NEWBURG.

Memory day was observed last week Friday by the L. A. S. Their hall was beautifully decorated with flowers and the altar appropriately draped. A program befitting the occasion and consisting of readings and singing of "Crossing the Bar" by the Misses Youngs, was greatly appreciated. Mrs. James LeVan, the first President of the L. A. S., was then introduced by the President, Mrs. C. Ryder, and gave a short address. She stated that since the society was organized, 23 years ago, that 19 members (giving their names) had gone to their reward. She further stated that this little memorial service was to honor the memory of Sister Helen Smith, who passed away in Lansing Jan. 10th last. We shall never forget her loyalty and love for this, her birth-place and home of her girlhood and later years, her zeal for the church and all connected with it, and even when death had laid his icy fingers on her she still remembered her friends in Newburg. And now while we mourn her loss and sympathize with her family, we rejoice that her work is done, her burdens laid down, her tears wiped away. She has entered into the rest and home prepared for her and now we draw a line through the name of Sister Helen Smith, trusting it is enrolled in heaven. "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

The members of the L. A. S. will decorate the graves of their deceased members on Memorial Sunday.

The G. A. R. and W. R. C. had a very pleasant time Tuesday last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Gear. All enjoyed the dinner at the noon hour. The meeting was then taken in charge by the W. R. C. President, Mrs. King. The old boys were asked to give a three minute talk on how they spent one of their holidays in the war. All responded with the exception of one, who said he had rather face a cannon or pay a fine than to make a speech.

Arrangements are being made for observing Decoration day.

On account of the rain there were no services in the church Sunday. However, it is expected that Dr. Caster will continue his lectures Sunday next. Every one invited also to Sunday-school.

What are you getting for your Butter? Are you getting as much as we will pay you? No; not if you are not bringing it to us. We guarantee to pay the highest price in town for a No. 1 Butter.

How can we do it?

Because we have the "Better Butter" reputation. The people realize that we keep nothing but the best, and they are willing to pay the price for GOOD Butter. We are daily turning back orders which we would only be too glad to fill could we get the supply. We can get "shipped in" butter, but they want the "home made" kind.

Must Go to Houses

Special efforts are being made this year to insure an accurate census of the children of school age in the state of Michigan. The new law requires those who take the census to make a house-to-house canvass in the fifteen or twenty days before June 1. It is upon this census that the primary apportionment is made.

The school board selects the census enumerator and he or she is to make a house-to-house canvass, placing upon the list the names of all children between the ages of five and twenty years, whose parents or legal guardians are residents of the district. Children of summer resorters, beet-weeders and other persons temporarily in the district are not to be taken on the census. The legal residence of the parents or guardian determines the residence of the child. Children, who are orphans or who have been deserted by their parents, may be reported on the census as "waifs" but an explanation must be made in each instance. The residence of the husband determines the residence of young people of school age who are married.

Road-Building at State Fair

One exclusive feature of the Michigan State fair which will be continued during the fair of the present year, from Sept. 16th to 21st inclusive, will be the road construction work. In the last two years this has been one of the most interesting features at the fair grounds and the work of the road builders, exhibitors at the fair, has been watched by the utmost interest by the visitors from all over the State and also by the highway commissioners, who have come to the fair on the special invitation of the management and the many exhibitors interested in the construction of the highway. When the exhibit was first put on its success seemed problematical at the outset, but when the many interested stood for hours and watched the work, even standing out in the rain to watch it. V. V. Green, Supt. of Implements and Machinery, who had charge of this progressive piece of work was satisfied. During the first year 500 feet of roadway was constructed and last year 1000 feet was added, the fair devoting $1500 for the purchase of road material. It is thought that even more than 1000 feet will be constructed this year as more of the exhibitors will take part. The interest now being taken throughout the State of Michigan in road building will result in increased interest.

