Don't trifle with a cold is good advice to prudent men and women. It may be vital in case of a child. There is nothing better than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs and colds in children. It is safe and sure. For sale by all dealers.

NEWBURG.

One of the most successful fairs and home comings ever held in Newburg occurred at the hall last Friday afternoon and evening, when upwards of 275 people partook of a fine supper. Also enjoyed a social time meeting old friends who were there in large numbers from Detroit, Lansing, Romulus, Farmington, Wayne, Plymouth and the neighborhood in general. The L. A. S. wish to thank all those who so kindly assisted in making this 18th annual fair a success. Our girls did fine in decorating the dining room with autumn leaves and berries, also waiting table. One hundred and twenty-three dollars was received from all sources, adding a nice sum to the treasury. Lew. Krumm won first prize for the finest potatoes, Wilber Broadbent second.

Whitney Smith of Lansing attended the fair and is visiting friends in the vicinity.

Mrs. Arthur Pattullo of Cincinnati was called to Ann Arbor last week Saturday to see her mother, who is quite ill at that place. Mrs. P. spent Sunday night and Monday at the home of her sister, Mrs. W. R. LeVan and also took dinner with Mrs. C. E. Ryder Monday, returning to her home Tuesday.

For Sewer on Mill Street

Be it further resolved that the Village Clerk cause the following notice to be published for three weeks in succession in the Plymouth Mail, a newspaper published in the village of Plymouth:

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Notice is hereby given that it is the intention of the Common Council of the village of Plymouth, State of Michigan, to construct a public sewer along Mill street, in said village, beginning at a man-hole in the west gutter of said street and about two hundred feet south of the south line of Main street; and extending thence northerly along said Mill street to Spring street; and that the whole or part of the expense of said sewer will be assessed on the lots or lands fronting or abutting on the street above named in proportion, as near as may be, to the benefit which each of the aforesaid pieces or parcels of land will receive by reason of said public improvement; that maps, plans, specifications, drawing, diagrams and estimates of the cost of said sewer are now on file in the office of the Village Clerk, subject to public inspection; and the Common Council of the village of Plymouth will meet at the Common Council rooms in said village on the 26th day of October, A. D. 1911, at 7:30 o'clock P. M. for the purpose of hearing objections and suggestions in regard to said improvement.

By order of the Common Council.

C. A. HEARN, Village Clerk.

Dated this 9th day of October, 1911.

BREEDS FOOLS BY SCORE

Sensational Murder Cases, Especially Where Woman Is Involved, Produce Many Kinds of Idiots.

Every sensational murder case breeds a large crop of fools. Especially if a woman is involved, there is always plenty of idiotic people pressing themselves forward for notoriety or anonymous association with the tragedy. In the latest Richmond crime there has been the usual output of sensation seeking cranks and maudlin sympathizers, reaching a climax in the man who offered to sacrifice himself in the place of the accused husband for the sum of $5,000. This man, however, is no worse than the writers of letters to the woman witness now held in custody offering themselves in marriage to her.

The abnormality that leads people to take a keen personal interest in persons accused of participation in the most revolting crimes passes understanding. There was, for instance, the case of Ethel Levee, the companion and possible accomplice of Crippen, who slew his wife in London. No sooner had the pair been captured on their flight to Canada than the girl was besieged with matrimonial and theatrical offers, some of them in most alluring terms. People who had never seen her wrote to her letters of endearment that they should have been ashamed even to acknowledge.

Without doubt, the woman in this Richmond case could even without the slightest suggestion of talent, make a comfortable fortune on the stage. She has already received what are described as attractive offers from vaudeville managers, her acceptance of which is necessarily somewhat handicapped by the uncertainty of her future. Why any one would want to see such a person in a public performance is beyond comprehension. Yet the fact remains that there is a tremendous, unwholesome curiosity to see such people.—Washington Star.

The Irish Ambassador.

At an international wedding in Washington, order was preserved in the streets near the church by a squad of policemen under the command of Capt. Daniel Sullivan, who is famous for his politeness. A young man representing a metropolitan daily paper stationed himself near Sullivan and took down the names of the prominent people as they alighted from their carriage and entered the church.

Sullivan's diction was partly as follows:

"The British Ambassador. The Senators from Maryland. The German Ambassador. The Irish Ambassador. The Bishop of Washington."

When the reporter returned to the office and looked over the list he was astounded to see the note, "The Irish Ambassador," as he realized that Ireland, being a part of Great Britain, has no diplomatic representative of its own. After much trouble, he got Sullivan on the telephone.

"What do you mean by 'The Irish Ambassador'?" he was asked in great haste. "Who is he?"

"Why, he's Capt. Daniel Sullivan," replied Sullivan. "Ain't I a policeman?"—Popular Magazine.

Emergency Thought.

The Fare—Now, cabman, I wish you to be extremely careful. When you come to a crossing you must wait until the policeman tells you to go on, and if the streets are slippery you must drive very slowly.

Baby—All right, mum; I'll be very careful, mum. And in case of a accident, mum, which 'spital would you like to be took to?—Bystander.

Varieties of Oranges and Lemons.

Oranges and lemons of excellent quality have reached this country from Rhodesia. The introduction of both these fruits into Europe is more recent than many suppose. A native of India, the orange came to us by way of western Asia, the bitter orange being brought in by returning Crusaders and the sweet variety not coming until the fifteenth century, when Genoese traders introduced the tree into Italy. The lemon was brought into Spain by the Arabs in the twelfth century. According to the experts there are 47 varieties of lemons and 80 of oranges.—London Chronicle.

According to Her Estimate.

"You and your husband celebrate your silver wedding next week, do you?"

"Yes; next Wednesday."

"Does it seem possible that you have lived together 25 years?"

"I should say it didn't! Harry's a traveling man for a wholesale Queensware house and we've lived together just three years, eleven months and nineteen days."

A Diagnosis.

"I know why barbers succeed in preventing other men from getting in a word edgewise."

"Why is it?"

"Because they are always cutting the other men short."

Too Suspicious.

"Say, what does a tailor mean when he's measuring you for a suit of clothes and sings out 'R. B.'?"

"That means 'round backed.'"

"Gee! I thought he meant 'regular heat,' and I slugged him for it!"

MAY TEST CASE OF THE GILES LAW

LEGISLATORS PASS ACT WHICH REQUIRES COMPANIES TO EXCHANGE SERVICE.

CHARGE IS TO BE MADE

Powers of the State Railroad Commission Over Telephone Systems Will Be Determined Very Soon.

Lansing.—Whether the state railroad commission can compel two telephone systems operating in the same territory to make physical connections between exchanges is to be determined soon. The last legislature passed the so-called Giles act, which provides that companies shall make physical connections between their systems so as to permit patrons of one system to talk to the patrons of the other system. Of course a charge for this service is to be made.

Complaint is made by Raymond A. Lattin of Grand Ledge against the Grand Ledge Telephone company and Michigan State Telephone company at Grand Ledge to compel them to interchange telephone messages in accordance with the Giles act.

Under the Giles act telephone companies are made common carriers, and, as such are under the supervision of the railroad commission, before whom a number of complaints have been filed asking for physical connections as well as improvement in service. The above case is the first one of its kind to be heard, and is expected to be what might be termed a "test case" as to the powers of the commission in the regulation of telephone matters.

In discussing inheritance taxes the commission of tax inquiry does not recommend a specific rate for taxation of inheritances, but points to the rates in effect in other states and advises that there be an increase which would bring the total revenue from this source up from $500,000 annually to about $1,000,000. Reference is made to the present law, and it is stated that the rate is lower than in other states, while the state of New York, from which the schedule was secured, has since increased its rates. It is said the expense of other states demonstrates that these rates can and should be materially increased. At present the state collects one per cent. on all amounts above $2,000 transferred to direct heirs and five per cent. on all transfers to collateral heirs on amounts above $100.

Commissioner of Farming Needed.

"Michigan should have a commissioner of agriculture," declared Arthur P. Patriarche, vice-president of the Pere Marquette railway, whose peculiar work in the railway field has to do mainly with the traffic department. "What is more, the commissioner of agriculture should be an appointive office, for in this way only the best qualified man in the state could then be chosen for the berth."

"The trouble with the present system, as far as it relates to agriculture is that now there is no official head to this important branch of our citizenship, no continuity of policy or no co-ordinating force to gather up the scattered threads. This work now devolves upon the secretary of state, who is usually a professional man, generally unqualified by education or out of touch with the conditions that are so vital to agricultural life."

"For instance, just at present, there are four societies acting independently, but doing great and important work for Michigan. I refer to the Western Michigan Development bureau, the Northern Michigan Development bureau and North Eastern Michigan Development bureau and the Fennville Fruit association. Now all of these societies are doing splendid work. In some cases, they are duplicating one another's work. They are, however, restricted to their own peculiar fields necessarily. They cannot be expected to do the pioneer work in experimental agriculture which the modern state now performs."

"The federal government," Mr. Patriarche continued, "is by the constitution restricted in its work in behalf of agriculture almost to an advisory capacity alone. It is doing good work by means of its farm bulletins, its distribution of seeds and the other functions which it performs, but it cannot get down to a study of local conditions. It is necessarily restricted to an agronomic policy which takes in the United States as a whole. In this respect, for instance, the federal limitations are much more closely defined than are those of the department of agriculture in the Dominion of Canada, in the French republic and elsewhere."

Physical Training in Schools.

Superintendent L. L. Wright of the state department of public instruction, states that all the schools in the state amenable to the physical training act, passed by the legislature last winter, have complied with the provisions and regulations he has authorized. The law applies to cities of over 10,000 population and Superintendent Wright required schools in the cities affected to make physical training of some character a regular part of the curriculum this year.

