New Minister

Arrives In Town

Rev. J. Dutton of Marquette, who was assigned to the Plymouth M. E. church by the Detroit Conference in session at Alpena recently, arrived in town last Saturday, accompanied by his wife and four children. As soon as their household goods arrive they will take up their residence in the parsonage.

Rev. Dutton conducted his first service in the local church last Sunday morning. He is a fine speaker, and made a most pleasing impression upon all those who heard him.

A public reception will be given Mr. Dutton at the church, this (Friday) evening, to which the people of Plymouth are cordially invited to attend. Dr. Allen, district superintendent of Detroit, will be present, and the ladies of the church will serve supper from 5:30 o'clock until all are served.

Plymouth Band Will

Go Serenading

The Plymouth band will go over to the North side Saturday evening if the weather permits and serenade the business places and residents in that part of town. The boys went over last fall, and their music was greatly appreciated. It is not thought likely that any more concerts will be given in Kellogg park this fall, as the evenings are getting too cool for people to stand outside and listen. The concerts during the past summer, have drawn large crowds to town every Saturday night, and they have proven a good investment for our business men. Not many towns of this size are fortunate enough to have as good a musical organization as the Plymouth band, and our citizens appreciate their efforts, and the splendid service they have rendered on every occasion.

Death of a Pioneer

Mrs. Lucy Glass, a resident of Livonia for many years, died at her home one mile south of Beach, last Saturday morning, at the age of 78 years. She had been in poor health for some time, death being due to paralysis. Deceased is survived by three children. The funeral was held from the home Monday afternoon at one o'clock, and was conducted by Rev. Loomis of Redford.

MORE LOCAL

Chas Pitcher Sr. has moved his family into T. P. Sherman's house on E. Ann Arbor street.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Korabacher and children have returned to Detroit, after a few days' visit with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Schryer.

The Foreign Missionary society of the M. E. church gave a very pleasant little thimble party at the home of I. N. Dickerson last week Thursday afternoon. Sixteen ladies were present.

The Pere Marquette trainmasters office which has been located here for some time has been moved to Saginaw. The change will not cause the removal of but one family from the village, that of trainmaster J. L. Hayes.

The photograph gallery of E. P. Baker's has been moved to the lot in the rear of his residence on Adams street, where Mr. Baker is again prepared to do business in his line in up-to-date style and to the satisfaction of his patrons. Don't forget the new location.

The First Church, Scientist, of Plymouth, announces a free lecture on Christian Science and cordially invites the public to be present. The lecture will be given by Mr. Wm. Rathvon of Denver, Col., C. S. B., in the church edifice Monday evening, October 14th, at 7:30 o'clock.

Last week Thursday evening several of our young people gave a farewell surprise party for Miss Ruth Watson, at the home of Miss Imogene Smith. Light refreshments were served and a pleasant time was enjoyed by all. Miss Watson left for Caro. last Tuesday, where she will make her home with Rev. and Mrs. E. J. Warren.

Profits in Poultry

People who make money out of chickens, ducks and other fowls speak highly of the conditioning and fattening qualities of HARVELL'S CONDITION POWDER. It makes young chickens thrive, keeps away disease and increases the yield of eggs. The successful poultry raisers nearly all use it. Price 25 cts. per package. Sold by Jones, the druggist, and Beyer's Pharmacy.

Local and Personal Items

Will Waterman has been quite sick for the past week.

H. E. Newhouse, the plumber, has a new ad in this issue.

SYNOPSIS.

Lieut. Harry Mallory is ordered to the Philippines. He and Marjorie Newton decide to elope, but wreck of tactics prevents their seeing minister on the way to the train. Transcontinental train is taking on passengers. Porter has a lively time with an Englishman and a Yank. A Yankee business man. The elopers have an exciting time getting to the train. "Little Jimmie" Wellington, bound for Reno to get a divorce, boards train in maudlin condition. Later Mrs. Jimmie appears. She is also bound for Reno with same object. Likewise Mrs. Sammy Whitcomb. Later blames Mrs. Jimmie for her marital troubles. Classmates of Mallory decorate bride. Rev. and Mrs. Temple start on a vacation. They decide to cut loose and Temple removes evidence of his calling. Marjorie decides to let Mallory proceed alone, but train starts while they are long in farewell. Passengers join Mallory's classmates in giving couple wedding blessing. Marjorie is distracted. Ira Lathrop, a woman-hating bachelor, discovers an old sweetheart, Annie Gattie, a fellow passenger. Marjorie vainly hunts for a preacher among the passengers. Mrs. Wellington hears Little Jimmie's voice. Later she meets Mrs. Whitcomb. Marjorie reports to Marjorie his failure to find a preacher. They decide to pretend a quarrel and Marjorie finds a vacant berth. Mrs. Jimmie discovers Wellington on the train. Mallory signs makes an unsuccessful hunt for a preacher. Dr. Temple poses as a physician. Mrs. Temple is induced by Mrs. Wellington to smoke a cigar. Sight of preacher on a station platform recalls Mallory's hopes, but he takes another train. Missing hand baggage compels the couple to borrow from passengers. Jimmie gets a clasp in forehead. Mrs. Jimmie gives first aid. Coolness is then resumed. Still no clergyman. More borrowing. Dr. Temple punished by behavior of different couples. Marjorie's jealousy aroused by Mallory's baseball jargon. Marjorie suggests wrecking the train in hopes that accident will produce a preacher. Also tries to induce the conductor to hold the train so she can shop. Marjorie's dog is missing. She pulls the cord, stopping the train. Conductor restores dog and lovers quarrel.