When in Detroit during the week in connection with the proposal to hold the National Good Roads Congress in that city, Charles Light, chief field representative of the National association for highway improvement, inspected the 1500 feet of highway constructed and said with regard to the innovation: "I believe that the Michigan State Agricultural Society is pursuing a splendid work in educating the thousands of this State in actual road work. I can heartily commend them for this novel exhibit and in my report to the organization at Washington on the possibilities of Detroit as a point for holding the National Good Roads Congress in September or October. I believe that the fact that the State fair of Michigan has already undertaken so great a work will have some bearing upon in making their decision. The model road at the fair and the splendid facilities provided at the fair grounds for the annual exhibition which is a feature of the Good Roads Congress will aid in bringing the convention to Detroit. Providing this should be done the exhibitors at the fair will undoubtedly continue their work as a part of our exhibition for that would prove a most interesting feature. I believe that other fairs should follow the plan adopted by the Michigan fair."

Another Life Ground Out

W. S. Brown, conductor of a freight running between Grand Rapids and Detroit, was run over in the Plymouth yards about twelve o'clock Wednesday, sustaining injuries from which he died about six hours after. Brown, an old employe, was engaged in switching his own train at the coal dock. Throwing the switch, he stepped away and supposed he went in the opposite direction from the track on which his train was backing down. Instead, however, he stepped squarely on the track and was thrown under the wheels, which cut off his right leg at the hip and also his right arm. The injured man was taken to Detroit as soon as possible by Dr. Patterson, who was called, but died about seven o'clock Thursday morning. Deceased leaves a wife and three children in Grand Rapids.

Course Selected—Best Ever

There was a large attendance of members of the lecture course committee at a meeting held in Dr. Travis' office last Wednesday evening, to select a course of entertainments for the coming season. Five lecture and entertainment bureaus were represented at the meeting and the committee had a choice array of talent to select from, the result of which was that more money will be paid for the course this season than ever before and it is believed also that the entertainments are of a higher standard and will therefore please the audiences better. Two eminent lecturers were selected—Dr. George R. Stuart and Wm. A. Colledge; two musical companies—The Anitas (a sextette) and The Hussars (nine members) and the Rowais, New Zealand natives (originally cannibals), entertainers. More detailed descriptions will be given later in the season.

OBITUARY

Sophonra Willett was born in Palmyra, N. Y., in the year 1830 and came with her parents to Plymouth, Michigan, in 1832, where she has lived, with the exception of nine months, all her life time. She was married in 1849 to Andrew Passage. To this union nine children were born, five of whom are living, Hiram H., Mrs. John Stewart, Orr and Luther Passage of Plymouth, and Frank of Detroit. Mrs. Passage was 82 years old at the time of her death which occurred Sunday, May 12. She was one of the oldest Plymouth residents.

The funeral was held from her late home on Ann Arbor street, Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. Edgar J. Warren, pastor of the Methodist church, officiating. The remains were laid to rest in Riverside cemetery.

W. C. T. U.

Twelve were present at the meeting last week and a good program was carried out by the leaders.

Last Friday, May 10, a district meeting was held in Detroit and three of our members attended. They reported a very interesting meeting and that the workers in the city are very enthusiastic over work that has been done and what they plan to accomplish in the future. Mrs. F. B. Perkins of Ann Arbor gave an address upon "The Ballot for Women" and a symposium upon "Effective Temperance Teaching" was led by several good speakers, which was an uplift to all.

The leaders for our meeting next week Thursday, May 23, are Mrs. F. H. Shattuck and Mrs. J. B. Henderson. The subject is "Partnership of Husband and Wife; should the wife have an allowance," followed by a discussion. Current events will also be given.—Supt. Press.

Rural Recreation

Those who have thought of the play problem as one that affects only the larger cities will be surprised to learn that rural communities are providing recreation centers and placing trained directors in charge. What is being done in different districts will be described at a Rural Recreation Congress which is to be held in Cleveland, Ohio, June 5th-8th.

