Parcels Post Rules

Anyone who after January 1; wishes to send merchandise of any sort through the mail must affix special parcel post stamps to the package, must carry it to some postoffice or branch station and not drop it into the mail box and must attach to it a return address.

These regulations in detail are as follows:

1.—That distinctive parcels post stamps must be used on all fourth class matters beginning January 1, 1913, and that such matters bearing ordinary stamps will be treated as "Held for Postage."

2.—That articles will be mailable only at postoffices, branch postoffices, lettered and local named stations as may be designated by the postmaster.

That all parcels must bear the return card of the sender; otherwise they will not be accepted for mailing.

The Hussars Coming

The next number of the Lecture Course comes on Thursday, December 12th. The attraction on this date is a singing band called "The Hussars." They are thus called because they present an original sketch by that name in which several intensely amusing situations occur, together with an exhibition drill showing a number of beautiful maneuvers characteristic of this famous type of German soldiers. Those composing the company are musicians capable of singing anything from the most popular glees written for men's voices, to the grand opera choruses, such as the "Soldiers Chorus" from Faust or the "Pilgrims Chorus" from Tannhauser. Six members of the company form a brass sextet, and the remaining three a drum corps. This unique musical organization meets two demands of the present day—military splendor and action, and the rollicking spirit and dash of the college glee club.

There are a few seats in the gallery that have not been reserved. These may be reserved for the remainder of the Lecture Course for 75 cents. This includes reservation.

After a short stay with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Warner, they will leave for Seneca, N. Y., where Mr. Warner is now employed. The happy couple have the best wishes of a host of friends.

Village May Buy Auto Fire Truck

At the regular meeting of the village council Monday night the matter of purchasing an auto fire truck equipped with a chemical attachment was discussed at some length. For some time the council and fire department have felt the serious need of better and more modern fire fighting apparatus for the protection of the property of our citizens, but just what was the best thing to get has been the question. The council has several propositions from companies manufacturing trucks, and at the meeting Monday evening, Robt. Walker, as a member of the fire department, was appointed as a member of a committee with power to appoint two more members to go to Alma and investigate the merits of a truck manufactured there, the company offering to pay the expenses of the committee.

In case an auto fire truck should be purchased it is not the intention of the council to dispose of the hose carts in use at present, but they would always be kept in readiness in case of an emergency. We understand that the fire department are willing to aid materially in the matter of funds, which they have on hand toward the purchase of an auto truck should the council decide to purchase one.

The committee composed of Robt Walker, Fred Reiman and Brant Warner left this morning for Alma.

Famous PALAIS ROYAL Doomed

WHAT place is this? I have never been through it before." They were passing through the Palais Royal as short cut. The speaker was a New Yorker who visits Paris every year and stays two months each time because, although he leaves New York fully determined to study other European capitals each year, the charm of Paris holds him captive and he grudges the few days he has to give to London to obtain a new outfit of clothes. Yet this student and lover of and the fields and marshes then surrounding it, spending in all some $200,000. On this site he built a palace so splendid that, fearing that the king, Louis XIII, would accuse him of being too luxurious, he made a present of it to the king three years before the building was finished.

PALAIS ROYAL

Louis' widow, Queen Anne of Austria, took up her residence there on his death with her two sons, Louis XIV and the Duke of Anjou. The little king, then four years old, played in the gardens, where a miniature fort was built for him, with ramparts, bastions, moats and redoubts, all complete.

Henrietta of France, made a widow by the execution of her husband, Charles I of England, lived in the palace, and later Philip of Orleans, when regent of France during the minority of Louis XV, occupied it. In the eighteenth century the northern side was the scene of dealings in stocks, in Law's wonderful schemes—a forecast of the future that may await the palace.

In 1789 the gardens were a favorite meeting place for the revolutionists, and Camille Desmoullins preached revolt, standing on a table, on the spot where his statue now is placed. With the directory the palace, deserted by politicians, became the haunt of gayety again. Pastry cooks and wine sellers occupied the shops and galleries held away there. Under the consulate and first empire the palace was full of gambling houses, as readers of Balzac's "Peau de Chagrin" will remember. Lansquenet and baccarat were played from morning to night, until Louis Philippe closed the gambling houses.

This act was a deathblow to the gayety centered at the Palais Royal. For years it was noted for good and cheap restaurants, but now even that trade has gone and cheap jewelry shops, postcard sellers and second-hand dealers carry on the only business that exists there. One corner only retains full life. The Palais Royal theater, celebrated for its farces, of a type peculiar to itself, still brings people to the district.

of the day, exceedingly hurtful beverages for the lunch hour.

If economy must be studied, both the bachelor girl and the girl who possesses a home should make it a golden rule to have a substantial breakfast. Above all, the meal should not be eaten rapidly, and never taken in bed, if the consumer has to rise immediately afterward. For apart from the fact that directly on rousing from sleep the digestive organs are not wide awake, as it were, sudden action after a meal spells disaster to the digestive system altogether.