Dealers Sell Reading Circle Books.

Not all have been sent out to schools. Officers all over the state that the books prescribed in the pupils' reading circle course, can be purchased of any dealer. This notice was sent out by the department of public instruction and puts a summary end to the monopoly features of the sale of these books. An attempt was made to induce Superintendent Wright to not officially act in this way, but to leave it to book dealers to inform all schools of the situation. In order that there might not be any official notice made of the abolishment of trust sales. The superintendent, however, insisted that as a matter of good public policy the state could not countenance even indirectly any scheme of that character and he decided that the notice must be sent out.

Baptists Elect Officers.

The annual election of the state 210 delegates. The burry was caused by an unexpected attempt on the part of a large faction under the leadership of Rev. G. S. Northrop of Williamston to defeat the ticket presented by the convention nominating committee and retain as president J. C. Gates of Detroit, who has already served two terms.

Shortly after the report of the nominating committee presented by Chairman D. B. Davidson of Alpena, offering the name of John T. Carr of Adrian for the office of president. Mr. Williamson rose and nominated Mr. Gates for re-election. Delegates were immediately on their feet objecting to the action as a slur on the members of the nominating committee.

Wolf on Way to State Treasury.

Those in charge of the state's finances are somewhat concerned over the approach of the bankrupt season when the treasury will be short of funds. In previous years it has been just the general fund which was short of cash, but this year along about the first of November the treasury will be bare in reality. The only money left in the treasury will be about $65,000 in funds deposited by receivers for defunct banks, while in other years since the deficit appeared to rule in the treasury, there has been wads of money on hand, although it was not available for the general expenses of state government. This time there will not be a dollar of state money left when the "wolf" takes possession.

It costs about $500,000 a month to run the state, which means that there will be a shortage of about $1,250,000 by the middle of next January when the taxes begin to come in again. In view of this situation, it is not probable that state officials will attempt to borrow any money to tide over the scanty period, as the limit is fixed at $250,000 and that amount will not go very far towards meeting the demands which the state makes upon a strong box for ready money.

Six Prisoners Given Freedom.

Governor Osborn has exercised his authority to pardon convicts by releasing from the prisons of the state six men whose careers, the circumstances attending their being granted clemency and the record which the executive makes in one case, form when taken together one of the most unusual stories in the state's prison annals, filled as they are with exceptional human interest stories. One man granted freedom is exiled from this country; another is known as the man serving a life sentence of greater length than any other in a Michigan prison, while another enjoys the distinction of being a pioneer convict in Marquette prison, having been sent there among the first after it was completed.

So far as is known the conditional pardon granted James Burke is unique in the history of this country. Burke revealed the plot to dynamite Jackson prison and Governor Osborn wrote on the order for his release: "Within 72 hours after his release Burke must proceed to Canada, where he is to remain until his maximum sentence has expired, less good time. Burke's presence anywhere in the United States between October 21, 1911, and May 12, 1913, will be considered a violation of his pardon."

Burke is a native of Canada sent to prison for bank robbery. His tip to the prison officials undoubtedly saved the prison from wreck by dynamite as the explosive was found on his information and the wardens of all three prisons joined in recommending his release in recompense for the information.

Franklin C. Upright has been confined in Jackson prison so long the original record of his commitment is lost. He entered the penitentiary about 1881, for the murder of his wife at Stanton. Upright shot her down while intoxicated after accusing her of unfaithfulness. She died shortly afterwards, but it was claimed that no one was sure but what an attack of measles had as much to do with the wife's demise as the gunshot. He was then thirty-seven years of age and his release as a model prisoner was recommended by the board of pardons and paroles.

Prison Farm Is Profitable.

When Warden Fuller of the state reformatory appeared before the ways and means committee at Lansing last spring and asked for an appropriation to buy 40 acres of land adjoining the reformatory premises, upon which he had an option at $20 per acre, he was told by a member of the committee that it didn't pay to buy land for state institutions, as the superintendents did not know how to run farms. The legislature bought the land, however, and the reformatory got possession in May.

REVOLT IN NORTH CHINA SEEMS NEAR

REVOLUTION IS SPREADING IN CHINA AND RISINGS ARE PLANNED IN VICINITY OF CAPITAL.

FOUR PROVINCES ARE NOW CONTROLLED BY REBELS.

Fears Are Expressed That Foreigners May Be Attacked in Efforts by Officials to Force Intervention.

The revolutionary spirit is now manifesting itself in the north as well as in the south. Those who heretofore have believed the northern provinces might rally around the government are now of the opinion that secessions will follow in rapid succession.

The precautionary measures taken in Manchuria, where the government does not permit mention of the revolution, show the anti-government spirit in the far north. There are persistent reports that risings have been planned in the immediate vicinity of the capital. It may be that these will not be fulfilled, but they indicate a widespread sympathy with the revolt.

Four of China's 18 provinces are now regarded under revolutionary influence—Sze-Chuen, where the movement started; Hu-Peh, of which Wu-Chang is the capital; Hunana and Kiangsi. The fall of Nanking, where the garrison is regarded as siding with the revolutionaries, would deliver to them the viceregal government of two more provinces, Kiang-Su and Ngan-Hwei.

"Grace Darling" of the U. S. Dies.

Miss Ida Lewis, the "Grace Darling of America" died in Newport, R. I., at the age of 72. Miss Lewis was stricken with apoplexy and never regained consciousness. For over half a century she has kept the light at Lime Rock and has in that time saved 18 lives. She was a great favorite with all naval officers and prominent Newport people and during her last days has received gifts of flowers from many people.

A pathetic side light on the death of Miss Lewis came last night when Colonel Wm. Coffin, commanding the Narragansett defense district, gave notice that he had received orders from the war department to cease target practice during Miss Lewis's illness. The noise from the big guns and mortars had seemed to trouble the patient, who started and moaned with every concussion of the guns. The order came too late, for when it was received Miss Lewis was dead.

Aviator Ely Dashed to Death.

In spite of a precaution which prompted him to give the address of his wife to his mechanic, so she could be notified in the event of a mishap, Eugene Ely, who gained world-wide fame as the first aviator to fly from and to the decks of United States warships, ascended in his aeroplane to make a sensational dip at the state fair grounds at Macon, Ga., and a few moments later plunged 150 feet to his death.

Misjudging the distance, Ely started his downward glide too soon while running at a mile a minute, and was unable to rise. When the machine crashed to earth the aviator was hurled clear of it by nearly 100 feet. He was unconscious when reached by his mechanic, Frank Callin, and died 10 minutes later, before he could be removed to a hospital.

John R. Walsh Dies Suddenly.

John R. Walsh, former banker, publisher, and railroad owner, released recently from Leavenworth federal penitentiary, died suddenly in Chicago of heart disease.

Mr. Walsh had been in bed most of the time since his arrival home from Leavenworth, Oct. 15.

He had been attended constantly by physicians. Intermittent reports of Mr. Walsh's falling health during his incarceration had been denied at the penitentiary. On his release, it was plain that he had axed and he gave up plans for resumption of his position as a financial leader and took to his bed.

Hamburger Heads Michigan I. O. O. F.

Frank R. Hamburger, of Detroit, was elected grand master of the Grand Lodge of Michigan, I. O. O. F., at the sixty-seventh annual convention, which came to a close in Saginaw with the installation of officers. The other officers elected are: Deputy grand master, Harry L. McNeil, Paw Paw; grand secretary, Henry L. Wilder, Lansing; grand treasurer, Fred Cutler, Ionia; grand warden, Herbert A. Thompson, Williamstown; grand marshal, Louis C. Cramton, Lapeer; grand conductor, R. E. Neville, Boyne City; grand guardian, Thomas S. Schupholme, Port Huron; grand herald, E. E. Trautman, Cadillac; chaplain, Rev. L. G. Branch, Bangor; C. F. Granschow, of Saginaw; and A. F. Colborn, of Detroit, were elected grand representatives.

Maxim Gorky, the Russian novelist, is seriously ill in Capri.

Emperor William unveiled a statue of his father, Frederick III., at Aix-La-Chapelle. Responding to a toast at a banquet given by the burgomaster his majesty emphasized the firm bonds of love and confidence uniting prince and people despite differences of party, class and religion.

Reformation of auditing methods so that for the first time since the post-office department's establishment 24 years ago the service will know its exact financial status at the end of the fiscal year, is the achievement claimed in the forthcoming report of Charles A. Kram, auditor of the department at Washington.

This Time for a Friend.

"Tis a wise man," said Robert Edson, "who knows when to ask questions. The other night I was standing inside the railroad station when an Irish cab driver came up to me and asked me how soon the next train came in. I told him and he said thank you and went away. In about five minutes he came back with the same question. 'I told you not more than five minutes ago,' I said. 'I know it,' he answered cheerfully, 'but it's not me th' wants to know this time. It's a friend of mine outside th' has to watch his horses and can't come in an' ask yez' himself!'"—Young's Magazine.

GIVEN UP TO DIE.

Cured By Doan's Kidney Pills After Doctors Gave Up Hope.

J. L. Richardson, Red Key, Ind., says: "For five months I was confined to my bed, a helpless invalid. I almost went crazy. Twenty-five hours passed without a passage of the urine. The doctors began to take the water from me with a catheter. They did this once a day for fifty days. Finally my doctor told me my time was up. The next day my friend advised me to take Doan's Kidney Pills. When I had used five boxes, I got out of bed and improved until entirely well. For five years I have not had the slightest trouble."

The Disturbing Rudder.

