Presbyterian Church Home Coming

the Kind Ever Held Here.

Last Sunday and Monday were red etter days in the history of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, the ccasion being the Church Home Comng. Sunday morning was bright and autiful, and there was a large attendance, taxing the seating capacity of the church. A brief address by the pastor on "The Life that Sings," dealt with the idea that beautiful as may be the music that comes through the voice, there is no comparison to be made between that kind of music and the music made by "the life that sings." It was a most inspiring address and brought out some beautiful thoughts.

MONDAY EVENING On Monday evening at 7 o'clock the banquet took place in the parlors of the church. Those in charge expected to care for about 100 persons and 135 sat down to the banquet tables. The selling of tickets was stopped in the afternoon and many more could have been sold had there been room to care for with autumn flowers and presented a them. PROPER DUTIES OF CITIZEN in Outlined Many Centuries Ago, They Are Essentially the Same Today.

Two things, men of Athens, are haracteristic of a right-minded citi-ten (if so I may speak of myself and give the least offense): When he is an authority, his constant aim should be to preserve the dignity and pre-sminence of the commenwealth; and at all times and under all circumstances his spirit should be loval. This depends upon the heart within him; success and conquest upon other things. Such a spirit, you will find, I have steadily cherished. Observe: I have steadily cherished. Observe:
When my person was demanded—when they brought Amphictyonic suits against me—when they menaced—when they promised you great rewards to give me up—when they set these miscreants like wild beasts upon me—never did I for a moment waver in my loyalty to you. From first to last I chose an honest and stratch; last I chose an honest and straightlast I chose an honest and straightforward course in politics, to support the honor, the power, the glory of my fatherland, these to exalt, in these to have my being. I do not go about the town gay and light-hearted because the stranger has prospered, holding out my hand and congratulating any I think may report it yonder, and when I hear the news of our own success, shuddering and grouning and success, shuddering and groaning and bowing my head, like these unholy men/who sneer at Athens as if in so doing they did not sneer at themselves; who look abroad, and if a stranger thrives by the distresses of Greece, are thankful for it, and say we shot \keep him so thriving to all the time

O God, led not such wishes ever be fulfilled! If in thy wisdom it be pos-sible, give these men a better and nobler spirit! But if their hearts are bad, past all recovery, may they work out their ruin for themselves! De-stroy them from off the face of the earth! And for the rest of us, grant a swift release from all our fears, and the enjoyment of a lasting deliver-ance!—Demosthener, ("The Oration of the Crown.")

New Way to Manifold.

A manifolded letter has certain earmarks by which it may be readily desected by anyone who is in the habit sected by anyone who is in the habit of receiving mail in quantities. Such Etters get Scant attention as a rule, and there has been long a demand for some system of manifolding by which a letter will be turned out with all he characteristics of a specially written missive. This has been done in en missive. This has been done in typewriter said to have been inventtypewriter said to have been invent-able by a German. In addition to this function it is possible to make correc-tions in the letter without the neces-sity of rewriting it. After the first farft has been made it is possible to duplicate this indefinitely at a very rapid rate, each letter being writvery rapid rate, each letter being writ-ten separately and accurately follow-ing the lines of the first draft. As the impression is being made on the first sheet another sheet is being prepared, each character being representad by a combination of performations and this is a master sheet by which the subsequent sheets are prepared automatically. The same principal can be applied to typesetting machines.

Four United States marines were killed, seven others, including one officer, were wounded in an engagement with rebel forces in Nicaragua. The battle took place when the force of 900 marines and blue jackets under command of Rear Admiral Southerland stormed the rebel fortifications known as the Barranca, near Masaya, in pursuance of the admiral's instructions from Washington to keep open communication in Nicaragua. Gen. BREAKING OUT ON LEG

Hilltop, Kan.-"About two years ago." Hilitop, Kan.—"About two years ago." I began to notice a breaking out on my leg. At first it was very small but soon it began to spread until it formed large blotches. The itching was terrible and almost constant. Many nights I could not sleep at all. After scratching it to relieve the itching it would burn so dreadfully that I bhought I could not stand it. For nearthought'I could not stand it. For nearly a year I tried all kinds of salves and ointment, but found no relief. Some salves seemed to make it worse until there were ugly sores, which would break open and run.

WOMEN AS NATURAL ENEMIES

Writer Advances Some Good Reasons. Why This Unfortunate Condition Must Exist.

