EVERY DOLLAR YOU PUT IN THE BANK IS ANOTHER LINK IN

THE CHAIN OF FORTUNE.
THE STRONGEST CHAIN
OF ALL.
WHEN ITS IN THE BANK YOU KNOW ITS SAFE!

If 200 years ago one of your forefathers had banked only one dollar at 5 per cent compound interest and to-day you had that one dollar and the compound interest on it, you would have seventeen thousand, two hundred and ninety-three dollars—$17,293. If each one of these dollars were a link in a chain and each link the length of a dollar bill, that chain would be over a mile and a half long. Make your deposit NOW.

We will pay you three per cent interest on the money you deposit in our bank and compound the interest every six months.

REACHED HANDS OF MOTHER

Postal Clerk's Deduction Resulted in Delivering Letter Just Where It Belonged.

The postoffice at New York city once received a letter addressed simply:

"To my Mother, New York, America."

This letter came from Ireland, but as there are several women in New York city who have sons in Ireland, naturally enough the postal authorities had not much hope of finding the right one.

The fact that a woman with the cast of mind required for such an inquiry should come at that time appealed to the clerk as being something more than a coincidence.

So he took the letter, observed the postmark, and asked the woman where her "b'y" lived. She gave the name of the place with which the letter was stamped.

She opened it, and, sure enough, its contents proved conclusively that it was really from her son in Ireland.

A Marriage Tangle.

A double wedding at St. Luke's church, Maidenhead, Eng., has produced a remarkable marriage relationship tangle.

Should there be any issue of the marriage between Skeats and Cole, what relationship would the child bear to Skeats's son's children, of whom there are several, and who, as well as being grandchildren to Skeats, are also his nephews in consequence of his second marriage?

Rose From Her Coffin.

A remarkable burial case occurred at Giron, Spain, just recently. A ten-year-old girl had an attack of epilepsy, and was believed by her parents and the doctor to be dead.

During the night, however, the young girl who was only in a temporary trance, awoke, and succeeded in breaking the coffin lid.

On the following morning the mourners arrived at the chapel and were horrified to find the casket open. The girl was still alive, though in a very feeble condition.

The Versatile Khedive.

His highness Abbas II, the khedive of Egypt, who has taken unto himself a new wife, is one of the most interesting of living rulers.

At one time it was decided to let him go to England to study, but the idea was eventually abandoned, and when quite a youth, he was sent to Geneva, and afterwards to Vienna.

A Grim Joke.

Mrs. Peter Smith, a New York lady, went shopping the other day, leaving her husband in charge of the dinner, which was cooking.

At Least.

"It's funny how women like to attend weddings."

A Happy Ending.

"Did your novel have a happy ending?" inquired the friend.

DEFY STATE TO COLLECT NEW TAX

Two Wire Service Corporations Refuse to Pay.

OBJECT TO AD VALOREM

Western Union and the American Telegraph and Telephone Company Assert New Law is Against Federal Constitution.

Lansing.—Claiming that the law enacted at the last session of the legislature providing for the taxation of telegraph and telephone companies on an ad valorem basis is a violation of the constitution of the United States, two of the big corporations doing business in Michigan paid only a portion of their taxes and practically defied the state to collect the remainder.

The Western Union paid to Auditor-General Fuller $20,673.31, while it was assessed at $31,009.97; the American Telegraph and Telephone company paid $7,752.49, against $9,302.99 assessed.

Accompanying checks for these amounts were declarations that the law is unconstitutional. The basis on which the companies figured they owed the state these amounts of taxes is not known.

There remains unpaid about $1,000,000 in corporation taxes, which under the law is liable for a penalty of 1 per cent, a month after today.

Figures compiled also show that the number of paroles denied for 1909 was a decrease over 1908 of 14, while the number of applications, number paroled and number of violations of parole all showed an increase.

Liquor Cause of Fall.

According to figures issued by the pardon board of the state an increase of 113 applicants for parole for the year 1909 were received over the previous year 1908.

Figures include the prisons at Detroit, Jackson, Marquette and Ionia.

A large number of the violators of paroles, it appears, are returned to prison again because they have imbibed too freely, and while under the influence of liquor committed depredations that they might not have done under other conditions.

The percentage of applications denied during the year 1908 was 19.5 as compared with 14.3 for 1909. The per cent. of applications granted for 1908 was 81.5, as compared with 85.7 for 1909.

Railroads Pay Taxes.

Several of the big railroads of the state relieved state officers of worry as to whether they were going to pay their taxes.

Primary Fund, $6.50 a Child.

As the figures are running in the receipt of taxes from the railroads, the per capita of primary school money to be distributed this year will be about $6.50 per school child.

To Get Separate Depots.

The state railroad commission went to Owosso and conferred with citizens of that town and representatives of the three roads entering the city relative to station facilities.

Echo of Glazier Failure.

An echo of the defunct Stockbridge bank failure, which grew out of the failure of Frank P. Glazier, ex-state treasurer, who owned the bank, has been occupying the attention of Judge West at Lansing on the petition of Thomas A. Berry, who asks the court to be made a preferred creditor of the defunct institution.

Berry claims that a few days before the failure of the bank he deposited something like $1,900 with the distinct understanding with Cashier Gilbert H. Gay that he could withdraw it on the following Wednesday.

The Stockbridge bank has paid dividends amounting to 35 per cent., and it is expected that this amount will reach 45 per cent. Judge West ordered the attorneys to file briefs and he took the case under advisement.

To Insure Only Members.

The Grange Life Insurance company has filed articles of incorporation with State Insurance Commissioner Barry.

At a meeting of the board of control of the Grange, consisting of President N. P. Hull of Dimondale, Secretary J. W. Hutchins of Jackson, M. H. Burton of Hastings, H. F. Baker of Cheboygan and T. H. McNaughton of Kent, held at the Hotel Wentworth, the organization was perfected and John C. Ketchum of Hastings was chosen business manager of the company.

Only members of the Grange are eligible and the company grange members in other states.

To Enforce Liquor Law.

Violations of the liquor laws, both state and local, will be few and far between if the saloon men themselves have their way.

Members of the new association pledge themselves to report every case of liquor law violation that comes within their notice and to assist the officers in prosecutions.

Bailey Wins His Fight.

The supreme court rendered an opinion reversing the decision of the circuit judge of Calhoun county in the case of the Niles Bryant Piano company against Mayor John W. Bailey of Battle Creek.

Bailey refused to sign a warrant calling for the payment of $10,000 on a piece of land purchased by a former council for the erection of a city hall, as he contended that the council was powerless to act in a matter requiring such a great expenditure of money.

The circuit court judge of Calhoun county granted a writ of mandamus compelling Bailey to sign the warrant, but the supreme court reversed his decision and assessed the costs of both courts to the property owners.

Build Two Miles of Road.

Pontiac township will build two miles of state bounty road this year, and a meeting of the township board has been called to receive proposals.