The leaders in the rural life movement in America are interested in this Congress. President Butterfield, of the Massachusetts State Agricultural College, says of the program of the Rural Recreation Congress: "I am particularly impressed by the program for the Rural Recreation Congress. I think it is a remarkable program. It promises to be the most illuminating discussion on rural recreation that has ever been held in the country."

A Successful Farmer

Gives as much attention to his stock as he does to his crops. All stock loses condition at times and it is the good manager that applies the remedy before there is any serious loss of time. The successful men in the New England States use Harvell's Condition Powder for stock and poultry. A package goes a long way because it is all medicine, not a food. It runs working animals in good shape and flesh. Keeps poultry free from diseases and increases the yield of eggs. Price 25c. Sold by Jones, the druggist, and Beyer Pharmacy.

SERIAL STORY

THE GIRL from HIS TOWN

By MARIE VAN VOEST

(Copyright, 1918, by The Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

SYNOPSIS.
 Dan Blair, the 23-year-old son of the five-million-dollar copper king of Blairtown, is a guest at the English home of Lady Galorey. Dan's father had been courteous to Lord Galorey during his visit to the United States and the courtesy is now being returned to the young man. The youth has an ideal girl in his mind. His sister Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, a beautiful widow, who is attracted by his immense fortune and takes a liking to her. When Dan was a boy, a girl sang a solo at a church, and he had never forgotten her. The Galoreys, Lily and Dan attend a London theater where one Letty Lane is the star. Dan recognizes her as the girl from his town, and going behind the scenes introduces himself and she remembers him. He learns that Prince Poniotowsky is a suitor and escort to Letty. Lord Galorey and a friend named Ruggles determine to protect the westerner from Lily and other fortune hunters. Young Blair goes to see Lily; he can talk of nothing but Letty and this angers the Duchess. The westerner finds Lily ill from hard work, but she recovers and Ruggles and Dan invite her to supper. She asks Dan to build a home for disappointed theatrical people. Dan visits Lily, for the time forgetting Letty, and later announces his engagement to the duchess. Letty refuses to sing for an entertainment given by Lily Galorey tells Dan that all Lily cares for is his money, and it is disclosed that he and the duchess have been mutually in love for years. Letty sings at an aristocratic function. Dan escorting her home. Dan confronts Galorey and Lily together. Later he informs Letty that his engagement with Lily is broken, asks the singer to marry him, and they become engaged. Ruggles thinks the westerner should not marry a public singer, and endeavors to induce Letty to give him up. She runs away, fearing she is not good enough for Dan, and Ruggles makes the latter believe she has abandoned his love. Finally Dan finds Letty in Paris, where he is persistent in pressing his suit. The westerner meets Poniotowsky at Letty's rooms and a challenge results. Dan, with his mind in a turmoil, arranges for the duel.

 One of his companions offered Blair a cigar. He refused, the idea sickened him. Here the gentlemen exchanged glances, and one murmured: "Is he afraid?"
 The other shrugged.
 "Not astonishing—he's a child."
 At this Dan glanced up and smiled—what Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, had called his divine, young smile. The two secretly were ashamed—he was charming.
 As they got out of the motor Dan said:
 "I want to ask a question of Prince Poniotowsky—if it is allowed, I'll write it on my card."
 After a conference between Prince Poniotowsky's seconds and Dan's, the slip was handed the prince.
 "If you get out all right, will you marry Miss Lane? I shall be glad to know."
 The Hungarian, who read it under the tree, half smiled. The navvies of it, the touching youth of it, the crude lack of form—was perfect enough to touch his sense of humor. On the back of Dan's card Poniotowsky scribbled:
 "Yes."
 It was a haughty inclination, a salute of honor before the fight.
 The meeting place was within sight of the little rustic pavilion of Les Trois Agneaux, celebrated for its rare sale and beignets; the advertisements had confronted Dan everywhere during his wanderings these miserable days. Under a group of chestnut trees in bright feathery flower Prince Poniotowsky and his seconds waited, their frock coats buttoned up and their gloves and silk hats in their hands. As Blair and his companions came up the others stood uncovered, grim and formal, according to the code.
 Twenty-five paces. They were measured off by the four seconds, and at their signal Dan Blair and the prince took their positions, the revolvers raised perpendicularly in their right hands.
 Still more indistinctly the boy saw the sharp-cut picture of it all—the diving bell was sinking deeper—deeper—into the sea.
 "If I aim," he said to himself, "I shall kill sure—sure."
 Blair heard the command: "Fire!" and supposed that after that he fired.

