The new slide track on the Pere Marquette is very convenient for some of the train crews, who can leave their trains and help themselves to a stock of winter vegetables, nuts, etc., from the neighboring farmers, but is not much of a blessing to the farmers. One day this week a member of a crew took a basket from the caboose and climbed over into a fine thrifty field of rape and after pulling quite a quantity and examining the roots gave up in disgust. He had been expecting to get a supply of turnips.

To say the people of Newburg were surprised is putting it mild, when Dr. Allen of Detroit announced after the service Sunday last that Newburg charge is no longer a part of Plymouth charge and introduced a gentleman from Detroit by the name of Jewell, who would assume the responsibility of pastor to this people. This charge has been a part of Plymouth charge since 1834 and in all that time has never failed in doing its share of supporting a pastor. The few Sundays that Rev. Warren has been with us had greatly endeared him to this people, making it doubly hard to part with him.

Mr. and Mrs. Muszey of Los Angeles, Cal., are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James LeVan.

Mrs. Ransom Lewis and daughter Mae gave a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Mabel Stevens last Saturday afternoon. About fifty ladies, old and young, were present. Blind-folding the bride-to-be and presenting her with the different packages, she was asked to guess their contents and also the donor, which created a good deal of merriment. The house was prettily decorated in the Halloween colors. A dainty lunch was served, after which the guests departed with many wishes for the future happiness of Miss Mabel.

The Courtship of Miles Standish

With Illustrations by Howard Chandler Christy

The Wedding Day

Forth from the curtain of clouds, from the tent of purple and scarlet, issued the sun, the great High Priest, in his garments resplendent, Holiness unto the Lord, in letters of light, on his forehead, Round the hem of his robe the golden bells and pomegranates, Gleaming the world he came, and the hars of vapor beneath him Cleared like a grate of brass, and the sea at his feet was a laver!

This was the wedding morn of Priscilla, the Puritan maiden. Friends were assembled together; the Elder and Magistrate also Graced the scene with their presence, and stood like the Law and the Gospel.

One with the sanction of earth and one with the blessing of heaven, Simple and brief was the wedding, as

Gravely, and after the manner of old-fashioned gentry in England, Something of camp and of court, of town and of country, commingled, Wishing her joy of her wedding, and loudly landing her husband. Then he said with a smile: "I should have remembered the adage,— If you would be well served, you must serve yourself; and moreover, No man can gather cherries in Kent at the season of Christmas!"

Great was the people's amazement, and greater yet their rejoicing. Thus to behold once more the sun-burnt face of their Captain, Whom they had mourned as dead; and they gathered and crowded about him. Eager to see him and hear him, forgetful of bride and of bridegroom, Questioning, answering, laughing, and each interrupting the other, Till the good Captain declared, being quite overpowered and bewildered, He had rather by far break into an Indian encampment.

Than come again to a wedding to which he had not been invited. Meanwhile the bridegroom went forth and stood with the bride at the doorway, Breathing the perfumed air of that warm and beautiful morning. Touched with autumnal tints, but lonely and sad in the sunshine, Lay extended before them the land of toil and privation; There were the graves of the dead, and the barren waste of the seashore, There the familiar fields, the groves of pine, and the meadows; But to their eyes transfigured, it seemed as the Garden of Eden, Filled with the presence of God, whose voice was the sound of the ocean.

Soon was their vision disturbed by the noise and stir of departure, Friends coming forth from the house, that of Ruth and of Boaz. Softly the youth and the maiden repeated the words of betrothal, Taking each other for husband and wife in the Magistrate's presence, After the Puritan way, and the laudable custom of Holland. Reverently then, and devoutly, the excellent Elder of Plymouth Prayed for the hearth and the home, that were founded that day in affection, Speaking of life and of death, and imploring divine benedictions.

Lo! when the service was ended, a form appeared on the threshold, Clad in armor of steel, a somber and sorrowful figure! Why does the bridegroom start and stare at the strange apparition? Why does the bride turn pale, and hide her face on his shoulder? Is it a phantom of air,—a bodiless, spectral illusion? Is it a ghost from the grave, that has come to forbid the betrothal? Long had it stood there unseen, a guest uninvited, unwelcomed; Over its clouded eyes there had passed at times an expression Softening the gloom and revealing the warm heart hidden beneath them, As when across the sky the driving rack of the rain-cloud; Grows for a moment thin, and betrays the sun by its brightness. Once it had lifted its hand, and moved its lips, but was silent, As if an iron will had mastered the seething intention. But when were ended the troth and the prayer and the last benediction, Into the room it strode, and the people beheld with amazement. Bodily there in his armor Miles Standish, the Captain of Plymouth! Grasping the bridegroom's hand, he said with emotion, "Forgive me! I have been angry and hurt,—too long have I cherished the feeling; I have been cruel and hard, but now, thank God! it is ended. Mine in the same hot blood that leaped in the veins of Hugh Standish. Sensitive, swift to resent, but as swift in atoning for error. Never so much as now was Miles Standish the friend of John Alden."