Oil Inspector Has Balance.

There is a balance of $5,492.62 in the hands of State Oil Inspector Neal as a result of the operations of his department during last quarter, according to his report to the board of state auditors.

To Push M. C. Case.

The board of auditors adopted a resolution requesting the governor to instruct the state attorneys to proceed at once with the trial of the case of the State vs. the Michigan Central Railroad company for delinquent taxes.

New York, May 4.—Starr J. Murphy, personal counsel for John D. Mr. Murphy said further that Mr. Rockefeller had nothing to do with the "Economic and General Foundation," for which a charter is being sought from the New York legislature, for "an aged man of wealth," said to have $2,500,000 to spend in charity.

ROOSEVELT GIVES NOBEL LECTURE

As Recipient of Peace Prize He Talks in Christiania.

ENDING OF WARS HIS TOPIC

Treaties of Arbitration, Development of Hague Tribunal and Check on Growth of Armaments Urged by the Ex-President.

Christiania.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States, lectured on "International Peace" Thursday, May 5, before the Nobel prize committee which awarded him the peace prize for his successful efforts in ending the war between Russia and Japan. The great hall where the lecture was delivered was filled to the doors, many distinguished persons being in the audience, and Colonel Roosevelt's words were heartily applauded. His lecture follows:

Need of Industrial Peace.

It is with peculiar pleasure that I stand here today to express the deep appreciation I feel of the high honor conferred upon me by the presentation of the Nobel peace prize. The gold medal which formed part of the prize I shall always keep, and I shall hand it on to my children as a precious heirloom. The sum of money provided as part of the prize by the wise generosity of the illustrious founder of this world-famous prize system, I did not, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, feel at liberty to keep. I think it eminently just and proper that in most cases the recipient of the prize should keep for his own use the prize in its entirety. But in this case, while I did not act officially as president of the United States, it was nevertheless only because I was president that I was enabled to act at all; and I felt that the money must be considered as having been given me in trust for the United States. I therefore used it as a nucleus for a foundation to forward the cause of industrial peace, as being well within the general purpose of your committee; for in our complex industrial civilization of today the peace of righteousness and justice, the only kind of peace worth having, is at least as necessary in the industrial world as it is among nations. There is at least as much need to curb the cruel greed and arrogance of part of the world of capital, to curb the cruel greed and violence of part of the world of labor, as to check a cruel and unhealthy militarism in international relationships.

When Peace May Be Evil.

We must ever bear in mind that the great end in view is righteousness, justice as between man and man, nation and nation, the chance to lead our lives on a somewhat higher level, with a broader spirit of brotherly good will one for another. Peace is generally good in itself, but it is never the highest good unless it comes as the handmaid of righteousness; and it becomes a very evil thing if it serves merely as a mask for cowardice and sloth, or as an instrument to further the ends of despotism or anarchy. We despise and abhor the bully, the briber, the oppressor, whether in private or public life; but we despise no less the coward and the voluptuary. No man is worth calling a man who will not fight rather than submit to infamy or see those that are dear to him suffer wrong. No nation deserves to exist if it permits itself to lose the stern and virile virtues; and this without regard to whether the loss is due to the growth of a heartless and all-absorbing commercialism, to prolonged indulgence in luxury and soft effortless ease, or to the defilement of a warped and twisted sentimentality.

Moreover, and above all, let us remember that words count only when they give expression to deeds or are to be translated into them. The leaders of the Red Terror prattled of peace while they stepped their hands in the blood of the innocent; and many a tyrant has called it peace when he has scourged honest protest into silence. Our words must be judged by our deeds; and in striving for a lofty ideal we must use practical methods; and if we cannot attain all at one leap, we must advance toward it step by step, reasonably content so long as we do actually make some progress in the right direction.

Now, having freely admitted the limitations to our work, and the qualifications to be borne in mind, I feel that I have the right to have my words taken seriously when I point out where, in my judgment, great advance can be made in the cause of international peace. I speak as a practical man, and whatever I now advocate I actually tried to do when I was for the time being the head of a great nation, and keenly jealous of its honor and interest. I ask other nations to do only what I should be glad to do for my own nation.

Treaties of Arbitration.

The advance can be made along several lines. First of all there can be treaties of arbitration. There are, of course, states so backward that a civilized community ought not to enter into an arbitration treaty with them, at least until we have gone much further than at present in securing some kind of international police action. But all really civilized communities should have effective arbitration treaties among themselves. I believe that these treaties can cover almost all questions liable to arise between such nations, if they are drawn with the explicit agreement that each contracting party will respect the other's territory and absolute sovereignty within that territory, and the equally explicit agreement that (aside from the very rare cases where the nation's honor is vitally concerned) all other possible subjects of controversy will be submitted to arbitration. Such a treaty should insure peace until one party deliberately violated it. Of course, as yet there is no adequate safeguard against such deliberate violation, but the establishment of a sufficient number of these treaties would go a long way towards creating a world opinion which would finally find expression in the provision of methods to forbid or punish any such violation.

Work of Hague Tribunal.

Secondly, there is the further development of The Hague tribunal, of the work of the conferences and courts at The Hague. It has been well said that the first Hague conference framed a Magna Charta for the nations; it set before us an ideal which has already to some extent been realized, and towards the full realization of which we can all steadily strive. The second conference made further progress; the third should do yet more. Meanwhile the American government has more than once tentatively suggested methods for completing the court of arbitral justice, constituted at the second Hague conference, and for rendering it effective. It is earnestly to be hoped that the various governments of Europe, working with those of America and of Asia, shall set themselves seriously to the task of devising some method which shall accomplish this result. If I may venture the suggestion, it would be well for the statesmen of the world, in planning for the erection of this world court, to study what has been done in the United States by the Supreme court. I cannot help thinking that the Constitution of the United States, notably in the establishment of the Supreme court and in the methods adopted for securing peace and good relations among and between the different states, offers certain valuable analogies to what should be striven for in order to secure, through The Hague courts and conferences, a species of world federation for international peace and justice. There are, of course, fundamental differences between what the United States Constitution does and what we should ever attempt at this time to secure at The Hague; but the methods adopted in the American Constitution to prevent hostilities between the states, and to secure the supremacy of the federal court in certain classes of cases, are well worth the study of those who seek at The Hague to obtain the same result on a world scale.

Undue Growth of Armaments.

In the third place, something should be done as soon as possible to check the growth of armaments, especially naval armaments, by international agreement. No one power could or should act by itself; for it is eminently undesirable, from the standpoint of the peace of righteousness, that a power which really does believe in peace should place itself at the mercy of some rival which may at bottom have no such belief and no intention of acting on it. But, granted sincerity of purpose, the great powers of the world should find no insurmountable difficulty in reaching an agreement which would put an end to the present costly and growing extravagance of expenditure on naval armaments. An agreement merely to limit the size of the ships would have been very useful a few years ago, and would still be of use; but the agreement should go much further.

