Home Talent Entertainment Free Mail Delivery for Plymouth a Possibility

The beautiful four act comedy, "The Jolly Widow" will be given at the opera house, Thursday evening, January 23, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist church, with some of Plymouth's most popular young people in the cast. The play comes well recommended from many neighboring towns, also Mrs. Hubert Labadie of the Labadie Lyceum Bureau, who is here training the young people.

The play has a strong plot with plenty of comedy and heart interest, written to please the masses. Music between acts by Penny's orchestra and several specialties, making a continuous performance. This will be the best home talent play you ever saw in your city. Prices are 25c. and 35c. The ladies are working hard to make this a rare treat for our theatre goers and are busy selling tickets, so be in line and get yours at once. Reserved seats at Jones' drug store.

Omer T. Canfield, minister of M. E. church at Paw Paw, Ill., in a letter to the Labadie Lyceum Bureau. "We hope we can have Mr. and Mrs. Labadie with us again and put on another play. Their reputation is established, they would pack the house two nights."

There is a possibility that Plymouth might secure free mail delivery in the village if the right kind of effort on the part of our business men and citizens were put forth. The postoffice department is trying out the experiment of establishing mail delivery by rural carriers in a number of towns the size of Plymouth, and it is found to be very successful where ever the service is in operation. The large area of territory which this village covers makes it all the more obvious why Plymouth should have free mail delivery. It has been suggested that if a petition were circulated, signed by our citizens and forwarded to Senator Townsend, who is thoroughly familiar with the situation here, that Mr. Townsend would be able to have Plymouth included in the list of towns that are enjoying the privileges of free mail delivery, for which an appropriation was recently made by the government. It is something at least worth trying for.

Tomato Growers Met

A meeting of the Tomato Growers Association was held in the village hall Tuesday evening, and was well attended. The association made a contract with the Wm. W. Vaughn Co., of Detroit, to take their tomatoes at $8.50 per ton, which was an advance of 50 cents per ton over the price paid them last year.

A committee was appointed to ascertain what could be done toward the procuring of a state tomato culture experimental station for Plymouth. There seems to be good prospects that a station will be located here. Paul Bennett was appointed the association agent for the ensuing year. The annual banquet of the association will be held some time during February.

MUST BE OPEN JANUARY 25.

Secretary of State Martindale has announced that the present enrollment precincts be open on January 25, so as to afford voters an opportunity of enrolling for primaries. The day in April shall also be enrollment day in the even years, which will be 1914. Enrollment books are required to give notice of the coming enrollment in the usual manner.

Mr. Monte Allen of Detroit was the guest of his sister, Mrs. Chas. Draper last week. Mr. Allen also came on Sunday.

At the annual meeting of the Plymouth Business Men's Club last Monday evening, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President John Peterson; Vice President, W. T. Conner; Secretary-treasurer, C. H. Rauch. The club was organized in 1904 with ten members, and Dr. Felham was its first president. There are only two or three of the original members left.

PAINFUL

Rheumatism is very painful and exhausting, especially in the chronic stage. To get quick relief when these spells come on, RENNIE'S PAIN-KILLING MAGIC OIL is the thing needed. It is a clean and pleasant but very penetrating remedy that takes the pain as soon as it reaches the seat of trouble. It is effective when it oozes in the joints, sprains, and rheumatoid, chronic rheumatism, neuralgia, sciatica, etc. Sold by Jones' Drug Store and Beyer's Pharmacy.

Mrs. A. E. Haber, of Grider, Mo., had been troubled with sick headaches for some time when she began using Rennie's Magic Oil. She writes: "I have used a bottle of this and it has cured me of my headaches. I will make them all my friends and neighbors know of it." Again we say, will you be a booster?

THE PLUMBER

I telephoned the plumber,
And right on time he came.
He truly was a hummer,
And should be known to fame;
He spent no time in gazing,
But found out what was wrong,
And what is most amazing,
He had his tools along.

He did not con the matter
For half an hour or more,
No solder did he spatter
Upon the kitchen floor;
With zeal still undiminished
He worked away for us,
And when the job was finished
He cleared up all the mess!

PROUD OF HER LITTLE SON

Eskimo Mother Cared Little for Obedience, but Much for Promising Qualities in Her Boy.

There is no such thing as punishment in an Eskimo household, writes Dr. S. K. Hutton in "Among the Eskimos of Labrador." And by way of illustration he tells of a small boy whom he met one day clambering down among the rocks and hummocks that strewed the beach, in open defiance of parental commands.

He was a sturdy little fellow, and quite a baby. I judged him to be about two years old, certainly not more than three, but as he was clad in the dignity of ridiculous little trousers, I must speak of him as a boy. He seemed to have escaped from his mother, and to making for the beach on an adventure of his own; and when I looked toward the line of houses, I saw a young woman standing at one of the doors and calling to him.

"Kaigit! kaigit!" (Come back!) she shouted.

The child took no notice at all. "Kaigit, enera!" (Come back, my son!) cried the mother.

This time the child looked round, but he went steadily on, barking his little knees against the sharp rock points, and tumbling into holes in his hurry. "Nia! nia!" he screamed.

I half expected the mother to come and fetch him after that, for "Nia!" is anything but polite; it was the equal of a very defiant "Shan't" that the child shouted at his mother. She took no notice; she was beaten, and accepted the situation, and turned back into the house to go on with her work.

Meanwhile I was interested in the doings of the small Eskimo boy; there was some grim purpose in his little mind, and I stayed to see the finish of the play. He scrambled on until he came to a dog that lay sunning itself behind a stone. Very likely it was one of his father's sledge dogs against which he had a grievance, for he caught it fearlessly by the scruff of the neck and beat it with his tiny fists. The dog, great, powerful brute, could have eaten the boy whole; but it made no resistance, simply covering and whining under the little patting blows. Having fulfilled his purpose, the boy administered a last parting smack, and started on his journey homeward.

I followed the little fellow to his home, and found his mother busily brushing the snow off him, and smiling with pride in her hardy little son. He was disobedient, but what cared she? He was growing strong and fearless; some day he would be able to drive a team of dogs and paddle a kayak, and hunt the deer and seals and walrus. He was a proper Eskimo boy.—Youth's Companion.

Hint to Uncle.

Miss Mary Garden, at a luncheon in Chicago, said, apropos of Christmas:

"To secure nice Christmas presents there's nothing like a delicate hint or two.

"I know a Philadelphia girl whose uncle, having grown rich from a western mine, proposed to visit her at Christmas for the first time in 17 years. She wrote to the old gentleman:

"It will glorious to see you again, dear uncle. I will meet you at Broad street station on your arrival at Christmas eve. But I might not recognize you after all these years, and so I think it would be best for you to hold, for purposes of identification, a long string of pearls in the left hand and a bit of fur—such as an ermine-sable stole, for example—in the right."

Proof of His Love.

"But," she asked, "haven't you ever told any other girl that you loved her?"

"Yes," he replied, "I have told a dozen other girls I loved them. I thought I did, too; but you are the first one I have ever really loved. I know now that I never realized before what real love was."

"How can you be sure that this is real love?"

"On each of the other occasions I was unable to keep from wondering while I was telling my love how I should be able to support the girl if she accepted me; but now I don't care."

Despicable Man.

"I suppose you find it hard to be happy at Christmas time."

"Why?"

"Be deprived of the right to see your children at such a time as that would, I should think, make it especially hard for you."

"Oh, I don't mind it. In fact, I rather enjoy it. It gives me such a fine chance to get even. I sent my little boy a drum and a horn and a hatchet."

Strenuous Salutations.

"No wonder them city people complain about being all worn out with their social duties," vociferated a prominent citizen of Wayoverbend.

"When I was down to New York I saw some fainting my neck tryin' to bow to everybody I met on the streets"—Judge.