Thereupon answered the bridegroom: "Let all be forgotten between us— All save the dear, old friendship, and that shall grow older and stronger."

Then the Captain advanced, and how the radiant Priscilla, and impatient of longer delaying. Each with his plan for the day, and the work that was left uncompleted. Then from a stall near at hand, amid exclamations of wonder, Alden the thoughtful, the careful, so happy, so proud of Priscilla, Brought out his snow-white steer, obeying the hand of its master, Let by a cord that was tied to an iron ring in its nostrils, Covered with crimson cloth, and a cushion placed for a saddle. She should not walk, he said, through the dust and heat of the noonday; Nay, she should ride like a queen, not plod along like a peasant. Somewhat alarmed at first, but reassured by the others, Placing her hand on the cushion, her foot in the hand of her husband, Gaily, with joyous laugh, Priscilla, mounted her palfrey. "Nothing is wanting now," he said with a smile, "but the distaff; Then you would be in truth my queen, my beautiful Bertha!"

Onward the bridal procession now moved to their new habitation, Happy husband and wife, and friends conversing together. Pleasantly murmured the brook, as they crossed the ford in the forest. Pleased with the image that passed, like a dream of love through its bosom, Tremulous, floating in air, o'er the depths of the azure abysses. Down through the golden leaves the sun was pouring his splendors, Gleaming on purple grapes, that from branches above them suspended, Mingled their odorous breath with the balm of the pine and the fir-tree, Wild and sweet as the clusters that grew in the valley of Eschol. Like a picture it seemed of the primitive, pastoral age. Fresh with the youth of the world, and recalling Rebecca and Isaac, Old and yet ever new, and simple and beautiful always, Love immortal and young in the endless succession of lovers. So through the Plymouth woods passed onward the bridal procession.

THE END

As Uncle Eben says it, "De reason," said Uncle Eben, "dat some men walk de floor because of deir debts is because it's warmer an' no comfortable dat 'goin' out an' buildin' lanes or shovelin' snow."

TALES OF GOTHAM AND OTHER CITIES

Painted Meat and Aged Eggs in Gotham

NEW YORK.—Since the first of this year the state bureau of food inspection has condemned 10,486,778 pounds of food as rotten or adulterated. Most of the food condemned was in New York city.

The other day the first of the group of offenders were arraigned and must appear for trial. Most of them were dealers from the lower part of the city, and the charge against them alleged the possession of decayed chickens, soured condensed milk, spoiled corned beef, dyed chopped meat, spoiled meat of all kinds, rotten eggs, bad butter and decayed fruits.

According to reports there are even worse articles in restaurants and stores, such as painted fish, spoiled meat dipped in formaldehyde and reddened so as to look fresh, ice cream containing wood alcohol, candies containing poisonous dyes and soda sirups made of coal tar.

"We have found bad butter—a mess," says Dr. McMillan, chief of the inspectors, "that was a mixture of good and bad butter or oleo and bad butter and good butter all mixed and treated so that it looked palatable. In one of the cellars of a restaurant man I found hams that he had bought at a navy sale of rejected foods, and he had, in addition, many pounds of rotten tomatoes. On the stands of street vendors we have found a goodly amount of decayed vegetables and fruit, which, strangely enough, people buy."

"As soon as rotten food is discovered by inspectors it is denatured by methylene blue or some like acid, unless it is needed for chemical analysis.

"Meats can be treated effectively with formaldehyde. A piece of tainted meat, black and malodorous, is often washed in the acid, we find, and is then sold for good meat, red and fresh looking, as its treatment makes it.

"The rotten egg industry is not yet dead. Recently I found 171 cans of 'spot' eggs in one man's cellar and 42 in another. Each can contained 30 dozen eggs. If fresh eggs are put into cold storage in summer, they will keep nicely for six months. If they are put in cold weather, they will keep for a year. Longer periods than these result in eggs that are not fit for human consumption."

Indianapolis Has a Municipal Market

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Believing that Indianapolis commission firms combined to maintain high prices by keeping down the supply of farm products, Mayor Shank brought a carload of potatoes from Wisconsin and sold them at cost, plus a small sum for buying, handling and delivering. In less than a week the price of potatoes dropped 50 per cent. as a result. The mayor has now proposed to the council that it authorize the employment of a municipal buyer to follow the sale prices of the dealers and the prices charged by producers.

