Plymouth Veterans Return Home

The Plymouth veterans who are survivors of the battle of Gettysburg arrived home from the reunion which was held on that historic battlefield last week, last Sunday safe and sound. The members of the party were: O. P. Showers, Ephraim Partridge, A. N. Brown, Chauncey Bunyca, Henry Robinson, Mack Holmes, Minot Weed, Asa Joy, Orson Westphal, John Stewart and Willard Roe. The "boys" report that they had the best time of their lives at the big reunion. Although the weather was extremely warm none of the veterans from here were obliged to go to the hospital.

Village Council Met

A regular meeting of the village council was held last Monday evening. Aside from the regular routine of business many other matters came up for discussion and it was at a late hour when the meeting was adjourned. L. A. Bourley of the firm of Smith & Bourley, consulting engineers of Toledo, was present and gave the council some estimates as to the probable cost of the paving of Penniman avenue from Main street to Harvey street. Mr. Bourley thought that the street could be paved all complete for about $100 per square yard with either asphalt blocks or brick. The matter was discussed at some length and a survey was ordered made, as a preliminary step toward the improving of that section of Penniman avenue between the streets above named. Special assessment No. 14 on the Dodge and Union streets drain was accepted and ordered spread upon the tax roll. A contract was made with Royal Culleries Co. for coal for the ensuing year at $1.60 a ton f. o. b. mines. A petition was presented for the reopening of the alley from Ann Arbor street to Maple avenue. The matter was referred to the committee on streets. The assessment roll of the village assessor was accepted and ordered turned over to the village treasurer for collection. A resolution was presented by the committee on claims and accounts recommending that the bill of Dr. J. H. Kimble of $516.25 for services as health officer for the past year ending May 1, 1913 be cut down to $172.08 and the village treasurer be instructed to draw an order for that amount. The resolution carried. Dr. Campbell was appointed health officer for the coming year.

But Few Districts Forfeit

Only 180 school districts representing 40 counties in the state of Michigan will forfeit their primary apportionment this year because they have too large a surplus on hand. Last year 45 districts, representing 58 counties, did not participate. The difference is due largely to the fact that in districts where only one teacher had been previously employed despite a large enrollment of pupils, the board has wisely secured two or more teachers in order to reduce the surplus so that the district should share in the apportionment. In this way school conditions have been improved by the change governing the apportionment.

To Tour the State

Dr. R. L. Dixon of the state board of health, has made arrangements for a tour of the state with a health exhibit train. There will be examples, samples and lectures on how to prevent and conquer disease. The degree of success of such a tour will depend largely upon the interest taken in it by the public. There is nothing in which the people should be more deeply and vitally concerned than in sanitation and a knowledge how to eradicate the ills that affect them. It is hoped that the efforts of the state board of health will meet with a hearty response.

HAPPINESS OF NATURE.

Some of us have lived so long in the narrow and pretty circles of self-interest, and have moved along a course of life so shut away from Nature's secrets and her suggestions, that we have lost all power to be stirred by the pictures and sounds of her rebuilding. If the processes abroad in the world at this season of the year do not move us to high sympathy and profound hope we are in a pretty bad way.

The imposition of British standards on the United States is strikingly exemplified by the final enactment at Harrisburg forbidding either the trapping or shooting of foxes. In Great Britain, where fox-hunting is an institution, such as baseball is here, except that it is within the reach of none but the wealthy, public opinion condemns the shooting of foxes as an offense against sport, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Motor trucks are said to be displacing the army mule. They may continue to do so if the enemy kindly confines his operations to smooth, hard roads. But when a postiferous antagonist carries the scene of war into mountainous country, and roads straggling from hillside to mud hole, the army mule will be found to be one of those things that no well-equipped army can do without.

The largest log ever landed in northern California came into Clear Lake the other day. It was clear sugar pine and it was more than six feet thick at the top and eight feet at the butt. With two other logs from the same tree it totaled 18,812 feet of lumber. It sold for something over $600. One does not have to be a financial connoisseur to deem this an absolutely inadequate to repay the world for the loss it suffered in the cutting of so splendid a pine. Money can never be an equivalent for beauty and romance, anyway.

One often hears this advice to the fat man, "Work harder, even to performing violent manual labor and your fat will melt away." However, to come to the aid of the fat man, we would say that the suggested plan is not at all feasible for the very reason that the more strenuously a fat man works, the more his appetite grows and in the appealing thereof, his fatty sections maintain absolute equilibrium.

RENEW RAND RIOTS

STRIKERS CONTINUE REIGN OF TERROR IN JOHANNESBURG—TROOPS CHARGE MOBS.

DEMAND GLADSTONE'S RECALL

Government's Effort to Quiet Strike Disturbance in Gold District Ineffective—To Petition King to Depose Governor.

Johannesburg, July 7.—The settlement of the strike among the gold miners in Rand district, which the government arranged with a committee of strikers on Saturday, has proved ineffective, although comparative order was preserved over night and Sunday. The mobs reassembled late Sunday. All trains and street cars suspended service, the crews refusing to work. No newspapers were able to issue editions. Additional troops guarded the Rand club, the scene of serious encounters Saturday. A great mob assembled there, hooting and jeering the troops.

Up to midnight there had been no serious trouble, but armed police everywhere were guarding property. Ask Gladstone Recall. The recall of the governor general of the Union of South Africa, Viscount Gladstone, is demanded by the Federated Trades Unions. At a meeting of 1,200 delegates it was unanimously agreed to petition the imperial government to take this action because the governor general employed troops to suppress the strike.

The opinion is very general that the government has made serious blunders throughout the present trying situation. When Gen. Louis Botha, the premier of the Union of South Africa, and General Smuts, minister of the interior, mines and defense, arrived at Johannesburg they were amazed at the strikers' organization and the desperate spirit of the leaders. Unions Flushed With Success. The federated unions are flushed with success and confident that they are complete masters of the situation. The trades unionists are ready to obey any order given them. The leaders have already commanded the newspapers to cease publication until further notice. They count on the government's fear of the natives, 200,000 of whom are locked in the compounds at the mines.

A great crowd of strikers wearing red badges surrounded the Carlton hotel while the terms of settlement were being arranged. When the strike leaders announced from the balcony that a settlement had been agreed to they were greeted with shouts of "What about the dead?" "You've been bought."

Outbreak Worst Since 1899. Except at the time of the Jameson raid in 1896 and the outbreak of the war in 1899 this city has not experienced such a day of terrorism as Saturday. The mobs in the business section caused less fear than desperadoes who were threatening to dynamite the homes of the wealthy. All places of business were closed and guarded by troops, while bands of citizens armed with rifles patrolled the residential quarter.

The rioting began when strikers forced their way into the Rand club, whose members are mine owners. They demolished everything on the ground floor. Three times dragoons scattered the mob, but it quickly reformed. The troops fired a volley over the heads of the rioters and then two volleys directly into their ranks. The rioters fled, leaving behind a large number of killed and wounded.

IOWA GOVERNOR IS STRICKEN. Physicians, after Removing Clarke From Executive Office to Sick-room, Say He is Gaining.

Des Moines, Ia., July 7.—Gov. George W. Clarke was taken to a local hospital suffering from an affection of the kidneys. An immediate examination by physicians was ordered to determine whether or not his condition was serious.

Governor Clarke became ill shortly after reaching his office in the state house and said he suffered severe pains. Dr. G. H. Sumner and W. L. Biering of the state board of health and Dr. Oliver J. Fay were summoned to the executive offices. The ordered the governor removed to the hospital.

After consultations, Drs. Fay and Biering issued a bulletin announcing the governor's condition as satisfactory. His respiration and temperature were normal and pains in his abdomen were being allayed.

BANDITS HOLD UP TRAIN; ESCAPE WITH $10,000

Express Car on I. C. Road Looted in Mississippi by Five Robbers.

New Orleans, July 5.—Four bandits held up Illinois Central Chicago-New Orleans train No. 1 at Sardis, Miss., blew open the American Express company's safe and got away with money and valuables amounting to more than $10,000.

The passengers on the train were not molested, but a fireman who did not obey orders quickly was knocked unconscious by the butt end of a pistol and the train crew threatened with drowning in the Tallahatchie river, near by, if it resisted. A few shots were fired to scare the passengers. The robbers escaped, but bloodhounds and posers from Mississippi and Tennessee are now after them.