"The average woman now begins that study of society which will merge ultimately with the marriage cam-paign. She makes many discoveries which she admits frankly to herself. which she cames to many conclusions," says linez Haynes Gillmore in Harper's Bazar, which sink unnoticed into her subconscious mind. If marriage, for instance, is her natural career, then men are her natural prey.

But unfortunately there are never enough men in her world to go round; and of those from whom she may hope to choose some are much more desirable than others. Naturally she pre-fers the desirable ones—i. e., the 'eligibles.' But—and here she runs against her first obstacle-every other single woman in her circle has come to the some conclusion. From the instant she realizes this she must declare war on every other member of her sex.

"Men must often wonder at that miwhich, on a first meeting, every woman submits every other woman. Men must often marvel at the power of quick observation which women always develop in these circumstances. This is only the swift cumstances. This is only the swift interrogation with which a warrior surveys the arms of his opponent. Women are forever discovering new and complex weapons in the possession of rivals. And, perhaps, the-most terrifying element in the situa-tion is psychological—her sense of bafflement, in that she cannot judge of women for men any more than they can judge of men for ber. Every other woman becomes her enemy. To succeed in her world she must play a lone hand and a cut-throat game."

IT'S THE FOOD.
The True Way to Correct Nervous-Troubles.

Nervous troubles are more often Nervous trouples are caused by improper food and indigestion than most people imagine. Even doctors sometimes overlook this fact.

A man says: "Until two years ago wattles and butter with meat and gravy were the main features of my breakfast. Finally dyspepsia came on and I found myself in a bad condition, worse in the morning than any other time. I would have a full, sick seeling in my stomach, with pains in my heart, sides and head.

"At times I would have no appetite, for days, then I would feel ravenous, never satisfied when I did eat and so nervous I felt like shricking at the nervous I let the embedding at the top of my voice. I jost flesh badly and hardly knew which way to turn until one day I bought a box of Grape-Nuts food to see if I could est that. I tried it without telling the doctor, and likes it fine; made me feel as if I had some-thing to eat, that was satisfying and still I didn't have that heaviness that I had felt after eating any other food.

Jesiousy Comes Aboard.
There was an air of domestic peace in the observation room, where Malory and Marjoric had been left to themselves for some time. But the peace was like the ominous hush that recodes a tempest.

Mallory was so happy with everything coming his way, that he was even making up with Snoosieums, stroking the tatted cost with one hand and holding up his newspaper with

The newcomer was the first to speak. She fairly gushed: "Harry Mallory—of all people." "Kitty! Kathleen! Miss Lewellyn!"

"Just to think of meeting you again." "Just to think of it."

"And on this train of all places." "On this train of all places!"

"So long."
"It was at that last hop at West Point, remember?—why, it seems only yesterday, and how well you are look-

"Not very." He was mopping his brow in anguish, and yet the room seemed strangely cold.

"Of course you look much better in your uniform. You aren't wearing your uniform, are you?"

"No, this is not my uniform." "You haven't left the army, have you?"

"I don't know yet." "Don't know yet."
"Don't ever do that. You are just beautiful in brass buttoas."
"Thanks."

"Well, I've no doubt you have had a dozen affairs since."

"Oh, no! My heart has only known one real love." He threw this over her head at Marjorie, but Kathlean seized it, to his greater confusion:

"Oh, Harry, how sweet of you to say it. It makes me feel positively faint," and she swooned his way, but he shoved a chair forward and let her collapse into that: Thinking and hoping that she was unconscious, he made ready to escape, but she caught him by the coat, and secaned: "Where am I?" and he growled back:

"In the Observation Cart"

In the Observation Car! Kathleen's life and enthusiasm re-turned without delay: "Fancy meet-ing you again!" I could just scream."

"So could I."
"You must come up in our car and "Is Ma-mamma with you!" Mai

"Awfully kind of her."
"You must come and see her—she

"Oh, is she? Well, that's good."

Mallory was too angry to be sane, and too helpless to take advantage of his anger. He wondered how he could ever have cared for this molasses. ever have cared for this monasses and mucliage girl. He remembered now that she had always had these same cloying ways. She had always pawed him and, like everybody but the pawers, he hated pawing.

It would have been bad enough at any time to have Kathleen hanging on his coat, straightening his tie, on his coat, straightening his tie leaning close, smiling up in his eyes losing him his balance, recapturing him every time he edged away. But with Marjorie as the grim witness it was maddening.

