago, Ill.—"I was troubled with falling and inflammation, and the doctors said I could not get well unless I had an operation. I knew I could not stand the strain of one, so I wrote to you sometime ago about my health and you told me what to do. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier I am to-day a well woman."—Mrs. WILLIAM ARRENS, 928 W. 21st St., Chicago, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases of any similar medicine in the country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every such suffering woman owe it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

A Pause in Devotions.

"Mabel," called her father, outside her bedroom door. "There was no answer, so he called again. Still no reply. He pushed open the door, which was not completely shut, and reaching for the button, turned on the lights. Then he saw Mabel. She was kneeling at the side of her bed in her nightgown, in the attitude of prayer—the attitude, that is, as to kneeling. But she had raised her head at the interruption and paused in her devotions to blaze at him with a face flushed with impatience.

"Gee whiz, daddy! Can't a woman say her prayers?"

Then she bowed her head again, piously, and daddy, properly rebuked, slipped noiselessly away.

Sunday School's Want Ad.

There is a church in Brooklyn that has adopted a novel scheme for enlarging its Sunday school. It advertises for boys and girls to come to it. In the shop windows in the neighborhood of the church one may see placards, such as are used for advertising entertainments of various kinds, that bear the legend:

"Wanted—Boys and girls to join our Sunday school." Below this are set forth the advantages that will come to the young folk who attend the classes.

The Appetites of Kings.

The king of Spain makes up for his daily expenditure of activity by a tremendous appetite. I have observed, for that matter, that the majority of sovereigns are valiant trenchermen. Every morning of his life Alfonso XIII. has a good rump steak and potatoes for his first breakfast, often preceded by eggs and sometimes followed by salad and fruit.—From Recollections of M. Paoli in McClure's.

A GOOD CHANGE
A Change of Food Works Wonders.

The wrong food and drink causes a lot of trouble in this world. To change the food is the first duty of every person that is ill, particularly from stomach and nervous troubles. As an illustration: A lady in Mo. has, with her husband, been brought around to health again by leaving off coffee and some articles of food that did not agree with them. They began using Postum and Grape-Nuts food. She says:

"For a number of years I suffered with stomach and bowel trouble which kept getting worse until I was very ill most of the time. About four years ago I left off coffee and began taking Postum. My stomach and bowels improved right along, but I was so reduced in flesh and so nervous that the least thing would overcome me.

"Then I changed my food and began using Grape-Nuts in addition to Postum. I lived on these two principally for about four months. Day by day I gained in flesh and strength until now the nervous trouble has entirely disappeared and I feel that I owe my life and health to Postum and Grape-Nuts.

"Husband is 73 years old and he was troubled for a long time with occasional cramps, and slept badly. Finally I prevailed upon him to leave off coffee and take Postum. He had stood off for a long time, but after he tried Postum for a few days he found that he could sleep and that his cramps disappeared. He was satisfied and has never gone back to coffee.

"I have a brother in California who has been using Postum for several years; his whole family use it also because they have had such good results from it."

Look in page for the little book, "The Road to Wellville." "There's a Reason." Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are complete, free, and full of interesting information.
