WEST PLYMOUTH.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Smith and Miss Helen, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Murray and little Elizabeth attended the 90th birthday celebration of Mrs. Smith's mother, Wednesday, at Mrs. King's near Ypsilanti. Mrs. Brown remains in excellent possession of all her faculties and was delighted to be surrounded by her loved ones. Twenty-nine were present, relatives coming from Ypsilanti, Detroit, Adrian and Samaria.

Miss Mildred Becker returned from a two weeks' visit at Tyrone, Fenton and Durand Saturday night. Miss Becker will work in Miss McLaren's dressmaking shop this fall.

Miss Florence Lucas of Cleveland is visiting Mrs. Emery Shook, her cousin, and James Lucas, her uncle, this week.

District No. 7's school is glad over the fact that a suitable new chair has been provided for "teacher." Seven new bound volumes have been added to the library; the interior redecorated by Elmer Sager of Salem. A great deal of interest for the welfare of our school is felt. Dist. No. 7 has as attractive little school room as can be found anywhere and we feel assured teacher and pupils will do earnest, efficient work.

Mr. and Mrs. Festus Lucas and three children from Detroit are visiting at Emery Shook's and James Lucas' this week.

John Robinson, Sr., has been on the sick list for a week past.

A suggestion: So prompt and efficient is the service given by our telephone system that it seems any aid that subscribers might give would be decidedly worth while. In other places a custom prevails which saves time. When summoned to the phone, instead of calling "hello," the party states his name or place of business. In case there is an error it is known at once and does away entirely with the who-is-this and whom-do-you-want questions. If the correct party has answered the phone the conversation can proceed without delay. Seems as if on party lines especially such a custom would avoid a great deal of annoyance, and also make possible a briefer use of the line, thus saving valuable time.

The housewives are very busy nowadays, so busy that the meetings of some of the organizations have had to be postponed because there were so few at liberty to attend.

Mushrooms are very abundant this year and a number have made tidy little sums through their sale. The puff balls are especially fine and plentiful.

Miss Helen Smith visited at her uncle's, Randolph Brown's, this week.

Fred Forman painted James Heeney's silo this week and will be busy for a couple of weeks or so painting Mrs. Stout's farm house.

J. C. O'Bryan feels positive he left a small brown purse containing some two or three dollars on a dresser the evening of the fifth. All the family were away the morning of the 6th. It is an unsolved mystery whether some one entered the house in the family's absence and removed the purse or it was lost elsewhere. However, the purse is gone, and if found the finder would confer a favor by returning it to the owner.

PERRINSVILLE.

Wm. Schunk called on Mr. Bossardet and Wm. Wurts last Sunday.

Mrs. Lena Sherman is ill with pneumonia.

Mrs. Kubik, Sr., is ill and baby Inez Kubik is under the care of Dr. Holcomb of Farmington.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Witt of near Elm, a daughter, Monday, Sept. 12th. Mrs. Witt was formerly Myrtle Klatt. Both are doing nicely.

Next Sunday is Rev. Bradley's last Sunday before conference. It is hoped he will be returned another year.

The L. A. S. at Mrs. M. Steinhauer's was not very well attended owing to the busy time and so much sickness; but those present report a fine time.

Mrs. Mae Kubik had the misfortune to have a fine lot of chickens stolen last Monday evening.

Miss Naomi Shaw of Elm has been spending a few days with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schunk.

A Peculiar Wrench

Of the foot or ankle may produce a serious sprain. A sprain is more painful than a break. In all sprains, cuts, burns, bruises and scalds Henne's Pain-Killing Oil is the best thing to use. Relieves the pain instantly, reduces swelling, is a perfect antiseptic and heals rapidly. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00. Sold by Pinckney's Pharmacy and Eyer's Pharmacy.

NEWBURG.

The L. A. S. held a very interesting meeting at the hall Friday afternoon of last week. Committees were appointed and plans made for the annual fair and home coming to be held Oct. 21 at Newburg hall. The ladies would be glad to have any one that is interested to donate a piece of fancy work or apron—anything to help would be appreciated. A comfortable was tied by the ladies.

Before leaving for Florida, Mrs. J. Mack and daughter, also Mrs. Kispau, made Mrs. R. Barnes a farewell visit on Friday of last week.

The conference year is drawing to a close and the stewards are in hopes to have everything settled in a satisfactory manner before the pastor leaves for conference.

Mrs. Kingsley has been spending a couple of weeks with her sister, Mrs. Geo. Chilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe McEachran of Livonia Center and Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley of Detroit Sundayed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Chilson.

The farmers in this locality are hustling with their tomatoes and melons. A frost just at present would mean quite a loss to them.

Mrs. Rose Ryan of Detroit was the guest of Mrs. W. R. Levan Friday and Saturday of last week.

Burt Paddock spent the fore part of the week visiting his father in Detroit.

The Hoisington Bros., Louis Krumm and Chas. Minning have put up silos the past week.

The Misses Hattie and Mattie Apple of Sand Hill visited Mrs. M. Lewis Thursday afternoon of last week.

Mrs. George Galbraith of Monroe spent Friday and Saturday of last week at the home of Mrs. S. Hoisington.

The many friends of Arthur LeVan are glad to learn of his arrival home Monday night from the hospital, where he had been for the past four weeks.

The Gleaners will hold a handkerchief social at the hall Sept. 22. Supper will be served. Ladies are requested to bring cake or sandwiches.

For bowel complaints in children always give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and castor oil. It is certain to effect a cure and when reduced with water and sweetened is pleasant to take. No physician can prescribe a better remedy. For sale by all dealers.

W. C. T. U.

The last meeting held at the residence of Mrs. E. O. Huston was a good one and well attended. Some prohibition news was given in response to the roll call. Mrs. Voerhies continued the account of her trip abroad in her interesting way, which was greatly enjoyed. Instrumental music was furnished by two of our young girls, which was well rendered. The meeting next week Thursday, Sept. 22, will be in charge of Mrs. M. A. Patterson and Mrs. W. Travis. The subject will be The Juvenile Court, with a paper upon "The Boy Movement."

Ex-Governor Frank Manley says: "Give that bright-eyed little chap a chance. The saving of that boy is more important than the election of a president. It is more important to save him than it is to acquire territory. It is better to storm and worry over the tariff. The salvation of that boy's soul is more important than the success of any political party. It is better to keep the sunshine in his heart and it is better to keep the sunshine in the heart of his mother than to win a political victory."—Supt. Press.

Digestion and Assimilation.

It is not the quantity of food taken but the amount digested and assimilated that gives strength and vitality to the system. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and enable them to perform their functions naturally. For sale by all dealers.

LIVONIA CENTER.

Mrs. John Base, Jr., has been entertaining a cousin from the city the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Johnson visited friends in the city Saturday.

Mrs. Hartwick and daughter Emma of Detroit visited at Charlie Wolf's and Otto Melow's the last three days of the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Smith of Isabella Co. are visiting friends in these parts.

Fred Lee's people are entertaining company from Ohio. The ladies of the German church did very nicely at their ice cream social Saturday evening, selling over ten gallons. The night was a little too cold for cream.

A Bank's Surplus—What is it?

This bank pays its stockholders each year dividends that are consistent with a safe, well-managed business.

The money earned on our capital, above the dividend paid to shareholders, is put back into the business. We have now a surplus of $15,000 and undivided profits of $15,000, every cent of which has been earned, and which with our capital represents $105,000 of actual working capital.

A growing surplus makes a prosperous business; it also gives to depositors increasing safe-for funds each year.

Become a customer of the bank with ample capital and a growing surplus; this kind of a bank meets the demands of its customers in a satisfactory manner.

"HIT" OF FANCY DRESS BALL

Old Beau Recalls Incident of the Long Age in Which Rival Beauties Figured.

The Old Beau was talking to the Man About Town.

"Of course, the society girls of the present day are beautiful, and original and able, and all that, and they know things about the higher culture that their mothers never dreamed of, yet somehow they don't keep their admirers in the breathless excitement of never knowing what they will do next, as their mothers did."

"Apropos of the news item to the effect that Mrs. Latham (who was, as you know, the beautiful Miss Elsie Hayward) will see the city of Hopkinsville, I recall a fancy dress ball at which her mother, the lovely Alice Latham, and another famous beauty, Betty Vance, stirred the city of Louisville to greater excitement than the news of Mrs. Latham's suit. This time, however (here the Old Beau chuckled), it was a different kind of suit."

"These two beauties often appeared, through a remarkable coincidence, in frocks that were almost duplicates, and inasmuch as they were rival beauties, society was always keenly interested in their frocks."

"At the ball I mention, the dazzling Miss Vance arrived in a costume representing a bird of paradise, and almost simultaneously Miss Alice Latham came into the ballroom through another door in an exactly similar costume."

"For a moment the two birds of paradise surveyed each other in apparently breathless amazement, and not quite sure which was which."

"Just as their friends stepped in to pick out one from 'tother, however, the two girls broke into peals of laughter, and the situation was saved. But no one who was present at the ball will forget the moment the gorgeous plumage of the birds of paradise was first glimpsed, and the incident afforded gossip for the traditional nine days."—Louisville Times.

Recipe For Success.

Dr. Henry Smith Williams maintains in his new book, "The Science of Happiness," that outdoor games have, besides the stimulating effect of mental refreshment that every one knows about, a direct influence upon mind and character. Dr. Smith writes: "The person who undertakes to develop his muscles by entering into athletic games gets pleasure as well as benefit from his exercise. And the pleasure adds directly to the benefit, for pleasure in itself has positive disease-dispelling power. Not only will his muscles be trained, but his eye and brain. He will learn the value of steady, persistent effort as he can hardly learn it elsewhere. He will be taught self-reliance, even while his egotism is kept healthfully in check. In short, his training in athletics will bring about a coincident mental development that will stand him in hand in the classroom or study, and in the practical affairs of life."

Needs No Pedometer.

"I don't need a pedometer," said a man who walks a good deal. "I get my distance by time. By long experience I find that when I strike my usual gait, as I inevitably do very soon after I have started out, I walk just about so far in an hour. I don't believe I vary an eighth of a mile. If somebody tells me that the distance is so such and such a place is so much I know when I have got there whether the commonly accepted measurement of the distance is right or wrong. All I have to do is to figure-up the time I've walked and compute the distance by that; and I can tell it with closely approximate accuracy, whatever anybody else may think about it."

The Country Weekers.

Jerome S. McWade, the Duluth millionaire, said at an open-air luncheon at his farm near Elkhart:

"The last time I had my house filled with slum urchins it rained cats and dogs for a week. It was a dreadful disappointment for my visitors."

"One rainy morning I heard a little chap say to his sister, as he flattened his nose against the pane and looked out disconsolately at the drenched green country-side:

"It don't ever rain in heaven, does it, May?"

"In course it does, ye little chump!" the girl replied. "That's where it's all a-comin' from, ain't it?"

"They seem to be hanging somebody," observed the stranger. "Who is he?"

"He's the man higher up," answered the old resident of Shushan.

Later it was learned that the name of the man who was hanged was He-man.—Chicago Tribune.

A Fitting Name.

ROADMAKERS WATCH MICHIGAN ACTIVITY

OFFICIALS OF OTHER STATES TAKING NOTICE OF THE GOOD ROADS EXHIBIT.

FIRST DISPLAY OF ITS KIND

The Modern Methods of Good Roads Building is Bound to Place Michigan in the Front Ranks Among Her Sister States.