"I am convinced," the mayor said, "that if 25 of our leading cities would do this the combines that maintain high prices could be broken. There are thousands and thousands of bushels of pears and apples going to waste in the orchards of Indiana because the commission firms plan to keep the visible supply down and keep up the prices. The same conditions exist in other states and cities."

The mayor had charge of the first car load of potatoes, and there was a remarkable scene at the city market when the first car was sold. It had been announced that one person could buy as much as a bushel for 75 cents, a peck at 20 cents or half a peck for a dime.

As early as three o'clock the crowds began gathering. Customers went there on foot, horseback, in carriages and automobiles. When the first wagon load arrived and the mayor announced the sale was on, there was a continual clamor for potatoes until ten o'clock, when the car load had been sold.

The potatoes were sold by weight and not by measure. There are 60 pounds to a bushel and it was found that 60 pounds always heaped high a bushel measure. So with the measures of less denomination. One man remarked he could buy potatoes at 75 cents by weight, sell them at 75 cents by measure, and make money.

Following his first experiment in selling direct to the consumer, the mayor sent expert buyers into the potato and fruit districts of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. He says the buyers found that there are large crops of potatoes and apples and other fruits, although it has been maintained by the dealers that the potato crop is a failure.

Prison Warden's Novel Experiments

TOPEKA, Kan.—A new plan, intended to give Kansas convicts a new idea of life, has been put into effect at the Kansas penitentiary, according to the report of Warden J. K. Coddling to Governor Stubbs. Every man that is sent to the prison is given six months' work on the farm just previous to his release. The men get out in the open. They are tanned and sunburned, have more liberty, less discipline, get close to nature and leave the prison with the hatred of men and laws gone and really wanting to try to live better lives. Since the new system has been tried not one released convict has come back. Warden Coddling believes that through this system Kansas may gain a record for a minimum number of second-term men which will be lower than that of any other state.

Many years ago an island in the Missouri river was sold to the state by some political sharpers, who made a lot of money in the deal. The island has never been used, and the lands owned by the state around the prison have never been used to any great extent for farming.

Warden Coddling began work two years ago, and the first thing he did was to give the prisoners half an hour's liberty each day in the prison yard. The men can do anything they wish during that half hour. They can talk to each other and the guard, play ball, pitch horse shoes, play croquet or a dozen other games.

The prisoners had been morose and sullen, and there were 22 insane prisoners in the hospital and a half dozen tuberculosis patients. The plan was adopted to see if the insanity and tuberculosis could not be stopped. Not a new patient has developed in 14 months, and there is not a single prisoner in the tuberculosis hospital at this time.

Finds a $1,000 Pearl in Clam Shell

CHICAGO.—A $1,000 pearl, found in a clam bake and subsequently forcibly taken away by the dealer who supplied the shellfish, was taken into custody the other day by Capt. Max Danber of the police department, pending a decision by Municipal Judge Caverly of a question equally perplexing as that of the egg laid by the famous Maywood hen. As a result Judge Caverly was expected to give the correct answer to the following question:

"If a clam dealer is ordered to supply clams for a church dinner and gives some of them to a carpenter, who finds a $1,000 pearl in one of the shells, does the gem belong to the church?"

Our Lady of Lourdes church, Leland and North Ashland avenues, recently gave a clam bake and ordered the clams for the feast from Frank J. Dugget, 70 South Water street. While carrying the clams into the church Dugget gave half a dozen to Eben Theisen, a carpenter, who was at work in the building.

Theisen opened one of the shells and found the pearl. Thereupon Dugget claimed the gem as his property, and an argument regarding the ownership followed, resulting in the dealer forcibly taking possession of the pearl. Theisen then had Dugget arrested on a charge of larceny and the case was called before Judge Caverly.

After pondering on the details, the judge suggested that the pearl should rightfully belong to the church which had purchased the clams. Immediately Theisen and Dugget joined ranks against their common opponent, the church, and refused to listen to any terms of settlement by which they both would "lose out." Accordingly, the judge continued his ruling and gave the gem to Captain Danber for safekeeping.

FJORDS OF NORWAY

Torghatten Is a Perpendicular Giants' Cauldron.

Natural Tunnel Bored Through Great Rock During Glacial Period—Looks as Though Chiseled by Hand of Man.

Christina, Norway.—Like huge serpents of clear sea water the fjords of Norway wriggle miles inward into the land and offer to the eye some of the most picturesque landscapes in the world. At times the channel narrows between sheer cliffs to the width of a tourist steamer and then it suddenly broadens out into an inland lake bordered with meadows and deep green pine forests. Farther north glaciers and snowfields come down almost to the water's edge and nature is barren excepting where a few hardy plants struggle for a bare existence. According to geologists these intricate fjords were formed by the movement of ice in the glacial period. One mass of ice spread from Russia across the Baltic sea and Sweden to the valleys of Norway; the other pushed eastward from the Atlantic and it was in these fjords, then high-lain valleys, that the two frozen waves fought against each other, wearing away soil and strand until, when the ice melted, the valleys had disappeared and fjords had taken their place. But gigantic rocks and peaks which had resisted the friction of the glaciers remained.

