YES—SOMETHING IT IS—BUT LOOK OUT WHEN WHEN THE "BUMP" COMES.

A man may go on quite a while spending every dollar he earns as soon, or even before he gets it—and have a great time doing it, but eventually, "thorns" will show.

The "rainy day" is bound to come sooner or later, when the mis spent dimes and dollars would come into mighty good play.

The time to throw off the spending habit is now—start by depositing just a little each week in this bank, and see how much more comfortable and independent you will feel as the habit grows and your dollars multiply.

Memories of the Past

In This Paper Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

On Thursday of last week Ed. Dean raised a very nice Republican pole and run up three flags—Harrison and Morton, Littlefield and Hibbard Baker.

H. B. Bennett and C. L. Wilcox on Tuesday bet ten dollars each on the result of the election, Bennett placing his confidence in Cleveland.

Mr. Kellogg's two new houses on east Ann Arbor street near the fair grounds are nearly completed.

C. B. Crosby's beautiful residence was brilliantly illuminated from top to bottom Wednesday evening. The yard came in for its share, about fifty Chinese lanterns and other transparencies making a very pretty show. Several appropriate mottoes, appeared in the windows.

During Thursday night of last week our village was again visited by burglars, who entered the Plymouth National bank by boring through the front door and breaking the fastening. When inside they drilled through the vault door and broke the lock thus gaining entrance to the vault. They then attempted to break open the safe in the vault, but were unsuccessful. The safe is an excellent one and held its worth in spite of their efforts. The damage done to the bank was about twenty-five dollars. The safe has a time lock, which they disturbed so that it was impossible to open it at first and an expert from the Detroit safe works was sent for, but before he arrived Mr. Sherwood had it open. They also visited H. C. Bennett's grocery store, where they pried open the front door and secured about one hundred cigars and what change there was in the drawer—one or two dollars. The postoffice, separated from Bennett's store by a light door was also entered and about two dollars in pennies taken. They also entered the office of the Markham Manufacturing Co. where they had no trouble in opening the safe, a card containing the combination of the lock always hanging on the knob of the safe door, no money being kept in the safe. By this time it was getting pretty well towards morning and they entered Wm. Smitherman's barn taking his horse and skeleton wagon and started east. They were tracked eastward toward Detroit, being seen by numerous persons on the road but were lost track of when near the city and Mr. Smitherman was still looking for the horse some time after its whereabouts was known here. The party consisted of three persons who drove into Conrad Clippert's brick yard in Springwells; took the harness from the horse and put it in the buggy and covered it with a blanket; then putting the halter on the horse and turning it loose, they skipped for parts unknown. The amount of wealth they secured hardly paid them for the venture. The animal was found by some one at the brick yard and placed in a barn there until they learned where it belonged.

The annual election of officers for the Presbyterian Sabbath-school, was last Sunday. T. C. Clark was chosen superintendent; Mrs. Mary Sly, vice-superintendent; Bert Bennett, secretary and treasurer; Edward Hough, librarian; Miss Mary Andrews, organist; Bennie Tyler and Geo. H. Wallace, assistants. All children and parents who do not go elsewhere are cordially invited and welcomed. Let all the children be gathered into some Sunday-school.

The Prohibitionists had the last night in Amity hall, before election. A Fisk and Brooks banner had been strung across the street. The hall tastefully decorated with flags and flowers, and on the platform was an organ. An impromptu choir was made up, which was an agreeable diversion. A quartet of little boys was loudly applauded. Rev. Chas. Conley and Lemuel Clute were the speakers, both of whom gave excellent speeches. The hall was crowded, and the audience gave great attention to what was said. It was after tea when the meeting closed. Rev. Robertson opened the proceedings with prayer, and Rev. Wallace closed with the benediction.

Declare War on Colds.
A crusade of education which aims "that common colds may become uncommon within the next generation" has been begun by prominent New York physicians. Here is a list of the "don'ts" which the doctors say will prevent the annual visitation of the cold:
"Don't sit in a draughty car."
"Don't sleep in hot rooms."
"Don't avoid the fresh air."
"Don't stuff yourself at meal time. Overeating reduces your resistance."
To which we would add—when you take a cold get rid of it as quickly as possible. It is accomplish that you will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy an excellent. Sold by all dealers.—Adv.

Bentley-Smith
A quiet wedding took place at the home of Mrs. Mary Smith at 8:30 o'clock Monday evening, November 3, when her daughter Irah, was united in marriage to Dr. James D. Bentley of Detroit, Rev. Bell of the Baptist church officiating. Only the immediate families of the bride and groom and a few friends were present. After a short wedding trip to New York they will be at home to their friends, after December 1st, in the Bigelow apartments, Trumbull avenue, Detroit.

PREPARING FOR THE STOCK SHOW
Preliminaries of the International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago, Nov. 29 to Dec. 8, have been completed, entries are being tabulated and the groundwork laid for the best display of food animals and draft horses ever congregated in America or elsewhere. Entries largely outnumber those of previous years and the galaxy of pure-bred and fat live stock to be assembled may never meet in the competitive arena again.

Construction gangs are busy increasing show facilities, buildings are being enlarged or altered to accommodate the expansion of the exposition and unsurpassed accommodation will be furnished both exhibitors and spectators.

In consequence of impending shortage of beef, pork and mutton, producers all over the United States and Canada are devising ways and means to expand production and on this account unusual interest is being taken in the 1913 exposition. The imperative lesson of economy in production will be taught forcibly and effectively, by the men who are now engaged in adapting their methods to changing conditions. New feeding and breeding problems will be presented in the stage of at least partial solution at this gathering.

The 1913 International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago will be so disheartening that both those seeking instruction and the nation will be well rewarded by attending.

The Epworth League Banquet

The Epworth League banquet to be held Tuesday evening, November 11th, at the Grange hall, promises to be a very enjoyable occasion. The program committee has secured P. W. Voorhies for toastmaster and the following gentlemen are to respond to toasts:

Prof. W. D. Henderson, of the U. of M. Dr. L. H. Jones, Ex-president State Normal college. Prof. W. B. Arbough, Supt. Ypsilanti Public Schools. Edgar A. Guest, of the Detroit Free Press. They have also secured Mr. Harold Jarvis, Michigan's favorite vocal soloist who will be accompanied by Frank Stevens, assistant to Victor Benham. Mr. Stevens will also render a piano solo by Palestrini. Violin and piano selections will be rendered during the serving of the banquet. The committee are preparing a menu equal to that of former banquets and are sparing no pains to make it a delightful occasion for all who attend.