When they were alone once more, Marjorie, as radiant as April after a storm, turned her sunshiny smile on Mallory:

"Isn't it glorious to have our little Snoozleums alive and well?"

But Mallory was feeling like a March day. He answered with a steely chill: "You care more for the dog than you do for me."

"Why shouldn't I?" Marjorie answered with wide eyes, "Snoozleums never would have brought me on a wild goose elopement like this. Heaven knows he didn't want to come."

Mallory repeated the indictment: "You love a dog better than you love your husband."

"My what?" Marjorie laughed, then she spoke with lofty condescension: "Harry Mallory, if you're going to be jealous of that dog, I'll never marry you the longest day I live."

"So you'll let a dog come between us?" he demanded.

"I wouldn't give up Snoozleums for a hundred husbands," she retorted.

"I'm glad to know it in time," Mallory said. "You'd better give me back that wedding ring."

Marjorie's heart stopped at this, but her pride was in arms. She drew herself up, slid the ring from her finger, and held it out as if she scorned it: "With pleasure. Good afternoon, Mr. Mallory."

Mallory took it as if it were the merest trifle, bowed and murmured: "Good afternoon, Miss Newton."

He stalked out and she turned her back on him. A casual witness would have said that they were too indifferent to each other even to feel anger. As a matter of romantic fact, each was on fire with love, and aching madly with regret. Each longed for strength to whirl round with outflung arms of reconciliation, and neither could be so brave. And so they parted, each harking back sorely for one word of recall from the other. But neither spoke, and Marjorie sat staring at nothing through raining eyes, while Mallory strode into the Men's Room as melancholy as Hamlet with Yorick's skull in his hands.

It was their first great quarrel, and they were convinced that the world might as well come to an end.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The Woman-Hater's Relapse.

The observation room was as lonely as a deserted battlefield and Marjorie as dejected as a wounded soldier left behind, and perishing of thirst, when the conductor came back with Snoozleums in his arms.

He regarded with contemptuous awe the petty cause of so great an event as the stopping of the Trans-American. He expected to see Marjorie receive the returned prodigal with wild rapture, but she didn't even smile when he said:

"Here's your powder-puff."

She just took Snoozleums on her lap, and looking up with wet eyes and a sad smile, murmured:

"Thank you very much. You're the honest conductor I ever met. If you ever want another powder-puff, I'll see that my father gets you one."

"It was like offering the latter a new job, but the conductor swallowed the insult and sought to repay it with irony.

"Thanks. And if you ever want to run this road for a couple of weeks, just let me know."

Marjorie nodded appreciatively and said: "I will. You're very kind."

And that completed the rout of that conductor. He retired in disorder, leaving Marjorie to fondle Snoozleums with a neglectful indifference that would have greatly flattered Mallory, if he could have seen through the partition that divided them.

But he was witnessing with the cynical superiority of an aged and disillusioned man the, to him, childish behavior of Ira Lathrop, an eleventh-hour Orlando.

For just as Mallory moped into the smoking-room at one door, Ira Lathrop swept in at the other, his face rubicund with embarrassment and ecstasy. He had donned an old frock coat with creases like ruts from long exile in his trunk. But he was feeling like an heir apparent; and he started everybody by his jovial hail:

"Well, boys—gentlemen—the drinks are on me. Walter, take the orders."

Little Jimmie woke with a start, rose hastily to his feet and saluted, saying: "Present! Who said take the orders?"

"I did," said Lathrop. "I'm giving a party. Walter, take the orders."

"Sarsaparilla," said Dr. Temple, but they howled him down and ordered other things. The porter shook his head sadly: "Nothin' but sof' drinks in Utah, gemmen."

A groan went up from the club-members, and Lathrop groaned loudly of all:

"Well, we've got to drink something. Take the orders. We'll all have sarsaparilla."

Little Jimmie Wellington came to the rescue.

"Don't do anything desperate, gentlemen," he said, with a look of divine philanthropy. "The bar's closed, but Little Jimmie Wellington is here with the life preserver." From his hip-pocket he produced a silver flask that looked to be big enough to carry a regiment through the Alps. It was greeted with a salvo, and Lathrop said to Jimmie: "I apologize for everything I have said—and thought—about you." He turned to the porter: "There ain't any law against giving this way, is there?"

The porter grinned: "Not if you-all bribe the exercise-inspector." And he held out a glass for the bribe, murmuring, "Don't get tired," as it was poured. He set it inside his sanctum and then bustled round with ice-filled glasses and a siphon.

When Little Jimmie offered of the flask to Dr. Temple, the clergyman put out his hand with a politely horrified: "No, thank you."

Lathrop frightened him with a sudden comment: "Look at that gesture! Doc, I'd almost swear you were a parson."

Mallory whirled on him with the eyes of a hawk about to pounce, and "The very idea!" was the best disclaimer Dr. Temple could manage, suddenly finding himself suspected. Ashton put in with: "The only way to disprove it, Doc, is to join us."

The poor old clergyman, too deeply involved in his deception to brave confession now, decided to do and dare all. He stammered, "Er—ah—certainly," and held out his hand for his share of the poison. Little Jimmie winked at the others and almost filled the glass. The innocent doctor bowed his thanks. When the porter reached him and prepared to fill the remainder of the glass from the siphon, the parson waved him aside with a misguided caution:

"No, thanks. I'll not mix them."

