How Many
Buckets of Coal
Will You Burn This Season?

It doesn't do any good to "kick" about the increasing cost of coal and other fuel.

The only thing to do is to figure how to burn less. And the time to do that figuring is now, at the beginning of winter.

If you are using an old stove that has seen better days, the chances are you are wasting a good many buckets of coal each week—nearly enough in a month or so to pay for a new, up-to-date stove—a "Garland" heater or base burner.

You may not realize what a tremendous difference there is in fuel consumed by different stoves.

We ourselves would perhaps never have known it, were we not thoroughly familiar with the inside construction of every stove on the market.

Now, after years of investigation, we found that "Garland" Stoves and Ranges burn considerably less fuel than others.

And if you will, just step inside our store a moment, we will show you the fuel-saving construction of these celebrated stoves.

Moreover, we will show you the handsomest heaters, base burners, ranges and cookstoves you ever saw.

Many styles and models. And prices that may surprise you.

You tell us the particular "Garland" model that you like best, and we will take it to your home immediately, set it up and absolutely guarantee its satisfactory operation.

If then you don't say it is entirely satisfactory, we will call and make it so.

Remember, we don't claim "Garlands" are "just as good as others"—we say they are better. And if we can't prove it, we don't want your money. That's fair, isn't it?

When can you come in and see these stoves? Better come at once. The weather man is apt to "turn off the heat" most any moment.

Downs-Palmer Wedding.

A simple but pretty home wedding occurred last Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 16th, at three o'clock, when Miss Blanche Faye Palmer of this place was united in marriage to Wm. T. Downs of Detroit at the bride's home on East Ann Arbor street, in the presence of about thirty relatives and friends. Rev. B. F. Farber officiated.

The bride was daintily gowned in white silk meteor de soi and was attended by Miss Margaret Beaumont of Mason, who was becomingly attired in blue silk. George McNight acted as best man. The house was prettily decorated in green and white.

After a wedding supper, the happy couple left for a short trip east, and upon their return will be at home at 775 Greenwood avenue, Detroit. Guests were present from Massed, Detroit, Pontiac, Salem and Ypsilanti.

The bride is one of our most estimable young ladies and has the best wishes of a host of friends for a happy wedded life.

Arrangements for the lecture course have been completed and tickets will be on sale on and after to-morrow (Saturday) morning. They may be secured of any of the business or professional men. It is urged that tickets be secured early as the course is of so high a character as to merit the sale of the entire house. Last year every seat was sold. This ought to be true this year. The committee is confident that the course this year is better than any given in previous years. Six, instead of five numbers appear this year for the same price. At the same time each number is more attractive. The committee has tried to maintain a high level of excellence throughout the course. A larger and more attractive course bids you secure your seats early. Notice will be given next week as to the date and hour for reserving your seats. For any further information that may be desired, call on Fred Schrader, Dr. Travis or Rev. B. F. Farber.

Harvest Thanksgiving at St. John's Episcopal Mission

Last Sunday was a record day for St. John's Episcopal Mission, when the Harvest Thanksgiving services were held. The day was a complete success, especially in regard to the object for which it was set apart, that of bringing together and assembling in the mission, members of all denominations, to join together in their special prayers and songs of thanksgiving for an abundant harvest, and the partaking of a harvest festival dinner afterwards, which was provided in the basement of the church.

In the morning, the Rt. Rev. Chas. D. Williams, D.D., bishop of Michigan, preached the sermon and spoke very appropriately and forcibly on the Harvest of Souls and the Reaping and Harvesting of the deeds of our lives at that last great harvest when we shall be called to give an account of them.

Miss Florence Marsh sang an anthem that was very nicely rendered. After the morning service the harvest festival dinner was partaken of in the basement of the church, at which about sixty sat at the table, and was appreciated by all.

The afternoon service was a Service of song entitled "Gleanings from the Harvest Field." This was excellently rendered by the choir and was appreciated by all who heard it. Much credit is due to Mr. James Barlow, the organist, members of the choir and those who so kindly assisted in the choir for the excellent way in which this was rendered, considering the few practices they were able to have owing to the delay necessitating the arrival of the books from Europe. Little Miss Nina Anderson sang very sweetly the solo "Footsteps on the Stairs," and Master Henry Anderson sang the other solo, "What Shall the Harvest Be," in a very talented and expressive manner. The church at both services was crowded and great appreciation was expressed of the efforts of the Mission.—T.

MARATHON RACE UP MOUNTAIN

Remarkable Test of Physical Endurance That Had Rather a Humorous Ending.

A Marathon race up a mountain in the Swiss Alps is a test of endurance to which only the most vigorous among professional mountaineers would care to submit themselves.

The first event of this kind took place the other day and despite the obvious difficulties, proved a great success. The mountain selected was the Stanserhorn, 6,236 feet above sea level, and the difference in altitude to be covered was roughly 4,700 feet; the starting point the little town of Stans, being some 1,500 feet above the sea.

About 1,500 spectators took the funicular railway up the mountain-side, or made a leisurely ascent on foot to cheer the winner, who proved to be Karl Hug, a young Swiss Alpinist of Alpnach, his time being 1 hour and 4 minutes. The second arrival took eight minutes longer and the last of the fifty-two competitors finished forty-five minutes later.

The promoter of the race was a wealthy German who had offered valuable prizes and who rather fancied himself for the championship. He was greeted with sympathetic cheers when he arrived, puffing and blowing at the goal, half an hour after the last competitor had innocently asked "if any of them had been sighted yet."

Dual Temperament.

It seems to me that the chief stress of my life has arisen from the civil war of two tendencies—the artistic and the practical.

My artistic self and I lie under the pine tree in the back yard, staring blankly and gloriously into the blue; we purr and bask and begin to see a vision—when up bounces my practical self, fetches us a slap on the ears and cries: "Up! Up! The stockings are to darn, the pickles are to brew, and there's company coming to supper!"

Or again, my practical self and I are being happy over trimming a hat or refreshing a sorrowful chair with a glad garment of black paint. We pin and tie, or mix and slap with a swinging brush-stroke, when my artistic half peers in at us, and smiles cynically. "Folly!" he says, in the scornful music of his heaven-haunted voice. "What earthly treasure you prepare for moth and rust! The hat is a cheap vanity; the chair will molder in the garret; and here am I with a song to sing, and a vision of strong angels to body forth. Come away! Come away!"—Atlantic.

Anonymous Aid for Detective.

"The sleuths in Uncle Sam's employ get some of their best tips through anonymous letters," said a man who was for many years a member of the secret service. "In the old days my specialty was to look after the makers of counterfeit money, and more than once I got clues that led to the capture of dangerous criminals through a communication which was either unsigned or signed with some fictitious name.

