Why didn't you have your money in the Bank?

The Bank is the only safe place to keep your money

All men can MAKE money, but few men know how to invest money. When you make money you depend only upon yourself; when you invest money you must depend upon others. No man serves others as well as he serves himself. That's why putting your money into something you can't watch is almost always unprofitable—that is if you wish more than a four per cent return. Beware of get-rich-quick schemes!

Let OUR Bank be YOUR Bank. We pay three per cent interest.

Two Rigs Collide.

Two rigs, one driven by Don Tillotson and the other by Frank Wagonshultz, collided on Penniman avenue Monday evening. Tillotson's buggy was overturned and the driver fell with his leg between the spokes of a wheel, but fortunately the horse stood still and no damage resulted. Wagonshultz's horse broke his harness some in the melee. Neither man blamed the other and they goodnaturedly helped each other in making repairs.

Not So Bad as Might Be.

Charlie Merritt went out Tuesday morning to buy a calf and loaded it into his automobile. Coming down the Durfee mill a milk wagon driven by George Drayton was ahead of him. Charlie undertook to slow down his machine, but then the calf "butted in" and between the steering wheel and the calf, Charlie lost temporary control and ran into the rear of the wagon. As a result the machine went to the garage for repairs, which, however, were not serious.

A Word to Subscribers.

To be entitled to send newspapers through the mails at pound rates, the post office department requires that they must be paid for in advance. However, to enable publishers to obtain renewals and give subscribers a reasonable time to pay, a year's extension is given. After that time, full postage must be paid. This information is given for the benefit of a few subscribers of The Mail who have fallen behind. Statements have been sent out and we hope all will realize the situation and pay up promptly, rather than have their paper discontinued. Look at your address label and see how you stand.

Our New Millinery Firm.

We are glad to welcome to our village the new millinery firm of Giles & Bartholomew, successors to Miss Nell B. McLaren. Miss Giles comes from Detroit and Mrs. Bartholomew from Adrian, and both are experienced in all departments of the line. Miss Giles has not only achieved marked success in the retail business as buyer and department manager for two of Michigan's largest department stores but she has also been closely identified with the wholesale branch of the business, having for the past ten years been employed for a part of each season in the different departments of the wholesale millinery house of Pollock, Pettibone & Co. of Detroit. It is their purpose to conduct a millinery emporium and dressmaking establishment that will be a credit to any city and will afford the ladies of Plymouth every advantage in the way of assortment and prices enjoyed by those in larger cities.

Showed Presence of Mind.

Mrs. Bert Paddock was washing Tuesday forenoon, using a gasoline stove to boil the clothes. The water in the boiler sloped over and put out the burner unbeknown to the lady, the gasoline, however, continuing to drip until quite a puddle had accumulated on the floor, which she believed was water from the boiler. When later she went to light another burner, she found out her mistake as the gasoline instantly caught fire and blazed up. A pail of water stood near and in her excitement this was dashed on the flames by Mrs. Paddock, which only served to spread the flames further and into an adjoining bedroom. Quickly realizing what she had done, she grabbed some bed-clothing and with that beat out the fire, which had begun to scorch the walls and floors. And strangest of all, the lady did not receive the slightest burn on her person, due greatly to her presence of mind in knowing what and how to do. But when it was all over, she began to get frightened.

GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP

No Medicine So Beneficial to Brain and Nerves.

Lying awake nights makes it hard to keep awake and do things in any time. To take "tonics and stimulants" under such circumstances is like setting the house on fire to see if you can put it out.

The right kind of food promotes refreshing sleep at night and a wide awake individual during the day. A lady changed from her old way of eating Grape-Nuts, and says:

"For about three years I had been a great sufferer from indigestion. After trying several kinds of medicine, the doctor would ask me to drop off potatoes, then meat, and so on, but in a few days that craving, gnawing feeling would start up, and I would vomit everything I ate and drank."

"When I started on Grape-Nuts, vomiting stopped, and the bloated feeling which was so distressing disappeared entirely."

"My mother was very much bothered with diarrhoea before commencing the Grape-Nuts, because her stomach was so weak she could not digest her food. Since using Grape-Nuts food she is well, and says she don't think she could do without it."