The bandits flagged the train on the Tallahatchie river bridge and compelled Engineer Norton of Memphis to abandon his engine cab, leaving the fireman under guard of one bandit.

The express messengers and mail clerks were forced to leave their cars. They were ordered to uncouple the mail and express car and the engine. The fireman ran the train through lateville to a mile south of town, in a dense river bottom forest. Two of the bandits then dynamited the express safe.

Following the robbery, the bandits boarded the engine and ran it ten miles farther down the track, when the fire went out. Believing the fireman was trying to trick them, the bandits threw him out of the cab. He was slightly injured. The robbers were forced to abandon the engine a mile north of Euclid, Miss., where they escaped through a dense forest.

Officers say that from the description of the men they are the same who have been holding up trains in the south for several months.

20,000 BULGARS DIE IN FIGHT

Bloodiest Fighting in All Balkan War Revealed in Report of Disaster to Serbian Army.

London, July 7.—After ten days of fighting, more severe and deadly in character than any in the Balkan war, light begins to break upon the hitherto obscure operations. The Servians have lost more men than in the whole previous campaign, and semi-official statements issued at Belgrade have the appearance of an intention to prepare the public for news of a disaster.

A Belgrade dispatch, describing the five days' operations between Vardar and Kivovlak, says that after holding a greatly superior force in check the Servians were obliged to retire. Thus Kivovlak fell into the hands of the Bulgarians. It contends, however, that this Bulgarian success was insignificant compared with the Serbian successes against the Bulgarian right wing.

Another semi-official communication says the Servians lost 15,000 killed and wounded and the Bulgarians 20,000. The Bulgarian losses were increased by the poor organization of their Red Cross service and lack of communication and transports. Their wounded were left on the battlefield and the dead were unburied.

There is heavy fighting also between the Servians and Bulgarians to the south of Ispit and in the neighborhood of Kotchana. About 200,000 men are engaged and the losses on both sides appear to be terrible.

LETTER FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

INDUSTRIAL BOARD REPORT SHOWS FATAL ACCIDENTS DAILY IN JUNE.

COST TO MANUFACTURERS IS $39,351.90.

Fish and Game Survey Made By State Warden is Completed and is Valuable to Sportsmen.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

The report of the industrial board for the month of June shows that there was a fatal accident for every day in the month. But 1153 non-fatal accidents occurred, a falling off from the May report. The report shows that 1,036 men are entitled to compensation out of the number injured. That the foreign born workman is furnishing the larger grist for the death mills in Michigan is indicated by the ten nationalities represented among the number killed.

Relative to the causes of fatalities R. L. Drake, secretary of the industrial accident board, says: "The causes of fatalities among Michigan's industrial army are as diverse as they are unusual as the accidents themselves. Public utility corporations reported four deaths, three of which resulted from contact with live wires. The fourth death was caused by a collision between a freight car and a line man's car on an electric railway. In one instance a man was killed by attempting to clean bark from a machine, another by a falling limb. The copper mining industry is credited with an unusual number of accidents. In one instance reported an epileptic was found dead. He was lying across a water tank with his head and throat under water."

Twenty-one fatal accidents between June 1 and 30 will cost Michigan manufacturers $39,351.90 with the interest at five per cent for five years deducted. If the compensation were distributed over a period of 300 weeks the compensation would total $44,793. An average of four dependents are left to divide approximately $2,133 compensation accruing in each case, if payments are distributed over the 300 weeks, of $1,873.90 if the payments are made in a lump sum.

If the same per centage holds good, and it is safe to use them as a fair approximation, the 327 fatal accidents which have been reported in the ten months during which the Act 10, Public Acts 1912, has been in effect have cost Michigan industries $57,637,491. The obligation in most cases extends over a period of almost six years."

Dealers in school books in various parts of the state are writing to Superintendent of Public Instruction L. L. Wright and expressing their opinion of the King textbook bill passed at the last session of the legislature. In terms easily construed to mean that they are not at all in sympathy with his provisions. In the first place the bill requires that all school book publishers file sample copies of their books with the superintendent of public instruction, and the retail dealers are prohibited from selling them at a price exceeding 15 per cent of the wholesale cost as listed with the state department.

Section eight of the bill provides: "School districts are hereby authorized to purchase textbooks from the publishers at prices listed with the state superintendent of public instruction as heretofore provided and to designate a retail dealer or dealers to act as the agent for the district in selling textbooks to pupils. The said dealer or dealers shall at stated times make settlement with the district for such books as have been sold up to the stated time. Said dealer or dealers shall not sell textbooks at a price which shall exceed a ten percent advance on the net wholesale price as listed with the state superintendent of public instruction."

There is no provision in the law relative to the sale of second hand books and many dealers have written to Supt. Wright to learn whether it will be possible for them to make more than 15 per cent profit on textbooks that have been already used. The store room provided by the board of auditors for the storage of the sample copies of books sent by publishers from all parts of the country, already resembles a good sized library and it is stated that there will probably be 15,000 books on the shelves when all publishing houses selling books in Michigan have complied with the law.

State Game Warden William R. Oaten has completed through the assistance of his deputies in the various counties of the state, a fish and game survey which will be held with delight by the anglers and anglers who frequent the woods and streams of Michigan.

It is the first time in the history of the department that such a proposition has been attempted and the work is so complete that Warden Oaten is highly elated over the results obtained. Each deputy was assigned a county and asked to make an estimate of the number of deer, giving the sections and townships most frequented by the animals. They were asked to give the evidence of destruction by wolves and other causes and to estimate whether the deer are increasing or decreasing. Almost without exception the reports show that the deer are decreasing.

The same questions were asked relative to beaver, partridge, quail, prairie chickens, squirrels, rabbits, duck and game fish. The deputies were also asked for their opinions as to how the present game laws are working out in the localities they visited. Almost without exception the deputies favored a shorter season for deer and a law protecting geese. The last legislature shortened the deer season so that this year the hunters will have the right to kill deer from November 10 to November 30 inclusive. Last year the season opened ten days earlier. The new law also prohibits the killing of more than one doe. Deer licenses cannot be obtained under the new law until five days before the opening of the season. In former years the department has experienced considerable trouble from hunters who secured their licenses two or three weeks before the opening of the season and then went into the woods and killed deer which they concealed until after the opening of the season.

For the first time in 22 years Michigan has a democratic insurance commission and a democratic commissioner of labor. The two democratic appointees of Gov. Ferris, labor Commissioner James V. Cunningham, of Detroit, and Insurance Commissioner John T. Winship of Saginaw, have assumed their new duties. The republicans of Michigan gain a little comfort from the fact that Frank Rogers, who was recently elected for a term of four years, became state highway commissioner. Rogers has been deputy highway commissioner under Townsend Ely for four years and is familiar with the duties of his new office. Ever since the establishment of the state highway department the salary of the commissioner has been $2,600 per year, but the last legislature increased the salary to $3,500 and Rogers will get the benefit of the $1,000 increase.

The desk of Insurance Commissioner Winship was covered with flowers from admiring friends in various parts of the state and hundreds of letters of congratulation and many telegrams were delivered to Winship. Samuel Robinson of Charlotte, the new deputy fire marshal was at his desk early.

Michigan's 453 state banks and six trust companies show a gain of $5,061,008.14 in aggregate business since the report of April 4, according to statistics compiled by Banking Commissioner E. H. Doyle. At the close of business June 4 the loans and discounts in the commercial and savings departments amounted to $156,591,849.90, while the bonds, mortgages and securities totaled $155,161,563.08. Since the April report commercial deposits have increased $2,407,761.95. There has been an increase in savings deposits of $1,776,705.77. Compared with the corresponding report of June 4, 1912, the commercial deposits have increased $5,343,245.95 and the savings deposits $12,063,813.03, making a total increase in deposits during the past twelve months of $17,947,068.98. In the past year the loans and discounts of both the commercial and savings departments, together with the bonds and mortgages, amount to $24,478,934.73. The total reserve maintained by Michigan state banks and trust companies on June 4, 1913 was $63,483,184.47 or 19.01 per cent. The total cash reserve amounted to $23,805,191.48 or 7.13 per cent. These reserves are divided as follows: Savings legal reserve $45,790,678.41 or 16.68 per cent; savings cash reserve $12,504,553.17 or 5.31 per cent; commercial legal reserve $27,702,518.06 or 23.33 per cent; commercial cash reserve $11,311,537.77 or 9.52 per cent. The total reserve carried by Michigan state banks is therefore, $12,711,319.04 over the requirements of the banking law. Based on savings deposits of $216,112,181.69, the law requires mortgage and bond investments of at least $107,598,901.95. The above abstract shows that the mortgage and bond investments exceed the savings deposits by $6,349,071.69.