"Generally the writers of these unsigned favors are men who have been connected with the illegitimate practices, which are revealed by them. They have been ill-treated by their principals and the peaching is done with a view to even up things. Very often a woman who has been ill-used or flitted by a violator of the federal statutes will do the same informing act from motives of revenge. The lawbreaker who tips off his hand to a woman had better be square with her, or else one day when he is least expecting it he will find himself in trouble."

Ideal Match.

"But," says the candid friend, "I cannot for the life of me understand why you intend to marry him. He has a wooden leg and the other one is bowed, and he only has one eye and is bald in patches, and positively has the ugliest whiskers I ever saw on a man. Why, no woman in her senses could love him!"

"We shall be ideally happy," explains the beautiful girl. "I shall never be jealous of him, for the reasons you have cited. And he will always be so glad and proud that I married him that he won't care how much I flirt."—Judge.

Ridiculed Suffrage Parade.

In an equal suffrage parade in England banners were carried bearing portraits of women of accomplishments through the ages. At the very end of the procession, where the women could not see him, came a lone man with a sense of humor. This individual bore a pike, from which hung a large fig leaf, framed, and at the top of which was an apple—a modest tribute to Eve, who had been quite overlooked in this brilliant galaxy.

Their Diet.

"The members of that musical society are such vegetarians that they will not sing rounds." "What have rounds to do with vegetarianism?" "They are too suggestive of beef."

Ultra Fear.

Foisdick-Holman is ridiculously afraid of being imposed on. "Pickett—I should say he is! Why, he wouldn't dare to look for an egg on the first of April if he heard 20 hens cackling."—Lippincott's.

BOSTON, AMERICAN LEAGUE TEAM, WINNER OF THE WORLD'S SERIES

BOSTON BEATS NEW YORK IN FINAL GAME OF SERIES 3-2

The Boston Red Sox are the champions of the world by virtue of their victory in Wednesday's game in Boston with the Giants.

The star youngster, Bedient, was sent in at the opening to stop the onslaught of the Giants. Wood warmed up with him, but took his place on the bench, a possible relief pitcher, if needed. Christy Mathewson, as was anticipated, took the mound for the Gothamites.

The Giants were apparently instructed to wear Bedient out if possible, forcing him to pitch 15 balls to the first two men, Devore and Doyle, before they were retired, both by the Wagner-Stahl route. Heinie might have had Snodgrass' scalp, too, after the latter walked, but he dropped Cady's perfect pop to catch the runner at second, and the chance was lost. Gardner and Stahl got Murray, the third out. Bedient looked in perfect form, and the crowd was wild in its expression of confidence.

Matty had something, too. Merkle got Hooper, and Yerkes was fanned. Speaker stretched a single by daring base running, Doyle's error in dropping Devore's throw helping him to lead second, the umpire reversing the decision that called him out. Lewis fanned also, Speaker dying.

Bedient would have had the Giants one-two-three, again, but after Merkle and Herzog had been disposed of by the strike out and fly method, Gardner played sieve and let Meyers' slow roller through his legs. Then Fletcher singled, and Chief took second. Cady tried to catch Meyers napping, but the Indian sprinted for the third, and Gardner pulled another bull, dropping Wagner's throw. Matty filed out, preventing the two errors doing any damage, except to the Sox' fielding average.

Discovery of Artificial Milk. Synthetic milk is the latest product of the chemical laboratory. The new milk is the discovery of three German chemists at Frankfurt-on-the-Main. It is the same color as the animal liquid, and scientists' accounts of the discovery assert that it is more nourishing and more easily assimilated than the cow's product, and non-tubercular.

The artificial milk is composed entirely of vegetable ingredients, digested by machinery instead of by the cow, and is said to keep sweet longer than ordinary milk. Its strength, it is said, can be standardized for the use of family, infant or invalid. According to the reports which have reached this city, the new product can be profitably manufactured to retail at six cents a quart.

The local option question will be submitted to the voters of Tuscola county next spring. Robert Hunter, nominee for sheriff of Arenac county, on the Republican ticket, has withdrawn, declaring he is too busy on his farm to make the run.

Consider H. Willett of the storming of Fort Fisher, North Carolina, in the civil war is dead in Chicago, after an illness extending over 10 years. He was 72 years old.

Samples of hamburger steak gathered from butcher shops in and about Ann Arbor have been found to contain sulphite of soda by U. of M. chemists. It is used to lessen the odor. There is a state law against the use of the drug.

venting the two errors doing any damage, except to the Sox' fielding average.

Matty gave his first pass in 21 innings he had pitched during the series to Gardner, in the second frame today. But the third sacker was forced at second by Stahl. Wagner singled and Jake took second, but Cady and Bedient went out.

Bedient showed blood in the third when Devore walked, took second and then third on Doyle's out to Gardner and Snodgrass' out to Stahl, and scored on Murray's double. This made a great but futile try for the clout. Merkle went out to Wagner, leaving the score 1-0. He pulled himself out of a bad rut in the fourth, did Bedient. Charlie Herzog leaned on the ball for two bags, and made third on Meyers' sacrifice; but Fletcher and Mathewson fled out, and the score was unchanged.

Hooper killed a home run in the fifth, making a brilliant running catch of Doyle's smash just as it was going into the crowd in right field. No one was on at the time.

Matty sent three men down in the fifth on three pitched balls. Wagner and Cady clouted straight to Murray, and Bedient sent the first ball over to Devore. It was an excellent illustration of what the old master had left in his arm.

Yerkes got the funniest hit of the series in the sixth when he tried to pull away from the ball. It hit his hat and went out of Doyle's reach. He got to third, but an attempted double steal finished the side.

The First Game.

The Dynamiter's Trial. A ruling of considerable importance was made by Judge Anderson in the dynamiting cases, when he denied a motion of the defense for permission to have access to all the books, papers and records taken from the offices of the iron workers, and now in the district attorney's possession.

The court said that the defense should not be embarrassed by the ruling, as it would see that the defense is permitted to examine and introduce in evidence any specific documents for which it may make an application at the proper time.

Mr. Miller declared the motion of the defense was a false and fraudulent one, as it set out that the papers had been seized by private detectives and by police officers and had been turned over to the district attorney, whereas they came into custody of the district attorney under an order from the federal court.

B. Wass, a sugar beet worker, while in a drunken frenzy, shot and killed his wife at Colwood, near Bay City.

After attacking the nine-year-old daughter of Irving Kimmel in a woods near Charlotte, John Callahan, 52, Kimmel's brother-in-law, killed himself by slashing his throat with a razor.

Kimmel Case Again Soon. Several Niles people have been notified to hold themselves in readiness to report for duty in the court at St. Louis, Mo., next week, when the famous Kimmel insurance case is to be brought on for another trial, this time in the state instead of the federal court.

In this case, Mrs. Edna Bonslett, of Chicago, sister of George A. Kimmel, the banker who disappeared in 1893, will appear as plaintiff. She sues the New York Life Insurance company to collect on two $10,000 policies on her brother's life, of which she was beneficiary.