"It is a great brain restorer and nerve builder, for I can sleep as sound and undisturbed after a supper of Grape-Nuts as in the old days when I could not realize what they meant by a 'bad stomach.' There is no medicine so beneficial to nerves and brain as a good night's sleep, such as you can enjoy after eating Grape-Nuts."

SERIAL STORY

EXCUSE ME!

Novelized from the Comedy of the Same Name By Rupert Hughes ILLUSTRATED From Photographs of the Play as Produced by Henry W. Savage

Copyright, 1911, by H. W. Savage

SYNOPSIS.

Lieut. Harry Mallory is ordered to the Philippines. He and Marjorie Newton decide to elope, but wreck of taxicab prevents their seeing minister on the way to the train. Transcontinental train is talking on passenger. Porter has a lively time with an Englishman and Ira Lathrop, a Yankee business man. The alopers have an exciting time getting to the train. "Little Heavie" Wellington, bound for Reno to get a divorce, boards train in maudlin condition. Later Mrs. Jimmie appears. She is also bound for Reno with same object. Likewise Mrs. Sammy Whitcomb. Latter blames Mrs. Jimmie for her marital troubles. Classmates of Mallory decide to elope. Rev. and Mrs. Temple start on a vacation. They decide to cut loose and Temple removes evidence of his calling. Marjorie decides to let Mallory proceed alone, but train starts while they are lost in farewell.

CHAPTER IX.

All Aboard!

The starting of the train surprised the ironical decorators in the last stages of their work. Their smiles died out in a sudden shame, as it came over them that the joke had recurred on their own heads. They had done their best to carry out the time-honored rite of making a newly married couple as miserable as possible—and the newly married couple had failed to do it.

The two lieutenants glared at each other in mutual contempt. They had studied much at West Point about ambushes, and how to avoid them. Could Mallory have escaped the pit they had dug for him? They looked at their handiwork in disgust. The cosy-corner effect of white ribbons and orange flowers, gracefully masking the concealed rice-trap, had seemed the wittiest thing ever devised. Now it looked the silliest.

The other passengers were equally downcast. Meanwhile the two lovers in the corridor were kissing good-byes as if they were hoping to store up honey enough to sustain their hearts for a three years' fast. And the porter was studying them with perplexity.

He was used, however, to waking people out of dreamland, and he began to fear that if he were discovered spying on the lovers, he might suffer. So he coughed discreetly three or four times.

Since the increasing racket of the train made no effect on the two hearts beating as one, the small matter of a cough was as nothing.

Finally the porter was compelled to reach forward and tap Mallory's arm, and stutter:

"Scuse me, but co-could I git by?" The embrace was untied, and the lovers stared at him with a dazed, where-am-I? look. Marjorie was the first to realize what awakened them. She felt called upon to say something, so she said, as carelessly as if she had not just emerged from a young gentleman's arms:

"Oh, porter, how long before the train starts?"

"Train's done started, Missy." This simple statement struck the wool from her eyes and the cotton from her ears, and she was wide enough awake when she cried: "Oh, stop it—stop it!"

"That's mo'n I can do, Missy," the porter expostulated.

"Then I'll jump off," Marjorie vowed, making a dash for the door.

But the porter filled the narrow path, and waved her back.

"Venthole's done locked up—train's going lickety-split." Feeling that he had safely checkmated any rashness, the porter squeezed past the dumbfounded pair, and went to change his blue blouse for the white coat of his chambermaidly duties. Mallory's first wondering thought was a rapturous feeling that circumstances had forced his dream into a reality. He thrilled with triumph: "You've got to go with me now."

"Yes—I've got to go," Marjorie assented meekly; "then, sublimely, 'It's late. Kismet!'"

They clutched each other again in a fiercely bilious hug. Marjorie came back to earth with a bump: "Are you really sure there's a minister on board?"

"Pretty sure," said Mallory, sobering a trifle.

"But you said you were sure?"

"Well, when you say you're sure, that means you're not quite sure."

Again it was she who received the first inspiration.

"I have it!" she beamed.

"Yes, Marjorie!" she assented, dubiously.

"We'll pretend not to be married at all."

He seized the rescuing ladder: "That's it! Not married—just friends."

"Till we can get married!"

"Yes, and then we can stop being friends."

"My love—my friend!" They embraced in a most unfriendly manner.

An impatient yelp from the neglected dog-basket awoke them.

