STOOD FOR LAW AND ORDER

Vork of the Vigilantes Was Neces-sary, Though Writer Admits There Were Exceptions.

When not engaged in robbery, this criminal population followed other disreputable pursuits. Gambling and licentiousness were the most conspicu ous features of every mining camp, and both were but species of robbery. Dance houses sprung up as if by en-Dance houses sprung up as if by en-chantment, and everyone who sought an evening's recreation in them was in some way relieved of the money he took there. An issue, involving the destruction of the good or bad ele-ment actually existed at the time that the people entered upon the work of punishment.

I offer these remarks, not in vindication of all of the acts of the vigilants, but of so many of them as were necessary to establish the safety and protection of the people. The reader will find among the later acts of some of the individuals claiming to have exercised the authority of the vigilantes some executions of which he cannot approve. For these persons I can offer no apology. Many of these were worse men than those they exeriderate, and while firm in the belief they were doing right, actually committed grievous offenees. Unhappily for the vigilantes, the lacts of these men have been recalled to justify an opinion abroad prejudicial to the vigilante organization. Nothing could be more unjust. The early vigilantes were the best and most intelligent men in the mining regions. They said and feit that, in the absence of all law, they must become a "law unall law, they must become a "law un-to themselves." or submit to the themselves," or submit to ody code of the banditti by we by were surrounded, and which which increasing in numbers more rapidly than themselves.—Nathaniel Pitt Langford, "Vigilante Days and Ways."

the committee on resolutions reported, and after the Taft platform had been read the La Follette platforn was placed before the convention.

Candidates Are Nominated. President Taft's name was placed before the convention shortly by Harding of Ohio, and the nomination was seconded by John Wanamaker of Philadelphia and Nicholas Murray Butler of New York. Sherman was nominated by J. Van Vleckter Olcott of New York and sec onded by an Ohio delegate in behalf of the 14 followers of the president from that state. Senator Cummins of Iowa was not placed in nomination, according to the program, although he received 17 votes.

Michael B. Olbrich, a young lawyer from Madison, placed the name of La Follette before the delegates in a speech that was frequently interrupted by applause, and it was seconded by Robert M. Pollock of Fargo, a member of the North Dakota delegation. Before La Folette was nominated, however, Walter L. Houser, his campaign manager, read a statement from the senator saying be could not stand on the platform adopted by the con-vention, even if selected, as it did not embody the progressive principles for which he stood.

From the time that Chairman Root called the last day's session to order at 10:43 a.m., it was apparent that the Roosevelt men had given up the struggle against their opponents. They had reached a point where they could laugh at their own misfortunes, which they did to the great enjoyment of the entire convention. All the contested delegates were giv-

This rule was arrived at after the declaration of the Roosevelt national committeemen of their intention to support Roosevelt in the event Taft is nominated.

Root Named Chairman.

The first day's work of the conven-tion resulted in the selection of Elihu Root of New York as temporary chair-man amid scenes of great disorder, thus scoring an important victory for the Taft forces.

The Roosevelt men voted for Gov. Francis E. McGovern of Wisconsin and the final vote stood: Root, 558; McGovern, 502.

When Senator Root took the chair he was given an ovation in which the Roosevelt delegates took no part. In his speech he eulogized President Taft for the wise legislation he credited him with; defended the tariff legisla-tion of the party; plead for a continu-ance of constitutional government and the policies of the Republican party and attacked the initiative and refer endum and the recall of judges.

WHEN LIBERTY BELL RUNG INDEPENDENCE

HE story of the Declaration of Independence, which gave birth to a new nation among the, powers of the world 136 years ago in Philadelphia, is full of the drama of history, from the moment of the inception of the idea to that faterul moment when the resounding clang of old Liberty Bell pronounced the deed accomplished. The story has been told so often that there is scarcely a new angle from which to view it, but to the younger generation of Americans the thrilling ride of Caesar Rodney is not so familiar as it well deserves to be, and will bear retelling.