The Kimmel claimant, the former Auburn, N. Y., prisoner who claims to be the missing banker, is working in the office of a lumber company at Portland, Ore., and will be produced as a witness by the insurance company.

The banking department has authorized state banks at Kilde and Montrose. The bank of Kilde is capitalized at $20,000. The other institution is to be known as the Montrose state bank.

Lynn J. Lewis, of Bangor, has brought suit for $20,000 damages against Charles A. Weidenfeller, of Bloomingdale. The latter defeated Lewis for the republican nomination for state representative in that district. Lewis claims that he was defeated because his opponent made statements about him that were not true.

Members of Kalamazoo trades council will ask the city council why it has not taken action on their petition to open theaters on Sunday.

A. J. Clark, of Bad Axe, will open a new bank at Brimley. It will be the first one in the town, which now boasts a population of 1,000.

The state tax commission has arranged for public hearings on the review of the assessments of the several upper peninsula counties recently gone over by representatives of the commission. A hearing has been set for Oct. 23 at Houghton and one will be held at Ironwood Oct. 30.

HONOURIAN REVOLT ENDS

Fugitive Rebels Overtaken by Nicaraguan Government Troops

An uprising against the Honduran government, started by participants in the Nicaraguan revolt, came to a sudden and bloody end before the expedition got out of Nicaragua.

The refugees, 200 in number, under Jose Rafael Osorio, a Honduran, were overtaken by Nicaraguan government troops at Somotillo as they approached the Honduran border.

Forty were killed, many others, including the leader, were wounded. All gave up their arms and the entire movement was speedily dispersed.

Minister Weitzel in reporting the affair to the state department said the refugees, who were bent upon starting a revolution against President Bonilla's government in Honduras, had fled from Leon when that city was turned over to the American forces.

The complete failure of the movement against Honduras is believed not only to relieve the menace of another revolution in that country, but to mark the end of disturbances in Nicaragua.

Fire from a short circuit destroyed a car on the M. U. T. seven miles west of Albion.

CHAPTER XXX.

A Wedding on Wheels.

The commotion of the matrimony-mad women brought the men trooping in from the smoking room and there was much circumstance of decorating the scene with white satin ribbons, a trifle crumpled and dim of luster. Mrs. Whitcomb waved them at Mallory with a laugh: "Recognize these?" He nodded dismally. His own funeral baked meats were coldly furnishing forth a wedding breakfast for Ira Lathrop. Mrs. Wellington was moving about distributing kazooos and Mrs. Temple had an armload of old shoes, some of which had thumped Mallory on an occasion which seemed so ancient as to be almost prehistoric.

Fosdick was howling to the porter to get some rice, quick!

"How many portions does you approximate?"

"All you've got."

"Bolted or fried?"

"Any old way." The porter ran forward to the dining-car for the ammunition.

Mrs. Temple whispered to her husband: "Too bad you're not officiating, Walter." But he cautioned silence: "Hush! I'm on my vacation."

The train was already coming into Ogden. Noises were multiplying and from the increase of passing objects, the speed seemed to be taking on a spurt. The bell was clanging like a wedding chime in a steeple.

Mrs. Wellington was on a chair fastening a ribbon round one of the lamps, and Mrs. Whitcomb was on another chair braiding the bell rope with withered orange branches, when Ashton, with kazoo all ready, called out: "What tune shall we play?"

"I prefer the Mendelssohn Wedding March," said Mrs. Whitcomb, but Mrs. Wellington glared across at her.

"I've always used the Lohengrin."

"We'll play 'em both," said Dr. Temple, to make peace.

Mrs. Fosdick murmured to her spouse: "The old Justice of the Peace didn't give us any music at all," and received in reward one of his most luscious-eyed looks, and a whisper: "But he gave us each other."

"Now and then," she pouted.

"But where are the bride and groom?"

"Here they come—all ready," cried Ashton, and he beat time while some of the guests came to Mendelssohn's and some Wagner's bridal melodies, and others just made a noise.

Ira Lathrop and Annie Gattie, looking very sheepish, crowded through the narrow corridor and stood shamefacedly blushing like two school children about to sing a duet.

The train joined to a dead stop. The conductor called into the car: "Ogden! All out for Ogden!" and everybody stood watching and waiting.

Ira, seeing Mallory, edged close and whispered: "Stand by to catch the minister on the rebound."

But Mallory turned away. What use had he now for ministers? His plans were shattered ruins.

The porter came flying in with two large bowls of rice, and shouting: "Here comes the possum—er—possum." Seeing Marjorie, he said: "Shall I perambulate Miss Snooks-ums?"

She handed the porter her only friend and he hurried out, as a lean and professionally sad ascetic hurried in. He did not recognize his boyish enemy in the gray-haired, red-faced giant that greeted him, but he knew that voice and its gloating irony:

"Hello, Charlie."

He had always found that when Ira grinned and was cordial, some trouble was in store for him. He wondered what rock Ira held behind his back now, but he forced an uneasy cordiality: "And is this you, Ira? Well, well! It is years since last we met. And you're just getting married. Is this the first time, Ira?"

"First offense, Charlie."

The levity shocked Selby, but a greater shock was in store, for when he inquired: "And who is the—er—happy—bride?" the triumphant Lathrop snickered: "I believe you used to know her. Anne Gattie."

This was the rock behind Ira's back, and Selby took it with a wince: "Not—my old—"

"The same. Anne, you remember, Charlie."

"Oh, yes," said Anne, "How do you do, Charlie?" And she put out a shy hand, which he took with one still shy. He was so unsettled that he stammered: "Well, well, I had always hoped to marry you, Anne, but not just this way."

Lathrop cut him short with a sharp: "Better get busy—before the train starts. And I'll pay you in advance before you set off the fireworks."

The flippancy pained Rev. Charles, but he was reanimated by one glance at the bill that Ira thrust into his palm. If a man's gratitude for his wife is measured by the size of the fee he hands the enabling parson, Ira was madly in love with Anne. Rev. Charles had a reminiscent suspicion that it was probably a counterfeit, but for once he did Ira an injustice.

The minister was in such a flutter from losing his boyhood love, and gaining so much money all at once and from performing the marriage on a train, that he made numerous errors in the ceremony, but nobody noticed them, and the spirit, if not the letter of the occasion, was there and the contract was doubtless legal enough.

The ritual began with the pleasant murmur of the preacher's voice, and the passengers crowded round in a solemn calm, which was suddenly violated by a loud yelp of laughter from Wedgewood, who omitted guffaw after guffaw and bent double and opened out again, like an agitated umbrella.

The wedding-guests turned on him visages of horror, and hissed silence at him. Ashton seized him, shook him, and muttered:

"What the—what's the matter with you?"