Lansing.—Prominent good roads officials of other states are already taking notice of the good roads exhibit which will be put on during the coming Michigan state fair opening, Sept. 19. This is the first display of its kind ever made in the country by a large state fair and the methods used in putting it on and the possible results to be accomplished are stirring up a widespread interest in good roads circles of other states.

G. S. Ladd, of Strobbridge, Mass., past master of the Massachusetts state grange; a member of the National Good Roads association, and prominently identified with the New England good roads movement for years, when in Detroit said he intended returning for the Michigan state fair purposely to see the good roads exhibit.

"This display of modern methods of good roads building is bound to place Michigan in the front rank among her sister states, so far as good roads work is concerned," said Mr. Ladd, "and I believe the plans of the state fair management in regard to this exhibit will result in a widespread interest being worked up among the hundreds of road commissioners in the state."

Years ago, when the highway commission of Massachusetts was being organized, Mr. Ladd was one of the most prominently identified officials fathering the idea of the highway commission. In all, the good roads plan of New England states have resulted in a sum totaling $4,500,000 being expended in the state roads villages.

In company with Grand Master N. P. Hull, of the Michigan state grange, Mr. Ladd will speak at the Ohio state fair in the interests of the state grange.

Grain Crops Are Good.

According to the August crop report issued by Secretary of State Martin, the average estimated yield of wheat in the state and in the northern counties is 19, in the central counties 22, and in the southern counties and upper peninsula 18 bushels per acre. The quality as compared with the average in the state is 93 per cent. The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed by farmers in August at 116 mills was 266,342 and at 112 elevators and to grain dealers 326,065, or a total of 592,407 bushels. The estimated total number of bushels of wheat marketed in August is 1,500,000.

The estimated average yield of oats in the state is 31, in the southern counties 32, in the central counties 36, in the northern counties 25 and in the upper peninsula 22 bushels per acre. The estimated average yield of rye in the state is 16 bushels per acre. As compared with the average, the condition of corn in the state is 81 per cent. According to the report the upper peninsula will produce the best yield. The average condition of potatoes is 69 per cent.

Order Settles Many Matters.

The Michigan German Roman Catholic Central society closed its annual convention with a requiem mass in the morning and a business session in the afternoon, at St. Elizabeth's church and hall, St. Aubin avenue and Maple street.

The newly elected officers of the society are: Spiritual adviser, Rev. John C. Wyss, Bay City; commissarius, Rev. C. J. Hutter; president, Henry A. I. Andries; first vice-president, William J. Heinbuch; second vice-president, Alexander Roosen; recording secretary, Frank Spielman; financial secretary, Edward J. Kraemer, and treasurer, John J. Schulte. The trustees elected are: John Korte, Theodore Bengel of Westphalia, and Charles M. Pohl of Saginaw. Westphalia was chosen as the next meeting place. The date for the convention was not set.

A large number of the 300 delegates who attended the convention left the city. Many expressed their satisfaction with the results of the convention and predicted that its attitude towards the liquor question will materially aid in checking the progress of the prohibition movement.

Colonel Sorry He Can't Come.

Any likelihood that Colonel Roosevelt might accept the invitation of the Michigan state fair officials to attend the fair opening was finally put to rest by Mr. Roosevelt's definite action, taken during a luncheon in Cincinnati, where he is a guest of the Ohio state exposition.

According to a dispatch, the petition of 100,000 Michigan people, requesting Mr. Roosevelt to attend, was handed to him, during the luncheon.

Fastest Pacer in Free-for-All.

Since the announcement of the field that will meet in the free-for-all race at the state fair there has been more talk about the event than any purse race that has been held here in years. It is without doubt the greatest open class bunch any association has been able to assemble on a track, and if conditions are right on September 22, when it is contested, it is likely that the winner will have to take a new record.

Instances are few indeed where in a free-for-all field of five every member has a record in a race faster than 2:03. The star of the lot by performance is Ross K., that recently took a time record of 2:01 1/2. Ross K. was the medium with which Dick McMahan won $8,000 and his party as much more on the first day of the blue ribbon meeting, when he paced in 2:03 1/2. Experts pronounce him the best going hobbled pacer that has come out since the days of Prince Alert. This week the horse is at the Minnesota state fair, where he will start in one of the big events. McMahan will ship him from there to Milwaukee or Indianapolis for next week, and then come to Detroit to tackle the best field he has met.

Another pacer of great speed is Giffline, formerly owned here. He won the free-for-all events at Grand Rapids, Detroit and Fort Erie and was beaten at Kalamazoo and Cleveland. Whether he could have won that pair of starts is a matter of debate among horsemen. Giffline raced in 2:02 1/2 at Grand Rapids, and reports are to the effect that he is in good shape for the fall campaign, which will include his Detroit and Lexington starts. It is expected that he will lower his record some one of these fine days, and the state fair track may be the place where he will have to do the trick to win.

Alleen Wilson, 2:02 1/2, has been knocking at the door this year, but so far she has not been able to get inside. However, Walter Cox is resourceful, and some fine day there will be doings. Alleen Wilson's speed has not been questioned, and they say she has improved a lot since the circuit hit the eastern end of the line.

Cox, by the way, has more entries at the state fair meeting than any other driver. He is in 13 races and has two in some of them, shipping his entire stable here from Syracuse and bringing along some new members.

Criticizes Some Promoting Ways.

James V. Barry, Michigan's insurance commissioner, was greeted by a big round of applause by the National Association of Life Underwriters in convention at Detroit. President John W. Whitington introduced him as one of the greatest insurance commissioners in the states. Mr. Barry's address was one of the features of the session. He had something of a bomb in his otherwise pleasant and affable talk, in his criticism of the methods sometimes used in the promotion of new insurance organizations. He said in part:

"I believe that if properly organized and managed new companies accomplish much good. It would, in my judgment, be best for all concerned if there were to be established in every state one or more good, solid, substantial companies, operated along safe and sane lines by men skilled in the business."

"These local companies would do much in the way of educating the people as to the soundness and beneficence of fire insurance as an institution, and creating a healthy and intelligent public sentiment which would serve to protect the business from ill-considered and burdensome exactions which are too often the result of a feeling on the part of technically uninformed and unthinking legislators that they are dealing with some far away hostile interest which constantly draws money from the state without giving in return."

Wild West Show for State Fair.

California Frank, the wild west showman whose exhibition will be one of the chief features of the state fair, is well equipped for the wild west show business. As a young man he served many years as deputy sheriff in one of the toughest counties in California, and was instrumental in the capture of many noted gangs of hold-up men and train robbers. Later he went to the Spanish war as a member of the Sixth California volunteers.

On being mustered out he joined first one and then another wild west show and played in every principal city of the country. In deciding on a wild west show, which is one of the chief drawing cards for a big state fair, the management of the Michigan exhibition looked the amusement world over thoroughly before signing California Frank. This show was deemed the best to answer the purpose.

Princess Wenona, the world's champion woman rifle shot, is one of the star attractions of the show, although there are many other interesting features. Princess Wenona, as well as many of the other performers, have made distinct hits in Europe and have been commended by royalty.

Convicted 136, Acquitted 4.

A bulletin, just issued, which includes the work of the state dairy and food department for the months of January to June, inclusive, shows that the department has been especially active in prosecutions for adulterations of food stuffs.

State Analyst Floyd W. Robinson's report shows that 391 samples of food stuffs and other commercial articles were analyzed and in 321 instances there had been adulterations.

SHIP GOES DOWN IN LAKE MICHIGAN

PERE MARQUETTE FERRY NO. 18 GOES TO THE BOTTOM OFF WISCONSIN SHORE.

TWENTY-NINE LIVES LOST AND 33 WERE SAVED BY SISTER SHIP, NO. 17.

Cause of Sinking a Mystery; All the Ship's Officers Went Down With Her.

Startled by the discovery that their ship was sinking, 60 passengers and members of the crew of Pere Marquette ferry No. 18 stood anxiously and helplessly about for two and a half hours while the C. Q. D. call was sent out by the wireless operator on board. Then the ship sank like a plummet in 400 feet of water, 50 miles off the Wisconsin shore, and 28 human lives were added to Lake Michigan's dread toll.

The other 33, sustained by life preservers or pieces of wreckage, floated about until picked up by the ill-fated ship's sister ship, No. 17, which by the greatest of good fortune dove in sight just as No. 18 plunged beneath the waves.

Capt. Peter Kilty stood on the bridge to the last, and went down with his ship. So did Stephen Sczepanek, the wireless operator, who stuck to his key sending out the C. Q. D., the wireless code's call for help, until he was carried under in the final plunge, a martyr to duty.

The first word of the disaster that reached Ludington, the home of many of the crew of No. 18, was Sczepanek's C. Q. D., followed by the information that his ship was sinking. This was repeated for an hour after the first flash was caught at the wireless station in Ludington. Then there was silence for several hours, while anxious relatives waited.

Then came the word from Pere Marquette No. 17 that she was at the scene and had picked up the 33 survivors. Although No. 17 carries wireless equipment, the call for help had not reached her, and the first she knew of No. 18's plight was when, by the merest accident, she sighted her just as she was going down. Helpless to aid, she stood by for hours, picking up the survivors and keeping a lookout for bodies. Two of her own crew lost their lives in saving those of the unfortunate No. 18.

Some of the dead were found floating in the heavy seas with life preservers on. Among them were the brave Capt. Peter Kilty and Stephen Sczepanek. It is declared one of the worst marine disasters in the history of Lake Michigan navigation. The boat was valued at $400,000, and the cargo which included thirty-two loaded cars, estimated to be worth $150,000.

In marine circles it is believed that the string of cars became loose as the ferry was buffeted about and that the water rolled into the vessel's stern, which is wide open. This seems plausible in view of the fact that the sea was rolling from the north, the most dangerous on Lake Michigan, while the steamer was heading southwest by south.

U. S. Officers Probe Wreck.

Federal Steamboat Inspector Frank Van Patten and Wm. Collins, of the Milwaukee district, conducted an official investigation at Ludington Sunday as to the cause of the sinking of Pere Marquette No. 18.

All the survivors were closely examined in private chambers and their testimony recorded. The investigation was made on behalf of the government and the finding of the special board will have the direct bearing on the alleged incompetence and carelessness of the two officials who conducted the annual inspection of No. 18 the day before the fatal trip, and pronounced the craft sound and seaworthy.

August Crop Report.

Michigan's monthly crop report, issued by the department of state, estimates the wheat yield in the central counties of Michigan at 22 bushels per acre; in the southern counties 18 bushels, and in the upper peninsula 18 bushels an acre.

The quality as compared with an average per cent in the state and southern counties is 93, in the central counties 94, in the northern counties and in the upper peninsula 84. The total number of bushels of wheat marketed by farmers on August is 592,407. The estimated total number of bushels of wheat marketed in August is 1,500,000.

The estimated average yield of oats is 31, rye 16, corn 81, beans 81, potatoes 69.

Live stock is reported as being in good condition.

The disappearance of Prof. Miles Irish, instructor in sciences and athletics in the Grand Haven school, was explained when his father, who lives in Mason, received a letter from him. The letter was mailed in Chicago and stated that Prof. Irish had become tired of the school and intended to go west.

Joseph Lorenzo, an Italian laborer, employed in a Monroe stone quarry, became involved in a dispute with Frank Roffio, a fellow workman, late Thursday evening, and the latter drew a stiletto and stabbed Lorenzo three times, once above the heart, once in the neck and again in the intestines. Lorenzo will recover.