"Oh, Lord, we've brought Snooksie-ums."

"Of course we have." She took the dog from the prison, tucked him under her arm, and tried to compose her bridal face into a merely friendly countenance before they entered the car. But she must pause for one more kiss, one more of those bitter-sweet good-byes. And Mallory was nothing loath.

Hudson and Shaw were still gloomily perplexed, when the porter returned in his white jacket.

"I bet they missed the train; all this work for nothing," Hudson grumbled. But Shaw, seeing the porter, caught a gleam of hope, and asked anxiously:

"Say, porter, have you seen anything anywhere that looks like a freshly married pair?"

"Well," and the porter rubbed his eyes with the back of his hand as he chuckled, "well, they's a mighty lovin' couple out theah in the corridor."

"That's them—they—!" Instantly everything was alive and in action. It was as if a bugle had shrilled in a deserted camp.

"Get ready!" Shaw commanded. "Here's rice for everybody."

"Everybody take an old shoe," said Hudson. "You can't miss in this narrow car."

"There's a kazoo for everyone, too," said Shaw, as the outstretched hands were equipped with wedding ammunition. "Do you know the 'Wedding March'?"

"I ought to by this time," said Mrs. Whitcomb.

Right into the tangle of preparation, old Ira Lathrop stalked, on his way back to his seat to get more cigars.

"Have some rice for the bridal couple?" said Ashton, offering him of his own double-handful.

But Lathrop brushed him aside with a romance-hater's growl.

"Watch out for your head, then," cried Hudson, and Lathrop ducked just too late to escape a neck-filling, hair-filling shower. An old shoe took him a clip about the ear, and the old woman-bater dropped raging into the same berth where the spinster, Anne Gattie, was trying to dodge the same downpour.

Still there was enough of the shrappel left to overwhelm the two young "friends," who marched into the aisle, trying to look indifferent and prepared for nothing on earth less than for a wedding charivari.

Mallory should have done better than to entrust his plans to fellows like Hudson and Shaw, whom he had known at West Point for diabolically joyous hazers and practical jokers. Even as he spluttered rice and winced from the impact of flying footgear, he was cursing himself as a double-dyed idiot for asking such men to engage his berth for him. He had, a sudden instinct that they had doubtless bedecked his trunk and Marjorie's with white satin furbelows and ludicrous labels. But he could not shelter himself from the white sleet and the black thumps. He could hardly shelter Marjorie, who covered behind him and shrieked even louder than the romping tormentors.

When the assailants had exhausted the rice and shoes, they charged down the aisle for the privilege of kissing the bride. Mallory was dragged and bumped and shunted here and there, and he had to fight his way back to Marjorie with might and main. He was tugging and striking like a demon, and yelling, "Stop it! stop it!"

Hudson took his punishment with uproarious good nature, laughing: "Oh, shut up, or we'll kiss you!"

But Shaw was scrubbing his wry lips with a sea-sick wail of: "Wow! I think I kissed the dog."

There was, of necessity, some pause for breath, and the combatants draped themselves limply about the seats. Mallory glared at the twin Benedict Arnolds and demanded:

"Are you two thugs going to San Francisco with me?"

"Don't worry," smiled Hudson, "we're only going as far as Kedzie avenue, just to start the honeymoon properly."

If either of the elopers had been calmer, the solution of the problem would have been simple. Marjorie could get off at this suburban station and drive home from there. But their wits were like pled type, and they were further jumbled, when Shaw broke in with a sudden: "Come, see the little dove-cote we fixed for you."

Before they knew it, they were both haled along the aisle to the white satin atrocity. "Love in a bungalow," said Hudson. "Sit down—make yourselves perfectly at home."

"No—never—oh, oh, oh!" cried Marjorie, darting away and throwing herself into the first empty seat—Ira Lathrop's berth. Mallory followed to console her with caresses and murmurs of, "There's there, don't cry, dearie!"

shame she had undergone as a girl-wife, and she hastened to Marjorie's side, brushing the men away like gnats.

"You poor thing," she comforted. "Come, my child, lean on me, and have a good cry."

Hudson grinned, and put out his own arms: "She can lean on me, if she'd rather."

Mrs. Temple glanced up with indignant rebuke: "Her mother is far away, and she wants a mother's breast to weep on. Here's mine, my dear."