Contracts for New Buildings. The Central school building to be erected at Ironwood, metropolis of the Gogebic iron range, to replace a structure destroyed by fire last February, will cost $121,500. This figure does not include the furniture and furnishings for the 23 rooms. Contracts for various parts of the work have been awarded to Duluth, Milwaukee, Ironwood and Chicago concerns. The building is to be completed by July 15, 1914. A contract for the erection of the eighteenth cottage at the state hospital at Newberry has been awarded by the board of trustees. The structure will cost approximately $60,000. It will be 100 by 80 feet and two stories high. The construction will be fire proof throughout. The board of education at Negaunee, Marquette range, has awarded a contract for the construction of a manual training building. The school will cost $30,600.

RITCHIE KNOCKS OUT RIVERS IN THE ELEVENTH ROUND AT SAN FRANCISCO.

MEXICAN FAST AT START

Has the Better of Charapion for First Three Rounds, But Ring Generalship Beats Him—7,000 See the Contest.

San Francisco, July 5.—A wicked right cross—the same blow which forced Ad Wolgast to foul away the lightweight championship after feeling its sting—proved too great a stumbling block to Joe Rivers in his attempt to wrest the lightweight title from Champion Willie Ritchie in the Eighth street open-air arena here, the Mexican being knocked out in the eleventh round of a scheduled twenty-round battle. The fight throughout was victoriously contested, and twice during the earlier rounds it looked as though Rivers might win. Ritchie's wonderful ring generalship and ability to strike effectively straight from the shoulder with either hand, however, offset the Mexican's swings, which frequently found their mark, and it was not long before Rivers became disheartened and pinned his faith solely on wildly fabled "haymakers."

The eleventh and final round had scarcely opened when Ritchie's right shot out shoulder length, catching Rivers squarely on the chin and sending him to the mat. Nine seconds were tolled off before the almost helpless fighter regained his feet. Quickly the champion's left found the Mexican's stomach, and a right uppercut reached the falling pugilist's jaw, sending him prone. The battle was fought under perfect weather conditions in the open and was witnessed by 7,000 persons. The receipts, it was said, aggregated $30,000.

Round 1—Ritchie met the Mexican's rushes and put in a right uppercut to the jaw. He then whipped right and left to the jaw. Rivers then took command and worried the champion with several lefts to the jaw. Round even. Round 2—Ritchie drove right and left to the body and then whipped his right to the jaw. Rivers fought back fiercely, and Ritchie bled slightly from the mouth. Rivers landed a terrific left to the solar plexus, slipping to his knees. Ritchie staggered his man with a right cross to the jaw as the bell rang, but Rivers had the advantage of the round. Round 3—After Ritchie had driven a forceful left to the jaw, the Mexican staggered the champion with two rights to the body and a left to the jaw. It was Rivers' round, and Ritchie seemed worried.

Round 4—Rivers, covering up, penetrated his opponent's guard, booking thrice with lefts to the body. A right cross to the jaw almost floored the champion. A closing fusillade of rights and lefts by the Mexican gave him the round. Round 5—After receiving several straight lefts to the face, Rivers landed two left facers, and a fierce mid-rally followed. Ritchie kept up a hot pace until the round ended and took his seat with the crowd cheering. Ritchie's round.

Ritchie Better Boxer. Round 6—Rivers rushed fiercely to close quarters, but Ritchie clearly out-boxed him. Time and again Ritchie sent his right and left crashing to the body and face, forcing Rivers to clinch. Ritchie's round. Round 7—Ritchie coolly outboxed Rivers, delivering lightning-like blows to the Mexican's mouth and face and opening an eye. Suddenly the Mexican threw himself at the champion and all but sent him between the ropes. Rivers kept up his rushing tactics until the bell ended an even round. Round 8—Rivers took the aggressive, but after some sparring the champion sent in a trio of facers, bringing blood from the Mexican's mouth. Rivers retaliated, and they fought to a clinch, Rivers missing several terrific swings. Ritchie's round. Round 9—Rivers opened with a clean left hook to the jaw. The champion, however, volleyed fiercely with right and left short arm blows to the jaw. Rivers then worked in two rights to the jaw that ended up the round. Round 10—Rivers rushed and only Ritchie's clever defensive work saved him from several hard face jolts. Ritchie then almost lifted the Mexican off his feet with a terrific left uppercut to the jaw. Ritchie's round.

Round 11—The champion scored twice to the jaw with his right and Rivers took the count of nine. Gamping, he rose to his feet, but almost immediately a left uppercut to the jaw, followed with a right cross to the same place, sent Rivers' championship ambitions aglimmering. The referee declared Ritchie the winner.

Killed by Exploding Bomb. Wichita, Kan., July 7.—As a result of a wound in his breast by the explosion of a Fourth of July bomb he was constructing from a piece of gas pipe, Michael Gonzales, a drug clerk, fifty-two years old, died.

Mother of Seventeenth Babe. Sterling, Ill., July 7.—Mrs. James Delaney of Normandy gave birth to her seventeenth baby. Of her seventeen children there are two pairs of twins and one set of triplets. All are living.

LAMAR TELLS SENATORS HE IMPERSONATED SOLOWS

Wall Street Operator Tells Lobby Probers He Used Rioridan's Name Without His Consent.

Washington, July 5.—David Lamar, Wall street operator, and one time confidant of Russell Sage, Moses R. Keene and other financiers, amazed the senate lobby committee by smilingly testifying that it was he who impersonated Representatives "Palmer" and "Rioridan" in telephone conversations with Lewis Cass Ledyard, Paul D. Cravath, Chairman Robert S. Lovett of the Union Pacific board and other prominent financiers, telling them that Edward Lauterbach, a New York lawyer, could do great things for them in Washington, and by making a detailed charge that the Union Pacific railroad's books had been forged in 1901 on an item covering $82,000,000, and that as one result Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and E. H. Harriman had laid the foundations of gigantic fortunes.

Lamar amused, entertained and astounded the committee as he freely testified as to his impersonation of congressmen over the telephone. He did it all, he said, to impress the financiers with the abilities of his friend, Edward Lauterbach, but he stoutly denied there was ever any mention that Lauterbach should profit by legal fees. "Yes, I used the name of Representative Rioridan," said Lamar, "in trying to get into telephonic communication with Judge Lovett. The judge was not there and so I did not talk with him. But I left a message with his secretary to the effect that Congressman Rioridan of New York thought that Lauterbach could be of very considerable service to the Union Pacific in settling the suits growing out of the dissolution of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific." I stated, however, that "Lauterbach did not want money; he simply wanted to offer his services as a friend."

BIG FETE IN ERIE BEGINS

Celebration of Commodore Perry's Victory in War of 1812 Attracts Thousands of Visitors.

Erie, Pa., July 7.—The centennial celebration of Perry's victory at the battle of Lake Erie, which began with a "Peace Sunday," will continue every afternoon and evening throughout the week. An elaborate program has been arranged for the entertainment of the thousands of visitors already here. The celebration in this city is but one of the many events arranged to commemorate the great naval battle of the War of 1812. The list of celebrations will probably close with the dedication of the Perry memorial now nearing completion on South Bass Island, near the western end of Lake Erie.

KING GEORGE IS TARGET

Suffragette Throws Petition at Ruler's Head at Bristol, England.

Bristol, England, July 5.—Intense excitement was caused here when a militant suffragette hurled a petition for "votes for women" at the head of King George while he and Queen Mary were driving through the streets to the royal agricultural show. It was at first believed that an attempt had been made to assassinate the king, and the crowd, which had been held back by police and soldiers, broke through the lines and crowded into the streets, shouting, "Lynch the assassin!" After a struggle the crowds were driven back and the woman was arrested.

TREES LIVE FOR CENTURIES

Six Thousand Years is the Age of One on the Canary Islands, and There Are Numerous Others.

