Grange Hold Interesting Meeting

The regular meeting of the Plymouth Grange was held at Penniman ball last week Thursday afternoon. About 85 members were present. At the noon hour a sumptuous chicken dinner was served by the ladies. It is needless to say that everyone had their appetites with them and thoroughly enjoyed the good things to eat. After the big dinner was disposed of, eight candidates were initiated into the Grange. A short program was then given, consisting of a recitation by John S. Root, vocal solo by J. W. Burrows of Northville, and a selection by Wm. Harmon on the violin and J. W. Burrows on the cello, accompanied by Elmer Whipple on the piano. Each number was excellent and greatly appreciated. The Grange is contemplating the building of a hall of their own in the near future, and the building committee now have four desirable sights under consideration.

Raweis' Gave a Fine Entertainment

The second number on the lecture course, given in the opera house Tuesday evening, was intensely interesting, when Mr. Raweis and family gave to the audience a brief history, aided by song and picture, of the South Sea Islanders. They wore the native costumes and contrasted the conditions of sixty years ago, when their people were taboo savages, living in idol covered huts along the river banks, up to the present time, an enlightened and educated people. They displayed many kinds of fabric made by the South Sea Islanders from wood and grass. Mrs. Raweis, a woman of education and culture, spoke of the position of the women of the islands, saying that since their civilization women have been considered man's equal, and that they have had the right of suffrage there for 22 years, claiming much good had resulted therefrom.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert and Miss Vera Hengsterfer of Ann Arbor, were Thanksgiving guests at Carl Heide's.

Photographs of yourself, children, friends, pets, home or anything of interest to you will be taken on post cards for $1.00 per dozen. Indoor pictures can be taken at night if desired. For further information call up Davis B. Hilmer. Home phone 81.

"There could be no better medicine than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. My children were all sick with whooping cough. One of them was in bed, had a high fever and was coughing up blood. Our doctor gave them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the first dose eased them, and three bottles cured them," says Mrs. R. A. Donaldson, of Lexington, Miss. For sale by all dealers.—Advertisement.

Made an Extraordinary Good Run

The returns in from the various counties of the Second Congressional District shows that the total vote in the District for the three leading presidential candidates was as follows: Taft, 12148; Wilson, 17642; Roosevelt, 17372. The total vote for the three leading Congressional candidates was as follows: Wedemeyer, 16850; Beakes 16761; Probert 13600.

From the above it will be seen that Mr. Roosevelt received 5224 more than Mr. Taft, and Mr. Wilson received 5494 more votes than Mr. Taft. Nevertheless, Mr. Wedemeyer, on the face of the returns was beaten by only about 100 votes, showing that he ran tremendously ahead of his ticket. It is plain from the figures that Mr. Wedemeyer received a large Democratic and Progressive vote, and that notwithstanding his apparent defeat, on the face of the returns, he made a phenomenal run under all the circumstances.

It must be remembered that even under normal conditions the Second District is not as overwhelmingly Republican as most of the other Districts of Michigan. It includes old Democratic strongholds in Washtenaw and Monroe, while Jackson county has always been a doubtful county politically. Lenawee, too, had a very strong Third party sentiment and even that part of Wayne in the Second District, did not include any wards of Detroit, but country districts in which the Third party sentiment had a strong hold. Besides, the Third party candidates, both for Governor and United States Senator were from the Second District and the first State Convention of that party was held at Jackson.

The Third party movement was probably stronger in the Second District than in any other section of the State, so strong, in fact, that in conjunction with the regular Democratic strength in the District, relatively few of the Republican county and legislative candidates were elected in the Second Congressional District.

The returns as given are nearly correct as can be obtained. They were gotten from the offices of various County Clerks, and show that in every county in the District Mr. Wedemeyer ran far ahead of the Republican ticket. Under anything like normal conditions he would have undoubtedly been elected by an overwhelming majority.

Already from every section of the District, both by letter and in person have come numberless requests that he make the race again in two years. In the meantime, after finishing his term on March the 4th, he will return to Ann Arbor, where he will continue in the law practice as a member of the firm of Cavanaugh, Wedemeyer and Burke, with which firm he has been associated for some years.

PEANUTS AND POLITICS.

It has been decided by the agricultural department that the peanut is not a nut. Like the regular pea, it belongs to the bean family, otherwise known as leguminosae. Down in its native country it is known as a "gober," "pinder," "ground pea," and other names, indicating its doubtful classification. Ground pea is a good name, for it is dug up from the ground like a potato. But there is one thing about the peanut which involves no doubt, and that is its fitness for baseball, the circus and sitting on a dry goods box and talking politics, says the Ohio State Journal. But dropping the peanut glory and coming to a golden memory, the former denizen of a village will remember how the dry goods stores would always put their empty boxes on the sidewalk, on which men would sit, whittle, chew tobacco and talk politics. Those were great tobacco chewing and spitting days, and politics chimed in happily with them. September and October were the best months for whittling up dry goods boxes and settling national affairs, and those were the days, too, of the peanut and plug tobacco—not the scrap stuff that ruins people nowadays, but real old Virginia plug, that was full of politics.

There was a time when the wholesome teachings of our mothers had an influence, when the home influence was felt after the feedings had left the nest, and there are still some that are considered by many as "old-fashioned" who believe as our revered parents did, says the Washington Herald. Granting that a woman has the same rights as a man, that they can do the same things as man, can smoke, take a cocktail, ride a horse astride, and such things that were once considered as purely in man's province, yet the doing of these things have a tendency to bring the good woman down to the level of the company she is in, to make the telling of a risqué story in mixed company a common matter. We discuss eugenics with our children; they are allowed to read almost any novel they can get their hands on, and are allowed liberties former generations were strangers to. A return to the "old-fashioned" ideas of our mothers, to the time when the conventionalities were observed, might be looked upon as a step backward by the fast set of today, but to the thinking man or woman who still believes in the sanctity of the home and home life it would help to establish a purity that is sadly lacking in many families in this twentieth century.

Many persons are of the opinion that the wireless system of communication is particularly subject to tapping, but, according to the Scientific American, no telegraph system is absolutely secret. Any one familiar with the Morse code can read ordinary messages entering any telegraph office. At Poldhu, on a telephone connected to a long horizontal wire, the messages passing on a government telegraph line a quarter of a mile away can be distinctly read. It has been shown that it is possible to pick up at a distance, on another circuit, conversation which may be passing through a telephone or telegraph wire. On one occasion an investigator was able to interfere, for a distance, with the working of the ordinary telephones in Liverpool.

The first arrival in New York of specimens of the tsetse fly of the Congo was noted the other day. The flies were dead and preserved in a bottle of alcohol in the possession of A. H. Hale, who was a passenger on the steamship Finland. They will be available for examination by medical scientists, who desire to study them at close range. The tsetse fly is the carrier of the sleeping sickness, which is said to have depopulated considerable districts in the heart of Africa. It is a biting fly, which is under suspicion in this country, have said that it more nearly resembles the tsetse fly than any other American representative of the fly family. The specimens which Mr. Hale has brought into the country will enable comparisons to put this opinion to the test.

EISY SLAYERS GO FREE.

Homicide Charges Dismissed Upon Motion of State's Attorney.