The impudent Shaw tapped his own military chest: "She can use mine."

Infuriated at this bride-baiting, Mallory rose and confronted the two lumps with clenched fists: "You're a pretty pair of friends, you are!"

The imperturbable Shaw put out a pair of tickets as his only defense: "Here are your tickets, old boy."

And Hudson roared jovially: "We tried to get you a stateroom, but it was gone."

"And here are your baggage checks," laughed Shaw, forcing into his fists a few pasteboards. "We got your trunks on the train ahead, all right. Don't mention it—you're entirely welcome."

It was the porter that brought the first relief from the ordeal.

"If you gemmen is gettin' off at Kedzie avenue, you'd better step smart. We're slowin' up now."

Marjorie was sobbing too audibly to hear, and Mallory swearing too inaudibly to heed the opportunity Kedzie avenue offered. And Hudson was yelling: "Well, good-bye, old boy and old girl. Sorry we can't go all the way." He had the effrontery to try to kiss the bride good-bye, and Shaw was equally bold, but Mallory's fury enabled him to beat them off. He elbowed and shouldered them down the aisle, and sent after them one of his own shoes. But it just missed Shaw's flying coatfalls.

Mallory stood glaring after the departing traitors. He was glad that they at least were gone, till he realized with a sickening slump in his vitals, that they had not taken with them his awful dilemma. And now the train was once more clichey-clicking into the night and the west.

CHAPTER X.

Excess Baggage. Never was a young soldier so stumped by a problem in tactics as Lieutenant Harry Mallory, safely aboard his train, and not daring to leave it, yet hopelessly unaware of how he was to dispose of his lovely but unlabeled baggage.

Hudson and Shaw had erected a white satin temple to Hyman in berth number one, had created such commotion, and departed in such confusion, that there had been no opportunity to proclaim that he and Marjorie were "not married—just friends."

And now the passengers had accepted them as that enormous fund of amusement to any train, a newly wedded pair. To explain the mistake would have been difficult, even among friends. But among strangers—well, perhaps a wiser and a colder brain than Harry Mallory's could have stood there and delivered a brief oration restoring truth to her pedestal. But Mallory was in no condition for such a stolid delivery.

He mopped his brow in agony, lost in a blizzard of bewilderment. He drifted back toward Marjorie, half to protect and half for companionship. He found Mrs. Temple cuddling her close and mothering her as if she were a baby instead of a bride.

"Did the poor child run away and get married?"

Marjorie's frantic "Boo-hoo-hoo" might have meant anything. Mrs. Temple took it for assent, and murmured with glowing reminiscence: "Just the way Doctor Temple and I did."

She could not see the leaping flash of wild hope that lighted up Mallory's face. She only heard his voice across her shoulder:

"Doctor? Doctor Temple? Is your husband a reverend doctor?"

"A reverend doctor?" the little old lady repeated wearily.

"Yes—a—a preacher?"

The poor old congregation-weary soul was abruptly confronted with the ruination of all the delight in her little escapade with her pulpit-fagred husband. If she had ever dreamed that the girl who was weeping in her arms was weeping from any other fright than the usual fright of young brides, fresh from the preacher's benediction, she would have cast every other consideration aside, and told the truth.

But her husband's last behest before he left her had been to keep her precious pretend-secret. She felt—just then—that a woman's first duty is to obey her husband. Besides, what business was it of this young husband's what her old husband's business was? Before she had fairly begun to debate her duty, almost automatically, with the instantaneous instinct of self-protection, her lips had uttered the denial:

"Oh—he's—just—a—plain doctor. There he is now."

Mallory cast one miserable glance down the aisle at Dr. Temple coming back from the smoking room. As the old man paused to stare at the bridal berth, whose preparation he had not seen, he was just enough befuddled by his first cigar for thirty years to look a trifle tipsy. The motion of the train and the rakish tilt of his unwonted crimson tie confirmed the suspicion and annihilated Mallory's new-born hope, that perhaps repentant fate had dropped a person at their very feet.

The hardest thing a doctor has to do is to cure a woman who has nothing the matter with her.

Singing and the Lungs.

It is well known that singing, like whistling, is a fine exercise for the lungs, and some doctors advise those who fear consumption to go in for singing for this reason.