Knowing that some trees have reached the age of several thousand years, it is surprising that so many of our shade trees should die so young. The age of a dragon tree on one of the Canary Islands is said to be more than 5,000 years; that of a bald cypress in Mexico is believed to be more than 4,000 years, and that of an English oak in Europe and a "big tree" (Sequoia gigantea) in California is known to be more than 2,000 years.

Many trees also have attained to enormous size, both in height and diameter. The eucalyptus in Australia is known to reach a height of 470 feet and the "big tree," the redwood, and the Douglas fir in California often grow to a height of three hundred feet. The sycamore and tulip tree in the eastern United States sometimes reach a height of 150 feet. The tree of largest diameter is found at the base of Mount Ranier, in Sicily. It is a species of chestnut and its trunk is more than sixty feet in diameter. Some people claim this remarkable tree is the result of several individuals. The Oriental sycamore comes next with a diameter of about forty feet.—From "Trees in Winter" by Blakelee and Jarvis.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Gale of Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, are visiting at Sheldon Gale's. They are to spend some time in this vicinity visiting relatives and friends.

Roy Mott and Miss Verne Rowley were callers at Dan Murray's Monday.

Mrs. John Butler and children visited her brother at Webberville last week.

I am agent for all magazines and I will meet any reliable offer and see that you get your magazines as promised. Why not telephone me before placing your order? I can surely please you. Frank W. Beals, telephone 166, Plymouth, Michigan.

NEWBURG.

Rev. Dutton will preach at the usual hour Sunday next. Sunday-school immediately after. Everyone interested in the S. S. picnic should be there.

A number of Newburg ladies were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Post at their cottage at St. Claire Flats Saturday and Sunday, their husbands spending the day with them Sunday.

The glorious Fourth was spent in a very quiet manner by most everyone in this vicinity. A family picnic was held at Edgar Cochran's, also one at L. Cameron's. All report a fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Joy entertained company the Fourth.

Miss Florence Whitney of Wayne, spent Saturday and Sunday with Gladys Smith.

Mrs. Chas. Ross of Salem, was the guest of her mother, Mrs. R. Barnes Tuesday and Wednesday.

Haying and harvesting is coming right along in spite of the backward spring.

James McFarlane of Flint, called on his aunt, Mrs. C. Pickett and daughter Edith, also took them for an auto ride calling on old friends and viewing the scenes of his boyhood days.

The Cheerful Workers Club will have a social meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Stevens this (Friday) evening. Everybody invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brown of Detroit, have a fine baby boy. As Harold was one of our Newburg boys, we extend congratulations.

OBITUARY.

Avis Bell Chilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theo. F. Chilson, was born in Plymouth, November 19th 1896. She attended the Plymouth Public Schools until June 18th, the day preceding her graduation, when she was suddenly taken down with a malignant form of tonsillitis. From this she was nearly recovered when appendicitis developed and caused her death which occurred at Harper hospital Thursday morning, July 3, 1913.

April 23, 1911, at the age of fifteen, she joined the Baptist church and was a faithful and devout worker. Her many church friends will miss her and mourn her.

The funeral was conducted at the church and the Rev. Herman Burns, a former pastor, and long friend of the family, officiated. Her body will be buried at Riverside cemetery.

A CARD—We sincerely wish to thank our many kind friends and the many friends of our dear daughter and sister Avis for the beautiful flowers and for the sympathy and love expressed during our time of sorrow.

Register to Buy Gun.

After August 15th men who buy guns in Michigan will be forced to leave a clue behind them with the dealer. A new law, enacted by the legislature as part of the 1913 batch of legislation, directs that henceforth every person purchasing firearms must register with the dealer.

The man buying rifles, pistols, silencers or other tools of destruction will be required to write his name, age, occupation and residence in the dealer's book. Of course, this applies to women.

Other means of identification also will be demanded. There will be the number of the gun purchased or other marks which may distinguish the weapon from other weapons.

The Johnson Combined Rake and Tedder

The Johnston Side Delivery Rake and Tedder has proved its efficiency. Farmers are fast realizing the usefulness as well as convenience of a combined machine of this nature. The main wheels are high and have wide tires and substantial malleable hubs. The reel is driven from both wheels which insures a positive and steady motion of the reel. The rear frame is carried on two castor wheels. These wheels are adjustable and carry the main frame on a coil spring at any desired height relieving the machine of all jars on rough ground. The teeth are adjustable to any desired angle and is converted from rake to tedder with a single throw of the only lever used on this machine, making two of the most important hay making machines known to the farmer. The main frame is constructed of angle steel and thoroughly trust to prevent sagging at any point.

Farmers growing large crops of beans have found the Johnston Side Delivery Rake as equally indispensable in the bean field as in the hay field, and if you contemplate buying a Side Delivery Rake "Certainly Buy The Johnston" which is up to date. Sold by

HEAT OVERCOMES GETTYSBURG VETERAN

A pitiful sight indeed is this, of a member of the G. A. R. who came unscathed through the three days' fighting of the greatest battle of the Civil war, overcome by the heat at the reunion of Gettysburg survivors, and being led off the field to medical aid by a couple of young guardsmen.

WITH BLUE AND GRAY AT GETTYSBURG

Many were the stories told and innumerable were the incidents, both pathetic and humorous, which marked the great reunion of the Union and Confederate veterans on the Gettysburg battlefield. Commemorating the 57th anniversary of the most stubbornly contested battle of the Civil war, fragments of the hosts which stood each other in the conflict gathered to renew old acquaintances and to recount the deeds of other days.

Here is a story which was told by A. T. Dice, vice-president of the Reading railway.

Once upon a time there were a veteran in gray and a veteran in blue. They came to Gettysburg and in the course of events and visits to hotels they happened to meet. They looked over the sights of Gettysburg and the monuments of the field. But they found they must part.

The one in blue lived in Oregon; the one in gray in New Orleans. They went weeping together to their station and parted by train after train, deferring the parting that must come. Just what they said, just how they reached the final grand idea of the meeting, Mr. Dice did not know.

But, however, yesterday they finally decided that the time for parting had come. The one from Oregon could not figure how to reach home via New Orleans and his gray comrade, while willing to see the west, didn't have the money for a ticket.

They lined upon on the platform as their trains stood waiting and then before the crowd they slowly stripped off their uniforms and exchanged them there while the curious looked to see them.

The Oregonian who came proudly to town with a coat of blue, went as proudly away with one of gray and the veteran from Louisiana who boasted of the gray of the south sat with swelling chest in his new uniform of blue.

James H. Lansberry of St. Louis, Mo., who enlisted in the Third Indiana cavalry from Madison, Ind., recited to his comrades the details of his capture in the town of Gettysburg by Confederates 50 years ago.

A grandson of Francis Scott Key, composer of "The Star-Spangled Banner," is here. He is John Francis Key, aged eighty-two, of Pikeville, Md., and he is a veteran of the Second Maryland infantry of the Confederate army. Wearing a suit of gray, Key came into town, weak and almost drooping. He has been in failing health, but declared he was "going to see Gettysburg on this occasion or die."

One of the oldest veterans in the big camp is Captain W. H. Fleig of Houston, Texas, who was ninety years of age on his last birthday, February 23. During the war he served with distinction in the marine department of the Confederate navy. Captain Fleig is one of the best preserved men in camp and is more active than many of the other veterans a score of years less advanced.

Wearing a tattered uniform of gray, Alexander Hunter of Virginia was the central point of interest on the streets of the town. Mr. Hunter was wearing the identical suit and hat which he wore at Gettysburg fifty years ago.

The suit was in rags and has a bullet hole through one of the sleeves. He carried all his accoutrements used at Gettysburg and wore a union belt taken from a foe here. Mr. Hunter was a member of the Black Horse cavalry.

The camp is full of unexpected meetings. Every day brings forth numerous meetings between men who have not seen one another for many years. Many are commonplace, but some are extraordinary. For instance, here is one:

I. D. Munsee of Erie county, Pennsylvania, a soldier in the 11th Pennsylvania, was captured by the Confederates at Peachtree Creek, Ga., when he was one of Sherman's army on the celebrated march to the sea. He was being conveyed to the rear by a Confederate soldier when the Union batteries opened fire upon the party among whom he was a prisoner. The man who was guarding Munsee was hit and fell, knocking Munsee down and lying on top of him.

Seeing his chance of escape, Munsee lay very still under the unconscious Confederate while the battle raged around them. That night he slipped from under the body and escaped to the Union lines.