NEWS OF MICHIGAN

Holland.—Congressman Gerrit J. Diekema, for ten years chairman of the Republican state central committee, has formally announced his decision not to permit his name to be considered for re-election by the Republican convention at Detroit.

Mr. Diekema's ever-increasing duties and responsibilities at Washington as a member of congress and the desire to give to these duties all of his time and energy compelled him to take this course. W. Frank Knox, Chase S. Osborn's campaign secretary, is slated for the chairmanship to succeed Mr. Diekema.

Coleman—Yeggs "blew" the post office safe here and secured about $300 in cash and a small amount in stamps. The explosion wrecked the interior of the office and was of such force that coins from the safe were imbedded in the walls of the room. The robbers escaped. This is the third time "yeggs" have visited the post office within a year. The first time a small amount was secured. They failed to get anything the second time.

Owosso.—At the age of ninety-three John W. Dewey is dead on the farm in Owosso township that had been his home 69 years. Owosso consisted of several log huts when he came from New York state, and the pioneers reached here by walking a long distance through the woods. Dewey was a representative in the state legislature in 1881 and had held various county and township offices.

Jackson.—The finding of a jewel box, lodged in a waste pipe in the wash room of the Michigan Central depot led to the discovery of the theft of a $200 diamond stud from the jewelry store of P. E. Tentens. He did not miss anything until he inventoried his stock. He believes a stranger who looked over his stock a few days ago and went away without making a purchase took the diamond.

Flint.—John Hayes, eighty-eight years old, who says he is walking from New Hampshire to California on a wager, is in jail, charged with insulting a Davidson woman when she refused him breakfast. In a class rush between freshmen and sophomores of the high school, Leo Riker, sixteen years old, had three ribs fractured. Several others were hurt.

Saginaw.—Albert Fisher, sixteen years old, slashed his mother with a knife when she reproved him for his waywardness. He was later arrested and ordered taken to the reform school. After ten years of courtship Miss Inez Gast went to Spokane, where she married Archibald Brindell. They became acquainted when both worked in the gas office here.

Muskegon.—The disappearance of Prof. Milca Iria, instructor in sciences and athletics in the Grand Haven school, was explained when his father, who lives in Mason, received a letter from him. The letter was mailed in Chicago and stated that Professor Irish had become tired of the school and intended to go west.

Monroe.—Rafaelo Postafella, alias Francisco Rossi, who stabbed another Italian, pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm, but claimed the stabbing was in self-defense. Judge Golden thereupon refused to accept the plea of guilty and bound him over to the November term of the court.

Pontiac.—At Franklin, the general store of Anda Dunbar was robbed of $35 in money and two boxes of cigars. Roy Kearns' store, in which the post office is located, was robbed of five dollars. The tools by which entrance to the stores was gained were stolen from the blacksmith shop of Frank Bowden.

Quincy.—Mrs. Clara E. Wise, wife of C. E. Wise, one of Quincy's most prominent merchants, died suddenly in a hospital in Detroit, her death coming as a great shock to Quincy people, who did not know of her illness. Mr. and Mrs. Wise recently bought a dry goods store here, coming from Coldwater, where they had conducted a department store.

Ablon.—While driving across the M. U. R. tracks near the city, M. H. Davison, a prominent Calhoun county fruit grower, was struck by the 6:18 interurban car. Davison's rig was demolished and he was brought to the city hospital here by the car that struck him. He has small chance for recovery.

Monroe.—A man believed to be H. Logranor of Tennessee was found dead on top of a Big Four passenger coach. It is thought he was struck by a low bridge. In a quarrel in the stone quarry where both were employed, Joseph Lorenzo was stabbed three times by Frank Roffio. Lorenzo will get better. The police are hunting for Roffio.

Petoskey.—Howard Truesdale, thirty-two years old, was struck by a racing auto at the Emmett county fair ground track and so seriously injured that it is believed he will die. He tried to cross in front of two machines and was struck by the second one.

Saginaw.—William McCulloch, a prominent farmer residing near Leport, took his own life at his home. He had been in ill health for some time, and despondency is believed to have been the cause for his act. He was between forty-five and fifty years old and leaves his widow, a son and an adopted son.

Northville.—Edward Shafer, proprietor of the Park hotel bar, and George Stanley, owner of the Stanley house, were arrested on complaint of Marshall Bogart, who charges them with keeping their bars open on Labor day. They pleaded guilty.

THE DEMOCRATS SWEEP MAINE

ELECT GOVERNOR AND TWO CONGRESSMEN; LEGISLATURE IS ALSO DEMOCRATIC.

NEW GOVERNOR IS SON OF THE LAST DEMOCRAT WHO HELD THAT OFFICE.

Legislature Will Elect a Man to Succeed United States Senator Hale; Leaders Are Amazed.

Maine, which has been solidly Republican for 30 years without a break in all that time, elected a Democratic governor by about 8,500 plurality, sent three Democratic representatives to congress, leaving but one Republican representative from the state, and also elected a Democratic legislature to fill the vacancy occasioned by the expiration of the term of Senator Eugene Hale.

It was a landslide, sweeping everything before it. Gov. Bert M. Fernald, the Republican candidate, who won his election two years ago by about 7,000 plurality and whose administration has been one of progress, has gone down in defeat, the first Republican candidate for governor to be defeated since 1882. His opponent, and the man who will be the next governor of Maine, is Col. Frederick W. Plaisant, mayor of Augusta, son of the last Democratic governor of Maine, Gen. Harris M. Plaisant, whose election was due to a fusion of the Greenback and Democratic vote in 1882.

The Republicans have only saved one congressman out of the four. Asher C. Hinds, clerk at the speaker's table in Washington and parliamentarian of the national house, has apparently been elected in Tom Reed's old district, the first, by a narrow margin. His opponent, William M. Pennell, is likely to be named Democratic senator from Maine if he has failed of election to congress. He made a vigorous campaign, attacking the tariff policies of the Republican party and advocating reciprocity with Canada. The contest in the first district was the hottest it has ever known. The lowest plurality a Republican candidate ever received in this district was 1,000, which was given Thomas R. Reed in the Greenback campaign of 1882.

John F. Swasey, the present representative to congress in the second congressional district, formerly represented by Nelson Dingley and Charles Littlefield, has met defeat by a plurality of at least 1,000. Daniel J. McGillicuddy, of Lewiston, who nearly defeated Charles E. Littlefield four years ago, with the aid of Samuel Gompers, the labor leader, has been elected in that district. McGillicuddy is a lawyer and one of the leaders of his party in Maine. He made his fight upon the tariff issue, severely criticizing Swasey for his attitude in supporting Speaker Cannon and supporting the Payne-Aldrich bill, and Swasey's defeat is attributed to the insurgent feeling in his district because of his ardent support of Speaker Cannon.

In the third congressional district Edwin C. Bureleigh, representing the district formerly represented by James G. Blaine and Seth L. Milliken, a district which has always been solidly Republican, has been defeated by a small plurality. His opponent being Samuel W. Gould, who has run against Mr. Bureleigh for six consecutive times. In this district the issue was fought out on the tariff, and the cities and large towns, where the high cost of living argument had great weight, went solidly against the Republican candidate.

Legislature Important. Control of the legislature is of more importance in Maine than in some of the other states, because under the constitution a number of the highest state officers are appointed by that body. These are treasurer, attorney-general, secretary and commissioner of agriculture.

Among the appointments which rest with the new governor are: a judge of the Kennebec superior court, a state commissioner of industrial and labor statistics, a state commissioner of highways and a warden of the state prison. All these offices are now filled by Republicans.

The Democratic overturn extends even to minor state offices. Figures show that the Democrats elected 13 of the 16 sheriffs in the state. Republicans elected their shrievalty candidates in Aroostook, Franklin and Washington counties only. In five of the counties Democratic sheriffs were re-elected. In eight other counties the Democrats gained the office.

Although generally admitted that elections, which swept the Republicans out of power in this state after 30 years of uninterrupted rule, was fought mainly on prohibition and other local issues, the Democrats are none the less jubilant over the result. In fact, they are yet dazed by the magnitude of their success, which the Republican leaders are inclined to attribute as having little significance in connection with the national situation.

The fifteenth biennial session of the Grand United Order of Colored and Fellows began at Baltimore with delegates representing nearly every state in attendance. Gov. Crothers and Mayor Mahon welcomed the visitors in addresses preceding the opening meeting. Several auxiliaries at the order are meeting at the same time.

Following the opening of the convention and Baltimore with members of the order, a large number of delegates were taken into custody. A large number of delegates were taken into custody. A large number of delegates were taken into custody.

SYNOPSIS.

Captain Nathaniel Plum of the sloop Typhoon, lands secretly on Beaver Island, Lake Michigan, stronghold of the Mormons. Obadiah Price, an eccentric old man and councillor of the Mormons, who has been spying on him, suddenly confronts him and tells him he is expected to deliver a package to Franklin Pierce, president of the United States. He agrees to show Plum the Mormon town, St. James. Plum sees the frightened face of a young woman in the darkness near Price's cabin. She disappears leaving an odor of lilacs. It develops that Plum's visit to Beaver Island is to demand settlement from the king, Strang, for the loss of his ship some time previously by men whom he suspected of being Mormon. Strang's mate, has been left in charge of the sloop with orders to bombard St. James if the captain does not return within a certain time. Price takes Nat secretly in the darkness to the king's house, and through a window he sees Strang and his seven wives, among whom is the lady of the lilacs, who Price says is the seventh wife. Price's actions lead Plum to believe that he is jealous of Strang. Plum calls at the king's office, where a young woman warns him that his life is in danger, and urges him to return to his ship. He refuses. Strang receives Plum cordially, professes great indignation when he hears the captain's grievance and promises to investigate and punish the guilty.

"Ah, you wish to see the whipping?" The king smiled his approval. "That is one way we have of punishing slight misdemeanors in our kingdom, Captain Plum. It is an illustration of our intolerance of evil-doers." He turned suddenly toward the girl. "Winsome, my dear, have you copied the paper I was at work on? I wish to show it to Captain Plum."

He walked slowly toward her and for the first time since her warning Nathaniel had an opportunity of observing the girl without fear of being perceived by the prophet. She was very young, hardly more than a child he would have guessed at first; and yet at second and more careful glance he knew that she could not be under fifteen—perhaps sixteen. Her whole attire was one to add to her childish appearance. Her hair, which was rather short, fell in lustrous dark curls about her face and upon her neck. She wore a fitted coat-like blouse, and knee skirts which disclosed a pretty pair of legs and ankles. As Strang was returning with the paper which she handed to him the girl turned her face to Captain Plum. Her mouth was formed into a round red O and she pointed anxiously to where she had thrown the note. The king's eyes were on his paper and Nathaniel nodded to assure her that he understood.

"I am like a gardener who compels every passing neighbor to go into his back yard and admire his first sprouts," laughed the prophet jovially. "In other words, I do a little writing, and I take a kind of childish joy in making other people read it. But I see this is not in proper shape, so you have escaped. It is a brief history of Beaver Island written at the request of the Smithsonian Institute, which has already published an article of mine. If you happen to be on the island tomorrow and should you return to this office I shall certainly have you read it if I have to call all of my shortfalls into service!"