The final debate in Congress, in the committee of the whole, upon the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, began at 9 o'clock on Monday, July L On that day Pennsylvania, seven of whose delegates were present, voted against adoption. The vote of Delaware, having two delegates present, was divided. Thereupon McKean, of Delaware, who had voted affirmatively wrote a frantic letter to the absent

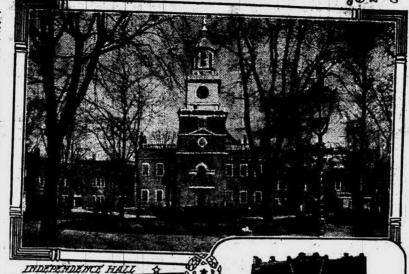

Thereupon McKean, of Delaware, who had voted affirmatively, wrote a frantic letter to the absent Delaware delegate, Caesar Rodney, imploring him to come and cast his vote, and thus turn the scale for McKean's messenger left Philadelphia late in the aft-ernoon of July 1. It was necessary to get Rodney back to Independence Hall by July 4, the day appointed for taking the vote upon the adoption of the Declaration. All night, all day he rode at top 'speed; and Rodney is supposed to have started on the return journey in the evening of the second.

That ride of Rodney's deserves to go down in history alongside of Paul Revere's and Philip Sheridan's. In default of missing detail the imagination must provide the picture of the tall, gaunt spectre of a man, half-masked and riding like a demon, urging his steed onward through the night with whip and spur, along a road abounding in pitfalls, with black miles separating one warm, reliow cable light from the next. What was he thinking of as he rode onward? Not of the pain of the cancer, slowly eating away his countenance and sapping his vitality; not of the risk he ran, a solitary horseman, of being waylaid and robbed or murdered upon the lonely journey. He heeded not the hunger and the sleeplessness; he was thinking only of the fact that his vote would turn the day for Delaware; Delaware, though a little state, might influence Pennsylvania, and so the vote of day for Delaware; Delaware, though a little state, might influence Pennayivania, and so the vote of the colonies would be unapimous for a designation that would have a little the men who made and street it, and estimately the people of the threen colonies and their descendants.

Pennsylvania, by three of her five delegates present, augeoried Delaware's action, and thus by the ride of Rodney the unanimous vote of the colonies (with the solitary and temporary exception of New York) was that day secured for the Magna-Chesta of our American liberties.

"It was 2 o'clock in the afternoon." Lossing tells us, "when the final decision was announced by Secretary Thompson. When the secretary sat down a deep silence pervaded that august assembly. Theusands of annious citisens had gathered in the streets. From the hour when Congress convened in the morning the old beliman had been in the steeple. He placed a boy at the door below to give him notice when the announcement should be made. As hour succeeded hour, the graybeard shook his head, and said. "They will never do it!" Suddenly a loud shout the steeple of the said. They will never do it!" Suddenly a loud shout the steeple of shook his head, and said. They will never do it! They will never do it! Suddenly a loud shout came up from below, and there stood the blue-ayed boy, chapping his hands and shouting Ring! Grasping the from tongue of the old bell, backward and beyward be hurled it 100 times, its food, voice proclaiming Liberty throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof. The sacrifed sublitted in the streets responded with loud acclassations, and with cannon peals, bouffred and illuminations.

It is to the avertisating tame of Thomas Jefferson that his hand drafted the Declaration of Independence. Among his pa-pers he left many letters and docu-ments which throw a flood of light upon the motives and objects of that gathering of American statesmen. He told the following anecdote character-istic of Benjamin Franklin: "When the Declaration of Independence was under the consideration of Congress, there were two or three un-lucky expressions in it which gave offense to some members. The words 'Scotch and other foreign auxiliaries.' 'Scotch and other foreign auxiliaries,' excited the ire of a gentleman or two of that country. Severe strictures on the conduct of the British king, in negativing our repeated repeals of the law which permitted the importation of slaves, were disapproved by some southern gentlemen. Although the offensive expressions were immediately yielded, these gentlemen continued their depredations on other heartruments. I was sitting by Dr.

"I have made it a rule, said be, 'whenever in my power, to avoid becoming the draftsman of papers to be received by a public body. I took my lesson from an incident which I will relate to you. When I was a journeyman printer, one of my companions, an apprentice hatter, having served out his time, was about to open shop for himself. His first concern was to have a handsome signboard, with a proper inscription. He composed it in these words: "John Thompson. hatter, makes and sells hats for ready money," with a figure of a hat subjoined. But he thought he would submit it to his friends for their mandments. The first he showed it to thought the words, "makes hats," which showed he was a hatter.