The Turkish navy appears to be in the main an obsolete fighting machine. Probably, however, it is better off than half a century ago. When Lord Carlisle visited Constantinople in 1854 he met a Turkish admiral whose ignorance of naval matters was equaled only by his horror of the sea. If he went for a cruise he was invariably seasick. On one occasion, when prostrated in his cabin, hearing a noise which grated on his ears, he inquired whence it proceeded. "From the rudder of the ship," was the reply. "Then have the rudder removed immediately," ordered the afflicted admiral.

Taught Sunday School Class 53 Years.

At the annual rally day exercises at the First Baptist church recently it developed that one member of the school has been in charge of a single department for 53 years. That member is Mrs. A. P. Wheeler, superintendent of the primary department. When the announcement was made the superintendent of the school asked everybody in the audience who had at one time been a member of Mrs. Wheeler's class to rise, and practically the entire audience was on its feet in a moment, and they ranged all the way from gray haired men and women to little tots barely able to walk.—Atlanta Constitution.

TOWN IS BEING REBUILT

Flood of Waters Has Not Taken Black River Falls, Wis., From the Map.

More than a million dollars absolutely disappearing in the short time of two hours was the toll collected by the waters at Black River Falls, Wisconsin. Even the residents of the town could not realize what it meant until the lake formed by the Hatfield dam was dry, and the rush of waters had passed on to the Mississippi.

Just out of reach of the flood the business men and residents of the place watched the waters carry away the buildings that represented the homes of business enterprises which it had taken years of effort to build. Among the larger industries seemingly wiped out within a few minutes was the plant of Coles Carbolic Acid. This plant, along with others that suffered a like fate, is today being rebuilt, and the business men of Black River Falls promise that a better town shall replace the one destroyed by the raging floods, and that just as rapidly as men and material can put it together. It is catastrophes like the breaking of the Hatfield dam that demonstrate the American spirit.

The Mussel Industry.

The mussel industry has assumed large proportion on American waterways in recent years. In this part of the country the mussel first came into general notice through the operations of pearl fishermen in the small rivers. Occasionally the mussel has a valuable pearl hidden away in his shell-incrusted interior, and in some streams pearl hunting is remunerative. At present, however, the bivalve is in demand because of the fact that the shells are largely used in the manufacture of buttons.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

An Unbeliever.

"Sir," said the haughty American to his adhesive tailor, "I object to this boorish dunning. I would have you know that my great-grandfather was one of the early settlers."

"And yet," sighed the anxious tradesman, "there are people who believe in heredity."—Argonaut.

"I, the undersigned, cannot give enough praise to the Cuticura Remedies. I had been doctoring for at least a year for eczema on my foot. I had tried doctor after doctor all to no avail. When a young girl I sprained my ankle three different times, paying little or no attention to it, when five years ago a small spot showed upon my left ankle. I was worried and sent for a doctor. He said it was eczema. He drew a small bone from the ankle about the size of a match and about an inch long. The small hole grew to about the size of an apple, and the eczema spread to the knee. The doctors never could heal the hole in the ankle. The whole foot ran water all the time.

"My husband and my sons were up night and day wheeling me from one room to another in the hope of giving me some relief. I would sit for hours at a time in front of the fireplace hoping for daybreak. The pain was so intense I was almost crazy. In fact, I would lose my reason for hours at a time. One day a friend of mine dropped in to see me. No more had she glanced at my foot than she exclaimed: 'Mrs. Finnegan, why in the world don't you try the Cuticura Remedies?' Being disgusted with the doctors and their medicines, and not being able to sleep at all, I decided to give the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment a trial. After using them three days that night I slept as sound as a silver dollar for eight long hours. I awoke in the morning with but very little pain. In fact, I thought I was in heaven. After using the Cuticura Remedies for three months I was perfectly restored to health, thanks to the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. SERIAL STORY

The Courtship of Miles Standish

With Illustrations by Howard Chandler Christy

The Spinning Wheel

Month after month passed away, and in autumn the ships of the merchants came with kindred and friends, with cattle and corn for the Pilgrims. All in the village was peace; the men were intent on their labors, busy with hewing and building, with garden-plot and with merestead, busy with breaking the glebe, and mowing the grass in the meadows, searching the sea for its fish, and hunting the deer in the forest. All in the village was peace; but at times the rumor of warfare filled the air with alarm, and the apprehension of danger. Gravely the stalwart Miles Standish was scouring the land with his forces, waxing valiant in fight and defeating the alien armies. Till his name had become a sound of fear to the nations, anger was still in his heart, but at times the remembrance and contrition which in all noble natures succeed the passionate outbreak, came like a rising tide, that encounters the rush of a river, staying its current a while, but making it bitter and brackish.

Meanwhile Alden at home had built him a new habitation, solid, substantial, of timber rough-hewn from the firs of the forest. Wooden-barred the door, and the roof was covered with rushes; latticed the windows were, and the window-panes were of paper, oiled to admit the light, while wind and rain were excluded. There, too, he dug a well, and around it planted an orchard. Still may be seen to this day some trace of the well and the orchard. Close to the house was the stall, where, safe and secure from annoyance, Raghona, the snow-white steer, that had fallen to Alden's allotment in the division of cattle, might ruminate in the night-time. Over the pastures he cropped, made fragrant by sweet pennyroyal.

oft when his labor was finished, with eager feet would the dreamer follow the pathway that ran through the woods to the house of Priscilla. Led by illusions romantic and subtle deceptions of fancy, pleasure disguised as duty, and love in the semblance of friendship, ever of her he thought, when he fashioned the walls of his dwelling; ever of her he thought, when he delved in the soil of his garden; ever of her he thought, when he read in his Bible on Sunday. Praise of the virtuous woman, as she is described in the Proverbs,—How the heart of her husband doth safely trust in her always, how all the days of her life she will do him good, and not evil, how she seeketh the wool and the flax and worketh with gladness, how she layeth her hand to the spindle and holdeth the distaff, how she is not afraid of the snow for herself or her household, knowing her household are clothed with the scarlet cloth of her weaving!

So, as she sat at her wheel one afternoon in the autumn, Alden, who opposite sat, and was watching her dexterous fingers, as if the thread she was spinning were that of his life and his fortune. After a pause in their talk, thus spake to the sound of the spindle. "Truly, Priscilla," he said, "when I see you spinning and spinning, never idle a moment, but thrifty and thoughtful of others, suddenly you are transformed, are visibly changed in a moment; you are no longer Priscilla, but Bertha, the Beautiful Spinner." Here the light foot on the treadle grew swifter and swifter; the spindle uttered an angry snarl, and the thread snapped short in her fingers; while the impetuous speaker, not heeding the mischief, continued: "You are the beautiful Bertha, the spinner, the queen of Helvetia; she whose story I read at a stall in the streets of Southampton, who, as she rode on her palfrey, o'er valley and meadow and mountain. Ever was spinning her thread from a distaff fixed to her saddle. She was so thrifty and good, that her name passed into a proverb. So shall it be with your own, when the spinning-wheel shall no longer hum in the house of the farmer, and fill its chambers with music. Then shall the mothers, reproving, relate how it was in their childhood. Praising the good old times, and the days of Priscilla, the spinner! Straight arose from her wheel the beautiful Puritan maiden. Pleased with the praise of her thrift from him whose praise was the sweetest. Drew from the reel on the table a snowy skein of her spinning, thus making answer, meanwhile, to the flattering phrases of Alden: "Come, you must not be idle; if I am a pattern for housewives, show yourself equally worthy of being the model of husbands. Hold this skein on your hands, while I wind it, ready for knitting; when who knows but hereafter, when fashions have changed and the manners. Fathers may talk to their sons of the good old times of John Alden!" Thus, with a jest and a laugh, the skein on his hands she adjusted. He sitting awkwardly there, with his arms extended before him. She standing graceful, erect, and winding the thread from his fingers. Sometimes chiding a little his clumsy manner of holding. Sometimes touching his hands, as she disentangled expertly. Twist or knot in the yarn, unawares—for how could she help it?—Sending electrical thrills through every nerve in his body.

Lo! in the midst of this scene, a breathless messenger entered, bringing in hurry and heat the terrible news from the village. Yes: Miles Standish was dead!—an Indian had brought them the tidings.— Slain by a poisoned arrow, shot down in the front of the battle, into an ambush beguiled, cut off with the whole of his forces; all the town would be burned, and all the people be murdered!

Baker knew the animal was vicious according to the allegations of the complaint, but said nothing to Dillon about it. Dillon proceeded with his work, and while stooping over shoeing a fore foot the animal seized him by the pants with its teeth and threw him twenty feet. He alighted on an iron floor with such violence that the tendons of one leg were torn loose and his left knee was fractured so that he is still compelled to walk on crutches though the injuries were sustained last May. He alleges he will be a cripple for life and asks damages in the sum of $6,000. The defendant is the estate of the late Elijah B. Martindale of Indianapolis.

Charlestown, Mass.—A thrilling fight between a giant orang-outang and half a dozen men was described by the officers of the British steamship Patna, which arrived here recently from the far east. One day when the vessel was emerging from the Mediterranean into the Atlantic the orang-outang wrenched the steel bars loose and made its way on deck. Mr. Pedday, the purser, was alone on deck and was leaning against the rail, unconscious of impending danger. Stealthily the animal approached and in a moment was on the purser's back, its paws closing on his throat. Mr. Pedday's screams brought the second officer, Mr. Wilcox, and several sailors to the scene. Mr. Wilcox picked up a heavy belaying pin and

Nothing of the kind was to be found in the vicinity, but the fireless cooker proved equal to the emergency.

