The Real Harvest $ Put it in the Bank

The real harvest that any man expects is the financial harvest. After you have worked hard for your money, what are you going to do with it? Is it going to be frittered away in silly extravagances? Not if you are WISE. Your own labor is your best asset. Do not waste the result of it on foolish things, but put as much as possible of it in the bank for that DECEMBER of your life that is BOUND TO COME.

Do YOUR banking with U.S.
We pay three per cent interest.

A Letter From Bay View

Bay View, Aug 1st, 1913

Editor Mail:—
On this perfect day in beautiful Bay View, my thoughts turn to my home village and the dear friends there. Here I am enjoying the life-giving air, the rest and inspiration which I so much needed when I left home. While reading of the terrific heat in Chicago and the southern part of Michigan, we were enjoying cool breezes,—“A little to kule” said some of the southern sojourners, of whom there are many on the grounds. The majority of the southerners are from Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri, yet the states far south are well represented and many beautiful homes are owned by them. It is easy to make the acquaintance of these delightful people, for we meet them at the great auditorium, the cafes, boarding houses and excursions.

There is no spirit of caste shown here, unless it be among the southern people, some of whom manifestly do not like the colored race. The most distinguished people who come and go are as a rule, distinguished also for their simplicity of manner. They enjoy from the first that rarest of all luxuries—freedom, which the stiff and conventional always miss. The various university classes, arts and crafts, domestic science, kindergarten, china painting, music and excursions furnish enjoyment for people of different tastes. I am the most interested however, in the assembly program which gives Schumann-Heinck Aug. 4th and Helen Keller Aug. 9th. Last night Lyman Howe's moving picture travel festival, said to be the best thing of its kind in America. Four exhibitions in all, dramatic recital this afternoon. Very fine. Doubtless, the entertainment that has called forth the most comment thus far is a dramatic recital, entitled “Tomorrow,” rendered by Mrs. Katherine Oliver McCoy, a reader of great reputation. Peter Dale is a scientist, a second Hurlbank, who has for years been experimenting with plant life, changing and improving the species. His work has led him to meditate upon the need of help for the human species, so universally neglected, injured, destroyed. His daughter Mona, a charming girl, loves her father and his work, and in assisting him has absorbed much of his interest and knowledge.

There have come to reside in this vicinity, “The Henshaws,” proud and aristocratic. The family consists of father and mother, a bachelor son called “the Senator” and Rosalie a little blind girl. Everyone loves the sweet, unfortunate little one who is said to be “an adopted child.” Senator Henshaw loves the beautiful and happy Mona. His love is reciprocated and to his proposal of marriage she refers him to her father. The wise father foreseeing what was likely to happen, has investigated the past record of the young man. He has learned that the little blind child is suffering from the sins of her father, who is no other than the senator. Unable to deny the accusation, the senator pleads for silence, urges early ignorance but subsequent reform. The father insists that the lover shall himself tell the truth to his daughter and she shall decide for herself. The young man undertakes the dreaded task, but in his effort shields himself by suggesting to Mona that a “taint” existed in the life of the pure young girl who was the mother of Rosalie. But Mona knows all the facts in the moral tragedy, and when her lover adds to his sin, that of deception to her, she spurns his proffered love.

Here is a lesson in one phase of Eugenics, a question that is stirring the christian people of America. This message given in so delicate, yet truthful a fashion was received with great approval, and proves that the thinking public is ready for the “Truth that shall make us free.”

MRS. JENNIE VOORHIES.

Have you ever known men who laugh so heartily at their own jokes that they can hardly tell them? It is doubtless due to the fact that their brains are located so close to their tongue that the mere thought tickles their palate.

Gleaners Will Hold Picnic

The second annual picnic of Perrinsville Arbor of Gleaners will be held in Beyer's grove one half mile northeast of Perrinsville, Thursday, August 14th. A fine program has been prepared by the committee in charge. John Livingston of the Supreme Arbor will give an address. There will be various races and sports and a good ball game. The Northville band has been secured to furnish music for the occasion. There will be a bowery dance afternoon and evening for those who desire to trip the light fantastic. All kinds of refreshments will be served at a stand on the grounds. Everybody is invited to come and enjoy a day of rest and pleasure. Should the weather be inclement the picnic will be postponed until Friday, August 15th.