Finally, it would be a master stroke if those great powers honestly bent on peace would form a league of peace, not only to keep the peace among themselves, but to prevent, by force if necessary, its being broken by others. The supreme difficulty in connection with developing the peace work of The Hague arises from the lack of any executive power, of any police power to enforce the decrees of the court. In any community of any size the authority of the courts rests upon actual or potential force; on the existence of a police, or on the knowledge that the able-bodied men of the country are both ready and willing to see that the decrees of judicial and legislative bodies are put into effect. In new and wild communities where there is violence, an honest man must protect himself, and until other means of securing his safety are devised, it is both foolish and wicked to persuade him to surrender his arms while the men who are dangerous to the community retain theirs. He should not renounce the right to protect himself by his own efforts until the community is so organized that it can effectively relieve the individual of the duty of putting down violence. So it is with nations. Each nation must keep well prepared to defend itself until the establishment of some form of international police power, competent and willing to prevent violence as between nations. As things are now, such power to command peace throughout the world could best be assured by some combination between those great nations which sincerely desire peace and have no thought themselves of committing aggressions. The combination might at first be only to secure peace within certain definite limits and certain definite conditions; but the ruler or statesman who should bring about such a combination would have earned his place in history for all time and his title to the gratitude of all mankind.

On the Installment Plan

By LAWRENCE ALFRED CLAY

(Copyright, 1909 by Associated Literary Press.)

"My dear, there's one thing you must look out for," said the mother of the girl who had been Rosie Lee the day before, but was now Mrs. James Carter. "You and James are very young. You are both inclined to be extravagant. He gets a small salary, but you would marry, and now you must live on it and not go in debt. Don't get a thing that you can't pay cash for on the spot."

"No, mamma," was the dutiful reply, but the words were accompanied by a smile of superior wisdom.

Why not? Hadn't she and James figured it over and over what his weekly salary of $16 would do? That was the figure at present as bookkeeper for a grocer, but it might be $18 or $20 when the grocer heard of the marriage. It had been figured that the rent of a little flat would be $6 a week; butter, 30 cents; sugar 8 cents; meat $1.00; bread, 35 cents; potatoes, 25 cents; extras, $1. Add James's lunches at 20 cents each, and the total would be $9.18 to a penny. That left almost seven big dollars extra for clothing, the theater and so forth. Mrs. Carter was a good mother, but she needn't worry. Any time she wanted to borrow a $20 bill she knew where she could get it.

James had $200 saved up, but when a month's rent at $35 per month, instead of $24, had been paid, the balance didn't make a great show in furnishing. The grocer was duly informed of the marriage, but there was no raise of salary. He simply uttered a "humph." At the end of a month of housekeeping the newly weds were behind financially. They could, and did, figure how it came about, but the next month there was a leak in another direction. At the end of the third month they had used up all the salary and were $6 in debt. The before and after marriage figures failed to agree.

The mother was away on a visit, but one morning two events happened in the life of the bride. A letter from her mother inclosed a check for $100, and the housekeeper picked up the morning paper to have her eye caught by the advertisement headed: "Why Pay Rent?" A contractor had erected several houses which he was anxious to dispose of for a cent or two down and the balance the same as cheap rent. In a year or two, paying the very lowest rent in America, the purchaser of one of these houses would have a clear title to it. It was better than a gold mine. Your money was working for you every day in the week.

Before the bride had read that advertisement through, she had determined to show it to James that evening. When she had finished it her mind was made up to give him a glad surprise. The breakfast things had scarcely been cleared away when she donned her hat and set out. She found the street and the houses and the philanthropist. The houses had been painted with only one coat, but that was to give purchasers a chance to put on the last coat to suit their tastes. The houses about covered the lots, but that was an advantage. If hogs got in there was no place for them to root. Every objection raised was met and turned to the advantage of the buyer. In fact, it was a case of philanthropy all through.

Mrs. Carter expected up to a certain point to get the house she had decided on for five cents down and five dollars a month as rent. That certain point was when she was told that she must pay $50 down and $25 per month. The selling price was $4,500, and as she stood with her mouth open the contractor remarked that the $25 per month would pay for the house almost before she could get settled. He had given 50 different persons the same chance, and in a very few minutes—or days—they were house owners and tax payers.

The house was bought. There would be papers for herself and husband to sign after two or three days, but she had to leave her $50 then and there. That was to prevent the contractor from selling the house to some one willing to pay $10,000 for it. The bride-wife was back at her flat before high noon with a house of her own, but there was something to follow. She must get furniture for it. She knew where they sold on the installment plan, and the afternoon was spent in buying. She tried to be conservative, but the bill figured up $400, and she paid in $50 on it. Then she rented a piano by the month, and went home all impatience to tell James about it.

James came in at the usual hour. He was allowed to begin his dinner, and then the wife said:

"Jimmy, suppose we lived almost out in the country?"

"It would mean ten cents a day street car fare, whereas I now save it," was the reply.

"But we could hear the birds sing."

"Cheaper to get a canary."

"And the air, Jimmy. The air must be twice as pure out in the suburbs."

"They have soap and glue factories out there."

"But we'd see green grass once in a while."

"Cheaper to go to the parks."

The wife had expected the husband to enthuse, and she would make her announcement at the proper moment and in a dramatic way. His want of interest cast her down.

"Jimmy, do you know I'm worried about your health?" she asked, as she rose and walked around the table to smooth down his rumpled hair.

"But I'm not," was the answer.

"You can see for yourself that I'm eating all before me."

"But the morning air in the suburbs—think of filling your lungs with it."

"Fifty cents a fill, dearie, and that's too much for our purse."

"But think of owning your own house—your very own! Think of parlor, hall, dining room, two bedrooms, kitchen and a fine cellar! Think of open grates! Think of three times the furniture we have here! Think of me singing at my work over the flower beds! Think of you as a taxpayer and saying who shall be mayor of the city!"

"Look here, Rose, what is it?" he asked.

"Prepare yourself, Jimmy."

"Let 'er go!"

"I've bought a $4,500 house on the installment plan, and I've bought $400 worth of additional furniture on the same plan. Oh, Jimmie, we don't have to pay but $25 a month, and we'll own the house before snow flies, and any time we don't want to pay on the furniture or for the rent of the piano we needn't and the papers for the house and lot—"

The husband held up his hand to stop her. Then he drew a pencil from his pocket and began to call for details and make figures. Every minute, as he figured, the wife expected his enthusiasm to break forth, but it didn't come. When he had figured everything up and divided it by 52 weeks in a year he certainly should have bubbled and cried burrah, but—he didn't. He said he wanted to take a walk and think. He put on his hat and left the wife in tears. When he returned one of his eyes was blackened, his nose skinned and he had lost a front tooth. His necktie was also up under his ears and the buttons had come off his vest.

"Oh, Jimmie, you've been held up!" was the exclamation.