Lecture on Christian Science

There was a fine audience present at the Christian Science church last week Thursday evening, to hear the lecture on Christian Science by Clarence E. Eaton, C. S. B. Mr. Eaton said in part:

The remarkable betterment wrought in the temperament, character, habits and deeds of men by Christian Science are the direct result of the casting out of evils or devils. This evidence of obedience to the Master's command is attracting more attention today, perhaps, than mere physical healing. The latter is an incidental experience on the way to the ultimate of reformation and transformation. The most precious gifts of Christian Science are to be designated as peace, contentment, satisfaction, joy, experiences and conditions for which we crave and which can become ours only through the casting out of evil and the acquirement of enlarged spiritual understanding. By a proper application of scientific and demonstrable knowledge of spiritual truth, errors in belief which through one's consciousness are cast out, dissolved and dissipated, as naturally, scientifically and inevitably as light destroys the darkness. Usually the first errors to yield in one's mentality are those which have found expression in physical infirmities, but this is not the goal which Christian Science urges us to seek. We should strive for and win a consciousness thoroughly purged of evil, and so we press forward, as Mrs. Eddy has so aptly put it in our text-book, "until boundless thought walks enraptured, and conception unconfined is winged to reach the divine glory" (Science and Health, page 323).

For sixteen centuries mental therapeutics as instituted by the Master remained dormant, but in these latter days Christian Science represents the restoration and reestablishment of its practice. Less than fifty years ago only one person on earth realized what Christian Science in this respect means to the world. Today many thousands are vividly conscious that it is wholly due to its teaching and practice that they are alive and able to say they are healthy and happy. If in less than half a century, much of which time was necessarily spent in overcoming the prejudices of mortals and dealing with the many problems incident to the formative period of all earthly undertakings; if during these trying years of the reestablishment of a religious practice which had been entirely neglected and in disuse for sixteen hundred years; if notwithstanding the almost universal and persistent practice of ignoring God as the healer of the sick and seeking material means for relief and healing, no matter how utterly inadequate or futile—if in the face of all this Christian Science has adequately proved equal to the task of releasing from the bonds of sin, suffering, and disease hundreds of thousands of people, are we not justified in saying there has come to their realization the fulfillment of Jesus' prophecy: "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father." "And these signs shall follow them that believe; in my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover."

In the ministry of Christian Science the endeavor is to exemplify all that is possible for the human to comprehend and express of true charity, even that concept of genuine love which Paul has so comprehensively embodied in the 13th Chapter of 1st Corinthians. The beneficiaries of Christian Science extend to all classes without distinction as to nationality, rank or caste; and included in the scope of its teaching and practice the investigator will find a remedy for every undesirable condition to which mankind are subjected. In association, fellowship and conduct Christian Science urges men to a strict observance of the golden rule, and that new commandment which the Master gave and which forms the basis of true brotherhood: "That ye love one another, as I have loved you." The promises of Christian Science are to be found in the Scriptures as well as in the literature especially devoted to its teaching and practice. As these promises must all be fulfilled, the mission of Christian Science will not be completed until "the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea."

Christian Science can no longer be considered an experiment, and while among the skeptics and unbelievers there are those who appear to be expecting its early demise and a stampeding of its adherents, observing ones behold its steadily moving onward and adding daily to its standard such as would be saved. This is because it is not founded on the personality or individuality of any one, but rather upon Principle which assures its permanence. It is recognized that the impersonal spiritual realization which gave Christian Science to the world is still here, teaching and admonishing us in all truth and righteousness; and it can destroy, remove or succeed it.

"Thank God the mission of Mrs. Eddy has not been in vain! There is a vast multitude of people in this generation who immediately give thanks that it was through her government, courage, and unswerving fidelity that their hearts have been dried, and their pain banished. Nor is this all. She has made clear and plain the way whereby all are to be released according to the plan and purpose of an infinitely good God, and through the salvation of the indwelling Christ. If ever a people had occasion to hold in loving and tender memory the life of a noble, just, pure and upright woman it has it now. I am sure that all who are conscious of this will agree that to her there is due the full significance of these words of the great apostle: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

Was Instantly Killed

Thos. Andrews, section foreman of the Pere Marquette railroad, was instantly killed Monday morning about eight o'clock. With other members of the section gang he was working on the track about half a mile south of the village, when an engine and caboose came along. The men got out of the way, but Andrews noticed a track gauge lying across the rails and ran to save it from destruction. As he stooped down to grasp it the steam chest of the engine hit him on the temple, killing him instantly.

Dr. Patterson was quickly notified and went out to the place, but saw at once that the man was dead. The remains were placed in the doctor's automobile and taken to Schrader's morgue. Justice Campbell, as coroner, empaneled a jury, who viewed the remains, the inquest being adjourned until this afternoon.

Andrews was about 35 years old and a man well liked by his men, Italian boys, who sincerely mourn his untimely death. He had been living in Plymouth about a year and leaves a widow and three small children in rather straightened circumstances.

The funeral was held Tuesday morning and the remains were taken to Clio, his old home.

Two Pretty Home Weddings

Miss Clara Reiman and Frank Foege of Detroit were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Reiman, yesterday afternoon at four o'clock, Rev. E. J. Warren performing the ceremony. There were present quite a company of relatives and friends and after the ceremony a bounteous wedding supper was served. After a short wedding trip the newly married couple will make their home with the groom's parents in Detroit. The friends of the bride and groom extend to them a happy and prosperous journey through life.

Rev. B. F. Farber tied the knot last evening at 7:30 o'clock that bound together in wedlock for life Miss Doga Townsend and Romeo Wood, the ceremony being performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Glympse, in the presence of a large company of friends and relatives.

The house was beautifully decorated with myrtle and autumn leaves. The bride was becomingly dressed in white as was also Miss Vera Townsend, the bridesmaid. Lester Brown of Detroit was best man. After the ceremony ice cream and cake were served. The presents given the bride were many and beautiful.

Friends of the happy couple, and they are many, unite in wishing them a happy and prosperous life.

An Unqualified Success.

One of the pleasantest social occasions this season was the Epworth League banquet given in Odd Fellows' hall last Friday evening. The room was nicely festooned in red and white and the tables decorated with sprays of cut flowers. Every seat, something over one hundred and twenty-five, was filled. The menu provided by the Epworth League of the M. E. church consisted of bouillon, veal loaf, scalloped potatoes, olives, jelly, pickles, rolls, Waldorf salad, wafers, Neapolitan ice cream, spiced cake, coffee and saints, and was served in courses, music being provided by Mr. and Mrs. Timbam of Northville.

President E. V. Jolliffe of the Epworth League made a few pertinent remarks of the work done the past year by the League and that still greater efforts would be made in the future, closing by introducing Dr. F. S. Rowland of Detroit as toastmaster of the evening. The gentleman made a few happy remarks that put everybody in good humor and announced a vocal solo, by Miss Martha Striker, as the first number on the program. "Leadership" was the subject of Rev. W. R. Fruit's excellent speech, and he captivated everybody by his witty sallies and earnest plea for "leaders" not individual leaders, but that all be leaders. A vocal solo by Mrs. E. J. Warren was finally rendered. "The Epworth League—a Problem or a Power" was discussed by Rev. D. H. Glass of Pontiac, while Mr. A. L. Moore, also of that city, responded to the toast, "The Epworth League." It was announced that Rev. Fred Spence of Saginaw was unable to be present and the program was closed with a vocal solo by Miss Faye Duggan.

The Epworth League banquets have been growing more in favor every year and are proving very popular and enjoyable. There will be another next year.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Ruth Watson has entered the high school.

High school visitors this week were Helen Smith '10, Mrs. A. Tiffin, Madge Harlow, Claude Williams and Fred Allen.

A door key has been found on the street. Inquire of Mrs. C. E. Baker.

Mr. Isbell has been unable to find owners for two jack-knives which have been handed to him.

Last Thursday the Domestic Science Class of the seventh grade made some excellent bread pudding and gave a pleasant treat to each of the teachers.

Some members of the seventh grade manual training class have recently completed some pretty flower stands, and are soon to begin work on some book-racks.

The kindergarten children are planning a Halloween party for Friday.

Dorothy Dibble is absent from school on account of illness.

The Misses Cole and Harrison of Northville visited Miss Baumgart Saturday.

Visitors in Miss Smith's room last week were Mrs. Ann Lyon, Mrs. Charles Curtis and Mrs. E. Hough.

Mrs. Jones visited in the sixth grade last Wednesday.

New blackboards are to be placed in the sixth and eighth grade rooms.

On November 2nd and 3rd there will be no school because of the State Teacher's Association to be held in Detroit on those days.

Prof. John Everett of the State Normal College, who is secretary of the Michigan State Teachers' Association, in the state educational news column of the Moderator Topics, made mention of the fact that all of the Plymouth teachers had secured tickets and badges for the meeting at Detroit. This speaks well for the interest our teachers take in educational work.

Why Hesitate?

An Offer that involves no Money Risk if you Accept it.

We are so positive our remedy will completely relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish it free of all cost if it fails.

Constipation is commonly caused by weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine. To expect a cure you must therefore tone up and strengthen those organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our guarantee. They are eaten like candy and are particularly good for children. They seem to act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on the other organs. They do not purge or cause other inconvenience. We will refund your money if they do not overcome chronic or habitual constipation and thus aid to relieve the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments. Try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Three sizes, 10c., 25c. and 50c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. Boyer Pharmacy.

OBITUARY

Achshah S. Phillips was born in Sympronus, Cayuga county, New York, Aug. 10th, 1886, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. O. King in Plymouth, Oct. 19th, 1911. In 1892 after the death of her father, she came to Ypsilanti to make her home with her sister, Rhoda A. Bevier, from whose home she was married to Lorenzo Brumson of Livonia township in 1894. To them were born three children, Grove A.,

who passed away 24 years ago, Lynn E. and Mrs. O. King, both of Plymouth. Mrs. Brumson had lived in Plymouth township 37 years. She will be greatly missed. She was always ready to lend a helping hand. The funeral was held at the home of her daughter Oct. 21, 1911, at 2:30 P. M., Rev. J. T. Sunderland of Detroit officiating.