CHAPTER XXX.
 Sodawater Fountain Girl.
 His next sensation was that a warm stream flowed about his heart.
 "My life's blood," he could dimly think, "my heart's blood." Redder than coral, more precious, more costly than any gift his millions could have bought her. "I've spent it for the love." The stream pervaded him, caressed him, folded his limbs about, became an enchanted sea on which he floated, and his color changed from crimson to coral pale, and then to white, and became a cold, cold polar sea—and as he lay on it like a frozen man, whose exploration had been in vain, and above him Greenland's icy mountains rose like emerald, on every side.

That is it—"Greenland's icy mountains." How she sang it—down—down. Her voice fell on him like magic balm. He was a little boy in church, sitting small and shy in the pew. The tune was deep and low and heavenly sweet. What a pretty mouth the soda-fountain girl had—like coral; and her eyes like gray seas. The flies buzzed, they droned so loudly that he couldn't hear her. Ah, that was terrible—he couldn't hear her.
 No—no, it wouldn't do. He must hear the hymn out before he died. Buzz—buzz—droned—droned. Way down he almost heard the soft note. It was ecstasy. Sky—high up—too faint. Ah, Sodawater Fountain Girl—sing—sing—with all your heart so that it may reach his ears and charm him to those strands toward which he floats.
 The expression of anguish on the young fellow's face was so heart-breaking that the doctor, his ear at Dan's lips, tried to learn what thing his poor, fading mind longed for.
 From the bed's foot, where he stood, Dan's chauffeur came to the gentleman's side, and nodded:
 "Right, sir, right, sir—I'll fetch Miss Lane—I'll ave 'er 'ere, sir—keep up, Mr. Blair."
 He was going barefoot, a boy still following the plow through the mountain fields. Miles and miles stretched away before him of dark, loamy land. He saw the plow tear up the waving furrows, tossing the earth in sprinkling lines. He heard the shrill note of the phoebe bird, and looking heavenward saw it darting into the pale sky.
 "What a dandy shot!" he thought. "What a bully shot!"
 Prince Poniotowsky had made a good shot.
 Ah, there was the smell of the hayfields—no—violets that sweetly laid grew holy to his eyes—radiant with a beauty he had not dreamed a woman's face could wear. Above the choir rail she stood and sang peerlessly, and the church began to fade and fade, and still she stood there in a shaft of light, and her face was like an angel's, and she held her arms out to him, as the waters rose to his lips. She bent and lifted him—lifted him high upon the strands.

 CHAPTER XXXI.
 In Reality.
 Dan awoke from his dream, and sat suddenly up in bed in his shirt-sleeves, and stared at the people in his room—a hotel boy and two strangers, not unlike the men in his dream. He brushed his hand across his eyes.
 "Sit down, will you? Do you speak English?"
 They were foreigners, but they did speak English, no doubt far more perfectly than did Dan Blair.
 "Look here," the boy said, "I don't know what's the matter with me—I must have had a ripping jag on last night—let me put my head in a basin of water, will you?"
 He dived into the dressing-room, and came out in another second, his blond head wet, wiping his face and hair furiously with a towel. He hadn't beamed as he did now on these two strange men—for weeks.
 "Well," he asked slowly, "I expect you've come to ask me to fight with Prince Poniotowsky—yes? It's against our principles, you know, in the States—we don't do that way. Personally, I'd throw anything at him I could lay my hands on, but I don't care to have him let daylight through me, and I don't care to kill your friend. See? I'm an American—yes, I know, I know," he nodded sagely.

