Class Day Exercises

The class day exercises took place in the opera house Wednesday evening. Every seat in the house was taken and there were many more who were unable to obtain tickets. The one act play entitled the "Last Senior Party" arranged by the Misses Velda Bogert, Imogene Smith and Ruth Huston was unique and pleasing in every detail. The scene was a large porch party, at the class president's home, with the thirty-two class members present. Henry Baker in a few well chosen words gave the president's address, while Miss Imogene Smith in her quiet pleasing manner gave a brief history of the class. Miss Velda Bogert as class prophetess foretold a bright and prosperous future for the class of 1913. Miss Ruth Huston charmed the audience with a beautiful poem of her own composition. Leslie Hudd furnished great amusement for the class and spectators when he presented to each member an appropriate gift. To the prospective school teachers he presented a wooden spanker, declaring that they would be as valuable to them as their diplomas, and to two of the young ladies who had declared themselves for suffrage, he gave rolling pins and the ballot as essentials, and so on to each member he presented equally suitable gifts. Miss Czarina Penney presided at the piano for the class song. Daryl Downs lead in the class yell. Music was furnished by the High School orchestra. The evening was declared a great success by all present. Thursday evening the Commencement exercises were given and this evening will occur the Alumni reunion at the school house. Light refreshments will be served. This will end the exercises for the week and is also the closing of one of the most successful years in the high school.

Young Man Found Dead

Roy F. Holliday, a young man, who has been employed on the farm of Ira Wilson in Livonia township for the past eight years was found dead in the horse barn on the Wilson farm last Saturday morning. The young man who was 25 years of age was a victim of epilepsy and it was one of these attacks that caused his death. The remains were brought to Schrader Bros. undertaking parlors. Holliday's home was at Pleasantville, Ohio, and the remains were shipped to that place Tuesday. The young man was highly respected by all who knew him and his untimely death is sincerely regretted.

Own a Home

True Contentment Comes to the Home Owner and His Family

Let your first investment be a home. Have your children a house to live in or a home to love in?

Don't be content to raise your children under another man's roof.

Is your family just a few people living together, or, have you a home?

Many men haven't the money to build only because they have not the courage to save.

It's a tough thing to walk a town of homes and know that none of them is yours.

What will be your children's recollection of home—a house you owned or a house you rented?

No man is too poor to build as long as he is spending money for some luxury he could deny himself.

If your living in a house make the house more valuable, if the house were yours you would reap the profit.

Think over all the investments of which you have heard; how many who have invested in a home have lost their money?

Free Lecture

Mr. Wm. R. Eashon C. S. E., member of the Board of Lecturership of the First Church of Christ Scientist of Boston, Mass., will deliver a free lecture in the Ypsilanti opera house at 3 p. m., Sunday, June 22nd. The public is cordially invited.

Concise Criticism

Individual criticism of local affairs is likely to be narrow, selfish, ill-considered and destructive. But organized criticism of the kind voiced by a local community development club is broad, well thought of, nonpartisan, unbiased, unselfish and constructive. A local club whose object is to build up and improve the community, if wisely and conservatively conducted, may cause its decisions and recommendations on matters of community policy to be accepted by the public as authoritative and final.

"Nippy" Stevens Accidentally Shoots Man

While shooting at a target in a shooting gallery at 48 Monroe avenue, Detroit last Saturday evening at 6 o'clock, G. E. Marcey, an attendant, walked in front of a rifle in the hands of Charles Stevens, of this village, just as he pulled the trigger.

The bullet entered Marcey's head at the right side, piercing the ear and lodging in the brain. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital, while a squad of detectives rushed to the gallery, gathering in all the persons they could find who had seen the accident.

Stevens was taken to the central station detective bureau, where his statement was taken by the prosecuting attorney. He was pale and visibly shaken as he sat waiting to learn what the police would do with him.

Marcey is 28 years old and lived at 25 West Columbia street. Shortly after reaching St. Mary's hospital it was learned that his left side had become paralyzed and that there was little chance for his recovery.

Chief of Detectives Palmer says that Stevens was under the influence of liquor when he shot Marcey, while the latter was going to paint up some targets.

Stevens declares that Marcey walked right in front of the rifle, and was himself to blame for the shooting.