The case against Capt. Frank Blackman and Private Jackson, of the Michigan National Guard, charged with slaying John Eisy during the recent riots at Jackson prison, was nolle prossed by Judge Parkinson, on motion of Attorney General Wykes. Judge Parkinson stated in passing on the motion that while he was not sure that the military had any legal right to attempt to arrest Eisy in the heart of the city, where there was no disorder and where the civil authorities were not unable to protect the right and property of the people, that the governor has approved of the finding of the military court of inquiry and as such as stated that should the respondents be convicted, he would pardon them, the court did not wish to assume that the governor of this state was evading his duty.

A pardon, he said, would make a conviction fruitless, and should there be an acquittal, it would accomplish but one thing, an unnecessary expense to Jackson county.

M. C. to Enlarge Shop at Marshall.

The Michigan Central Railroad Co. will erect a large addition to its shops in Marshall in the spring provided it does not buy the plant of the New Process Steel Co. for a car shop. The railroad company owns considerable property here but the shops of the steel company adjoin the Michigan Central and the plant is for sale.

The Michigan Central is unable to do its car work in the Detroit shops for lack of space and help, and there is no ground there available for addition to the shops. During the past year many cars have been sent from Detroit here for repairs, but all the work has been done out of doors.

Plans for new shops have been drawn.

Hope to Strike Gas Instead of Oil.

There are in Saginaw city and county seven oil wells in process of construction, or already drilled, and the Michigan Gas & Oil company is in the field and derricks are being erected for two wells. These will be in Buena Vista township near Saginaw, and in Ashley. In both places the company has large lease holdings. The Saginaw Development company is about to shoot its third well which is located 800 feet from No. 2 well. The company has three other wells in different stages. Most of the oil operations from now on will be in different townships and along the river.

The harvesting of the first rice crop near San Francisco is now in progress. The crop will average about 5,000 pounds to the acre. About 12,000 acres were planted.

Work has been started on the Eastern Edison Power Co. dam, at Belleville. The structure, it is said, will be one of the largest in the middle west. The site on the Huron river represents an expenditure by the company of about $200,000.

Socialists of Flint have purchased a lot 40x180 feet. The property will be divided equally among the members of the party, who are not now taxpayers. The idea is to give every socialist in this city the privilege of voting on bonding issues.

Ground Between Cog Wheels.

Falling between the great cogs of a 40-horse power water wheel at the plant of the Grand Rapids Grain and Milling Co., Henry Dykema, 36, was ground to pieces while half a dozen men tried to extricate his body. The victim was jammed in between the beveled gears, his head held against the shaft and one hand caught in the cogs. Dykema was a teamster who made deliveries at the plant, and had gone into the basement to assist Andrew Watson, the head miller. He was unmarried.

Gibson Jury Disagreed.

The jury trying Burton W. Gibson, in Goshen, N. Y., for the alleged murder of Mrs. Rose Menschik Szabo, on Greenwood lake, July 16, announced its inability to agree.

The jury made its final report to the court at 11:15 a. m., it then having been out 15 hours and 35 minutes. Twice before it had reported a disagreement but each time had been sent back by Justice Tompkins to continue its deliberations.

Fire Sweeps Over Miles of Prairie.

A thousand square miles of territory, mostly within the Sioux Indian reservation, in South Dakota, was swept by a prairie fire of huge proportions.

The town of White Owl is reported entirely wiped out. A dozen other towns were threatened. An unknown number of homesteaders' shacks were burned.

Senator Raynor Is Dead.

Senator Isidor Raynor, of Maryland, one of the leading democrat members of the United States senate, and a man whose name was offered to the Baltimore convention by William J. Bryan as a suitable candidate for the presidential nomination, died in Washington, at the end of a long illness resulting from continued attacks of neuritis.

Cecelia Farley Free.

Miss Cecelia Farley, the pretty young state stenographer, who, for two weeks, has been on trial in Columbus, O., for first degree murder for the shooting of Alvin E. Zollinger, an advertising solicitor, in a city park last May, was acquitted after a jury had been out for three and a half hours.

VICTORY FOR ENGINEERS.

30,000 Engine Drivers Get Increase in Wages.

The 30,000 locomotive engineers of 52 eastern railroads have won their fight for an increase in wages.

The board of arbitration between the railroads and the engineers in its award, made public in Washington, does not grant all of the engineers' demands, but establishes minimum wages, which amount to a substantial increase on most of the roads.

The award probably brings the 52 railroads of the east face to face with demands for increases by the gremen and other employes.

Austria and Serbia at Swords Point.

Relations between Austria-Hungary, and Serbia are now so strained that political circles in Vienna have abandoned hope of the preservation of peace.

FEAR OF GENERAL WAR IS GROWING

SERBIA IS RUSHING TROOPS TO HER BORDERS AND ITALY IS ARMING.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN TURKS AND BALKANS IS THREATENED.

Ottomans, Believing Complications Will Aid Them, Say They Will Keep Adrianople—What Turkey Demands.

Anxiety over the international situation due to the quarrel between Austria and Serbia was increased by dispatches from the continent stating that nearly 5,000,000 men were under arms in Russia, Germany and Austria and that Serbia was sending all her available troops to the Hungarian border to repel any attack by Austria.

The situation was made more tense by report that Italy also was preparing for war. This indicated that the triple alliance composed of Italy, Germany and Austria, would stand united against the Slav nations headed by Russia.

There is no denial of the information that Serbia is strengthening all her defenses on the Hungarian frontier and is moving her troops toward the Danube. Serbia also seems to have adopted a policy of annoyance toward Austria.

Correspondents in Constantinople who were in close touch with the Ottoman government intimate that Turkey is secretly working to precipitate a clash in Europe to save her own European possessions.

What Turkey Demands.

First—No war indemnity.

Second—The retention by Turkey of the territory bounded by the Maritza river, the fortress of Adrianople to be included.

Third—The maintenance of the sovereignty of the sultan of Turkey in Albania.

GUNMEN TO DIE JANUARY 6.

Four Braves Convicted of Killing Herman Rosenthal Are Sentenced.

Justice Goff, in the criminal branch of the supreme court, in New York, sentenced Whitey Lewis, Dago Frank, Lefty Louie and Gyp the Blood, the four gunmen convicted of the actual killing of Herman Rosenthal, gambler, to be electrocuted in Sing Sing prison during the week beginning Jan. 6.

Sheriff Julius Harburger preceded the quartet into court. He had on a long overcoat, with a big revolver in each pocket. From the time he entered the room until the door closed behind him as he followed the last of the four condemned men back to the Tombs, his grip never left the pistols.

But there was no apparent need for the display, as nothing interfered with the proceedings.

None of the men showed the slightest emotion. Dago Frank was the only one to say good bye to counsel, shaking hands with Wable before he was led out of the court room.

It is expected that a formal notice of appeal, which will automatically act as a stay, will be filed within 10 days.

LABOR LEADERS ACQUITTED

Ettor, Giovannitti and Caruso Freed in Salem, Mass.

Joseph J. Ettor and Arturo Giovannitti, leaders of the Industrial Workers of the World, and Joseph Caruso, tried in Salem, Mass., for the murder of Annie Lopizzo, a woolen operative, killed during the Lawrence, Mass., strike last January, were acquitted.