His laughed with such open good humor that Nathaniel found himself smiling despite the varied unpleasant sensations within him. "Do you write much?" he asked.

"I get out a daily paper," said the king rather proudly, "and of course, as prophet, I am the translator of what word may be handed down to us from heaven for the direction and commandment of my people. I hold the secret of the Urim and Thummim, which was first delivered by angels into the hands of Joseph, and with it I have revealed the word of God as it appears in a book which I have written. Ah—I had forgotten this!" From among a mass of papers and books on the table he drew forth a blue-covered pamphlet and passed it to his companion. "I have only a few copies left but you may have this one, Captain Plum. It will surely interest you, for it I have set forth the troubles existing between my own people and the certain-rotted criminals that inhabit Mackinac and the mainland, and have described our struggle for charity and honor against these human monsters. It was published two years ago. But conditions are different today. Now—now I am king, and the scriptures in the fifth of their crime old man and the oppressed!"

The next words burst from him in a tone of triumph and as if in echo to his own words came from the open-door the chuckling, mirthless laugh of Obadiah Price.

"Yea—yea—even into the land of the Lamanites are you king!"

At the sound of his voice Strang turned toward him and the sonorous triumph that rumbled in his throat faded to a low greeting. And Nathaniel saw that the little old councillor's eyes glittered boldly as they met the prophet's and that in their glance was neither fear nor servitude but rather a light as of master meeting master. The two advanced and clasped hands and a few low words passed between them while Nathaniel went to the door.

"I will go with you, Captain Nathaniel Plum," called Obadiah. "I will go with you and show you the town."

"The councillor will be your friend," added Strang. "Today he carries with him that authority from the king."

He bowed and Nathaniel passed through the door. Looking back he caught a last warning flash from the girl's eyes. As he hurried down the stairs he heard the councillor pause for an instant upon the landing and taking advantage of this opportunity he picked up the crumpled paper, and read these lines:

"Hurry to your ship. In another hour men will be watching for an opportunity to kill you. You will never leave the island alive—unless you go now. The girl you saw through the window sends you this warning."

He thrust the paper into his coat pocket as Obadiah came up behind him.

"Ho, ho, Nat, my boy, I have come fast to catch you—I have come fast!" he whispered. He caught his companion by the arm and Nathaniel felt his hand trembling violently. "Come this way, Nat—beyond the temple. I have things to say to you." His voice was strangely unnatural and when Captain Plum looked down into his face the look in the bead-like eyes startled him. "Nat, you must hurry away with the package!"

"So I understand—if I save my skin. Obadiah Price, I have a notion to kill you!"

They had passed beyond the huge edifice of logs, and as he stopped, hidden from the view of the king's office, Nathaniel caught the councillor's arm in a grip that crushed to the bone.

"I have a notion to kill you!" he repeated.

The old man stood unflinching. Not a muscle of his face quivered as the captain's fingers sank into the flesh.

"At the first sign of treachery, at the first sign of danger to myself, I shall shoot you dead!" he finished.

"You may, Nat, you may. From this moment until you leave the island I shall be at your side and no harm shall come to you. But if there should, Nat, or if there should come a moment when you believe that I am your enemy—shoot me!" There was sincerity in his voice that carried conviction to Nathaniel's heart and he released his hold upon the councillor's arm. Regardless of the mystery that surrounded him he believed in Obadiah. But there rose in his breast a mad desire to choke this old man into telling him the truth, to force him to reveal the secrets of this strange plot into which he had been drawn and of which he knew as little as when he first set foot in Strang's kingdom. Yet he realized even as the desire formed itself in his brain that such an effort would be feebleless.

"If you had remained at the cabin, Nat, you would have known that I was your friend," continued Obadiah. "She would have come to you, but now—it is impossible. You know. You have been warned!"

Nathaniel drew Winsome's note from his pocket and read it aloud. Obadiah smiled gleefully when he noticed how carefully he kept the handwriting from his eyes.

"Ah, Nat, you are a noble fellow!" he cried, rubbing his hands in his old tireless way. "You would not betray pretty little Winn, eh? And who do you suppose told Winsome to give you this note?"

"Strang's wife."

"Yes, even so. And it was she who set my old legs a-running for you, my boy. Come, let us move!"

The little councillor was his old self again, chuckling and grimacing and rubbing his hands, and his eyes danced as he spoke of the girl.

"Casey is not a cautious man," he gurgled with a sudden upward leer. "Casey is a fool!"

"Casey!" almost shouted Captain Plum. "What the devil do you mean?"

"Ho, ho, ho—haven't you guessed the truth yet, Nat? While you and I were getting acquainted last night a couple of fishermen from the mainland dropped alongside your sloop. They had been robbed by the Mormon pirates. They cursed Strang. They swore vengeance. And your cautious Casey cursed with 'em, and fed 'em, and drank with 'em—and he would have had them stay until morning only they were anxious to hurry with their report to Strang. Understand, Nat? Eh? Do you understand?"

"What did Casey tell them?" gasped Nathaniel.

Obadiah hunched his shoulders.

"Enough to warrant a bullet through your head, Nat. Cheerful, isn't it? But we'll fool them, Nat, we'll fool them! You shall board your ship and hurry away with the package, and then you shall make love to Strang's wife—for she will go with you!"

He stopped to enjoy the amusement that was written in every lineament of the other's face. The red blood surged into Nathaniel's neck and deepened on his bronzed cheeks. Slowly the reaction came. When he spoke there was an uneasy gleam in his eyes and his voice was as hard as steel.

"She will go with me, councillor! And why?"

Obadiah had laughed softly as he watched the change. Suddenly he jerked himself erect.

"Sh-h-h!" he whispered. "Keep cool, Nat! Don't show any excitement or fear. Here comes the man who is to kill you!"

He made no move save with his eyes.

"He is coming to speak with me and to get a good look at you," he added in excited haste. "Appear friendly. Agree with what I say. He is the chief of sheriffs, the king's murderer—Arbor Croche!"

He turned as if he had just seen the approaching figure. And he whispered softly, "Winsome's father!"

Arbor Croche! Nathaniel gave an involuntary shudder as he turned with Obadiah. Croche, chief of sheriffs, scourge of the mainland—the Attila of the Mormon kingdom, whose very name caused the women of the shores to turn white and on whose head the men had secretly set a price in gold! Without knowing it his hand went under his coat. Obadiah saw the movement and as he advanced to meet the officer of the king he jerked the arm back fiercely. Half a dozen paces away the chief of sheriffs paused and bowed low. But the councillor stood erect, as he had stood before the king, smiling and nodding his head.

"Ah, Croche," he greeted, "good morning!"

"Good morning, councillor!"

"Sheriff, I would have you meet Capt. Nathaniel Plum, master of the sloop Typhoon. Captain Plum this is his majesty's officer, Arbor Croche!"

The two men advanced and shook hands. Nathaniel stood half a head above the sheriff, who, like his master, the king, was short and of massive build, though a much younger man. He was a dark, lowering bulk of a creature, with black eyes, black hair, and a hand-clasp that showed him possessed of great strength.

"You are a stranger, Captain Plum?"

The councillor replied quickly.

"He has never been at St. James before, sheriff. I have invited him to stay over to see the whipping. By the way—" he shot a suggestive look at the officer. "By the way, Croche, I want you to see him safely aboard his sloop tonight. His ship is at the lower end of the island, and if you will detail a couple of men just before dusk—an escort, you know—"

"Here Comes the Man Who is to Kill You!"

Nathaniel felt a curious thrill creep up his spine at the satisfaction which betrayed itself in the officer's black face.

"It will give me great pleasure, councillor," he interrupted. "I shall escort you myself if you will allow me, Captain Plum!"

"Thank you," said Nathaniel.

"Captain Plum is to remain with me throughout the day," added Obadiah. "Come at seven—to my place. Ah, I see that people are assembling near the jail!"

"We have changed our plans somewhat, councillor." The officer turned to Nathaniel. "You will see the whipping within half an hour, Captain Plum." He turned away with another bow to the councillor and hastened in the direction of Strang's office.

"So that is the gentleman who thinks he is going to put a bullet through me!" exclaimed Nathaniel when the officer had gone beyond hearing. He laughed, and there was a kind of wild expectant joy in his voice.

"Obadiah, can you not make arrangements for him to go with me alone?"

"He will not go with you at all, Nat," gloated the old man. "Ho, ho, we are playing at his own game—treachery. When he calls at my place you will be aboard ship."

"But I should like to have a talk with him—alone, and in the woods. God—I know a man at Grand Traverse bay whose wife and daughter—"

"Sh-h-h-h!" interrupted the councillor. "Would you kill little Winsome's father?"

"Her father? That animal! That murderer! Is it true?"

"But you should have seen her mother, Nat, you should have seen her mother!" The old man twisted his hands like a miser ravished by the sight of gold. "She was beautiful—as beautiful as a wild flower, and she killed herself three years ago to save the birth of another child into this hell. Little Winn is like her mother, Nat."

"And she lives with him?"

"Er, yes—and guarded, oh, so carefully guarded by Strang, Nat! Yes, I guess that some day she will be a queen."

"Great God!" cried the young man. "And you—you live in this cesspool of sin and still believe in a heaven?"

"Yes, I believe in a heaven. And my reward there shall be great. Ha, ha, I am talking no middle road, Nat!"

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Many Americans Abroad This Season

LONDON.—The American season in London, Paris and Berlin is the best since the three golden years preceding the panic of 1907. The hotels of all the capitals of Europe are thronged with well-to-do Americans, who are spending money with the traditional lavishness that pleases the hotelkeepers and shopkeepers everywhere.

Europe has learned that not all Americans are millionaires, and so it is that less is heard each year of extortion and attempted extortion. American tourists, too, seem to have learned the ropes and they know just where to go to get the most for their money.

Comfortable new hotels that charge reasonable prices have been built in all the capitals of Europe within the last five years and in Paris, London, Berlin, Rome and Vienna, new hotels invariably have many baths, while some that appeal to the wealthier visitors have suites with baths that are as modernly luxurious as anything New York can offer.

What with comfortable and reasonable priced hotels, with express trains with dining cars attached connecting all the capitals, Americans find traveling in Europe nowadays much more simple and comfortable than it was 15 years ago.

London holds itself rigidly aloof from rivalry with the great cities of the continent. It permits Berlin and Paris to boast of their attractions in order to lure the American tourist; for itself, it seems content to say:

"Here I am, the greatest city in the world, with unrivaled museums and picture galleries, not to mention tailors and dressmakers. Come and see me if you want to, but if you don't want to—well, I dare say I'll get along without you."

Berlin and Paris now are in open competition. Berlin thinks it is a more fascinating city than Paris and it intimates that its night life is far and away more alluring than Paris'.

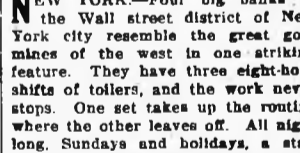

Paris, despite the modernness of Berlin and its nocturnal brilliancy, continues to be the Mecca of Americans, men and women.

The season, both in London and Paris, this year has been marred by almost constant rain. In London a cold rain fell daily for almost three weeks from the middle of June. The weather was so chilly that newly arrived Americans were compelled to wear heavy overcoats and wraps.

Paris, too, has been rainy and cold, and shopkeepers and restaurant keepers complain bitterly of the effects of the cold upon their trade.

Thanks to the American invasion with its train of gold, Parisians have reason to be fairly glad they are alive.