Mallory turned away with a sigh: "He takes his straight. He's no parson."

Then they forgot the doctor in curiosity as to Lathrop's sudden spasm of generosity—with Wellington's liquor. Wedgewood voiced the general curiosity when he said:

"What's the old woman-hater up to now?"

"Woman-hater?" laughed Ira. "It's the old story. I'm going to follow Mallory's example—marriage."

"I hope you succeed," said Mallory.

"Wherever did you pick up the bride?" said Wedgewood, mellowing with the long glass in his hand.

"Brides are easy," said Mallory, with surprising cynicism. "Where do you get the parson?"

"Hang the parson," Wedgewood repeated, "Who's the girl?"

"I'll bet I know who she is," Ashton interposed: "It's that sectarine of a gambler who got on at Green River."

"Not the same!" Lathrop roared.

"I found my bride blooming here all the while. Girl I used to spark back in Brattleboro, Vt. I've been vowing for years that I'd live and die an old maid. I've kept my head out of the noose all this time—till I struck this train and met up with Anne. We got to talking over old times—waking up old sentiments. She got on my nerves. I got on hers. Finally I said, 'Aw, hell, let's get married. Save price of one starometer to China anyway.' She says, 'Dammed if I don't!'—or words to that effect."

Mallory broke in with feverish interest: "But you said you were going to get married on this train."

"Nothing water. Here's how!" and he raised his glass, but Mallory banished it down to demand: "How? that's what I want to know. How are you going to get married on this parsonless express. Have you got a little minister in your suitcase?"

Ira beamed with added pride as he explained:

"Well, you see, when I used to court Anne I had a rival—Charlie Selby by his name was. I thought he cut me out, but he became a clergyman in Utah—Oh, Charlie! I telegraphed him that I was passing through Ogden, and would he come down to the train and marry me to a charming lady. He always wanted to marry Anne. I thought it would be a durned good joke to let him marry her—to me."

"D-did he accept?" Mallory asked, excitedly, "Is he coming?"

"He is—he did—here's his telegram," said Ira. "He brings the license and the ring." He passed it over, and as Mallory read it a look of hope spread across his face. But Ira was saying: "We're going to have the wedding obsequies right here in this car. You're all invited. Will you come?"

There was a general yell of acceptance and Ashton began to sing, "There Was I Waiting at the Church." Then he led a sort of Indian waltz round the next victim of the matrimonial stake. At the end of the hullabaloo all the men charged their glasses, and drained them with an uproarious "How!"

Poor Dr. Temple had taken luxurious delight in the success of his disguise and in the prospect of watching some other clergyman working while he rested. He joined the dance as gaily, if not as gracefully, as any of the rest, and in a final triumph of recklessness, he tossed off a bumper of straight whisky.

Instantly his "How!" changed to "Wow!" and then his throat clamped fast with a terrific spasm that hung the tears from his eyes. He bent and writhed in a silent paroxysm till he was pounded and shaken back to life and water poured down his throat to reopen a passage.

The others thought he had merely choked and made no comment other than sympathy. They could not have dreamed that the old "physician" was as ignorant of the taste as of the vigor of pure spirits.

After a riot of handshaking and good wishes, Ira was permitted to escape with his life. Mallory followed him to the vestibule, when he caught him by the sleeve with an anxious:

"Excuse me."

"Well, my boy—"

"Your minister—after you get through with him—may I use him?"

"May you—what? Why do you want a minister?"

"To get married."

"Again? Good Lord, are you a Mormon?"

"Me a Mormon!"

"Then what do you want with an extra wife? It's against the law—even in Utah."

"You don't understand."

"My boy, one of us is disgracefully drunk."

"Well, I'm not," said Mallory, and then after a fierce inner debate, he decided to take Lathrop into his confidence. The words came hard after so long a duplicity, but at last they were out:

"Mr. Lathrop, I'm not really married to my wife."

"You young scoundrel!"

But his fury changed to pity when he heard the history of Mallory's ill-fated efforts, and he promised not only to lend Mallory his minister at second-hand, but also to keep the whole affair a secret, for Mallory explained his intention of having his own ceremony in the baggage-car, or somewhere out of sight of the other passengers.

Mallory's face was now aglow as the cold embers of hope leaped into sudden blaze. He wrung Lathrop's hand, saying: "Lord love you, you've saved my life—wife—both."

Then he turned and ran to Marjorie with the good news. He had quite forgotten their epoch-making separation. And she was so glad to see him smiling at her again that she forgot it, too. He came tearing into the observation room and took her by the shoulders, whispering: "Oh, Marjorie, Marjorie, I've got him! I've got him!"

"No, I've got him," she said, swinging Snoozleums into view.

Mallory swung him back out of the way: "I don't mean a poodle, I mean a parson. I've got a parson."

"No! I can't believe it! Where is he?" She began to dance with delight, but she stopped when he explained:

"Well, I haven't got him yet, but I'm going to get one."

"What—again?" she groaned, weary of this old bunco game of hope.

"It's a real live one this time," Mallory insisted. "Mr. Lathrop has ordered a minister and he's going to lend him to me as soon as he's through with him, and we'll be married on this train."

Achievements in Art.

Brian G. Hughes, whose practical jokes so often delight, said at a recent dinner:

"I don't mind practical jokes on human beings, but when it comes to animals I draw the line."

"Two artists were once bragging to each other."

"I painted up a lump of pig iron to look like cork," said the first artist, "and, by jove! when I threw it into the East river it floated."