 their petals on his lips and face. He was back again in church, lying prone before an altar. If she would only sing, he would rise again—that he knew—and her coral shoes would not dance over his grave.
 He opened his eyes wide and looked into Letty Lane's. She bent over him, crying.
 "Sing," he whispered.
 She didn't understand.
 "Sodawater Fountain Girl—if you only knew how . . . the flies buzzed, and how the droning was a living pain.
 She said to Ruggles: "He wants something so heartbreakingly—what can we do?" She saw his hands stir rhythmically on the counterpane—he didn't look to her more than ten years old.
 "What a cruel thing—he was a boy just of age—a boy—"
 Ruggles remembered the nights he had spent before the footlights of the Gaiety, and that the pale woman trembling there weeping was a great singer.
 "I guess he wants to hear you sing." She kneeled down by him; she trembled so she couldn't stand.
 The others, the doctor and Ruggles, the waiters and porters gathered in the hall, heard. No one of them understood the Gaiety girl's English words.
 "From Greenland's icy mountains, From India's coral strands . . ."
 They were merciful and let him listen in peace. Through the blur in his brain, over the beat of his young ardent heart, above the short breaths the notes reached his falling senses, and lifted him—lifted him. There wasn't a very long distance between his boyhood and his twenty-two years to go, and he was not so weak but that he could travel so far.
 He sat there by his father again—and heard. The flies buzzed, and he didn't mind them. The smell of the fields came in through the windows and the Sodawater Fountain Girl sang—and sang; and as she sang her face grew holy to his eyes—radiant with a beauty he had not dreamed a woman's face could wear. Above the choir rail she stood and sang peerlessly, and the church began to fade and fade, and still she stood there in a shaft of light, and her face was like an angel's, and she held her arms out to him, as the waters rose to his lips. Lansing.—When the gong sounded an alarm of fire at central fire station Edward Talmadge, like some of the other firemen, hopped from his cot in the dormitory and hurriedly began dressing. He had no more than stuck his feet into his boots and pulled his suspenders up over his shoulders before there was a loud noise and he was enveloped in a cloud of dust. When the air had cleared away he saw that a huge piece of plaster covered the pillow where his head had lain but a few minutes before. A spot about four feet square had become loosened from the ceiling and fallen upon the cot. Talmadge carried away two bushels of the heavy plaster. If it had not been for the alarm of fire Talmadge would have been seriously injured, if not killed.

Port Huron.—James King, one of the city's oldest residents, died after a stroke of apoplexy. He had been working in the garden at the rear of his home when stricken. James P. King, a son, who has been living in Detroit and who came to Port Huron to take up his future residence here, made the discovery of his father's body. He happened to be going on a fishing trip and passing his father's home decided to stop for a few minutes. Calling him and receiving no response, the son made his way to the rear yard, where he came across his father's dead body.

Pontiac.—Frank Bowers, aged nineteen, a chauffeur employed by Mrs. W. G. Turk, 154 North Saginaw street, has been placed under arrest on a charge of sending threatening communications to Dr. H. Wells of West Lawrence street. Recently Dr. Wells has received a number of threatening letters, some of which were sent through the mails and some slipped under his door. Some one opened the kitchen door of the Wells' home and threw a large rock which narrowly missed the head of Mrs. Wells. Bowers was arraigned this afternoon and gave $500 bail to appear for examination May 21.

Lansing.—State Geologist R. C. Allen has returned from the upper peninsula of the state and announces that the camp of his department this summer will be located at Watersmeet, in Gogebic county. The party will be composed of Geologists Allen, R. A. Smith, Bert Fellows and three others not yet selected. An investigation of the mining properties between Iron river and Gogebic range will be made. The party will leave Lansing in June and camp will not be broken until October.