Home for Drunkards' Wives Is Closed

KANSAS CITY, Kan.—The home founded by Carry Nation, the Kansas "joint smasher," in this city as a refuge for drunkards' wives, will probably be closed and the property returned to Mrs. Nation. The reason is, there are not enough wives of drunkards in the largest city of Kansas to warrant the continued operation of a refuge for them.

Mrs. Nation has requested of the Associated Charities, the organization which is managing the home, that the property be deeded back to her.

The home has accommodations for 40 women but there are no drunkards' wives in it now. The Associated Charities is using it as a home for unfortunate and homeless women. About fifteen women now occupy the home.

Peter W. Goebel, president of the board of directors of the Associated Charities, admits that the home is a failure as far as being a place for the housing of drunkards' wives.

"That is the 'distressing' condition that exists," Mr. Goebel said. "There is no use in denying it. We cannot find drunkards' wives to live there."

"Mrs. Nation has asked that we return the home to her. The members of the board of directors differ as to whether or not this should be done. She has agreed to pay us for what repairs and improvements have been made at the home and at present the association needs the money that would be thus received for other branches of work. At our next meeting we will finally determine what stand to take concerning holding or releasing the property."

Mrs. Nation wishes the home returned to her so that it may be sold and the proceeds of its sale used in the construction of a home for boys which she is building in Oklahoma.

In 1902 she bought the property, which was the homestead of C. N. Simpson, one of the pioneers of Kansas.

Mrs. Nation secured most of the $4,000, which she originally paid for the property, from the sale of the small souvenir "Carrie A. Nation hatchets" which she and her friends sold for 25 cents.

Vermonter's Scheme Stopped

Many years ago, in consequence of a commercial panic, there was a severe run on a bank in South Wales, and the small farmers jostled each other in crowds to draw out their money. Things were rapidly going from bad to worse, when the bank manager, in a fit of desperation, suddenly thought him of an expedient. By his directions a clerk, having heated some sovereigns in a frying-pan, paid them over the counter to an anxious applicant. "Why, they're quite hot!" said the latter as he took them up. "Of course," was the reply; "what else could you expect? They are only just out of the mold. We are coining them by hundreds as fast as we can."

"Coining them!" thought the simple agriculturist; "then there is no fear of the money running short!" With this their confidence revived, the panic abated, and the bank was enabled to weather the storm.

Vermonter's Scheme Stopped

Robert Lincoln O'Brien, editor of the Boston Transcript, is a great admirer of the thrift of the Vermonters, but thinks sometimes they carry it too far.

O'Brien was up in Vermont last summer and went to dinner with a friend who had some political aspirations. As they came in the door he heard the lady of the house say to the hired girl: "I see Mr. Jones has somebody with him for dinner. Brass Factory Quits Plymouth

Late last fall the people of Plymouth were approached by a stranger giving his name as Henry Upholt with a proposition to furnish him with a suitable building in which to operate a brass tube bending factory with special machinery of his own. A public meeting was held at which the Plymouth Improvement Association was born and which association took up the Upholt proposition and carried it through, some $1200 being donated by the people. Mr. Upholt asked for other privileges such as free lights and water and they were readily granted. Everything to assist him was done and when completed a written contract was entered into whereby the Upholt company bound themselves to remain in Plymouth for two years, have the use of the building free, with the option at the end of that period to purchase the building.

The business prospered and was on a fair business basis when about the first of August a mysterious fire occurred. The building was partially destroyed and some of the company's stock burned. The actual loss to the company was not heavy.

A few days afterward Mr. Upholt made the announcement that the company would leave Plymouth unless the people of the village would take hold and subscribe for at least $10,000 worth of stock, it being his claim that the company could do a much larger volume of business if they had more capital to swing on and could enlarge the plant.

A meeting of the board of directors of the improvement association was held at which it was decided to undertake getting the stock subscribed for and a committee was appointed for that purpose.

In the meantime, however, Mr. Upholt had begun negotiations to remove his plant elsewhere, provided suitable assistance could be obtained and visits to Saginaw and Ann Arbor were made.

Last week Thursday Mr. Upholt informed Mr. Voorhies, president of the association, that the stock would have to be raised by Saturday night or he would no longer consider Plymouth. The committee immediately got busy and by Monday forenoon had $7000 subscribed and the balance of the money in sight.

With everything demanded by Mr. Upholt ready to be acceded to, Monday noon the gentleman hied himself to Detroit and after a conference with his partners there, proceeded to Saginaw to conclude negotiations there. One of these partners stated Tuesday afternoon to Mr. E. L. Riggs, who happened to see him, that they had got done with Plymouth.

This is the history in brief of the Yates-Upholt Brass Co., and by that history it must be judged that the company appears to be rightly named—brass company. It takes a heap of "brass" to treat a community in the manner this company has treated Plymouth. Their word of honor, supplemented by a written agreement, is not apparently considered worth anything by them. Plymouth gave them every consideration, was willing to extend any assistance, but it is now known that after all this, the company had determined to leave Plymouth in any event. The bluff put up that the stock must be raised within a certain time is considered for what it is worth.

As we understand it, the company gets from Saginaw no more than they did from Plymouth—free building for two years and lights and water.

Rural Carriers to Make Pension Vouchers.

An order from the Postmaster General of the United States, contained in the Daily Bulletin of August 15, contains orders to rural mail carriers in regard to pensions which will be of great interest to all pensioners.

The order states that hereafter the rural mail carriers are empowered to administer any and all oaths which may be required to be made by pensioners and their witnesses in the execution of their vouchers with the same effect and force of officers having a seal, and they are authorized to charge and receive for each voucher not exceeding 25 cents to be paid by the pensioner. This order will be of great convenience to pensioners.

As usually treated a sprained ankle will disable a man for two or three weeks, but by applying Chamberlain's Liniment freely as soon as the injury is received, and observing the directions with each bottle, a cure can be effected in from two to four days. For sale by all druggists.

On May 13, 1908, Congress passed an act bestowing a bronze medal upon all participants in the navy during the war of the rebellion who were deemed worthy of commemorative recognition. The other day A. N. Brown, who served on the Commodore Perry during 1864, received one such medal and the venerable gentleman is highly pleased with it. That there have not been many such issued by the department is apparent by the number appearing on the edge of the medal—475. The government sometimes is a long time in recognizing the bravery of the defenders of the Nation in that awful war, but the recognition is none the less merited.

Thirty Dollars Disappear.

Conrad Hammond reports the loss of about $30 in cash. He alleges that on Sunday he gave his wife something like sixty dollars, nearly all in bills. She put the money in an envelope and laid it away in the drawer of a dresser. Hammond left Monday forenoon for Novi. That day Mrs. Hammond discovered the loss of the envelope containing the money, but searching about finally found three ten-dollar bills crumpled up behind one of the drawers. A pocket-book containing some change lay on the floor under the dresser. The balance of the money was missing. Marshal VanDeCar was notified and he made an investigation, but could find nothing suspicious. A screen from a rear window had been taken out and the window left open. Some potted plants on a shelf underneath the window had not been disturbed, however. A couple of boarders in the house were searched and questioned, but they clearly proved they knew nothing about it. The house had been locked up during Monday forenoon.

New Money Order.

Postoffice Department Making Change in Money Order Form.

By a new ruling of the postoffice department at Washington notice will not be given to receivers of postoffice money orders that there is money at the office awaiting payment, so in the future when you receive a money order go directly to the postoffice and get the order cashed, because Uncle Sam has changed his tactics and no longer will he jar your memory by a notice that there is some money in the office awaiting you.

A new type of postoffice money order has been made, and it will be in vogue now within a short time. It will not be used, however, until the old stock is exhausted. It is well for people to bear in mind the change that is to be made, so as to be prepared when the new kind of money order is received.

Uncle Sam has been solicitous under the old system about whether the person to whom an order was sent received the money, and if the order was not cashed within a certain time, notice was sent to the payee, also to the issuing postmaster and the remitter, but under the new system Uncle Sam relinquishes his job as reminder and the person to whom the order is sent must go to the office and have it cashed or go into the government's saving bank at Washington.

A detachable coupon containing particulars of the order and designed to take the place of the advice is the most distinctive form of the new form or order. It is to be delivered by the issuing official to the purchaser and presented with the order by the payee or indorsee at the paying office. The coupon is separated from the order by the clerk after payment and will be sent to the auditor. The names of the remitter and payee will not appear in the body of the order, but the sending of the coupon with the order will serve to acquaint or remind the payee of the name of the person entitled to credit for the remittance.

It is figured that the new system will be a great saving to the department, as the work of sending and receiving the advices under the old system will be eliminated. There will be a saving all over the country in clerical work under the new system, also in the mailing of the advices, the providing of stationery and envelopes and printing.

Chelsea Herald:—At the close of his pastorate of the Methodist church in Chelsea, Rev. E. E. Caster engaged to serve the Lima church for three months. On Sunday, September 11th, he shall have completed five years with that church. In the evening of that day he is to give a lecture for the benefit of the church, no admission fee stated, but each one will drop into the box whatever his purse may suggest. This will close his work with Lima.

Don't Take our Word

But go at once to your druggist and purchase a box of Dr. Herriek's Sugar Coated Pills. They are a positive cure for all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. Seven new members were received the past two Sundays.
Next Sunday is the last of the conference year and the pastor leaves for conference Tuesday. The reports will show one of the best years in the history of the Plymouth church, with an increase of membership, doubling the benevolences, raising the parsonage debt and every department of the church in fine working condition.

Mrs. Maud Brown Newton of Detroit, the newly elected supervisor of music in the Plymouth schools, will also give private lessons in singing. She would like to meet those who desire lessons at the school building in the kindergarten room, Tuesday, Sept. 20, and Thursday, Sept. 22, from 4 to 5:30 p. m. Terms, which will be reasonable, furnished on application. Mrs. Newton studied with John Dennis Mehan of New York City, also with Holmes Cowper of Chicago, and has had several years of successful teaching experience.

The Republican county convention was held in Detroit last Tuesday, George Gittins, George Springer and Wyman Bartlett being delegates from Plymouth. Everything went off lovely, the convention being in control of the Osborne forces. Milton Oakman was chairman of the convention. Geo. Springer was named as delegate from Plymouth to the Republican State convention to be held in Detroit Oct. 6th. W. H. Hoyt is the Plymouth member of the county committee.

An advertising service promoter from Chicago blew into this office the other day and breezily enquired if there were any "real live wire" advertisers in town. He made himself very familiar on short acquaintance, ripped open all the week's exchanges and departed. We haven't seen him since and conclude he found all the "real live wire ones" out or else "dead".

Up in the Air.

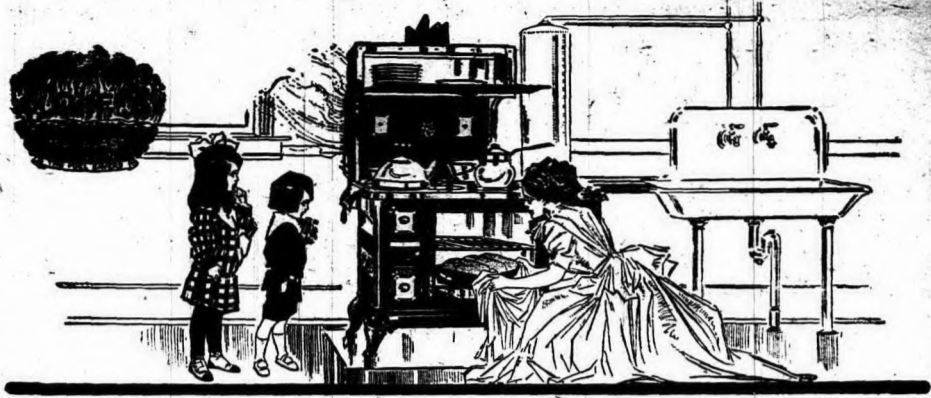

Glenn H. Curtiss was describing in New York his flight down the Hudson.