At the same time, they, of course, do not advance the claim that singing alone will save anyone from or cure consumption. Acquire the habit of taking the big deep breath, which is a primary requisite of any kind of singing, bad or good, and the physical joy derived from it will never allow you to relapse into lazy breathing.

SKIN ERUPTION ON CHEEK

Kingsley, Mich.—"Last May my thirteen-months-old baby had a sore come on her cheek. It started in four or five small pimples and in two or three hours' time spread to the size of a silver dollar. It spread to her eye. Then water would run from the pimples and wherever that touched it caused more sores until nearly all one cheek and up her nostrils were one solid sore. She was very fretful. She certainly was a terrible looking child, and nothing seemed to be of any use."

"Then I got some Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. She tried to rub off everything we put on so that we would sit and hold her hands for two hours at a time, trying to give the medicine a chance to help her, but after I washed it with Cuticura Soap and then put on the Cuticura Ointment they seemed to soothe her and she did not try to rub them off. It was only a few days before her face was all healed up, and there has been no return of the trouble since. We thought that baby's face would surely be scarred, but it is not." (Signed) Mrs. W. J. Cleland, Jan. 5, 1912.

HALF A MILLION PEOPLE

Will Sing "Star Spangled Banner" at Climax of Cadillac Water Fete, July 22-27, in Detroit When Immense Bombs Are Fired Into the Air, Releasing Millions of Stars, Forming American Flag.

One of the most fantastic and inspiring programs ever devised for a carnival will be brought to a spectacular climax the night of Thursday, July 25, when Cadillac Water Fete, Detroit's big water fete, reaches its height. The beautiful Detroit river will be fairly ablaze that night to hold spell-bound the half million people who will witness the naval parade around Cadillac water court and the fireworks display following it.

The water court is constructed in midriver on piers. Around the court 700 craft of all descriptions will parade. The court will be the centerpiece of the water pageant. It will be 2,000 feet long, 300 feet wide and featured by three immense fountains, illuminated with colored lights. Between the fountains will be enormous Roman galleys, one containing a combined band and orchestra and the other holding the Mendelssohn Singing club of 150 voices. The court is so situated that it can be viewed by 1,000,000 people, and doubtless half that number will be on hand to witness the spectacle and hear the musical program.

For the last number on the program the singers will render "The Star Spangled Banner." At a signal from the leader, who will be in plain sight to the tens of thousands of eyewitnesses on account of the floods of light from powerful searchlights focused on the court from every direction, three sixty-inch bombs will be fired into the air. They will release millions of stars and thirteen red and white stripes, forming in the heavens

A display of fireworks on the Detroit river. The Cadillac fireworks will dwarf all past performances of the kind.

An immense American flag. That will be the signal for the multitudes to join in singing the chorus of the national anthem.

Following that program a fireworks display will be given to conclude that evening's entertainment. Cadillac begins Monday night July 23, with a fireworks display representing the vision of Cadillac, founder of Detroit.

Mannish Modes That Are to Be in Order for Street Wear

SHAPES made on lines of men's hats are to be worn this spring by smart dressers, and look very trim with plain tailored gowns. The models liked most are the Derby and a similar shape with a tall square crown. But along with these severe lines are gay touches of color and strictly feminine adornments in the way of rosettes of ribbon, standing "rings" of fabric (as silk or ribbon), also the smart brush of silk which has such a vogue in millinery along with other Durbar ideas.

Flowered ribbon laid in plaits across the front of a black Milan shape and surmounted by a "paint brush" trim in black is one of the noblest hats so far produced.

Some shapes on this order have the crow and upper brim overlaid with velvet in bright colors—such as red, royal blue, cerise and green. Not many all black hats are shown, but combinations of black with strong colors have such a vogue as never before, while black and white maintain their popularity always, in their new and proper environment.

The stiff standing "brushes" used for trimming are made of silk fibers of gaura and other feathers, and similar forms made of flowers and foliage are known as "stick-up" ornaments, for want of a better name. Some simple shapes are displayed without ornament other than a band and flat bow across the front made of a three-inch heavy ribbon.

SATIN AND TAFFETA MANTLES

Decided Vogue is Apparent for These Tailor-Made and Attractive Garments.

To replace the tailor-made for afternoon and visiting wear, there will be a great vogue in long, soft satin and taffeta mantles. These are quite straight and for the most part unlined and, when not expressed in black, are carried out in strict harmony with the gowns.