According to the instructions to the jury neither Ettor nor Giovannitti could have been found guilty of murder in the first degree. They were accused by the state of arousing a murderous frenzy by their speeches which resulted in the mill woman's death.

So intricate were the chief threads of the case that labor leaders who had been following it declared a verdict of guilty would have established a precedent which would make effective labor strikes in the future an impossibility.

When the men heard the words freeing them from the charge, they embraced and kissed each other in the prisoners' cage.

Suiting Himself.

The modern small boy is painfully cautious.

"Would you like to come to our bonfire on the 5th of November?" one was asked.

Worth Three Himes a Diamond.

Nearly all the emeralds mined today come from Colombia. And, in spite of the supposed higher value of diamonds, the emerald is the most precious of gems. Carat for carat, a flawless emerald would bring perhaps three times the price of a flawless diamond in the jewelry market. India, the storehouse of precious stones, is credited with producing the first emeralds, but the Oriental emerald is not identical with the modern gem, as it is a variety of the ruby, of green color and extremely rare.

SYNOPSIS.

Lieut. Harry Mallory is ordered to the Philippines. He and Marjorie Newton decide to elope, but wreck of taxi cab prevents their seeing minister on way to the train. Transcontinental train is taking on passengers. Porter has a lively time with an Englishman and Ira Lathrop, a Yankee business man. The elopers have an exciting time getting to the train. "Little Jimmie" Wellington, bound for Reno to get a divorce, boards train in maudlin condition. Later Mrs. Jimmie appears. She is also bound for Reno with same object. Likewise Mrs. Sammy Whitcomb. Letter blames Mrs. Jimmie for her marital troubles. Classmates of Mallory decorate bridal berth. Rev. and Mrs. Temple start on a vacation. They decide to cut loose and Temple removes evidence of his calling. Marjorie decides to let Mallory proceed alone. Mort starts while they are lost in farewell. Passengers join Mallory's classmates in giving couple wedding blessing. Marjorie is distracted. Ira Lathrop woman-hating bachelor, discovers an old sweetheart, Annie Gattie, a fellow-passenger. Mallory vainly hunts for a preacher among the passengers. Mrs. Wellington hears Little Jimmie's voice. Later she meets Mrs. Whitcomb. Mallory reports to Marjorie his failure to find a preacher. They decide to pretend quarrel and Mallory finds a vacant berth. Mrs. Jimmie discovers Wellington on the train. Mallory again makes an unsuccessful hunt for a preacher. Dr. Temple poses as a physician. Mrs. Temple is induced by Mrs. Wellington to smoke a cigar. Sight of preacher on a station platform raises Mallory's hopes, but he takes another train. Miss Lathrop begs the preacher to borrow from passengers. Jimmie gets a cinder in his eye and Mrs. Jimmie gives first aid. Coolness is then resumed. Still no preacher. Mort borrowing. Dr. Temple puzzled by behavior of different couples. Marjorie's jealousy aroused by Mallory's baseball largon. Marjorie suggests wrecking the train in hopes that accident will produce a preacher. Also tries to induce conductor to hold train so she can shop. Marjorie's dog is missing. She pulls the cord, stopping the train. Conductor restores dog and lovers quarrel. Lathrop wife for a preacher to marry him and Miss Gattie. Mallory tells Lathrop of his predicament and arranges to borrow the preacher. Kitty Lewellyn, former sweetheart of Mallory's, appears and arouses Marjorie's jealousy. Preacher boards train. After marrying Lathrop and Miss Gattie the preacher escapes Mallory by leaping from moving train. Mallory's dejection moves Marjorie to reconciliation. The last day brings Mallory and Marjorie the tear of missing his transport. Mallory gets a Nevada marriage license. Marjorie refuses to be married by a divorcee. Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie make up. Kitty Lewellyn refuses to return Mallory's bracelet. Robbers hold up the train.

Marjorie was trying at the same time to compel Mallory to crawl under a seat and to find a place to hide Snoozeums, whom she was warning not to say a word. Snoozeums, understanding only that his mistress was in some distress, refused to stay in his basket and kept offering his services and his attentions.

Suddenly Marjorie realized that Kathleen was trying to faint in Mallory's arms, and forgot everything else in a determined effort to prevent her.

After the first blood-sweat of abject fright had begun to cool, the passengers came to realize that the invaders were not after lives, but loot. Then came a panic of miserly effort to conceal treasure.

Kathleen, finding herself banished from Mallory's protection, ran to Mrs. Whitcomb, who had given Ashton up as a hopeless task.

"What shall we do, oh, what, oh what shall we do, dear Mrs. Wellington?" she cried.

"Don't you dare call me Mrs. Wellington!" Mrs. Whitcomb screamed; then she began to flutter. "But we'd better hide what we can. I hope the rab-robbers are gentlemen-men."

She pushed a diamond locket containing a small portrait of Sammy into her back hair, leaving part of the chain dangling. Then she tried to stuff a large handbag into her stocking.

Mrs. Fosdick found her husband at last, for he made a wild dash to her side, embraced her, called her his wife and, defied all the powers of Nevada to tear them apart. He had a brilliant idea. In order to save his fat wallet from capture, he tossed it through an open window. It fell at the feet of one of the robbers as he ran along the side of the car, shooting at such heads as were put out of windows. He picked it up and dropped it into the feed-bag he had swung at his side. Then running on, he clambered over the brass rail of the observation platform and entered the rear of the train, as his confederate, driving the conductor ahead of him, forged his way aft from the front, while a third masquerader aligned the engineer, the fireman, the brakeman and the baggage-men.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Hands Up!

All this time Lieutenant Mallory had been thinking as hard as an officer in an ambulance. His narrowing experiences and incessant defeat: the past days had unnerved him and shattered his self-confidence. He was not afraid, but intensely disgusted. He sat absent-mindedly patting Marjorie on the back and repeating:

"Don't worry, honey; they're not going to hurt anybody. They don't want anything but our money! Don't worry, I won't let 'em hurt you."

But he could not shake off a sense of nausea. He felt himself a representative of the military prowess of the country, and here he was as helpless as a man on parole.

The fact that Mallory was a soldier occurred to a number of the passengers simultaneously. They had been trained by early studies in those beautiful works of fiction, the school histories of the United States, and by many Fourth of July, to believe that the American soldier is an invincible being, who has never been defeated and never known fear.

They surged up to Mallory in a wave of hope. Dr. Temple, being nearest, spoke first. Having learned by experience that his own prayers were not always answered as he wished, had an impulse to try some weapon he had never used.

"Young man," he pleaded across the back of a seat, "will you kindly lend me a gun?"

Mallory answered sullenly: "Mine is in my trunk on the train ahead, damn it. If I had it I'd have a lot of fun."

Mrs. Whitcomb had an inspiration. She ran to her berth, and came back with a tiny silver-plated revolver.

"I'll lend you this. Sammy gave it to me to protect myself in Nevada!"

Mallory smiled at the 22-caliber toy, broke it open, and displayed an empty cylinder.

"Where are the pills that go with it?" he said.

"Oh, Sammy wouldn't let me have any bullets. He was afraid I'd hurt myself."

Mallory returned it, with a bow. "It would make an excellent nut-cracker."

"Aren't you going to use it?" Mrs. Whitcomb gasped.

"It's empty," Mallory explained.

"But the robbers don't know that! Couldn't you just overawe them with it?"