"The intelligent interest of the public in my aeroplanes and its operation," he said, "shows very plainly that people nowadays have a good general knowledge of aeroplanes. It wasn't always so. When I think of the stupid and useless questions about my machine that used to stagger me to the point of rudeness, I am reminded of Smith."

"Smith, meeting Jones one day, exclaimed: 'Hallo, Jones! You wearing glasses? What's that for?'"

"Jones, annoyed at the foolishness of the question, answered irritably: 'Course!'"

A COLONIAL FINISHED RANGE
We are introducing Cole's Down Draft Range which is the only Colonial Finished Range on the market today. This range requires less work to keep it clean than any other. It is plain in design, handsome in appearance, and if you buy it with a polished top, it requires no shining. Allow us to show you this new kitchen companion.

Home Made Bread Baked to Perfection

What is more palate-pleasing, more appetizing than wholesome home made bread? What is more annoying than an unsatisfactory oven to bake in after you have taken care and time in preparing your light bread? In order to bake properly you must have an oven that heats evenly—one that will retain the heat—one that is always level and one which can be regulated easily.

Cole's Down Draft Range

affords all these qualities and more. The Hot Blast Combustion burns the gases in soft coal. The flame from the burning gases is carried to the back lids and the entire top is thus evenly heated instead of only the two front lids. It also means that the temperature of the oven is kept at a given point without poking the fire or replenishing the fuel.

With a satisfactory oven—a quick-heating top—together with the Colonial Finish we know we offer you the most economical, the most convenient range made.

You should see Cole's Down Draft Range to appreciate it as we do. No trouble to show you all the detailed points embodied in this new range marvel.

Burns any kind of fuel—Soft Coal, Hard Coal, Lignite, Wood or Cobs. Made with or without large copper reservoir.

We want to furnish you with one of these satisfactory ranges. We invite you to call and inspect our line of Cole's Hot Blast Stoves and Ranges.

Furnished With Plain or Polished Top—Quick-Heating Malleable Lids.

A Twentieth Century Kingmaker

by Fred A. Boalt

TWO years ago Andrew Belton, twenty-six years old, went from London to Morocco on an impulse, kicked Aziz off the throne, put Mulai Hafid on it and returned to London by the next boat.

Now he is twiddling his thumbs and waiting for something to turn up in the king-making line. Kaid Belton—to give him his correct title—is the newest thing in twentieth century kingmakers.

Belton was in South Africa in 1908. He came to London on six months' leave. Two weeks of London fogs and drizzle and the prospect of a half-year of inactivity filled him with disgust.

Then a friend wrote him that he had been commissioned by a syndicate to secure a mining concession in Morocco from a pretender to the throne named Mulai Hafid. Would Belton like to go along?

MULAI HAFID

"THE LAST OF THE DEBELIS" FROM MARSHES OF BENVENUTI CONSTANT

He met the friend in Tangier, and the two were joined by a third Englishman, Redman, who had been brought up in Morocco, knew the natives and spoke Arabic fluently.

At Larache, a port eighty miles south of Tangier, they succeeded, by the aid of the British vice consul, in hiring mules to take them to Alcazar, a town twenty miles inland, which was held by the troops of Sulthan Aziz.

The sultan had issued an edict forbidding natives to assist Europeans. Their muleteer refused to go further than Alcazar, as the tribes were carrying on the jihad (holy war) against the Christians. So they employed a notorious brigand and horse thief, one Abselem, to take them through to Fez.

Dressed as Moorish women, the Englishmen reached the gates of Fez on July 13, to be informed that the pretender and his court had arrived three days before.

Next morning they sent a messenger to the grand vizier that three Englishmen desired an audience with the sultan. At noon the following day two soldiers came to them from the vizier and escorted them to a house which had been placed at their disposal at Mulai Hafid's order.

They remained indoors until the 18th, when a mounted escort conducted them to the palace.

Arrayed as Moors of the highest class, they were received by Kaid Meshwar, the master of ceremonies, who carried a tall wand with a silver knob, and who preceded them up a staircase and into a long, narrow room, where, at the further end, sat Mulai Hafid, cross-legged on a dark green velvet couch.

His two viziers, El Glawi and Si Alssa, were sitting on his left. Walking slowly the kaid advanced to within three paces of the throne, bowed, introduced the Englishmen simply as three strangers anxious for an audience, bowed thrice, and retired a little way.

The pretender smilingly motioned them to be seated on three chairs placed on his right, and then said: "Marrhaba bi kum" ("You are welcome").

Belton's first impression was that he had never seen a handsomer man. This is his description of him: "A very high, broad forehead, with large black eyes full of light, which sparkle with genuine merriment when he is amused; a big, straight nose; fairly full cheeks, a square, resolute jaw, and the firmest of mouths, set off by a black beard and a small mustache. His complexion is a deep olive; and when he stood up I saw he was well over six feet in height, and finely proportioned to a magnificent physique." He came to business at once.

"Why are you in Fez?" he asked.

The concession was named, the price stated, and the pretender ordered Si Alssa to go into the matter further.

"And you?" questioned Mulai Hafid, pointing to Belton.

"I am a soldier," said the future kingmaker.

"I have come to offer my services."

"Allah, Allah!" the pretender repeated very slowly; then asked many questions.

Then came Redman's turn. What did he want? He would be useful to Belton as a khalifa (right-hand man).

On the 25th Belton and Redman were again summoned before the pretender, this time in an inclosure close by the palace, where 4,000 troops—infantry, cavalry and artillery—were drawn up and waiting.

"There are some of my soldiers," the pretender said; "see what you can do with them."

The boy—he was little more—was game. The maneuvers that afternoon were distinctly "smart." At the finish he was given command over 7,000 troops of all arms.

He made those half-wild tribesmen drill as they had never drilled before. He overhauled the arsenal and government stores. He wrote to his commanding officer in South Africa tendering his resignation. He was no longer Lieut. Belton of a British regiment of infantry; he was Kaid Belton, kingmaker.

The mahalla of Aziz at Alcazar deserted and proclaimed Mulai Hafid sultan. The event swelled the pretender's army by 1,200 fighting men. All through the fall and winter Belton worked on his raw material, and by spring had a superb fighting force, disciplined as well as fearless.

In June of last year Aziz dispatched a strong mahalla to march against Marrakesh. Belton, with 15,000 men and artillery, met the sultan's army within four hours of Marrakesh, routed it with heavy loss, and scattered it. Aziz himself only escaped by hasty flight to Settati, the nearest French military post, from which he afterwards journeyed to Casablanca under a French escort.

The tribes and towns proclaimed Mulai Hafid sultan amid great rejoicing. He, on learning of the victory of his southern mahalla, notified the diplomatic corps at Tangier of his wish to be recognized by the powers of Europe and assuring them of his readiness to accept the act of Algieras.

The whole of the diplomatic corps, with one exception, ignored the communication. The exception was Dr. Vassel, the German consul, who recognized Mulai Hafid as the rightful ruler of Morocco.

On Sept. 10 Belton received from the hands of Mulai Hafid his commission, giving him control over the whole of the army and conferring upon him the title of Kaid of Ascar (kaid of the troops).

Aziz was safe in Tangier, but his brother, Mulai Mohammed, whom Aziz had imprisoned when he came to the throne, had been released and was starting another revolution in Casablanca. Belton met and defeated Mulai Mohammed's army and took him prisoner.

That was in October of last year. On Nov. 18 Mulai Mohammed was brought to Bab el Buchat, where Mulai Hafid was. On the following morning, in the presence of 4,000 of Belton's troops, Mulai Abselem M'rani, an uncle of Mulai Hafid, was tried for treason by the cadis. He had been in treasonable correspondence with Mulai Mohammed.

The cadis found him guilty and sentenced him to have the palms of his hands cut and sewn in a single leathern glove so that he could write no more letters. The punishment was carried out.

That same day Belton took his courage in both hands and address Sultan Mulai Hafid in this wise: "You are still waiting for European recognition. You will wait long if you continue such practices. The powers will hear of this punishment through the French press, which is hostile to you."

The remonstrance had its effect. A week later Belton saw the uncle. The glove had been taken off his hands and the wounds were almost healed.

One by one the power recognized Mulai Hafid, and Kaid Belton was an amused witness of a tug of war between the diplomats of Germany, France and Spain, who were all pulling for favors and concessions from the man they had been so loath to recognize. Naturally, Dr. Vassel, the German consul, was the new sultan's favorite. German syndicates got valuable mining concessions which France wanted.

France retaliated by re-establishing the military mission which had been with Aziz at the time of his defeat. This move threatened Belton's supremacy. The sultan gave him an opening.

"You looked worried, commander, when I saw you on parade. What is wrong?" he asked.

Kaid Belton replied: "I am worried. Are these French officers going to serve under me, or am I going to serve under them?"

"I cannot give you an answer to any of those questions tonight," the sultan replied, "but whatever happens, remember this, that people who are forced on me will never be my friends."

That very night Belton dispatched a mahalla against Alt Yussel, who was plundering caravans and travelers. The force was held in check by tribesmen and the sultan ordered Belton to conduct the campaign against the bandit in person. He went reluctantly, for the court was tense with intrigue and the French were straining every nerve to get their military mission established.

He caught up with Alt Yussel and after five hours of hard fighting defeated him, compelled him to surrender and collected heavy indemnities. Then he hurried back to Fez, wondering what his enemies had been doing in his absence.

Ominous news awaited his return. Germany had agreed to give France a free hand in Morocco on condition that Germany's commerce was not restricted. The French minister had visited Fez.

Belton went straight to the sultan who said: "You have heard the news?"

"The agreement? Yes. It was a surprise to me."

"A greater surprise to me," the sultan replied. Germany had kept, not only the sultan, but her own consul, Dr. Vassel, in ignorance of the negotiations. While Dr. Vassel was assuring the sultan that Germany would not desert him in his time of need, Germany was doing that very thing. Neither knew the thing was going to be done until after it was done.

The next six weeks Belton spent in studying French diplomacy. The French officers shunned him, cut him, described him as a renegade. The sultan replied to these slanders that Belton had served him well. The French replied that French officers would serve him equally well.

The sultan refused flatly to part with Belton. In the spring there were uprisings, which Belton put down. At Fez the undercurrent of intrigue continued to flow, and the French were slowly gaining ground. The treasury was empty. The creditors of Aziz were clamoring to be paid. France was the chief creditor, and the French were offering further loans.

Belton broke the power of the handit tribes and posted back to Fez. He demanded to see the sultan. An audience was refused. He waited days and weeks, repeating his demand. He appealed to the grand vizier, reciting what he had done in the sultan's service. The hardships he had borne and the excitements and the dangers had turned his hair white. His health was broken.

The sultan would not see him, would not explain. He, worried, harassed and bullied by the French, was ashamed to face the young Englishman who had placed him on the throne and confessed to him that he had no choice but to let him go.