"There is no money like politeness; and the best manner is the best thing in the world either to get use a good name or to supply the want of it.—Deaver Lydon.

WAR HOVERS OVER EUROPEAN POWERS

AUSTRIA, RUSSIA, ROUMANIA AND BULGARIA MAY BE INVOLVED.

DISGUSTING RUMORS POINT TO POSSIBLE TROUBLE.

Territorial Imbroglia Arising From Balkan War Now Seriously Menaces the Peace of Europe.

Despite the optimistic dispatches from London belittling the Roumanian-Bulgarian territorial imbroglia, the Germans believe that situation to be most acute. It is feared that the Balkan situation now seriously menaces the peace of Europe.

Dispatches from Vienna, Sofia and Bucharest said that the Roumanian question completely overshadowed the Turkish war in the public mind. It is said that Austria-Hungary, instead of demobilizing her troops, is calling to the colors more reservists. The dual monarchy, it is said, is in sympathy with Roumania, and this is disquieting because it is known that Russia would back Bulgaria.

Some profess to believe that Roumania, in her demand for Bulgarian territory, was being egged on by Turkish secret diplomacy, the portie thus hoping to escape with smaller sacrifices of territory under cover of the new war cloud.

Powers May Get Fortress.

The capitulation of Adrianople will in the opinion of the Balkan plenipotentiaries, take place within a few days, either directly to the besieging forces or through European pressure. Pending some fresh development, the Balkan delegates are keeping in closest touch with the ambassadors, because they are aware that some of the questions they have most at heart depend almost entirely on the will of the powers.

Meanwhile the ambassadorial conference is doing little, hoping that the Adrianople difficulty will solve itself in some manner, and thus make interference by the powers unnecessary. The action of the ambassadors is hampered by the previous agreement that they must be unanimous in any decision requiring active interference.

Should the fall of Adrianople still be delayed, now that the conference is suspended, it might become imperative for Europe to intervene; otherwise Europe would lose the prestige entitling her to dictate her will in smaller matters, such as bringing into being an autonomous Albania and partitioning the Aegean islands.

One suggestion is that, failing a better solution, Adrianople might be ceded to the powers, who could transfer it to the allies after permitting the Turkish garrison to leave with the honors of war, and guaranteeing other conditions, as the reservation of religious and property rights to the Turks and the establishment of special courts for the trials of civil disputes arising between Musselmans.

Take Constantinople.

Some of the delegates from the allied states are of the opinion that now that they have paved the way for the expulsion of Turkey from Europe the powers ought to complete the work by removing Islam from Constantinople and transforming the Turkish capital into an autonomous city, under European control, and that they should adopt means to give a really civilized government to Asia Minor.

ALLIES TO CONTINUE WAR

Will Notify Commanders to Terminate Armistice and Resume Fighting

The decision definitely to break up the peace conference in London simultaneously with the presentation to the Turkish government of the note of the European powers was reached by the chiefs of the peace delegations of the Balkan allies.

The resolution of the representatives of Bulgaria, Greece, Montenegro and Serbia will be communicated to the porte in a formal note.

At the same time it was decided to instruct the commanders of the armed forces of the allies in the field to terminate the armistice which has been in operation since Dec. 3.

Observers of the situation in London believe Turkey will reject the advice of the European powers and that hostilities will be resumed.

The representatives of the Balkan allies declare they are ready to face all events.

Health Board to Give Lectures This Winter.

Dr. Robert L. Dixon, secretary of the state board of health, states that free lectures on health will be held in various parts of the state during the present winter. It is the intention of the board to obtain as many lecturers as possible, including members of the state board, Dr. Dixon, Assistant Secretary D. E. McClurfe and as many others as can be obtained who will go to places in the state where lectures are desired.

As the state board has no funds to carry on this work, it is presumed that the cities and towns desiring the lectures will defray the expense actually involved, such as traveling and hotel bills. The services of the lecturers will be given free.

It is estimated 200 lectures on public health can be given in the state during the winter.

Republicans Meet in Lansing Feb. 11.

International Ironworkers Association Admits It's Defeat.

Defeat in their attempt to raise $1,100,000 bonds for liberating the 32 convicted "dynamiters" during the review of their cases by the federal court of appeals, has been admitted by the International Association of Ironworkers and its associate unions. The prisoners' respective local unions have been directed to furnish the individual amounts.

"Too big a proposition for us to finance," is the succinct explanation offered by Joseph E. McClory, acting secretary-treasurer of the international association, representing the local unionists in the bond matter. In a previous communication Secretary McClory assured the Detroit labor unions that the international associations would combine in an effort to raise the entire $1,100,000.

NEWS OF MICHIGAN

Holland.—Klaas DeWitt, a near centenarian, has the unique experience of being the plaintiff in his first lawsuit at the age of ninety-two years. DeWitt has begun a civil suit against his daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Van den Tak, and is seeking to recover $600 and a year's income on property which he alleges he and his daughter owned jointly. Mrs. Van den Tak will attempt to prove her father made her a present of his interest in the property. The case is on call at the present term of court in Grand Haven.

Flint.—When Charles Henry Hoyt died in March, 1911, he left a will bequeathing two-thirds of the residue of his estate after the payment of other bequests, to the Protestant Orphan asylum of Detroit. The amount to which the home is entitled has just been fixed by Probate Judge Swayze at $2,533 and the executrix of the estate has been authorized to forward a check covering the bequest to the Detroit institution.

Lansing.—In order to protect the work of the state tax commission, now minus one member, the senate confirmed the appointment of Thomas D. Kearney and Orlando F. Barnes, recently named by Governor Ferris. That of James Scully of Ionia to be state railroad commissioner was also confirmed. The other appointments will be taken up later.

Battle Creek.—More information has come to Chief of Police Farrington that cocaine is being extensively used among the youths of this city, but he has been unable to find those who are responsible for the traffic. It is learned that the drug is secured at Vicksburg by three grown men, who sell it to the boys after teaching them how to use it.

West Branch.—While running the electric light plant for the moving picture show, William Davis fainted and in falling his legs became wedged under the exhaust steam pipe. His son found him some time afterward, still unconscious. Both legs and both arms were severely burned by the contact with the exhaust pipe. He will probably recover.

Jackson.—Following an argument and shooting affray at the home of John Duda, 475 Locust street, Duda received a wound in the hand and another in the side, while Joe Chley, residing at the Duda home, was shot in the hand. Ignat Duda, 720 Page avenue, is sought by the officers.

Traverse City.—George Burt, Garrett Mandeville and Charles Knowles, who were arrested on a charge of burglarizing the store of Joseph Brothers at Grawn, were bound over to circuit court. An alleged confession by Knowles implicating the other two was obtained by Sheriff Smith, and Mandeville is said to have made a partial confession. The three lived in Burt's house, where the goods are said to have been found.

Jackson.—Mrs. Lois A. Patch, eighty-three years old, a lifelong resident of Jackson county, died at her farm home in Liberty township after an illness of several months. Deceased was the last of a family of 12 children and was the mother of Anthony J. Patch, secretary of the county superintendents of the poor.

Saginaw.—Mrs. Carrie D. Guernsey was made guardian of her granddaughter, Mabel Singer, eleven years old, by Judge Ganschow. Mabel has been living with her stepmother, who since the death of the child's father, has remarried. The grandmother, a blood relation, demanded custody of her.

Gaylord.—Hiram Harrington, a resident of Hetherton, east of here, was instantly killed, his skull being crushed by a tree he was felling. He came to this country from St. Clair two years ago, and was a highly respected citizen.

Saginaw.—Fire was discovered in the westerly wing of the Saginaw Basket and Veneer plant in Carrollton and owing to the inadequate fire protection the stock and building were destroyed, causing a loss estimated at $15,000. About seventy men are thrown out of employment. The factory was operated by L. D. Buck of Adrian.