"I thought that fellow was dead," said Munsee, "but I saw him today. Poor fellow, his mind's bad, and he didn't recognize me, but I was sure of him. I couldn't even get his name, but I'm going over later to the Georgia camp and try to find out who he is."

One of the most interesting places in camp was the lost and found bureau, located under the benches in the big tent. Everything found on the grounds was brought there and thousands applied every day for missing articles.

There were at least 100 crutches piled up in the bureau, dozen or so applicants having called for them. Those who come to redeem their lost crutches seldom can recognize them and most of them go away with somebody else's.

There was one wooden leg also lying unclaimed. It was brought in by a Boy Scout, who had found it under a tree.

Several sets of false teeth were found.

A grandson of Francis Scott Key, composer of "The Star-Spangled Banner," is here. He is John Francis Key, aged eighty-two, of Pikeville, Md., and he is a veteran of the Second Maryland infantry of the Confederate army. Wearing a suit of gray, Key came into town, weak and almost drooping. He has been in failing health, but declared he was "going to see Gettysburg on this occasion or die."

One of the oldest veterans in the big camp is Captain W. H. Fleig of Houston, Texas, who was ninety years of age on his last birthday, February 23. During the war he served with distinction in the marine department of the Confederate navy. Captain Fleig is one of the best preserved men in camp and is more active than many of the other veterans a score of years less advanced.

Wearing a tattered uniform of gray, Alexander Hunter of Virginia was the central point of interest on the streets of the town. Mr. Hunter was wearing the identical suit and hat which he wore at Gettysburg fifty years ago.

The suit was in rags and has a bullet hole through one of the sleeves. He carried all his accoutrements used at Gettysburg and wore a union belt taken from a foe here. Mr. Hunter was a member of the Black Horse cavalry.

One of the unadvertised reunions of the celebration occurred in the Confederate section of the camp. A fife and drum corps of men in blue tramped up and down the streets of the Confederate part of the city of tents.

They stopped before the tents, played such a fanfare as only drums and fifes can make, summoned forth the occupants and shook hands, threw their arms about the gray shoulders and in a dozen other ways showed their feelings of friendship.

They kept it up for hours and visited practically every "reb" tent. Their reception was as warm as their greeting.

A remarkable coincidence of the camp was the meeting of two men of exactly the same name, coming from towns of the same name, but in different states. One fought on the Union side in the battle of Gettysburg, and the other with the Confederates.

These two men are John Carson of Burlington, N. J., and John Carson of Burlington, N. C.

They met by the merest chance. The Jersey Carson was walking along one of the streets, and saw a man in gray. Just to be friendly, the Jersey man stopped him and gave him a greeting. It was not until they had talked for several minutes that they discovered their names were identical, as well as the names of their towns.

One bearded veteran of an Illinois regiment told of an incident that happened 50 years ago.

"As we rode through Gettysburg that last time," he said, "I remember a little girl stopped my horse and said she wanted to give me a bouquet. I got down and she pinned a ribbon—a little purple ribbon to my coat. 'Wear that in the next battle you go into,' she said.

"We're not going to have any more battles around here," I told her.

"Yes, you are," she insisted. "Those hills back there are full of rebels."

"I wore that purple ribbon through the battle. I never saw the girl afterward, but I've kept that ribbon, and it's back at home in Illinois today."

A striking contrast is seen in the menu provided for the soldiers fifty years ago and what they enjoyed this year:

1863—Breakfast—Hardtack, bacon, beans and coffee.

Dinner—Bacon, beans, hardtack and coffee.

Supper—Beans, hardtack, bacon and coffee.

1913—Breakfast—Puffed rice, fried eggs, fried bacon, cream potatoes, fresh bread, hard bread, butter and coffee.

Dinner—Fricassee chicken, peas, corn, ice cream, cake, cigars, fresh bread, hard bread, butter, coffee, iced tea.

Supper—Salmon salad, macaroni and cheese, fresh bread, butter and coffee.

When the house of representatives recently undertook to name a committee of its members to represent it at the reunion of the blue and gray at Gettysburg it was found that not a veteran of the Civil war sat on the Republican side of that body. The only Union veterans in the house, three in number, are all Democrats, and six veterans of the Confederate army also sit on that side.

In the senate, however, there are six Confederate veterans on the Democratic side and six Union veterans on the Republican side. As indicating the passage of time, it is a remarkable fact that there are today in congress more veterans of the Spanish-American war than of the Civil war. Nineteen members of the senate are veterans of the war with Spain. One member of the house, who has not seen war service at all, served five years in the signal corps of the army as a private, and Delegate Querson of the Philippines was a staff officer under Aguinaldo during the Philippine rebellion.

My heart beats faster tonight, said Gen. Daniel E. Sickles. The thronging hordes who have motored and walked and trolleyed to my camp today have swept their hats off and hailed it as "Sickles Day."

It was on this day a half century ago that God gave me strength to serve my country and my maker better than I ever had been able to serve them before.

It was upon this day in '63 that I lost my leg and did my little part by the mercy of God to preserve the Union.

July 2, 1863, broke hot and clear. Just as in the early hours today a molten sun poured out of a sky but a trifle overclouded. I had retired shortly after midnight the previous evening and slept the quiet, dreamless sleep that is generally attribute to babies.

Last night I enjoyed just the same kind of sleep. But that is to be expected of a young fellow who at ninety-three is still able to read without his glasses, eh?

Many men who came today to shake my hand told me they were too busy to do so 50 years ago—that their whole hearts and minds were wrapped up in the conflict to come.

"I hid in a barn when I discovered that Confederates had arrived in town, but I left it when it was peppered by infantry fire and concealed myself at the mouth of an alley," said Lansberry. "While I remained in the alley two of my comrades attempted to dart across the street to another alley with a hope of escaping from town. They got to the middle of the street just as the guns of Confederates stationed at street intersections cracked and they fell in a heap. I was soon found and disarmed."

SPEECH BY WILSON

PRESIDENT ADDRESSES GREAT THRONG ON THE GETTYSBURG BATTLEFIELD.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO VETERANS

Nation Does Not Stand Still, He Says, and Orders of the Day for the People Are Laws on Statute Books.

Gettysburg, Pa., July 4.—President Wilson's address today was the chief feature of National day in the celebration of the semi-centennial of the Battle of Gettysburg. It was heard by a vast crowd of old soldiers and others and was warmly applauded.

The president's address follows: "Friends and Fellow Citizens: I need not tell you what the battle of Gettysburg meant. These gallant men in blue and gray sit all about us here. Many of them met here upon this ground in grim and deadly struggle. Upon these famous fields and hillides their comrades died about them. In their presence it was an impertinence to discourse upon how the battle went, how it ended, what it signified? But 50 years have gone by since then and I crave the privilege of speaking to you for a few minutes of what those 50 years have meant.

What have they meant? They have meant peace and union and vigor, and the maturity and might of a great nation. How wholesome and healing the peace has been! We have found one another again as brothers and comrades in arms, enemies no longer, generous friends rather, our battles long past, the quarrel forgotten—except that we shall not forget the splendid valor, the manly devotion of the men then arrayed against one another, now grasping hands and smiling into each other's eyes. How complete the union has become and how dear to all of us, how unquestioned, how benign and majestic, as state after state has been added to this great family of free men! How handsome the vigor, the fact that its life is right, adjusted to the uttermost to the standards of righteousness and humanity. The days of sacrifice and cleansing are not closed. We have harder things to do than were done in the heroic days of war, because harder to see clearly, requiring more vision, more calm balance of judgment, a more candid searching of the very springs of right.

Tribute to Their Valor. Look around you upon the field of Gettysburg! Picture the array, the fierce heats and agony of battle, column hurled against column, battery following to battery! Valor! Yes! Greater no man shall see in war; and self-sacrifice, and loss to the uttermost, the high recklessness of excited devotion which does not count the cost. We are made by these tragic, epic things to know what it costs to make a nation—the blood and sacrifice of multitudes of unknown men lifted to a great stature in the view of all generations by knowing no limit to their manly willingness to serve.

In armies thus marshaled from the ranks of free men you will see, as we were, a nation embattled, the leaders and the led, and may know, if you will, how little except in form its action differs in days of peace from its action in days of war.