"Oh, no, I haven't. You were the one who was held up! I have been licking the contractor and the furniture man on the installment plan. Here's $50 of your money, and I've got an appointment to lick the rest out of them to-morrow!"

Something New.

"Well, Uncle Jason," he said to the old farmer who was a member of the assembly, "how do things go up at Albany?"

"Oh, sorter easy," was the reply.

"Anyone been around to ask you to vote for his bill?"

"No, not yet."

"Let me put you on to something. If anyone does come around, don't you let him work any check off on you. Tell him you want the cold cash."

"But I don't understand."

"But, don't you see? A check must go through the bank and can be traced right back to you, but you can roll up the cash and put it in your vest pocket. Hadn't you thought of that?"

"Noap, durned if I had. Been right up there for two months and never got on to the trick. Much obliged, naybur. If I paint my house next spring, they can hunt for checks 'till the cows come home and they won't find any!"

Ancient Bank Note.

At the Bank of England privileged visitors are sometimes shown the oldest known bank note for £555, with the date "19th Xber, 1699." The memoranda written across the note show that payment was made by three instalments. The bank notes of that period were printed from engraved plates, blank spaces being left for the date, the signature, the number and the amount. The watermark can be clearly seen and in texture and general appearance the notes were very similar to those of to-day. It was not until 1797 that bank notes were issued under £5 in value.

There's a lot of difference between putting sins away and covering them up.

CANADA FORGING AHEAD

Thomas C. Shotwell, one of the greatest market reporters in America, writes from New York, under date of March 20th, and says:

"The Tariff tangle with Canada which President Taft has taken in hand is of importance chiefly because of the multitude of American farmers that are crossing into the Canadian northwest. Most conservative estimates on their number place it at 150,000 for 1910. Some say as many as 250,000 will cross. These are all expert farmers and their places in the United States are being filled by untrained men from Europe and from the cities. Canada is gaining rapidly in agricultural importance and within a few years the United States will have to call on the Dominion for wheat. Production of wheat in the United States is not keeping pace with the population. A tariff war would complicate the problem of getting food. Even now Canadian farmers are getting higher prices for their cattle on the hoof and Canadian housewives are paying less for meat in the butcher shops than farmers and housewives are receiving and paying in the United States. The tariff on cattle and wheat must be removed as between the two countries before long."

WOMAN'S GENTLE NATURE CALLS FOR GENTLE TREATMENT

"Delicately formed and gently reared, women will find, in all the seasons of their lives, as maidens, wives or mothers, that the one simple, wholesome remedy which acts gently and pleasantly and naturally, and which may be used with truly beneficial effects, under any conditions, when the system needs a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna. It is well known to be a simple combination of the laxative and carminative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic liquids, which are agreeable and refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system when its gentle cleansing is desired.

Only those who buy the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna can hope to get its beneficial effects, and as a guarantee of the excellence of the remedy, the full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package, and without it any preparation offered as Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is fraudulent and should be declined. To those who know the quality of this excellent laxative, the offer of any substitute, when Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is called for, is always resented by a transfer of patronage to some first-class drug establishment, where they do not recommend, nor sell false brands, nor imitation remedies. The genuine article may be bought of all reliable druggists everywhere; one size only. Regular price 50 cents per bottle. Get a bottle today to have in the house when needed.

Is This a Sample of Musselman's Business Ability?

Sault Ste Marie News: A jury of twelve citizens after listening to all of the evidence submitted in the suit brought against the Ionia reformatory by a firm of prison contractors for damages because of the cancellation of a contract, has awarded the prison contractors damages to the amount of $22,500. Upon the face of this matter it would seem that the guardian of the public interests, the Ionia board, had been seriously derelict in its duty since through the action of that board the state seems to be in a fair way to lose a large sum of money. This of itself makes the incident of sufficient public interest to warrant discussion.

Interest in the matter, however, is heightened by reason of the fact that one of the members of the board of control of the Ionia institution, Mr. Amos S. Musselman, is now a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. The sole claim for support for this lofty position put forth by Mr. Musselman or his friends is Musselman's ability as a business man. The greatest possible stress has been laid upon Mr. Musselman's record in the way of business achievements and a great volume of argument is adduced to show that Michigan sorely needs the services of such a business man.

If the record which Mr. Musselman has achieved as a member of the Ionia board is to be taken as a fair sample of the business sagacity which he would display if elected governor, there exists, it seems to us, considerable room for doubt whether Michigan needs this kind of a business man.

While on the stand as a witness in this case Mr. Musselman admitted that his visit to the institution at Ionia were infrequent and perfunctory, that he seldom saw the interior of the prison and was quite unfamiliar with the details of its operation. Other testimony produced during the trial seemed to show that the relations between the reformatory officials and the prison contractors were characterized by anything but close and careful business considerations. As a climax to the affair the board summarily cancelled Wallerstein's contract and as a result the state is now up against the probability of paying $22,000 in damages to the Wallerstein company.

As this is the only record which the state has of Mr. Musselman's ability as a business man, or a public official, the showing does not seem to be such as to warrant the extravagant claims for exceptional business ability which Mr. Musselman himself frankly sets up and which are echoed so unanimously by his friends.

Some of the farmer delegates to the State League of Republican Clubs at Lansing last week, reported that there was some sentiment in their localities for Hon. George B. Horton for United States senator. Mr. Horton has a wide acquaintance over the state and there is hardly a farmer in Michigan who would have to be told who Mr. Horton was. Should he decide to enter the contest the supporters of Burrows and Townsend would have to reduce their figures so far as "rural districts" of the state are concerned.

The time has come when the statement can be made that the state will not lose one dollar through the failure of the Chelsea Savings bank. When the bank failed the amount held belonging to the state was $685,587.79. Of this amount $497,680.75 has been paid, leaving a balance due of $187,907.04. As security for this amount there remains due on bonds held by the state $192,000 not including the bond given by the Metropolitan Surety company that failed recently. If this company or the receiver of the bank make no further payments the entire amount due would be collected from the bonding companies. It is expected that the bank creditors will receive seventy or eighty cents on the dollar.

Cemetery Lots Advanced.

There is a proposition before the village council to increase the price of cemetery lots. Cemetery Trustee Gayde was before the council Monday evening and urged that this action be taken. The cemetery board wants to make further improvements and to enhance the beauty of the city of the dead, but is unable to do so for a lack of funds. The cemetery board thinks the price of cemetery lots is and has been too low all along. It cites instances where people from Detroit have buried their dead in Plymouth because they could buy a cemetery lot here for $15 that would have cost them $60 or more in the city. The choicest lots have been sold, but there are still some three hundred left in the plat. It is suggested that the price of lots be graduated from $15 to $30 or more. This plan would seem to be very feasible and may be adopted.

OBITUARY.