The Englishman shook like a boy having a spasm of giggles at a funeral, and blurted out the explanation:

"That story about the bridegroom—I just saw the point!"

Ashton closed his jaw by brute force and watched over him through the rest of the festivity.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Folled Yet Again.

Mallory had fled from the scene at the first hum of the minister's words. His fate was like alkali on his palate. For twelve hundred miles he had ransacked the world for a minister. When one dropped on the train like manna through the roof, even this miracle had to be checkmated by a perverse miracle that sent to the train an early infatuation, a silly affair that he himself called puppy-love. And now Marjorie would never marry him. He did not blame her. He blamed fate.

He was in solitude in the smoking room. The place reeked with drifting tobacco smoke and the maledor of cigar stubs and cigarette ends. His plans were as useless and odious as cigarette ends. He dropped into a chair, his elbows on his knees and his head in his hands—Napoleon on St. Helena.

And then, suddenly he heard Marjorie's voice. He turned and saw her hesitating in the doorway. He rose to welcome her, but the smile died on his lips at her chilly speech:

"May I have a word with you, sir?"

"Of course. The air's rather thick in here," he apologized.

"Just wait!" she said, ominously, and stalked in like a young Zenobia. He put out an appealing hand: "Now, Marjorie, listen to reason. Of course I know you won't marry me now."

"Oh, you know that, do you?" she said, with a squared jaw.

"But, really, you ought to marry me—not merely because I love you—and you're the only girl I ever—"

He stopped short and she almost smiled as she taunted him: "Go on—I dare you to say it."

He swallowed hard and waived the point: "Well, anyway, you ought to marry me—for your own sake."

Then she took his breath away by answering: "Oh, I'm going to marry you, never fear."

"You are," he cried, with a rush of returning hope. "Oh, I knew you loved me."

She pushed his encircling arms aside: "I don't love you, and that's why I'm going to marry you."

"But I don't understand."

"Of course not," she sneered, as if she were a thousand years old, "you're only a man—and a very young man."

"You've ceased to love me," he protested, "just because of a little affair I had before I met you?"

Marjorie answered with world-old wisdom: "A woman can forgive a man anything except what he did before he met her."

He stared at her with masculine dismay at feminine logic: "If you can't forgive me, then why do you marry me?"

"For revenge!" she cried. "You brought me on this train all this distance to introduce me to a girl you used to spoon with. And I don't like her. She's awful!"

"Yes, she is awful," Marjorie assented. "I don't know how I ever—"

"Oh, you admit it?"

"No."

"Well, I'm going to marry you—now—this minute—with that preacher, then I'm going to get off at Reno and divorce you."

"Divorce me! Good Lord! On what grounds?"

"On the grounds of Miss Kitty—Kitty—Llewellyn—or whatever her name is."

Mallory was groggy with punishment, and the vain effort to foresee her next blow. "But you can't name a woman that way," he pleaded, "for just being nice to me before I ever met you."

"That's the worst kind of unfaithfulness," she reiterated. "You should have known that some day you would meet me. You should have saved your first love for me."

"But last love is best," Mallory interposed, weakly.

"Oh, no, it isn't, and if it is, how do I know I'm to be your last love? No, sir, when I've divorced you, you can go back to your first love and go round the world with her till you get dizzy."

"But I don't want her for a wife," Mallory urged, "I want you."

"You'll get me—but not for long. And one other thing, I want you to get that bracelet away from that creature. Do you promise?"

"How can I get it away?"

"Take it away! Do you promise?"

Mallory surrendered completely. Anything to get Marjorie safely into his arms: "I promise anything, if you'll really marry me."

"Oh, I'll marry you, sir, but not really."

And while he stared in helpless awe at the cynic and tergiversant that jealousy had metamorphosed this timid, clinging creature into, they heard the conductor's voice at the rear door of the car: "Hurry up—we've got to start."

They heard Lathrop's protest: "Hold on there, conductor," and Selby's plea: "Oh, I say, my good man, wait a moment, can't you?"

The conductor answered with the gruffness of a despot: "Not a minute. I've my orders to make up lost time. All aboard!"

While the minister was tying the last loose ends of the matrimonial knot, Mallory and Marjorie were struggling through the crowd to get at him. Just as they were near, they were swept aside by the rush of the bride and groom, for the parson's "I pronounce you man and wife," pronounced as he backed toward the door, was the signal for another wedding riot.

Once more Ira and Anne were showered with rice. This time it was their own. Ira darted out into the corridor, haling his brand-new wife by the wrist, and the wedding guests pursued them across the vestibule, through the next car, and on, and on.

Nobody remained to notice what happened to the parson. Having performed his function, he was without further interest or use. But to Mallory and Marjorie he was vitally necessary.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

No More Fox Hunts for Him.

Arthur B. Sutt, sheriff of Prince Georges county, Md., says he never again will indulge in a fox chase. He always was fond of the sport, but on the occasion of his last chase he had such an unpleasant and exciting experience that he concluded to go after smaller game in the future.

"We had been out but a short while," he related to friends, "before we were on a trail, but it took us some time to dig the fox from his hole. A skunk was the fox's companion and both came out together."

Both animals were killed and taken to Forestville.

"With our party was a dare-devil sort of a fellow," the sheriff said, "and he rode his horse through the village store, the skunk hanging to the animal's side."

"The store was quickly deserted," he added, "and I resolved to participate in no more such hunts."

School Land Ship.

One of the features of their public school training which the boys of Berlin, Germany, enjoy most is the "land ship," on which young sailors go through a regular daily training. The Ilitis is the name of the land ship which has been built and which has a crew of 120 boys. The larger boys act as officers. When they are at work on the land ship the boys dress in mid-dy blouses and caps. There is gun practice on the land ship every day, and a naval drill, and all the usual work of a ship is done by the boys. They have the greatest fun in climbing the spars and hoisting the sails, and life on the Ilitis is so popular that there are always more applicants for the crew than there are places to be filled.

Mental Distraction.

"Do you think young women ought to join the suffragettes?" asked the young woman.

"I do," replied Mr. Growcher; "I am in favor of anything that will take their minds off the fact that this is leap year."

ROOSEVELT SHOT BY A CRAZED ASSAILANT

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

A DESPERATE ATTEMPT TO KILL COLONEL THEODORE ROOSEVELT WAS MADE AT MILWAUKEE WIS.,

WAS SHOT BY A FANATIC NAMED SCHRANK, AS HE STOOD IN MOTOR CAR.

Rushed to Chicago on Special Train—Inflammation of Wound All That Doctors Fear May Stand in Way of Recovery.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, ex-president of the United States and Progressive candidate this year for re-election, was shot early Monday evening by John Schrank, a fanatic, as he stood in a motor car in front of the Kilpatrick hotel in Milwaukee about to be driven to the Auditorium for a speech.