Wool batts $1.50 and $2.00, at Rauch's.

The reason why you should trade at the Central Grocery, explained in our ad.

The South Lyon Herald is agitating the installation of a water works system in that town.

About forty ladies attended the thimble party, given by the Presbyterian ladies at Mrs. Will Kaiser's home last Wednesday afternoon.

Sixteen ladies attended the thimble party given by the ladies of the Lutheran church at Mrs. H. J. Fisher's home last Wednesday afternoon.

Henry Heide has moved into the rooms over Carl Heide's green house, formerly occupied by the Bachelor Boys. The Bachelor Boys are fitting up rooms over R. W. Shingleton's store.

Wm. Addison, brakeman on the P. M. road, fell from a train at the station last Tuesday evening and sprained his ankle. Dr. A. E. Patterson was called and Mr. Addison was taken to Conrad Springer's home, and Wednesday was removed to his home in Toledo.

"Ishmael" a dramatization of Mrs. Southworth's popular novel is to be the vehicle which the Holden Players, who are appearing at the Avenue theater will use next week. Meanwhile, the production of "Tempest and Sunshine," which is an adaptation of that novel which enjoyed a wide circulation two generations ago, Mary Jane Holmes greatest effort at romantic writing, is proving an irresistible lodestone for a good section of the theater loving public of Detroit and the towns and cities within the forty mile radius.

The village council met in regular session Monday evening and not a great deal of business was transacted outside of the regular routine work. A permission was granted the Standard Oil Co. to erect storage tanks near the Pere Marquette depot. A committee from the fire department were present and presented a petition asking that firemen be paid $1.00 for attending a fire, and 75c. for false alarms and 50c. for attending meetings of the department. The committee on fire department was instructed to meet with the committee from the fire department on Monday evening, when the matter will be more fully discussed.

The Citizens' Entertainment Course opened last Tuesday evening at the opera house with an extra number. Dr. W. D. Henderson of Ann Arbor, professor of physics in the University gave a very interesting lecture on the "Boy Problem." Dr. Henderson gave many sound truths, mixed with mirth, which held the audience from beginning to end. The house was filled, nearly every seat having been sold, and the people of Plymouth are anticipating a very interesting course for the coming winter. Dr. Henderson will again come before the people of our village Tuesday evening, Nov. 11th, when he will respond to a toast at the Epworth League banquet.

WINNERS IN NEW YORK CITY ELECTIONS

JOHN PURROY MITCHEL Elected Mayor.

WILLIAM SULZER Elected to Assembly.

TAMMANY IS CRUSHED IN CITY AND COUNTY

MITCHEL WINNER BY OVER 100,000 MAJORITY OVER EDWARD E. McCALL, THE TAMMANY CANDIDATE.

WILLIAM SULZER, FORMER GOVERNOR OF NEW YORK, WAS ELECTED TO THE ASSEMBLY.

Walsh Wins Massachusetts, Fielder, New Jersey, and Stuart Wins in Virginia; Three States Choose Democrat Governors.

New York—In three states—Massachusetts, New Jersey and Virginia—where gubernatorial elections were held the Democrats were successful by large pluralities, and in Maryland the Democrats elected a United States senator and congressman, and late returns indicated Democratic gains with a probability of a two-thirds majority in both houses of the state legislature.

Virginia furnished an unopposed election for governor. Henry C. Stuart being elected by a practical unanimous vote. The four-cornered fight in Massachusetts resulted in the election of David I. Walsh, Democrat, and present lieutenant governor, by a plurality of more than 60,000 votes over Charles S. Bird, Progressive, Augustus P. Gardner, Republican, and Eugene N. Foss, Independent, who was three times elected to the office as a Democrat.

The triumph of the Fusion ticket in the city of New York was assured early Tuesday evening, although it required later returns to show the overwhelming defeat of the Democratic ticket. Besides John Purroy Mitchel, Fusion nominee for mayor, the allied parties elected three borough presidents, president of the board of aldermen and comptroller, thereby gaining control of the board of estimates, the financial governing body of the city.

Former Governor William Sulzer was returned to Albany as member of the assembly from the Sixth district. The Sulzer impeachment hurt the Democratic ticket. The former governor declared his election was his vindication.

Jersey Elects Fielder. In New York state the Republicans gained control of the assembly by a good working majority, but the result for chief justice and associate justice of the court of appeals remained in doubt at late hour, with the Republicans claiming the election of both of their candidates for these places.

The New Jersey returns indicated the election of James F. Fielder, Democrat, by a plurality of 5,000 over Edward C. Staham, Republican, a former governor, and Everett Colby, Progressive. Late returns also indicated a gain in the assembly, which the Democrats will probably control by a vote of 49 to 2. The Democrats will control the senate 13 to 2.

Democrats were victorious in three of the four congressional districts of the east, where elections were held, electing Jacob H. Cantor in the Twentieth New York district, George W. Lott to succeed the late Timothy D. Sullivan in the Thirteenth New York district and Charles P. Coady in the Third Maryland district. Calvin D. Falgout, Republican, won in the Third Massachusetts district over M. Ford O'Connell, Democrat, by 159 plurality.

Fusion Wins in Philadelphia. The state election was held in the Pennsylvania capital on Tuesday.

RESULTS OF VARIOUS ELECTIONS TUESDAY

NEW YORK CITY: Fusion sweeps metropolis, electing John Purroy Mitchel mayor over Edward E. McCall, the Tammany candidate, by more than 100,000 and retaining control of the board of estimates, which holds the city purse strings.

WILLIAM SULZER, impeached as governor, hails his election as assemblyman from the Sixth district on the Progressive ticket as a complete vindication of removal from the state house.

MASSACHUSETTS: Lieutenant-Governor David I. Walsh, Democrat, elected governor by plurality of about 60,000 over Augustus P. Gardner, Republican; Charles S. Bird, Progressive, and Governor Eugene N. Foss, Independent.

NEW JERSEY: James F. Fielder, supported by President Wilson and other administration leaders, elected governor by estimated plurality of 15,000 with former Governor Stokes, Republican, second, the Evening Post Progressive, third, The Democrat will control the legislature.