"Now," said Mr. Hughes, "there was no harm in that. But listen to the second artist. He said, with a cruel, unfeeling laugh:

"I painted a lump of pig iron once to look like a roset of beef, and my dog ate three quarters of it before he discovered his mistake."—Los Angeles Times.

Good Roads Hint.

"Of course we are opposed to machine methods in elections." "Well," replied Farmer Cornobee, "I most admire that I'd like to see the steam roller took out o' politics as 'get back where it belongs in the road-making business."

THREE DISTINCT AGRICULTURAL REGIONS IN U. S. SEGREGATED BY SPECIES GROWN

American Native Grape Is Grown Almost Entirely in That Section of Country Lying East of Rocky Mountains—Few Cultural Methods Illustrated.

(By GEORGE C. HUSSMANN, Pomologist, United States Department of Agriculture.)

There are three distinct viticultural regions in the United States which segregate themselves by the grape species grown in them.

The Vinifera region, in which Vinifera varieties are almost exclusively grown, is located almost entirely west of the Rocky mountains, so much of it being in California that those not conversant with grape varieties erroneously call them California grapes. With few exceptions either the spur-stool or short pruning system is used for the stockier growing varieties, and the long or cane pruning system is usually used for the longer growing varieties, but either system is often modified to suit individual varieties. Thus the spurs are sometimes left longer in the spur system, and either spurs and canes left longer or spurs cut on the laterals in the cane system. Stake only are used to give the vines the necessary support; this method allows the vineyard to be cultivated crosswise as well as lengthwise. Vines trained on trellises are comparatively rare in California.

The more generally known Vinifera varieties grown in this district are the Alexandria, Alicante Bouschet, Aramon, Burger, Cabernet, Sauvignon, Calmette, Carignane, Chasselas de Fontainebleau, Cornichon, Emperor, Flame Tokay, Green Hungarian, Grenache, Malaga, Mission, Mondeuse, Mourelet, Pizutella, Petit Syrah, Purple Damascus, Riesling, Semillon, Sauvignon Vert, Sultanina, Sylvaner, Valdepenas and Zinfandel.

The Muscadine region of the South Atlantic and Gulf states includes the entire southeastern coastal plain extending from the Potomac to Florida, reaching well up into the Blue Ridge mountains and along the Gulf coast to the Rio Grande river, spreading to the north along the Mississippi river into the great central plains to south-east Missouri and the Tennessee river. In this region improved varieties of the Rotundifolia and Munsonia species are grown for various purposes, the better-known varieties of these being the Eden, Flowers, James, Mish, Scuppernon and Thomas. The multiple cross-wire system or overhead arbor is almost exclusively used. As previously mentioned, these arbors are very similar to the overhead trellis or parrallos system used in Spain with the Almerian varieties, commonly seen in our markets packed in cork dust and called "Malaga" grapes.

The third or American native-grape region is the one in which improved

A Vine in Its Fourth Year Pruned According to the Block System.

Janeyville, Jefferson, Lady, Lausell, Lenoir, Lindley, Lurie, Martha, Massenoit, Merrimac, Missouri Riesling, Moore, Muench, Nectar, Niagara, Noah, Norton, Olita, Perkins, Perry, Pocklington, Prentiss, Rommel, Salem, Triumph, Ulster, Vergennes, Victor, Washington, Wilder, Winchell, Wetumka, Woodruff, Worden and Wyoming.

There are so many species of grapes, each having peculiarities of its own and therefore responding most readily to certain cultural methods to which it is best adapted, that the pruning, training and growing of vines, which otherwise may appear quite simple, become complicated operations in which comparatively few people become expert, and vineyards in which serious mistakes are not made are rare.

In the fan system the vine growth, which is trained to an upright trellis, is annually renewed to within a short distance from the ground. The vines are cut back usually to four canes and as many spurs each year; the canes are spread out and tied to the trellis, giving the vine the shape of a fan. The illustration, A and C, shows an unpruned vine in the third and fourth years. B shows the same vine pruned the fourth year for this system.

The advantages claimed by the advocates of this system are (1) that most of the old wood is dispensed with each year, (2) that the vines can be easily laid down and covered in winter when needful in the extreme varieties of the more northern native grape species and hybrids of them and the Vinifera species are grown. This region comprises all that part of the United States which lies east of the Rocky mountains. Of late years a few plantings have also been made in parts of Oregon and Washington, but the industry is most extensive in the states west of the Hudson river and north of the Ohio river that border on the Great Lakes and in the more centrally located states of the Mississippi valley. In this district the high-renewal, horizontal-arm spur, horizontal block, fan, Hudson horizontal, four-cane Kniffin, umbrella or two-cane Kniffin, Munson, overhead Caywood and Chittenden systems are used, the localities in which they originated or are most common being northern sections, and (3) that if after pruning the canes are tied and spread fan shaped on the trellis, as they should be, the young upright-growing shoots fasten themselves by their tendrils and need practically no tying. This system has the disadvantage of bearing the fruit too low and is not now so generally in use as formerly.

A system combining some of the points of several other systems is the horizontal block system. In this the vines are manipulated as with the other systems and pruned for the first four years, after which the unpruned vine is pruned as shown in the illustration. As practiced in some localities this system appears to be a combination of the high-renewal and the horizontal-arm spur systems.