My Law the Orders of the Day. I have been chosen the leader of the Nation. I cannot justify the choice by any qualities of my own, but so it has come about, and here I stand. Whom do I command? The ghostly hosts who fought upon these battlefields long ago and are gone? These gallant gentlemen stricken in years whose fighting days are over, their glory won? What are the orders for them, who rallies them? I have in my mind another host, whom these set free of civil strife in order that they might work out in days of peace and settled order the life of a great nation. That host is the people, themselves, the great and the small, without class or difference of kind or race or origin; and undivided in interest, if we have but the vision to guide and direct them and order their lives aright in what we do. Our constitutions are their articles of enlistment. The orders of the day are the laws upon our statute books.

How shall we hold such thoughts in our hearts and not be moved? I would not have you live even today wholly in the past, but would wish to stand with you in the light that streams upon us now out of that great day gone by. Here is the nation God has builded by our hands. What shall we do with it? Who stands ready to act again and always in the spirit of this day of reunion and hope and patriotic fervor? The day of our country's life has not broadened into morning. Do not put uniforms by. Put the harness of the present on. Lift your eyes to the great tracts of life yet to be conquered in the interest of righteous peace, of that property which lies in a people's hearts and outlasts all wars and errors of men. Come, let us be comrades and soldiers yet to serve our fellow men in quiet counsel, where the bare of trumpets is neither heard nor heeded and where the things are done which make blessed the nations of the world in peace and righteousness and love.

Nation Not Finished. But do we deem the nation complete and finished? These venerable men crowding here to this famous field have set us a great example of devotion and utter sacrifice. They were willing to die that the people might live. But their task is done. Their day is turned into evening. They look to us to perfect what they established. Their work is handed on to us, to be done in another way but not in another spirit. Our day is not over; it is upon us in full tide.

Have affairs paused? Does the nation stand still? Is it that the 50 years have wrought since those days of battle finished, rounded out, and completed? Here is a great people, great with every force that has ever beaten in the lifeblood of mankind. And it is secure. There is no one within its borders, there is no power among the nations of the earth, to make it afraid. But has it yet squared itself up at its birth, when it made that first noble, naive appeal to the moral judgment of mankind to take notice that a government had now at last been established which was to serve men, not masters? It is secure in everything except the satisfaction

Smashing Force of the Sea. The great gales which have recently swept the Atlantic have demonstrated in a most emphatic manner the force of the sea, as represented by the buckling, bending and tearing away of iron and steel plates from vessels," says the Times Engineering Supplement. "Within the last few years, also, engineers have had to witness the destruction of sea walls and half completed harbor works by the storms which have directed the battering forces of the breakers against vulnerable points in the structures. There is no uncertainty about the results, but the precise nature of the destructive action, and the quantitative measure of the forces involved, can scarcely be said to have been submitted to adequate examination, even in cases where the facts were favorable to such a research."

FIGHT AT REUNION

DEFENDER OF LINCOLN ATTACKED AT GETTYSBURG CAMP—SEVEN ARE STABBED

THREE RESCUERS MAY DIE

Union Veteran, U. S. Army Man and Member of State Constabulary Believed to Be Fatally Injured by Unknown Man During Mess.

Gettysburg, Pa., July 3.—Seven men were stabbed, three of them seriously, in a fight to protect an old veteran who resented a slur upon the name of Lincoln at the mess tent at supper time. The veterans had gathered for their evening meal after the thunderstorm and while they were there some one, it is not known who, made a remark about President Lincoln which was at once taken up by an old soldier.

Three Defenders May Die. Three men set upon him and in the effort to protect him a general free fight ensued and after order had been restored seven of the men who went to the rescue of the old soldier were found lying bleeding on the ground.

Those most seriously injured and who are not expected to live are Ed J. Carroll, a sergeant of the quartermaster's department, U. S. A., David Farber of the state constabulary, and John D. Maugin, a Union veteran of Gettysburg.

The other veterans who were not so seriously injured were all Pennsylvania soldiers and include Malcolm Griffith, Charles Seesler, Hayden Reinsberger and Harry A. Root.

Search Made for Veteran. In the mix-up the old veteran disappeared and the state constabulary are searching the encampment for him. The wounded were carried to the state hospital and are under the care of Dr. Dixon, the chief medical officer of the state who is in charge here and the constabulary are patrolling the town in search of the man who started the fight as well as the veteran who will be asked to testify against him.

Veterans Return Home. Nearly 40,000 veterans, who have been attending the semi-centennial celebration of the battle of Gettysburg, have left here and started home.

The army paid a pretty tribute to the nation's dead at Gettysburg field. By order of General Leggett, the commanding officer, all flags were lowered to half-mast at 12 o'clock and remained so for five minutes, while all officers and enlisted men stood at attention and uncovered. At 12 o'clock the field battery fired 48 guns, the customary salute at all army and navy posts for each star in the national flag.

Scotland Yard Detectives Find Thousands of Tubes of Phosphorus.

London, July 7.—Scotland Yard detectives discovered a gigantic arson plot in which the militant suffragettes planned to simultaneously set a large number of fires throughout various districts of London. Vast quantities of combustibles have been stored at different points throughout the city, and the plot was so well arranged that tremendous damage would have been the inevitable result.

The militants planned to set forth from different points at a given hour on a date, which has not yet been learned definitely. The plan was to start numerous fires in the main business section of London, in the West End district, in several of the government buildings and in what is known as the "fire zone," a very congested area.

The police have discovered thousands of tubes of phosphorus, quantities of fire-lighters and large stores of chemicals, all of which were to be used in the arson campaign.

OHIO BAG WINS AIR RACE

Balloon Entered in the National Elimination Contest Lands in Michigan.

Kansas City, Mo., July 7.—Unofficial figures on the landing places of the four balloons in the national elimination race made by aero club officials give first place in the race to the Goodyear bag of Akron, O., which landed at West Branch, Mich., an estimated distance of 652 miles from Kansas City.

While John Watts, pilot of the Kansas City II, telegraphed he had flown 730 miles to Goodrich, Mich., aero club officials figured his distance at 630 miles, giving him second place.

Third place is accorded to Captain Honeywell in the Kansas City Post balloon, which landed at Rockwood, Mich., and last place to the Million Population club of St. Louis, which came down at Manchester, Mich., a distance estimated at 590 miles.

All of the balloons encountered storms near the great lakes.

Imitating Her Elders. Sister and brother, neither of whom has reached the mathematic stage, were playing the other day on the lawn at their home in Twelfth street, says the Indianapolis News. The brother had great respect for his sister's knowledge, for she went to school. He looked forward to the day when he should become a pupil and grow wise.

"I think," he said, "when June is gone it will be cooler."

"Then suddenly: 'When will June be gone?'"

The little sister attempted to answer, but, evidently fearing to lose her brother's admiration, she placed her hand on his shoulder, and with a tone of mild surprise she said: "Why, David, you ought to know that."

Astonishing Coiffures. Coiffures are to be high again, but not so high as in the past. Formerly doormats had to be heightened to accommodate the eighteenth century woman of fashion. Marie Antoinette's hairdresser had to mount a stool in order to get above his work. Women of that time had to kneel in their coaches to get their head covering inside, or drive with their heads out of the windows. Mme. de Genlis was caught by her hair while hastening to greet Voltaire at Fery, but escaped Absalom's fate, her hair remaining on the bough. And the Duchess de Chartres had room on her hair one evening for a miniature man-of-war in full sail, on another for a representation of her little son, Louis Philippe, sleeping in the lap of his nurse.

Plans to Live as Savage. To prove that the people of the twentieth century need not be slaves to civilized convention, Joseph Knowles, a Boston painter of outdoor life, plans to plunge into the wilderness of northern Maine this month without clothing, food, matches, firearms or ammunition.

He promises to stay there until October 1, to subsist on fish, game, berries and wild vegetables and to come out fully clothed. He will live 50 or 60 miles away from any settlement, and will accept no help from the outside world.

Knowles will make his own fire by friction; will build a log cabin from material he finds in the woods, and will make traps out of what he discovers in the practically unexplored northern part of the Pine Tree state.

CUBS' FOOD

They Thrive on Grape-Nuts.

Healthy babies don't cry and the well-nourished baby that is fed on Grape-Nuts is never a crying baby. Many babies who cannot take any other food relish the perfect food, Grape-Nuts, and get well.