VIRGINIA: Henry C. Stuart, chosen governor together with an entire state ticket, Republican, and Progressives having declined to name candidates because of inability to agree on a united ticket.

ILLINOIS: Voting of women in more than a score of towns in southern Illinois results in a slight increase in prohibition territory, the women being overwhelmingly in favor of the "dry" tickets.

SENATORIAL: Maryland—Blair Lee, Democrat, succeeds late Senator Isidor Rayner, Democrat.

Twentieth New York—Jacob H. Cantor, Democrat, succeeds Burton Francis Harrison, Democrat, recently appointed governor of Philippines.

Third Maryland—Charles P. Coady, Democrat.

Third Massachusetts—Calvin D. Falgout, Republican, succeeds William H. Willder, Republican.

two judges of the superior court. Of the four candidates, it is probable that Judge John J. Henderson, of Crawford county, and James Alcorn, Philadelphia, were elected. In Philadelphia, the Republicans defeated the Fusionists backed by the present city administration, electing Samuel P. Rotan.

Brand Whitlock Defeated. From Ohio came dispatches saying Brand Whitlock, Progressive mayor of Toledo, was overwhelmingly defeated by Carl Keller, Republican. Meager dispatches from other Ohio cities indicate that the Republicans are again in second place, making all gains that were made over the Democrats.

Democrats were generally successful in the Indiana elections while the Progressives received crushing defeats wherever they failed to combine with the Republicans in local elections.

U. S. AWAITS HUERTA ANSWER

PRESIDENT WILSON IS EXPECTING MEXICAN DICTATOR TO ACT QUICKLY.

MESSAGE TO CONGRESS MAY DISCLOSE SCHEME.

War May Be Being Prepared—Army Prepared to Concentrate and Four Battleships Arrive at Vera Cruz.

Washington—The probable outcome of the present impasse with regard to the Mexican situation will be a special message to congress in which President Wilson will formally lay before that body the entire Mexican situation.

This, of course, is contingent on President Huerta's refusal to eliminate himself as requested in the recent representations conveyed to him by Charge D'Affairs O'Shaughnessy. There is a quiet, business like bustle about the war and navy offices, which betokens action of one sort or another as imminent. In a statement given out by Secretary of State Bryan, he denies that an ultimatum has been sent to Mexico.

The impression prevails here that while the dispatches from Mexico City probably attribute an exaggerated form to the attitude of the United States, President Wilson has undoubtedly informed Huerta that while his retirement from the presidency is wanted by this government the accession of General Blanquet will be just as objectionable as would be the retention of the place by Huerta.

It is the general opinion in Washington that a few days will see the Mexican situation brought to a head. Huerta must soon decide whether he will yield or defy the United States. In the latter event there will be no course open to President Wilson but to resort to force to impose his will upon Mexico.

Judge Lindsey is Vindicated.

Denver.—After six weeks of search for proofs and many sessions given over to quizzing of witnesses who refused to indorse their statements with their signatures, the committee appointed by the Taxpayers' Association to probe the record of Judge Lindsey of the juvenile court, which has formulated and signed a report which is a complete vindication. Judge Lindsey was accused by the Woman's Protective league of mismanagement and lax methods in conducting the juvenile court.

Governor Ralston Refuses Aid.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Gov. Samuel M. Ralston emphatically refused Saturday to take any action in the street car strike, which completely tied up the service here. He told Mayor Shank, who admitted that the situation was beyond control by the city authorities, that the police were not doing their full duty and that if they would not do their duty to appeal to Sheriff Theodore Porteus, of Marion county, for aid.

Great Coal Fields are Sold.

Charleston, W. Va.—Control of the vast output of the New River coal field amounting to 7,000,000 tons annually, passed from American to English hands when, according to advices received here by interested coal operators from London, England, negotiations for the sale of 500,000 acres in Fayette, Raleigh and Nicholas counties to an English syndicate were completed by the New Virginia syndicate, headed by Morgan Davis, of Scranton, Pa.

The new Ingham county sanatorium for tuberculosis patients was opened at Mason Monday.

"Honest men" are always anxious to be scrutinized," wrote Governor Woodbridge N. Ferris in response to a question by Banking Commissioner E. H. Doyle asking his opinion, as a banker, on the department's action in verifying depositors' balances in banks under the supervision of the department.

The state tax commission has reported to the Saginaw supervisors the final tax roll for the county, which is $73,777,150. Last year it was $46,937,233. This is an increase of $10,000,000 for the city, and nearly $17,000,000 for the county. In 26 out of 27 townships the local assessors' figures were raised, in some instances 100 per cent.

United States Senator Charles E. Townsend was the principal speaker at the ceremonies attending the laying of the cornerstone of the Carnegie library at Owosso.

Fire destroyed Steiner's meat market and two adjoining buildings, at Cheboygan. The loss is estimated at $12,000. Elsie Woods, volunteer fireman, was burned about the feet when he was overcome by heat and smoke. He was unconscious for two hours.

Wilson Lapine, 35 years old, a native of Mackinac Island, while attempting to jump from the City of Alpena missed his footing and was crushed between the boat and the dock. Death was instantaneous. His one life in Cheboygan, where he leaves a wife and five children.

PLATE-GLASS SHELVES BEST

Have Many Advantages, Which the Good Housekeeper Will Be Quick to Recognize.

Plate-glass shelves are much used over wash basins in bathrooms, as they look well and are easily cleaned. If you use one, be sure to set it on a slight angle, sloping toward the wall, so that articles placed upon it will not slip off into the wash basin and break it. A small washer placed under the lower arm of the brackets will give the desired slope.

When washing saucers a little borax put into the last rinsing water is very good to make the saucers glossy when ironed.

Shantung silk is popular for outdoor coats, and is usually lined with union. These coats are fascinating when trimmed with lace of deep ecru, of white or cream.

When matches are scratched upon light paint or woodwork, they leave an unsightly mark. This may be removed by rubbing the stain with a cut lemon.

To remove finger marks from varnished furniture sweet oil is very good; but kerosene used on waxed or oiled furniture gives better results.

An extremely pretty dress of natural colored linen is made with a panel extending from the round neck to the hem in front. The neck and sleeves and finished with a scallop, button-hole, while a wide black velvet girdle gives the long waist-line effect. It is slipped through buttonhole openings either side of the panel and fastens in a bow with ends in back.