Large square revers, allied to equally large square collars, figure on an appreciable number of models. And by way of breaking the monotony of an all-black scheme the revers are oftentimes faced with some color, such as bishop's purple, peony or a Pekin silk is pretty. But always are these contrasts veiled in black chiffon. That seems for the moment to be a hard and fast decree.

Frings also plays its part, and the mantles in their entirety are being regarded by a large fraternity of women as a veritable boon for filling the anxious hour pending the definite acceptance of the proposed dress modes and styles.

TAFFETA FRILL MOST USEFUL

Just the Right Thing to Supplement Hem of a Marquisette or Chiffon Frock.

It is on the hem of a marquisette or chiffon frock that the brunt of the wear comes, but now fashion permits a taffeta frill at this point, and the skirt can trail without disturbing the wearer's peace of mind. A lovely chiffon gown is so finished, and to counterbalance the scanty frill shirred over cords at the hem there are two cordings in the chiffon a little above the knee and about two inches apart. These pull in but do not hobble the fineness of the skirt, which is again shirred over a heavy cord at the waist line. The frock, of course, is a "one-piece" affair. The surplice waist closes with two gorgeous buttons and finishes in a narrow rolling collar of taffeta. Over the taffeta collar is a second collar of filmy handkerchief linen adorned with finest Madras handwork, which takes the shape of a monk's cowl at the back. The taffeta again appears in a quaintly twisted bow and cash ends which are attached at the waist line.

SIMPLE GOWN

With mauve stripes, brightened by a cluster of cherries at the waist. Leghorn hat, edged with cornflower blue velvet and trimmed with cornflowers and poppies.

Dainty Glove Protector.

Among the frilly things that girls are making this season are tubes of white satin to slip inside the muff to protect white gloves from soiling.

Take a strip of satin or heavy mesaline, 15 inches long and 12 inches deep, fold it over and sew in a seam to make a six-inch tube. Sew in a French seam to avoid raveling. Finish the ends with a narrow hem and frills of chiffon or chiffon and creamy lace.

Is the work of a minute to slip this case inside the muff. The frilly ends improve the looks of the muff, while gloves last much longer so protected.

Coats Without Padding.

Tailors are using less and less padding in the new coats, and although these are never entirely innocent of the building out required to prevent wrinkles in the goods, they are very cleverly cut to suggest a smooth squareness, and are sometimes fastened (as is the tendency just now) from neck to hem with a straight and closely set line of buttons, with a tiny turned down collar or imitation collar in embroidery.

The Waist Line.

An indication of present fashions is that the waist line will in many cases be indicated by a narrow belt of the old-fashioned sort which one has ceased to associate in one's mind with smart dressing. In very many of the newest gowns the waist is emphasized and in its normal place.

As a rule, the belt corresponds with the other trimmings of the gown, but this is not insisted upon, and sometimes it has no connection with it at all, but belongs wholly to the must abused region of the fancy belt. Thus a striped gown has its narrow belt of folded brocade tissue, and an afternoon frock which was carried out in pompadour silk emphasized its possession of a waist by circling it with a band of stiff, straight ribbon.

Broom Holder.

A drain pipe may be put to a rather novel purpose in the shape of a holder for brooms, garden tools, etc. Decorated drain pipes make excellent umbrellas and fern stands for the hall, but when used for the purpose shown need only be decorated in a very simple way, and a good plan of doing this is to entirely cover the exterior of the pipe with some remnant of any pretty wall paper, which may be very easily fastened round the sides with paste. It will then look by no means unsightly, and may be placed in the corner of the kitchen or in some other suitable spot.

Tennis Costume.

The white serge skirt in combination with one of the many types of loose-skirted blouses is much used for tennis. With it is worn a striped coat of blue and white, orange and white, red and white, or green and white. Combinations of the various college colors are also seen.

Graduated Plating.

The introduction of graduated plating removes the last hope that the skimpy hem will continue.

One of the newest models in plaited dresses was seen recently, and it was quite a pleasing compensation, in spite of the fascination of the slim silhouette.

For the sunny skirt clings and gives at the same time and all women must agree in time that the more graceful mode is the one which gradually widens, rather than that which decreases at the foot.

The woman of ancient Greece could not have maintained her graceful gait in a hobble, although in ancient days