There are at least 150,000 of these islands, some of them over 3,000 feet in height, and their grotesque shapes are not the least attractive feature in the weird panorama of broken sea and land. The most famous is the Torghatten, about five miles to the north of the Blindalsfjord in Nordland. Its shape, as indicated by its name, is that of a Norwegian market hat floating on the water and attaining a height of over 800 feet. What gives it its unique character, however, is a natural tunnel bored through it during the glacial period. As this tunnel is 400 feet above the level of the sea come idea can be formed of the extent to which the soil was worn away. In reality this strange hole is a perpendicular giant's cauldron in which stone, ice and water churned and swirled until they had perforated the rock in their frantic Arctic struggle and gained an outlet for the impatient masses behind. So perfectly did they carve the tunnel that in parts it almost looks as though it had been chiseled by the hand of man. On the eastern side it is only 64 feet high, increasing to 250 feet on the western. Its length is over 500 feet, the walls are almost perpendicular and the floor covered with the debris of ages and with remains of the last struggle, just before wave and ice retreated. Gazing through it from the western extremity the spectator is rewarded with a peculiarly framed panorama of blue water, rugged coast and jagged islands, with perhaps a quaint Norwegian fishing smack silently pursuing its way southward.

WAS BITTEN BY 2,000 DOGS

Denver's Dog Catcher Holds a Record But Is None the Worse for His Experiences.

Denver, Colo.—Two thousand dogs have now had luncheon off Herman Carn, the official dog catcher of Denver, the last to take advantage of his generous girth being a hungry Newfoundland dog which embroidered his initials on Carn's back recently. Following his usual custom, Carn bathed the wound with carbolic acid, and then started off to provide a banquet for some other dog.

Carn has been in charge of the how-wow bureau for years and picks up on an average of 10,000 stray dogs every year. At first he tried to keep track of his bites by making an entry in a book, but they came so fast that he had to buy an adding machine. Save for a couple of serious punctures to his nose, inflicted by a peevish pup, Carn's exterior appearance does not differ from that of the ordinary dog catcher.

It is not until he disrobes, as he did one day recently at the request of the city officials, that the extent of his patriotic services become apparent. His exquisitely carved anatomy is a splendid tribute to the artistic marksmanship of the canine family. His legs look like perforated pipes, while his back resembles a game bag torn clean.

GEORGE S. LOVELACE, Great Commander, K. O. T. M. M.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 1, 1911.—"The wisdom displayed by the delegates to the special Great Camp Review at Port Huron, in readjusting rates of the society, has been fully and completely demonstrated," declared George S. Lovelace. "Members of all ages, particularly the younger and older, are transferring in large numbers. Misunderstandings are being explained away, distrust is eliminated, members are assured that no further raise in rates will ever be necessary. Today the Knights of the Modern Maccabees is stronger than at any time since the organization in 1851," declared Mr. Lovelace.

Some men are so small that a five cent cigar looks big to them.

A Jolt to Romance. "Hubby, you have a lock of my hair, haven't you?" "Next my heart." "See if you can match it in some puffs when you go downtown."

Torture. "I wonder how Tantalus felt," said the student of the classics. "Probably," replied Colonel Stillwell, "like a thirsty Maine man listening to the election returns."

Up to Date. "I notice that young Doctor Curren uses autohynosis in his practice?" "Of course he does. Didn't you know he specializes in motor nerves?" "All the world may be a stage, but unfortunately we can't always hear the prompter."

More English Humor. The first night Walter Kelly, known to vaudeville as the "Virginia Judge," walked up the Strand he complained to his English companion that the famous street in London was dark at nine o'clock. "Why," said he, "at this hour Broadway is as bright as day. There is one sign alone, The Chariot Race, in which there are 50,000 electric lights." "But I say, old top," said his English friend, "wouldn't that be rather conspicuous?"

Musician Wanted.

In a parish in Wales where very little English was spoken a general meeting was held to consider the desirability of putting a chandelier into the schoolroom. Every one seemed in favor of the idea. "Do you think we ought to have one, Mr. Davis?" said the schoolmaster to a venerable parishioner. "I agree to it," was the reply; "but there is one thing I wish to know. If we have a—"

"Chandelier," said the schoolmaster, helping him out. "If we have a chandelier," the old man continued, "who is going to play it?"

THE TEA PENALTY. A Strong Man's Experience.