RECIPES THAT SAVE MONEY

Writer Shows How Same Effect May Be Obtained With Less Expenditure.

What may be done in the way of economical cutting of recipes may be seen from the following:

Coffee Cake (original recipe)—One and one-half cups of brown sugar, one cup of molasses, one egg, one-quarter pound of citrons, one teaspoon of soda, two pounds of raisins, one teaspoon of cloves, one-half cup of butter, one cup of strong coffee, four cups of flour, one tablespoonful of cinnamon.

This was changed to read as follows: One and one-half cups of brown sugar, one cup of strong coffee, one-half cup of butter (part butter and part lard), one cup of raisins, one teaspoon of cinnamon, one-half teaspoon of cloves, two teaspoons of baking powder, two heaping cups of flour.

Baked in a loaf this cake, without eggs or milk, was delicious. A recipe for cornbread read like this: Two heaping cups of cornmeal, one cup of flour, 2 1/2 cups of sweet milk, one tablespoonful of lard, two tablespoons of sugar, two teaspoons of baking powder, one teaspoon of salt, two eggs.

The eggs were omitted from this recipe and either sweet or sour milk was used, soda being substituted for baking powder.—Pictorial Review.

Novel Ice Cream Freezer

An ice cream freezer has been introduced by an English firm, which, it is claimed, begins delivering a continuous supply of ice cream within thirty seconds after the turning process is begun. The operation is directly opposite to that of the ordinary freezer, the ice and brine being placed in the cylinder, and the cream in the case, so that the lower part of the cylinder is submerged in it. A thin film of cream is frozen to the cylinder as it revolves, and is scraped off and deposited in a receptacle by means of the small chute.

Pickled Beets.

Pickled beets are made by selecting half-grown beets and boiling in lightly salted water until tender. Remove the skins without putting in water, as is usually done, so that the bright red color can be retained. Have ready enough boiling-hot vinegar to cover the beets allowing one pint of sugar to each quart of vinegar, and a tablespoonful of mixed spices. Fill sterilized, wide-mouthed jars as full as possible of the beets, pour in the boiling vinegar and seal.

Emergency Dessert.

Make an ordinary one-egg gingerbread, bake in two thin layers or bake in one and split. Fill with grape or currant jelly and cover top with whipped cream. Serve while the gingerbread is warm. This is fine, quick, easy to make and economical.

Fruit Stains on Linen.

Smear the stains over with some pure glycerine. Leave the linen for an hour, and then wash in warm, soapy water. Repeat a second time if necessary.

MILLIONAIRE PACKER IS DEAD

PENALTY OF BUSINESS STRESS PAID BY EDWARD MORRIS AT HIS CHICAGO HOME.

SUFFERED NERVOUS BREAK-DOWN ONE YEAR AGO.

Brother Called From Italy Only Reached Bedside Just As the Sick Man's Life Ended.

Chicago—Edward Morris, president of Morris & Co., and one of the wealthiest packers in the world, died at his home on Drexel boulevard early Monday.

EDWARD MORRIS.

Mr. Morris had been ill for several months. Although his condition was admitted to be critical at times, it was denied at his home that there was any real cause for worry. He died at dawn, but news of his death was not given out by relatives until several hours later.

Word was sent to the Blackstone hotel to Ira Nelson Morris, brother and business partner of the dead packer, that death was expected at any time. He arrived at the Morris mansion a few minutes before his brother passed away. He had been called from Italy because of his brother's condition.

Until an hour before his death, Mr. Morris was conscious. All the members of his family were at the bedside when he died.

Mr. Morris was born in Chicago 47 years ago and was the oldest son of the late Nelson Morris, pioneer packer. After suffering a nervous breakdown about a year ago he was obliged to give up active business. He spent last winter traveling in California in search of health, but when he returned last spring his friends noted that he had not been benefited by the trip.

Just after celebrating his seventieth birthday Alfred Skipper, a Schoolcraft farmer, fell in his barn and was so severely injured he cannot live.

At the annual convention of the third district W. C. T. U. at Mason, Maude Holmes, of Eaton Rapids, was elected president. Grand Lodge was chosen as the place for the next convention.

Postmaster H. T. McGrath has received an order discontinuing the Chester postoffice after November 1. After that date the Chester patrons will receive their mail on rural No. 7 out of Charlotte.

Arrangements were made at a meeting of more than 300 Pere Marquette strikers in Saginaw to continue the strike against the railroad and for the purchase of fuel for the use of strikers during the winter. A vote was taken as to whether the strike should continue, and more than 99 per cent voted to stay out.

Two attempts were made by parents to take their children by kidnaping or force from the Grand Rapids juvenile home, one attempt proving successful. While Matron Regester was absent James Hurley visited the home and, after knocking Miss Jennie Neumann, an assistant, to the floor, took his two sons, 13 and 11, and escaped. Because she feared her son was to be detained at the juvenile home indefinitely, Mrs. Tich Jennings made an attempt to kidnap her 12-year-old son, but the effort proved unavailing.

The University of Michigan entertained distinguished guests from Ohio Monday. They were Gov. Cox and other state officials; President Thompson, of Ohio university; trustees of the university; and Walter Sears, chairman of Ohio regents.

The corner stone of Owosso's new Carnegie library was laid Tuesday afternoon, with the Grand Lodge of Michigan, F. & A. M., in charge of the ceremonies. All Masonic lodges in the county had been invited to participate. Dr. J. O. Parker acted as marshal of the day.

AUTO CRASH KILLS THREE

Motor Party at Bay City Ends in Tragedy When Machine Runs Into Row of Trees.

Bay City, Mich.—Alex. Turpin, night clerk at the Forest City hotel, died at the West Side hospital Saturday morning from injuries received a few hours earlier in a motor car accident in which Marvin Luke and George Jones of Detroit were instantly killed. Olive Lee, Kate Papinski and Mary Williams, dining room girls, were all badly bruised, and Miss Lee sustained a broken arm. J. Grealley, driver of the machine, and C. F. Dittman, also of Detroit, escaped without injury.

Creely invited the party for a ride, promising to bring them back in an hour. They were driving in Marquette avenue when the machine left the pavement and ran into a row of trees "sideswiping" two or three of them before it stopped, a mass of wreckage with the victims caught beneath it. Luke was crushed under the steering apparatus and Jones had a fractured skull.