Brighton.—The supervisors have rented land near the jail where stone will be placed for the "Knights of the Road" to break instead of idling their time in the county jail. J. P. Lockwood, an employe of the Wayne county good roads commission, gave the board an idea of the county road system.

Grand Rapids.—At least twenty persons were injured, one probably fatally, when limited train No. 13 on the Grand Rapids & Holland interurban railroad collided rear-end with a Jenison suburban car just east of Wyoming. The suburban car had become stalled by a broken trolley. The limited crashed into the suburban, telescoping it, overturning stores in both cars and igniting the debris. Passengers who were unharmed quenched the flames with snow and saved the stranded and helpless victims from cremation.

PREPARING FOR THE WORK OF 1913

CITY BUILDING, RAILWAY BUILDING AND FARM OPERATIONS IN WESTERN CANADA, BIGGEST EVER.

The machinery, the money and the men for carrying on the big works in Western Canada in 1913 are already provided for. The splendid harvest which was successfully garnered, and by this time mostly marketed, responded to the big hopes that were had for it early in the season, and inspired capitalists and railroads to further investment and building. From lake ports to mountain base there will be carried on the biggest operations in city building and railway construction that has ever taken place in that country. The Canadian Pacific railway has everything in waiting to continue their great work of double tracking the system and by the time the Panama Canal is open to traffic there will be a double line of steel from Lake Superior to the Pacific coast. The cost will exceed thirty million dollars. The Grand Trunk Pacific plan of building a first-class trunk line and then feeders at various points will be carried forward with all the force that great company can put into the work. The Canadian Northern is prepared to put into motion all the energy that young giant of finance and railroad building can put into various enterprises of providing and creating transportation facilities.

Building operations in the several cities that have already marked themselves a place in the list of successful and growing cities, will be carried on more largely than ever. Schools, public buildings, parliament buildings, colleges, business blocks, apartments, private residences, banks, street and other municipal improvements have their appropriation ready, and the record of 1913 will be something wonderful. Other places which are towns today will make the rapid strides that are expected and will become cities. There will be other Edmonton, Calgary, Regina and Saskatoon, other places that may in their activity help to convince the outer world of the solidity and permanency of the Canadian West. The country is large and wide and broad and the ends of its great width and length are but the limits of its agricultural area. Its people are progressive, they are strong, there is no enervation there. The country teems with this life, this ambition,—this fondness to create and to use the forces that await the settler. If they come from the South, and hundreds of thousands of them have, they are now the dominant men of the North, and they have imbibed of the spirit of the North. Therefore it is fair to say that no portion of the continent will show such wonderful results as Western Canada, and the year 1913 will be but the beginning of a wonderful and great future. And in this future the 200,000 Americans who made it their home, and those who preceded them, will be a considerable portion of the machinery that will be used in bringing about the results predicted.

The development of 1913 will not be confined to the prairie provinces. Railway building and city building in British Columbia will be supplemented by the farm, the ranch and the orchard building of that province. Vancouver will make great strides in building, and Victoria, the staid old lady of so many years, has already shown signs of modern ways, and if the progress made in 1912 may be accepted as anything like what it will be in 1913, there will be wonderful developments there. During last year the permits went over the ten million dollar mark and much more is promised for the year now entered upon.—Advertisement.

Collecting Antiquities.

Sloopy received a card on which was engraved: "Professor Bruce, Antiquarian."

He knew no such person, so his curiosity led him to receive him.

"What is your business, professor?" he asked politely.

"I am a collector of antiquities," answered the old man.

"So I imagined. And how can I serve you?"

"By paying a deposit on this little bill you have owed for more than three years."

Took Load Off Mother's Mind.

Six-year-old Dora returned unusually early from school the other day. She rang the door bell. There was no answer. She rang again, a little longer. Still there was no response. A third time she pushed the button, long and hard. Nobody came to the door. Then she pressed her nose against the window screen and in a shrill voice, which carried to the ears of every neighbor on the block, called: "It's all right, mamma. I ain't the installment man!"

Spotted Her Secret.

"My first husband and I kept our marriage a secret for nearly a year."

"Didn't you find it rather difficult?"

"Oh, no, not at all. We could have gone on for a much longer time if the horrible reporters hadn't been nosing around when I applied for my divorce."

Wizard of Finance.

"Would you stick to your business if he stole a million dollars?"

"If he succeeded in doing so."

SERIAL STORY

The Women's Candidate

By BYRON WILLIAMS

SYNOPSIS.

In a spirit of fun Mayor Bedight, a summer visitor, is chased through the woods by ten laughing girls, one of whom he catches and kisses. The girls form themselves into a court and sentence him to do the bidding of one of their number each day for ten days. A legislative measure opposing woman suffrage, which dropped from the mayor's pocket, is used to compel him to obey the mandates of the girls. His first day of service is with May Andrews, who takes him fishing. They are threatened by the sheriff with arrest. Miss Vining sees what she considers a clandestine meeting between one of the girls and the mayor. The next day he goes driving with Mabel Arney. They meet with an accident, are arrested and locked up, but escape.

CHAPTER VI.

In the office, smoking one of Miss Host's best cigars, his dignity outraged, sat the sheriff, waiting. Mayor Bedight walked up the hotel stairs, oblivious to his pending fate. Suddenly a door opened and a head appeared, a blonde head, a piquant head, a head to catch the fancy of an artist.

"Shh!" said the owner of the pretty profile. Bedight stopped, looking around cautiously.

"Hurry!" commanded the girl, holding open the door of her room. His Honor, the Mayor, hesitated for a moment—and then, throwing conventionalty to the winds, bolted through. The girl turned the key in the lock and faced him accusingly.

"Well of all the blundering bouncers! Do you know the sheriff has been hanging around here all afternoon waiting to arrest you?"

The mayor looked brazenly at the girl.

"I expected as much," he said, carelessly.

"What have you been doing now?" she demanded, giving him a severe reprimand from two otherwise kindly hazel eyes.

"Oh, chuck the attitude, Bess," growled the mayor, disgustedly. "That little imp of a Mabel Arney insisted on riding the black sardier. He ran away with her and in trying to catch the minx, I collided with a baby carriage and spilled the baby's milk. That's all. The confounded natives are always ready to arrest a summer resorter, and believing the peace and the dignity of the village had been shattered, they threw us in jail. We broke out, sullenly. Do you blame us?"

Before she could reply there was a knock on the door.

The girl's face went white. "I'm afraid somebody saw you come in here!" she whispered.

"Nonsense," he breathed. "Here—I'll slip under the bed. Go to the door."

In a twinkling the mayor was safely out of sight. The girl opened the door.

"Oh, hello, Jackie," she cried, in a relieved voice. "Come in."

"Bess, we're in a terrible pickle," sobbed Miss Vining. "That horrid man took Mabel Arney to Lakeville this morning and got her arrested. The sheriff insists she must be in the hotel and I've promised to bring the entire crowd out on the veranda for inspection. Mabel is frightened almost to death. Bess," dramatically, "we've got to dress her so the officer won't know her. Have you a switch

The mayor lay on his back, facing the mattress. "Where's that white princess of yours?" demanded Jackie. "She wore brown today. We'll have to take some tucks in it," going to the closet and helping herself.

"Here, Mabe, get into this, and live."

"Oh, not here!" protested Bess Winters, snatching the dress from Miss Vining's hands.

The judge looked at Bess blankly. "Why not?"

"Be—because!" shrieked Bess. "I'm afraid. Slip into your room, that's a dear, and I'll bring the switch in at once."

"Oh, who's afraid?" gurgled Mabel, reaching for the gown.

"Step into the closet," implored Miss Winters. "Somebody might come."

"Bess, you're an awful coward," anathematized the judge, sternly.