Peter Micol was born in Benarschy, Germany, in December of the year 1836. He was there baptized and confirmed in the Evangelical Lutheran faith. At the age of 15 he came to New York State, where he remained about seven years. In the year 1858 he came to Plymouth, Michigan. The following year he was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth Kohlasch, which union lasted 51 years, to his death. About 25 years of this time he spent as proprietor of a meat market at Plymouth, after which he retired to the residence, where death overtook him. Eight children were born to him, 4 sons and 4 daughters. Two daughters have passed into eternity before him. He passed away at his home on April 29th at the age of 73 years, 4 months and 4 days. His aged wife, 4 sons, 2 daughters and 6 grandchildren survive him. Heart failure was given as cause of death.

Thrown Under the Wheels.

While undertaking to catch onto a moving freight in the P. M. yards Tuesday evening about nine a young man of some 27 years was thrown under the wheels and badly injured. Dr. Patterson was called and found that three fingers of his left hand had been cut off, shoulder dislocated and that he had been injured internally, and also his face was skinned and bruised, having been dragged on the ground for several rods. He advised that he be taken to a Detroit hospital which was done, going down on the 9:15 train. The young fellow gave his name as Lawrence and said he was on his way to Detroit. The doctor gave it as his opinion that he would die.

We had a good meeting last week. The leaders could not be present, but sent appropriate readings upon the mercy department, which were interesting and caused some very pleasant discussion. Some of the children from Miss Anna Smith's room came and entertained us with three songs about the birds, which were greatly enjoyed. The vice presidents and superintendents were appointed for the ensuing year.

The meeting next Thursday, May 12 be in charge of Mrs. R. C. Safford and Mrs. Wm. Powell. It will be a suffrage meeting, with a paper upon "Why should Women Ask for the Ballot?" and a Suffrage Quiz. Delegates will be appointed to attend the State convention, which is to be held in Port Huron in the early part of June.

This will be the last meeting that our President will be with us until she returns from her trip abroad. Let there be a large attendance.—Supt. Press.

A petition is before the council asking that body to construct a cement sidewalk to the cemetery, beginning at the corner of North Main street. Residents along the line outside of the corporation have expressed a willingness to help pay for the needed improvement and the township board is willing also to assist. The walk is a much needed one and would be a great convenience to people who wish to visit the cemetery and are now compelled to "take the road for it." It is hoped the council will dispose of the question speedily and that a walk may be constructed before summer actually begins.

Watch-Buying Advice

Intelligent watch-buying requires judgment on your part in two things, the case and the works.

These two items that constitute a watch are obtained by the jeweler from two factories that are unrelated. The works are fitted into the cases by the jeweler and the price of the completed watch depends on the cost of the two.

Thus, you can buy a very fine case containing a cheap movement, and think you are getting a bargain, or you may buy a cheap case containing a fine movement and be deceived again.

It is the proper combination of the two that makes the watch of worth. No watch deception at our store.

MISS FRANCES GRISCOM, SISTER OF LLOYD GRISCOM

HOW THE WIVES AND DAUGHTERS OF CELEBRITIES SPEND THE SUMMER

BY WALDON FAWCETT

PHOTOS COPYRIGHT BY WALDON FAWCETT, WASHINGTON, D.C.

THE wife or daughter of the average man who is conspicuously in the public eye through his prominence in politics, science, art, finance or religion, earns a vacation quite as consistently as the head of the household. It is notable that in the eyes of many prominent women the ideal vacation is one which enables real solitude and which embraces, among other things that seclusion which makes it possible for the vacationist to don garb that is comfortable, without regard to the dictates of fashion.

MRS. HUGHES AND DAUGHTERS IN THEIR CANOE

MISS MARION OLIVER PLAYING GOLF

MISS KATHERINE ELKINS ON HER THOROUGHBRED

Thus we find Mrs. John D. Rockefeller leading the quietest possible existence at Forest Hill, her husband's extensive estate near Cleveland, and Miss Anna Morgan, daughter of the financier, isolating herself at her father's log "camp" in the depths of the Adirondack forest. Our presidential widows are likewise fond of the simple life in summer. Mrs. Garfield spends the heated term at her farm at Mentor, Ohio, near the shore of Lake Erie; Mrs. Harrison and her daughter take up their abode at a forest lodge on the shore of one of the lakes of the Fulton chain in the north woods; and Mrs. Cleveland has as her summer home a quaint farmhouse in New Hampshire, not so many miles distant from the county seat of Mrs. John Hay, widow of the late secretary of state.

Mrs. Taft, wife of the president, who was overtaken by ill health, a few months after her husband assumed office, was so benefited at Beverly, Mass., last summer by the sea air and the opportunities for complete rest that it is probable that the picturesque north shore of Massachusetts will be the summer retreat of the Tafts for some years to come. Here Miss Helen Taft, the only daughter of the family, finds the best of opportunities for her pet diversions, tennis and motor-ing in an electric runabout which she drives herself.

Mrs. Sherman, wife of the vice-president, spends her summers in the big comfortable stone mansion at Utica, N. Y., which has been "home" to the Shermans for so many years, and in the rear of which are the spacious flower gardens which are Mrs. Sherman's especial weakness. Mrs. Knox, wife of the secretary of state, usually spends her summer vacation at Valley Forge farm, the premier's splendid country seat and stock farm, a short ride by train from Philadelphia. Mrs. Meyer, wife of the secretary of the navy, is almost as indefatigable a hostess in summer as in winter, for she entertains lavishly at her magnificent country seat at Hamilton, Mass. At the town of Marion, in the same state, is the large "cottage" which is the summer headquarters of the family of Secretary Nagel of the department of commerce and labor.

Mrs. Hughes, wife of the man who has made so remarkable a record as governor of New York state, finds her vehicle of supreme summer enjoyment in her canoe, and the brightest weeks of the year in her estimation are those she and her family spend at a rustic cabin on Upper Saranac lake, little more than a stone's throw from the cottage where Grover Cleveland and his bride spent their honeymoon. The two elder daughters in the Hughes household inherit their mother's fondness for this fascinating form of boating. Other prominent women who are partial to the life of the mountain lakes include Mrs. Timothy Woodruff, wife of the New York politician, Mrs. Victor Herbert, wife of the musical composer, and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, who is usually ready to forsake one of the most attractive country seats in England for an interval among the pines at Camp Wild Air.

There are not a few women whose fondness for favorite outdoor sport serves to itself, map out their summer program—sweeping them to the localities where the chosen form of athletics may best be enjoyed. By way of illustration, there might be cited the hold which golf exerts upon Miss Marion Oliver, daughter of the assistant secretary of war, and upon Miss Frances Griscom, the sister of Lloyd Griscom, the well-known diplomat and politician. The former of these young ladies is an aspirant for the golf championship of the United States, and the latter has already been a title holder.