He loathed and abominated Kathleen Liewellyn, and if she had only been a man, he could cheerfully have beaten her to a pulp and chucked he out of the window. But because she was a helpless little baggage he had to be as polite as he could while she sat and tore his plans to pieces, embittered Marjorie's heart against him and either ended all hopes of their or furnished an everlasting rancor to be recalled in every quar-rel to their dying day. OLD-FASHIONED IDEAS WILL NOT DO IN PACKING FRUIT FOR HIGHEST PRICE

By Careful Attention, Absolute Honesty and Judicious Advertising Farmer Can Create Demand for His Particular Variety of Garden Produce.

A New York business man who was forced to a New Jersey suburb on account of broken health, is making secount of broken health, is making a splendid living by repacking fruit and vegetables which he buys from farmers and truckers, repacking them and salling direct to the consumer. He drives on an average 20 miles, and the outdoor life has completely restored bits health.

Three-years ago this man menced business with a one-horse wagon. He repacked his fruit and wagon. He repaided has a small vegetables with the sid of a small son, drove his own wagon, and con-ducted the entire business practically

He now owns two double-team wagons, two single-horse wagons and a light auto truck, covering four routes, each from 12 to 15 miles long.

This man is simply doing what the farmers and fruit-growers from whom he buys his supplies ought to do themif they would make all profit there is to be made in the business. Growing the crop is not all the game. Marketing is a good

The fruit, particularly the larger varieties, such as apples, peaches and pears, are carefully sorted and graded the huckster, the apples washed the fruit is packed in small boxes or baskets, clean, uniform and highly attractive in appearance. Small fruits such as cherries and berries are often dumped out of their original pack-ages as they come from the farmers, sorted and repacked in clean boxes. Cherries are packed in boxes that hold from one-half peck to one peck, and over the top is tacked gauze to protect them from insects.

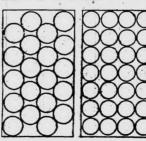

All root-vegetables are carefully washed, topped and bound in bunches. Tomatoes are graded and repacked in clean baskets, and no damaged vegetables are offered for sale.

This man can prove by his books that he makes a net profit of from 25 to 100 per cent. by his method of handling and marketing.

There is no reason why the men who grow fruit and vegetables should not make equally as big profit, provided they possess the faculty for provided they possess the faculty for organization and the patience and

While it is not always practicable for the farmer or gardener to sell direct to the consumer he can, by careful sorting and packing his product get a much better price when duct get a much better price when selling to the retail dealer than he can if he follows the old-fashioned methods of dumping everything into boxes, baskets and barrels, regardless of size and condition. ffered him, beating down the gro to the lowest possible point, and then add to his profits by the work of a few boys in the basement, who are instructed in the art of cleaning and repacking.

Any farmer or gardener or fruitgrower who is located within reason able distance of a good retail market will make more money by selling to the retail dealers than by shipping his stuff to the commission men in the large cities. By careful attention, absolute honesty and judicious adver-ising he can, in a very short time, establish a reputation for his produce which will become known to the con-sumer who will always demand this particular brand.

A recent visit to the great produce market on South Water street. Chicago, disclosed the fact that hundreds of shippers send their appleammen of it line fruit of good color and free from rot—to the commission men, dumped into barrels regardless of size or condition, mixed with dirt, leaves and twigs, all tending to lower the value of the fruit, a condition which the commission men are quick to take advantage of

All over the great market district in the basements are men and boys constantly engaged in dumping these apples off huge tables, where they are sorted according to size and color, and repacked in boxes or barrels. In the former, the layers are In the former the lavers are ranged in rows with the stem side up.
When packed in barrels the top layer is made up of selected fruit all of the same size and color; and the rows are uniform, so that when the cove is removed the appearance of the ba rel is pleasing.

A commission man on South Water street, Chicago, in a burst of confidence said: "Does it pay to repack fruit and vegetables?" Well, I should fruit and vegetables? Well, I should say it did. I pay expert fruit-packers three dollars per day and their work nets me in profit at least three times their wages, and often four and five times. The way shippers send their their wages, and times. The way shippers send their stuff to market is a fright, and we people who see it coming in here every day by the hundreds of carloads can understand why fruit growned a not make more money than ers do not make more money they do." Too many of them common business 'gump' about all there is to it."

about all there is to it."