She—Yes, artificiality seems natural to her.

Successful Economy in Baking.
Most housewives assume when they buy a big can of baking powder at a low price that they have been economical. They have to a slight extent—but when they use that cheap "big can" baking powder, and find it so uneven in quality, or so unreliable that the baking falls, there isn't so much economy in it after all, for the wasted materials far outweigh the few cents saved in the price.

SUCCESSFUL economy is in the reach of every woman that desires it. She has only to order Calumet Baking Powder, and use it according to instructions. Then she will achieve economy. For not only does Calumet sell at a reasonable price—25¢ per pound—but it is so carefully made by experienced chemists that failure is impossible. Only the best materials are used and the proportions of the ingredients are so exact and so uniform that EVERY baking comes from the oven. Light, sweet, and beautifully raised. Calumet guarantees you against failure, and that is what constitutes real economy in baking.

Why not use Calumet, a baking powder that you can always rely upon? You can get no better at any price, for at the World's Pure Food Exposition, Calumet received the Highest Award.

Not Consoling.
One of the boys had broken one of the school rules, and no one would own up.

The teacher announced that he would thrash the whole class if someone did not tell him who had committed the offense.

All were silent, and he began with the first boy, and thrashed every one in the class until finally he reached the last one. Then he said: "Now, if you will tell me who did this I won't thrash you."

"All right, sir, I did it," was the reply.—Ideas.

Rivalry.
"Does your automobile go faster than your neighbor's?"
"No," replied Mr. Chuggins. "But my danger signal makes a much more disagreeable noise than his."

Overlooked.
Knicker—We can't carry revolvers any longer.
Bocker—But they didn't take away the girls' hats.

Australia Likes American Magazines.
American magazines are constantly increasing their popularity in both Australia and New Zealand.

You may have noticed how different men are from hogs. The latter never want to do things that are not good to them.

Experience may be the best teacher, but some people prefer a more fashionable school.

HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Chicago Has a Port of Missing Men

CHICAGO.—From the Graham & Morton dock, at the foot of Wash avenue, three men walked into the Chicago river the other morning. Four policemen nearby fished them out and left them to dry on the wharf. These three men are daily associates of the following distinguished persons:

A brother of a former president's law partner. A son of a millionaire brewer. A brother of a stock exchange operator. A brother of a Chicago police officer.

Some day one of these four men may decide to take a promenade in the water and perhaps the police will get them out, and perhaps they won't. For the four distinguished persons, as well as the three undistinguished ones, only "wharf rats" and their deaths would probably trouble the city as little as their near-deaths troubled the officers who rescued the three.

There is a story called "The Port of Missing Men." O. Burke, dock superintendent for Graham & Morton, thinks he knows where the port is.

Steals to Win Honors in Fraternity

NEW YORK.—Richard Pacharz, self-confessed embezzler, who had donated most of the $6,000 he stole to the lodge of which he was the chief officer, and contributed the remainder to various charitable enterprises, met clemency on every hand when he was arraigned before Judge Swann. The court suspended sentence and the young man's employers—from whom he had stolen—offered him his old place as confidential bookkeeper and cashier. It was a remarkable case of its kind.

During the eight years previous to his arrest, Pacharz had been employed by Darnet Bros. When the thefts were discovered the bookkeeper pleaded guilty. In making his plea he amazed the court by proclaiming that he had spent every dollar of the stolen money in donations to the order to which he belonged and his charities. Not a dollar of the plunder had he spent on himself or his little family.

"My trouble," said the young man, "is due entirely to a mad ambition for fraternal honors. It was the one great joy of my life to attain high rank in the lodge, so I stole money to make donations and give parties and

Trimmed by Strangers in Poker Game

YONKERS, N. Y.—When William Morton, who is 75 years old, came out of his little trance and felt himself over he realized it was no idle dream that he had been put back $500 by his love for poker and his confidence in human nature. His belief that it was all going out and nothing coming in was strengthened when he read the following note:

"Never try to trim a wise one. It not only does not benefit a man of your years, but it has been tried by thousands before you, and the verdict of time is that it can't be done."

"Publicity would be very bad on your credit with your banker, and we feel therefore that we can trust you to swallow your anger and keep this afternoon's sport to yourself."

So that this information might not get lost in the shuffle, it was placed

Guest 'Jollies' Waiter to Save Tips

SALINA, KAN.—In the breach of a promise suit of Miss Alice Bowes against N. W. Sly, some inside facts about how a traveling man may invariably get the best there is on the bill of fare at a hotel were made public.

Miss Bowes was a waitress in a Topeka hotel. Sly, formerly a Union Pacific conductor, and now a claim agent for that road, frequently stopped at the hotel where the plaintiff was employed. He "jollied" her freely and she thought he was trying to marry her. Sly says he was merely trying to get the best there was in the house to eat. The jury took the girl's side of the question and gave her a verdict for $10,000.

The girl says that Sly made love to her and induced her to go with him on several trips, and wrote her many effusive letters. She could not produce any of these letters. Though this statement was met by a denial from Sly that he ever wrote to her, she says the letters were so warm she destroyed them as fast as they arrived. Sly stood pat on a clear denial of every allegation and insisted the whole

Hundreds of men have dropped suddenly out of sight. Many of these, according to Mr. Burke, are laboring now along the docks of the Chicago river, unloading boats for 25 cents an hour, and, like the three who nearly drowned, occasionally dropping, or being dropped, out of all existence.

The casual attitude is the thing which draws the men to the docks. At 3 o'clock every morning a Graham & Morton steamer comes in loaded with fruit. The fruit must be moved into warehouses quickly. Two or three hours of working time is as much as can be spared. Two hundred men are necessary.

The two hundred men are always there. They begin drifting down to the dock at nightfall, and by midnight they are spread along its length, sleeping the untroubled sleep of the irresponsible. When the boat comes in they awake and, forming in long lines, transport the cargo, in the manner of a bucket brigade, to the warehouse. When the boat is unloaded they are paid on the spot.

Occasionally one of the workers disappears. After a week or two his fellow-workers notice that he is gone. They make no inquiries. Perhaps he has fallen into the river, perhaps he has taken a freight train to other countries, perhaps he has quietly resumed his place in a former life. The subject is of small interest to other men.

picnics to the old people and children who lived at the lodge's home."

Judge Swann could scarcely credit the man's story, but his probationary officers found that everything Pacharz said was true. When he was arraigned the trustees of Pacharz's lodge produced their books to show that their officer had contributed $5,000 during the period he was stealing from his employers. They also verified his other statements about minor charities.

Judge Swann replied that he was moved to clemency not by mere sentiment. From every possible source he had received the highest praise of the prisoner. His employers had urged clemency and promised to take him back to his old job. His crime was, not due to avarice or greed, but to a noble, if misguided, impulse. Thereupon the judge set the prisoner free.

under a brick, which Mr. Morton found in a small valise when he opened it to look for $2,500 he thought he had won in a poker game.

According to Mr. Morton he met a few days ago a man from whom he won $3,000 playing poker. After the man had given an "I. O. U." for the money he told Mr. Morton of another man from whom he could win a lot of money. Mr. Morton was told the other man played a strictly cash game and that he had better provide himself with $500. Mr. Morton did so and the trio went to a nice, clean, vacant lot outside the town and began to play. It was a table stakes game, and each of the men put up $500 in real money before starting. Mr. Morton bet $100 and prayed fervently that his opponent would raise him. He did.

"Raise you $400," he said, and Mr. Morton promptly "called" him. The other fellow said he had a flush, and Mr. Morton drew down the pot, showing his hand. Then his best friend produced a valise, into which he placed all the money in the pot. Next he offered to redeem his "I. O. U." and put into the valise what he said was $3,000 in cash.

trouble came from Miss Bowes' inability to differentiate between hunger and heartache.

During his many years' work as a railroad man Sly took liberties with his personal locomotive and made many a flying switch on a lunch counter sandwich and cup of coffee. Trying to keep up steam on tough steak and cold apple pie finally had its effect and by the time he quit eating his meals in rag-time from the top of a stool his stomach was laid up for repairs and to get something he could eat at hotels necessitated some kindly attention from the waitresses. He says he was kind to all of them, for by that method he obtained better service. In regard to Miss Bowes, he says he didn't treat her any differently from the others.

MICHIGAN HAPPENINGS

Jackson.—The coroner's jury rendered a verdict that the death of Rosalee Rolan, a fifteen-year-old girl, was caused by scarlet fever and added that death was hastened by ill treatment from her stepmother, Hannah Rolan. The comment of neighbors caused the coroner to make an investigation after the child's death.

Flint.—Probate Judge Swayze has suggested to the board of supervisors that a juvenile farm be established in connection with the county infirmary. He proposes that the county should purchase an additional farm near the county farm and use it in the training of boys who require restraint, but who should not be placed in the industrial school. Judge Swayze, who is judge of the juvenile court, is opposed to sending boys to an industrial school unless it is absolutely necessary, and he believes the establishment of a place such as he has proposed would net much better results in the training of boys.

Port Huron.—Damage amounting to about $3,000 was done to the grocery store of D. H. Hunter when fire started in the basement. The entire stock was a total loss by smoke and water. Quick work of the firemen saved the lives of two women who were aroused from their slumbers but owing to the density of the smoke were unable to reach a place of safety. The fire department had no sooner extinguished this blaze than they were called to put out another fire which had started in the plant of the chicory company. Damage amounting to about $4,000 was done.