The bullet entered his breast in the vicinity of the tenth rib and inflicted a wound about three inches long.

Albert H. Martin, one of the colonel's secretaries and a former college football man, vaulted the side of the motor car and landed squarely on top of the would-be assassin, bearing him to the ground and disarming him almost before the crowd knew what had happened.

Others followed a moment later and the crowd raised cries of "Lynch him! Lynch him!"

Col. Roosevelt sank to the seat of the car at the shot, but immediately regained his feet and insisted upon standing and bowing to the madly cheering crowd.

He ordered that he be driven to the Auditorium, declaring that he would make the scheduled speech or die in the attempt.

He talked for more than an hour.

At the close of the speech he was rushed to his special train and then to Chicago, where he was taken to Mercy hospital and subjected to an X-ray examination.

One of the attending physicians, Dr. Torrell, says there is considerable danger from infection in the wound, and that the wound itself might have been fatal to another man who had not the wonderful chest development of the colonel.

Schrank was rushed through the crowds to central police station, but seemed indifferent to his fate and only mumbled incoherently about his duty to kill a man seeking a third term as president.

Schrank, 36 years old, was for years a saloonkeeper in New York and gave up his business in September to pursue and kill Roosevelt.

Taft and Wilson Wire Sympathy.

President Taft was among the first to be quickly advised of the attempted assassination of Col. Roosevelt. He wired as follows:

"I extend to you my heartfelt sympathy in your present distress. I earnestly hope and pray that you and your family and the country may be promptly relieved of suspense by news that all danger is passed."

(Signed) "W. H. TAFT"

"Please accept my warmest sympathy and heartiest congratulations that your wound is not serious."

(Signed) WOODROW WILSON

Chicago, Oct. 15.—Colonel Roosevelt has made such a steady gain in the last 24 hours that the attending surgeons are more hopeful tonight for his ultimate recovery than they have been at any time since he was shot in Milwaukee.

Unless blood poison or other complications appear, Col. Roosevelt will be removed to Oyster Bay Saturday evening.

Shot in Front of Hotel.

The shooting took place in the street in front of the Hotel Kilpatrick. Col. Roosevelt reached Milwaukee shortly after 5 o'clock, and making his way through the crowd which had gathered at the station, entered an automobile and was driven to the hotel. He took dinner in a private dining room on the main floor with the members of the party on his private car.

After dinner Col. Roosevelt went to his room on the second floor of the hotel, and shortly before 8 o'clock he started for the Auditorium. His automobile stood in front of the door and about it was a big crowd, waiting to catch a glimpse of the colonel as he started off.

The assailant was all but lynched by the excited crowd, which witnessed his attempt on the life of the former president, and it was only by the desperate use of the clubs of four stalwart police officers, and the reserves of four of the police department detectives, that the supposed maniac was rescued from the crowd, and hurried to police headquarters.

Col. Roosevelt delivered part of his scheduled address with the bullet in his body, his blood staining his white vest as he spoke to a huge throng at the auditorium. Later he collapsed, weakened by the wound, and was rushed to the emergency hospital.

There six surgeons assisted in the search for the bullet, but its location and depth could not be determined by probing. It was found to be necessary to make an X-ray photograph of the colonel's diaphragm to locate the missile. It was agreed that it was located so deeply that it was unsafe to do any more probing.

Big Crowd Pursues Gunman.

A crowd of 500 men ran after the police auto which rescued the colonel's assailant, to police headquarters, but reserves quickly clubbed the mob from the vicinity of the police station and the unidentified assassin was taken to the private quarters of Chief of Police Janssen, who was summoned at once to put the man through a cross-examination.

Isaac Molla, 60, a miner in the Champion mine, was instantly killed under a fall of a 401-ton mass of rock in one of the lower levels of the mine.

Deputy Sheriff John Kleis, of Allegan who shot Ted McCarthy while attempting to arrest him, has been bound over to the circuit court, charged with manslaughter.

Hearing of testimony in the suit of the United States against the Keystone Watch Case company on the grounds that it is a combination in restraint of trade has been resumed in Philadelphia before a special examiner.

Ephraim Forrest, aged 25, and married, a Pere Marquette brakeman of Saginaw, was probably fatally injured by being crushed between two freight cars at Reed City.

A boulder was unveiled in Grand Rapids marking the site of the rendezvous of the Sixth, Seventh and Tenth Michigan cavalry before starting for the front in 1861.

Gulley as charged was the verdict of the jury in the case of C. E. Houston and Jno. H. Bullock tried in the federal court in Tacoma, Wyo., on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the government on coal contracts in Alaska.

SHE COULD ANSWER FOR HIM

Little Comfort for Candidate in Reason Assigned by Wife for Her Being Confident.

Mr. Williams, one of five candidates for the office of sheriff in one of the northern counties of Wisconsin, was making a house-to-house canvass of a rural district, soliciting votes. Coming to the house of Farmer Thompson, he was met at the door by the good housewife, and the following dialogue ensued:

"Is Mr. Thompson at home?"

"No; he has gone to town."

"I am very sorry, as I would have liked to talk to him."

"Is there anything I can tell him for you?"

"My name is Williams, candidate for sheriff, and I wanted to exact a promise from him to vote for me at the coming election."

"Oh, that will be all right. I know he will promise, for he has already promised four other candidates the same thing."—Norman E. Mack's National Monthly.

Call to Arms.

"Bang!" went the rifles at the maneuvers.

"Oo-oo," screamed the pretty girl—a nice, decorous, surprised little scream. She stepped backward into the surprised arms of a young man.

"Oh," said she, blushing, "I was frightened by the rifles. I beg your pardon."

"Not at all," said the young man. "Let's go over and watch the artillery."

Good Time to Do It.

"Is your daughter going to practice on the piano this afternoon?"

"Yes, I think so."

"Well, then, I'd like to borrow your lawn mower. I've got to cut the grass some time, anyway."—Judge.

Home Talent Play

Will Be Given for Benefit Plymouth Fire Department.

The romantic play of the west, "Golden Gulch," will be presented at the opera house in the near future by home talent for the benefit of the Plymouth Fire Department. This play has been produced all over the middle west by Bruce Chesterman, who will direct it here. It has been a phenomenal success wherever presented and the press notices are unstinted in their praise of it.

"Golden Gulch" is not a melodrama of the lurid type, but is a strikingly realistic play, and pictures absolute fidelity the life of the mining camps of the west in the early days. "Joy," a vivacious and care-free girl of the hills, is the central figure in the play. Of course there is a love story and a romance, without which no play would be complete. In "Golden Gulch" both are doubly interesting.

There are some great comedy characters in the play, among which are the courtier "Judge," Dennis Kelley, with the map of Ireland on his face; Bedelia, cook-lady, the coon, "Snowball," and Crimps and Patches, two great "kid" parts.