ABSORBS SHOCKS FROM HARD ROADS

When a team is pulling a heavy load over a rough road or pavement it is subject to repeated and sudden shocks, which cause much unnecessary fatigue. The illustration shows how to make a doubletree that will absorb all shocks and sudden jerks and prevent sore shoulders.

The spring may be one taken from an old buggy. All teamsters that care for their horses and want them to stand up to heavy work without constantly having sore shoulders should make and use a doubletree like the one which is shown in the accompanying illustration.

The County Fair.

The county fair is of greatest practical benefit to the exhibitor. When the farmer or stockman enlists as an exhibitor at the county fair, the need of improvement has been shown and the results will be found each year thereafter on the farm, in improved live stock, improved machinery and a general spirit of advancement in all lines of agriculture. The county fair well managed is the cheapest advertising medium with the most far-reaching results. That the county can secure

Introducing New Blood.

When one finds that it becomes necessary to introduce new blood in the flock first consider what are the special faults among your fowls, and, if possible, find the breeds strong in the points that you are weak in, and purchase the stock from him.

The peasut is coming to its own as a hog feed. It has been given a good trial and it has stood the test well.

MICHIGAN HAPPENINGS

Lansing.—William Hipolite, fifty-six years old, was buried alive beneath several feet of dirt at the gravel pit where he was employed, east of the city. The accident happened shortly after Hipolite had eaten dinner with his wife and daughter. He and two fellow workmen were shoveling gravel into a wagon when the embankment above them crumbled and buried them. The other man, Louis Fox, succeeded in keeping his head above the surface. Other workmen soon uncovered Hipolite, but he was dead. The accident happened near his home and his wife and daughter assisted in caring for the body. A son also survives. Hipolite would likely have escaped, but an artificial limb prevented his dodging. He had drawn gravel from the same pit for a year. Fox will recover.

Galesburg.—Albert Devall, a prominent resident of this village, was nearly burned to death when his bed caught fire while he lay smoking, and reading a paper. Ashes falling from his cigar ignited the bed clothing and before he could put out the flames the entire bed was ablaze. Hurriedly dressing he ran to the street and called aid. The ringing of the fire bell brought out nearly the entire village. A meeting of the Eastern Star lodge was brought to an end and all the women ran to the fire. By the time of their arrival the flames had been put out.

Bay City.—Frank Schlenhart, thirty-five years old, was stabbed four times in a quarrel with Michael Galsin at the former's home on the West side. One of the wounds is just below the heart. According to Schlenhart's story, Galsin and two others came to his home and were invited to supper. They went out afterwards and had several drinks. After a card game had been in progress some time a quarrel arose and Schlenhart ordered his guests to leave. Outside they called Schlenhart vile names and invited him to come out and fight. He accepted and in the melee Galsin drew a knife.

Petoskey.—Caught in a severe hailstorm which sprang up here, J. W. Webb, sixty-nine years old, who had returned from a laborious journey from the end of the breakwater, where he had been fishing, dropped dead as he stood in the shelter of a small bath-house. He was a retired real estate man of Chicago, and this was his twenty-seventh summer spent in Petoskey, where he has a cottage. His wife was waiting supper for him when the announcement of his death was brought to her.

Kalamazoo.—Pending further investigation into the shooting of Peter Wagonmaker, officers placed Wagonmaker in custody when physicians stated that his removal from the hospital to the jail would not endanger his chances for recovery. Frank Cooper, the strikebreaker, who is alleged to have fired the shot which resulted in the injury to Wagonmaker, declares that the shooting was justified because of the assault that was being made upon him.

Battle Creek.—After the police had looked for him all over the country since August 21, Floyd Etson coolly walked into Justice Allen's court room and announced that he was ready to answer to a charge of grand larceny that had been placed against him. Etson, it is said, was with William Hoffman when the latter made off with a large number of chickens.

Grand Rapids.—George L. Whiting of Big Rapids, arrested in Philadelphia and returned here for burglary, pleaded guilty in the superior court. He admitted a jewel theft from a residence. A letter from his wife in Big Rapids caused the judge to place him on probation that he might start life anew.

Allegan.—The survivors of the Fourth Michigan cavalry, the regiment which was commanded by the late Gen. G. B. D. Pritchard of this city, and which captured Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the going out of the regiment, at the home of Harry Pritchard, son of the general, about forty participating.

Saginaw.—Within another week farmers throughout the sugar belt of Michigan will commence their harvest. From then until after Thanksgiving they will be fully occupied with the crop, which this year is a life-saver, as many of the crops were ruined owing to weather conditions.

Ionia.—James Clark, Floyd Trowbridge and E. Pulstipher are under surveillance at the Ionia jail, where they are serving time. An attempt was frustrated to break jail and the matter is being investigated.

Kalamazoo.—All the people injured when the boxes in the grand stand at Recreation park collapsed, will probably live, according to physicians. While some are in a dangerous condition and suffering intense pain, it is not believed that injuries will result in death. According to statements of the police the people in the section of the stand that fell were warned nearly ten minutes before the accident took place. They refused to leave the stand even after being told that the boxes were Mrs. J. D. McLaren visited friends at Wixom and Novi last week.

J. Alfred Johnson of Detroit, aged about 49, was drowned last Saturday night in Orchard Lake.

The Farmington school is over-crowded, there being over 60 pupils in the high school room, and the board are finding difficulty to provide seating capacity.

Harry S. German, the well known Carleton banker is a candidate for county treasurer of Monroe county. Harry has many friends in Plymouth who would like to see him elected.