Port Huron.—One of the oldest men who has ever faced a judge in this city for a violation of the liquor law is Edward Dubeau of Algonac, an aged and infirm man of eighty years. He was brought to this city to answer to a charge of furnishing whisky, which he had secured at a hotel, to Peter Thomas, an Indian. Dubeau pleaded guilty. On account of his age and infirmities Judge Law released him on probation upon his payment of costs.

Muskegon.—Mrs. Jacob Valk was placed on trial in the circuit court on a charge of the murder of her husband, August 22 last. The defense will be that the woman picked up the gun to keep Valk from attacking her and that the weapon was accidentally discharged. Joseph Dunham, a former husband of the woman whom she divorced 12 years ago, will be an important witness for the prosecution.

Port Huron.—The police have arrested William Gilbert and Mabel Brown on a serious charge. Gilbert, it is alleged, deserted his wife in Port Huron two years ago while the woman left her husband in Sarnia at the same time. They went to Lansing and lived together in that city. Last week they returned to Port Huron and secured quarters in the old Hamilton house here. Both pleaded guilty.

Grand Rapids.—Three strangers representing themselves to be employees of the "Cooke & Swanson Construction company of Chicago," passed 20 worthless checks upon local saloonists and secured $250. The forgeries were not discovered until they passed through the local clearing house. The crooks secured a rubber stamp of the company, making cashing of the checks easy.

Plymouth.—As Thomas Andrews, a section foreman in the Pere Marquette yards here, stooped over to pick up some tools from the track where he had been working, a yard engine sped upon him unnoticed. His head was crushed and he died instantly. Andrews was thirty years old and is survived by a widow and three young children.

Paw Paw.—Humane Officer McCabe is investigating one of the worst cases of cruelty to animals ever reported to officers in this county. According to the complaint, which has been received at his office, a farmer living west of this place has a hog that gave him trouble because of its habit of crawling through fences. He built a poke for it but the hog slipped this off its head. Determined to make the poke fast, he nailed both the hog's ears to the poke with staples, causing the hog terrible pain. It is probable that an arrest will soon be made.

Vassar.—Fred Wilbur, the farmer who has been annoyed by some unknown man prowling about his home nights for the past two weeks whom the officers have been unable to capture, has moved his family and household goods to another locality and says he will not return to his home until things change and his fear has ceased.

Lapeer.—Frank Bower and his brother-in-law, Peter Steinhilber, got into a quarrel because Steinhilber had shot two pet pigeons belonging to Bower, and words finally led to some promiscuous shooting. As a result Bower has 16 shot wounds in his left leg and Steinhilber, about forty in his left side. Mrs. Steinhilber and her infant child, who were nearby, were also struck, and Joe Bower, another brother-in-law, has eight in one of his legs. None of the wounded are in serious condition.

When Friendship Counts.
The doors of the delinquent man are always locked, and the key is on the outside. He may have treasures of charm inside, but they will never be revealed unless the person outside cooperates with him in unlocking the door. A friend becomes, to a much greater degree than with the ordinary man, the indispensable means of discovering one's own personality. One only exists, so to speak, with friends. It is easy to see how hopelessly such a sensitiveness incapacitates a man for business, professional or social life, where the hasty and superficial impression is everything, and disaster is the fate of the man who has not all the treasures of his personality in the front window where they can be readily inspected and appreciated.—From the September Atlantic.

A Broken Bone.
Your first duty, after notifying a surgeon, is to provide support for the injured member in the form of an improvised splint. Flat pieces of board, as broad, if possible, as the limb and slightly longer than the broken bone, canes, umbrellas, in fact anything that will accomplish your end may be used. In adjusting these, pad with any soft material that is at hand; straw, leaves or cushions made of grass may be used. Avoid any pressure on the injured part, cover it with a cloth, and keep wet with clean, cold water.—Woman's Home Companion.

A woman is apt to regard a bachelor as a man who is too much of a coward to get married.

WHAT I WENT THROUGH

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Natick, Mass. — "I cannot express what I went through during the change of life before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in such a nervous condition I could not keep still. My limbs were cold, I had creepy sensations, and I could not sleep nights. I was finally told by two physicians that I also had a tumor. I read one day of the wonderful cures made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it, and it has made me a well woman. My neighbors and friends declare it had worked a miracle for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth its weight in gold for women during this period of life. If it will help others you may publish my letter." — Mrs. NATHAN B. GREATON, 61 N. Main Street, Natick, Mass.

The Change of Life is the most critical period of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to medicine that will so successfully carry women through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Association of Ideas. "You have a great many flies and mosquitoes," said the rather supercilious girl.

"Yes," replied Farmer Comtassel. "I didn't like to mention it, but I've noticed every year that flies, mosquitoes and summer boarders all appear to be on hand at the same time."

Consolation. She—Do you really think I am so very fat, Mr. Smith?

He—Why, no; I saw a lady in a circus the other day who must have weighed at least fifty pounds more than you.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Charity. "The woman whose husband was killed in master's factory is below, with her three children." "Tell her to go away. I am practicing for the charity concert and cannot be disturbed."—Der Wahre Jacob.

EXCUSABLE.

Judge—You should have known better than drive fast while crossing that bridge; didn't you see the sign "Walk your horses?"

Prisoner—Dat's right, Jedge; but dem was mules what I were driving.

SHIFT

Of Your Food Fails to Sustain You, Change.

One sort of diet may make a person dependent, depressed and blue and a change to the kind of food the body demands will change the whole thing. A young woman from Phila. says:

"For several years I kept in a run-down, miserable sort of condition, was depressed and apprehensive of trouble. I lost flesh in a distressing way and seemed in a perpetual sort of dreamy nightmare. No one serious disease showed, but the 'all-over' sickness was enough."

"Finally, between the doctor and father, I was put on Grape-Nuts and cream, as it was decided I must have a nourishing food that the body could make use of."

"The wonderful change that came over me was not, like Jesus's gourd, the growth of a single night, yet it came with a rapidity that astonished me."

"During the first week I gained in weight, my spirits improved, and the world began to look brighter and more worth while."

"And this has continued steadily, till now, after the use of Grape-Nuts for only a few weeks, I am perfectly well, feel splendidly, take a lively interest in everything, and am a changed person in every way." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Discussion of Practical Forestry

By J. FRED BAKER, Professor of Forestry Michigan Agricultural College.

(NOTE—In the following series of articles, discussion of seasonal operations which every woodlot owner should be interested in, will be discussed.)

Seed Collection.

Every farmer is much interested in the harvest which is just coming to a close and we hear on every hand discussions of the crops and yields in comparison with other years. However, few realize or have taken notice of the fact that this past season has been one of the best for the production of forest tree seeds for some time past. In Europe, the forest seed crop is of immense value annually. We Americans have not realized its value in this country as yet. However, in the next decade, the crop produced each year along the fence lines and in woodlots will be looked upon as a substantial source of revenue to its owner. Many woodlot owners and farmers have recently become interested in how they can better their forest conditions in the woodlot or establish new woodlots. One of the best ways to do is by collecting seeds near at hand, such as, for instance, acorns and nuts. The black walnut, butternut, hickory, red and black oak and basswood have all produced very abundantly this season. The best time to collect is after the first severe frost. The seeds that fall before the first severe frost as a rule are defective and should not be gathered. After the first severe frost they should be gathered and if squirrels and rodents are not prevalent, plant directly in the area desired. This can be done by filling a knapsack with nuts and going into the woodlot with a spud, pacing along the fence lines, spading a hole and dropping a nut into it and then covering with the heel. It is wonderful how quickly trees planted in this way will develop into good-sized saplings. These should be planted in open places in the woodlot where the grass and briars have come in. A good knapsack is made by taking an ordinary grain sack, cutting down parallel with the sides, leaving two bands about two inches wide and cutting out a panel about one-third the length. Tie the ends of the sack ribbons made in this way and fling over the shoulder.

If rodents and squirrels are a source of danger, the nuts should be stored over winter. In the storage of all forest tree seeds, effort should be made to mimic nature. If nature produces seeds and plants at once, the forester does the same. If nature allows the seeds to fall and covers them over winter with a moist coating of leaves and litter, the forester does the same and the same with those seeds which are borne high on the tips of branches and left to the climatic action over winter such as in the case of our sycamore, ash, honey locust and box elder.

All nuts and acorns nature covers over winter. The woodlot owner can collect these seeds, place them in a box sufficient to contain the amount that he desires to collect. Sink the box in the soil in a well-drained locality, putting in about two inches of sand in the bottom, then a layer of nuts or acorns, then another layer of sand, then nuts and so on until the nuts are taken care of and the box is full. See to it that five or six inches of good sand is left on the surface. Then place covering of light boards over the top. If there is danger of squirrels and chipmunks, a piece of closely woven wire netting should be staked over the box large enough to cover an area four or five feet larger than the box itself and this netting should be partially covered with earth. This will protect the nuts from danger of squirrels and gophers, as they will not burrow through the wire. In this way, the nuts are kept at an even temperature and even moisture condition and can be planted out in the woodlot when desired in the spring. Do not try to keep seeds of this class in the dry state over winter, as they will not germinate in the spring to any degree of satisfaction. However, such seeds as sycamore, ash, box elder, black locust, honey locust, etc., should be collected in the fall and hung in a bag on rafters in barns or houses and kept in a dry condition. These can be planted the same as other tree seeds in the spring.

Man That Pays Her Board.

The sprightly hen that is always off the roost early in the morning and on hand with a fresh egg as soon as she eats her breakfast and then goes directly to work scratching about and does not hover about the nest or hunt for sunny spots to nap in, is usually the hen which pays her board bill with interest at the end of the year.