A beautiful drop curtain, painted especially for this production, is carried. This drop contains 600 square feet of canvas and is the work of the largest scenic studio in Chicago.

Drugs Prompters are exceptionally pleasant in taste and action. Give them a trial. 10 and 25 cents.

Jones, the Druggist.

When you have a bad cold you want the best medicine obtainable so as to cure it with as little delay as possible. # The SERI INDIANS of TIBURON ISLAND

THE Seri are a distinctive tribe in habits, customs and language from all other North American Indians, and though they have been known for a considerable time both to Mexicans and Americans, they have remained unconquered and uncivilized up to the present time. Tiburon Island, which is their real home, lies close to the coast of Sonora, Mexico, in the Gulf of California, and is separated from the mainland by a narrow strip of sea called El In-Bernillo, so named because of the turbulent water and dangerous rapids that flow between. It is some thirty miles long from north to south and approximately twenty miles across at the widest part. Due east across the straits in Sonora is a limited strip of land, in which are situated the Seri mountains, and here also are found a few scattered families belonging to the same tribe. The whole of their country is rugged and desolate in the extreme, consisting chiefly of desert sand and naked mountain rock, with permanent fresh water in one or two places only. Separated from the rest of Sonora by an almost impassable desert, and containing nothing to excite the interest or cupidty of the prospector or Mexican, it has remained unexplored and unvisited until quite recent times.

Though in the surrounding country there are many traces of an ancient civilization, in Seriland itself there are no remains nor any evidence to show that any other race, markedly distinct either in habits or customs from its present inhabitants, had ever made their home there. Hence it may be assumed that the Seri did not migrate to this part of the world, but are indigenous to the land. The Seri Indians are physically a fine race, rather above the medium height, though somewhat slightly made. They are very dark, with long, coarse hair, but when young are by no means ugly. They have low, quiet voices, and their language is much more melodious than that of the Yuma or Papago Indians. Their clothing is somewhat unusual, for they wear a kind of robe of pelican skins over a short kilt or skirt. These pelican rugs are beautifully made of between four and eight skins sewn together with sinews or deer skin, and are used as bedding at night. Their belts are of woven human hair or vegetable fiber, though snake and lizard skins are also used for the same purpose. The arms, bust, legs and feet are usually bare. When it is remembered that these people own no domestic animals of any kind, except dogs that are really coyotes, and do not cultivate or till the land at all, it will be seen that they have to depend entirely on hunting to supply them with dress and food. Pelicans are found literally by the thousand, especially round the little Isla Tasaco, and provide the Indians with ample sufficient material to make all the clothing and blankets they are likely to need in that hot and almost rainless climate. As regards food, they subsist chiefly on turtles, fish, molluscs and water-fowl, which are eaten raw and during the proper seasons they feed on the fruits of the various cacti and mesquite beans which grow fairly plentifully in the Seri mountains. Scattered over the greater portion of the island are charred oyster shells, which show that they are very partial to this form of food, and that they use fire to open shell-fish of all kinds, as they do not possess any knives. They catch the turtles by harpooning them with a very primitive kind of spear; the latter is made in two parts connected by a fiber rope, to the front one of which a rough point of hardened wood, stone, or, if possible, iron, is attached. As soon as they see a turtle they approach noiselessly from behind and thrust the spear through the shell. The front portion of the spear remains in the animal, but the turtle cannot escape because of the rope, and it is soon towed to the shore and there broken open, when it is roasted or eaten raw. Fish, which abound in these waters, are caught by means of a fiber line and primitive hook, the latter being very often made from a thorn or piece of bone, though sometimes the larger kinds of fish are killed with a bow and arrow, a weapon much in use among the Seri. Their huts are of the most primitive description, being made merely of dried brushwood and roofed with turtle shells and sponges. They afford some slight shelter from the sun, which is their main purpose, for the heat is always intense the year round, and I suppose that there are few better places on earth.

The foregoing facts are sufficient to mark the Seri as very distinct from other North American Indians; but there are many other curious and peculiar customs which they do not share with any other tribes. Their religion is exceedingly interesting, though somewhat obscure, and the focal character of their gods is a convincing proof of their long residence in that locality. Their chief deity, for instance, is the "Ancient of Pelicans," a mythical bird of marvelous wisdom and melodious song, and their lesser gods are supernatural beings in similar familiar forms. Every year, before starting out on their annual expeditions to gather fruit of the cacti, they hold their one important religious festival, at which they make many ceremonial offerings in order that the supply may be plentiful. Their dead are buried in their most elaborate garments, with their weapons beside them under a mound of stones. These graves are to be seen all over the Seri country, and bear eloquent, if silent, testimony to the valiant defense they have made against their enemies; for of the several thousand Seri Indians that were known to exist some thirty years ago, there are but three hundred and seventy-five left now, of which not more than seventy-two are adult males.

The country is no less unusual than its inhabitants, for it contains many remarkable trees and plants. It would be natural to suppose that

IN THE DESERT

In a land where there is practically no rain, vegetation would be very scarce, and the term "desert" generally conveys the idea of large sand plains devoid of all plant growth to those who have not seen them. But this is quite a wrong impression, for there is hardly a square mile anywhere in Seriland where some kind of tree or cactus cannot be found, though there may not be any water for miles around. This fact makes the botany of this region a most interesting study, for if the vegetation were not provided with special means of obtaining and storing water, it could not survive. All the trees and plants are perennials and have enormously long roots. The mesquite tree (Prosopis juliflora) and the palo verde (Parkinsonia torreyana) are the most common, and the former bears a kind of fruit or bean, which the Indians grind into corn. I remember once when traveling in the "Malpais" of Sonora I was obliged to rely for a whole month on these mesquite beans alone to feed my horses and pack animals, for grass is practically absent on these plains except for a very coarse variety called "galleta" by the natives, which is sometimes found in small patches. It says much for the nutritive value of the mesquite bean that I lost none of my animals, and only one mule seemed to be suffering towards the end of the time. Most of the low-lying country is covered with the Sonoran greasewood (Larrea tridentata), a small green bush of no value at all; but it is ubiquitous throughout Sonora, except in the mountains. But the really characteristic plant in Seriland is the cactus, which abounds in a variety of forms. They all have very long roots, some of which descend thirty feet to fifty feet to reach water. The stem itself is formed of pulp, that grows round a wooden core, and this serves as storehouse for the water they obtain, while they are covered with a kind of glazed epidermis to prevent evaporation, and are furnished with thorns, which effectually prevent animals from feeding on them. The "saguaro" or giant cactus (Cereus giganteus) is the most imposing, rising often to a height of fifty or sixty feet. It may be seen in vast numbers over the plains and on the lower part of the mountain slopes, and it assumes an endless variety of shapes, ranging from the single straight stem to when they are in flower, for at the end of each those containing fifteen or twenty arms. To those who see them for the first time they certainly present a remarkable sight, especially when they are in flower, for at the end of each branch they bear a wreath or crown of fragrant yellow, rose or purple flowers. No less unusual are the organ-pipe cactus, or "pithahaya" (Cereus shotii). They grow in clumps of eighteen or twenty stems, and reach a height of fifteen feet to twenty feet. A rarer cactus is the bisnaga, a smaller form of the saguaro; but it has one peculiar quality, which makes it very valuable both to the Indians and to travelers in the country, for it is the only plant from which water fit to drink may be obtained. The best way is to cut off the top and to crush the pulp within with a piece of wood or stone. Two to four pints of water can then be scooped out with a cup, the amount depending on the size of the plant. Except for a rather sickly taste, the water is not unpleasant.

