PAINFUL, TRYING TIMES

Housework is hard enough for a healthy woman. The wife who has a bad back, who is weak or tired all the time, finds her duties a heavy burden. Thousands of nervous, discouraged, sickly women have traced their troubles to sick kidneys—have found quick and thorough relief through using Doan's Kidney Pills. The painful, trying times of woman's life are much easier to bear if the kidneys are well.

DAPHNE'S HOPE BOX
A Feminine Conceit and Joke That Led to Much Pleasant Gossip.

By SELINA LILLIAN HIGGINS.
"How very nice of Nellie," said Mary Lincoln, as she and her best friend Daphne Willis, parted at the village post office after receiving and opening two boxes, exactly alike.

"The lace is exquisite," spoke Daphne, glancing with taste and pleasure over the neck collar neatly done up in tissue paper with a dainty sachet bag beside it. "Nellie is very thoughtful."

They had been great friends, those three. All through Nellie's engagement Mary and Daphne had been closest to her of her many acquaintances. She had promised not to forget them when she reached the city on her wedding tour. Now Nellie had redeemed her promise.

"I shall wear the collar at the regular club party next week," said Mary. "You will be there, Daphne?"

"I think not. My aunt is not very well, you know, and needs me most of the time. Besides," and Daphne gave a nervous laugh, "I fear I am getting past the party age, Mary."

"Nonsense!" cried her devoted friend. "Twenty-three, and you look like sixteen. It's just the breaking up of our old circle that gives you the blues. Now you wear that handsome collar—lace always becomes you. Don't go giving it away, as you usually do everything that anybody asks for."

"Oh, I shall not do that," declared Daphne. "It will always be a tender reminder of our dear Nellie. I shall put it away in my 'hope box.'"

Just here Mary made a pretense of clenching her pretty pink and white fists and grinding her pearly teeth in a feat of the most dreadful rage.

"Daphne Willis," she scolded severely, "if even I happen across that 'hope box' of yours, I'll—I'll stamp on it; yes, I will! The idea! you keeping a 'hope box,' as if you were some fading old maid with yellow teeth and wrinkled cheeks and scrawny neck when everybody says you grow more and more beautiful!"

"That's enough!" retorted Daphne, closing the cherry lips of her staunch champion with a kiss—"I know I am beginning to feel very old, and I think it a duty to be prepared if any likely old bachelor—why, yes, even some respectable widower—should happen along, you know!"

It was all a joke, Daphne's "hope box," a feminine conceit that appeared to Daphne because it led to pleasant quip and gossip among her bright girl friends. In her own mind Daphne felt pretty well convinced that she would never marry. She had a pleasant, permanent home with her aunt. She felt that she was past the frivolous age. Daphne had encountered some ideas during the years, but they had turned out selfish and prosaic. None of them had ever come up to her standard of a real man.

Her "hope box" was a satinated cedar chest, given to her by dear father some ideal during the years, but they had turned out selfish and prosaic. None of them had ever come up to her standard of a real man.

Interesting Beginning.
A fair graduate was conversing with a young gentleman who had been presented to her after the commencement exercises.

"Well," she sighed happily, "I am an A. B. now. Of course you have a degree?"

"Yes," he replied, "but I am only a B."

The fair grad pondered. The degree was puzzling.

"Why, what is that?" she asked.

"Bachelor," he said.

HISTORIC OLD TOWN
Alkmaar, Holland, Has Many Interesting Features.

Quaint Dutch City of 20,000 Is Typical of the Country—Scene of Resistance to Spanish Siege of 1573.

Alkmaar, Holland.—The town itself is one that must abide in the memory of everyone who sees it for the first time. Its most important church is the Grote Kerk of St. Lawrence, which contains among other things the ancient tomb of Floris V., Count of Holland, who died in 1296. The tower of the Stadhuis dates from 1507. It contains a library and a municipal museum, furnished with several notable pictures. But the old Weigh house, after all, remains to us the most interesting of the buildings in the town. Not least of its charms is the prospect from the top. From it our artist was able to secure a very striking picture of the view as seen from that eminent position. There could not be anything more typical of Holland. First of all there is the canal, the national waterway, winding sluggishly through the town and dividing it in two. There are the canal boats, the warrens of this aqueous highway, placidly pursuing their journey or waiting by the wharves to be laden or unladen. Most of all there are the Dutch houses, or rather the characteristic roofs of them—the view that they would present to the stars. The town is just of the right size to be brought within this focus. It numbers about 20,000 inhabitants, the majority of whom are connected directly or indirectly with agriculture. But the place has its historical records also. It appeals to the historian as the scene of a splendid resistance to the Spanish siege in 1573—the period of the Dutch struggle for independence.

The buildings, to which we have already made allusion, carry us back to that sixteenth century, which was famous there as in England for the artistic beauty and sense of proportion brought to bear upon the work of building. Houses of this period are fine all the world over, and not least in Holland.