Writing from a busy railroad town the wife of an employe of one of the great roads says: "My husband is a railroad man who has been so much benefited by the use of Postum that he wishes me to express his thanks to you for the good it has done him. His waking hours are taken up with his work, and he has no time to write himself. "He has been a great tea drinker all his life and has always liked it strong. "Tea has, of late years, acted on him like morphine does upon most people. At first it soothed him, but only for an hour or so, then it began to affect his nerves to such an extent that he could not sleep at night, and he would go to his work in the morning wretched and miserable from the loss of rest. This condition grew constantly worse, until his friends persuaded him, some four months ago, to quit tea and use Postum. "At first he used Postum only for breakfast, but as he liked the taste of it, and it somehow seemed to do him good, he added it to his evening meal. Then, as he grew better, he began to drink it for his noon meal, and now he will drink nothing else at table. "His condition is so wonderfully improved that he could not be hired to give up Postum and go back to tea. His nerves have become steady and reliable once more, and his sleep is easy, natural and refreshing. He owes all this to Postum, for he has taken no medicine and made no other change in his diet. "His brother, who was very nervous from coffee-drinking, was persuaded by us to give up the coffee and use Postum and he also has recovered his health and strength." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Well-being," to play "Tea's a Poison." "What shall the strong better? A new and stronger tea, that will do you good."

New Bank for Plymouth

A new bank to be known as the Wayne County State Bank is to be organized here. A central location has already been purchased and every effort will be made to have the bank ready to open for business Jan'y 1st, it is stated. E. B. Jenney, a Dowagiac capitalist and president of the State Savings Bank of that city, is instrumental in the organization of the new bank and will be a prominent stock-holder therein. Associated with Mr. Jenney in the enterprise, it is expected, will be some of the prominent people of Plymouth and a Detroit banker and capitalist. Mr. Jenney was in town yesterday.

Appointed Ass't Prosecutor

P. W. Voorhies has been appointed assistant prosecuting attorney by Prosecutor Shepherd, and will begin his duties next Monday. The appointment came unsolicited and without wire-pulling and as a result, says the Free Press, the politicians "were much surprised," but they had nothing to say. They couldn't say anything, because Mr. Shepherd couldn't have picked out a cleaner man or one better fitted to fill the place, and as an attorney Mr. Voorhies stands very high in court and legal circles of the county.

Mr. Voorhies does not expect to give up his business in Plymouth entirely, as he will be home every evening and as much as possible other times. His new position carries with it a salary of $2,500. We are very much pleased in the appointment as are also the many friends of the appointee, believing fully that "he will make good."

Fire First Shot Against "Wire Trust"

Washington, D. C.—Through the filing this week with the Inter-State Commerce Commission of petitions from citizens of Denver, Colo. and the Home Telephone Co. of Tennessee, demanding the investigation of the telegraph and telephone monopoly, the first shot has been fired in the long promised fight to break the power of the wire trust.

The petitions charge persistent violation of the law, oppression, coercion, and intimidation and urge the Commission to make a thorough inquiry into the "gentlemen's agreements" existing between the old line companies for the maintenance of exorbitant rates and unimproved service.

While apparently two separate and distinct actions, having no relation to each other, it is understood here that they really represent a concurrent resolution of all the independent telephone companies of the country and the telegraph and telephone system to unite forces in an effort to break the strangle hold held by the wire trust on the United States. The double-barreled demand for an investigation it is expected by the complainants will insure a thorough house-cleaning in these two important fields of interstate communication and bring to light the whole inside story of the wire trust and the methods it uses to undermine, harass and cripple its rivals and keep up prices.

In its complaint charging the monopoly with a restraint of trade, the Home Company describes how its long distance connections with adjacent states was suddenly and arbitrarily cut off by a subsidiary of the trust after it had acquired control of a former independent company through which the Home furnished its clients with such service.

Holding that this is in violation of inter-state commerce the Home Company asks the Commission to declare all long distance lines public carriers like the railroads and to compel the trust to restore to it the long distance connections it formerly enjoyed and to give it through service to all long distance points. If the application is granted its effort will be to lower long distance telegraph tolls to all points and open the door for all of the independents throughout the country for a long distance service over the Bell wires. The point raised is the most important one upon which the government has ever been asked to pass judgement concerning the telephone business of the country.

Indications are a plenty that the fight will be the most bitter fought in many years by rival interests engaged in supplying an everyday utility of nation wide use.

After More than 75 Years

For more than 75 years the Methodist churches of Plymouth and Newburg have been under one charge, one pastor supplying both pulpits. The people at Newburg were therefore very much surprised last Sunday when Presiding Elder Allen announced to them that the churches would be separated, and that Newburg would be supplied from the city. The change was made at the request of Pastor Warren, who refused to accept the Plymouth appointment tendered him at the recent conference if he had to preach three times in one day which he could not do on account of his health. The Newburg people were not made acquainted with this fact by Supt. Allen until last Sunday and as Pastor Warren pleased them very much they naturally were a little dumbfounded, to say the least. The new pastor was advised by Mr. Allen to "say nothing" of the impending change.