The man under the bed heard the closet door close and waited. There didn't seem to be anything else to do. Presently Miss Arney reappeared.

With hysterical laughter the changing of blackhaired Mabel into a ravishing blonde proceeded rapidly.

"There!" exclaimed Miss Vining triumphantly; "the sheriff will never know her in the world. Come on."

Mayor Bedight heard the door close. Rolling from under the bed, he locked the door and sat down to await developments. Half an hour later somebody knocked at the door. The mayor waited.

"Walter!" whispered an excited voice. "Open the door. It is I—Bess."

"Come in," replied the mayor, turning the key.

"We fooled him!" she cried, radiantly. "He couldn't find his prisoner. Miss Host told him there were but ten young ladies—and he went away bewildered—but he's coming back tomorrow to watch for you."

The man shrugged his shoulders. "Bess, you scout out and discover what Harriet Brooks—" consulting his list—"would like to have me do tomorrow and whatever it is we start at five in the morning."

The girl hurried away.

The mayor seated himself at a small desk and began to write. He was still at it when Bess returned.

"She has discovered an Indian mound on Glen Island and she wants you to go with her and open it."

"The dead ones," she said slowly, "never stay out late nights, never tyrannize, never take everything for granted, never get a grouch, never—"

The mayor interrupted her, his face serious as he said: "There were Darby and Joan."

"But these are the days of divorce courts," she answered, "and—genuses—" coloring.

"I am old-fashioned," he parried. "I like to dream of home with the woman in it."

"I fear it is going to rain," evaded Miss Brooks, looking anxiously at the cloud-filled west. "Do you mind digging a bit, Mr. Bedight?"

"As the wife said to her husband when she wanted a sealskin," he taunted, returning to the mound.

She came and stood over him as he worked.

His spade struck something—and her excitement grew.

"Oh, I do hope it's a mound builder!" she cried excitedly.

The mayor grinned and kept digging. A clap of thunder pealed in the distance. As she turned apprehensively, the digger's spade pried up a long, rosy object.

"Here is your mound builder," he said soberly, raising the object upon his spade.

She gasped.

The man smiled. "Oh! from the woman."

"I am afraid," he breathed, softly. "It is exactly what it looks like—the tail of a cow!"

As she stood frowning at him, great drops of rain began to fall. He looked about hurriedly for shelter under a tree.

"Come on," he cried, starting for the boat upon the beach. "We'll have to camp out."

She followed him blindly.

He pulled the dory high and dry and tipped it keel up.

"Crawl under," he said as the rain began to fall in torrents.

"Why, Mr. Bedight, I can't do that!"

The man took her gently by the arm.

"You have no other choice—and besides, I'm not a cannibal!"

She stooped and sat down upon the sand under the shelter. He followed, sitting close to her, of necessity. The fury of the storm broke. The day became as dusk, lighted only by the vivid flashes of anger that tore across the sky. He felt the woman tremble.

Too Big an Insult.

Angrily the head of the haberdashery concern stormed into the employment agency and demanded an interview with the manager.

"I understand," he said, "that you have been recommending as AI collectors certain young men whom you represent as having collected money from us. If they can get it from us, they can get it from anybody. That's the way you make it appear, consequently your clients land good jobs."

With visions of possible libel suits rising before his guilty conscience, the agent attempted self-justification.

"You are considered pretty hard nuts, you know," he said.

"Oh, that's all right!" said the man. "It ain't that I'm kidding about, but not one of your men has ever collected a dollar at our shop, and it don't do any good to lie about it."

fully. Being prisoner to a prematurely gray-haired young lady with a clear, rosy complexion and a sweet, winsome manner was not so bad—but to be told to dig like a terrier in the rough soil was a horse of another color.

But the mayor was game. Grasping a spade, he set to work diligently. It was a warm morning and the perspiration began to ooze from his heated body.

"Come and sit in the shade a while," invited the girl, thoughtfully. "We have all day to ourselves—and the skeletons will not run away."

Bedight obeyed gratefully, throwing himself at the woman's feet in the cool shadows of the oak.

"I'm awfully interested in ancient and medieval things," she explained, smiling down at him over her book.

"Once when I was in Iowa I met a man who was engaged in collecting curios—and he found a real mound-builder skeleton along the Cedar river while I was there. What if this should turn out to be something like that?"

"Pardon me," said the mayor, boldly, "but a nice girl like yourself should not be so interested in dead ones—especially when the woods are full of live ones."

The girl's face flushed, the red against her white hair making her very attractive in the eyes of the man on the sand.

"The dead ones," she said slowly, "never stay out late nights, never tyrannize, never take everything for granted, never get a grouch, never—"

The mayor interrupted her, his face serious as he said: "There were Darby and Joan."

The ONCOOKER S. E. KISER

The Dupe

Yes, we have parted, she and I. My dream of bliss has flown. The sun shines dimly in the sky. I'll never claim her as my own. The world is dull and gray. Since I left her, yesterday. But we have parted, she and I. And happiness has fled— She heaved a sweet, sad little sigh. As the final words were said!

The sweets I was so free to buy She always put away— Ah, we have parted, she and I. And the world is dull and gray! My sweets she kept to eat. With another beau, the cheat! So, we have parted, she and I. Her sweets she'll have to eat. For other fellows, now, to buy— While I get out of debt.

His Deduction.

"Yes," he said, "I think the world is getting better."

She had just told him that after thinking it all over she had decided that she could not be happy as his wife and that therefore she wished to break the engagement. So it was only natural that she should have been somewhat piqued. She had really expected him to break down or threaten to go away and kill himself.

"And may I ask you," she answered, somewhat testily, "to explain your reasons for believing that the world is getting better?"

For a moment he twirled the ring that she had just handed back to him; held it in such a position as to make it flash most brightly, and then replied:

"This is the first time I have ever had an engagement ring returned without a fight or a protest. Good evening."

A Mere Boaster.

Louise—Do you know that Charley Flincks is going around town bragging that he kissed you the other night?

Jessie—Why the horrible story-teller; he did no such thing! It was I that kissed him, and he nearly fainted when I did it, too. But that's the way with cowards. They always are the greatest boasters.

Unfinished.

Little Harry—Papa, I heard Mr. Hawkins say today that you were a self-made man. Is that so?

Papa—Yes, Harry. Mr. Hawkins was right.

Little Harry—Then why didn't you finish yourself?

Papa—What do you mean, dear?

Little Harry—Why, you forgot to put any hair on top of your head.

His Baptism.

"Teddie," said the minister, while mamma was out superintending the preparation of dinner, "have you ever been baptized?"

Teddie was not quite sure whether he had or not, and after indulging in deep thought for a moment, replied: "Do you get baptized on the arm so you won't ketch things?"

Precocious.

Johnny—Pa, did you ever go to Sunday school?

Pa—Yes; I used to go regularly when I was a boy.

Johnny—And with you as an example right here before her, ma still wants to keep me at it!

A Stern Chase.

Frances—Yes, he is pursuing literature.

Gertrude—Indeed! And is he very successful?

"No. It is still a long way ahead of him."

Teeth in a New Role.

"How is it you are always the first one at the office in the morning now? You used to be late invariably. Have you got a new alarm clock?"

"No, our baby is getting its stomach teeth."

Traced Down.

"All things come to him who waits." Who was it wrote that?

"Oh, some fellow who tried and failed to sneak out of a restaurant without leaving a tip. I suppose."

ARCHBALD IS GUILTY

Senate Holds Commerce Court Jurist Influenced Officers of Erie R. R.

Judge Robert W. Archbald of the commerce court was voted guilty of graft by the United States senate, sitting as a court of impeachment.

This means his expulsion from office and that he never again can hold any office of public trust or honor in this nation.

There were 13 articles of impeachment sent by the house of representatives to the senate to be voted on separately by the senators.