Similarly it is suspected that Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth would go in for aerobatics did not her husband rather frown on her ambitions for sky sailing. Miss Katherine Elkins, daughter of the senator from West Virginia, is correspondingly zealous as a horsewoman, and has been known to give up an entire season to attending one open-air horse show after another, usually as an entrant in the classes for ladies' hunters. Miss Elkins is also an enthusiast on the subject of blooded dogs and has personally donated cups and other trophies as prizes in competitive classes at various dog shows.

The Lure of the Chicken

Chickens were never the fashion till now. Had the chicken ever been the fashion this would be the renaissance, but the present popularity is without precedent. Not only has the chicken been dramatized, as per "Chantecler," but milliners have taken up the plumage right under the noses of the Audubon societies; then, also, there is the secretary of agriculture, who offers the chicken as the perennial lure to the country, where the problem of living or pure food and plenty of it is to be solved by the cityites as soon as they organize a real helms to the tall timbers. Even the cold-storage chickens hanging in rows in the market look more alluring and seem to suggest to you the possibility of boycotting the beef trust.

There is no question about the merits of chickens, the Brooklyn Eagle says. They carry on a successful egg business, a gigantic trust of their own, no competitors and all the world for patrons. Their product never is supplanted by an improved article invented by some one who approves on their idea, and such good standing have they as an idea in economics that they are the chief element in the magnet that lures the city man to the country.

Every second man you meet on Broadway will confess he has plans to go to the country some day to make a living out of chickens. He will grow enthusiastic and unfold the plans if you give him half a chance. He knows the name of the breed of chickens he means to raise and he knows the kind of incubator he will buy and he knows about chicken houses and chicken "feed" and no end of detail about scientific chicken business. The chicken dream, the chicken lure has something to answer for, something which never gets into the newspapers. The real chicken dreamer knows just how much money he is going to invest in a chicken colony and then he intends to lie back and let the chickens support him. It is to laugh!

"Don't let me prick the chicken bubble," said the city man who has just sold his chicken farm and come back to town. "I don't mind giving up the facts in the case, for no one with the chicken fever would believe me. Every man has to try it for himself. And it's all right; let him. I had fun with chickens for three years and I've no wish to be a kill-joy. Hardly ever a case of chicken fever lasts a city man more than three years.

"The secretary of agriculture and certain students of sociology recommend city people to move to the country and find there the solution of all their problems and the city sentimentalist with shattered nerve systems eagerly grasp the idea. Now, farming is a business the same as any of the other pursuits in life by which men make a living and a certain temperament is required to be successful in it, as well as a great deal of patience. Do city people have much patience? I leave it to you.

"It takes a considerable amount of practical knowledge that farmers have to be born with, a kind of traditional information that never gets into the query column nor any other column of the agricultural periodicals. This knowledge may possibly be included in theoretical farming, but I have never found it there. It's what keeps the city man from succeeding in the country.

"He knows where he can get $5 a dozen for squabs and 60 cents a dozen for eggs and $1 a pound for butter and $3 a pair for broilers all the year round. It sounds pretty good. It isn't the first business proposition that has figured out finely on paper. Now the farmer rarely figures. He saw wood, gets up at 4 a. m. and does the best he can. He is not an enthusiast, and there's a pretty good reason for it.

"The farmer is a patient man. He doesn't dress up much and, without meaning to speak disparagingly, he eats what he can't sell. City people who live in the country sell what they can't eat. The farmer is obliged to live frugally in order to make both ends meet. By the time the city man gets through eating and entertaining his friends there is nothing left. He knows too well what good living is."

UNVEILING OF GEN. CUSTER MONUMENT

DEDICATION AND UNVEILING OF THE GEN. CUSTER MONUMENT AT MONROE JUNE 4.

REUNION OF OLD MICHIGAN CUSTER CAVALRY BRIGADE AT SAME PLACE JUNE 3.

President Taft Will be Present and Deliver an Address—Other Notable Personages Will be Present.

The state of Michigan will present the magnificent bronze statue of General G. A. Custer to the city of Monroe on June 4 next with impressive and befitting ceremonies. The city of Monroe, one of the most attractive cities in the middle west, is making suitable arrangements to do its part in this matter, and will be prepared to welcome the immense throng of people who are expected to visit the city on that day.

President Taft will be present and deliver an address, arriving in Monroe at 8:15 a. m.

The details of the program and of the military pageant have been completed by the commission appointed by the state legislature, which will be carried out in the following order: Hon. Otto Kirchner, of Detroit, president of the day.

Invocation, Rt. Rev. Bishop Foley, of Detroit.

History and description of the Custer monument, Col. Geo. L. Briggs, of Grand Rapids, president of the Custer Memorial association.

Unveiling of statue by Mrs. General Custer. Music by military band. Salute of seventeen guns by the First Battery of Field Artillery, M. N. G.

Address by President Taft.

Oration, Wm. Alden Smith, U. S. S. Address on behalf of Custer Cavalry Brigade by Gen. D. McM. Gregg, of Reading, Pa.

Address, Gen. E. W. Whitaker, former chief of Custer's staff, of Washington, D. C.

Memorial poem, read by the author, Will Carlton, Michigan.

Presentation of the statue to the city of Monroe, by Governor Warner. Acceptance and response, Mayor Jacob Martin, of Monroe.

"America," Monroe Cornet band.

Placing of laurel wreath at the base of statue, Col. W. O. Lee, of Port Huron, accompanied by a grand chorus by 100 ladies, "The Old Brigade," with full band and orchestra.

Benediction, Rt. Rev. Charles D. Williams, bishop of Michigan.

The military parade will take place before the ceremonies at the monument, forming at 9 a. m. sharp, and will be an imposing pageant. The survivors of the old Michigan Custer Cavalry Brigade, which number some 250 men, accompanied by a fine military band, will have the post of honor in the parade. Four or five companies of Michigan National Guard, with band; First Battery of Artillery, Troop B, M. N. G., who will act as bodyguard to the president; four companies of the Twenty-sixth Regiment of U. S. Infantry, with their superb band of forty pieces; visiting military organizations, including those from Michigan and Ohio, will be assigned positions; and the M. A. C. Military Cadets, of Lansing, with their fine band of thirty-six pieces. The G. A. R. posts of Michigan have announced that they would send large delegations. This being strictly a military demonstration, no civic bodies will take part in the parade.

From all that can be learned at this time, this event will overshadow in its significance and brilliant features any former one in Michigan. Custer's brilliant war record, while the youngest general in the service, coupled with the tragic end of his exploits in the western Indian wars, should and will be potent reasons for an immense assemblage of people. The stirring strains of Custer's favorite and famous charging tune, "Garry Owen," will again be heard to delight the veterans who once fought to its inspiring notes. The early hour of the parade, starting at 9 a. m. and concluding at 10 a. m., necessitates prompt movements of all troops. The parade will be under the direction of General McGurrin, commanding officer of the Michigan militia.

Weston Finishes 3,600-Mile Jaunt.