Motorman Almost Killed

George Dykema, a motorman, was knocked or fell from his car as it was coming into Plymouth from Northville Tuesday afternoon. Dykema thought something was wrong with the motor of the car and stepping to the platform leaned out to see what it was. The car was going about 20 miles an hour and it is thought his head came in contact with a pole. The car was stopped by Fred VanDeCar and was run back. The motorman was picked up in an unconscious state and remained for some time after being brought to Dr. Patterson's office. He sustained a very severe scalp wound and it was miraculous that he was not killed.

Dykema lives in Farmington with his wife and child and late in the afternoon he was taken home in a special car run from that village. Dr. Patterson reported yesterday that he would recover.

HEDGES, WALLS AND FENCES IN THE RURAL DISTRICTS

A NUMBER of different factors have contributed directly or indirectly during the past few years to the appearance of American farms and rural estates as viewed from the highways and railroads. It is safe to say, however, that nothing has been more influential in this direction than the improved means introduced for marking the boundaries of fields and estates. Nor has the provision of better facilities in this respect been indicated by any means to the wealthy folk who have taken up country life as a fad and have the means to indulge every caprice in that connection. The common-sense, every-day farmer is fully holding up his end of the responsibility of providing a more orderly countryside. Until comparatively recent years in most sections of the United States and even yet in many of the more newly settled districts, farm fences were considered solely from the standpoint of utility. This was perfectly natural. A homesteader establishing an agricultural domain or a sheep and cattle ranch in territory recently opened to settlement has other things to think of beside providing ornamental boundary markers for his acreage. And anyway he has numerous heavy drains upon his pocketbook at such a time and probably can ill afford to go in for anything fancy at such a juncture, even though he have the strongest inclinations to have everything about the place in apple-pie order.

ORNATE IRON FENCE ON A RURAL ESTATE

These considerations explain how it has been that as each section of the United States has in turn been settled the pioneers have availed themselves of the most economical means of indicating boundary lines. The farmer wants to have his lines, as vouchered for by a surveyor, marked clearly, since that forestalls trouble later on and he wants to keep cattle, etc., out of his cultivated tracts, even if he has no stock of his own that he wishes to restrict to a given area. But in the old days no farmer felt that he could afford to lay out much money in fixing such limitations. Almost invariably the pioneer or early settler in any community was anxious to find material for his fences on the place. This will explain the almost universal use in our whole broad farm domain of the old familiar type of zig-zag rail fence. And just here be it noted that it is an admirable type of fence, too. Cheap to construct, if the rails be split from timber on the place; easy to keep in repair; substantial and enduring; it is calculated to yield excellent service. This is the type of fence that Abraham Lincoln constructed and its fame may go down to posterity through the rails which are treasured as precious relics because he split them.

The early settlers in stony districts, such as New England and certain sections of New York, including the famous Mohawk Valley, in many instances made their first fences of stone. In this respect they were in one sense ahead of their times because stone fences are constructed nowadays because of their artistic and picturesque attributes and are preferred by people to whom expense is no object. As a matter of fact a fence of loose stones was never a cheap form of construction. On the fact of things it has always been an extravagance as compared with the rail fence, but the consideration that leads to its perfection in many localities was that the land had to be cleared of stones and it could be tilled. It was no more trouble to pile the stones thus collected in the form of a fence than in a pile which would serve no good purpose and it took less time to thus arrange the stones along the boundary lines than to cart them to some distant dump. So the average farmer working such land killed two birds with one stone, so to speak, and set up fences that in most localities have endured to this day.

LODGE AND GATEWAY OF A SOUTHERN PLANTATION

west where timber was too scarce to be wasted on rail fences and where there were no stones to be cleared. The wire fence has proven an even greater boon to stock raisers, many of whom must needs fence large tracts, and who are not disposed to quibble over cost if they can get a fence that can be put up quickly and will stand hard usage. Of course the dramatic incidents of "wire cutting" days in the cattle country prove that the wire fence was as easy to destroy as it was quick to build, but of course that turbulent condition is not one that has continued.

And while we are on the subject of the wire fence it may be noted the regeneration of the wire fence has been one of the most marked features of the present era of more presentable farm fences. The treatment that has been accorded many of the old wire fences reminds one in its ingenious expedient for covering up old material with new—of the scheme now so frequently followed in coating old brick houses with a layer of stucco or concrete that gives them a pristine freshness. In some instances ivy, roses, or rapidly-growing vines of one kind or another have been planted at frequent intervals along a wire fence—say at each post—and in a surprisingly short time the fence becomes a trellis for a luxuriant growth that is bound to charm even the most fastidious person and one to whom a wire fence unadorned would prove a perfect eyesore.