The cement work on the Grand River road has passed Five Points. Lack of material has caused considerable delay. It is expected that the road will be completed to the county line this fall.

A large number of Plymouth people attended the Milford Fair last week and were well entertained with auto and horse races and some lively ball games, in which several big league stars figured prominently. The crowds were large every day, although the weather was somewhat of a handicap.

Wyandotte has just completed arrangements whereby that town will secure a handsome Carnegie library building. Why would't it be a good idea for Plymouth to go after an appropriation from Mr. Carnegie for a library building. It is a fine thing for any town to have.

W. C. T. U.

The meeting last week held at Mrs. Wiley's was well attended and the leaders carried out the program all right. Next week Thursday, Oct. 10, we will begin holding our meetings in the hall again. The leaders for this meeting are Misses Cors and Nettie Pelham. The subject will be Co-operative Housekeeping. We shall hear all about work can be made easy, paper bag cooking and the fireless cooker. There is no doubt but that it will be made very interesting and instructive. Let us give them a good hearing.

CHURCH NEWS

CHRISTIAN SCIENTIST.

First Church of Christ, Scientist, holds services at church edifice, corner Main and Dodge streets, Sunday morning at 10:10. Subject, "Unreality." Sunday-school at 11 a.m. Wednesday evening testimonial service 7:10. Every one is welcome.

METHODIST

Rev. R. J. Dutton, Pastor. The pastor will preach at 10 o'clock Sunday-school at 11:15. Library day and all are requested to bring books. Epworth League at 6 o'clock and the pastor preaches again at 7 o'clock. A cordial welcome to all these services.

BAPTIST

Rev. W. W. DeAntela, Pastor. Regular services will be held at our church next Sunday morning and evening, 10:00 and 7:00. Sunday-school at 11:15.

The pastor and several members of the church are in attendance upon the Wayne Baptist Association at Novi this week.

There will be no service in the Union church at Livonia Center next Sunday. Sunday-school as usual, but no preaching service.

LUTHERAN.

Rev. O. Peters, Pastor. There will no services in the church next Sunday. Neither will there be Sunday-school.

A way will be provided for any one wishing to go to the services at Livonia Center next Sunday if they will be at Carl Heide's greenhouse at 8:30 a. m. standard. A rig will also leave Newburg waiting-room about the same hour. Any one wishing to go must be at one of these places at the above time.

ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL MISSION.

There will be service as usual next Sunday, Oct. 6th, at 2:15. All are invited to attend.

The Ladies' Church Guild has held this week at the home of Mrs. George Wilcox.

On Sunday, October 13th, there will be special services in the church, morning and afternoon. In the morning, Bishop Williams will preach the sermon and in the afternoon there will be a special Harvest Thanksgiving service instead of the usual church service, when a service of song will be rendered entitled "Gleanings from the Harvest Field." This is something new for Plymouth and we extend a special invitation to all to attend these services. We especially invite the members of the other churches of Plymouth to be present at the morning service to welcome Bishop Williams and several Detroit visitors. The members of the different churches in Detroit have expressed great satisfaction in the way the mission church at Plymouth and the mission has been pronounced as one of the most progressive in the state of Michigan, considering it is not yet a year old.

PRESBYTERIAN

Rev. B. F. Farber, Pastor. Next Sunday and Monday, October 6 and 7, we are to have a Church Home Coming. It is desired that every one ever connected with this congregation make an earnest effort to be present. Come and renew old acquaintances.

Morning worship at 10 o'clock. There will be special music. The pastor will preach. Theme: "The Echoes of Life." At this service we hope to see every member in his or her seat.

At 11:30 o'clock the Sunday-school will hold its annual Rally Day service. A special program has been prepared and we wish to see all the old scholars and many new ones.

Presbyterian Guild at 6 o'clock. Subject, "The Christian Virtues: X, Humility." Leader, Mr. F. M. Sheffield.

Evening service at 7 o'clock. This service is to be varied in its program. Special music, consisting of choruses, quartets, duets and solos will be rendered. Letters will be read from old pastors of the church. A history of the church will be given and other features will be carried out to make the services interesting and enjoyable.

On Monday night at 7 o'clock in the parlors of the church there will be a banquet. Some of the best speakers in Detroit will be on the program to respond to toasts. A reading and special music will add to its enjoyment. This banquet is not exclusive and we invite any one to come to it and help to make the occasion an enjoyable one. Tickets for the banquet will sell at 35 cents a plate. Our regular prayer meeting on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. A most cordial invitation is extended to all to come and enjoy this occasion in our church.

Left and Mrs. John Patterson and Mr. Mrs. Frank Riggs were Detroit visitors Wednesday, and attended the theatre afternoon and evening.

MANAGEMENT OF SANDY SOILS

By J. A. JEFFERY, Professor of Soils Michigan Agricultural College.

After sandy land, such as is found in western and northern Michigan, has been brought under cultivation, great care must still be exercised in its management. The cropping value of these soils will depend more than anything else upon the incorporation and retention of organic matter. To this end: a careful rotation of crops should be adopted. It should be simple and short, something like this:

(1) Clover, one or two years, plowing under as much of the aftergrowth as is possible when preparing for the succeeding crop; (2) a cultivated crop—potatoes, corn or possibly beans, and (3) grain of some kind, seeding again to clover with grain.

This is not the only rotation that could be followed, but the important thing is to introduce clover into the rotation as frequently as possible. No grain or cultivated crop should be planted twice in succession.