They were parted with, and the inscription now stood, "John Thompson sells hats," "Sells hats," says his next friend, "Why, sobody will expect you to give them away. What, then, is the use of that word?" It was stricken out, and "hats" followed it—the rather as there was one painted on the board. So his inscription was reduced ultimately to "John Thompson" with the figure of a hat subjoined."

In a letter to the editor of the Journal de Paris, Jefferson gives the following account of the adoption of the Declaration of Independence.

"On the 7th of June, 1776, the delegates from Virginia moved, in obedience to instructions from their co-intituents, that Congress should declare the Thirteen United Colonies to be independent of Great Britain, that a confederation should be formed to bind them together, and measures be taken for procuring the assistance of foreign powers. The house ordered a punctual attendance of all their members the next day at 10 o'elect, and then resolved themselves into a committee of the whole, and entered on the discussion. It appeared in the course of debates that seven states, viz. New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Councellent, Virginia, North Carolina and Georgia, were decided for a separation; but that six others still hesitated, to wit: New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and South Carolina. Congress, desirous of unanimity and seeing that the public mind was advancing rapidly to it, referred the further discussion to the lat of July, appointing in the meantime a committee to prepare a Declaration of Independence, a second to form Articles of Confederation of the States, and a third to propose measures for obtaining foreign aid.

"On the 28th of June, the Declaration of Independence was reported to the house, and was laid on the table for the consideration of the members. On the lat day of July they resolved members. On the 1st day of July they resolved themselves into a committee of the whole, and resumed the consideration of the motion of June 7 (declaring independence). It was debated through the day, and at length was decided in the affirmative by the vote of nine states, riz. New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina and Georgia. Pennsylvania and South Carolina voted against it. Delaware, two members present, was divided. The delegates from New York declared they were for it, and their constituents also; but that the instructions against it which had ben given them a twelvemonth before, were still unrepealed; that their convention was to meet in a few days, and they asked leave to suspend their vote till they could convention was to meet in a few days, and they asked leave to auspend their vote till they could obtain a repeal of their instructions. Observe that all this was in a committee of the whole Congress, and that according to the mode of their proceedings, the resolution of that committee to declare themselves independent was to be put to the same persons reassuming their forms as a Congress.

Congress.
"It was now evening, the members exhausted by a debate of nine houre, during which all the powers of the soul had been distended with the magnitude of the object, and the delegates of South Carolina desired that the final decision might be put off to the next morning that they might still weigh in their own minds their ultimate vote. It was put off, and in the morning of the 2d of July, they joined the other nine states in voting for it. The members of the Pennsylvania delegation, too, who had been absent the day before, came in and turned the vote of their state in favor of independence, and a third member of the state of Delsware, who, hearing of the division in the sentiment of his two colleagues, had traveled post to arrive in time, now came in and decided the vote of that state also for the resolution. Thus 12 states voted for it at the time of its passage, and the delegates of New York, the thirteenth state, received instructions within a few days to add theirs to the general vote; so that there was not a dissenting voice. was now evening, the members exhausted vote; so that there was not a dissenting voice.

The first colebration of our national birthday The first celebration of our matimal birthday took place in Philadelphia four days after the adoption of the Deciaration of Independence, July 8, 1776, with all the clamor and rejoicing that today heralds its approach. Amid the humans of the people the king's arms were torn down, the troops paraded, and on the commons the proclamation was read before each of the five battailloss. Bonfires blazed in the evening, cannon were fired, balls were rung, and the populace celebrated generally. The most day General Washington arrived in New York and took charge.

celebrated generally. The next day General Washington arrived in New York and took charge of the demonstrations there. It seems to take us into the long ago when we read that "they hurried the news forward to Boston, and the messengers made such incredibly fast time that they reached the Hub by July 2." Here the excitament had no statue upon which to vent itself, so the enthusiastic feyalists tore down the lion and the unlearn from the cent wing of the State house.