Another present day ruse for making the wire fence unobtrusive and yet retaining all its virtue as a boundary is to have the fence serve as a core for a hedge. The bushes, shrubs or other hedge-making vegetation may be planted on either or both sides (alternately) of the fence and in a few years the presence of wire strands and their supporting posts would be a complete surprise to a person who attempted to pass the barrier, so completely will they be hidden. Indeed, a close growing hedge reinforced by a wire fence has a twofold value as a preventive of trespass by man or beast and many persons of wide experience declare that it is the ideal form. The hedge may be permitted to grow to any height and there is, of course, no necessity for a farmer to keep such a hedge trimmed in asymmetrical fashion as is done with those in the formal gardens of the rich.

and with no wire fence concealed is seen much more frequently than formerly as one traverses the most traveled roads in America. Such hedges, however, usually bespeak the indulgence of some wealthy land holder who is willing to spend freely for the sake of appearances. The invasion of the country districts by this leisure class, retired men of means and so-called gentlemen farmers, has also resulted in the appearance of great numbers of stone and concrete walls. Of course such barriers, likewise the ivy-covered brick walls, are costly and particularly so when we take into account the massive gateways which have usually been provided in such connection. There is no doubt, however, that such walls add much, in the estimation of most persons, to the beauty of our rural landscapes. Indeed, it is the walls and hedges more than anything else which cause returned travelers to grow enthusiastic over rural England.

The iron fence has shared in the stimulated activity but the iron fence, alike to the stone wall, calls for a pretty heavy outlay, although if it is kept painted it will endure for so many years that it is rendered fairly reasonable in the long run. The picket fence, preferably painted white or white and green, continues to have many staunch friends among the farming class and the running board fence which is said to have originated in New England has spread to many other sections of the country and taken on a few frills suggestive of the designs of "barred pie." Rustic work when well done is always mighty effective in any rural surroundings and the picturesque appearance of the logs with the bark on is heightened by the introduction of some brightly-bued poppies. Another latter day development is seen in the latitude now manifested in the height of the fences in the rural districts. A generation ago pretty much all the fences were about the same height. Nowadays they vary greatly. In some instances where the fence or hedge is purely ornamental its height is very much restricted whereas on the other hand it is not unusual to encounter a wealthy land owner whose desire for privacy has prompted him to erect—at least in the immediate vicinity of his dwelling—a wall so high that a man on horseback cannot see over it. A comparatively low stone wall surmounted by a high iron fence is another form of construction that has been introduced extensively.

HE KNEW.

Sometimes the proverbial "small brother" proves himself a remarkably well informed if tactless person. The brother of a certain confident dandy thus recently addressed a shy and shrinking suitor.

"Mr. Jones, are you going to marry Sister Ruth?"

"Mr. Jones (blushing and disconcerted)—Why, sonnie, I— I— I really don't know, you know!"

"Small Brother (with a grin)—That's what I thought. Well, you first!"

5,000 ITALIANS KILLED.

Expected That 7,000 Were Taken Prisoners at Tripoli.

There is a report in circulation to the effect that the Italian forces at Tripoli have met with a grave disaster. The report says that they lost 5,000 killed besides 7,000 prisoners. Also it is stated the Turks captured many guns and much ammunition. While the war office refuses to confirm or deny the hint is thrown out that the Turkish forces have won an important victory.

Semi-official confirmation has been given out of the report that Enver Bey has reached Tripoli and has joined the forces there.

It is added that he has issued a proclamation in which he urges the people to resist the Italians to the death.

Ruskin Pitted Americans.

It is not only the half million bricks of Tetterhall that have been numbered for trans-shipment across the Atlantic. Ruskin, when he was a boy, pitied the Americans for being so unhappy as to live in a country that has no castles. They will have a castle now, and no nation likes to be pitied. But the other importation, made by Mrs. Gardner as an addition to her Italian villa near Boston, was that of an entire chapel as it stands, with all its interior furnishings, even to the half-burned candles in the altar. The monks who served the chapel had been scattered by the strong hand of the law, and the building was to be devoted to the pick ax. The courageous American lady had it packed up in a Venetian hill country, where it stood, and carried down piecemeal and embarked.—London Chronicle.