He decided it would be better to resign at once than to be kicked out later by the French. He tendered his resignation to the sultan through the foreign minister.

The resignation was accepted, presumably with regret, and Belton lost no time in returning to London. Since his return the sultan has conferred on him the insignia of a grand officer of the Orders of Mohammed and Mulai Indress for distinguished services to the Moroccan empire.

Two badges and a star are all he has to remind him of the days when he essayed the role of kingmaker.

A FIDDLER LURES COYOTES TO DEATH

PLAYING OF OLD-TIME MELODIES DRAWS ANIMALS WITHIN RIFLE RANGE.

DAD PLAYS AND SON SHOOT

Ninety-Five Slain While Entranced by Strains of "Home, Sweet Home" and "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight."

Eli, Neb.—Having read of music being used to induce cows to give larger quantities of milk and of birds being charmed by the playing of a mouth organ, John Peterson, owner of a large ranch a few miles south of this place, has tried his violin on coyotes with great success.

Peterson is considered by folks in this community as being an artist on the violin. He plays for all the country dances, and fills an important niche in a local orchestra. He has a local reputation of "making a fiddle talk."

After reading stories in the newspapers of how animals and birds were attracted by music, he said to Mrs. Peterson: "I'll just try it on those pesky coyotes."

A few days later he and his son, Henry, sixteen years old, took a repeating rifle, a large supply of ammunition and a violin and repaired to a shed near the center of the 5,000-acre sand hill ranch.

Seating himself on a soap box in the doorway of the stable, and grasping his violin, Peterson began to play. He ground out the "Devil's Dream," "Fisher's Hornpipe," "When the Flowers Bloom Again" and a dozen other similar airs. None of them brought the coyotes.

Peterson was a little skeptical and somewhat disgusted. Then he tried some of his best "ragtime." Hardly had he finished his first selection when there came a yelp from over a hill to the left, and a little later an answering yelp from the right, followed by still others from other directions. Coyotes commenced to appear and in a few minutes the stable was encircled by the animals, all sitting on their haunches, howling in unison, and evidently trying to keep time to the music.

Peterson sawed away on his instrument, but not a coyote would come within the range of Harry's rifle. Then the fiddler decided to try something more plaintive. Dropping ragtime, he started to dish out "Home, Sweet Picking Off the Coyotes.

Home." Hardly had he struck a dozen notes when the circle of coyotes, like one coyote, arose to their feet. They stopped howling and commenced to walk toward the stable.

By the time that Peterson had finished "Home, Sweet Home," the animals were within a quarter of a mile. When he stopped for a moment they also stopped. Again he played ragtime, and the coyotes squatted upon their haunches and commenced to howl, apparently disgusted. They began to retreat.

But Peterson was equal to the occasion and he quickly began to play "We Shall Meet to Miss Him" and "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" The effect was like magic. Apparently electrified by the music, the coyotes snuffed the air, and, striking a rapid gait, began to close in on the stable.

Harry began to shoot with unerring aim, and an animal, sometimes two or three of them, fell at each crack of the rifle. Animal after animal went down, but this did not seem to create any consternation among the pack. On they came, and from window to window the boy went, shooting at the advancing column, while his father kept on playing dreamy melodies. The lad fired until all his cartridges were gone. As the last shot was fired the father laid down his bow. Immediately the unwounded coyotes fled for the hills.

An investigation showed that 95 animals had been killed, while nearly half that number were wounded so as to be easily put out of commission.

DIDN'T "GET" THE QUOTATION

Boston Reporter, Unlike Most Newspaper Men, Was Unfamiliar With the Scriptures.

The "cub" reporter is the greenest reporter on the staff of a newspaper. When anything particularly stupid happens on the paper, he is the first to be accused, and he is usually rightly accused. The only salvation for him is to improve, which he does in nine cases out of a dozen. The Boston Journal told recently of an amusing "break" of a wholly innocent nature which a certain cub made. It shows anything, it shows that a thorough training in the Bible is useful in other walks of life than the ministry.

The reporter had been sent to a suburb to report a sermon. He arrived late, near the close of the service, and took a seat near the door. When the last hymn was over, he asked his neighbor, an elderly gentleman:

"What was the text of the sermon?"

"Who Art Thou?" replied the other.

"Boston reporter," replied the other. The man smiled. Subsequently he told the preacher, who next Sunday told the congregation—at the cub's expense.—Youth's Companion.

"The Wish Is Father to the Thought." Dr. Robert L. Waggoner, the president of Baldwin university, said, in the course of an address on pedagogy at Berea, O.:

"And one of the most remarkable changes in the last 30 years of teaching is the abolition of corporal punishment. A boy of this generation is never whipped. But a boy of the last generation—well!"

Doctor Waggoner smiled.

"The boys of the last generation," he said, "must have believed that their instructors all had for motto:

"The wish is father to the taught!"

Not That Meaning.

"The doctor said that Bill was drunk when we took the poor fellow to have his head attended to last night after he fell."

"Doctor never said anything of the kind!"

"Didn't I hear him? Said it was a jagged cut."

PRESSED HARD.
Coffee's Weight on Old Age.

When prominent men realize the injurious effects of coffee and the change in health that Postum can bring, they are glad to lend their testimony for the benefit of others.

A superintendent of public schools in a Southern state says: "My mother, since her early childhood, was an inveterate coffee drinker, had been troubled with her heart for a number of years and complained of that 'weak all over' feeling and sick stomach."

"Some time ago I was making an official visit to a distant part of the country and took dinner with one of the merchants of the place. I noticed a somewhat peculiar flavor of the coffee, and asked him concerning it. He replied that it was Postum. I was so pleased with it that, after the meal was over, I bought a package to carry home with me, and had wife prepare some for the next meal; the whole family liked it so well that we discontinued coffee and used Postum entirely."

"I had really been at times very anxious concerning my mother's condition, but we noticed that after using Postum for a short time, she felt so much better than she did prior to its use, and had little trouble with her heart and no sick stomach; that the headaches were not so frequent, and her general condition much improved. This continued until she was as well and hearty as the rest of us."

"I know Postum has benefited myself and the other members of the family, but in a more marked degree in the case of my mother, as she was a victim of long standing."

Have you read the above letter? I have seen reports from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

WOMAN GOES TO JAIL DOOR TO DIE

DISTRESSED AND STARVING BRIDE FAINTS NEAR IMPRISONED HUSBAND'S CELL.

MAN HELD AS COUNTERFEITER

Woman Says Helpmeet Is Innocent. Having Been Arrested Through Mistake But Begs Privilege of Sharing His Lot.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Faint from lack of nourishment, seriously ill, and without a place to shelter her, the prostrate form of a woman was found lying on the stone steps of the entrance to the county jail just after the big outside doors had been thrown open the other morning.

The woman proved to be Mrs. Annie Bruwarski. She had gone to the big prison, where her husband, Stanley Bruwarski, is confined on a charge of counterfeiting, to die. The case is one of the most unusual and pathetic that has confronted the county officials in years.

Mrs. Bruwarski was carried into one of the anterooms and revived. On recovering consciousness she asked:

"Please take me to my husband. I feel that I am going to die and want to be with him when the end comes."

Being informed that was impossible she requested that she be allowed to see him for a few minutes. Warden Edward Lewis granted the request. The interview was a brief one. Then the husband, who is a United States prisoner, was led back to his cell. His wife swooned again.

After considerable work she was revived. In reply to a question she said:

"I lived at East Pittsburg until yesterday, but had no more money to pay rent. My husband is the only one I can go to. I am too sick to do any kind of work and am hungry. If I could only be with him it would be some comfort to me. What is his lot is not too hard for me."

The word "hungry" had scarcely left the woman's mouth before preparations were being made to overcome this feature of her misfortune. She ate ravenously and then continued her harrowing story.

"My husband went to the grocery store where we lived in East Pittsburg one day to pay a bill. He was given a lot of money in exchange for what he handed the storekeeper. He came home and showed it to me. I put the money in a trunk along with our savings. We were getting along fine and had only been married a few months.

"I was very happy until one day my husband came home and said they were going to put him in jail. It was something about bad money. I could not understand it all. He said he was going away and would send for me. He took nearly all of our savings with him. Men came and asked for him, but I told them he had gone. Then one day I was told he was in jail. I managed to get along until I got sick and could not work.

"All of my friends that used to know me before I was married would not help me. They said my husband was a bad man. I spent nearly all my money for something to eat two days ago and have not had anything since. The last dime I had I spent to ride in on the car from East Pittsburg. I wanted to see my husband for a little while before I died."

Bruwarski was arrested in Boston on a charge of having in his possession and passing counterfeit money. He was brought back on requisition papers. In default of bail he was placed in jail for trial. Since that time his wife has been compelled to shift for herself, despite the fact that she is a young delicate woman of less than twenty years.

The woman so thoroughly aroused the sympathy of Warden Lewis that he immediately interested Director of the Poor H. W. Oches. She was removed to his office. Her story was thoroughly investigated and found to be true in every respect.

"OLD GUARD" DOWNED.

Insurgents Carry Washington; Poindexter is Sent to Senate.

In the insurgent storm that swept over the state of Washington at the primaries the "old guard" of the Republican party lost everything.

Miles Poindexter, of Spokane, an insurgent leader in the present house, was nominated for United States senator by 40,000 plurality, carrying every county in the state, defeating his leading opponent, Judge Burke, of Seattle, in Burke's own precinct, and carrying Pierce county, the some of the other regular candidate, James M. Ashton.

President Taft made an effort two weeks ago, through Secretary Ballinger, to concentrate the opposition to Mr. Poindexter in one regular candidate. The president obtained the withdrawal of former Senator John L. Wilson, of Seattle, according to Mr. Wilson, but James M. Ashton, of Tacoma, and Thomas Burke, of Seattle, insisted on remaining in the race and dividing the regular vote.

The balloting shows that a concentration of the regulars would not have won.

Law School Schedule Changed.

Official announcement was made at Ann Arbor of the acceptance of the deanship of the law department of the University of Michigan by Prof. Henry M. Bates. He was appointed some time ago.

Because Prof. Brewster will take a year's leave of absence and President Hutchins has decided to not teach in the law department, a rearrangement of the schedules has been made. The course in equity formerly given by President Hutchins will be given by Prof. Bogle; the course in evidence and constitutional law formerly given by Prof. Lane will be given by Prof. Bates the first semester. He will give a course in wills, the second semester. Prof. Sunderland will give courses in medical jurisprudence and taxation formerly given by Prof. Brewster.

Orders Switch Lights.

The state railway commission issued an order to the D. U. R. that the road must install switch stands with switch lights on all main line switches on their respective lines. The order also informs the D. U. R. that targets used in the daytime shall be equipped similar to the steam roads and that they shall plainly show an approaching car whether or not a switch is turned against the car.

The order, which has been under consideration since the recent wreck at Harris Sidings, on the Flint line, was directed to be sent out immediately.

Commissioner Dickinson stated that the present ground switches of the road are not in conformity with the state law and do not provide ample protection to passengers.

Gerbracht Gets Two Years.

Ernest W. Gerbracht, former superintendent of the Williamsburg refinery of the American Sugar Refining Co. who with Charles R. Heike, former secretary and treasurer of the company, was convicted last spring of conspiracy to defraud the government by the underweighing of sugar, was sentenced at New York to two years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta and fined $5,000 by Judge Martin in the United States court.