In packing apples in barrels the first process is to place the barrel with top down with the bottom removed. The grower's label and a paper pad is first placed on the top and then the apples are laid in lay-ers with the stems down and so ar-ranged as to fit in snugly, leaving as little space between the apples possible.

The next layer is also placed in the same way, great care being taken to get fruit of the same color for both layers so that the second layer show through the first when the bar-rel is opened. The barrel is then filled with fruit and gently shaken until nearly filled, when the last few layers must be so laid that the bot-tom will bear evenly upon it all. The last layer should be about level with the top of the staves, or just a little higher

The bottom cushion should then be placed on the fruit and the head laid the purpose, the head and hoops then being nailed in place. A barrel, so packed, can be shipped long distances, and stored a considerable length of time without injury to the fruit. The more closely the fruit is packed the tighter the heads are pressed down-provided the pres sure is not great enough to cause bruising—the better will the fruit stand shipping and handling.

POTTED PLANTS IN THE WINTER SEASON

Plant Should Be Made as Nearly Natural as Possible-Air and Sunshine Needed.

It must be borne in mind that plant in a pot is trying to develop itself under unnatural conditions and it must be assisted in every possible way, and the conditions under which it labors should be made as nearly natural as possible. It must be sup-plied with fresh air in liberal quantities as frequently as the weather will sdmit. It must be given the benefit of all sunshine furnished by the short winter days, if it is a sunshine-loving plant, as most flowering plants are.

If it is not particularly fond of sunshine it will require good light in liberal amount. And in order to make development as thorough aspossible, and lay the foundation for future good work in the production of flowers, it must be suspilled with all the nutriment it can make use of, for no plant can do itself justice unless it is well fed. And water must also be given in proportion to the needs of the plant at this season. If it is not particularly fond of sun

Alfalfa.

Alfalfa is one of the best of all forage plants, both for the thad shall for stock food. It requires a certain species of bacteria on the roots to cause the plants to grow and this is not present in all soils, but must be applied in soil that couses from a field where alfalfa or sweet clove (melilotus) is growing well. The sam the clovers about the potential of these two plants. It is good for orchards if cut down and the hay siloged to rot on the ground. Affaifa or any of the clovers about be plewed under after standing two or three years. BEST FOOD AND BEVERAGES

Proper Selection Means Health and Beauty to the Woman Who is Sensible.

Since the main object of all eating is—or rather should be—the obtaining of nourishment that will build up the blood, the muscles, the tissues and the nerves, woman's mad devotion to and liquids that cannot possibly about her body nourishment is passing strange.

Perhaps the reason she is so indif-ferent to the nutritive value of her food is because the imagines that her appetite is given her that she may please her palate by swallowing fool-ish and indigestible things. If this is the state of affairs she will, of course, when she reads this article, taboo for the future that taste delicious, but do nothing else worth mentioning and will pin her faith to the foods that will steadily build up her system until her rosy lips, pink and white skin and delicately rounded form are the ad-miration of those near and dear to her.

Ripe fruits eaten in the morning, with crisp rolls, and followed up by a dish of oatmeal properly cooked, flooded with rich cream and covered with powdered sugar, is a breakfast fit for a queen.

Steamed rice, hominy or barley served for luncheon, with rich cream, are ideal. If this is not enough for a are ideal. If this is not enough for a ravenous appetite, follow it, up with a baked apple or a cup of baked custard. Soups, broths, fruits and saind also are desirable for luncheon, as are baked potatoes, new peas and delicately broiled lamb chops.

per, is excellent both for the stom-ach and the complexion. With this goes creamed potatoes, freshly picked vegetables, a lettuce salad and a fruit dessert. Last, but not least, the would-be beauty should patronize malted milk, as it will bring back lost energy and flood the cheeks with crimson.

Junket or Curds.

"Curds" is the genuine old name, and they call it "cruddes" in Scotland. It owes its name of junket to the old custom of making it in great masses, then lifting it out of the bowls and laying it on clean rushes for the whey to drain away from it. Juncus is the Latin name for rush—hence junket.

These solid curds were used to cook with. Here is a recipe for "Curd Take a pint of curds, four yolks and Corydon told Thyrsis "How Fairy Mab the junkets ate," and there is nothing nicer than a good junket, sweetened judiciously, flavored sparingly with cinnamon or nutmeg and ved with a generous allowance of Baked Cherry Dumplings.