"My baby was given up by three doctors who said that the condensed milk on which I fed her had ruined the child's stomach. One of the doctors told me that the only thing to do would be to try Grape-Nuts, so I got some and prepared it as follows: I soaked 1/4 tablespoonful in one pint of cold water for half an hour, then I strained off the liquid and mixed 12 teaspoonfuls of this strained Grape-Nuts juice with six teaspoonfuls of rich milk, put in a pinch of salt and a little sugar, warmed it and gave it to baby every two hours."

"In this simple, easy way I saved baby's life and have built her up to a strong, healthy child, rosy and laughing. The food must certainly be perfect to have such a wonderful effect as this. I can truthfully say I think it is the best food in the world to raise delicate babies on and it's also a delicious healthful food for grown-ups as we have discovered in our family."

Grape-Nuts is equally valuable to the strong, healthy man or woman. It stands for the true theory of health. "There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in plain.

Never read the above notice? A lot of people are going to try it. They are genuine, true, and full of health interest.

Philanthropist's Right to Have His Name on List of Those Who Go About Doing Good.

At a banquet at San Francisco recently William F. McCombs told of a conversation in a club in which several philanthropic personages were mentioned and lauded to the skies. The conversation had gone to some length, Mr. McCombs said, when a man who was sitting in a corner arose with a merry smile flitting over his features and broke into the gabfest. "Your philanthropists are all right," he remarked, "but I think it is only just that my next-door neighbor should be included in the kindly disposed bunch."

ECZEMA BURNED AND ITCHED

203 Walnut St., Hillboro, Ill.—"My child had a breaking out on the lower limbs which developed into eczema. The eczema began with pimples which contained yellow corruption and from the child's clothing they were greatly irritated. They seemed to burn, which made the child scratch them, resulting in a mass of open places. They made her so cross and fretful that it was impossible to keep her quiet. They caused her to lose much sleep and she was constantly tormented by severe itching and burning."

"I tried several well-known remedies, but got no relief until I got a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, which did so much good that I got a large quantity that cured her in ten days after she had been affected for two months." (Signed) Mrs. Edith Schwartz, Feb. 28, 1912.

THE FAVOR BROUGHT BY SEELAS AT SCITIAE

HE HAS always seemed to me the prince of all adventurers: a man whose nostrils sniffed the breath of battle as eagerly as most of us sniff a flower; a man whose virile person delighted in the zest of danger, who was invariably willing to stake his all on the right; a man hardy, determined, daring, resourceful, bold, yet never reckless; withal a man who knew when to let well enough alone and steer the middle path of caution.

It happened to be born with royal blood in his veins, but that is of small account. Every inch of territory, every subject he owns he has fought for, and it is to his credit that the domains handed to him by his predecessor, fifty-two years ago, have been rather more than doubled in extent and population through the might of his sword and the agility of his brain.

Nicholas Petrovich Niegob, czar of Montenegro, prince of the Zeta, vojvode of Brda, and gospodar of Tchernagora, Europe's last feudal ruler, was born at Niegob, the ancestral home of his house, on September 25, 1841. He came of the wonderful line which has given rulers to Montenegro for more than two hundred years and which was one of the foremost families of the ancient principality for centuries before that. The Petrovich dynasty has reigned in Montenegro since 1696, when the rule of the hereditary vladikas, or prince-bishops, was inaugurated. But for hundreds of years before that date, even before the time of the first Black Prince, Stephen Chrnoviech, the Petrovichs were an honored family, who boasted the rank of vojvode or lord.

All of the men of this line have been men of great personal prowess, exceptional military ability, statesmanship and political cunning, and possessed of marked personal magnetism. Living for the most part lives of strictest celibacy, quaint mixtures of the warrior and the monk, they presided over the destinies of their tiny nation with a sense of responsibility that you will not find equaled by the standard of any ruling dynasty in Europe.

At the beginning of its existence, Montenegro was ruled by successive dynasties of princes, of which the last was the Chrnoviech. In 1516, however, the system of elective vladikas was changed, and what were known as elective vladikas were installed by a One ruler of the Petrovichs was succeeded by his brother's son. Strangely enough, there was never any jealousy among the nephews who were passed over.

For instance, the father of Czar Nicholas, Mirko, known as the "Sword of Montenegro"—the most famous warrior the little land can boast and a stalwart bulwark against the invasions of the Turks which threatened Montenegro until 1878, when Russia put a stop once and for all to Moslem aggression in Europe—was twice passed over for the throne, the second time in favor of his own son. Yet he fought cheerfully both for his brother and his son and never showed a trace of ill-feeling, although, as has been said, he has always been regarded as the best leader the Black Mountain men ever had.

To tell the story of Czar Nicholas, the frat of the Montenegrin rulers to wear a kingly crown, means the telling of the story of his country throughout his reign.

It is not a story which can be lightly told, either, for it involves description of several of the most stirring combats which have taken place since the days of the Crusades.

In the first place, it is necessary to give a brief sketch of the land of Montenegro, or Tchernagora—"The Black Mountain," to call it by the name its inhabitants love best. Montenegro was colonized in the last decade of the fourteenth century by noble families from Macedonia, Serbia and Bulgaria, the pick of the old Slav aristocracy, who fled from their upland castles in the Rhodope hills after the battle of Kosovo in 1389, when the Turks completely crushed the Christian power in the Balkan peninsula, and the great Bulgar-Serb empire, which had been numbered among the mightiest in Europe, went down to everlasting defeat.

From that time on, the story of Montenegro is the story of endless battles, wars, sieges, raids, forays and encounters with the Turks, varied occasionally by combats with the Venetians, who made several abortive attempts to scale the impregnable rock known as the "Montenegrin Ladder," which runs from the Bocca di Cattora up to Cetinje, and, later, combats with the French and Austrians.

Time and again the Turkish Sultans and their viceroys, the Pashas of Albania, Bosnia and the Herzegovina, endeavored to conquer the tiny land. For four hundred and fifty years, army after army, led by the Janissaries and best generals Turkey could produce, attempted to conquer Montenegro and failed. During the first half of the last century the warfare between the little principality and its great enemy was almost unceasing. In the reign of Danilo II, uncle of Nicholas, a number of tremendous battles were fought.

Five years before the time came for Nicholas to ascend the throne, his destiny had been determined upon, and as his uncle was a man of considerable foresight and no small intellectual attainments, it was determined that the heir-apparent should be given a first-class western education in preparation for his assuming the responsibilities of leader of his people.

Accordingly, after a preparatory course in the home of his aunt in Trieste—where he imbued principally hatred of the Austrians, who were becoming almost as dangerous enemies of Montenegro as the Turks—he was shipped off to Paris, where he studied at the Academy of Louis-le-Grand, and obtained some proficiency in French, Italian and German, besides Serb history and other more usual branches of knowledge.

THE ADVENTURER KING CZAR NICHOLAS OF MONTENEGRO BY ARTHUR D. HOWDEN SMITH

NICHOLAS GOING TO THE FRONT SERVICE

KING NICHOLAS AND SOME OF THE WIDOWS OF SOLDIERS

he has written several poetic dramas, including "The Empress of the Balkans" and "Prince Arbanit," all dealing with Serb history, and declared to possess unusual merit.

He was not quite nineteen when he was called to take his uncle's place. Two months later he married Milena Voukovich, daughter of one of the principal vovods, who had been a brother-in-arms of his father, Mirko. The Czarina Milena is still one of the handsomest women in Europe. She stood shoulder to shoulder with her husband throughout all the trials and adversities of his eventful reign, at times when he was driven from pillar to post by the Moslem hordes that were poured through the defiles of the Lovchen range in wave after wave, so that even the brave Black Mountain men quailed under the attack and sought safety on the impassable mountain heights.

They had peace of a kind for a year, and then war broke out with redoubled violence. The insurrection of the rayahs, or Christian peasants of the Herzegovina, aroused the sympathies of the Montenegrins, and young Prince Nicholas found his hands full trying to obey the injunctions of the great powers to refrain from hostilities and keep his fiery subjects in check.

For some months he held out against the wishes of the nation, with somewhat dubious success. He honestly did his best to remain neutral; he even consented to allow the Turks to send their convoys across Montenegrin territory.

A series of "frontier incidents"—"frontier incidents" is the designation for any fracas along the Montenegrin border which results in fatalities—followed close upon one another's heels. The Turks grasped eagerly at the chance they had been looking for. Omar Pasha, vovod of the western province, one of the bitterest foes of Montenegro, threw a huge army across the frontier, underled by his previous defeats at the hands of Mirko. It was reasoned in Constantinople that young Nicholas had earned the dislike of his subjects by his peace policy, and that now, while there was turmoil in the Christian camp, Turkey might find it easy to crack the nut which had resisted so many efforts for so many hundreds of years.