Confident Chester

By Adele Mendel

"Look at this solitaire ring," said Chester to his legal partner, Edward Leslie. "Isn't it a beauty?" "Well, I'll be flabbergasted!" "Best wishes, old chap; am I to be best man at your wedding?" "Don't be too previous! I haven't asked her yet." "How do you know she'll have you? Such conceit!" "Great Scott, Edward! Am I such a dud that a little golden haired, hazel eyed country girl would refuse me?" "You never can tell. Better get busy!" "Who is she, and where is she?" "I'll tell you all about her after she's promised to become Mrs. Chester Farson," replied Chester. "I'll not cut you out. Have a girl of that type myself." A few days after the latter conversation Chester rang the doorbell at Mrs. Robbin's home and inquired for Miss Hoyt. "Miss Hoyt isn't at home," replied the old lady who opened the door. "I met Miss Ruth at the sea shore," commenced Chester, "and she asked me to call." "Come right in," interrupted Ruth's aunt, cordially. "Are you the lawyer she spoke about?" "I believe I am." "Ruth told me all about you. She's so changed since her return. I never meddle in other people's affairs, but I think Ruth is in love." "In love!" "Yes, she doesn't care for any of the town fellows any more and acts so quiet like. My niece thinks a lot of you, young man." "Does she? Are you sure?" questioned Chester. "If Miss Ruth cares for me, I'll be the happiest man in the universe." "I'm positive of it. Here she comes now. She will be so surprised and delighted." "By Jove!" exclaimed Chester, looking out of the window. "She's prettier than ever. So happy, too! She must have heard I'm here." Just then Ruth rushed in exclaiming: "Auntie congratulate me. I'm engaged! Oh, I didn't see you, Mr. Farson." "Allow me to congratulate you, too. Who's the lucky fellow?" "Edward Leslie, a brother of my roommate at school whom I met at the sea shore after you left." "I never even heard of him," said Ruth's aunt, regarding her voice. "He's the lawyer I told you about. Edward came this morning, and is waiting at the hotel, auntie, until I tell you the good news. I'd like to have you meet him, Mr. Farson." "Edward Leslie is my partner, and we can't both be away at the same time, so goodbye, little girl. Best wishes for your happiness." "The deuce!" muttered Farson, to himself as he left the house. "Wish I could find a girl to fit this ring before Edward and I meet again. Guess I'll go up and see M'Lord Carrol to-night."

Women in Business.

"Women," said the bromide sentimentally, "ought to live at home and attend to their household. They can't stand the killing pace of business life." "Oh, can't they?" asked the man who had made a few observations. "They seem to do fairly well in business. You never find any of them in sanitariums. You'll find lots of businessmen there. You also will find many married women there, and as a rule those who have had the least to do with business. The sanitariums of the country find their most numerous patrons to be society women, who never have given business a thought in their lives. You know, or course, that farmers' wives fill the insane asylums. Don't you worry about women in business. It is good for them. They are not likely to push it to an insane limit. All they ever will learn of it never will hurt them. It will do them and the rest of the world more good than harm."

Exonerated.

Mrs. Crabshaw—I can't understand why I didn't see those faults in you before we were married. Mr. Crabshaw—It's quite plain, my dear. I didn't possess them.

Home Made Bread Baked to Perfection

What is more palate-pleasing, more appetizing than wholesome home made bread? What is more annoying than an unsatisfactory oven to bake in after you have taken care and time in preparing your light bread? In order to bake properly you must have an oven that heats evenly—one that will retain the heat—one that is always level and one which can be regulated easily.

Cole's Down Draft Range

affords all these qualities and more. The Hot Blast Combustion burns the gases in soft coal. The flame from the burning gases is carried to the back lids and the entire top is thus evenly heated instead of only the two front lids. It also means that the temperature of the oven is kept at a given point without poking the fire or replenishing the fuel.

With a satisfactory oven—a quick-heating top—together with the Colonial Finish we know we offer you the most economical, the most convenient range made.

You should see Cole's Down Draft Range to appreciate it as we do. No trouble to show you all the detailed points embodied in this new range marvel. Burns any kind of fuel—Soft Coal, Hard Coal, Lignite, Wood or Cobs. Made with or without large copper reservoir.

Free if it Fails.

Your Money Back if you are not Satisfied with the Medicine we Recommend.

We are so positive that our remedy will permanently relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine at our expense should it fail to produce satisfactory results.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Laxatives or cathartics do much harm. They cause a reaction, irritate and weaken the bowels and tend to make constipation more chronic. Besides, their use becomes a habit that is dangerous.

Constipation is caused by a weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or descending colon. To expect permanent relief you must therefore tone up and strengthen these organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our recommendation. They are exceedingly pleasant to take, being eaten like candy, and are ideal for children, delicate persons, and old folks, as well as for the robust. They act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels.

They apparently have a neutral action on other associate organs or glands. They do not purge, cause excessive looseness, nor create any inconvenience whatever. They may be taken at any time, day or night. They will positively relieve chronic or habitual constipation, if not of surgical variety, and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, if taken with regularity for a reasonable length of time. 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets 50 cents.