It was only necessary that the accused be found guilty on one charge to expel him. Thus when the first vote was announced his fate had been sealed.

A two-thirds vote was necessary on each ballot to sustain the charge then being voted on.

Archbald was found guilty on the first charge by a vote of 68 to 5.

The impeachment proceedings against Judge Archbald were started early in 1912, when complaint was made to the interstate commerce commission, and later to Attorney General Wickersham and President Taft, that Judge Archbald had been concerned in influencing railroads to grant him certain favors in connection with coal land deals, and the settlement of cases involving coal properties.

W. C. T. U.

The meeting last week held at Mrs. Huston's was well attended and an interesting meeting was reported. The meeting next week Thursday, Jan. 23, is to be held with Mrs. G. R. Loomis on Main street. The leaders are Mesdames Sales and Newhouse. The topics are, "Is the public School a Failure? The Vocational Schools and the Night Schools." This will be a ten cent tea meeting of which there will be several during the year. Each member is requested to bring a cup, fork and spoon, and of course it will be remembered.

The railroads are taking no chances these days. It isn't sufficient for a man to say he is a total abstainer. A Chicago daily is authority for the statement that the St. Louis, Iron Mountain and Southern Railroad has insured its sleeping cars with health-insuring agents. Those who have been drinking liquor were ordered off duty. Surely every thing is moving in the right direction.

Sportsmen Don't Like Present Game Laws

Sportsmen are denouncing the present game laws, particularly with regard to the opening of the partridge and deer seasons. Men hunting birds are placed at a disadvantage because of the late opening of the partridge season, which commences the same day as the deer season, October 15. The state game department realizes the folly of the statute, and an effort will be made to change it at the coming session of the legislature. The plan of State Game Warden Otis, is to open the bird and rabbit season October 1 and the deer season November 10. It also is possible that he will recommend that the deer season will be extended to December 10, with a license good for twenty days. Such a law would meet with general favor in the hunting regions of the upper peninsula. The closed season for rabbits has done a great deal to protect these animals. Rabbits are not fit to eat during the summer months. The season should, however open on October 1, instead of October 15, declare many hunters.

In and Around Plymouth

There were 8311 marriages in Wayne county during the year of 1912.

Leo Snelgers, Milford's star base ball pitcher will pitch for Adrian in the Southern Michigan League.

The Welcome Home Club of South Lyon, are making arrangements to hold their third home-coming next August.

The Milford water works plant is now under municipal operation for the first time since the plant was established sixteen years ago.

Thomas B. Kenny of Ann Arbor has been appointed tax commissioner. The position draws $2,500 annual salary and is good till 1919.

Elm has a fast basket ball team this year. Clyde Bently, a former member of the Plymouth ball team is one of the star players on the team.

Daniel L. Davis of Pontiac, has presented Oakland county with a clock for the tower of the court house. The gift represents nearly $2,000.

The Milford cub, an organization composed of Milford business men are putting into operation a plan to stimulate trade and attract new customers to that village by offering valuable weekly inducements for cash trade with Milford merchants. It would not be a bad idea for the Plymouth Improvement Association to try something along this line.

Split Log Drag

What One Township has Done With Them at Small Expense.

Highway Commissioner, John Geddes has used the split log drag to good advantage during the past season in Sylvan township, Washtenaw county, and the result may be seen in several stretches of good road. Regularly following each rain or as soon thereafter as practicable, Chris. Kalmbach, George Gage and Fred Sage have gone over stretches of road in the vicinity of their farms with one of the simple, but wonder-working split log drags, smoothing the surface and preserving the crown of the roadway, and the result in each instance is a good road. Of course, the road was graded and the worst stretches graded last spring before the split-log drags were started. Mr. Geddes says that about 16 miles of road were so cared for the past summer at a total cost of dragging of only $73, the basis of payment being $5 per day, three horses being used on each drag. The split log drag is best and most economical good roads maker that can be used on country roads. The very fact however, that it is inexpensive, doubtless prevents its more general use.—Northville Record.

The department of agriculture has issued an appeal to the American farmer to go in for the cultivation of the sugar beet. There are 2,000,000 short tons of beets now imported annually, says the department, which should be raised at home. The average American consumes 32 pounds of sugar each year, says the report, "and only ten pounds of that is produced in this country. The farmer of this country should keep that money at home."

A GOOD HORSEMAN.

Likes a fine animal and a fine horse should be well cared for. In the stables where the best horses are kept you will nearly always find a package of HARVELL'S CONDITION POWDER. It is a purely medicinal powder, not a food, and its effect on live stock is to purify the blood, regulate the bowels, improve the spirits and make the coat smooth and glossy. Price 25 cents per package. Sold by Jones, the Druggist, and Beyer's Pharmacy.—Adv.

Death of Lorenzo Deland

Lorenzo Deland died at his home in this village last Saturday after an illness of several months. Mr. Deland was born in Murray township, New York, in the year of 1829, and was united in marriage to Miss Laura Selts in 1868. Four children were born to them, three of whom are living, Mrs. Fred Schiffe and Mrs. Clara Weiger of this place and Wm. Deland of Detroit. The funeral was held from his late residence last Monday afternoon, Rev. B. F. Farber officiating. The remains were laid to rest in Riverside cemetery. Mr. Deland resided in Plymouth many years and was well known in this vicinity. The family has the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement.

Remember the home talent play at the opera house, Thursday evening, January 23, for the benefit of the Ladies Aid Society of the M. E. church.

Not since 1818 did it arrive sooner in the year. In that year it came on March 22. Not until after the year 2000 will it come so early again.

Readers of the Mail will confer a favor if they will mention to advertisers the fact that they read their announcements. It is of interest to the buying public that the business men advertise their wares and they will be pleased to do so if they feel the public will take notice. Good advertising is as much of a feature to the reader as the news columns. Read the ads in the Mail and then let the advertiser know of it. It will benefit all concerned.

The organization of Growers Canning Company, which was spoken of in the Mail several weeks ago, has been postponed for another year, owing to the lack of time to get the matter under way and the stock subscribed. Where Moses Read the Ten Commandments

THE FORTIFIED BLACK CITADEL

SPOT ON WHICH MOSES READ TEN COMMANDMENTS

THOUSAND YEAR OLD CYPRESS TREES

PLAINS OF ASSEMBLAGE IN DISTANCE

More than 5,000 years ago there were gathered at the command of Moses, on the plains of Assemblage in the valley of Mount Sinai, all of the children of Israel to listen to the reading of the laws that were revealed to Moses during the "forty days and forty nights" he spent in the midst of a cloud communing with the God of the "chosen people."

Since that momentous and epoch-making event nations have risen to mighty power, only to go down to decay and oblivion. Unpeopled plains have been converted into hives of industry, and hives of industry have reverted back to unpeopled plains. New lands have been discovered and peopled and new seas have been navigated and charted. Everywhere progress has changed the physical condition of the people. Everywhere progress has changed the historical and geographical importance of nations and countries. Here, alone, in the Mount Sinai Valley, where the nation that gave us the Savior first sprang into prominence, progress has stood still. Surrounded by the peaks of the "Forty Martyrs," all is hushed and still on the plain where once the hum of thousands of voices was heard, and where the valley rang with the resounding march of the hosts of Israel.

On the peak of Ras-es-Safafeh, the cross, the symbol of Christianity, has been planted on the very spot upon which Moses, the great law giver and leader of the Jews, stood and gave to his people the ten commandments, the basis of all religious beliefs and the foundation of all law, moral and civil. Now unpeopled and deserted, the very loneliness of the place is awe-inspiring, and the "silence of the tomb" is not more impressive than the "veil of silence" that envelops Ras-es-Safafeh and its surroundings.