The Detroit men were employed by the Vinton Co. and had been engaged in decorating Trinity Episcopal church here for several weeks.

Receipts Show Little Decrease.

Washington.—Although the new tariff act with its lowered rates of duty has been in effect practically a month, the customs receipts have so far shown little falling off. According to the treasury statement November 1, the customs receipts for October amounted to $30,138,000, just about $80,000 less than those of October, 1912. The deficit for the fiscal year to date, the statement shows, is $5,757,627, about $3,900,000 more than the deficit at the corresponding period last year.

Pension payments under the Sherwood act are apparently largely responsible for the larger deficit. The payments in 1912 through October amounted to about $52,500,000 and for the same period this year nearly $57,000,000, an increase of more than $4,000,000 in this one disbursement item.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

The sum of $15,000 was voted by the Wexford county supervisors for the building of state reward roads in 1914.

Hal Warner, 21 years old, of Kalamazoo, is dead as the result of being hurt in a football game. The boy's heart was injured by a fall, say physicians.

At the bankruptcy hearing in the case of the defunct Fox & Mason Furniture Co., of Corunna, it was decided to sell the plant to the highest bidder, Nov. 19.

The three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stevens, of Rochester, was burned to death in an upper room of the family home. The child was playing alone and it is believed she got hold of matches and set her clothing afire.

The law making it a misdemeanor to have dogs in the woods during the deer-hunting season will be rigidly enforced from now on, according to William R. Oates, state game warden. Dogs found running at large will be shot on sight.

Carl Pearsall, 13 years old, son of a farmer east of Benton Harbor, while hunting with other boys, fell from a stump on which he was standing and in the fall discharged the gun, the full charge entering his breast. He died a few minutes later.

Thomas Roberts, one of the four survivors of the 15 men who were in the cage that dropped from the top of the Jones & Laughlin mine shaft to the bottom in 1907, a distance of 662 feet, died at Iron River. Roberts never walked after the accident on account of injuries sustained.

Precautions for the stilling and care of cows during the winter have been summed up on printed instructions and are being distributed to the farmers of the state by State Dairy and Food Commissioner Helme. The instructions make clear the importance of clean stalls in relation to pure milk.

The Michigan Central railroad has announced that it intends to construct new car shops and build a new freight depot at Bay City and that ground will be broken in a few weeks. The work will cost more than $500,000. The road has just spent about three-quarters of a million for new round houses and yards at this point.

President W. S. Linton, Saginaw board of trade, has appointed a committee of 15 to promote a campaign for pure water. The common council committee has started a movement to obtain a filtration plant, and both business and municipal bodies promise to unite so the Saginaw public shall not depend on corner pumps for drinking water.

Helen Nuerninger, 17 months old, of Saginaw, playing while her mother was doing the family washing Monday, upset a boiler of hot water, hit herself, and died Tuesday from the burns. The sum of $15,000 was voted by the Wexford county supervisors for the building of state reward roads in Wexford county in 1914. The Wexford County Good Roads association will pay $7,000 toward good roads in the county. It is estimated that eight miles of reward roads can be constructed in Wexford in 1914.

The SUITORS OF Mrs. MERRID BY KENNETH HARRIS

MELISSA ENLIGHTENS HER AUNT JANE.

"Why, Melissa Merrid!" exclaimed Aunt Jane, with a squeal of astonishment.

The vision of loveliness in the particular smart traveling gown to whom she had opened the door squealed responsively, and the two embraced with the utmost energy of fond affection, almost regardless of crumpling. Then Aunt Jane pulled her niece within and into a painfully neat reception room, where she indulged herself with another hug and again exclaimed, "Why, Melissa Merrid!"

"You're away off, dearie," said the younger woman, smiling, as she unfastened her smart jacket. "Two more guesses coming, auntie, and just to help you out, the Melissa part is correct."

Aunt Jane stared and gradually absorbed Melissa's costume to its most minute detail. As gradually, the stupendous significance of it dawned upon her.

"You don't mean to tell me—!" "Mrs. James Winterbury Victor," said Melissa. "At high noon on the sixteenth instant, the Rev. Boanerges Narroth officiating, and he was so near about it, you can't imagine! Talk about your sanctified salutes! Right in my parlor, auntie. Even Jim admitted it was too sweet for anything, and Jim never was strong for Mr. Narroth."

"I can't believe it," said Aunt Jane. "Had I a heart for falsehood framed, I wouldn't attempt to impose on you, dearie," said Melissa. "It's the sol-

Melissa interrupted with a giggle. "I don't see anything to laugh at," observed Aunt Jane, with some acidity, "except that you were afraid Mr. Caplas would be too argumentative, and I've heard Mr. Victor argue by the hour."

"It's the only way that you can convince people, dearie," said Melissa. "And you didn't like the idea of Mr. Narroth because a minister's duties brought him into close association with the women of his congregation. Mr. Victor, as a real estate agent, will also have professional relations with women, my dear. They may call him up over the telephone as they do Dr. Hilly."

"I don't mind in the least," declared Melissa. "Jim's different, and if he did take it into his head to flirt, I modestly opine that I could cope with the situation ably if not brilliantly, and by the time I got through with my coping, Jimmie dear would be pretty well saturated with penitential tears. Don't contract a case of insomnia on that account, auntie. Anything more?"

"You aren't offended, are you, my love?" inquired Aunt Jane, anxiously. "You see I was wondering, that's all."

"Why wonder?" said Melissa. "You dear thing, I don't mind a particle. Go right on telling me what you're wondering about."

"If you don't mind, then, I understand he's not very well-to-do," continued Aunt Jane, "and I've heard people say that he was rather derogatory with the former Mrs. Victor, and then his tastes are more Bohemian than Mr. Prost's and he has Mr. Stoxan's and awful truth. We thought it best not to have any fuss or foolishness, Jim and I, so we never said nothing to nobody. Of course we haven't quite as many cut glass pickle dishes and solid silver sugar spoons as we might have had otherwise, but we reasoned that what we've already acquired at our previous weddings made quite a fair-sized collection. Jim said he didn't believe in working any one graft too often."

"I thought you were firmly and unalterably opposed to any idea of re-marrying for several years to come," said Aunt Jane.