But things did not turn out exactly as Turkey had anticipated. A great part of the principality was overrun, most of the villages were destroyed and ruin stared every one in the face. Omar's army had entered the country in three divisions, aiming to comb it from side to side, and making their principal effort against the valley of the Zeta, which might be called the highroad of Montenegro, the main artery of its life. But, led by the giant fighter, Mirko, and their boy prince—in whom they trusted implicitly, once he had sanctioned the struggle of their fathers. The Turks were assailed from every height, from the sides of every pass.

True, the valley of the Zeta fell into the invaders' hands, but on little else could they keep their grip for long. The war was fought with a fierce, unrelenting fanaticism which is all but incomprehensible to the western mind. After sixty battles, the Montenegrins were glad to meet their foes half-way.

They conceded some unimportant points and won a breathing spell. Cholera followed in the wake of famine and despite the assistance of France, which sent shipments of corn to arrest the ravages of hunger, many who had survived the bullet and steel of the Turkish armies were carried off by the scourge of disease, among them Mirko, "the Sword."

The loss of his father was a great blow to young Nicholas, who had often relied upon his judgment and advice. But no man, however young, could have gone through the experiences which had been the prince's lot during the few years of his reign without learning much thereby.

RECORDS WILL GO THIS YEAR

Michigan State Fair Will Be Greatest Ever Held.

PREMIUMS TOTAL $100,000.

Increased Interest Shown by Exhibitors—Program Entertaining as Well as Instructive—Lefty Aim of Management.

Those in a position to know are unanimously predicting that the 1913 State Fair will surpass anything of its nature ever before staged in Michigan by an enormous margin. It will be Michigan's greatest agricultural and industrial exposition. All the pleasing features of last year's Fair will be emphasized to a greater degree and new ones introduced that cannot help but meet with the sound endorsement of progressive Michiganders. Fair week will be from Sept. 15 to 20.

The educational efficiency of the Fair will be elevated to a far greater extent than in previous years, and the entertaining and instructive standards will be higher.

All of the big attractions are not ready for announcement as yet, but there is positive assurance that 1913 State Fair visitors will be furnished with the most sensational and at the same time most instructive entertainments ever exhibited in the west.

There will be actual working demonstrations at this year's State Fair which will be of great practical value to every class of people. These exhibitions will convey knowledge to thousands of persons who could not possibly obtain it without the expenditure of thousands of dollars.

No matter in which direction a visitor cares to focus his view at the coming Fair, he will observe something worth seeing and thinking about. It will be the state's show window stocked with the resources of one of the richest commonwealths in the Union.

$100,000 Premium List.

The premium list alone, that of $100,000, is in itself enough to justify the success of the 1913 Fair. This amount is far in excess of that offered by any similar institution of the same size in existence.

This huge sum of money will be devoted toward encouraging production along the lines which will help solve the many problems which confront farmers and the business interests which are dependent upon agricultural productions.

It is the resolve of a thoroughly organized and smooth working management to make the 1913 Fair a powerful factor in the improvement of life stock, farm efficiency and country citizenship. Clean, substantial information and entertainment for all classes and all ages will be the lofty aim of those in charge of Michigan's greatest Fair.

The number of exhibitors, which can be taken as a good barometer of healthy growth, is now far ahead of last year's activity. With the premium list just circulated the heads of the various departments are confident of bigger and better exhibits. Even this early adequate space for exhibitors is a problem.

In short, the management will endeavor to supplant the idea that the Michigan State Fair, Sept. 15 to 20, is going to be a superficial entertainment or a home of country vaudeville and show the visitors that it does and will continue to exert a broadening influence throughout the length and breadth of the fairest state in the Union.

EARLY HEARD CALL OF WILD

John Muir, Great Naturalist, Showed His Bent in the Earliest Years of His Long Life.

When I was a boy in Scotland I was fond of everything that was wild and all my life I've been growing fonder and fonder of wild places and wild creatures, wrote John Muir in the Atlantic. Fortunately around my native town of Dunbar, by the stormy North sea, there was no lack of wilderness, though most of the land lay in smooth cultivation. With red-blooded playmates, wild as myself, I loved to wander in the fields to hear the birds sing, and along the seashore to gaze and wonder at the shells and seaweeds, eels and crabs in the pools among the rocks when the tide was low. And, best of all, in glorious storms to watch the waves thundering on the black headlands and crazy ruins of the old Dunbar castle when the sea and the sky, the waves and the clouds, were mingled together as one. After I was five or six years old I ran away to the seashore or the fields almost every Saturday, and every day in the school vacations except Sundays, though solemnly warned that I must play at home in the garden and back yard, lest I should learn to think bad thoughts and say bad words. All in vain. In spite of the sure sore punishments that followed like shadows, the natural inherited wildness in our blood ran true on its glorious course as invincible and unstoppage as the stars.

QUEER LEGACIES ON RECORD

Meant Much in the Old Days, Though They Seem Peculiar to the People of Today.

Ancient bequests for having bells rung and bonbons lighted for the purpose of guiding travelers by night are quite numerous, which is hardly to be wondered at when one considers the apologies for roads and the absence of fences in the "good old days."

A plot of land, rejoicing in the name of "Petticoat Hole," is held at Stockton-on-the-Forest, in Yorkshire, England, on condition of providing a poor woman of the place with a new petticoat once a year.

In the old days, when rushes were strewn on the floor in lieu of carpets, many persons left bequests of money and land for providing rushes for the floors of churches. Their use, of course, has long been discontinued, but in certain places the church wardens attend to the preservation of their rights by cutting a little grass each year and strewing it on the church floor.

There may have been seen on the benefaction table at Deptford church a record to the effect that "a person unknown gave half a quarter of wheat, to be given in bread on Good Friday, and half a load of rushes at Whit-tide, and a load of peasestraw at Christmas yearly, for the use of the church."

Plymouth Merchants Not Very Easy

A couple of sonic artists appeared before the village council last Monday evening and made a proposition to place a new drop curtain in the opera house free of charge to the village, if they were given the privilege of placing the advertisements of local merchants on the same. The idea of getting something for nothing appealed to the council and the strangers were given a contract for the placing of the curtain. But when it came to getting the ads from which they expected to derive a nice little sum, they did not find our merchants so easy, and after a little misunderstanding with one of our business men from whom they had obtained an ad, gave up the job and left town.

A number of our business men and citizens were opposed to the placing of advertisements on the drop curtain and making a bill board of it. This custom used to be in vogue years ago, but has long since passed out of existence in the better class of public halls. While a new drop curtain may be needed, we believe the people generally would be better pleased with one that did not have a lot of advertisements smeared over it. It would look cheap.

Fruit Reports Are Not Encouraging

The monthly crop report issued by the secretary of state does not give very encouraging reports for a fruit crop in Michigan this year. Apples are reported as only 56 per cent of an average crop; peaches 53; pears 52; plums 56; grapes 60; raspberries 76.

The report also indicates that peaches will be a far better crop than last year. The average for the Michigan fruit belt is given at 54 per cent, while for the same period last year, it was but 18 per cent.

The report which is an extensive one this month, gives the estimated acreage for the principal farm products for this year.

The estimated acreage of wheat being given at 770,593; rye, 380,491; corn, 1,898,556; oats, 1,510,593; barley, 32,950; buckwheat, 61,702; beans, 424,230; peas, 64,086; potatoes, 326,536; hay and forage, 2,326,784; apples, 224,035; pears, 9,062; peaches, 32,254; plums, 3,720; cherries, 7,801. Raspberries and blackberries, 5,066.

The estimated yield of wheat an acre is 14.63 bushels, rye at 13.81. Ninety-six per cent of last year's acreage of beans will be planted. The condition of potatoes is given at 88 and sugar at beans 90.

Auto Owner Liable

Attorney-General Fellows, in an opinion rendered recently, holds that the owner of a motor car may be held liable for an accident resulting from the non-use of lights while the machine is standing on a curb. The law does not specifically state how machines shall be lighted when not in motion, but as a result of Fellows' ruling it is expected that motorists will keep both head and tail lights burning when at the curb.