The mount on which God is said to have revealed himself to Moses is situated in the southern half of the so-called peninsula of Sinal, projecting into the northern extremity of the Red sea, between the Gulf of Suez on the west and the Gulf of Akabah on the east. This part of the peninsula consists of a mass of granite and porphyry mountains which may be divided into three groups, a northwestern, reaching in Jebel Serbal a height of 6,712 feet; a central, including Jebel Musa (Mount of Moses), 7,363 feet, and Jebel Katerin, 8,537 feet; and an eastern and southern, whose highest peak is Jebel Umm Shomer, 8,449 feet. Whether the Biblical Sinal was Jebel Umm Shomer or Jebel Musa was long disputed by leading authorities. The former was advocated by Eusebius, Jerome, Cosmas Indicopleustes, and in more modern times by Lepsius and Ebers. Jebel Musa, however, is preferred by most authorities, and is favored by tradition (which dates, however, only from Christian times), indicated by the name "Mountain of Moses," and the erection of a monastery upon it which goes back to the days of Justinian. The northern peak of Jebel Musa, known as Ras-es-Safafeh (6,540 feet), meets the conditions required, since there is an open space at its base sufficient to accommodate a large encampment.

Standing on the lofty summit of Mount Sinal, what thoughts and visions are conjured up as one contemplates that there on the vast plain of Assemblage that stretches before the eye hundreds of feet below, fifty centuries ago, the commandments were delivered to the assembled children of Israel.

Excepting for the Mount Sinal monastery, which from these heights looks like a little toy fort built of blocks, the region is still and hushed, and almost deserted. The massive walls of the monastery raised by the peace-loving and God-fearing monks under Justinian in 527 A. D.—as a protection against the marauding bands of Bedouins that infested that part of the country when the wealth of an empire was possessed by the builders and occupants of the monastery—are in the same condition as when built 1,500 years ago. Today, however, the Christian world keeps a watchful eye over this mountain monastery and its contents, and the Bedouins, knowing this to be the fact, keep on friendly as well as visiting terms with the monks.

In the monastery are stored the priceless books narrating the history of Christianity in the tongue of every Christian nation. Slowly the brotherhood of Mount Sinal monks are dying out, there being but twenty or twenty-five at the present time. The life and the pay—not enough to buy tobacco—are not sufficient inducement for young recruits to join the forces that year by year are growing smaller. In the course of a few years, the treasurer of the monastery will remain but a memory to remind one of the greatness of its founder, Justinian.

Looking northwest from Jebel Musa to Wadi el

Loja the traveler who for days has been wearied by the sight of nothing else but the monotonous blue of the burning sky and the dreary desert all about him is exhilarated, pleased and rested by the sight of those beautiful cypress trees with their cool, dark foliage down in the wadi—the Arabic name for hollow or valley. One can scarcely imagine anything more dreary than the valley where these trees raise their heads above the rock-bound hollow in the desert. They stand in all their majesty in the gardens of the monastery of the Sinaitic monks on St. Catherine, one of the mountains of the range called the "Forty Martyrs," and great pride is taken by these men of God in these trees, which for a thousand years have broken the monotony of the desert waste and have cast their welcome shade wherein the weary traveler and the travel-stained caravan may rest and take shelter.

For more than a year the Israelites were encamped in the valley of Sinal when they again took up their wanderings in search of the promised land. Through Asia Minor they proceeded to the land of Canaan, their great leader, Moses, dying as they came in sight of the country which God had promised to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

One of the most important places in Asia Minor, on the road from Constantinople to Konia, is the ancient town of Afum Kara-Hissar, whose extraordinary citadel, rising 800 feet in its very center, was the Byzantine fortress of Aereous, where in 730 A. D. the Arabs, under the leadership of Sidel Battel el Ghaal, were defeated by the Turks in its very shadow. To get a view of this most picturesque town a climb up the stairway cut in the rock of the citadel brings one to the very summit where there still remain the mediaeval Turkish fortifications.

Like all other towns in Asia Minor, Afum Kara-Hissar is built of mud bricks. Its streets run in every direction of the compass. Although the language spoken there is Turkish, there is a large Armenian population. It is as dirty a place as one can imagine. Overrun with half-starved, howling dogs in the day, the night is made hideous by their mad attempts to clean up the refuse thrown in the streets. It is a good place to be avoided by the fastidious. The town boasts of a fine bazaar, churches for the Armenians and mosques for the Turks, as well as schools for both classes. The Armenians have made a commendable effort to make their part of the town inhabitable and sanitary.

The story of the birth and infancy of the founder and first legislator of the Israelite nation is one of the treasured gems of Hebrew literature. He was of the tribe of Levi, and his mother, Jochebed (his father's name was Amram), hid him three months in defiance of the edict of Pharaoh, who, to prevent the growth of his Hebrew slave population, had ordered all their male children to be put to death at birth. As the danger of discovery became great, the infant was placed in an ark on the Nile, was found and adopted by the daughter of Pharaoh, and was brought up as an Egyptian prince. But his heart was with his enslaved brethren, and his slaying of one of their oppressors necessitated his flight to Midian, where he received the divine call to be the deliverer of his people from Egypt. After considerable trouble he led them forth, crossed the Red sea, in which the pursuing Egyptians were drowned, and then, during a forty years' residence in the desert, organized the religious and social polity of the nation. Moses stands out as a sublime and unique figure, without whom neither Judaism, Mohanmedanism, nor Christianity could have been what they are.

BEAR WAS HIS INDIAN WIFE.

Where the Hunter Shot Her is Now Called Bear's House.

Along one of the branches of the Cheyenne river in South Dakota there stands a hill called Matoti, or Bear's House. Tradition tells this Indian legend about it:

Once upon a time an Indian hunter was out on the chase. He wandered for many a day through forest and plain, over hill and dale, till he finally came to a spot where Bear's House now is. Here he hunted for a while until one day he met a beautiful Indian woman.

As soon as he saw her he wanted to marry her. Long and hard was the wooing, for the Indian woman was unwilling to marry the stranger. At last she consented, but she made the stranger promise that he would never in the future hunt or kill the bear. This animal was her totem, sacred to her and an object of her worship. The hunter faithfully promised to obey her wishes and to hunt all other animals and leave the bear unharmed. Then they were married and lived on in happiness and contentment for many a day.

Once it happened that the hunter started on the chase. Early he went and roamed all through the neighboring forest without killing a single thing. At last he became weary and tired from the chase and resolved to return to his wigwam. As he was approaching his home he saw in the dusky twilight the dark and shaggy form of a huge bear making straight for the wigwam.

"Now my wife will be lost," he thought, "for if the bear reaches there before me he will surely kill her."

Doubt at first stayed his hand, for he remembered his marriage vow. But fear and anxiety overcame his doubts. He raised his bow to his shoulder and aimed at the animal. One arrow sent straight to the heart laid the animal low. When the Indian came near he saw instead of the bear the lifeless form of his wife. The hill where they lived is still called the Bear's House, or Matoti Hill.

Women Avoid Operations

When a woman suffering from some form of feminine disorder is told that an operation is necessary, it of course frightens her.

The very thought of the hospital operating table and the surgeon's knife strikes terror to her heart, and no wonder. It is quite true that some of these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but thousands of women have avoided the necessity of an operation by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This fact is attested by the grateful letters they write to us after their health has been restored.

These Two Women Prove Our Claim.
Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely walk. I was up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could do almost anything."