Owosso.—John Rice, ticket agent at the Owosso junction depot, was held up by a masked man who rifled the cash drawer and obtained $56, besides compelling Rice to surrender a valuable watch. The robber furnished two revolvers, one of which covered the agent constantly. The police believe that the holdup was the work of an amateur who had been reading nickel novels.

Millersburg.—Jacob Haake, eighty-seven years old, was struck by a freight train near Posen and died shortly after being taken to a doctor's office. According to testimony at the inquest he either had a stroke of apoplexy or fell on the track as the train approached and was unable to get out of the way. He had over $800 on his person.

Lansing.—W. T. Holscher, deputy state dairy and food commissioner, has begun a rigid inspection of all dairies, distributing points and other matters incidental to the delivery of pure milk to the city of Lansing. Mr. Holscher has reported on no cases, but will soon and some interesting developments are expected.

Saut Ste. Marie.—A jury found Dr. Thomas N. Rogers, a wealthy physician, at one time Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, not guilty of manslaughter. Doctor Rogers was charged with having caused the death of Mrs. Anna Black, a boarding house keeper, through a criminal operation.

Menominee.—Clara, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schoenberger, died of eating a quantity of Surgeon in Ancient Times.

 High honors were paid surgeons in ancient times. When Darius, the son of Hystaspes, sprained his foot Damocedes was called in, another surgeon of renown having failed to effect a cure. Damocedes was successful, and the king took him to his harem and introduced the doctor to the ladies of the court. The ladies filled a vase of gold with money and precious pearls, which a eunuch was ordered to carry to the doctor. The eunuch let fall the vase, and the careful historian tells us that slaves gathered up the pearls.

 Does it pay to stop your motor car after an accident and go back to see what has happened? Two young motorists on the south side believe it does.
 With a green chauffeur these two boys were trying out a new model touring car. They were sitting in the back seat when the greenhorn at the steering wheel gave it a twist and came within an ace of hitting an old man at a crossing. The victim was so shocked that he fell to the pavement, and a crowd gathered in an instant.
 Looking back, the motorists decided that things looked bad, but that they had better go back and see whether the old party was killed. Finding him all right, but winded, they took him for a nice ride around the parks. So pleasant did they make it for him that when they took him home to his wife he introduced them as "The two young men who saved my life."

 It's easy to understand how ordinary people get fooled by coffee when doctors themselves sometimes forget the facts.
 A physician speaks of his own experience:
 "I had used coffee for years and really did not exactly believe it was injuring me although I had palpitation of the heart every day. (Tea contains caffeine—the same drug found in coffee—and is just as harmful as coffee.)
 "Finally one day a severe and almost fatal attack of heart trouble frightened me and I gave up both tea and coffee, using Postum instead, and since that time I have had absolutely no heart palpitation except on one or two occasions when I tried a small quantity of coffee, which caused severe irritation and proved to me I must let it alone.
 "When we began using Postum it seemed weak—that was because we did not make it according to directions—but now we put a little bit of butter in the pot when boiling and allow the Postum to boil full 15 minutes which gives it the proper rich flavor and the deep brown color.
 "I have advised a great many of my friends and patients to leave off coffee and drink Postum, in fact I daily give this advice." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.
 Many thousands of physicians use Postum in place of tea and coffee in their own homes and prescribe it to patients.
 "There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville,"

USE OF CROSS IN HERALDRY

More Than Four Hundred Forms of the Device Are Recognized in That Science.

In early pagan days the cross was a symbol of shame and ignominy, and only those deformed or misshapen trees that could be used for no other purpose were formed into crosses. But since the cross has become dear to Christians, says the "Ave Maria," the most precious woods and metals have been formed into it. To the third century may be traced the custom of making the Sign of the Cross. In the days of Constantine, Christians painted crosses on the entrances of their houses as a symbol of their faith.