Value of Charcoal.

The value of charcoal for poultry is best ascertained by allowing them constant access to it. Wet, stinky or old charcoal is not desirable. Do not expect fowls to eat charcoal, grit and shells the way they eat corn. Do not force it on them, but rather have it in convenient reach of the poultry and they will eat as much as they need or is good for them.

Sell Surplus Stock.

Surplus stock should be converted into cash at the earliest profitable opportunity. Money talks, but it doesn't eat its head off or die of cholera or scoup or some other ailment prevalent among fowls.

When Work is Slack.

When work gets slack take an old hoe, saw off the handle to about a foot in length, and with it scrape off the old, scaly bark on your apple and pear trees.

Commercial Fertilizers vs. Humus

By A. J. PATTEN, Experiment Station Chemist, Michigan Agricultural College.

Commercial fertilizers should be used to supplement the manures made on the farm and the green manure such as clover, vetch, rye, etc. The manures made or grown upon the farm usually contain small amounts of the plant food elements but are rich in organic matter or humus forming material. These home manures serve to keep the soil in good physical condition, and are absolutely essential to successful farming.

Commercial fertilizers are more universally successful when used on land that is kept well supplied with organic matter. This may easily be demonstrated by running the fertilizer drill across a field that has been fertilized with barnyard manure. The path of the drill will usually be conspicuous owing to the increased growth of grain. Very often fertilizers used on land devoid of, or low in organic matter fall to give satisfactory returns and they are consequently condemned as being worthless. In many cases of this kind the fault does not lie in the fertilizer but in the condition of the land. Commercial fertilizers require moisture in the soil to bring them into solution. Soils deficient in organic matter are not retentive of moisture, consequently the plant food contained in the fertilizer is either not brought into solution at all or may be leached out of the soil and be carried away in the drainage water.

The idea which many farmers hold in regard to the use of commercial fertilizers that once the practice is commenced they must always be used because their action upon the land is such that after once used nothing can be grown without them is entirely erroneous. This idea undoubtedly was originated by those who used commercial fertilizers to the exclusion of all humus forming materials such as barnyard manure and green manure.

Commercial fertilizers alone will not restore the fertility of a run-down soil. This can only be done by using materials having a large amount of organic matter. This fact cannot be too strongly emphasized, and it should be repeated over and over.

The supply of humus in the soil must be maintained and this can only be done by using materials rich in organic matter, such as barnyard manure or green manures (clover, vetch, cowpeas, rye, etc.). Commercial fertilizers are used to furnish plant food in a more readily available form than it exists in the soil, while the humus-forming fertilizers are used to improve the physical condition of the soil in which the plants must live.

There are, of course, other conditions governing the productive capacity of a soil, such as cultivation, drainage, climatic condition, seed selection, etc., but these cannot be discussed at this time.

CARE OF THE SEED CORN

By C. P. HALLIGAN, Assistant Horticulturist Michigan Agricultural College.

The quality of seed corn in the spring depends largely on its having been properly dried and stored. The selected ears should be placed where they will dry in the shortest reasonable time and various methods have been employed for this purpose. There is no better method from the standpoint of efficiency than the old one of braiding the ears together by the husks or tying them in lots by strings and hanging in the summer kitchen or in the attic above, near the stovepipe. This, however, requires considerable room and is not altogether satisfactory to the workers in the kitchen. A furnace room is a good place, providing it is well ventilated and an occasional fire is built. Frequently the corn is left in crates and while this is usually a successful method, there is more or less danger from molding; corn so stored should be watched carefully until it is known to be thoroughly dry.

Storing.—Many contrivances have been used to hold the ears. Racks on which the ears can be placed in single layers are good if mice and rats can be kept out of the room. Ears suspended in links of binder twine will keep well and be safe from mice. The soft pith in the butt of the ears makes it possible for them to be hung on nails which have had the heads cut off after being driven into upright posts. An inverted pan will need to be nailed about the bottom of the post to prevent mice from reaching the corn.

Drying.—The temperature of the room in which corn is stored should be maintained at 75 or 80 degrees, with abundant circulation of air. Rapid drying removes the possibility of molding and consequent loss of vitality. After the drying is complete, the temperature of the room may be allowed to drop even below freezing, but it should be observed that many of our successful corn growers never allow the temperature of the room in which seed is stored, to fall below freezing. The room should be kept thoroughly dry.

MINISTER HELD FOR CRIME.

Charged With Having Murdered Girl to Whom He Was Engaged.

Rev. Clarence Virgil Thompson Richeson, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church of Cambridge, Mass., a handsome Virginian, was arrested on the charge of killing Miss Avis Linnell, a pretty Hyannis girl, to whom he was formerly engaged. It is charged that he threw over Miss Linnell and wanted to get her out of the way so that he might marry Miss Violet Edmonds, a rich Brookline, Mass., girl. Cards of invitation were out for his marriage to Miss Edmonds.

Richeson at police headquarters emphatically protested that a terrible error had been made in his arrest.

Fiancee's Father Will Defend Richeson.

"Mr. Richeson will have as good a defense as money can buy," declared Moses Grant Edmonds, millionaire father of Violet Edmonds, whom Clarence V. T. Richeson, charged with the murder of Avis Linnell, was to have married October 31. Edmonds and his daughter firmly believe in the innocence of Richeson, while the police as firmly believe in his guilt.

India's Deadly Wild Creatures.

Last year 22478 deaths occurred in India from snake bites and 2,400 persons were killed by wild animals. The deaths caused by snakes and wild animals in the province of Burma in 1910 amounted to 1,273 and 80 respectively. The number of cattle killed in India amounted to 93,074 by wild animals and 10,909 by snakes. Of the deaths of cattle in Burma, 7,851 were caused by wild animals and 6,588 by snakes. Tigers and leopards were the most destructive animals, elephants, bears, wolves, hyenas, etc., being also responsible for fatalities. Rewards amounting to $47,725 were paid by the government for the destruction in all India 91,104 snakes and 19,282 wild animals.

The family with young children that is without sickness in the house now and then is rare, and so it is important that the head of the house should know what to do in the little emergencies that arise. A child with a serious ailment needs a doctor, it is true, but in the majority of instances, as any doctor knows, the child suffers from some intestinal trouble, usually constipation.

There is no sense in giving it a pill or a remedy containing an opiate, nor is fighting the bowels to be always recommended. Rather give it a small dose of a mild, gentle laxative, tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which, by clean-

Obtrusive Sarah

"My goodness!" said everybody when Sarah Seaney made her appearance at the summer resort hotel.

People had said "My goodness!" at Sarah Seaney so many times in her eighteen years of existence that she had grown used to the remark. The only real bright spot in the situation was that her parents had not named her Lily or nicknamed her Tiny in her helpless infancy.

Sarah was large of bone and nearly six feet tall. It was her amazing length and broadness and massiveness which startled people into alarmed comment. In spite of her prominent cheekbones and expansive mouth, there was an attractiveness about Sarah's face. It may have been its healthy freshness and the brightness of her eyes, which held a perpetual laugh at the world in general. It took the older people to appreciate this, for those of her own age looked at Sarah and, because she was so different from the stock pattern, declared she was impossible.

At the dances the college boys circled widely around Sarah and picked out the girls whose heads came only to their shoulders. Youthful masculinity is strong on the clinging vine idea. Sarah, in her yards and yards of expensive lingerie gown, sat out the waiters and two-steps beside her mother, beaming pleasantly and apparently enjoying herself hugely. The girls took this as a direct affront. They said Sarah was "so masculine."

Further, she had an irritating habit of going on long walks by herself and returning with armfuls of wild field flowers and a cheerful countenance. Her practical ostracism seemed not to make the remotest impression upon her.

Lancy Cobb, the only young man whose eyes were not on a lower level than Sarah's, tried to break the boycott. When the girls set their faces against asking her to the beach picnic he was indignant and tried to make it up to Sarah by talking to her. She regarded him, interestedly, smiled a little and did not seem impressed. But she was very pleasant to Lancy after that.

"I like that girl!" he told the others. "Why don't you drag her in instead of shelving her?"

Agnes Simmons set her rosy mouth in a straight line at this. Agnes was built on the Dresden china pattern and Lancy had been her special property. She was dainty and fragile enough to allure mightily and this revelation of the unexpected tangents taken by men both surprised and angered her. The anger was all directed at Sarah Seaney.

Agnes was roused to active defense late one evening when the crowd, wandering out on the end of the pier after the dance, found Sarah Seaney occupying the best bench alone and gazing appreciatively at the big, full moon shining across the lake. She spoke to the others quite as though they were her dearest friends, instead of persons who had perpetually snubbed her.

"Isn't the water lovely with that summer upon it?" she asked. "Great!" agreed Lancy Cobb, sitting down on the bench beside her.

"If you like it so well," Agnes Simmons said to Sarah, with instant rebellion in her heart, "why don't you take a moonlight swim?"

Agnes could swim a half mile and was proud of it.

Sarah smiled at Agnes silently. She was on her feet by now, for she would not seem to appropriate Lancy. "Oh, I don't know," she answered, meditatively watching the glistening waves.

"Go on!" Agnes taunted sweetly. She might have been lovingly urging Sarah to help herself to chocolates. "I dare you to jump in—now!"

A little silence fell on the rest. Sarah, like those who had danced, was clad in expensive and fragile clothes. She gave Agnes a long look. A little of her happy expression faded as she understood the antagonistic gaze that was fixed upon her.

"Would you do it?" she asked quietly.

Agnes laughed. "Oh, I'm not afraid of the water," she said, with infinite condescension. "I swim, you know. I didn't think you were afraid—you're so big!"