Edward Payson Weston, when he gave to the mayor of New York a letter from the mayor of Los Angeles, had finished his little 3,600-mile jaunt inside of 77 days. That was a tidy feat for a man of 70, as everyone remarked to everyone else in the jam of people in City Hall park, but a moment later the long distance letter carrier had done what some declared to be a more remarkable thing for a man of any age to do. Weston made the mayor smile, then laugh a hearty, outright laugh.

The Cuban house of representatives passed a bill postponing the municipal elections from July to December, when they will be held concurrently with the congressional elections. A bill also was passed denying recognition to political parties based on racial lines. President Gomez signed both bills.

Receipts of eggs at New York in April were the largest in several years, and the average prices were the highest on record for the same month. The larger dealers predicted a drop in prices in a few days. The month's receipts were 1,800,000 cases, or 680,000,000 eggs. The total a year ago was a third less.

An average increase of about 6 per cent was granted 6,000 workmen of the Youngstown, O., Sheet & Tube Co. and 5,000 at the plants of the Republic Iron & Steel Co. Common labor is advanced 10 cents per day, and other advances are being worked out.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Galena, Kans.—"A year ago last March I fell, and a few days after there was soreness in my right side. In a short time a bunch came and it bothered me so mv at night I could not sleep. It kept growing larger and by fall it was as large as a hen's egg. I could not go to bed without a hot water bottle applied to that side. I had one of the best doctors in Kansas and he told my husband that I would have to be operated on as it was something like a tumor caused by a rupture. I wrote to you for advice and you told me not to get discouraged but to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did take it and soon the lump in my side broke and passed away."—Mrs. R. R. HURRY, 713 Mineral Ave., Galena, Kans.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ill, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.

If you want special advice write for it to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

WESTERN CANADA

What Governor Deneen, of Illinois, Says About It:

Governor Deneen, of Illinois, owns a small farm in Saskatchewan, Canada. He has not yet seen it in an interview:

"As an American I am desirous to see the remarkable progress of the westward movement of the people. It is a noble and heroic thing to see the people of one country crossing the boundary in thousands to settle in another. I have not yet seen one who admitted to have made a mistake. They are all doing well. There is scarcely a community in the Middle West that has not a representative in Saskatchewan or Alberta."

125 Million Bushels of Wheat in 1909

Western Canada field crops for 1909 will total, according to the latest estimates, $175,000,000 in cash. From 100,000 to 150,000 acres and pre-emption of 100 acres at $3.00 an acre. Railway and land companies have had for sale at reasonable prices. Many farmers have paid for their land out of the proceeds of the crop. Excellent climate, good schools, excellent railway facilities, low freight rates, wood, water and fuel readily obtained.

WHERE ROBE WOULD COUNT

Under Friendly Cover Preacher Might Safely Proceed to Split His Infitives.

"I tried to get a chance to speak to you at church Sunday," said Mrs. Oldcastle, "but the crush was so great that I couldn't push through to where you were." "Yes, wasn't it awful?" replied her hostess, as she flocked a bit of dust from the Gobelins tapestry. "All the common folks in town seem to want to crowd into our church lately. It's too bad they ain't satisfied to stay where they belong. How did you like the sermon?" "Well, as a sermon it was fairly good, but I do wish Doctor Goodman would quit spitting his infitives. I try not to let it make me nervous, but I can't keep from being shocked every time he does it." "I never let them kind of things bother me, but that's where the Episcopals have the advantage of us. If our preacher would wear a long robe he could split them and we would never notice it."—Kansas City Star.

The Doctor's Dilemma

A Howard girl who was uncertain as to her exact age, as her father and mother were not agreed on the year of her birth, decided to go to the physician who "attended the case." He said: "Why, certainly, my dear girl, I'll go and examine my old books." When he came back to report, he said: "I find your father charged with a girl baby born on the 'tenth day of April, 189—, and I also observe he still owes me for you."—Howard (Kan.) Courier.

TARIFF INQUIRY SEEMS ASSURED

Congress Likely to Vote the Appropriation for the Commission.

FORMER OPPOSITION DYING

President Does Not Want to Postpone Action on His Measures—Future Leadership of Senate is Topic of Lively Speculation—Root a Puzzle.

Washington—When the members of what very properly may be called "the president's tariff board" are certain that money enough will be provided to enable them to broaden the scope of their work they will at once begin an investigation which is likely, it is said, to bring to the surface some real facts concerning the relation or lack of relation of high prices to the tariff.

Money Likely to Be Granted.

In the earlier days of the present session several of the standpat Republicans said openly that they would oppose any measure which would give the tariff experts any greater authority than was conferred on them under the Payne-Aldrich law. Since these words of intended antagonism to additional powers for the experts, the Republicans who spoke them have had a change of heart which Democrats say is due almost entirely to the recent congressional elections in which the party met defeat. The chances are therefore that $250,000 will be granted for further investigation into business conditions with a view to the relation that they bear to the tariff.

Position of High Tariff Men.

The high tariff men in congress believe that Havens (Dem.) was elected in the Rochester district over Aldrich (Rep.) because of the tariff issue. They do not say this openly, but they believe it, nevertheless, and now they realize that with a tariff board working along lines mapped out by the president in his annual message the country may come to the conclusion that the Republican administration and the Republican congress finally may get into a mood to revise the tariff downward.

These politicians of the dominant party say that if the people knew they were actually to get it they would prefer to have downward revision given to them by the Republicans rather than by the Democrats, who, as these high tariff men say, "when once started on the downward scale of the schedules would not know where to stop."

President Against Delay.

Suggestion has been made to President Taft by some of the leading Republicans that it might be just as well to postpone full consideration of one or two of his chief measures until the next session. These Republicans, the president apparently thinks, do not realize that if the legislation is postponed how great an effect the putting off may have on the elections.

It is understood that at some of the White House conferences the president has said plainly to those who urge postponement that the party will have a hard enough fight at the best to carry the next house and that if the administration's recommendations are not acted on the effect will be to add to the handicap. It is shrewdly suspected by observers in Washington that the Republicans who are suggesting postponement are afraid that the debate on one or two measures will be so long continued that they will not be able to get back in their districts in season to make full preparation for the coming fight.

Some of the men who are credited with being wise politicians are telling the Republicans who have the postponement fever that if they stay in Washington and enact the president's recommendations into law they will gain more than they would by having them put over and putting the additional time gained into the campaign.

Democrats See Advantage.

It is perfectly clear that the Democrats, from a political standpoint, will be very willing to have the Republicans postpone action on some of the president's measures, for the minority party believes that if only a part of the administration's program is carried out the Republicans will lose just so much ammunition for use in the campaign during the months preceding the election. The Democrats, however, are not giving this advice to the Republicans, for they are willing that the enemy should make the mistake which they seem to think would be vital, and it must be said that the president to a considerable extent seems to share the Democratic view.