The impetus to the use of the cross in heraldry was given by the Crusaders, who wore a red cross upon their right shoulder as a token of the obligation they had taken upon themselves. Its form and meanings in heraldic designs are many. In fact, over four hundred and seven different forms have been recorded by students of biography and genealogy.

In heraldry the cross is formed by two perpendicular and two horizontal lines crossing in the center of the shield. This form is modified in various ways by additions and combinations, thus expressing many meanings. It has been said that human intelligence has never devised a system so infinite in its varieties and so endless in its application as is to be found in the science of heraldry, in which figure twenty-seven basic or fundamental crosses.

The Greek cross has all four arms of equal length, while the Latin cross has the earth end longer than the other three arms. The Calvary or Christ Cross rests upon three steps or degrees. The Patriarch cross is recognized by its double crossbar. The St. Andrew's cross is an X, in token of the form of cross on which that saint suffered martyrdom by having his hands and feet bound to its four arms. The St. Anthony cross is shaped like a T, and has its name from the cross that St. Anthony, abbot, wore upon his cloak, though the origin of his cross seems to be Egyptian.

It is a matter of interest that many American families have the cross as the basic emblem of their escutcheons. Among them are at least five of the presidents. The Garfield shield has a blue cross in the dexter canton, and the family motto is, "In the cross I conquer." The Tyler shield had on it a bar, two crescents and a cross form. The shield of the Adams family was adorned by a large cruciform device.

Tribute to Amazons

The magnificent example of the women of Dahomey should be made widely known wherever their more civilized sisters are to be found struggling for their rights. Frederick Martyn of the French foreign legion, who fought in the recent Dahomey campaign, tells us emphatically that "the female of the species is more deadly than the male." The Senegalese tirailleurs were attacked by the Amazons, and Mr. Martyn says that "any one inclined to sympathize with the Amazons on account of their sex and to look upon the combat between them and our men as unequal, may take it from me that their sympathy would be misplaced. These young women were far and away the best men in the Dahomeyan army, and woman to man were quite a match for any of us. They fought like unchained demons, and if driven into a corner, did not disdain to use their teeth and nails." It may be an error of policy to make these facts known, and thus to stimulate a militancy already vigorous enough.

Unseen Universe

In the vicinity of the star S. Corons Australis Innes and Worsell have found a patch of sky 25 minutes of arc in diameter where no star can be seen with a 9-inch refracting telescope.

According to Innes, who discusses the subject in "Transvaal Observatory Circular No. 5," the apparent absence of stars in this region is due to the occurrence of some absorbing medium, interposed between us and distant parts of the universe.

Stars in the neighborhood of the dark region are enveloped in nebulae; while just on the border of it there is a star which has been observed to fluctuate in magnitude between 11.0 and 12.2, and which was invisible during the years 1899-1901.

The latter fact is accounted for on the supposition that the absorbing medium was for a time in front of the star, but has since withdrawn from it.

Supplanting Mr. Howells

Prof. Brander Matthews, at a dinner in New York, said of literary criticism:

"A good deal of it, too, is biased. A good deal of it is like Mr. Walton's. Mr. Walton's daughter, a college girl, wrote, at the age of 18, a novel which her father brought out for her at his own expense. "During the Christmas holidays Mr. Walton gave a party in his daughter's honor, and at this party the young girl read from an improvised platform chapters out of her book. "Her fond old father was carried away by the reading. So tremendously indeed did his admiration for his daughter's talent cockle him that, as the girl read on, the old man could be heard muttering over and over: "Howells be hanged! Howells be hanged!"

FINE DRAMA SEASON

ATTRACTIONS AT PLUNKVILLE REVIEWED BY EDITOR.

Opening With Greater Barnstormers' Minstrels, the List Included Prof. Svengali, "East Lynne," "Jesse James" and Others.