More than half the electors of Benzie county have signed petitions for the submission of the local option question. The county went "dry" two years ago.

TINY BABY'S PITIFUL CASE

"Our baby when two months old was suffering with terrible eczema from head to foot, all over her body. The baby looked just like a skinned rabbit. We were unable to put clothes on her. At first it seemed to be a few matted pimples. They would break the skin and peel off leaving the underneath skin red as though it were scalded. Then a few more pimples would appear and spread all over the body, leaving the baby all raw without skin from head to foot. On top of her head there appeared a heavy scab a quarter of an inch thick. It was awful to see so small a baby look as she did. Imagine! The doctor was afraid to put his hands to the child. We tried several doctors' remedies but all failed.

"Then we decided to try Cuticura. By using the Cuticura Ointment we softened the scab and it came off. Under this, where the real matter was, by washing with the Cuticura Soap and applying the Cuticura Ointment, a new skin soon appeared. We also gave baby four drops of the Cuticura Resolvent three times daily. After three days you could see the baby gaining a little skin which would peel off and heal underneath. Now the baby is four months old. She is a fine picture of a fat little baby and all is well. We only used one cake of Cuticura Soap, two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one bottle of Cuticura Resolvent. If people would know what Cuticura is there would be few suffering with eczema. Mrs. Joseph Kossmann, 7 St. John's Place, Ridgewood Heights, N. Y., Apr. 30 and May 4, '09."

"Why did you write to all our guests that this party was to be absolutely informal?"

"Mrs. Blank laughed.

"So as to be the best-dressed woman present, of course," she said.

The readers of the paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh of the Bladder. This is the only reliable cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Kidney-Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the formation of the disease, and the patient's strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have much to say for the positive cure that they offer. One Hundred Dollars for any case that fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

WESTERN CANADA'S 1910 CROPS

Wheat Yield in Many Districts Will Be From 25 to 35 Bushels Per Acre

Land sales and homestead entries increasing. No cessation in numbers going from United States. Wonderful opportunities remain for those who intend making Canada their home. New districts being opened up for settlement. Many farmers will net this year $10 to $25 per acre from their wheat crop. All the advantages of old settled countries are there—schools, churches, splendid markets, excellent railway facilities. See the grain exhibit at the different State and some of the County fairs.

Letters similar to the following are received every day, testifying to satisfactory conditions; other districts are as favorably spoken of:

THEY WANT FOR THEIR SON.
 Middleton, Sask., Canada, Aug. 28, 1910.
 "My parents came here from Detroit, Mich., four years ago, and were so well pleased with this country they sent to their father in law for me. I have taken up a homestead near them, and am perfectly satisfied to stay here."
 Leonard Douglas.

WANTS SETTLER'S RATE FOR HIS STOCK.
 Stettler, Alberta, July 31st, 1910.
 "I am going back there now because I have an other one up here this fall. What I would like to know is, if there is any chance to get a cheap rate back again, and when we return to Canada I will call at your office for my certificate."
 Yours truly,
 H. A. WIL.

WILL MAKE HIS HOME IN CANADA.
 Redwood, Minn., Aug. 1st, 1910.
 "I am going to Canada a week from today and intend to make my home there. I have been there six weeks and I am well pleased with the country; so I want to come to you as soon as possible. He had on a plain near Lands, Sask., and by his description of it it must be a pretty place."

Send the literature and ask the local Canadian Government Agents for Excursion Rates, best districts in which to locate, and when to go.

SOME MAN SOME DAY

May Make a Medicine for Brights Disease, Rheumatism, Stomach and Bladder Trouble the Equal of SAN-JAK, BUT NOT YET.

It is the Only Medicine which Enables You to Keep a Perfect Balance Between the Eliminations and Renewals of the Body.

Decay of the Body in Old Age is Un-natural.

Permanent wastes of the system can be avoided by taking SAN-JAK, making each day a birthday for the person who has a bottle of this great medicine on hand. Read and learn how to cure Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Rheumatism, Lame Back and Stomach Diseases.

When the products of exhaustion reach the brain and deaden the nerve centers, as in the case with all old people, limiting their ability to think and act unless they have the power to oxidize the acids that accumulate during sleep and eliminate them, they have better get a bottle of Dr. Burnham's San-Jak. I am 80 years old and have kept a bottle of this medicine in my house during the past year and take a dose quite often so I know it helps to give strength and activity.—D. O. Kelly, 311 Washburn st., Lansing.

Mrs. I. M. Brown, mistress of the Butler House, Lansing, Mich., says: One year ago I was in very poor health, sick and weak from that most dreaded disease, Kidney trouble, called "Bright's disease" by physicians. I have taken about one dozen bottles of San-Jak and have no symptoms of old troubles to annoy me. I give this letter for the benefit it may be to others.

Owosso, Mich., May 24, '08.
Dr. Burnham: Your inquiry as to my health in reply I have taken 8 bottles of your San-Jak and can cheerfully recommend it as the best medicine I ever found and the only one that cured me of diabetes. I am doing better work than I ever did and I am perfectly well.
Yours respectfully,
F. B. HOLMAN.

J. F. Roe, 41 E. Main st., Battle Creek, says: I wish to state that your San-Jak cured me of Bright's disease after the local doctors said I could not live.

E. S. Hough, ex-judge of probate of Lapeer county, says: "I bought a bottle of San-Jak of P. P. Showman, the druggist of Lapeer. I felt I was 100 years old, with great distress of the stomach, and a drowsy, sleepy feeling, which the medicine has corrected. I cheerfully permit the use of this letter for the benefit of others."
EDGAR S. HOUGH.

Lapeer, Mich., March 10, 1908.
Mrs. T. S. Curtis, R. F. D. No. 2, Lapeer, says: "I wish to tell you how much good your San-Jak has done me. I have had the rheumatism and liver trouble 17 years. Sometimes my feet and limbs were swollen so I could not wear my shoes. I have taken one and one-half bottles of your remedy. The blot has all gone down. The pain gradually left and the stiff joints are getting more limber. I think 3 or 4 bottles of your San-Jak will cure me completely. Here thanks in words is a feeble way of telling how grateful I feel for the benefits bestowed upon me by your medicine."

St. John's, Mich., March 12, '08.
Mrs. John Pitta says: "I have been in very poor health for the past seven years and have since childhood been afflicted with sick headache. I have taken 4 bottles of San-Jak and it has done me a wonderful good. I am now able to do light work and gaining in strength. I wish every lady in Michigan could have a bottle of this medicine in the world for the fact that my case was hopeless and my physicians said I could not be helped by medicine."

It restores the aged to health and youth. No remedy equal to San-Jak as a blood tonic. The tired feeling leaves you like magic.

We will give $100 to any church or charitable institution if these testimonials are not genuine.

Her Case of Nerves

The summer girl who was sitting on the end of the pier with the young man who was so beautifully gotten up in white flannels that he looked like the new artistic kind of clothing advertisements in the magazines suddenly pressed her hand against her heart, turned pale and moaned, "Oh! Oh!"

"What is it?" cried the young man, startled.

The summer-resort girl opened the corner of one eye, surveyed the pier and then opened both of them. "It's begun," she said. "Drowning the children, I mean," she explained further. "It's worse this year because there are more children here at the inn. And they are really such nice-looking ones that it seems a pity—"

"Would you mind telling me—" interrupted the young man, still staring at her.

"Not in the least," said the summer-resort girl. "Only I should think you could see for yourself. The place is full of devoted mothers with the most artistic get-ups in the way of hair I ever saw and they dress their infants in perfectly fascinating garments and then lead them outdoors and practically say, 'Now, darlings, run along and see how nicely you can drown yourselves! Mother's right here to watch you do it!' Or else they have an infinite trust in the watchful care of Providence.

"Sometimes they have nurses to help watch the children and then it's worse!"

"What startled me just now," explained the summer-resort girl, "was Tommy—the one in the white pique and red belt and socks! Yes, his mother is sitting on that bench right there and she was gazing with dreamy, placid eyes at him as he tried to walk the extreme edge of the pier between those two posts. The water is twelve feet deep along there.

"Mrs. Eckers arrived yesterday with Joseph and Philip and that is positively the last straw! All last summer I wore myself to a perfect frazzle seeing Joseph and Philip commit suicide a dozen times a day! If that woman doesn't succeed in drowning them this year I should think she would be a little discouraged, because she certainly tried hard enough last season, and now she's beginning all over again.

"Joseph was 4 last year and Philip was not quite 2 and he moved as agilely as a lightning bug. He had a pleasant little trick of darting from the center of the pier straight at the water. The nurse always caught him just as he was going over the edge, but between his start and his finish I nearly died from terror. Because, you see, sooner or later the nurse is certain to be a half second behind time in the little game. In imagination I can just hear Philip splash and gurgle as he surges under the pier, where no human being can get him!

"Mrs. Eckers is the woman over there with the face of an appealing angel and the lingerie dress that cost $200 if it cost a cent! Just a few minutes ago everybody was having fits because Joseph was standing with one foot on the pier and the other on the ferry boat, pushing it out and trying to fall in between the boat and the pier. She was the only human being in sight who wasn't frenzied.

"When that nice old gentleman took Joseph by the collar and yanked him inland and he yelled she merely murmured, 'Dear me! What is Joseph doing now? Something, I suppose! Those children know they have me at their mercy! Their father wrote yesterday that if they would not mind I was to shut them in their room and save my nerves!'

"Now, when a real grown-up woman pretends that she can't manage two small, fragile infants like those it is simply infuriating! She ought to be ashamed of herself!

"The Jofords, evidently after much thought, have decided that the best way of disposing of their Arthur, aged 12, is to put a sail on a canoe and turn him out on the raging lake in it. There he goes now, and if he doesn't tip over before the week is out I'll eat my hat!"

"You don't wear hats up here," said the young man, who was literal.

"I'll eat it anyhow," declared the summer-resort girl, grimly. "There's no limit to my achievements when I get nervous!"

"It does seem to me," she went on, "that the only people up here who have the slightest bit of caution or sense about managing children are the people who haven't any children. You can laugh, but if you had to jump into the water in all the glory of that white suit of yours to fish out some youngster you'd feel different!"

"That wouldn't be necessary," said the young man. "There are such a lot of children around that I don't think one or two would be missed at all. Especially the ones who played tag in the corridor in front of my room early this morning—hello!"

In another instant the young man in white flannel was clambering agilely across two boats and grabbing wildly at something white in the water. What he fished out was nothing but a bunch of newspapers.

"It was all your fault!" he told the summer-resort girl afterward when the hilarity had died down. "Your nervousness made me nervous and I saw things! If women with nerves aren't the limit!"

If it's a surface to be painted, enameled, stained, varnished or finished in any way, there's an Acme Quality Kind to fit the purpose.

5 Strong Reasons for Fall Painting

1. The wood is thoroughly dry.
Summer's sun has removed all moisture.
2. Paint penetrates deeper into dry wood.
The deeper it goes the better it holds.
3. Fall weather is warm, dry and dependable.
Little danger of cold, damp, rainy days, which endanger the durability of the paint.
4. Wet weather decays and destroys unprotected surfaces.
Lack of paint means unsightly and less valuable property.
5. Fall painting keeps out winter moisture.
The greatest enemy to the life and beauty of all structures.

Ask us about ACME QUALITY HOUSE PAINT. It insures the greatest protection and beauty, at the least cost per year of service. Questions cheerfully answered.