"So I was," admitted Melissa; "but I hadn't talked it over with Jim at that time. You see, auntie dear, he was firmly and unalterably opposed to waiting."

"Oh," said Aunt Jane. "But Mr. Victor, Melissa, you said nothing on earth would induce you to marry a widower."

"Not the ordinary kind of a widower," said Melissa. "Jim isn't the ordinary kind, though, and then, after all, widowers are much nicer than bachelors after they get to be a certain age. No really attractive man ever gets to be thirty without marrying somebody; the pressure's too strong. Jim was forced into it at twenty-five."

"But—er—I would hardly consider Mr. Victor a—well, a handsome man," said Aunt Jane, timidly, "and there's that mole on his cheek. You know how you objected to Mr. Merrid's mole."

"It wasn't a mole. It was a vein," said Melissa, calmly. "And as his nose, which is different altogether, I think Jim's mole is too cute for anything. As for 'handsome,' heaven preserve me from a handsome man! Men are considered enough without beauty, goodness knows, and I batter myself I have good looks enough to keep up a tolerably fair family average."

fondness for the pleasures of the table. You know, dear, I haven't any doubt that Mr. Victor has many admirable qualities, but when I think of what you have hitherto considered—er—objectionable—in other gentlemen and seem to think trivial in Mr. Victor—er—well, you know."

Melissa laughed and got up to kiss her relative on the tip of her nose. "Best beloved," she said, "I see I've got to enlighten you. We don't love our loves with a V because they are virtuous or hate them with a V because they are vicious. We admire virtue and hate vice in the abstract, and in other people, generally speaking, but we choose our men for themselves, for some tone of the voice or trick of smiling or something else equally idiotic and illogical, or a combination of idiotic and illogical things that go to make up personality. Then we have a kindly feeling for their faults in exact proportion to the strength of the personal attraction which sometimes lasts and sometimes doesn't. That's the reason you see some of us loving the most unappealing brutes indefinitely, and others of us divorcing the object of our passionate adoration inside of a month. But in Jim's case—"

"Yes!" said Aunt Jane, inquiringly. "It's different with Jim," said Melissa, her eyes shining. "Jim may have his faults, but I can tell you they're not more than enough to keep him from being a plain angel. Far be it from me, his wife, to boast, but he's just the dearest fellow in the world and I'm the happiest woman. That's just between you and me, dearie."

"Well," sighed Aunt Jane. "I'm sure I hope for the best, Melissa."

All it amounts to. "If you don't do your work better," said the lady of the house, "I shall discharge you immediately."

"I wouldn't dare say that to my cook," remarked a visitor.

"Well, I dare say it to mine, and frequently, too. I guess I've said that every day for a year."

CLIMBS TREE TO CATCH BEES

Athletic Frenchman Catches a Swarm at Top of Pine 40 Feet From Ground.

Paris.—The up-to-date bee-keeper is supposed to be able to capture a swarm of bees wherever it is placed, but unless he is a gymnast of no mean ability he is often obliged to see his winged friends take their departure across country far out of sight and reach. A Frenchman, M. Neveux-Leutner, who keeps bees at La Garonnette, in the Department of the Var, had reason the other day to be thankful for his early gymnastic training and work in the Colonies. A very fine swarm from one of his hives took up a position at the top of a pine tree 40 feet from the ground. To use the swarm-catcher fixed to a pole was impossible. It was equally useless to try to dislodge the bees either by shaking the tree or by sprinkling them with water or sand. The photograph shows the intrepid climber, with his smoker slung to his belt and his swarm-box on his back, about to reach the coveted colony.

FORTUNES BY PARCEL POST

Gems of Great Value Often Mailed in Ordinary Way in London and Paris.

London.—Before the sensational pearl necklace loss became public few people imagined that gems valued at $675,000 were entrusted to the post for delivery to dealers in the ordinary way.

Yet it frequently happens that a postal package for Hatton Garden contains precious stones of the value of thousands of dollars, and of these pearls are the most expensive. A single pearl has been known to realize $150,000, and what is more remarkable is that nearly all those on the market are known to a select circle of connoisseurs.

London and Paris are the chief pearl dealing centers, and there is a constant interchange of specimens of fabulous value. The merchants not only know the gems which they handle, but they know every dealer who claims to be a legitimate possessor, so that the opportunity of getting rid of pearls dishonestly obtained is more circumscribed than in any other branch of the jewelry trade.

One of the most sensational robberies of recent years was that of which the queen of Siam was the victim. The necklace was stolen during the journey to Bangkok, and only two of the 250 pearls of which it was composed were recovered. They found their way to London afterward by a legitimate channel.

SMOKES WHILE LOSING LEG

While Watching Operation Beside Railroad Track, Patient Talks With the Onlookers.

Fargo, N. Dak.—After his leg had been mangled beneath the wheels of a freight train, Carl Bryans calmly watched City Physician Kaess while he completed the amputation of the limb just below the hip. Bryans smoked a cigarette and talked with bystanders during the operation. He was later removed to a hospital and he leg was dressed.

Dr. Kaess believes that the man's wonderful nerve will insure his recovery.

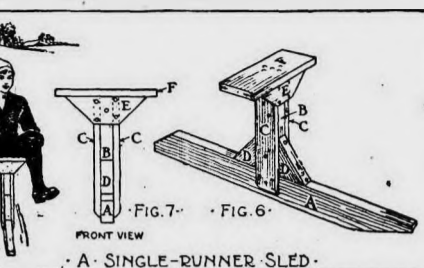

Bryans stated during the operation, which was performed beside the tracks where he was injured, that he had worked in the harvest fields this summer and was on his way to Minneapolis. He attempted to catch a freight passing through the city, but his coat became entangled in a switch arm and he was thrown beneath the wheels of the moving train.

He says he has no living relatives.

Geranium 84 inches High. Bellevue, O.—Dr. H. W. Albright's his town recently read that Miss Anie E. Merrill of Pittston, Me., claims the tallest geranium in the country with a specimen which attained a height of 81 inches. Later he came forward to dispute the claims of Mrs. Merrill. He exhibits one geranium 74 inches in height and another that he claims to be the tallest in the country. Neither is of the climbing variety.

New Ideas for Handy Boys

By A. NEELY HALL

TWO HOME-MADE COASTERS.