A Sudden Death

Mrs. John Rhead died very suddenly at her home near King's corners last Saturday. Mr. Rhead was away from home during the afternoon and had planned to meet his wife at Plymouth in the evening. He waited here until after the nine o'clock car, but she did not come so he returned home, where he found her lying on the bed dead. The doctor thought she had passed away several hours before and that her death was due to heart trouble. The deceased is survived by her husband and three children, one son, Fred and two daughters, Mrs. Roy Eckles and Mrs. Fred Steinable of Plymouth. Serrah A. Rhead was born July 23, 1862 in the township of Augusta, Michigan and was therefore 51 years and 9 days of age. She was married to John Rhead November 8, 1886. The funeral services were held at her late home Tuesday afternoon, Rev. B. F. Farber conducting the services. Interment in Riverside cemetery.

A Big Time At South Lyon

Several automobiles of South Lyon business men were in town Tuesday advertising the home coming event which takes place in that village Thursday and Friday, August 14 and 15. This is the third reunion of this kind that has been held there and this one promises to eclipse all former events. The Brighton band will furnish music for both days. There will be all kinds of sports on the streets. Thursday afternoon there will be a ball game between South Lyon and Whitmore Lake and Friday afternoon Howell and Northville will be the attraction on the ball field. Each evening of the reunion Prof. Evert, of St. Johns, will make a balloon ascension and parachute drop at 5:30 o'clock. A dance will also be given each evening in the Maccabee hall. The committee extend a most cordial invitation to everybody in Plymouth and vicinity, to come to South Lyon for one or both days of the reunion and enjoy the splendid program that has been prepared to entertain South Lyon visitors on those days.

Local Notes.

Regular meeting of the O. E. S. next Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Frank Tousey, Hilda Smye, Alva Burnett and Doris Hubbard visited friends in Detroit last Tuesday.

Robert Walker attended a convention of the rural mail carriers of the state at Grand Rapids several days this week.

Mrs. Franklin Oliver, daughter Mabel and grandson, Robert Markham of Detroit, visited friends in town this week.

The first division of the Ladies Aid of the M. E. church will hold a bake sale Saturday afternoon at the express office.

Evered Jolliffe, one of Plymouth's prominent young men and Miss Grace Wise were quietly married at the bride's home in Reed City last Wednesday morning, August 6th. Only the immediate family were present at the marriage service, but in the afternoon a small reception was held. Miss Wise has taught in the kindergarten here in the public school for the past two years and is well and favorably known. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Jolliffe will return to Plymouth where they will reside in the home recently purchased by Mr. Jolliffe on Penniman avenue. The happy couple have the best wishes of many friends for a prosperous wedded life.

Memories of the Past

In This Paper Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

Hop Williams' horse became frightened and ran away from in front of Taft's store Saturday, and made for home at great speed. The axle of the cart to which the animal was attached was badly out of shape when it reached home.

South Lyon has voted to build a village hall and engine house.

C. H. Bennett of Tecumseh, was in town for a couple of days the first of the week.

T. C. Sherwood received a letter from Gov. Luce on Tuesday, accepting an invitation to be here on Thursday of fair week, at which time he will address the farmers.

The late rains have been unfavorable for securing the oat crop.

“The unkindest cut of all,” some of our citizens say, is that lately given to the park.

A scrub race was got up Saturday between Ed. Cook's Maud C. and Charley Miller's Jack Forbes, which was easily won by Maud C. Miller's horse refused to show his speed and the race was necessarily a slow one, but the boys got lots of fun out of it. A blanket, scraper etc. were the prizes.

The fair association have raised their purses for speed this year quite materially and have added another race—a green race for home horses, with a purse of $25. They also offer a purse of $100 in the three minute race; $100 in the 2-50 race; $100 in the 2-40 race; $150 in the 2-40 pacing race; $250 in the free for all pacing race and $250 in the free for all trotting race. These purses will bring some good horses that will make interesting races.

Two or three men have been engaged for the past ten days in trimming the park. It has been cut very freely and there is lots of “kicking” about it, some giving vent to their feelings in unmeasurable terms, believing that many of the trees will be spoiled by rot, on account of cutting off large limbs. Others take a more favorable view and think maybe it's for the best. However there, is lots of talk over it.