If possible, rise early enough to allow of reading the morning paper for, say, a quarter of an hour before sitting down to breakfast, or take a turn round the yard.

A very good breakfast for every season of the year consists of a small plate of porridge, some bacon or an egg, toast and butter and marmalade, and fruit of some description, stewed or otherwise. And just because it is hot, do not do away with everything except the fruit. A fruit breakfast may be very nice in warm weather, but it's no groundwork for a day's work. A glass of water at breakfast is also extremely good. But those who could not do without their tea or coffee, let them take them by all means. But on no account bolt them down hot; rather drink them cold than boiling.

The girls of today look so old—that is, the girls who have to work for their living.

And it is simply because they will not look after themselves. Sitting in stuffy classrooms and offices, before whirring machinery, they seem to have no energy left to do anything toward keeping fit when at length they

Thrifty and Shrewdness of Napoleon

The Emperor Napoleon I, dressed in plain clothes, often visited the markets of Paris, in order to learn the current prices of food, and find out whether his household officers served him with honesty and economy. In "Toujours Reminiscences" Richard Louis Holland says that this was only one illustration of the emperor's thrifty and shrewdness.

LOCATION AND PREPARATION OF HOTBED MOST IMPORTANT THINGS TO CONSIDER

Fall Is Best Time to Make Ready and to Secure Best Results—Concrete Should Be Used in Construction—Sunny Side of Building Best for Protection.

The fall is the time to prepare the hotbed. To avoid annual repairs, and to secure the best results build it of concrete. Locate the bed on the sunny, wind-protected side of a building. A 4-sash bed is usually large enough except for commercial purposes. A standard hot-bed sash is 3 feet by 6 feet. Lay out the bed 6 feet 8 inches wide by 12 feet 10 inches long. The concrete walls are 6 inches thick. Dig the foundation trenches 2 feet 6 inches deep within the lines given above. Make forms of 1-inch lumber to carry the south (front) wall 6 inches and the north (back) wall 14 inches above ground. Forms are not required below ground level. The tops of the end walls slope to the others. Before filling the forms with concrete, test the dimensions of the bed by means of the sash. See that the sash laps to form 2 inches on all sides.

Mix the concrete masonry wet in the proportion of 1 bag of cement to 2½ cubic feet of sand to 5 cubic feet of crushed rock, or 1 bag of cement to 5 cubic feet of bank-run gravel. Fill the forms without stopping for anything. Tie the walls together at the corners by laying in them old iron rods bent to right angles. While placing the concrete set ½-inch bolts about 2 feet apart to hold the wooden top framing of the bed to the concrete; or make grooves in the top of the concrete for counter slaking the described below. Remove the strips as soon as the concrete stiffens. Take down the forms after five days. The extra 2½ inches in length of the bed is allowance for the three center bars between the sash. These sash supports are of dressed 1-inch stuff, shaped like a capital "T" turned upside down. The length of the stem of the "T" is equal to the thickness of the sash and the top is 3 inches wide. Sufficient materials for the concrete will be supplied by 14 bags of cement, 1½ cubic yards of sand and 2½ cubic yards of crushed rock; or 14 bags of cement and 2½ yards of pit gravel at a cost of $10.00.

If the bed is to be used as a cold-frame, it is finished when covered with glass. For a hot bed, dig out the dirt to the depth of 2 feet, tramp in 18 inches of fresh horse manure well mixed with leaves or bedding and cover it with 4 to 8 inches of rich soil. Bank the excavated earth around the outside of the bed. Put the sash in place, hang a thermometer on the inside and allow the bed to heat up. After a couple of days, when the temperature has dropped to 85 or 90 degrees, planting may be safely done. Seed catalogues contain valuable information as to the length of time necessary to produce the different kinds of plants.

During the midday, in bright weather, the bed will become too hot and sash to the level of the walls with an allowance of one-quarter inch for clearance. This can be done by temporarily imbedding in the concrete wooden strips of the necessary dimensions. During this operation, by means of blocks nailed to the strips, make provision for the center bars must be ventilated for a short period by raising the sash on the side away from the wind. Water the plants in the morning only and ventilate later to remove the moisture from the foliage. On winter nights, it will often be necessary to cover the bed with old carpets and boards.

EXCELLENT FEED FOR ALL POULTRY

Sprouted Oats Is One of Best Things That Can Be Given to Little Ones.

"Oats is one of the best feeds one can give chicks for growth, but it is hard to get in suitable form for feeding to poultry. One of the best methods is to sprout it. A pair of oats is covered with water and allowed to soak about twelve hours. In winter we use water which is heated and just cool enough that you can bear your hand in it, in summer, cold water. After soaking, the oats are poured out into trays two feet wide and three feet long and two inches deep. The bottoms of these trays are made of galvanized one-fourth inch mesh wire screen. We start a bucketful of the oats every day, piling the trays on top of each other until we have four or five.