Any boy can build himself a sled that will be every bit as good as a bought one, and as the material required amounts to so little the expense connected with the construction is trifling. Perhaps just the right kind of lumber will be found in the basement or woodshed, and in that case no outlay whatever will be necessary. Almost any kind of wood will serve the purpose, but straight-grained pieces are the easiest to work up, and the fewer knots, cracks and other defects that there are the better. Of course, putty and paint will conceal nail holes and small cracks, but do not depend too much upon "putty magic" because putty shrinks when it hardens and in a wide crack this shrinkage is enough to make an ugly hollow place in the surface of your work.

The double-runner coaster shown in Fig. 1 is of just the proportions that the average boy finds to his liking—4 feet long and 15 inches wide, with runners 5 1/2 inches deep. And as it is substantially constructed it is a practical sled for all around purposes.

A pattern for the sled runners is shown in Fig. 2. Lay off the given measurements upon a piece of 2 by 6 with pencil and carpenter's square—or a yard-stick or other straight-edged stick. Most 2-by-6-inch material is 5 1/2 inches wide, though it sometimes runs a trifle under or a trifle over this. Whatever the measurement is, you can vary the width of your runners accordingly. The notches along the top edge receive the ends of the connecting cross braces A, (Fig. 4), and the foot-brace B. After checking up your measurements to be sure that no mistakes have been made, saw off the ends square, then saw off on the diagonals of the bow and stern ends. When you

It requires a skillful coaster to coast with a single-runner coaster. (Fig. 5), and that is one reason why this unique form of sled is so popular with boys. Any boy can become expert in handling this sled, though it requires some little practice generally to get the knack of balancing one's self.

Fig. 6 shows a detailed drawing of the completed single-runner sled, and Fig. 7 a front view of it. Make the board F 15 inches long and 4 inches wide, and nail it to the top of post B; then brace it with two wooden brackets nailed across post B, front and back.

POSTAL TROUBLES IN PERSIA

Same Word Means Dock, Hides and Postoffice and Other Things of Equal Usefulness.

The difficulties of the postoffice in the Persian gulf are aggravated by the Persian language, which invests the word "post" as colloquially pronounced with considerable ambiguity.

"Post" means a dock or anchorage; "post" means hides, skins or leather; and is also the term for the postoffice. On the coast the final "t" is dropped and "post" therefore has to do duty in three capacities.

A merchant at Linga, says the Pioneer Mail, recently complained that his letters were being lost, and a serv-have completed one runner, mark out the other with it as a pattern.

Cut the connecting cross braces A 14 inches long, 2 inches wide and 2 inches thick, and cut the tongues on the ends to fit the notches in the runners. Nail the braces to the runners, and also drive nails through the side face of each runner into their ends as shown in Fig. 1.

Make the seat out of a board 12 inches wide and 2 feet 3 inches long. The ends of the seat are shown square in the illustration, but they may be curved or cut off upon the diagonal if you wish to take the extra time to do this. Screw or nail the board to the cross braces. Notch the edges of the foot-board strip slightly, at its center, to provide a good place for tying the sled rope.

Cut two pieces of broom-handle for hand-bars, and screw screw-eyes large enough to hold their ends into the side of the runners. Drive a nail through each handle and into the runner, to keep it from turning and slipping out of place.

You can improve the sliding qualities of the runners by greasing them; but at a small expenditure you can provide them with shoes of hoop-iron or of half-iron iron strips, which of course will be more satisfactory. The iron strips can be bought at almost any hardware store. They must be bent to fit the curved ends of the runners, and be drilled for the screws with which they are fastened in place. You can get this work done at a blacksmith's shop or a machine shop. Hoop-iron is easy to put on, because it can be bent by hand and holes for nails and screws can be punched through it with a nail. The iron strips with which large packing-cases are lined can be used for runner shoes.

ant was asked what he had been doing with them.

"The first week," was the reply, "when you told me to carry the letters to the post, I went to the shoe-maker's and was putting them among the post (meaning leather and skins), but the man said I should carry them to the Post-e-Buzurg." By this the shoemaker means the big British postoffice.

"Then I took them to the Post-e-Buzurg (big dock) and threw them in. The first time there was plenty of water, but the next week the water was low, and I had to dig a hole in the sand for them."

Married Too Young.

A rare old philosopher is M. Teller of Paris, who has invented a process for the preservation of meats in the open air. He has just been decorated with the cross of the Legion of Honor at the age of eight-six. Although a little tardy, this distinction overwhelms him with joy, much more than the $0,000 francs of the subscription opened in his favor. "That is for my son," he says. "This son is twenty years old. I have lost a great deal of time in my youth," says M. Teller to his friends. "I married too young. I was only sixty!"

FULTON HOME GONE

Passing Marks End of One of Gotham's Noted Streets.

State Street, Could it Talk, Would Be Able to Tell Many Stirring Tales of Time of the Early Dutch Settlers.

New York.—A poetically inclined young lady, visiting New York in the early part of the last century, frequently became so enthusiastic over what she saw that she included in her letters to the old folks away back in New Hampshire scraps of poetry, of which the following is a good example:

Across the way from Aunt Marie A genteel house you there can see, Looking across the Battery.

'Tis built of brick, oh! goody me, And stone all wrot in antique style.

R. Fulton lived there for a while, And down its steps he walked, they say.

And up them, too, each single day, Beneath its ample, copious roof (Standing still if you must have proof).

This undoubtedly relates to the house at 1 State street, which, alas, is no longer "standing still if you must have proof" for this house, in which Robert Fulton lived during the latter triumphant days of his life and in which he died, has just fallen a victim to progress.

The passing of this beautiful old house and of its neighbors, at 2 and 3 State street, marks the end of one of the most picturesque of the streets of old New York.

This street, could it talk, would be able to tell many stirring tales of the days when from the time of the early Dutch settlers well into the nineteenth century it was one of the city's most fashionable thoroughfares. Perhaps it would also tell many of the interesting things that happened in the Battery Park, just across the way.

At the Battery, according to Felix Oldboy's "Tour Around New York," the Dutch settlers laid the foundations of the metropolis. But the pioneers from Holland were not unanimously of the opinion that it was wise to build their city at this point. A large number of them thought that it would be more prudent to pitch their tents at Spuyten Duyvil. There they had found lovely meadow lands with running water, affording an excellent opportunity to dig and equip canals, and the site was so shut off by the adjacent hills as to be hidden from the eyes of foreign adventurers who might find entrance in the harbor without being detected.