Mrs. Dingfelder, wife of the shooting gallery proprietor, said that Marcey had disobeyed strict orders by walking around when the gun was leveled.

Deputy Sheriff Springer informed us since the above was in type that he heard in the sheriff's office that Stevens was released from custody Wednesday and that Marcey was getting better.

Freak Plays That Decide Baseball Championships

By Hugh S. Fullerton

(Copyright, 1913, by W. G. Chapman)

Detroit's Tigers and Philadelphia's Athletics were struggling in the final series of the baseball season in the Tigers' fair. Upon the outcome depended the championship of the American league, and the chance to meet the Chicago Cubs for the world's championship.

Detroit was clinging desperately to the one run lead that was earned by two terrific drives by Crawford and Cobb. Donovan was pitching magnificently, yet he could not prevent the Athletics from hitting; time and again the Tigers were thrown back on the defensive and saved by the wonderful fielding feats of Cobb and Bush. The eighteen athletes were strained to the breaking point and each one was "on his toes" every instant.

made that way. Schaefer had no right to first base but was free to return to second if he could escape being touched, as no runner is out on the bases unless touched or forced. Chicago, evidently ignorant of the rules, was arguing heatedly and Manager Duffy ran from the third base coaching line to the pitcher's slab to appeal to the assistant umpire.

made that way. Schaefer had no right to first base but was free to return to second if he could escape being touched, as no runner is out on the bases unless touched or forced. Chicago, evidently ignorant of the rules, was arguing heatedly and Manager Duffy ran from the third base coaching line to the pitcher's slab to appeal to the assistant umpire.

The game went to the twelfth inning and finally, with a runner on third base, and Schaefer again on first, the batter drove out a clean single that ended the contest. Still unsatisfied with the freaks of the day Schaefer ran from first down to second, stopped, looked around to see if anyone (especially an umpire) was looking, walked all the way around second base without touching it, and satisfied that he had duplicated Merkle's famous play, came off the field grinning.

national game, perhaps none is as well known to old-timers as the one which happened to Cliff Carroll, on the St. Louis grounds, when he was a member of the famous "Brown" ball players have plain shirt fronts, and why so few players have breast pockets. Cliff Carroll is the reason. He was running forward to take a base hit on the first bound. The ball bounced crooked and hit him on the chest. He grabbed at the ball hastily and, as he clutched it, he shoved it down into the handkerchief pocket on his shirt front.

Of all the good luck freaks that I ever heard recounted, the best was that which happened to Frank Ibell when he was playing with St. Paul in the old Western league. In those days baseball on Sunday was not permitted within the corporation limits of St. Paul, and a Sunday park had been erected outside the city's jurisdiction. The ground was extremely small and was inclosed by a high fence. So small was the inclosure that batters hitting the ball hard against the fences were compelled to sprint to first, because if the ball happened to rebound directly to the fielder, he could throw a slow runner out. As it required about four hits of their equivalent in errors to yield a run, small scores were the rule. In the ninth inning of this game Milwaukee had two runs the advantage and there were runners on first and second with Ibell at bat. St. Paul's only logical hope was for a home run over one of the high fences. Ibell hit a hard line smash to right field against the fence. The runner on first was a slow man and the fielder squatted, expecting the ball to rebound to him and to whirl and force the slow man at second base, ending the game. But the ball didn't rebound. It impaled itself on a wire nail about ten feet up the fence, and while the Milwaukee outfielders were hunting a ladder, Ibell circled the bases and won the game.

DANBURY'S CHOICE

Get All His Savings on a Bank Outsider With the Usual Result.

By CLIFTON HALLIDAY. Danbury saw that the man was lying in the middle of the road, in imminent danger of being run down by the whirling automobiles that followed each other in a never-ending stream. He shook him, but the man did not respond. Then, lifting him in his arms, the young American carried him to the side of the highway and laid him down under a tree.

"What's the Odds on Silver King?"

Danbury thoughtfully, "Help me there and I'll show you what an old man's gratitude means." Half an hour later they were seated by the side as near the track as they could get. It was fifteen minutes before the race. The horses had been led out of their paddocks. The old fellow stared at each as he went past. "There!" he cried, as a poor-looking animal went by. "That's Silver King. He's being quoted at forty to one—a bank outsider. And he'll win—he's mine."

pounds left, and I borrowed two hundred more. I didn't spend anything on food. A loaf of bread is all I've had the last five days. Because, you see, sir, two hundred and fifty pounds placed on a forty-to-one shot means ten thousand if he wins. A fortune for me and a peaceful old age for Silver King. And he can't lose. But if you hadn't saved me when I was lying upon the road that rascally bookie who has my stake might have welched. Let's go over and keep an eye on him."