Charlotte, N. C.—"I was in bad health for two years, with pains in both sides and was very nervous. If I even lifted a chair it would cause a hemorrhage. I had a growth which the doctor said was a tumor and I never would get well unless I had an operation. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I gladly say that I am now enjoying fine health and am the mother of a nice baby girl. You can use this letter to help other suffering women."—Mrs. Rosa Sims, 16 Wyona St., Charlotte, N. C.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman submit to a surgical operation without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others—why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs. It has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO., (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

NEWS FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

THE MATTER OF CONTESTED SEATS ENDS IN PEACE AND HARMONY REIGNS

THE GOVERNOR GOES ABOUT THE STATE DEPARTMENTS

Representative Skeels Delivers a Flery Political Speech in Which All Parties Are Scored More Or Less

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

Led by Rep. Baird of Bay, and Rep. Skeels of Oceana, the republicans in the house joined with the progressives and by an overwhelming vote rescinded the resolution prohibiting legislative recounts. Rep. Skeels, who is one of the new republican members in the house delivered one of the greatest speeches heard in the legislature in recent years. The democrats who voted almost unanimously against legislative recounts were roundly scored by the Oceana representatives. The national progressives were criticised for their failure to administer the "square deal" in accordance with the planks of their platform, and the republicans who assisted in passing the original resolution were not spared.

During the state conference of the national progressive party held in this city the members of the republican party, and bill mossers as well, were severely criticised in stinging resolutions for their action in supporting the so-called "Chinese Wall" resolution. Evidently the action of the state convention was not without its effect as Rep. Neller and Rep. Plumley, the two progressives, who voted against the recounts on the first roll call, changed their minds when the motion to reconsider was made.

Although several contests were filed in the house, none of the members whose seats were contested, lost out. In fact, most of them gained several votes when the legislative committees conducted the recounts. It is generally agreed among the members that the recounts will have a good effect, as there is absolutely no question now as to the right of certain members to retain their seats, and no one can charge that he was not given a square deal.

Treated All Fairly.

In apportioning his committees Speaker Currie did not discriminate against those who tried to defeat him for the speakership. Rep. Ashley of Detroit, who led the republican bolters, was given the chairmanship of one of the best committees, and Rep. Martz of Detroit, who assisted Ashley in making life miserable for Currie, drew places on practically all of the committees in which he is interested. The democrats drew twenty chairmanships and the bull moose members of the legislature were not slighted in any manner. In making up the various committees Speaker Currie tried to pick the men best suited for the places regardless of their political leanings, hoping by so doing that the 1913 legislature would accomplish something in the way of good legislation and would not spend all the time in petty squabbling.

Governor Looks On

Shortly after his Inauguration Gov. Ferris announced that it was his intention to pay a visit to all of the state departments in the capitol, and expressed a wish that he might be on friendly terms with all the state officials, despite the fact that they are allied with an opposite political party.

During the previous administration Governor Osborn seldom visited any of the state offices and the only time that he appeared in the legislative hall was the day he read his inaugural message. He did not believe that it was the duty of the chief executive to attempt to influence legislation by working among the members.

In this respect, however, Governor Ferris differs from his predecessor. The new chief executive says he intends to visit the house and senate, and has already made good his pledge to visit some of the state departments. He has already inspected Secretary of State Martindale's office and paid considerable attention to the detailed workings of that department as explained by Secretary Martindale.

Free Text Books.

There is considerable opposition already being manifested against the bills providing for free text books and uniform text books. One prominent member of the legislature says that if the present law was applied there would be no demand for free text books, as the law specifically provides that school districts can purchase books at wholesale and either sell or give them away to school children.

Equal Suffrage

Although the constitutional amendment providing for the resubmission of the equal suffrage question, is bound to encounter some opposition, it is generally predicted that the legislature will not dare defeat the resolution presented by Rep. Flowers of Detroit. It is pointed out that the number of people who voted in favor of it last fall is sufficient to warrant its being submitted again, and there are few here who believe that the legislature will turn a deaf ear.

At the regular session two years ago the resolution providing for the submission of the equal suffrage amendment did not receive the required two thirds vote of the house, but it was the house that was responsible for its being submitted last fall. During the special session last spring the house passed the immediate effect primary bill in order to place the responsibility on the senate.

In retaliation the senate passed the suffrage resolution with a view to getting the representatives on record. The senators little dreamed that the house would give favorable consideration to the resolution, and when it was adopted by a two-thirds majority, some of the senators who had helped it along, nearly collapsed.

A Short Session

Some of the legislators are already expressing themselves in favor of a short session, but judging from the mass of bills that have been introduced already the prospects are bright that the lawmakers will not leave Lansing before April 15 and possibly later.

The new constitution provides that the legislators shall receive $800 for the session, and for financial reasons there is no object to string the work over a long period. In the old days when the members of the house and senate received $5 per day, the sessions some times lasted until well into the summer, but the new constitution remedied that apparent defect in the old statute.

"Pure Shoe Bill."

On a par with the now celebrated "pure wool proposal" with which Congressman Lindquist, of Greenville, won his way to a seat in congress from the eleventh district, is the bill of Senator Woodworth of Huron county, which might be termed the "pure shoe bill." The Woodworth bill is a copy of the measure now pending in congress and a somewhat similar law passed by the Louisiana legislature. The bill does not prohibit the use of inferior materials in the construction of shoes, but provides that when anything other than leather is used in the manufacture of supposed leather footwear, the fact shall be plainly labelled or printed on the shoes.

The Game Laws.

State Game and Forestry Warden W. R. Oates, in the annual report of his department, recommends a number of radical changes in the present laws. Civil service for employes, limiting hunters to one deer and changing the opening of the season to November 10, the abolishment of spring shooting of water fowl and shore birds, requiring non-resident fishermen to secure license and increasing the number of deputies from 10 to 20, are among Oates' recommendations. The passage of a bill providing that each resident hunter shall pay a license fee of one dollar, which license shall be issued and used only during the open season, would supply an annual revenue of $100,000, it is estimated by the department.

Enlargement of the Capitol.

Rep. Charles Flowers, of Detroit, introduced a bill calling for an appropriation of $750,000 for the purpose of building an addition to the state capitol. This measure is indorsed by the state bar association and every county bar association in Michigan. Two paramount reasons are mentioned why the building should be enlarged. The first is that the state has outgrown the quarters provided when the state house was constructed in the middle seventies. The second paramount reason for the appropriation, it is claimed, is that the contents of the state library, conservatively estimated to be worth $300,000, would be destroyed if a fire got good headway, for the books and valuable documents are not properly protected.

Shipments of Live Stock.

Rep. Dunn, of Sault Ste. Marie, has prepared a bill compelling railways to give live stock precedence over ordinary freight. A movement has been started in Michigan and surrounding states by live stock buyers and shippers, which is based on the fact that the railways have made stock shipments feel the brunt of the delays. The bill establishes a minimum rate of speed for stock shipments of say 15 miles per hour while in Michigan territory. Shippers claim the railroads made it a business to hold up stock in order to add feeding charges and then only furnish feed enough for a tenth of the number shipped.

Inspection of Gasoline.

Rep. L. J. Wolcott, of Albion, presented a bill providing for a complete and thorough inspection of gasoline sold in Michigan. It also provides for labeling of the benzine series as "naphtha" if they fall below 60 degrees Beaume, and as gasoline when they are above that figure. All gasoline, by the Wolcott bill, will have to be labelled with its specific gravity, according to the Beaume scale, and dealers who attempted to sidestep the new regulations will be subject to a substantial fine.

HOW TO CURE RHEUMATISM

Prominent Doctor's Best Prescription. Eagerly Mixed at Home.

This simple and harmless formula has worked wonders for all who have tried it, quickly curing chronic and acute rheumatism and backache. "From your druggist get one ounce of Toris compound (in original sealed package) and one ounce of syrup of Sarsaparilla compound. Take these two ingredients home and put them in a half pint of good whiskey. Shake the bottle and take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bed-time." Good results come after the first few doses. If your druggist does not have Toris compound in stock he will get it for you in a few hours from his wholesale house. Don't be influenced to take a patent medicine instead of this. Insist on having the genuine Toris compound in the original, one-ounce, sealed, yellow package. This was published here last winter and hundreds of the worst cases were cured by it in a short time. Published by the Globe Pharmaceutical Laboratories of Chicago.