The plowing should be shallow, probably never to exceed five inches, and this with a view to keeping the organic matter as near the surface as possible, where it will accomplish the most good, particularly in protecting the soils from the ravages of the winds. It is good practice not to use the plow too frequently. Many farmers use the plow only in breaking the clover sod. The disc harrow is used at all other times in preparing soil for crops.

When cultivated crops occupy the land, the cultivation should be frequent and shallow. Only those who have practiced persistent shallow cultivation can appreciate the importance of thus stirring the soil in preserving the moisture and insuring profitable crops.

Use "catch" crops where possible. If a regular crop has been removed fairly early in the fall and the succeeding crop is not to be planted the following spring, it is always worth while to seed the land to oats or rye or vetch. Frequently it will be found desirable and profitable just before the last cultivation of the corn to seed the corn field to winter vetch seed at the rate of 30 pounds per acre. The field may be seeded to oats or rye instead. The benefits to be derived from the catch crop are at least three:

1. In the fall and early spring soil is protected from the winds.
2. During the winter these crops catch and retain the snow upon the ground, from which fact the soil benefits not only from the blanket of snow during the winter, but also, from the melting of the snow in place in the spring.
3. The dising in of the crop in the spring adds to the soil organic matter, and in the case of vetch, nitrogen as well.

Green Manuring.

Green manuring is the practice of growing a crop to plow under before it matures. This is done to increase the amount of organic matter in the soil. Different crops are used for this purpose.

Rye is perhaps the most commonly used, and probably chiefly because it can be planted in the fall and makes a considerable growth before the growing season closes. It takes up the growing again early in spring and continues until the farmer is ready to plow it under. It is sown at the rate of one and one-half bushels to two bushels per acre.

Of the spring grown crops oats or rye are frequently used, and are sown at the regular rates of seeding.

Sometimes Indian corn is sown at the rate of one bushel to one and one-half bushels per acre for this purpose. It may be sown in drills or broadcast.

Oats and peas are sometimes used, sown at the rate of one bushel of oats to two bushels of peas to the acre.

Band vetch is also used, the seeding being at the rate of 30 to 50 pounds per acre. The seeding in all cases is done as early as conditions of soil and air are suitable for the planting of the crop.

The sand, hairy or winter vetch seems to be rapidly growing in favor, both as a catch crop plant and as a green manuring plant. Its value rests upon three things, viz:

1. Because of the size of the seed it may be planted as deep as two inches, thus increasing its chances for moisture supply, and thus insuring germination. The clovers and alfalfa frequently suffer because they may not be planted deep enough to insure moisture and anchorage to preserve the plant from blowing away.
2. The plant makes a very rapid and vigorous growth, producing a large amount of material to plow under or disc in.
3. It is much more valuable than the grains for this purpose because of the amount of nitrogen which it gathers during its growth and leaves for the use of future crops.

On the Miami sandy soils of southern Michigan the cow pea is being much used as a green manuring crop. Peas are sown at the rate of 3 pecks per acre, about the first week in June, and the crop is plowed under from the first to the middle of September. When wheat is sown after cow peas thus plowed under, the yields of wheat are greatly increased; and when clover is seeded with the wheat the following spring, it seldom fails to make an excellent catch.

WEED CONTROL IN AUTUMN

By R. J. BALDWIN, Michigan Agricultural College.

After the crop is removed, from new seedings and stubble lands, the weeds which have been kept in check by the growing crop are apt to spring up and make a sufficient growth to produce a crop of seed and crowd the thin seedlings of grass and clover. The number and variety of such weeds will depend upon the locality and the care exercised in the operation of the farm. Ragweed, pigweed, foxtails and Canada thistles are among the most common kinds found. Such weeds can be prevented from seeding to a great extent, by clipping with the cutter bar of the mower tilted high so as to leave the new seedlings. It is objectionable to attempt to control weeds or new seedlings with sheep for the reason that sheep are almost sure to eat the tender seedlings and leave the coarser weeds.

The practice of clipping with a mower has been used by the Michigan Agricultural college farm, where a constant warfare must be kept up against weeds which are continually being introduced in the purchase of hay, straw and grain for feeding.

Perhaps the most persistent fall weed and the one that is most conspicuous during August and September along roadsides, ditches and grain fields, is the ragweed (shown in illustration). Its ragged, rank growth and long lived seeds makes it an especially bad weed. Its tall green tassel which contains such an abundance of yellow pollen is said to be the cause of hay fever. Careful farming with clean cultivation crops, such as beans and corn, is the most effective system of holding this weed in check.

Care of Stallions.

A stallion shut up in a dark stall without the companionship of other horses often becomes moody and savage. Some English stallioners ride a pony while leading their horses for exercise, and the horses become so attached to these ponies that they become fretful and uneasy when they are not near.

At night the ponies are given a stall next to the horses. Of course, some horses are too savage in nature to permit their being led in company with a pony, but if broken to this treatment when young, stallions can be handled in this way.

Fall Sown Clover.

Even last year there was good success with fall-sown clover and the season was none too favorable. There are a great many enemies to spring-sown clover, weeds, grasses and too thick stands of grain, which fall seedling escapes.

When a spring seeding has been scorching out after removal of the grain crop, the land should at once be disked and reseeded the clover on a fine seed bed with a firm subsoil. Even if it is very dry the chances are there will come enough fall rain for the clover.

It is a usual practice in the spring to have what is called a "cleaning-up day." There are some things, however, which ought to be cleaned up in the fall, such as weeds which have been missed and are waiting to scatter their seeds far and wide on the snow in winter, and limbs in the orchards which will invite rabbits to live there and nibble the fresh bark of young trees.