The Dutch cheese trade is an old industry in one way, but its great development is modern in character. Till only a comparatively recent period the dairy herds in this country were neglected. The only requirement applied to the cow was that she should give a very large quantity of milk. It was of such inferior character as to become almost a proverbial expression for thinness. But recent ministers of agriculture have changed all that. They have brought science to bear on the industry with ever-increasing force. Milk is officially analyzed in quantities which show a most important increase between now and the year 1903. More than that, the breed of cattle has been most astonishingly improved, so that instead of being neglected by the rest of Europe it has now become desirable.

When the farmer first begins to graze his sheep in a wild country, one of the chief, if not the most dangerous, of his enemies is the hunting dog. Sweeping down upon a flock, a pack of these animals will in a very few minutes entirely annihilate it, killing and mauling apparently for the mere pleasure of doing so, and then, having completed the slaughter, will probably be miles away wreaking the same destruction elsewhere, ere the irate owner and his friends have time to arrive upon the scene.

A long crusade against them in Cape Colony resulted at length in their virtual extinction in the settled parts, but in all the wider corners of South Africa the same thing still goes on, and raids upon small herds of native goats and sheep are everywhere, where these pests exist.—Blackwood's Magazine.

WILD DOGS PEST OF AFRICA
Hunting in Packs, They Do Incalculable Damage to Sheep and Other Live Stock of Farmers.

There is no wild animal in Africa which deals out such wholesale destruction to certain kinds of game as the hunting dog. Leopards have been known to be chased up trees; hyenas have been found in process of being mobbed to death; the lion himself, when found solitary, is sometimes pursued by a pack.

Bush pirate and Ishmael as he is, strangely enough toward man the hunting dog seems to betray little or no aggressive tendency.

Wandering about in bands over huge areas of wild country, and seldom remaining more than a few days in any one locality, the hunting dog is probably less frequently encountered than any other kind of carnivore, and therefore in less degree than any other has he the experience of man and his ways. There is at least no doubt that when this experience has been acquired few creatures show more haste in escaping from man's presence or display more intelligence in doing so. But if there is little ground of complaint against him as regards man personally, it is a very different matter where the latter's flocks and herds are concerned.

IN BIG POWDER MILL TO DIE
Disconsolate Husband Prays for Explosion, but Is Very Sorry When It Comes.

Paterson, N. J.—In a suit for divorce on the grounds of desertion, Peter K. Hitcher has gone on record in chancery here in a most doleful manner. He testified that the alleged desertion of his wife made him so disconsolate that he got a job in a powder factory, in the hope that the plant would blow up. His prayer was almost answered a few months later, when he was sent to the hospital with five others injured in an explosion. By the time he recovered he ceased to grieve over his domestic troubles, and decided that life was worth living after all.

Testifies She Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Malone, N. Y.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has certainly done me a lot of good. I first heard of it when I was a girl and I always said that if I ever had female trouble I would take it."

"I suffered from organic inflammation and would have spells when I would be in such pain that I would tear my clothes. One day my husband got the neighbors in to see what the matter was but they could not help me. My first thought was for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I sent my husband out for it and took it until I was entirely cured. I am a woman of perfect health and my health and happiness came from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. You may rest assured that I do all I can to recommend your wonderful medicine to my friends."—MRS. FRED STONE, Route No. 3, Malone, N. Y.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down, feeling faintly, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

Hand Painted Crab Surrenders in Jamaica Bay

NEW YORK.—That there are stranger fish in the sea than ever have been caught is a proverb that will have to move along to keep up with a creature taken out of Jamaica bay by John Leahy of the Bronx the other day. Mr. Leahy has the reputation of being one of the best amateur clam diggers that ever piled his trade along Rockaway beach, but he added to his reputation when he caught the largest horseshoe crab the oldest inhabitant of the beach has ever seen.

Sprightly Bold Thief Dares Her to Chase Him

RIVERHEAD, L. I.—The meanest thief in the world is at large somewhere on Long Island. One day recently he looked into the fruit store of Samuel Gordon, on Main street in Patchogue. Nothing much is ever doing in Patchogue and this was a particularly dull day. Nobody was visible in the store. But subsequent developments indicate that this pesky marauder made a careful reconnaissance nevertheless.

Pathos in the Comedy of Actors at Hobo Benefit

CHICAGO.—Hobos of Chicago spent their "bad money" the other night in hobo entertainment. For their dime they received shudders and tears and homesickness. The show was the "Hobos' Rag-time Benefit," at Bowen hall, Hall House. The actors were boys; the audience was comprised of hobos and there were reporters who had gone expecting to find comedy, only to see tragedy in its most pitiable form.

Dog Earns His Daily Bone as a Dray "Horse"

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—Two familiar figures for blocks around 3389 West Ninety-second street are Frank Podlesak, thirteen years old, and "Nig." "Nig" is a great, black Newfoundland dog, weighing 150 pounds and each day he works for his living, though only three years old. He seems to enjoy pulling a four-wheel wagon loaded with enough lumber or wood to tax the strength of a small horse.

If you are a housewife you cannot reasonably hope to be healthy or beautiful by washing dishes, sweeping and doing household all day, and crawling into bed dead tired at night. You must get out into the open air and sunlight. If you do this every day and keep your stomach and bowels in good order by taking Chamberlain's Tablets when needed, you should become both healthy and beautiful. For sale by all dealers. Advt.