One quart of prepared flour, two heaping tablespoonfuls of lard, two cups of fresh milk, a little salt, two cups of stoned cherries, one-half cupful of sugar; put the lard into the salted flour, wet up with the milk. roll in a sheet one-quarter of an inch thick and cut into squares about four inches across; put two large spoon-fuls of cherries in the center of each. sugar them, turn up the edges of the paste and pinch them together; lay the joined edges downward upon a floured baking pan and bake half an

MAN WHO CREATED IT IS BEGGAR ON THE STREETS OF WASHINGTON

ic old English gardener, John Brady: it was a legacy to Brady at Mr. Bancroft's death, in token of long and honorable service, and of the fact that Brady had brought it to perfection only after years of inexchangible patience and care; and it was sold for a pittance, but that is getting ahead of the story.

Once upon a time in 1839 to be pre-GEORGE BANCTROFT Once upon a time, in 1889, to be precise, after George Bancroft had re turned from long diplomatic service in Germany, and had settled down to a tranquilizing old age in his home in Washington, there grew up among the flower enthsiasts of England, America and the continent a zealous quest for a red rose which could be made to bloom in winter.

Mr. Bancroft's ascendency as a rose culturist in this country had been be-yond dispute for half a century.

At the time of the inauguration of Abraham Lincoln, Mrs. Lincoln de-spaired of pleasing herself in the ar-rangements of the White House garden, so she called on Mr. Bancroft for help. This she received in such good and flowing measure that, in acknowl-edgment of her debt, she sent to the historian a splendid bouquet of japonicas. In reply he wrote her that "for magnificence, the bouquet was a fair counterpart of Mr. Lincoln's brains.

What of official recognition then was what of ometas recognition these was still lacking for Mr. Bancroft's genius as a rose grower was supplied by Herr Bismarck, who so admired the American minister to Berlin that he with been and rose cuit. supplied him with roses and rose cut lings from the great Blamarck estates in Pomerania.

But all this while, despite the genial international co-operation of rose growers, diplomats and statesmen growers, diplomats and statesmen, the red rose refused to grow in winter. Its wintertime behavor was, in fact, exasperating beyond all words. If, after months of herculean effort, a branch could be made to put forth a bud some fine morning, it was a sickly warned by noon and brown by senset. purple by noon, and brown by sunset

Little yellow roses had thrived, time out of mind, and these, with camellias and japonicas, were the sole reliance of those who would have flowers for winter decoration.

Matters were in this state when Mr. ancroft moved to Washington, bringing into his charming old house on Lafayette square two trusted servants: an Brady, the gardener, from Eng-

John Brady was installed in the quaint Lahaped garden, which ran back to Seventeenth street, and he was instructed, among other things, to ions the glory of creating a tractable

The task was one which jumped with his own desires. The Bancroft garden was scarcely less a personal ride to Brady than to Bancroft, and sooth secretly believed that no praises it tould be really to extravagant. It became a rendesvous for Washington's most distinguished persons; how much so, one can guess from resident Arthur's distinguished persons that "The president is permitted to accept the invitations of members of his cabinet, Supreme court judges, and—Mr. George Bancroft."

Dozens of times John Brady seamed

on the eve of being able to announce the success of his red rose ventures. Once a friend from France brought Mr. Bancroft a cutting of a red rose called "Madame Ferdinand Jemain," which, although it had failed at home. was thought to have possibilities in an American climate. Brady nursed it along with a fair degree of conscien tiousness, none too pleased, likely enough, that France had been so premature in this honorable business. But the little alien rose bush sickened and died, and was thrown aside, presumably at the end of its history.

had had an astonishing luck with his plants, and had finally established their hardhood and their permanence of color. Bancroft and Brady mourned in secret. True, there was still the American champlonship to be tried for, but the first fine and the color of the secret. True there was still the American champlonship to be tried for, but the first fine and the color of the secret. Brady finally made at the color of the secret. Brady finally made at the color of the secret. Then came the shocking news from England that William Francis Ben-nett had won the red rose race. He had had an astonishing luck with his for, but the first fine careless rapture of success had been already captured. A rose culturist in New York had the good fortune about this time, to make a new flower, which he prompt-ly named the "George Bancroft." but this was not compensation enough. either for the historian or his garden-er. So back they went to the seedling beds, with renewed determination.