"Not with that," said Mallory, "unless they died laughing."

Mrs. Wellington pushed forward: "Then what the devil are you going to do when they come?"

Mallory answered meekly: "If they request it, I shall hold up my hands."

"And you won't resist?" Kathleen gasped.

"Not a resist."

"And he calls himself a soldier!" she sneered.

Mallory writhed, but all he said was: "A soldier doesn't have to be a jackass. I know just enough about guns not to monkey with the wrong end of 'em."

"Coward!" she flung at him. He turned white, but Marjorie red, and made a leap at her, crying: "He's the bravest man in the world. You say a word, and I'll scratch your eyes out!"

This rehearsed Mallory a little, and he laughed nervously, as he restrained her. Kathleen retreated out of danger, with a parting shot: "Our engagement is off."

"Thanks," Mallory said, and put out his hand: "Will you return the bracelet?"

"I never return such things," said Kathleen.

The scene was so painful and such an anachronism that Dr. Temple tried to renew a more pressing subject: "It's your opinion then that we'd best surrender?"

"Of course—since we can't run."

Wedgewood broke in impatiently: "Well, I consider it a dastardly outrage. I'll not submit to it. I'm a subject of His Majesty the—"

"You're a subject of His Majesty the Man Behind the Gun," said Mallory.

"I shall protest, none the less," Wedgewood insisted.

Mallory grinned a little. "Have you any last message to send home to your mother?"

Wedgewood was a trifle chilled at this. "D-don't talk of such things," he said.

And by this time the train-robbers had hastily worked their way through the other passengers, and reached the frantic inhabitants of the sleeper, "Snowdrop."

"Hands up! Higher!! Hands up!" With a true sense of the dramatic, the robbers sent ahead of them the most hair-raising yells. They arrived simultaneously at each end of the aisle, and with a few short sharp commands, straightened the disorderly rabble into a beautiful line, with all palms aloft and all eyes wide and wild.

One robber drove ahead of him the conductor and the other drove in Mr. Manning, whom he had found trying to crawl between the shelves of the linen-closet.

The marauders were apparently cattlemen, from their general get-up. Their hats were pulled low, and just beneath their eyes they had drawn big black silk handkerchiefs, tied behind the ears and hanging to the breast.

Over their shoulders they had slung the feed-bags of their horses, to serve as receptacles for their swag. Their shirts were chalky with alkali dust. Their legs were encased in heavy chaparejos, and they carried each a pair of well-used Colt's revolvers that looked as big as artillery.

When the passengers had shoved and jostled into line, one of the men jabbed the conductor in the back with the muzzle of his gun, and snarled: "Now speak your little piece, like I learned it to you."

The conductor, like an awkward schoolboy, grinned sheepishly, and spoke, his hands in the air the while: "Ladies and gents, these here parties in the black tidies says they want everybody to hold his or her hands as high as possible till you get permission to lower 'em; they advise you not to resist, because they hate the sight of blood, but prefer it to argument."

The impatient robbers, themselves the prey of fearful anxieties, broke in, barking like a pair of crows in a jumble of commands: "Now, line up with your backs that way, and no back talk. These guns shoot awful easy. And remember, as each party is finished with, they are to turn round and keep their hands up, on penalty of gittin' 'em shot off. Line up! Hands up! Give over there!"

Mrs. Jimmie Wellington took her time about moving into position, and her deliberation brought a bowl of wrath from the robber: "Get into that line, you!"

Mrs. Wellington whirled on him: "How dare you, you brute?" And she turned up her nose at the gun.

The anxious conductor intervened: "Better obey, madame; he's an ugly lad."

"I don't mind being robbed," said Mrs. Jimmie, "but I won't endure rudeness."

The robber shook his head in despair, and he tried to whisper her with sarcasm: "Pardons, mamselle, would you be so kind and condescendin' as to step into that there car before I blow your husband's gol-blame head off."

This brought her to terms. She hastened to her place, but put out a restraining hand on Jimmie, who needed no restraint. "Certainly, to save my dear husband. Don't strike him, Jimmie!"

Then each man stuck one revolver into its convenient holster, and, covering the passengers with the other, proceeded to frisk away valuables with a speed and agility that would have looked prettier if those impatient-looking muzzles had not pointed here, there and everywhere with such venomous threats.

And so they worked from each end of the car toward the middle. Their hands ran swiftly over bodies with a loathsome familiarity that could only be resented, not revenged. Their hands dived into pockets, and up sleeves, and into women's hair, everywhere that a jewel or a bill might be secreted. And always a rough growl or a swing of the revolver silenced any protest.

Their heinous fingers had hardly begun to ply, when the solemn stillness was broken by a chuckle and low hoot of laughter, a darkey's unctuous laughter. At such a place it was more shocking than at a funeral.

"What ails you?" was the nearest robber's demand.

The porter tried to wipe his streaming eyes without lowering his hands, as he chuckled on: "I—I—just thought of sumpun funny."

"Funny!" was the universal groan.

"I was just thinking," the porter snickered, "what mighty poor pickings you-all are goin' to git out of me. Whilst if you had 'a' waited till I got to 'Frisco, I'd jest natchelly been oozin' money."

The robber relieved him of a few dimes and quarters and ordered him to turn round, but the black face whirled back as he heard from the other end of the car Wedgewood's indignant complaint: "I say, this is an outrage!"

"Ah, close your trap and turn round, or I'll—"

The porter's smile died away. "Good Lawd," he sighed, "they're goin' to skin that British lion! And I just wore myself out on him."

The far-reaching effect of the whole procedure was just beginning to dawn on the porter. This little run on the bank meant a period of financial stringency for him. He watched the hurrying hands a moment or two, then his wrath rose to terrible proportions:

"Look here, man," he shouted at the robber, "ain't you-all goin' to leave these passengers nothin' a tall?"

"Not on purpose, nigger."

"No small change, or nothin'?"

"Nary a red."

"Thee, passengers," the porter proclaimed, while the robber watched him in amazement; "thee, passengers, I want to give you-all fair warnin' beah and now: No tips, no whisk-broom!"

Perhaps because their hearts were already overflowing with distress, the passengers endured this appalling threat without comment, and when there was a commotion at the other end of the line, all eyes rolled that way.

Plan to Make Rome Seaport.

The latest project to make Rome a seaport is to lay out a port 35 feet deep near Castel Fusaro, formed by running two jetties out into the sea for some distance, as at the port of Ymuiden, Holland. From the port will lead a ship canal 15 miles long and 200 feet wide and 27 feet deep. At Rome shipping accommodations will be laid out in the river below the city, and this will be connected with the navigable part of the Tiber by a system of locks. It will cost about $15,000,000 to carry out the project. Opponents of the idea claim it will not pay, but the promoters affirm that when once the city is connected with the Mediterranean there will result a great amount of traffic.

Embarrassed Judge.

It would be unkind to give the name of an eminent Massachusetts judge who beckoned an officer in the court to him the other day to inquire the name of a certain man sitting in the courtroom. The judge felt that he knew him very intimately—and perhaps ought to extend to him some special courtesies—but, not recalling his name, could not decide what to do.

The officer of the court returned in a few moments with the report that the gentleman was a bartender of Young's.—Boston Herald.