There is another unusual plant also found in this region—the "ocotillo" (Fouquieria splendens). This remarkable shrub, which sometimes attains a height of fifteen feet, is composed of a number of long, thin branches, covered with thorns, and bears the most brilliant scarlet flowers.

Once each year, just after the short summer rains, the country wakes from its long drought to a belated spring. Gay-colored flowers nod among the rocks, and the cactus blossoms relieve the otherwise somber landscape. But this change in the face of the country is as transient as it is beautiful, and the fresh verdure soon fades to the neutral tints of its accustomed hopeless aridity.

A few words must be said about the fauna Tiburon island is so named because of the immense number of sharks that swarm the sea surrounding it. Pearl oysters are found near the Punta Tepopa, but the warlike character of the Seri has prevented any fishery from being established there. There are many porpoises and immense numbers of green turtles, while sea-birds of all kinds abound.

As regards mammals, there are said to be some sheep in the Seri mountains; but I very much doubt if they descend so far south, but there are one or two scattered bands of antelope and a few deer. To counterbalance this lack of big game, there are thousands of black-backed rattlesnakes, sidewinders, Gila monsters (Hiloderma horridum), horned toads and ants. But in traveling through the country there is little life to be seen except an occasional turkey buzzard or a coyote slinking through the cactus. The whole country is desolate and forbidding. Here and there are clusters of ruined huts, sadly reminding us that the Seri were once numerous but are now fast dying out. Day by day the sun passes in blinding splendor over the plains and over these deserted homes, and evening by evening the after-glow lays its long fingers of rose and amethyst over the landscape, transforming the scene for a moment into evanescent beauty till night wraps it softly in a pall of velvet black oblivion.

HE SAVED THREE STATES.

Result of a Stormy Meeting in Oregon Territory in 1843.

A few words of hurried conversation between two French settlers had an important part in deciding the question whether the far northwestern territory, from which the states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho were formed, should belong to Great Britain or the United States. A monument at Champeog, on the Willamette river, now marks the spot where this interesting episode took place. Theodore T. Geer, formerly governor of Oregon, tells about it in his book, "Fifty Years in Oregon," and quotes from the story of F. X. Matthieu, who saved the day for the United States, says the Youth's Companion. On a cloudy May day in 1843 102 settlers and Hudson Bay trappers, coming from near and far, crowded into a log building at Champeog, and held a stormy meeting. The Americans stood for an organized government and acquisition of the territory by the United States. The Hudson Bay men stood as firmly opposed, and when a vote was taken it was hard to tell which had won, since a good many on both sides were crowded about the doors, unable to push their way inside.

(A division was called for, and to make this possible the men rushed out to the little half-acre field in front of the building. There everybody began gesticulating frantically and discussing the situation with great excitement.

"All in favor of the organization follow me!" shouted Joe Meek, the famous pioneer and hunter, striding to one side.

The Americans followed to a man. A count disclosed the fact that there were 50 men with Meek and 50 opposed, with two men, both Frenchmen, between the opposing forces, not taking sides and engaged in a very earnest conversation. One of these, Etienne Lucler, had been led to believe that heavy taxes would be levied on all property if the Americans organized a government. The tax on a single pane of glass, he had heard, would be 25 cents. The other, F. X. Matthieu (who is still living in Oregon), was in favor of organization.

"Anyway," he said to his countryman, "you know you have no window glass in your house yet, and won't have for a long time." (Most of the settlers used skins in place of glass.) "What difference will it make? And it isn't so, anyway."

The suspense lasted but a few moments. Then the two men turned and took their places with the Americans. While hats were flying in the air and hand-shaking was going on the defeated Hudson Bay men mounted their horses and rode away, leaving the other party to organize a government and later to establish in that wide territory three great states of the American Union.

SCENT AS AN INSOMNIA CURE.

Pine Needles and Rose Leaves in Pillow Excellent Soporifics.

Scent has other attractions than a mere appeal to the nose, London Answers states. Anybody, for instance, who suffers from insomnia may find relief in perfume.

Collect a number of fresh pine needles and fill a bag with them; carefully rip open your pillow and place the bag amidst the feathers in the pillow. The perfume of the pines is often an excellent soporific.

A bag of dried hops used in the same way is just as good. Dried rose leaves, mixed with dried clover heads, give out a delicious perfume and help a weary one to woo the god of sleep.

A teaspoonful of can de Cologne in a warm bath is most refreshing, while scent placed on the forehead of any one who suffers from headache generally gives relief.

Pure From Start to Finish.
There is perhaps nothing in daily use in the home in which purity is so important as it is in baking powder. On its purity depends the purity of the materials used, the success of the bakings, etc. And possibly the one thing that has served to make Calumet Baking Powder so much of a favorite with the critical cooks of the country, is the fact that Calumet is pure from start to finish. You can rely on Calumet's purity for the simple reason that every ounce of the materials used is first tested by experienced chemists and then mixed with the utmost care to insure its uniformity. And standing in the face of changes of weather, etc., cannot alter it in any respect.

But perhaps the best thing of all, is the fact that Calumet never fails. Every baking in which Calumet is used, is sure to come from the oven as light and as fluffy as you can wish. This not only means wholesome, tasty foods—but a big economy as well. Try Calumet next bake-day—it's the best baking powder made—for two World's Pure Food Expositions, one in Chicago, 1897, and at Paris, France, 1902—have given it the highest awards. Adv.

Wise Young Man.
That was a very wise Cambridge student of whom the London story tellers were talking some time ago. One of his college friends finding himself without funds, went to this Solomon of students to borrow. He found him in bed. Seizing him by the shoulder, he shook him.
"I say," he said, "are you asleep?"
"Why do you ask?" queried the other, sleepily.
"I want to borrow a sovereign."
"Yes," said the other, turning over and closing his eyes. "I'm asleep."

Reason Was Plain.
"My husband has deserted me and I want a warrant," announced the large lady.
"What reason did he give for deserting you?" asked the prosecutor.
"I don't want any lip from you. I want a warrant. I don't know what reason he had."
"I think I understand his reason," said the official feebly, as he proceeded to draw up a warrant.