In the face of such a touching faith and such abounding energy, the fates were bound to be kind. And so, one morning, a delighted yell from his gardener brought Mr. Bancroft scurrying into his garden, to find that in a bed of white and yellow seedlings there stood a strange red rose, look-ing for all the world as if it had come to stay. Its stem had a stiffness the like of which had never before been seen. Its petals looked to have the hardihood to weather a hundred disasters. Where it had come from nobody could find out. It might have been a stalwart seed left from the scored and discredited "Mme. Ferdinand Jeand discredited "Ame. Ferdinand Je-main," and it might have been just that mysterious freak which the rose culturist has come to take for granted under the name of a "sport." At any rate, there it was, and it remained to be developed.

For it must be known at the cutset that gelding a single bloom is the least of the feel culturist's troubles. In fact, it merely marks their beginning.

All new brands of roses are grown from these curiosities called "sports."
In a bed of seedlings, about once in so often, an orphan rose will appear which will bear no trace of its parent age, and will usually be found age, and will usually be found to have neither lengevity nor the ability to reproduce after its kind, its seeds will revert to type.

So John Brady set forth on the up-hill climb to perfecting his little red "sport." In due time he did it. And when he had three bushes which he could personally guarantee to repro-duce red roses after the original pat-turn he olaced them in the garden duce red roses after the original pat-turn he placed them in the garden where they would likeliest be seen. He had not to wait for the clamor of appearal. Guests for ten in the after-ation were led into the garden by Mr.

Bancroft for a "private view" of the coveted red rose.

MINS GEORGE BANCROFT

"Oh, that must be Bennett's new ose, the English beauty," said the first woman to spy it.
"Not at all, madame," said Bradly. proudly, "that is the American red

"Then it is the American Beauty," said the lady, not to be outdone.

And then and there the name originated, and not all of Brady's stormtest persuasions could ever dislodge For the rose's maker had already decided that it should be named for Judge Hagner, a warm friend of Mr. Bancroft, and Brady's bright particu-

Brady finally made the best of it, and contented himself with assuring Judge Hagner that things would have been different if he had had any say in them

From this time on, however, the history of John Brady and his precious rose begins to take a somber turn. Mr. rose begins to take a somber turn. Mr. Bancroft died in 1891, bequeathing the American Beauty to Brady as a testament of his affection and appreciation. The famous gardens passed into other hands, and Brady moved, with his large and hungry family and his handful of American Beauty rose-bushes, into a little house cutside of Washington Washington.

Washington.

Things went rapidly from bad to worse. Brady had neither money nor the knack of picking up odd jobs. His eldest son was still too young for responsibility, and the ages of the others, in regular succession, diminished punctually by a year. His wife was frail, out of patience with pover-

Brady survived the first part of this bleak period by observing the Span-is proverb, "Patience, and shuffle the cards." No stress of want could make him part with his rose bushes, though his wife, regarding him as a sort of monomaniac on this subject, put her oblest persuasions into the task of undoing his resolve.
To his reiterated tales of the for tune that would come to him some day through the American Beauty rose Mrs. Brady reasonably replied that she and the children were hungry that very day and hour, and that more than her soul was sick with hope deferred.

But some prescience of the inherent raine of his rose kept, Brady obdurate to appeals, domestic or professional.

The world of fashion had all but forgotten the interregnum of the American Beauty in the Bancroft gar-dens. Rose culturists had thought, many of them, that it had never outlived its heyday. Only a few of the more observant had remembered that the treasured bushes had been a lega-

One of these last was the elder of the Field Brothers, wholesale forists on the old Seventh strast road, out-cide of Washington. They made con-

It was on one of these forlorn occa-sions that Mrs. Brady's patience snap-ped and her loyalty faltered. She ped and ner loyatty interest seized the pampered rose bushes, made haste to Field Brothers, and sold them, one and all, for scarcely more than the price of a single meal.

When this was told to Brady, he ouched the hour of his supreme tribu neath his world feil away from beneath his feet. Not once in the 18 years since then has the stupor which came upon him lifted for long enough for realization of his misery to sift through.

Matters went merrily with the rose he made. Field Brothers, by skillful advertising, were able to sell their ex-clusive right to its reproduction for $5,000. Within a year ten times that amount was being paid for it by enthusiastic purchasers here and

For ten years past a moderate estimate of the amount of money spent annually all over the world for Amer-ican Beauty roses is $25,000,000.

John Brady is still homeless in Washington. His wife and the fam-ished children have died one after another. He himself is the recipient of constant small charities from Wash ington florists, any of whom will give him bits of work, spraying, or cutting, when his mind can be held to his task.