Worked as Tailor by Day and Burglar by Night

CHICAGO.—In the daytime Joe Graeber, thirty years old, undersized and agile, sat, cross-legged in his little tailor shop at Twenty-sixth street and Northwestern avenue, and stitched with industry. He worked hard and was acquiring the reputation of being an honest and thrifty tradesman.

But at night Joe Graeber, the tailor, became another man. The deft needle work was dropped and forgotten and instead and quite as skillfully, Joe wielded the "Jimmy." In the daytime Joe's needle went in and out ceaselessly. Joe himself went "in and out" as industriously at night, the police say, and quite as silently. Graeber himself says tailoring paid about as well as burglar work and at neither could he pay his rent.

The sharp, frosty crack of something that might have been ice under foot, and again might have been glass breaking, attracted the attention of Patrolmen Stevens and Muse, in Northwestern avenue, near Twenty-seventh street, about 2 o'clock in the morning. Just across from where they stood were two stores, and between them was a narrow passage. They watched silently in the shadow of a building, and did not have to watch long. The sound was repeated, and after a moment's silence a shadow that seemed a part of the wall of the building separated itself from the entrance of the dark passage.

"Here, you—up with your hands—I'll shoot," commanded Stevens. The shadow melted back into the passage, and became a noise of running. A second sharper command brought Joe Graeber, the tailor, to a halt.

"You know me, boys, don't you, boys?" he said. "You scared me so I ran."

Stevens and Muse looked with surprise into Graeber's face. They both knew him and said so. But they couldn't understand why the honest tailor should be just where Graeber was. Under the circumstances, however, he was searched, and a very good "Jimmy" and a patent glass cutter were found in his pockets.

Graeber confessed. He said he tried to pay rent tailoring and couldn't so he took to burglar work at night.

Clinging Gown Nearly Costs This Man His Life

ATLANTA, GA.—Form fitting feminine fashions—and you all know what they mean—a six cylinder automobile and a stranger in our midst from the country were the dramatic personae in a fall curtain opener that electrified pedestrians on the Whitehall viaduct at the luncheon hour. The play turned out humorously, and it is probably that all the cast are living happily ever afterward. Just the same, the gentleman from the country gazed for a moment over the brink of eternity.

It all happened at the crest of the noon halt in business. At the Alabama street end of the viaduct the throng was thick and busy.

There came along, with the grace of a Godiva and clad almost as snugly as one, a member of the feminine population of Atlanta adorned in the extreme fashion of today as it applies to the softer sex. You understand about those tight skirts; of course. Well, the young woman had on a tight skirt, and then some. It was as though she were poured into it—above and below meridian, torso and all.

This vision was nearing Alabama street when across the viaduct strode a sturdy specimen of the best yeomanry that Georgia produces.

He had half way negotiated the streets, congested at best, when The

Education and Larger Life.

It seems to me that the woman who cannot cut out a garment better because of her geometry and her drawing lessons, who cannot speak English more distinctly and with fuller vocabulary because of her study of French or German, who cannot find a hundred uses for her chemistry in the little everyday emergencies of her house-keeping, has not succeeded in getting from her studies all that they had to give her.—Home Progress Magazine.

Turkish Counting of Time.

Through the center of the mosque of St. Sophia runs the theoretical meridian which gave the Turks true local time—one hour and fifty-six minutes fifty-two seconds fast on Greenwich—until, two years ago, the new government fell in with the standard system of time zones, and came into the eastern European zone, exactly two hours ahead of Greenwich time. For religious purposes, however, 12 o'clock always happens at sunset, and noon thus wanders with the seasons all round the clock.—Westminster Gazette.

Why He Wept.

At a reception one night, says the Woman's Home Companion, a loud voiced young man was invited to sing. Desultory applause followed, and he responded with a vociferous rendering of "My Old Kentucky Home." The hostess was passing among her guests, beaming at the success of her entertainment and sure that everybody was having a good time, when suddenly, to her surprise, she came upon a middle-aged man but slightly known to her, who was weeping silently but bitterly in a secluded corner. Thinking that his heart had been touched by the old song, she asked sympathetically: "Why do you weep? Are you a Kentuckian?"

"No, madam," he replied. "I am a musician."

Ancient Egyptians Used Our Up-To-Date Styles

"We are very slightly changed from the semi-apes that ranged India's prehistoric day."

Professor Kroeber and his assistant, E. W. Jifford who gives the lecture, are of the opinion the change is less than slight, and they have proceeded with a delicate sense of irony to contrast some of the new styles with the old.

There is a plaster cast of an Egyptian lass wearing one of those gowns that begin to hobble right at the neck and never vary all the way down, except as nature asserts itself. This effect is popular, also, in 1912.

The women of Crete were wearing corsets about the same time—four thousand years ago. They have such a corset in the museum, and it looks like one of a pair of puttees worn by a stout cavalry officer.

Judge's New Domicile Keeps Things Sparkling

CLEVELAND, O.—Shocking! Perfectly shocking!

That's what is said of the home of George Baer, municipal judge, at 1728 East One Hundred and Sixteenth street. And the house is shocking—the judge admits it.

"Ecstatically speaking," Baer adds. When the judge's wife arose the other morning and started to ply a comb through her locks a crackling sound arrested her. She dropped the comb and felt of her sleeve connection. There had been no rip, but when she started to comb again the crackling resulted.

She touched the judge on the forehead to awaken him. A little spark jumped up more promptly than his honor.

"Here's your coffee, George," she said at breakfast, and as he reached to take it their fingers touched and another little spark jumped from the contact point of their digits.

And then—and here's the real reason for the investigation started by Baer—when the judge was about to leave for downtown he and his wife

A FRIEND'S ADVICE

Something Worth Listening To.

A young Nebr. man was advised by a friend to eat Grape-Nuts because he was all run down from a spell of fever. He tells the story:

"Last spring I had an attack of fever that left me in a very weak condition. I had to quit work; had no appetite, was nervous and discouraged.

"A friend advised me to eat Grape-Nuts, but I paid no attention to him and kept getting worse as time went by.

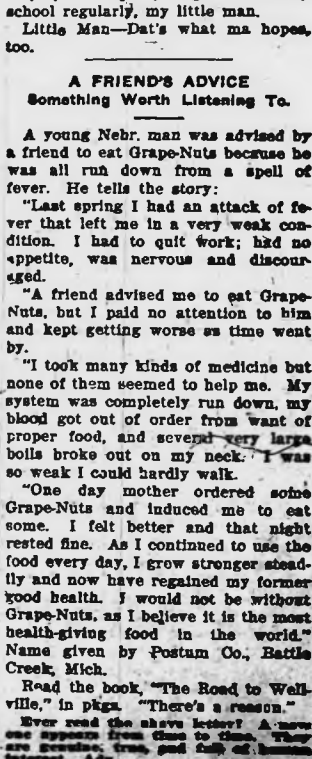

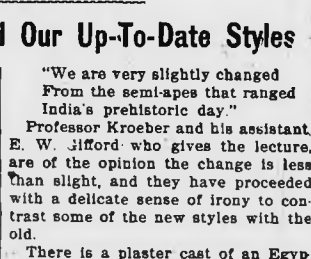

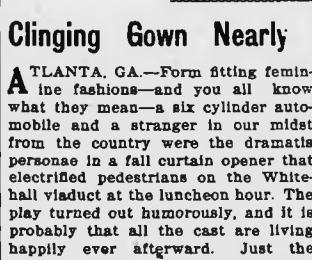

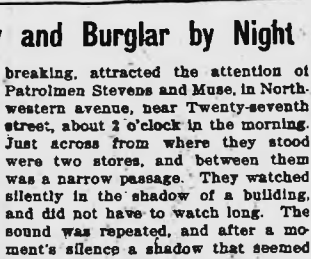

"I took many kinds of medicine but none of them seemed to help me. My system was completely run down, my blood got out of order from want of proper food, and several very large boils broke out on my neck. I was so weak I could hardly walk.