"The dramatic season just ended," said the Winesap County Weekly Indicator, "was the most successful in the history of Plunkville, both from an artistic and a financial point of view.

"Early in October the season was ushered in with the Greater Barnstormers' Minstrels, with 15 performers in high top allieckms and beautiful pink dusters, who played the most ravishing circus marches in the courthouse yard. At the evening performance many of the latest melodies were rendered, including 'After the Ball,' 'Hot Time Tonight,' and 'Love Muh and the World is Mine,' also many first-class jokes which have never been seen in the almanacs in this section. Our versatile and talented barber, band leader, baseball pitcher, orchestra conductor, and society favorite, Mr. Nick Duggins, secured an engagement with the minstrels to play second baritone and double up in the evening as 'Mr. Rastus Johnsing Brown.'

"In November a hypnotist and entertainer called 'Prof. X. Svengali,' occupied the boards at the opera house. Professor Svengali put Sam Tucker, the tinner, into a trance, and made him stand on his head in the corner and sing the 'Doxology.' After the performance Sam missed a five-dollar bill, but he allowed the fun was worth the money.

"In December we witnessed that soulful and lachrymose drama, 'East Lynne,' put on with great eclat and a whole lot of terrific success. Deacon Shucks, who hasn't cried since his wife ran away with the leader of the Bass Center choir, broke into profuse tears; and as the large concourse of Plunkvillians shuffled down the steps that lead from over S. Quigley's well-known commission, confectionery and farm implements emporium, there was not a dry eye on the stairs.

"About the middle of January the Plunkville Thespian and Terpsichorean Troupe rendered 'Kate, the Convict's daughter,' for the benefit of the South Sea head hunters. Miss Sadie Sebree, our talented milliner, who took the immortal role of Kate Kipper, made a pronounced hit and admits that, when it comes to finished trapdoor and red-light situations, she has Mme. Bernhardt backed off the boards. "The spring attractions included 'Ten Nights in a Barroom,' 'Jesse James,' a Shakespearean elocutionist who put everybody to sleep faster than Parson Buckner does, and a man without arms who played the bass viol with his toes.

"For the next season Manager Tobe Scroggins will maintain the same high standard. He has already engaged 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' a fiddling quartet, a moving-picture show, a patent-medicine entertainment and an ossified man. During the summer many notable improvements will be made. A new tin cornice will be erected and the interior will be repainted in exquisite tints of flamingo red, paris green, Helen pink and chrome yellow, with many striking fresco decorations representing Venus, General Grant, Cleopatra, the Muses and Little Bo-peep. For next season the same competent staff will serve the public. Capt. Artemus Jefferson, the saddler, will continue to preside at the box office in return for the privilege of seeing the shows free. Nathan Thomas, the grocer, will light up and make fires and 'Peggy' Partington, the widow's son, will act as usher and carry the red banner with the golden letters in the parades for the same splendid privileges.

New Find of an Old Race

Fanning Island, in the mid-Pacific ocean, which was recently purchased by a British Canadian syndicate for use as a coaling station, is the scene of remarkable discoveries, the news of which was brought by the steamship Makura, which arrived at Vancouver, B. C., on Dec. 13. Archaeological explorations have brought to view indications that the island was inhabited at some long-ago period by a race with peculiar skill in architecture. Excavations there have unearthed a large stone building, 50 feet wide and 200 feet long, in the construction of which no mortar was used, the stones used having been skillfully mortised together.

Near by this strange structure was found a tomb containing a human skeleton with a necklace made of the teeth of the sperm whale, and of other articles, including the skull of a dog.

All Fired

"I think I'll propose at the party tonight. "No, you won't. "Why won't I? "My sister knows the young lady in the case, and it has been arranged for you to propose at the ball next week."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

In Control

"A man always likes to feel that he is in a position to reward his friends and punish his enemies." "That's true," replied Senator Scroggins; "sometimes I am tempted to take a position as janitor of a big building."