London and its Lumber. London is the most conservative city in Europe, if not in the world. It loves its lumber. You may still see those notices attached to lamp posts which announce "Standing for Four Blackney Carriages," or whatever the number may be, though for ten years (in one case to my own knowledge for twenty-five) no vehicles of any kind have stood there. Perhaps it is as well that these relics should remain; they are a tiny part of our social history. They will probably remain when we are flying to dinner or the theater in omnibuses. By that time people won't know what "hackney carriage" meant, and there will be discussions in the "Notes and Queries" of the period. For each generation hands down to the next certain nuts to crack.

St. Vitus a Turkey Trotter? If Gerald Maurie is to be believed the "one-stop," the "turkey trot" and the other ragtime dances are only variations of the oldest dance in the world, that named after St. Vitus. We do not care to endorse this assertion, but it is quite possible that the future historian will regard the contemporary mania for ragtime from much the same standpoint as we look on the Tarantism or dancing mania of the middle ages.

Daily Thought.

Love is never lost. If not reciprocated, it will flow back and soften and purify the heart.—Washington Irving.

Shorthand Not Modern Invention.

Shorthand was in use centuries before Pitman. In the fourth century "Aetius of St. Callistratus," the compiler states: "There is a certain scribe of the law courts who listened to the discourses of Callistratus and wrote them down in shorthand on paper, and gave us, and we set in order with all accuracy his record outlined."

Story is an Old One.

"Dick Whittington" is one of the most puzzling of all London pseudo-mime stories, in point of origin. Tradition says positively that it is a true story of a former lord mayor of London, and it certainly is true that a Richard Whittington did marry his master's daughter and become chief citizen, but instead of being a home born boy he was the son of a knight Sir Willia Whittington, Italy. Britany, Norway and Russia all have practically the same tale. The story also appears in a book by a Perston author, written years before the real Whittington was born.

A new industry has been started in Deerfield, a pearl button factory employing four men. Clam shells that line the bed of the Raisin never have been gathered up in great quantities by those who are hunting for pearls, and these are being utilized for this industry.

Last Sunday about sixty relatives and friends of Mrs. Charity Harlow from Northville, Detroit and Plymouth and vicinity gave her a surprise at her home on Union street, the occasion being Mrs. Harlow's birthday. The guests brought well filled lunch baskets and a sumptuous dinner was served. The visitors presented the hostess with a beautiful Eastern Star pin as a happy remembrance of the occasion. It was a most enjoyable day for all present.

To Honor Perry

Schools will Pay Tribute to Nation's Naval Hero

In order that Perry Day may be properly celebrated in the schools of Michigan on September 10, it will be necessary for the teachers in the state to make preparation this spring, so the department of public instruction has just issued a bulletin of exceptionally appropriate material and this will be sent to teachers upon request. A Perry Day celebration will be doubly significant as it is to commemorate the victory of Perry on Lake Erie, which meant more to Michigan than to any other state in the union, and to emphasize the fact that there has been enjoyed a century of peace between Great Britain and the United States.

The bulletin contains valuable historical material and is attractively illustrated. A description is given of the million dollar memorial to be erected at Put-in-Bay for the building of which Michigan appropriated $30,000.

There is no real need of anyone being troubled with constipation. Chamberlain's Tablets will cause an agreeable movement of the bowels without any unpleasant effect. Give them a trial. For sale by all dealers.

Last Thursday was a fine day and there was an attendance of 45 at the tea meeting held at the Misses Pelham's. $5.00 was added to the treasury. Mrs. M. A. Patterson gave a most excellent report of the State Convention which was well appreciated and applauded. She reported that there are 13,146 members of the Union in Michigan, and there were 271 delegates in attendance, the largest number in some time, if ever before. The next meeting, Thursday, June 26, will be held at Mrs. Marcus Miller's. The leaders are Mrs. S. L. Bennett and Mrs. C. G. Curtis. The subject is "Eugenics." Also "An International Congress to Improve the Race" and "News from the Field." No meeting again until Sept. 11, as we have a vacation.—Supt. Press.