"One day mother ordered some Grape-Nuts and induced me to eat some. I felt better and that night rested fine. As I continued to use the food every day, I grew stronger steadily and now have regained my former good health. I would not be without Grape-Nuts, as I believe it is the most health-giving food in the world."

 All are welcome.

METHODIST
 Rev. Joseph Dutton, Pastor.
 10 a. m., public worship. 11:15, Sunday-school. 6 p. m., Epworth League. 7 p. m., public worship. At the morning worship will occur the first quarterly communion. To all of the services visitors and strangers are cordially invited.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTIST.
 First Church of Christ, Scientist holds services at church edifice, corner Main and Dodge streets, Sunday morning at 10:10. Subject, "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism Denounced." Sunday-school at 11 a. m. Wednesday evening testimonial service, 7:10. Every one is welcome.

ST. JOHN'S EPISCOPAL MISSION.
 There will be service in the above church next Sunday, Advent Sunday, December 1st, at 2:15 in the afternoon. Sunday-school will be held in the church next Sunday at 1:15. The choir practice will be on Saturday evening this week. Every member is asked to attend, as there are now special practices for the Christmas services. We were glad to meet so many in the church last Sunday when the Rev. S. A. Huston of Detroit, preached. We were also pleased to welcome two new members in the church and a new member in the choir last Sunday.

PRESBYTERIAN
 Rev. B. F. Farber, Pastor.
 Services will be held in this church on Sunday, December 1st, as follows: Morning worship at 10 o'clock. The pastor preaches. Theme, "The Supreme Question."
 Sunday-school at 11:15 o'clock. Presbyterian Guild at 6 o'clock. Subject, "Missionary Achievements and what I can do." Leader, in charge of Mrs. Chaffee's Sunday-school class.
 Evening service at 7 o'clock. A song service and special music. Address by the pastor. Subject, "The Assassination of the Spanish Premier."
 On Thursday evening next at 7 o'clock there will be a preparatory service to communion. The Session meets at the close of the service to receive new members.
 We invite the public to attend these services.

If you want to buy, sell or rent anything, try a liner in the Mail.
 Every newspaper is willing to do and does do very much along the line of "town boosting"—in a great many instances more than they are ever given credit for. But a newspaper can be a much more enthusiastic "booster" when the local business men use it as a medium for "boosting" in their particular lines. A newspaper can howl itself hoarse about the merits of its town as a trading center but it is apt to have little effect when the business men themselves are silent as the grave so far as any effective advertising is concerned.
 Patrons of rural routes should remember that the weather is getting cold they should provide themselves with stamps and save the carrier from picking pennies out of the boxes. Carriers are not required to do this and it is an imposition to ask them to do it in cold weather. Just imagine yourself trying to pick up pennies after you have been riding twenty-five miles and driving a horse.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Miss Woodworth spent Sunday in Ypsilanti.
 Plymouth school has a Thanksgiving vacation this week.
 Hilda Smye of the ninth grade is out because of sickness.
 The fifth grade are learning Winken, Blinken and Nod for language.
 Miss Woodworth will spend her Thanksgiving at her home in Ovid.
 Geo. Huger and Edna Mathers of the sixth grade are out with the measles.
 The Senior class will give a play next Tuesday, Dec. 3rd. Keep the date open.
 Lester Burden is the only one in the first grade that has not been absent or tardy this year.

The eighth grade will have a half holiday Wednesday afternoon as they have an attendance of 99%.
 Mrs. Hood visited the fourth and fifth grade this week. Mrs. E. E. Caster visited the fourth grade.
 Seventeen out of forty-eight have left from the first grade on account of measles or whooping cough.

The sixth, seventh and eighth grades joined the high school Monday afternoon during the chapel exercises.
 English III. students have completed the study of American Literature and have taken up the study of Chaucer.
 The children of the kindergarten have invited the children of the first grade to their Thanksgiving party Wednesday morning.
 The sophomore class had a party at the home of Margaret LeVan last Friday evening. Refreshments were served and all had a good time.
 The freshman class had a party in the kindergarten room last Friday evening. There was a very interesting program given by some of the class, games were played and refreshments served.

The following—Myron Beals, Daale Jones, Sanford Shattuck, Alton Richwine, Leslie Hudd, Egbert Isbell, Ernest Henderson, Howard Burden, Harvey Tyler, Joe Tesson and Fletcher Dea Autels—will attend the tenth annual Boys' conference at Grand Rapids Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 29, 30 and Dec. 1st, as representatives from the Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian Sunday-schools. Last year Mr. Isbell took twelve of the boys to the conference at Detroit. The boys gained so much enthusiasm that as soon as they came home they organized a Bible class in the high school which did splendid work in the community throughout the year. The boys hope to continue this work after having gained more enthusiasm at Grand Rapids.

Probably the largest crowd that ever witnessed a football game in Plymouth attended the game last Friday afternoon between the Wayne and Plymouth high school teams, in which Plymouth lost 13 to 0. Wayne sent a large delegation of rooters and the game was lively with rooting. The best of spirit was shown on the field and the game was characterized with clean playing by both teams. Neither team scored in the first half, but in the second half Wayne scored two touch-downs, although but one goal was kicked. The Wayne team played a snappy article of ball and was fighting every moment. The Plymouth team was crippled by injuries and of the team which had practiced all week together only four players finished the game in their regular position.

The team has been playing under a disadvantage all season, for the regular team only played together in three games. Much credit is due Coach Jolliffe for holding the team together, as he did, and for turning out one of the fastest and most successful teams that has represented Plymouth in years. Fourteen men will be awarded letters.
 The record:
 Chelsea 8; Plymouth 0.
 Royal Oak 0; " 27.
 Chelsea 18; " 7.
 Wayne 6; " 14.
 Brighton 0; " 47.
 Royal Oak 0; " 6.
 Wayne 13; " 0.
 Opponents, 55; Plymouth 101.

The Senior class will give a Senior Entertainment at the opera house Tuesday evening, Dec. 3, consisting of three well chosen numbers with selections by Penney's orchestra between the acts. The three numbers have been selected with a view of suiting all tastes and are as follows: a short and snappy comedy-drama, an extraordinary good one-act drama and a roaring one-act comedy. The program is given below:
 I.
 Selections by Orchestra.
 II.
 "The Matrimonial Advertisement."
 Kittie Grey..... Ruth Huston
 Harry Andrews..... Darryl Downs
 III.