Mooted Question.
"How's Willie getting on at that free thought Sunday school you're sending him to?"

"First rate, from last accounts. He asked his pretty lady teacher who it was that first bit the apple in the Garden of Eden. Willie says she looked him straight in the eye and said nobody knew; that they'd been trying to figure out for the last 6,000 years."

BACKACHE NOT A DISEASE

But a Symptom, a Danger Signal Which Every Woman Should Heed.

Backache is a symptom of organic weakness or derangement. If you have backache don't neglect it. To get permanent relief you must reach the root of the trouble. Read about Mrs. Woodall's experience.

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have snuff-dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. If you think my testimony will help others you may publish it."—Mrs. OLLIE WOODALL, Morton's Gap, Kentucky.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

DESIGNED FOR THE FOULARD EASY TO RESTORE HAT

Some Original Ideas in Skirt Which Has Approval of English Fashion Journal.

Labella blue foulard figured with black would make up well like this. The skirt is eased in at the waist and trimmed at foot by two folds of material trimmed at the sides by three buttons and loops. The bodice has a vest of lace with a strip of material taken down the center, on which little black buttons are sewn; pieces of material are taken over the shoulders and crossed in front; buttons and loops form trimming here as well as on sleeves which are finished with plaited frills.—London Madame.

PREDICTION FOR THE COATS

Will Undoubtedly Be Longer and Some Changes of Importance Are Promised.

"What will the length of the coats be in the autumn and winter?" The question was asked by an American who wanted to order her fall suit early. The reply to her was thirty-two inches, for she is a trifle below the average height. In tailored suits the demand is for jackets thirty-two or thirty-four inches long, outaway in front, ending in a broad curve or blunt point in the back.

Some of the coats, however, are made very long in the back, almost reaching to the hem of the skirt, and cut away sharply from the waist line in the front; but these are too extreme to become popular, and in any case will only be worn by the exceptional woman who has many suits to choose from.

The most favored style is buttoned over slightly on the left side, and has the Robespierre collar and revers so arranged that they can be opened up when the weather permits. Some are made with perfectly straight-cut backs and others have a slight fullness in at the belt and a decided flare on the side seams.

Nearly all have slightly rounded or pointed corners and all show the modified cutaway effect. The Robespierre collar, with vest of some contrasting material, is very popular, and the sleeves are mostly of the set-in variety, made with a medium large armhole so that they can easily be slipped on or off.

Velvet-bound buttonholes and large ornamental buttons trim the best models.

UNIQUE DESIGNS IN FURS

Long, Separate Coats Have the Contrasting Idea Developed in Attractive Form.

The long separate coat of fur for late fall and winter will be the 53-inch type or longer.

Side fastenings, deep collars and revers and deep cuffs will be evident. The use of contrasting fur is exemplified in nearly every model shown by well-known furriers in Paris, and the joining of the fur is made so as to give a striped effect. This is very attractive in moleskin.

Chinchilla squirrel is a Paris novelty that is being used for trimming seal skin coats and making fur sets.

The cutaway line characterizes the lower edge of long coats. A panner hint is given by a curved, deep hem that shows far in a different direction.

Linings are just as beautiful as ever, some of the coats being lined with soft velour to make their warmth doubly assured. Brocades are in vogue and are of plain colors. Heavy plain satins are practical and rich in the dark blues, greens and golds.

Drying the Face.

Always use a soft towel and wipe upward and outward toward the ear. Do not drag the face downward if you want the muscles firm.

HOW WORK OF FRESHENING MAY BE ACCOMPLISHED.

Washing in Denatured Alcohol Will Do Wonders With the Frame—Faded Flowers the Hardest to Bring Back to Color.

The girl who does not want to spend another dollar on her hats can do a surprising amount of freshening. Let her remove the trimming and freshen the hat itself. A black hat is easy. It can be made to look like new by washing in denatured alcohol after dusting. The entire hat may be soaked in the alcohol and while still damp it is straightened where bent.

The woman who once a week wipes off black hats with alcohol and also uses it on ribbons will find her hats wear much longer.

Colored hats that have faded are seemingly hopeless, but a box of water-color paint, or some of the special dyes for straw hats, soon restores their beauty. Soiled white hats can be freshened by bread crumbs—a favorite method of cleaning with many milliners—and they are improved by coating thickly with magnesia, which is kept on over night. One woman uses the whitener that she put on her shoes.

Sunburnt hats are hard to freshen. If good, they should be sent to a beacher; if not worth that, try bleaching them at home with oxalic acid, a teaspoonful to a pint of water.

Scrub the straw well, then rinse at once with hot water, followed by cold. Wipe dry and hang in the sun. While still damp, press with a hot iron on the wrong side, with a thin cloth over the straw.

White feathers and the numerous aigrettes of the season may be made snowy by cleaning in a paste made of gasoline and white cornmeal, and rinsing with gasoline alone, or with more of the paste until it shows no soil. If the curl has come out, hold it over the kitchen range or curl the fuses, a few at a time, with the back of a heated silver knife.

Ribbons may be washed in alcohol and pressed under heavy paper or a thick cloth while still slightly damp. Faded flowers are almost hopeless, but may be freshened by coloring with powdered rouge, rubbing off the edges for shaded effects.

Steel buckles can be soaked in coal oil for six or eight hours, then polished with fine emery. Jet is brightened by rubbing in alcohol and polishing with tissue paper. Dulled bronze and gilt trimmings are difficult, but may be somewhat freshened by good silver polish thinned with alcohol instead of water.

Lace that will wash should be first soaked in cold water, then put in a glass jar with lukewarm water and a tiny pinch of borax and well shaken. Rinse well in several hot waters, squeeze out most of the moisture and dry by covering a drawing board with a Turkish towel, to which the lace is pinned, each point in position. Dry in the sun.

Lace that will not wash may be cleaned with French chalk or magne-

Still Hope.

Little Eva was lamenting because her baby-sister was not a boy. "Oh, well," she said philosophically, "she may be a boy when she grows up."

WILLIAM H. HILL

Progressive Candidate Congressman-at-Large.

Every voter has the right to vote for this office, it is a State office, and your vote for me will not affect any district Congressman.

MR. VOTER:—What is your standard for the man who is to represent the whole State of Michigan at Washington as Congressman-at-Large? Should he not be a man who has proven his ability and made a marked success in his chosen line of work—a man of standing, whose record is clean in every way?

All thinking people concede that existing conditions are far from being right, and, necessarily, measures of the utmost importance to all the people will be introduced in Congress. Therefore, would it not be well to have as your Congressman-at-Large a man of experience, a successful business man, who can vote and work for beneficial measures without a thought of political expediency and in fear of in favor of no one? I can do just that. AND I PLEDGE MYSELF TO DO IT.