It is now well known that not more than one case of rheumatism in ten requires any internal treatment whatever. Sold by all dealers.—Advt.

Every child in the state of Michigan under the age of sixteen must be in school or regularly employed, without regard whether or not he or she has passed the eighth grade, according to an amendment of the compulsory school law, which Governor W. N. Ferris has recently approved. Heretofore those children who had passed the eighth grade satisfactorily were exempt from the provisions of the law regardless of their age. Beginning with August 15, any child claiming exemption on account of having passed the eighth grade must secure a work permit from the county commissioner of schools or from the graded school superintendent and must be regularly employed at some lawful work if physically able to do so. This law, it is expected, will have a decided tendency to keep boys and girls in school for a longer period and an increase in high school enrollment is assured.

Michigan has more apple trees than California, Oregon and Washington combined, and produces over three million bushels more apples each year than these combined states. The value of the fruit is over one million dollars less, showing what perfect grading and packing will do. The leading apple section in the United States is the east north central group of fruit states comprising Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan.

BETTER HORSES FAIR'S SLOGAN

Larger Incentives Offered in Light Stallion Classes.

CAVALRY HORSES TO SHOW

Manager Dickinson Says Michigan Breeders Can Reap Rewards From War Department—Military Jumpers to Perform.

By offering much bigger incentives for the breeding of horses suitable for service in the United States army the Michigan State Fair believes it is accomplishing a double purpose.

Through breeding mounts up to the United States army requirements the farmers are enabled to get bigger prices for them and at the same time elevate the standard of Michigan bred animals.

The dearth of the proper kind of animals for army service has been a problem the war department has been up against for the last few years and with little prospect of a comprehensive solution. The farmers all over the state of Michigan have taken largely to the breeding of heavy draft horses for farm and city use. This exclusion of the light, strong horse for military service has naturally cut down the supply to an alarming extent. It has come to pass where the government is forced to assist the farmer in breeding in order to increase the number of desirable animals. The same sort of demand also comes under the saddle horse and light harness class, so that any encouragement of this style of horse will not necessarily mean but one market for the distribution of the improved products.

General Manager Dickinson of the State Fair is asking the war department to send a troop of typical cavalry horses to the 1913 Fair so that the breeders may become familiar with the style desired. A good war charger must be a fine jumper, and so one of the special night features of this year's Fair will be the vaulting in the military class.

"We know that Michigan farmers can supply part of the demand of the government for cavalry animals as well as the western states do," said General Manager Dickinson. "It means bigger profits as well as carrying out the patriotic side of the question. Government experts assure us that they are highly pleased with our idea to encourage the breeding of horses fit for army purposes."

The Johnstone No. 12 Mower
FIRST, the cutting quality which is the most important and requires a perfectly arranged cutting bar, allowing the knife bar to set level with a wide clip that holds the knife bar to the guard plate in a free but firm manner, creating a perfect shear cut, reducing the friction and increasing the cutting capacity.
SECOND, simplicity is the essence of perfection, and this is found in the Johnstone Mower at numerous points, it has only four Gear Wheels with a take up at each point to relieve the excessive wear, it has the case hardened, hard oil center wrist pin and a grafit-bronzed bushed pitman box, with this combination there is no wear to the Johnstone pitman box which causes considerable trouble on nearly all other makes of machines.
THIRD, the bearings of a mower are very important, and the Johnstone has the only oil retaining bearings placed on any mowing machines, which insures a long life and easy running mower, and many other features which we can explain at the machine more thoroughly than we can in newspaper space, and we would appreciate an opportunity of going over the machine thoroughly with you, any time you may call.

"I've had my Studebaker 15 years—and not a cent for repairs"
A word of just praise for a wagon that has done its work faithfully and well.
Men become attached to their Studebakers—proud of them.
Because they realize that a Studebaker is built on honor and with an experience in wagon building that dates back to 1852.
Studebaker wagons are a result of that long experience, coupled with a desire to build the best wagons, not cheap ones.
And when your dealer says "Buy a Studebaker—there's no better wagon made" he's giving you the verdict of a million farmers. He is not asking you to try an experiment.