HANDS BURNING, ITCHING

905 Lowell Place, Chicago, Ill.—The trouble began by my hands burning and itching and I rubbed and scratched them till one day I saw little red sores coming out. My hands were disfigured and swollen, and troubled me so that I could not sleep. They were cracked and when the small sores broke a white matter would come out. I could not do any hard work; if I did the sores would come out worse. For two years nobody could cure my eczema, until one day I thought I would try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used warm water with the Cuticura Soap and after that I put the Cuticura Ointment on my hands twice a day for about five or six months when I was cured. (Signed) Sam Marcus, Nov. 28, 1911. Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston." Adv.

Frontier Medical List.

In good old frontier days castor oil was the principal medical beverage—good full measure, too. Only the biggest person could hold a whole dose—one-half a dipperful, with half a dipperful of New Orleans molasses added to help slick it down and make it taste good, only it didn't taste good. In those historic-days every old woman was a doctor and gathered her own "yarbs" in the woods and knew how to mix up medical messes that would stir the vitals of a brass monkey or a cast iron dog. All backwoodsmen believed in "yarb" doctors. Something in "yarbs" at that.

Society.

Mrs. Wayupp—No wonder I look worried, my dear. My husband has just gone out, and if he is discovered it will probably cost us our social position.

ANOTHER DESTRUCTIVE INSECT PEST HAS MADE ITS WAY INTO THIS COUNTRY

Geoffroy, Injurious Insect Little Known Here, but Well Known in Europe, Causing Serious Damage to Elms in Various Parts of the United States.

(By F. B. HILLMAN.)

Geoffroy, an insect little known in this country, but well known in Europe, where it is a serious enemy of the elms in France, is causing considerable damage in various parts of the United States. The first locality in our country in which this insect was found was Westchester county, N. Y., in 1884, where it was found on nursery stock in great numbers.

In 1887 it was found on the slippery elm at Cambridge, Mass. It had been observed in New York city the previous year. In 1888 it was found on elms on the grounds of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, and soon after on trees in the streets of the same city. Up to this time the insect remained unidentified in the American entomological collections, but in 1889 more complete material was received by the Division of Entomology of the department of agriculture, from which the insect was determined to be identical with the elm pest of Europe (Gossyparia ulmi) Geoffroy.

So far as is known, the insect confines its attacks in this country to the elms, but presents some variability in its preferences for the various species of elms in different localities. In Europe, however, it has been found on the alder.

According to the reports of the observers at the above mentioned localities, the insect attacks the American elms more vigorously than the introduced European species, and thus it is added to the already long list of immigrant animals and plants that have found in this country conditions more congenial than those of their foreign home.

One is most apt to first notice the presence of this insect by seeing great numbers of circular whitish rings surrounding a dark center clustered along the under side of the lower limbs and branches. If the bark is cracked, rows of the insects will be found to cover the cracks and so be arranged longitudinally to the branch. These light margined objects are the bodies of old female lice and may be one, two or three years' standing. A closer examination will reveal the fact that many of the central darker parts, which are the bodies proper of the lice, are absent, these having fallen away with age.

The white marginal ring surrounding the body of the insect, consists of a somewhat fibrous, waxy material, secreted by the developing insect. It becomes firmly attached to the bark and curled inward, where its edge is somewhat fringed. The body becomes with age dark brown, smooth, convex longitudinally, the segmentation usually remaining distinct.

The preceding description applies to the female only. The male insect assumes a very different form. As the males do not take food, they may be found at any point on the bark, usually, however, in more or less protecting spots. On nearing maturity, the males secrete a minute pocket-like case, or cocoon, within which they cast their larval skin, and acquire a single pair of wings. They then emerge from the cocoon, and mating with the females, disappear. The empty cocoons remain attached to the bark. They occur singly, but usually in clusters, each a minute white object less than a twelfth of an inch long. Where the plates of cork are numerous on the branches of the cork elm, the female lice become fixed to the narrow strips of living bark between the plates of cork, while the male cocoons may be found in the narrow crevices in the cork.

The young lice, as they appear at this season, can be seen with the unaided eye only on close examination. Under a strong lens, a cluster of them presents a dull grayish appearance. Individually they are somewhat oval in shape, and are covered with minute whitish spines. Most of them are quiet in their place of hibernation, but on being disturbed many will leave their positions, moving sluggishly.

The destruction of this insect should not be attended with the difficulty that has characterized efforts in this direction against the San Jose and other scale insects. The latter are protected by a roof-like scale which protects the tender parts of the body and enables the insects to very effectively resist the remedies ordinarily employed. In the case of the elm insect, the body remains exposed and thus is more likely to yield to the action of corrosive washes.

Kerosene emulsion and whale-oil soap seem to be effectual remedies when the insects are reached by them. Spraying will have to be done at different periods and may be found to be most effectual when the insects are most active.

The fumes of hydro-cyanic acid gas effectually destroy the lice, but the use of the remedy necessitates the employment of a tent to cover the tree and confine the gas sufficiently long to kill the insects.

A careful study of the insect's habits, extending through an entire year at least, will be necessary to determine the most vulnerable period in the insect's life-history.

Grow Tomatoes.

If you grow only an acre or two of tomatoes, the fruits saved from one large, vigorous plant will produce more than enough seed for your whole plantation next year. Is it not worth while, therefore, to consider this matter? Have you not found one or more plants in your field which are especially valuable because of their large production of fine tomatoes? Try this plan of saving your own seed and note results.

Geese and Their Feathers.

It requires about four geese to make a pound of feathers. Picking live geese for their feathers is a practice that has been discontinued in this country.

WOLVERINE NEWS BREVITIES

Monroe.—George Mainzinger, a retired farmer of this city, is dead from the effects of a stroke of paralysis. He was seventy-nine years old and leaves a widow and ten children.

Escanaba.—Thomas Miller of this city went hunting for small game and brought home a big deer. The deer was not touched by a bullet nor torn by a trap or snare. Miller had been hunting partridges when he saw a deer standing in the middle of the trail and facing him from a short distance. He shot and immediately the deer disappeared. Thinking that he had wounded the animal, the young hunter started in pursuit. He had gone but a short distance when he found the deer dead. A careful examination failed to disclose any wounds and it is thought that in leaping the animal broke its back or died of heart disease.

Marshall.—Because he thought all of his friends had deserted him, Louis K. Arndt, unmarried, a local dealer, went to his place of business, said good-by to his friend, Farley Morrey, whom he met in front of his store, placed a revolver to his breast and shot himself. The bullet entered his left lung and there is little chance of his recovery.

Muskegon.—James Bliss, the aged Lake Odessa farmer, charged with attempting to murder Edward Willett about four months ago, was bound over to the circuit court. Bliss shot Willett through the stomach, it is charged, following trouble over a girl.

Harbor Springs.—The death of Francis Tabasash at Cross Village marks the passing of the most unique figure in the G. A. R. in this vicinity, if not in the state. Though an Indian, he fought in many of the fiercest battles of the Civil war and was a sergeant in Company K, First Michigan sharpshooters. He was born at Cross Village 87 years ago and enlisted from that place. After the war he returned to his farm and his stooped form and gray hair were always seen in the soldiers' parade here on Memorial day. He was the oldest member of the local G. A. R. post.

Hillsdale.—Local hunters who returned from three weeks spent near Topaz, tell what they believe is another illustration that upper peninsula residents are trying to discourage hunters. The party shot 14 deer and took them to the depot properly tagged. The night before they returned the depot was broken into, two deer were stolen and tags were removed from others. As deer cannot be shipped unless properly tagged they may not get any of their game. One of the hunters remained behind to take it up with the railroad and the game warden.