At the fureral of William R. Smith

the famous old Scotch superintendent of the National Botanical gardens, who had, at eighty, the reputation of knowing more public men—diplomats, statesmen, and politicians—than any other person then living in the United States, there was an assemblage of responsibility, and the ages of the others, in regular succession, diminished punctually by a year. His wife was frail, out of patience with poverty, and worn to exhaustion with the care of children.

Brady survived the first part of this bleak period by observing the Span without ary doubt the most humble is provered. Patterne and shuffle the without any doubt the most humble and obscure sorrower at the funeral ceremony. He was John Brady, maker of the American Beauty of the American Beauty.

Mercifully he does not feel the infinite pathon of his lot. His real tragedy ended 18 years ago, when, having nothing left to hope, he had nothing left to for. If you search him out and question him, you will find him curiously apathetic.

"Me? I am nothing—nobody," he will say to you. "My rose? Yes, that was my fortune but they took it.

And he will tell you this with the most exquisite manners, learned, per-haps, in the Bancroft gardens. He has kept, or pursups got back, an impressive aweetiness of nature. One thing only sire him to overt flashes of rebellious misery—it is to be asked to see or handle an American Resulty rose.

LIVE STOCK AS HOME GRAIN MARKET MAKERS.

In talking with Professor Hunsikes, Chief of the Department of Dairy Husbandry at Purdue, on the subject of Live Stock on the Farm, as profitable market makers for the farm grain products, the Professor gave the following interesting table on possible corp consumption by dairy cattle alone in Indiana.

He said: "I have not the necessary statistics within reach to estimate what portion of the corn crop of our state is consumed by dairy cattle or that by beef cattle, but take for lathat by heer cattle, but take for pa-stance, as an estimate, according to the United States census report for 1910, the corn crop in Indiana aver-aged 39.3 bushels per acre. It is es-timated that with this yield, that the acre will produce about ten tons of corn sliage. The average cow eats during the veer (about eight months) during the year (about eight months) six tons of corn silage, containing about twenty-three and one-half bushels of corn. The average cow possibly receives four pounds of corn meal daily eight months of the year, amounting to fourteen bushels of corn. Thus the total corn consumed per cow in the State would average thirty-sev-en and one-half bushels; as we have 666,000 dairy cows in Indiana, the dairy consumption would amount to about 24,975,000 bushels annually.

The man on the farm who is figur-ing like any man who is engaged in commercial pursuits must, is no doubt winning success as a result, and the man who takes advantage of such a splendid education as that afforded by the National Dairy Show at Chicago each year, will have laid before him the latest result of the work of his fellow men in every department of dairying that will make for an increase

The essential requirements of a soil npon which to grow onlons profitably are a high state of fertility, good mechanical conditions in order that the crop may be easily worked, sufficient drainage, and freedom from weeds. If the soil has the proper mechanical properties, that is, if it contains sufficient sand and humus to be easily worked, is retentive of moisture and fertilizers, and is capable of drainage-ali other requirements can be met. The three types of soil being most extensively planted to onlons in this country are alluvial loams, sandy loamseand muck and peat soils. Clay soils, which bake and run together after rains, are injurious to the seed-lings and do not permit proper early cultivation. Well drained sandy loams are especially adapted to onions, but require heavy applications of fertiliz-ers, lime, and the growth of legumidition. Muck soils are among the best for onions when fertilized with manure and potash, and made free from weeds. crops which gives best results under very intensive culture and the great est yields are secured when a moderate acreage is planted and the work conducted in a most thorough manner. As a general rule onions should follow some crop that has been kept under the hoe and free from weeds the previous season. Corn, beans and potatoes are suitable crops with nous crops to keep them in good con-which to precede onions.

Onions should not be planted on the same piece of land year after year, and some system of crop rotation should be maintained. Care should be should be maintained. Care should be taken, however, to use crops in the rotation that will not be exhaustive of the high fertility necessary in the onion land. During the years when the land is not devoted to onions it can be planted to some truck crop that will give a return that will justify the application of large quantities of fertilizers or better, to a leguminous crep to be turned under as a green manure. Continuous cropping with onions will cause the land to become infested with both disease and insect enemies, that will sooner or later injure the crop to such an ex-tent as to reader it unprofitable.

The methods of preparing the soil will depend somewhat upon its char-acter, but tillage must be continued until the soil is smooth and mellow to the depth of four or five inches. It is essential that the fertilizers be well mixed with the soil.