Suffer From Plague of Rats.

A "pied piper of Hamelin" is needed at Santa Paula, Cal. Thousands of rats, and all big wood rats, have invaded the place, and the situation is such that women are afraid to go to church. The rats seem to have a preference for churches and on several occasions have forced the feminine attendance at services to take to the high benches. The city authorities are seeking means to abate the pest. The rats are believed to have been driven out of the woods by recent fires in the forests.

JUVENILE LOGIC.

"Well, mamma said you were always blowing your own horn, so I thought you must belong to a brass band."

Invalid Men and Women

I will give you FREE a sample of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets that have brought health and happiness to thousands—also a book on any chronic disease requested.

During many years of practice I have used numerous combinations of curative medicines for liver ills. I have kept a record of the result in case after case, so that my staff of physicians and surgeons, at the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., are able to diagnose and treat cases at a distance with uniform good results. But for the permanent relief of blood disorders and impurities, I can recommend my "Golden Medical Discovery" a blood medicine without alcohol or other injurious ingredients. R. V. PIERCE, M.D., Buffalo, N. Y.

Nature's Way Is The Best

Periodic sleep in our American forest we find bloodroot, queen's root, mandarin and other roots, golden seal, Oregon grape root and cherry bark. Of these Dr. R. V. Pierce made a pure glyceric extract which has been favorably known for over forty years. He called it "GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY." This "Discovery" purifies the blood and tones up the stomach and the entire system in Nature's own way. It's just the tissue builder and tonic you require.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has the endorsement of many thousands that it has cured them of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heartburn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

"In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, except consumption, the 'Golden Medical Discovery' is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on-coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The 'Discovery' is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken."

Warrenville, O.—"I have felt the effects of blood poisoning for eighteen years. I was never without some eruptions on my body. PUTNAM FADELESS DYES

THE MEMOIR OF MISS BETTIE BROWN

By HARVEY PEAKE.

Bettie Brown was sitting in the parlor reading a letter when the postman brought the letter. These were Bettie's two greatest occupations; sitting and doing nothing. She usually combined the two.

Her pretty face received itself into a veritable interrogation mark when she saw that the handwriting was Bob Taylor's.

"Why, I haven't heard from him for five years," she exclaimed, "not since he went to the Philippines after our quarrel. What can he have to say?" Tearing open the envelope she read:

"Maudie, May 25th.

"My Dear Bettie: I am writing to say that I am going back to the United States on purpose to see you. I shall arrive in Brewster about the first of July. I hope that you will be glad to see me, for I can scarcely wait until I can see you.

"The silly misunderstanding we had has been wiped entirely out of my mind, and my greatest desire is to return and plead in person for your forgiveness, and also to ask you something more."

"I can see in my mind's eye your slim, willowy form in its sailor dress of blue. And I trust, dear Bettie, that you still have this identical dress, and will wear it to welcome me back. I think it was the prettiest dress I ever saw. If you will do it for this occasion it will make our meeting so much easier, for I shall know at a glance that I am forgiven if you have it on.

"Should there be any change in my plans I shall communicate with you at once. Do not make an effort to answer this letter for I shall be on route."

"Yours sincerely,
"Robert Taylor."

After Bettie had read the letter twice she fell into a reminiscent mood.

"Dear old Bob," she soliloquized, "how good it is to hear from you! And so you have something to say to me! I was ready to forgive and forget the next day, if you had only asked, for I loved you and still do. What girl could help it?"

"Of course I shall wear the blue dress. I'll—no, I can't either—I haven't had it on since he left! I began to take on flesh that same year. I weighed a hundred and ten when he saw me last and now—well, I know those last scales must have been wrong, for they made it a hundred and forty-eight!"

"Goodness gracious, what shall I do? I can't begin to get it on and—my slim, willowy figure! That's what I get for sitting around so much and taking no exercise. And I remember that he hated fat girls! I will wear that dress!"

Immediately she constituted herself a committee of ways and means.

"Just five weeks in which to take off thirty-eight pounds!" she said.

The next morning at breakfast Bettie's father was full of trouble.

"I thought when I built this house that I was putting up one of the most substantial residences in the town," he complained, "but last night, whenever a car passed, I distinctly felt it tremble, sometimes for as long as two minutes. And once it was shaken to its very foundations! I'm going to get the builder to come over, as soon as he can, to make an examination."

Even Bobby was disturbed. He came running down stairs one morning a few days later, exclaiming:

"Mum, this house is haunted. I know it is, 'cause last night I heard the awfulest groans and moans after I went to bed, and the house just shook like it was tremblin' with terror! I was afraid to get up an' I've been awake all night!"

One evening at tea, Mrs. Brown laid down her knife and fork and looking at her daughter, remarked:

"Now Bettie, I want to know what the matter is with you. You refuse preserves and cake, and you don't eat enough to keep a bird alive. You're actually getting thin and peaked. Why girl, you don't look like your self; you've fallen away so much that your clothes are ever so much too big for you. Now what is it?"

"Oh nothing," answered Bettie.

"Yes, there is. There's something wrong with you," replied her mother. "You shouldn't try to conceal it any longer. Either you are sick or in love."

"Well, if you are determined to say into your daughter's private affairs, I'll have to confess that I am reducing my flesh by the sitting process. You select a long blue dress for me, and roll back and forth twenty-five times without moving. Then you lick up your finger, and say, 'are you crazy?'"

"But I believe being in love is exactly as good as being crazy."

"What, now I begin to see daylight," answered Mrs. Brown. "So you are in love, are you? I thought as much."

"It's Bob Taylor!" And then the whole story came out.

After Bob had arrived, duly engaged himself to the willing Bettie, and taken his departure, the young woman in the case was in her room taking down her hair for the night, and remembering to herself the experience of the past five weeks.

"I shouldn't have done it for anybody in the world but Bob," she declared, "but I don't intend that he shall ever know that I was so much in love with him that I bruised myself black and blue, from my shoulders to my heels, besides entirely upsetting my stomach, that he might be pleased with me. And as for the dress, I don't think he noticed the difference between the old and the new, unless there were two sizes

PARCELS POST

And the Local Merchant—May Help It Rightly Used

The new parcels post law has been viewed with a great deal of misgiving by retail merchants everywhere. However, it should give them new opportunities of which they have had little conception. It improves their position as respects distant mail order houses. A mail order house 300 or 600 miles away must pay 62 cents to get a ten-pound parcel mailed. The local merchant serving the same article to a 50-mile territory, can get the same thing carried for 32 cents. He can send it for local delivery, including such rural routes as may start at the home postoffice for 14 cents. A mail order house over 1,000 miles away must pay 91 cents to get such a parcel mailed. It should be possible for the local merchants to develop a good trade in outlying country for material to be delivered by the parcel post. The possibilities for the development of this business are unlimited and in the the outlying country around this city there is thus a great potential trade waiting for someone to get.

Early Morning Train to Be Taken Off

The Pere Marquette Ry. announces that on and after Sunday the mail train leaving Detroit at 2 a. m. will be discontinued. This train brings out much mail, not only from Detroit but all eastern points, and the business interests of this part of Michigan will be seriously handicapped, Plymouth being included. The early morning mail is the heaviest that arrives here, often being more than all the rest of the day put together. This mail is distributed before 7:30 a. m. and goes out on the rural routes. With the abandonment of the early train this mail would not get here until 9:15, inconveniencing the business people as well as putting off rural delivery until next day, unless carriers wait until ten o'clock instead of 7:30 as is now the rule. The railroad officials say the train does not pay and as retrenchment seems to be the order of the new management the people will have to grin and bear it if the U. S. government does not do something. The Detroit morning dailies could be sent out by trolley car, but could not be delivered before breakfast.