SAHLIN is one of the few articles of wearing apparel which may be termed a necessity. It is not only a perfect form for SLENDER WOMEN, but it is a complete corset for slight and medium figures which may or may not be deficient in bust measure.

the corset is the foundation upon which every well round woman must build up her costume. The slender woman, by using the Sahlin can secure a mmetrical appearance and at the same symmetrical appearance and at the same time make a rapid and permanent improvement in her actual figure. Every wearer of Sahlin perceives at once a decided improvement in her general health, and we have yet to learn of a case where she ever returned to the old for Bozeman, Montana, to visit their style form or corset.
Sahlin requires no padding or inter-

Sahlin requires no padding or interlining.

Ballin has no books, no class, no syel-128, no strings, no heavy steels.

Sahlin has no shoulder straps that cross and produce compression, thereby, preventing proper development.

Wemen who cannot wear the ordinary corest have found the SAHLIN entirely satisfactory from every standpoint of shaping and comfort. There is positively no pressure on the heart, lungs or stomach. Physicians everywhere recommend it—dressmakers prefer to fit over it.

SYNOPSIS.

Leut. Harry Mallory is ordered to the Philippines. He and Marjorie Newton decide to clope, but wreck of taxicab prevents their seeing minister on the way to the train. Transcontinental train is taxing on passengers. Forter has a lively sime with an Englishman and Ira Lathrope, a Yankee business man. The alopers have an exciting time retting to the train. Taltie Jimmie' Wellington, beand for Reno to get a divorce, boards train lan mandilin condition. Later Mrs. Jimmie appears. She is also bound for Reno with same object. Likewise Mrs. Sammy Whitcomb. Latter hjames Mrs. Jimmie for their martial troubles. Classmates of Mailery decorate bridal berth.

CHAPTER VI-(Continued).

Then Ashton intervened like a dog in the manger and dragged her off to the seat, leaving the young man to "Some tamarind, that!"

Another young man behind him lowled: "Cut out the tamarinds and to business. Mallory will be here and minute."

"Yes, suppose he objects."
"Well, we have the tickets. We'll Cham it's our section till Mallory and Mrs. Mallory come."

They moved on into the car, where the porter confronted them. When he saw that they were loaded with bundles of all shapes and sizes, he waved them away with scorn:

"The emigrant sleeps runs only cosdays and Thuzzdays." From behind the first mass of pack ages came a brisk military answer:

"You black hound! About face—forward march! Section number one."
"The porter retreated down the size,

The two young men dumped their apprecis on the seats and began to unwarm them hastily.

M Mallory catches us, he'll kill us, id Lieutenant Shaw. Lieutenan said Lieutenant Shaw. Lieutenant Hudson only laughed and drew out a long streamer of white satin ribbon.

long streamer of white satin ribbon. Its glimmer, and the glimmering eyes of the young man excited Mrs. Whitcomb so much that after a little besitance she moved forward, followed by the jealous Ashton.

"Oh, what's up?" she ventured. "It looks like something bridal."

"Talk about womanly intuition!" said Lieutenant Hudson, with an ingratiating salam.

gratiating salaam.

And then they explained to her that their classmate at West Point, being ordered suddenly to the Philippines, ibad arranged to alope with his belowed Marjorie Newton; had asked them to get the tickets and check the baggage while he stopped at a minister's to "get spliced and hike for Manila by this train."

Having recounted this plan in the rfull belief that it was even at that moment being carried, out successfully. Lieutenapt Hudson, with a ghonlish

"Being old friends of the bride and groom, we want to fix their section up in style and make them truly comfort-"Dellejous!" gushed Mrs. Whitee ought to have some rice and Here's the rice," said Hudson.

"Here's the old shoes," said Shaw.
"Lovely!" cried Mrs. Whitcomb, but then she grew soberer. "I should think, though, that they—the young couple—would have preferred a Stateroom."
"Of course," said Hudson, almost blushing, 'but it was taken. This was Scuse me, but wha-what's all this!

"Vanish—get out," said Hudson, golding a coin at him. As he turned to shey, Mrs. Whitcomb checked him

The porter almost blanched: "Good Land, Miss, you ain't allowin' to drive, name in that woodwork, is your" That woodwork was to him what the altar is to the priest.