The announcements from the Plymouth Union school for the coming school year have just been issued from this office. The fall term begins Sept. 3, and closes Nov. 21. Winter term begins Nov. 26; holiday vacation Dec. 21; term resumes Jan. 2, and closes March 23. Spring term begins April 1, and closes June 21. The teachers are A. C. Brower, principal, and the Misses Ella Smith, Delia Entrican, Lina Durfee, Nellie Berdon, Anna Smith and Anna Wildy.

The death of General Phil Sheridan, which occurred Sunday evening, was a great surprise to everyone. The encouraging telegraphic reports from his attendants had led the people to look for his recovery soon. He appeared unusually well on the day he died, but another difficulty with his heart occurred in the evening and his death came with scarcely any warning to his family. He was fifty-seven years of age and was distinguished for his bravery and military skill. The flag on the pole in front of the park has been at half mast since Monday.

“Toot” Cable is about to sell out his interest in the hardware business to Frank Anderson of Denton. An inventory of the stock is being taken now.

Yesterday forenoon while H. C. Robinson was on the dray, some barrels rolled off carrying him with them to the ground, and the wheels of the dray passed over his breast, injuring, but how seriously could not be told at this writing. The doctor thought no bones were broken.

Woman, 90, Battles With Robbers For Revolver

Two burglars entered the home of Miss Lucinda Yanson of Salem township, early Sunday morning and after over-powering her ransacked the premises, escaping with about $100 in valuables. Although 90 years of age, the woman put up a valiant fight to obtain a revolver which she had under her pillow. Miss Yanson's home is two miles west of Lapham's Corners where she has lived alone for many years.

Policemen Assist Mother in Spanking a Bad Boy mother was not earning the family a living, nor would he carry any more kindling wood in for domestic consumption.

Seizing his ear—the only portion of his anatomy upon which any one can get a handhold, Mrs. O'Hanlon carried him upstairs. Once there, John began to vent his indignation. He took the kitchen lamp and tossed it out the window. He took dishes out of the cupboard and smashed them on the floor. He tried to wrench the door off the teabox. He slapped his small sisters. He called his mother names.

Policeman Herdenreich heard the racket and came upstairs. When he was told Mrs. O'Hanlon's bad boy was at it again, he entered into the pursuit with a zest. There was a procession to the police station.

Lieutenant Hickey on the desk at the "house" was astounded when the villainies of John O'Hanlon had been recited. A grin stole over his face.

"Take him out in that room," he said.

"Follow, madam," said the lieutenant, bowing toward Mrs. O'Hanlon.

She did, with a great, great joy welling up in her heart. Woman's intuition, perhaps, told her what was going to happen.

With Herdenreich holding his feet and another policeman his head, Mrs. O'Hanlon's bad boy was disposed across his parent's knee.

And then—and then—but go ask Mrs. O'Hanlon, who can tell you better than any one else in the world.

MELISSA WOULD NOT JOIN THE ARMY.

"He seems to be a very nice sort of a man," remarked Mrs. Merriwid's maternal maiden aunt Jane, "and as the wife of an army officer you would have a certain social position, you know. I'm not sure that I dislike the idea, Melissa."

"I suppose it's worth considering," said Mrs. Merriwid, reflectively. "He looks very well in his uniform, too, especially the full dress one. At the same time, sweetheart, I might get a colonel on the governor's staff, if I gave my mind to it, and have something that was sure enough prismatic with ostrich feathers thrown in and none of the disadvantages of the military career. And a governor's colonel or a Uniform Rank Potentate of Pocatello can be a bank president or a successful soap manufacturer in private life, which also gives a certain social position and allows one to keep a hired girl and some shreds of reputation."

"I don't think I quite understand that last allusion, my dear," said Aunt Jane.

"That's because you had that attack of neuralgia and couldn't go to the Post with me," explained Mrs. Merriwid. "You see, dearie, we of the army are one big family and we know one another and our little fallings only too well. When one of us army women meets another army woman, the two of us discuss the carryings-on of the rest of us with family freedom. That's one of the disadvantages of army life. Of course the army men know each other well, too, but being men, they are naturally charitable and even generous to each other. If one is promoted, the others are all tickled to pieces about it and admit that he richly deserved it. If you speak of any officer who is supposed to have distinguished himself in any way, the chorus of admiration that arises from his brother officers would warm the cockles of your heart—especially if the distinguished one happens to be a volunteer who never saw the inside of West Point. Yes, strictly turn to the nearest pile of bricks. They've got to be throwing something. And then, you may only get a part of your hero-husband back. If I truly loved Captain Manlicker, it would be a great shock to me to find only about thirty-three and a-third per cent of him left after the cruel war was over. I don't say I wouldn't be proud of his remnants, but I should always feel there was something wanting, even if it were merely a leg.