A long arm shot out from Sarah's side and twined about the slender form of Agnes Simmons and then with a great plunge Sarah Seaney dropped from the end of the pier, taking her tormentor with her. With an inarticulate cry, Lancy Cobb jumped after them.

As he dragged himself and Sarah, dripping and straining, to shore he pushed the hair back anxiously from her face. She laughed.

"I'm all right!" she gasped. "But I had to sink for I can't swim a stroke, you know!"

"Then, why—" began Lancy Cobb, in horror.

"She dared me," explained Sarah, placidly wringing out her skirts. "I knew you'd save me!" Then she laughed out loud as she watched Agnes Simmons scrambling up the side of the pier. "I think she was surprised," she added, comfortably.

"You're all right!" broke out Lancy Cobb in heartfelt admiration as he marched her toward the hotel.

MUST BE CAREFULLY KEPT

Face Powder and All Other Cosmetics Need to Be Always Absolutely Fresh.

The complaint that powder rubs off can be overcome with the exercise of a little extra care in the application of this first aid to beauty.

We hear so much about the injurious effects of cosmetics that the woman who harkens to well meant but ill-spoken advice turns to her powder box with fear and trembling. There is no need for this parsimony in the use of what is, in fact, a protection and a supplement to a good, clear, healthy skin. This is only true, however, when absolutely fresh powder is used, and when all traces of it are removed upon retiring at night. Powder grows stale, and when stale has an irritating rather than a soothing effect. Pure rice powder, kept in a closed box with a sachet bag, or a stick oforris root, is fragrant and harmless.

Dry skins easily shed powder. For this reason it is better to use a foundation of a teaspoonful of glycerine to a half pint of rose water. Apply the lotion and dry off quickly, then see that the powder is evenly distributed.

Liquid powders, when pure are strongly recommended for some skins. Under the evening lights they give a veiled transparency to the skin, besides which they have the advantage of not rubbing off easily. Extreme care should be used in their application to see that no white patches show, as will be the case if carelessly applied. A good liquid powder is made by slowly pouring a dram of glycerine over an ounce of oxide of zinc to make a smooth paste. Four ounces of rose water are then added slowly, and lastly 15 drops of essence of rose. Bottle and shake well before applying the lotion to the skin.

HEMS OF SKIRTS SLASHED

Narrow Draperies, at Present So Much in Vogue, Render This Style Imperative.

Many of the new skirts have deeply slashed hems; or, if the hem is not slashed, the seam of the overlapping drapery is left open to a height of from twelve to fifteen inches. In many cases this opening of the seam or slashing of the hem is absolutely necessary, because the skirt is so narrow that otherwise the wearer could not step.

Every indication points to the continuance of the short jacket for tailored suits. Twenty-six inches is the approximate length that will be most in use. Throughout the summer slightly shorter effects have prevailed, and the abruptly cut away noton front, with the position back, has been considerably seen. But in the preparation of fall models dress-makers and tailors both suggest that the length in front be increased; therefore, models of this kind are being modified to the more practical form for winter.

The almost form fitting, though straight line cut jacket is much seen in Paris. Nearly all of the tailors continue to cut the jacket very flat over the hips. One exception is Callot, who is putting a slight fullness into the basque of the jacket, recalling certain quaint, old fashioned styles. This form of jacket always runs considerably shorter to the front; the fullness or ripple in the back is so slight as to be hardly noticeable, but at the same time it is there, and to some degree, bespeaks a new fashion.

TUNIC SUIT FOR BOYS

This style of suit can be carried out in linen, fine serge or shantung; the knickers are full and gathered in below the knees by elastic run in the hem.

The tunic is arranged in plaits, and has a deep turn-over collar of contrasting color scalloped at edge.

Material required: Two and one-fourth yards 42 inches wide.

Matting Rugs.

When getting matting get several yards extra, with which to make summer rugs. You can cut this extra piece into desired lengths and finish them neatly on the edges by pulling out the straws to the depth of several inches and tying up the threads.

These rugs protect the floor covering quite as well as heavier ones and have the advantage of being without fuzz and easily cleaned.

Hair Health.

Take Advantage of this Generous Offer.

Your money back upon request at our store if Rexall "93" Hair Tonic doesn't do as we claim. That's our guarantee. You obligate yourself to nothing whatever. Could you ask or could we give you stronger proof of our confidence in the hair restoring qualities of this preparation?

We could not afford to so strongly endorse Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and continue to sell it as we do, if it did not do all we claim it will. Should our enthusiasm have carried us away, and Rexall "93" Hair Tonic not give entire satisfaction to the users, they would lose faith in us and our statements, and in consequence our business prestige would suffer.

We assure you that if your hair is beginning to unnaturally fall out or if you have any scalp trouble, Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will promptly eradicate dandruff, stimulate hair growth and prevent premature baldness, or the above guarantee becomes operative. ## AN OLD AND NEW SHOWER

Unique Affair That Will Be Not Only Gratifying but Profitable to Bride.

In the case of a bride who will not "go to housekeeping," as the country folk say, or whose relations have already well supplied her with household necessities, it is a pretty and new idea to get up a shower which embodies the various fortunate emblems embodied in the old rhyme of happy weddings:

Something old and something new,
Something borrowed and something blue.

The possibilities of such a shower are not immediately apparent, perhaps, but after a little cogitation it will be found to apply to articles which suit the purse string of almost any friend and certain to mean gratification to any bride.

For instance, among the things old there are antiques of every kind—silver, furniture, china, and, last but not least, old lace. Prints come within the scope of this rhyme, so do copies of English classics, which are old, however new the edition.

The possibilities of the something new clause are limitless and can be stretched to cover any kind of novelty that is desirable, from a 10-cent appliance to an innovation costing a goodly sum.

The borrowed item is not so difficult as it would at first appear, for there are books of quotations, which are certainly borrowed; any pretty thing in tortoise shell or other shell is borrowed from the original possessor. There are plaster casts or marble copies of famous statues and photographs of old masters, and inexpensive but capital copies of old willow ware, with selections from the operas for the musical performer.

For the blue clause no suggestions need be made, as any trifle it is desired to give can be sought in this color.

The showery part of the afternoon is usually followed by a feast, whether a luncheon, supper or buffet refreshment, and in regaling her guests after a gift feature of this sort it would be a charming idea have the table tricked out in any antique damask, silver, glass etc., which the hostess can avail herself of from the household treasures.

Those in charge of the affair may elect to wear old-time costumes, and the bride may be invited to "a bygone days party" or anything which will keep her unsuspecting of what is in store.

STOVE BUYER WARNINGS

Caution ASK for the book on "The Only Safe Way to Buy Stoves and Ranges." As a matter of simple justice to the public, we, as agents of the largest makers of stoves and ranges in the world, give here, and in this special book, the facts about mail-order stove buying. We wish it understood that we are not fighting any Mail-Order Stove Concern. We aim our blows at the system, where the buyer takes great chances of getting his money's worth. Consider carefully the questions involved in the purchase of a stove or range, which must either give years of day-to-day service and satisfaction or prove an absolutely worthless investment.

Risks of Mail-Order Stove Buying

- 1—Quality! No matter how attractive, no stove, however low, can justify the purchase of a stove or range that lacks the vital element of quality. Experience, skill, science and plain, old-fashioned honesty in materials and workmanship must all be wrought into the stove before it has the quality that will stand the test of years. A "30-day test" of stoves or ranges is one of the biggest assets of the mail-order system of stove selling. Don't let the "bargain" man run away with your business judgment. No mail-order stove concern can sell stoves for less than their market value without going bankrupt. The huge profits of mail-order selling come out of the buyer's pocket. Your own good judgment will tell you that a local merchant, who pays stoves and ranges in cartloads, will give you a better deal and bigger value than you can ever secure from any mail-order stove concern.
- 2—Guarantee! Your guarantee of quality, when you buy Garland Stoves or Ranges, is based on forty years
- 3—Bargains! There's magic in the word "bargain"—it is one of the biggest assets of the mail-order system of stove selling. Don't let the "bargain" man run away with your business judgment. No mail-order stove concern can sell stoves for less than their market value without going bankrupt. The huge profits of mail-order selling come out of the buyer's pocket. Your own good judgment will tell you that a local merchant, who pays stoves and ranges in cartloads, will give you a better deal and bigger value than you can ever secure from any mail-order stove concern.
- 4—Delays! If buying a stove or range by mail, you run the risk of postponing delivery. Business is so slow that the anxious buyer waits six months for delivery. If a mail-order stove concern is slow to deliver, it is slow to service. It is generally taken for granted that the mail-order stove concern is slow to service. It is slow to service. It is slow to service. It is slow to service.
- 5—"Knock-Down" Stoves! No mail-order stove is shipped out ready for use. The buyer must assemble them, set them up and black them himself. In case of trouble he must make complaint by letter, wait a long time for new parts and suffer the inconvenience of delay. We deliver your stove or range set up, complete, blacked and ready for use. Which way is best?
- 6—"Money Back!" We do not question the good faith of mail-order stove concerns who offer "money back" if their stove or range or range is not what you expect. But remember that when you get a mail-order stove, you have money on your hands. It is generally taken for granted that the mail-order stove concern is slow to service. It is slow to service. It is slow to service. It is slow to service.
- 7—The Best Way! A good dealer, right in your home town—no matter how small a town—will give you a better deal and bigger value than you can ever secure from any mail-order stove concern. Come and see us before you make your next purchase. Get the benefit of our experience. Have us explain to you all the details that go to make up quality and value of stoves and ranges. For which they are famous throughout the entire world. That's the best way to be sure of getting your money's worth.