The amount of money invested in farm machinery on the average Michigan farm is nearly as great as the money invested in a barn. The barn is always insured against fire, but the machinery is never insured against rust unless a good shed has been made for it. Some machines ought never to be rained on and if the shed is handy, they can be run in instead of being left in the field at night.

Some protection should be placed around young trees in the fall to prevent girdling by mice and rabbits during winter. Wire screen, tar paper, etc., are used for this purpose and often save whole orchards even where these pests were not thought to be numerous.

EXHAUSTION OF THE SOIL.

Prof. E. H. Farrington of Wisconsin Agricultural College, in speaking of Soil Exhaustion, made a very interesting statement regarding the selling of dairy products from the farm, as compared with selling the grain productions directly off the farm. Here is what he says:

"There is a great difference in the amount of soil fertility removed from the farm by selling crops as compared with the selling of cream and butter. The constituents of the soil that become most easily exhausted by farming operations are the nitrogen, the phosphoric acid and the potash. These each have a market value per pound and can be bought in commercial fertilizers. They are also contained in farm manure.

"An analysis of different crops and of milk, butter and cheese will show how much of these various constituents are removed from the farm when a certain quantity of these products are sold. For instance, by using the same prices per pound for the following crops, etc., we find that the fertilizing constituents taken from the soil when one ton of hay is sold from the farm have a value of $4.34, one ton of corn $5.36, one ton of wheat $6.53, one ton of milk $2.17, one ton of skim-milk $2.31, one ton of butter 49 cents, one ton of whey 84 cents, and one ton of cheese $14.19. The value of each ton of these different products is well known. For instance, the ton of hay may be sold for $20.00, while the ton of butter is worth $600.00 and a ton of cheese $200.00. These figures show, however, that if the crops raised on the farm are fed to the cows and either cream or butter only is sold, then for every $600.00 worth of butter only 50 cents worth of fertility is drawn from the farm."

In encouraging the farmers to engage in dairying, Prof. Farrington says:

"Dairying keeps up the fertility of the soil as already explained.

"Skim-milk is very valuable to the farmer not only for the reasons given, but because it is profitable for a farmer to become a stock raiser—that is, raise calves, pigs, poultry, etc., rather than a crop producer and a seller of grain.

"Dairy products, butter and cheese, are not bulky to market, being much more concentrated and the cost of transportation less than it is for hay, grain, etc.

"Dairying utilizes waste land, such as stony pastures, timber and swamp land, which may be used for pasturing the cows if these are kept, but which otherwise would give no returns.

"Dairying gives profitable employment during the entire year and idleness is not good for either man or beast."

A visit to the National Dairy Show at Chicago, October 24th to November 2nd next, will give every one a short course in dairying that cannot be equalled anywhere in the world, and all such matters as here discussed by Prof. Farrington will be illustrated by the world's experts in every branch of the dairy industry. Opportunities to view the best representatives on American soil of the leading dairy cattle, and meet the men who are devoting their lives to the advancement of the dairy industry is here afforded.

Everything will be shown in a big, broad, educational way that all may be enabled to keep abreast of the most modern methods in appliances and the best results in breeding and feeding dairy cattle, and preparing for market and the marketing of all dairy products. Adv.

Nothing More to Live For.

Without question, the Scots curler of whom Lord Lyveden tells in Fry's Magazine placed the proper value on his sport.

During a recent curling-match in Switzerland, the skip of one of the teams, who happened to be a Scotsman, was so delighted with the accurate shot of one of his team, that he was heard to address him in the following manner: "Lie down and die, man; lie down and die. Ye'll never lay a finer stone nor that if ye were to be a hundred."

Point for Sherlock Holmes.

Somebody wondered how long a certain woman who had just left the room had been married.

"About 15 years," said the jeweler.

"How do you know?" asked the jeweler's wife. "You never saw her until tonight."

"I can tell by the size of her wedding ring," he replied. "The width of wedding rings changes about every five years. The kind she wears was in style 15 years ago."

Potteries Prospering.

The output of the pottery industry of the United States had a value of $34,518,580 in 1911, according to the United States geological survey chart of clay products production, by states, compiled by Jefferson Middletown. The pottery collection for 1911 was greater than for 1910, when the output was valued at $33,784,678, the increase being $733,882. Of the total production, Ohio was first, with an output valued at $14,775,265; New Jersey second, with $8,401,941; West Virginia third, with $2,880,202; New York fourth, with $2,178,364; Pennsylvania fifth, with $2,156,817, and Indiana sixth, with $1,004,737. The output of no other state had a value in excess of a million dollars.

Milk-crust all over tiny baby's face

Mother, if your little ones are suffering from tormenting, unsightly skin eruptions, how can you fail to profit by the experience of this mother, who writes: "I do not know what caused the milk-crust on my baby's face, all over it except the eye-balls. It started as a rash, of an itching nature; though only three weeks old it tried to scratch it. Then in about a week or ten days it had formed into crust that was very sore, whitish, and came off in scabs. For about five weeks I used different washes, but it did no good. From the first application of the Bestol Soap and Ointment, in a few hours, peacefully, we could see the change. I can truly say I cured the baby with Bestol Soap and Resinol Ointment. Anyone who will try them will sure get results that are lasting." (Signed) Mrs. Laveta R. Ruff, Cauthorville, Va., May 13, 1912.