"Another thing a prudent person will duly ponder before marrying into the army is the danger of our island possessions," continued Mrs. Merriwid, thoughtfully. "There's always a chance that her hero may be sent to the Philippines and come back with a deranged liver. I don't care how bronzed and bearded and interesting he may look or how many honorable scars and medals of honor he's got. If his liver doesn't work the way it ought, a cloud of bilious gloom will descend upon the home and be lifted nevermore. Still that's only a risk. The real obstacles to my union with the gallant captain are unavoidable."

"What are they?" inquired Aunt Jane.

"In the first place, I'd have to accustom myself to riding in an ambulance," replied Mrs. Merriwid. "But that wouldn't be so bad as having to put up with a femme de chambre with a red mustache who chewed tobacco and drank whisky and was originally engaged for plain, manly butchery. That would certainly jar me," concluded Mrs. Merriwid.

Basket of Lively Crabs Cause Great Commotion

PHILADELPHIA—A basket of crabs which were tied to the seat of a motorcycle caused a commotion in the neighborhood of the Episcopal hospital the other day that will long be remembered. Incidentally, it wrecked the motorcycle and landed the rider in the hospital with a fractured skull. And the cause of it all was one crab's dash for freedom and a healthy appetite, who wandered out of the basket, climbed the rider's back and affectionately took hold of his neck. The unexpected attack from the rear caused the rider to lose control of his machine.

sudden and unexpected that Wilson lost all control of the machine and was thrown head foremost to the curb.

A crowd of a hundred persons quickly gathered and Wilson was carried to the hospital, which was but a short distance from the scene of the accident.

Augmented by numerous Sunday strollers, the crowd had assumed proportions that threatened to block traffic, however, in the excitement, overlooking the basket of crabs which had escaped and were scrambling through the throng. Their presence became known when one of them fastened onto the ankle of a pretty girl. Her screams started a stampede that cleared the thoroughfare in record time.

All the Average Plain Little Woman Has to Do tatoes and meat to make hash for breakfast and put a button on my husband's trousers, and set the table for breakfast, so as to save time in the morning, and laid the fire so I wouldn't have anything to do but light it in the morning.

"Then I sort of tidied up my kitchen and seeded some raisins for a cake I wanted to bake the next morning and emptied the water under the ice chest, and went down the cellar to see that the furnace was all right for the night. I brought some apples up from the cellar and peeled them so as to have them ready for something I wanted to make the next morning. Then I wound up the clock and read the morning paper for a few minutes and did three or four little things a woman is apt to do before she goes to bed when she has a family to look after. But nothing to speak of, after all."

Probably, if she had lived in the country she would also have got a lantern and sawed and split enough cord-wood for the next day's fuel.

Man With Pink Neck-Tickers Was Very Touchy

CHICAGO—A luxurious set of bushy pink whiskers loomed in the doorway of Municipal Judge Robinson's courtroom the other day. Behind them was concealed a man who later developments indicated must have been a Republican.

"If that isn't Senator J. Ham Lewis it certainly looks like him," exclaimed Judge Robinson shortly to his clerk.

The clerk craned his neck to see the man sporting the rainbow hued alfalfa. Instead of the peaceful junior senator from Illinois he saw a man advancing with clenched fists toward the court. Judge Robinson believes the man must have been a lip-reader, as the remark about the whiskers had been made in a whisper.

He was so wrought up he attempted to attack the jurist and was expelled from the courtroom only after a lusty struggle with two bailiffs and a clerk.

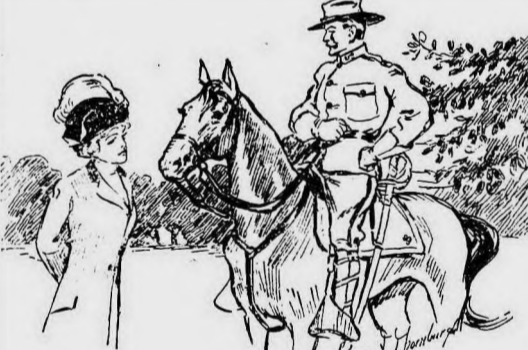

"Where do you get that at?" shouted the offended bush wearer. "Do you think I came in here to be insulted about my whiskers? Judge or no judge, there's nobody can accuse me of looking like any pink whiskered

RED KITTEN WHOLE SHOW

Its Peculiar Shading Attracted Attention at a Recent Exhibition at London, England.