But Hudsets, senares

Anxiously the porter pleaded: "I just want to ast one question. Is you sail fixin, up for a bridal couple!"

"Foolish question, number eight million, forty-three," said Shaw. "Any were, no, we are."

The porter's face glistened like, fresh stove polish as he gleated over the prospect. "I tell you, it'll be manty refreshin' to have a bridal couple on bode! This dog-on Reno train don't carry nothin much but divorces. I'm just nachally hongry for a bridal couple."

"Brile coup-hic-le?" came a voice, like an echo that had somehow become intoxicated in transit. It was Little Jimmie Wellington looking for more sympathy. "Whass zis about the lear you say the little black hat and the little black but "I'm so tired of it, Sally, I don't want anybody on him in amazed amusement. "Did I un'stan' somebody say you're preparing for brile coupl?"

Lieutenant Shaw grinned. "I don't know what you understood, but that's what we're doing. Immediately Wellington's great face began to churn and work like a big eddy in a river. Suddenly he was weeping. "Excuse these tears, zhent-temen, but I once—I was once a b-b-bride myself."

"He looks like a whole wedding party," was Ashton's only comment on the copious grief. It was poor Weilington's fate to hunt as vainly for sym-pathy as Diogenes for honesty. The decorators either ignored him or shunted him aside. They were interested in a strange contrivance of rib bons and a box that Shaw produced.

"That," Hudson explained, "is a littie rice trap. We have that up there and when the bridat couple sit down

—biff! a shower of rice all over them.

Everybody agreed that it was a happy thought, and even Jimmie Wel-lington, like a great baby, bounding lington, like a great baby, bounding from tears to laughter or the instant, was chartling: "A rishe typp? That's abslowtly splendid—greatey invensh' moderny fimes. I must atjek around and see her when she flops." And then he harched forward like a tooobliging elephant. "Let me belp you."

Mrs. Whitcomb, who had now mounted a step ladder and poised herself as gracefully as possible, stricked self as gracefully as possible, suricked with alarm, as she saw Wellington's bulk rolling toward her frail support.

If Hudson and Shaw had not been football veterans at West Point and had not known just what to do when the center rush comes bucking the line, they could never have blocked that flying wedge. But they cheeked him and impelled him backward through his own curtains into his own

"Why, here's Little Buttercup!" "They can't help guessing it, with your collar buttoned behind."

And then the amazing minister act-ually dared to say, "Here's where I change it around." What's more, he actually did it. Actually took off his collar and buttoned it to the front.

The old carriage seemed almost to rock with the earthquake of the deed.
"Why, Walter Temple!" his wife exclaimed. "What would they say in Ypsilant!?"

"They'll never know," he answered.

defiantly.
"But your bib?" she said.
"I've thought of that, too," he cried, as he whipped it off and stuffed it into a handbag. "Look, what I've bought." And he dangled before her startled eyes a long affair which the sudden light from a passing lamp-post vealed to be nothing less than a flaring red tie.

The old lady touched it to make sure sike was not dreaming it. Then, omitting further parley with fate, she snatched it away, put it round his neck, sast, since her arms were embracing him, kinsed him twice before she knotled the ribbon into a flaming sow. She squeezed his hand with am earlier ardor: 'Now you're the old! Walter Temple I used to know."

He pinched har dheek and laughed. "As the saying is, gas far as you desire and I'll leave the coast clear."

He kept his promise, too, for they were no soomer on the train and snug-y bestowed in section five, than he was up and off.

"Where are you going?" she asked.
"To the smaking-room," he swaggered, brandishing a dangerous looking cigar.

"Oh, Walter," she anickered, "I feel like a young runaway."

"You look like one. Be careful not to let anybedy know that you're a"—he lowered his voice—"an old preacher's wife.'

"I'm as ashamed of it as you are." "I'm as anhamed of it as you are," she whispered. Then he threw her a kiss and a wink. She threw him a kiss and winked too. And he went along the aisle ayeing his cigar gloatingly. As he enkered the smoking-room, lighted the weed and blew out a great puff with a sigh of rapture, who could have taken him, with his feet cocked up, and his red the rakishly askew, for a minister? minister?

minister?