Senator Aldrich is having almost daily conferences with Mr. Taft. The Rhode Islander has been accused of petty nearly all the legislative offenses to be found in the realm of accusations, but he apparently is desirous in this, the next session before his last, to help the president, whom he likes immensely personally, to put through the legislation that has been asked. Some of the Progressive Republicans have declared in explicit terms that some of the administration's measures are not progressive, and in fact are reactionary. To offset these charges some of the regular Republicans say that Mr. Aldrich thinks some of the president's measures are so progressive as to be absolutely radical and that personally the Rhode Islander doubts the wisdom of their enactment, but he is a party man and he wants to put the legislation through in order to help save the party next November and in November two years hence.

Who Will Lead Senate?

It is not generally expected by Republican members of the senate that any of their colleagues who are candidates for re-election will follow the examples set by Senators Aldrich and Hale, and declare that they are not to be considered candidates for re-election. Immediately following the word from the Rhode Islander and the man from Maine, that they would not seek re-election, it was hinted that several other old line Republicans might be inclined to follow their examples, but there seems at present to be little chance that any of the others will feel it necessary to get out of the race.

The first question asked when the two senators of long service and conservative mind gave voice to their determination to retire was, who will be the Republican leader in the senate? It is a very easy question to ask, but a very difficult one to answer. It has not been answered yet, and is not likely to get a satisfactory reply for a long time to come.

Cannot Count on Burrows.

Senator Aldrich is the chairman of the finance committee of the senate, a position which is always accorded to the leader of the party which is in control in the upper house. The senator who ranks next to Mr. Aldrich on the finance committee, and who probably will receive promotion to the chairmanship, is Julius C. Burrows of Michigan. Admittedly, however, there is little likelihood that Mr. Burrows will be made leader of the Republicans in the upper house. The Michigan senator is getting on in years, and he is not generally credited with leadership qualities.

It would be impossible at this time for the Republicans to figure on the leadership of Senator Burrows because he is confronted with a hard fight in the home state for re-election to the senate. Representative Charles E. Townsend is a candidate for Senator Burrows' seat, and it may be that this veteran senator will have to give way to a rival who entered the house of representatives only seven years ago. Elihu Root of New York, has been a senator only a short time. There is considerable speculation concerning the possibility of his taking the leadership of the senate next March on the retirement of Mr. Aldrich. The senate however, is a law unto itself on many subjects, and no matter how able a man may be, how well fitted for leadership, nor how popular personally he proves himself, the senators are apt to decline to give the leadership to one who has not been for a considerable number of years a member of the body.

Senator Root a Puzzle.

Senator Root's position in the senate, and formerly in the cabinet of the United States, has been in a sense a puzzle to a good many people throughout the country, and in Washington, too, for that matter. The New York senator ordinarily is put down as an extreme conservative, and yet he was the chosen adviser of the extremely progressive, even radical president, Theodore Roosevelt. Mr. Root is going abroad shortly, and there he will meet the former president who, it is said, is more anxious to get a statement of the political situation from Elihu Root than from any other living man.

The New York senator has not been long in the upper house, and for this reason it is possible, even probable, that he may be considered out of the question, as it relates to the choice of a leader. It is certain, however, that Mr. Root will continue to be an advisory agent of great strength in the Republican councils, even though he should not be given the title and the authority of chief clerk.

Leadership May Be Nominal.

The Republican senators today are actually discussing among themselves the propriety of having only a nominal leadership in the senate, and of giving the power of chief clerkship during the discussion of bills to the man who seems to be best adapted to the particular occasion. This means simply that things will be carried on much as they are at present except that some of the power with which Mr. Aldrich is possessed will be taken away. The Rhode Islander owes a large part of his strength and influence to his personality. There is no man just like him in the United States senate, and the Republicans know it.

They represent every Protestant church in America. They come from all over the country. Among them are men of National and International prominence. Former Vice-President Fairbanks attends as a representative of the Methodist Episcopal church. Several governors are present. United States Senators Dooliver of Iowa and Beveridge of Indiana and former Senator Teller of Colorado were present at the first session. A number of former governors of states are registered. Among them are former Governor Hadley of Missouri, former Governor Yates of Illinois, and former Governor Hanley of Indiana. Soldiers, sailors, business men, professional men and ministers are in attendance. The congress closes on Friday.

J. Campbell White.

Buffalo on October 16. The gathering at Chicago is the climax of the series of conventions.

The appeal for foreign missions was presented to the business men of these cities. All told, 83,000 business men registered as delegates for 75 conventions, paying a dollar for the privilege. In addition, thousands of other men attended the various sessions.

Each convention opened with a banquet. In most every case these banquets were the largest in the history of the cities. All of these cities and hundreds of the surrounding towns are represented at the Chicago congress.

A national missionary policy will be adopted. This policy will be sent to the World's Missionary conference at Edinburgh, Scotland, on June 14, where it is expected to exert a profound influence. The delegates are appointed amongst the various Protestant churches of America in accordance with their membership and gifts to missions. The Methodist Episcopal church leads with 600 delegates. The Presbyterian church is second with 450 men. The Northern Baptist church has a quota of 330 men, while the Southern Baptist convention sent 200 men. The Southern Methodist church is represented by 200 men. The Protestant Episcopal church appointed 210 delegates. Most of the other churches have proportionate representation.

The various sessions are held in the Auditorium. The congress opened with the singing of "Crown Him Lord of All." Right Rev. Charles P. Anderson, Episcopal bishop of Chicago, made the opening address. He spoke on the "Will of Christ for the World," dwelling upon the need of church unity. Bishop W. L. McDowell of the Methodist Episcopal church made the second address. The first evening was devoted to talks by J. Campbell White, general secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, and J. A. MacDonald, editor of the Toronto Globe.

"Yes, sir," said the pale youthful suitor; "I've come to ask you for your daughter's hand. She is fair as lilies, sweet as honeysuckle, tender as violet, charming—"

"Is that Mary you are talking about?" asked papa.

"Yes, sir. It is a mere formality, I know, this asking for your daughter's hand; but we thought it would be pleasant to you if it were observed."

Mary's papa stiffened.

"And may I inquire," he asked, "who suggested that asking my consent to Mary's marriage was a mere formality?"

"You may, sir," replied the young man, simply. "It was Mary's mother."

AWFUL BURNING ITCH CURED IN A DAY

"In the middle of the night of March 30th I woke up with a burning itch in my two hands and I felt as if I could pull them apart. In the morning the itching had gone to my chest and during that day it spread all over my body. I was red and raw from the top of my head to the soles of my feet and I was in continual agony from the itching. I could neither lie down nor sit up. I happened to see about Cuticura Remedies and I thought I would give them a trial. I took a good bath with the Cuticura Soap and used the Cuticura Ointment. I put it on from my head down to my feet and then went to bed. On the first of April I felt like a new man. The itching was almost gone. I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and during that day the itching completely left me. Frank Gridley, 325 East 43rd Street, New York City, Apr. 27, 1909." Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remediation. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; also cases of tinnitus are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surface.