"Have you seen the red kitten?" was the question every other person was asking at the show of the National Cat club at the Crystal Palace.

some of us may be at Fort Sill and others at Fort Sheridan and some at Washington and some at Minnandao, but we are all one big family."

"Of course human nature is human nature anywhere," said Aunt Jane.

"But I think it's a little more so in the army," opined Mrs. Merriwid; "sort of concentrated and narrowed down. Of course it's a gay life with its bugles and its colors flying and its marching and countermarching. It's perfectly lovely to see a thousand legs with but a single movement forming into hollow squares and columns and things when their gallant leader says, 'Hunt!' and 'Harrumph!' I wonder if Captain Manlicker would do any hunting and harrumphing around the house?"

"It's unlikely, I should say," observed Aunt Jane.

"I'd show him some entirely new evolutions if he did," declared Mrs. Merriwid. "I would begin with something in the nature of a frontal attack with a flank movement supported by dynamite, but some of the very pigeon-breasted, turkey-cocked harriers in the army take off their boots and spurs in the halls and crawl upstairs in their stocking feet when they arrive home after hours. I'm told so, at least. It's one thing to oppose martial tramping squadrons and embattled hosts and another to face a justly indignant woman at two o'clock in the morning with a breath of something more than suspicion."

"After all, they are our nation's defenders," urged Aunt Jane.

"True, dearie," assented Mrs. Merriwid. "There's the glory part of it to consider. It would certainly be grand to have a hero husband idolized by his grateful countrymen. The only drawback to that sort of thing is that as soon as the grateful countrymen run out of bouquets, they in-

COCA COLA HABIT, A GHOST.

We have all heard of ghosts, but none of us have ever seen one. It's the same way with coca cola "frends;" you can hear about them but you might search for them until doom's day and you would never find one. Physicians who have treated hundreds of thousands of drug-habit cases, including opium, morphine, cocaine, alcohol, etc., say that they have never seen a case where the use of Coca-Cola has so fastened itself upon the individual as to constitute a habit in the true sense of the word. Although millions of glasses of Coca-Cola are drunk every year, no Coca-Cola friends have ever made themselves visible at the doors of the sanitariums for the treatment of drug habits.

The Coca-Cola habit is analogous to the beefsteak habit and to the strawberry habit and the ice cream habit. People drink Coca-Cola first because they see it advertised and thereafter because it tastes good and refreshes their minds and bodies. They drink it when they can get it and contentedly do without it when they can't get it. They never ever witnessed the ravings of a real drug fiend when deprived of his drug, if you had ever observed the agony he suffers, you would never again be so unfair as to mention Coca-Cola in the same breath with the "habit-forming" drugs.—Adv.

BIRD'S TROUBLE AT AN END

Fancier's Pet, Anticipated Winner of Many Prizes, Most Effectually "Isolated."

Here is a poultry story which comes from the country. While away on a holiday a fancier who owns some valuable specimens instructed a servant—a rather new country girl—in the feeding of the birds and gave strict directions that she was to communicate with him immediately in the event of any of them showing signs of ailment.

One day he received a letter stating that a bird of which he had had great expectations as a prize winner was unwell, and from the symptoms described the fancier concluded that it was a case of roup—a very infectious trouble. Accordingly he wired to the girl:

"Isolate bird at once. Important. Home this evening."

"Where did you put the bird, Mary?" he asked as soon as he arrived.

"It's in the coal ole," said she.

"You isolated it at once, of course?" he added.

"Well, I didn't," replied the girl, simply. "I got Jim to do it. 'E just gie it one whack w' the broomstock, an' it was all over in a twinkling!"—London Tit-Bits Trouble Easily Got Over.

Zeuxis, the celebrated artist, of ancient Greece, had painted the cherries so true to life that the birds came and pecked at them.

Of course, the rich pork packer who had paid $50,000 for the canvas couldn't stand for that.

"Paint in a scraewrow!" he commanded, with an air of one accustomed to meet emergencies.—Puck.