Meanwhile we must thoroughly stir the oats in each tray every day and wet with water. The oats will, no doubt, heat some and this makes them sprout fast, but if they have a tendency to get too hot, cold water could be used to keep them cool. By the fourth or fifth day the sprouts are perhaps one-half to one inch long.

For summer feeding, when the stock can get plenty of grass, they will eat the oats readily at this stage and it is as good a growing feed as can be obtained. The sprouts are very good for early chicks that can get no grass. For winter feeding to the poultry, it is often advisable to let the oats grow more and turn green. Then you will have to let it grow a few days longer, and if you can get a suitable rack to hold the trays several inches apart it will be very convenient. By starting one tray each day and feeding the farthest developed each day a continuous supply may be had. This feed has been advertised extensively as a secret and the books explaining this method have sold extensively at from $1 to $5 each.

In feeding for growth and early development remember that the best feeds are cheapest, and that plenty of clean feed of such variety to produce a balanced ration and plenty of pure water will make you more profit than if the birds are scantily fed and allowed to stay in filthy quarters and pestered by lice.

GREEN CORN FOR FODDER AND SILO

Plant an Early Variety for Feeding to Cows—Runout Sod Ground.

For feeding green to cows during the summer, plant an early variety of corn. Select rim-cut, sod-ground, or ground from which a crop of crimson clover or green rye has been cut off. Plow the ground, harrow and roll before the fresh plowed ground can dry out. Mark out the long way of field and drill half bushel of corn and 400 pounds of a standard bone fertilizer to the acre. This is much the quickest and most economical way. It saves time and labor. The corn is put in at the right depth and without waste of seed. Four hundred pounds of a good superphosphate to the acre, applied to good sod land, will bring a good crop of forage. If land is thin, spread a coat of manure and harrow it in, then drill the corn in with the phosphate. Run the drills 3 feet apart. If the field is weedy, plant in hills so the crop can be cultivated both ways. As soon as the corn can be plainly seen, start the sulky cultivator, using the steel chisel teeth. Early cultivation kills weeds and starts vigorous growth of the corn. Plant the variety of corn that is best suited to your soil and climate. Home-grown seed is best and much the cheapest. The number of acres to plant will depend upon the capacity of silo, and the number of stock to feed. One acre of good land, given thorough culture, will yield 10 to 12 tons of forage. For green feed to supplement the pasture during the latter part of summer and early fall, one acre for 15 head of cows should be planted. Have one large field and drill the corn the long way of field. Be sure to have the ground finely pulverized and rolled; the field can then be quickly planted and early cultivation given. Corn is the best crop to grow for green feed for the silo, or to cure for winter feed.

Test With Pigs.
In a feeding test with 80 pigs, lasting 160 days, on a ration of corn chop, buttermilk and barley and sorghum forage, conducted at the Oklahoma station, the average daily gain was 51 pounds as compared with a gain of 122 pounds on corn chop and buttermilk. A lot of hogs turned into a field of corn yielding at the rate of only 12 bushels per acre made a gain of 1.2 pounds per head. Estimating the value of the grain at 7 cents per pound, the hogs returned a value of $3.15 cents per bushel.

Old Landmark Gone.
The Blaine schoolhouse in Mars Hill up on the hill, the one James G. Blaine honored years ago by giving a bell, which still hangs in the belfry, is no more. It has been converted into a storeroom and moved to another site. A good many bright boys and girls, now old men and women, graduated from the historic building, and no doubt there is a feeling of sorrow as the old schoolhouse leaves the foundation it was built upon years and years ago.—Kennebec (Me.) A DOCTOR'S SLEEP Found He Had to Leave Off Coffee.

Many persons do not realize that a bad stomach will cause insomnia.

Coffee and tea drinking being such an ancient and respectable form of habit, few realize that the drug—caffeine—contained in coffee and tea, is one of the principal causes of dyspepsia and nervous troubles.

Without their usual portion of coffee or tea, the caffeine tapers are nervous, irritable and fretful. That's the way with a whisky drinker. He has got to have his dram "to settle his nerves"—habit.

To leave off coffee or tea is an easy matter if you want to try it, because Postum gives a gentle but natural support to the nerves and does not contain any drug—nothing but food.

Physicians know this to be true, as one from Ga. writes:

"I have cured myself of a long-standing case of Nervous Dyspepsia by leaving off coffee and using Postum," says the doctor.

"I also enjoy refreshing sleep, to which I've been an utter stranger for 20 years."

"In treating dyspepsia in its various types, I find little trouble when I can induce patients to quit coffee and adopt Postum."

The Dr. is right and "there's a reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pigs.

Postum now comes in concentrated, powder form called Instant Postum. It is prepared by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water, adding sugar to taste, and enough cream to bring the color to golden brown.

Instant Postum is convenient; there's no waste; and the flavor is always uniform. Sold by grocers—50-cup tin 20 cts., 100-cup tin 50 cts.