There is perhaps no fertilizer so well adapted to the production of onions as well-composted stable manure, and it should be spread on the land sev-eral months before planting to on-ions. A fertilizer adapted to the growing of onions should contain four growing of omions shound contain four to five per cent. of nitrogen, five to seven per cent. of phosphoric acid, and eight to ten per cent. of potash. A fertiliser of this character will cost $38 to $40 a ton, and can be profitably applied at the rate of 1,000 pounds to the acre on most soils.

The following mixture can be mixed over the land shortly before sowing the seed:

The seed should be sown as early in the spring as the soil can be brought into the best possible condition. The hand drills which sow one row at a time are extensively used but larger growers use a gang of drills which seed five or seven rows at once. Where band cultivation is to be practiced the usual distance between rows is 12 to 14 inches. For growing the standard market onion in rows 14 inches apart, about four and one-half pounds of seed will be required per acre. Thinning should be done at the first weeding to a uniform stand of eight to ten plants to the foot. It is always well, however, to allow for considerable loss of the cons allow for considerable loss of plants. and unless the plants are so thick as to actually crowd, the thinning will not be necessary.

The cultural requirements of the onion are frequent shallow stirrings of the soil and freedom from weeds. As soon as the plant toe cultivator rows can be followed, the cultivator should be started to loosen the soil, which is always more or less comwhich is always more or less com-pacted during seeding. There are many wheel hoes and hand weeders on the market, which greatly assist in the tedious weeding and thinning of onions.—Farmers' Bulletin 354, United States Department of Agricul-

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The "change of life" is a most critical period in a woman's existence, and the anxiety felt by women as it draws near is not without reason.

When her system is in a deranged condition, she may be predisposed to apoplexy, or congestion of some organ. At this time, also, cancers and tumors are more liable to form and begin their destructive work.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness, are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

These symptoms are calls from nature for help. The nerves are crying out for assistance and the cry should be heeded in time.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is prepared to meet the needs of women's system at this trying period of her life. It invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried many women safely through this crisis.

St. Anne, Ill.—"I was passing through the change of life and I was a perfect wreck from female troubles. I had a displacement and bearing down pains, weak fainting spells, dizziness, then numb and cold feelings.' Sometimes my feet and limbs were swollen. I was irregular and had so much backache and headache, was nervous, irritable and was despondent. Sometimes my appetite was good but more often it was not. My kidneys troubled me at times and I could walk only a short distance.

"I saw your advertisement inapaper and took Lydia E. Plnkham's Vegetable Compound, and I was helped from the first. At the end or two months the swelling had gone down, I was relieved of pain, and could walk with ease. I continued with the medicine and now I do almost all my housework. I know your medicine has saved me from the grave and I am willing for you to publish anything I write to you, for the good of others."—Mra. ESTELIA GILLISPIR, R.F.D. No. 4, Box 34, St. Anse, Illinois.

Livonia Men in Trouble

Barney Gates was before Justice Campbell last week Thursday on a charge of assault and battery, preferred by Theodore Borse. Gates pleaded not by Incodore Borse. Gates pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for Satur-day. It seems that Gates and Borse had some words over a dog one day last week while the latter was driving by Gates' home in Livonia township, whe Borse also lives. Gates, after his arrant for Borse, charging him with asmult and bettery. Borse then had a second warrant issued by Justice Campbell charging Gates with a more seri-ous offense, that of making threats to kill him. When arraigned before the court Gates pleaded not guilty and his examination was set for Saturday, Oct. 19th. It default of $1,000 bail he was taken to the county jail Monday by deputy sheriff Springer. Borse is a cripple, being afflicted with paralysis of

The Rev. Ida C. I ultin of Boston, Mass., and Mrs. Susan M. Sellars of Detroit spoke to a small audience in the town hall last week Thuraday evening on equal suffrage. Mrs. Sellars is chairman of the equal suffrage campaign or ganization of Wayne county and is a very earnest worker in the cause. Miss Hultin is a thoughtful and cultured woman and spoke in a most zealous manner on the ceds of the women in our State and other States to day. The few who came out to hear these ladies feit well repaid for the effort. This is the second lecture on suffrage we have had in our village during the past two weeks and it is the pregreted that so few of our people have heard these excellent speakers and that the citizens of Plymouth are not more interested in the issue that is of such importance to the women of Michigan.