COULD POINT TO ONE VIRTUE

Husband's Comparison of Wife's Cigarette With Himself Gave Her Opportunity for "Shot."

President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard said at a dinner in his honor in Chicago:

"Early marriages are the best. It is neither good for the man nor for the community that he should wait until he is twenty-eight years old before marrying."

President Lowell paused a moment and then, smiling, he continued:

"Another trouble about late marriages is that the man's habits—his bad habits—are formed, and it's hard to break him of them. You know, perhaps, the story of the cigarette?"

"A man of the old-fashioned 'manly man' type—the soft, full-stomached type that drinks too much, belongs to too many lodges, and must be superior to woman in everything—this man took umbrage over his wife's cigarette, the one modest cigarette that she took after dinner, though he, of course, smoked like a chimney all day long. And so he said one evening:

"I believe you think more of that nasty, poisonous cigarette than you do of me, your husband."

"Well, dear," his wife replied, smiling and blowing a cloud, "I can't say my cigarette, you know, from going out."

TOO HASTY IN HIS ACTION

Senator Root Finds Lesson for Statesman in Good Story of the Green Sailor.

Senator Root, at a luncheon in Washington, said, apropos of a new move against the trusts:

"I hope that we shan't go after all our big, successful business too hastily, too ignorantly. I hope that business success won't be treated like the old man in the story."

"There's a story about a ship. A sailor fell overboard from his ship and the captain shouted to a green hand:

"Throw a buoy over!"

"But the sailor wasn't rescued. He drowned. After all hope of rescue was gone, the captain, reviewing the efforts that had been made, said to the green hand:

"Did you throw that buoy over when I told you?"

"No, sir," said the green hand, "I couldn't find a buoy, so I threw an old man over."

Just Like All the Rest.

"But, doctor," she said, "I want to raise my baby with all the modern improvements."

"I don't see a single modern improvement about him," the prosaic old man replied.

Its Nature.

"Would you put any reliance on an opinion that it is healthy to eat candy?"

"Well, it may not be a true opinion, but it's certainly a candied one."

Going Away.

"You seem sad. Family going away for the summer?"

"No; the cook."

IT'S HARD TO WORK

It's torture to work with a lame, aching back. Get rid of it. Attack the cause. Probably it's weak kidneys.

Heavy or conching work is hard on the kidneys, anyway, and once the kidneys become inflamed and congested, the trouble keeps getting worse.

The danger of running into gravel, dropsy or Bright's disease is serious. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, a fine remedy for backache or bad kidneys.

An Illinois Case

James E. Povner, Rossville, Ill., says: "I was laid up with kidney trouble. My back pained so I couldn't move. The kidney, however, was in terrible condition. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me in short order and for four years the trouble has never returned."

Where 'Tis Safe To Buy.
Did you ever stop to think that it is much safer to buy an article that is largely advertised than one which is not? The firm which spends a large amount of money to establish a reputation for a certain thing cannot afford to make it otherwise than satisfactory. It must please the user, or else it will not be bought the second time. The same is true of a merchant who spends money for advertising to induce you to come to his store. He must treat you satisfactorily in order to make his advertising a profitable investment. You will make few mistakes in buying goods which are largely advertised, or from the firm who advertises.

Holeproof Hose?

Yes—They are essential for a comfortable outing.
The ladies like them because they are protection against holes in dancing, golf, tennis and walking besides the resting qualities to the feet, viz. softness, silky comfortable feeling.
The men like them because they are the only real all around hose on the market.
They are Strictly Guaranteed that six pairs will require no darning for six months. Think of that Mr. Bachelor, a perfect confidence in your hose from now, August 1st until February 1st, 1914. What is that worth to you? And they cost no more than the inferior brands.

All classes of people are buying them with satisfaction, including mail carriers, farmers, clerks, bankers, laborers, merchants and business men. Why? Because they have tried the rest and found that it is best to "Wear Holeproof Hose and Find the Reason"

This trade mark on the toe of each hose protects you from imitations. Insist on it.

This Store has a pure food law of its own

It applies to everything, and everything must live up to the provisions of this law. You might think that some things (Canned Goods, for instance) would have to be taken on trust, but an observing grocer soon learns where each brand of these goods belongs, no matter what the labels may say, and acts accordingly.

The moral of all this is that this might be a good place to come when you want pure food eatables.