Marquette.—The carcass of a three-legged deer, partly devoured by wolves, was the unique find made near Carlsbad, east of here, by hunters. The lower joint of the right foreleg had been shot off two inches below the knee cap, probably during the hunting season a year ago. The wound was entirely healed over, and hair covered the skin in all but a small spot, which seemed to have been kept bare by constant rubbing. The deer was a large buck, weighing approximately 200 pounds.

Lansing.—An epidemic of small-pox has been discovered at Augres, a small village in Arenac county. Doctor Goodwin, health officer of Bay City, was sent to investigate, and he reported 22 cases of the disease. But few of the patients had been vaccinated, and most of them were treated several years ago. Doctor Dixon of the state board of health, is investigating in an effort to ascertain the cause of the many epidemics of the state.

Kalamazoo.—It became known that Very Rev. F. A. O'Brien is forming plans for the establishment in this city of an institution to care for foundlings. Father O'Brien declares that the need of such an institution in this part of the state is apparent in the fact that a large number of babes and little children are left for others to care for every year, the Catholic church finding homes for many every year.

Saginaw.—Mrs. Charles Bowen, a member of the local Salvation Army corps, was struck by passenger train No. 206 on the Michigan Central at Jefferson avenue and was instantly killed. She was on her way home with her son. When they reached the railroad tracks, the crossing man, Charles Wright, asserted the gates were down and that the woman deliberately walked under them, stepping in front of the train.

Kalamazoo.—Nearly the entire amount asked by the Kalamazoo State hospital board will be spent in repairs on the buildings and in the erection of a new place for the male attendants to sleep. The cottage for the attendants will be built large enough to accommodate nearly 100. At present the attendants are occupying rooms that should be given to the patients, so crowded is the institution. It is believed that the erection of the new cottage will prevent temporary congestion at the institution.

Usual Kind of Office Seekers.

"Well, how's every little thing, now that election is over?" asked the recently arrived washing machine agent.

"Bout as they are every place else, I reckon," a bit pessimistically replied the landlord of the Turgidtown tavern.

"The banker, the storekeepers, the lumber yard man, the doctor, the stock buyer, the blacksmith and all the rest of the business men who have always 'peared to be capable of managing their various sized affairs successfully, are going on calmly and carefully attending to 'em, while all the triflin', one-galussed incompetents that have never had any affairs of their own to attend to and wouldn't be capable of conducting 'em properly if they had any, are out hotfoot and hell-bent to get and manage the postoffice for the rest of us!"

Ominous.

"I like affectionate animals. Does this dog attach himself to people easily?"

Smelled a Grafter.

A Boston clubman recently returned from a visit to New York city. In discussing his trip one of his friends asked him whether he had a policeman in his pocket. The clubman hesitated for a moment, seriously questioning his friend's sanity, when the latter added:

"I didn't know whether you could be there a week without some grafter or other getting into your pocket."

NEWBURG.

Mrs. D. Cady of Coldwater, Mich., spent Tuesday and Wednesday with her sister, Mrs. Wm. Smith.

Mrs. Wm. Smith spent Sunday at the home of her father, Leon Cady.

Leigh Ryder started for the southern part of Florida Tuesday. He expects to visit Mr. and Mrs. Pattullo at Cincinnati on his way south.

The subject of last Sabbath's service was, "Building for the Future," and it was handled in the usual earnest manner of the pastor. Everyone is urged to attend the church services and Sunday-school.

The L. A. S. will hold their regular meeting Friday, December 6th, at the hall. Dinner will be served at noon. All are invited to come and help celebrate the reopening of the Newburg hall.

Several members of the W. R. C. met with Mrs. R. Bassett last week Friday afternoon and helped her pass a few pleasant hours and during the afternoon tied a quilt.

Earl Ryder went to Salem last Saturday to visit his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ryder. He returned home Sunday evening.

A big load of jolly sophomores from Plymouth high school awoke the echoes along Plymouth road last week Friday evening. Everyone rushed to the doors to see what the commotion was and found it was just a lot of happy young people chaperoned by their teachers, the Misses Ward and VanDusen, going to spend the evening at the LeVan home. They had a merry time with music, games, etc. Light refreshments were served, and the wee' sma' hours were drawing near when they took their departure.

Faye Ryder attended the freshman's party held at the high school building in Plymouth last Friday evening.

We are glad to note that Mrs. James LeVan is convalescing from a fall she received some days ago while coming down stairs at the home of Mrs. Allen in Plymouth.

Mrs. Earl Barlow died at Grace hospital, Detroit, Friday, November 22nd. Mrs. Barlow, who was formerly Miss Bessie Elizabeth McDonald, was born in Livonia township, September 3, 1892. She was married to Mr. Barlow, January 20, 1907. She is survived by the husband, two children, her parents, four sisters and two brothers. The funeral which was largely attended was held from the Livonia Center church, Monday afternoon. Rev. Joseph Dutton, pastor of the Plymouth Methodist church officiated. The floral offerings were many and beautiful and bore mute tribute of the love and esteem in which the deceased was held by relatives and friends. The family have the sympathy of the entire community in their sad bereavement. The interment took place in the Livonia cemetery.

LIVONIA CENTER.

Charles Wolf's people entertained a company of friends from the city last Sunday. They motored out in the morning and back in the evening.

Mrs. Walter Kingsley visited her people out here over Sunday.

Mrs. Earl Barlow of Detroit was buried here Monday. It is a very sad case. Scarcely twenty-one, she leaves a husband and two small children to mourn her loss.

Mrs. Hugh Peters is spending the week in the city.

Mrs. Will Cort was in the city Monday.

Sarah Collins is visiting her daughter this week.

Godfrey Gates, a highly respected citizen of Livonia township, died at his home Monday evening, Nov. 25th. Deceased leaves a wife, a son and one daughter. The funeral was held yesterday morning at 10 o'clock from the house, Rev. B. F. Farber officiating. Burial in Livonia Center cemetery.

Northville Record:—In the case of W. B. Penfield vs. the Hamilton Rifle Co., of Plymouth in which suit Mr. Penfield brought action for an accounting to determine his interest in the company, Judge Hosmer has just awarded Mr. Penfield judgment for $9,474. C. C. Yerkes of this place was attorney for the complainant.

Last week Thursday evening the Northville Lady Maccabees came to Plymouth to exemplify the work on four candidates for the local hive. There were over one hundred ladies present. At the close of the meeting about thirty-five of the Sir Knights gave the ladies a surprise, bringing with them ice cream and cake.

EASY LOADER MANURE SPREADER

Is the product of an independent manufacturer. It is the simplest and strongest constructed manure spreader ever offered the American farmer. It has strong angled steel sill and heavy reinforced the entire length of the machine, which insures light draft and no warping out of shape even though it is more exposed to the most severe test of the elements of any implement used upon the farm. The oil bath worm-driven apron is a very important factor, preventing any possibility of gear cutting and drives the apron accurately either up hill or down. The double spiral arrangement of all the teeth in the beater, preventing windrowing of the manure and enables the operator to know exactly the amount of manure he is applying to his soil. For further particulars about this machine call personally or phone.