And Sally herself was busy disguising herself, loosening up her hair coquestishly, smiling the primness out of the set corners of her month and —even passing a pink-powdered puff over her pale cheeks with guilty surrentition.

Thus arrayed she was a Anus arrayed she was soon joining the conspiretors bederking the bower for the expected bride and groom. She was the youngest and most mischierous of the lot. The Shorter Route.

Lady Duff-Gordon, at a luncheon at Sherry's in New York, told an anecdote apropos of the divorce evil.

"Two girfs," she said, "were chatting over a cocktail and a cigarette.

"Marriagoa are made in heave."

"Marriages are made in heaven," said the first girl, and she blew a cloud of smoke into the 'air and regarded it with dreamy eyes.

"The second girl with a light laugh replied:

Yes, that is true; but, thank goodness, to unmake them we have to go only as far as Reno."

Makes a Difference. "What is this?"

"As you see, it is a badge demanding votes for women."
"You wearing such a badge?"
"Yes, I."
"But you always told me you could

JOHN GALE,

Hervey Packard shot and killed himself at his farm home several miles west of the village early yesterday morning. For some time Mr. Packard has shown signs of mental derangement and had been taking treatment. His wife was unable to live with him on account of his violence and some two months ago returned to the home of her parents.

Ed. Manning, an old man, stayed in the house with Packard and he says the Sunday, June 30 the house with Packard and he beys well latter was very restless during Wednesday night, finally getting up about three o'clock Thursday morning. Im-mediately after he heard a noise resembling the slamming of a door. got up to invistigate and nearly fell over the prograte body of Packard lying just outside the wood-shed door. Manning started at once for the nearby home of Hop Williams and son and they in turn notified Oliver Loomis, the party then going over to the Packard nouse, only to find that Packard's death was instantaneous, he having placed the muzzle of a loaded shotgun in his mouth and pulled the trigger with his foot, blowing the whole top of his head

Undertaker Schrader was notified and he took charge of the remains. The funeral will be held Saturday after oon, Rev. Farber officiating. The deceased left a note to his wife in which he stated he did not blame her for leaving him and refusing to go back. He was to have gone to Eloise for treatment yesterday and spoke of it in the note. He was about 38 years old.

Budget From "Newly Wed."

I am a very interested reader of all your good advice and suggestions to the many saking aid from you. May I, too, ask a few questions? Am just married and moved into our dear little bungslow, and look to you for advice. For which foods are ingar bowls used, and does a finger bowls stand in a glass plate? When are the finger bowls placed on the table? When individual salt dishes are placed on the table with salt spoons, is the salt conveyed to the plate with small spoon? Please give me a recipe for a fruit salad containing grapefruit and one without, also a cabbage salad recipe, if not too much trouble for you. In having cards printed shall I have my husband's name on my card, such as "Mrs. H. B. Jones" (or Harry B.)? Is it good taste to have a door plate with name on on our new home?—V. G. N.

Finger bowls are necessary when fruit is served or corn on the cob, and many hostesses have them brought in with the dessert service or after it. Each bowl rests on a glass plate to match or on a china plate on top of a fine finger bowl doily. The salt spoon is used by the individual to put the salt on his plate. I cannot take the limited space to write out recipes unless for some very unusual dish that less for some very unusual dish that will be a novelty. What you wish will be found in any up-to-date cook book. Your cards abould be engraved with your husband's full name. Door plates are seldom used now.

From "N. B. D."

Will you kindly answer through the paper whether it is proper to bring a box of candy or chocolates when taking a lady to the theater? Also which side should a gentleman be on (rightor left of ledy) in escorting her across the ballroom floor, and on which side should he seat himself?—N. B. D.

There is nothing improper about taking a box of candy to the theater, but it should be eaten during the intermission and not during the play. A man walks at the left of a lady and

Lenses Must be Changed

Lenses do not wear out but eyes do. Every part of our body changes with advancing years, and our eyes in common with the rest of our physical being show the effect of age. We must therefore meet the changed condition of our eyes. The lenses you bought five, or even two years ago, are not giving your eyes the proper assistance now necessary. As our eyes are yearing out year by year, so your lenses or glasses should be newly corrected to correspond to your failing vision. I examine eyes for glasses by the most modern and scientific method.

I USE NO DRUGS.