It was not the Indians whom the Dutch feared, but the English. The latter were pushing their expeditions in all directions, and while it was feared that they might turn their guns up on the colony of the Dutch East India company if it was located on the southern end of the island of the Manhaes, it was believed that they would sail quietly away again if they found the place bearing the appearance of being uninhabited.

This view nearly prevailed with the first settlers, but after an appeal to national pride wiser counsels had their way and it was resolved to begin operations at the point which is Only William. At a singing contest at Frankfort recently Kaiser Wilhelm, who attended, was served by several high school boys as pages. According to Jugend, he was attracted by the bright face of one of them and asked his name.

"Korner, your majesty," said the boy.

"And your first name is Theodore?" said the emperor, thinking of the patriotic poet Theodore Korner, whose centennial year this is.

"I'm sorry," replied the uncourtier-like youngster, "but it's only William."

now the battery. All opposition was silenced as soon as it was demonstrated that a canal could be dug there at once, running through what is now Broad street and ending at the city wall, the present Wall street.

By the time that New Amsterdam had become New York most of the wealthy people of the little city had along the rocks and sand that made homes bordering on the park, which in the middle of the last century was not more than one-half of its present size. At that time there was no sea wall and the tide rippled unchecked along the rocks and sands that made the beach.

Record Walnut Crop. Los Angeles.—The largest yield known in recent years—4,000,000 pounds more than the average crop, almost 2,000 tons greater than last year—is the season's output of walnuts in southern California, now estimated at from 12,000 to 13,500 tons. While the price for the year's crop has been fixed, at the prevailing quotation for last season's walnuts this will give a return of $4,000,000. Increase in the value of the yield over last year will be approximately $600,000.

Perpetual Motion

One may well be sure that there is no "perpetual motion machine." For this purpose machines have been constructed from time immemorial, but nothing has ever come of it. Men have gone mad on the subject, but without any practical results. It was demonstrated long ago by Sir Isaac Newton and De la Hire that perpetual motion is impossible of attainment. Even the solar system, the most wonderful machine of which we have any knowledge, will run down in the course of time, some say in about 11,000,000 of years from now.

JUDGE CURED, HEART TROUBLE

I took about 6 boxes of Dodde Kidney Pills for Heart Trouble from which I had suffered for 5 years. I had dirty spells, my eyes puffed, my breath was short and I had chills and back-ache. I took the pills about a year ago and have had no return of the ailments. Am now 63 years old, able to do lots of manual labor, am well and hearty and weigh about 200 pounds. I feel very grateful that I found Dodde Kidney Pills and you may publish this letter if you wish. I am serving my third term as Probate Judge of Gray Co. Yours truly, Judge Miller.

What He Noticed

The extent to which the modern child is educated in matters of hygiene appears from a recent episode in a Boston school.

The class had visited the art museum and the teacher wished to learn what the children had observed and how they were impressed. The subject at the moment was the exquisite head of Aphrodite, one of the chief treasures of the museum. A little boy who frantically waved his hand was called upon. He announced triumphantly:

"I noticed she had adenoids!" "Why, Peter," exclaimed the shocked teacher, "what do you mean?" "She keeps her mouth open all the time," was the reply.—Youth's Companion.

FIRE DON'TS

- The time of the year has again arrived when the fire fiend generally gets in his work. The following don'ts if strictly observed, will beat him at his own game:
- Don't go into closets looking for clothing with a lighted match.
- Don't kindle fires in stoves with kerosene poured from the can.
- Don't put hot ashes and coals in wooden barrels or boxes.
- Don't thaw out frozen water pipes with a torch or lamp.
- Don't allow waste paper, excelsior, and rubbish to collect.
- Don't use gasoline for cleaning in a closed room.
- Don't allow lace curtains near lamps.
- Don't allow oily rags near stoves or lying about carelessly.
- Don't allow sawdust to be used in cupboards or on floors.
- Don't throw cigarettes or cigars away lighted.
- Don't keep matches in paper boxes, or lying about carelessly.
- Don't forget that matches are the beginning of many conflagrations.
- Don't hang your clothing near open fires or stoves.
- Don't fill lamps after dark and never when lighted.
- Don't allow rubbish and boxes to collect in alleys.
- Don't burn leaves or dead grass on windy days.

There will be a reception for the Baptist minister and family at the Baptist parsonage, next Wednesday evening.

The Ladies Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church will hold their regular meeting at the Presbyterian manse next Wednesday, Nov. 12.

OBITUARY.
Sarah E. McCormick was born in Salem township Feb. 20, 1831. At the age of 22, she was united in marriage to William J. Terry of Superior, and to this union were born five children. Robert, the youngest child, departed this life Feb. 18, 1894.

In 1874 they left their home in Superior and moved to Rosebush, where she resided until July 4, 1912. Since that time she has made her home in Plymouth. She united with the M. E. church at an early age and continued her active church work after uniting with this church.

She passed away Oct. 25th, at the age of 82 years, 9 months and 5 days. She leaves to mourn her death four children—Charles, Hannah and Herbert of Rosebush and Ella of Plymouth. Besides these, she leaves eleven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren to mourn her loss.

William Whittaker, Orr Passage and Mat. Powell left Thursday morning on a hunting expedition in the northern part of the lower peninsula.

Last Wednesday evening Divine services were held at St. John's Episcopal Mission. The Rt. Rev. Chas. D. Williams, D. D. was present and administered the rite of confirmation to Grace and Geo. Innes and James Barlow, also the ordinance of baptism to Constance, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Barlow, and Arvin, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Burden. Mr. H. Midworth of Detroit, was present, also the rector of St. Peter's church, Detroit, with about twenty of his vested choir, who aided greatly in the service. At the conclusion of the rites Bishop Williams gave a very impressive address. The Woman's Guild entertained out of town guests at a well served supper in the Grange hall previous to the service at the church.

NEWBURG

There was a goodly attendance at church last Sabbath. Dr. Caster came with the pastor and gave us a good old gospel sermon. There were a good many children not in Sunday-school. There is talk of starting a contest. Everyone come next Sunday.

The L. A. S. will hold their annual home coming and fair Friday afternoon and evening, Nov. 14th. A meat pie dinner will be served with lots of other good things to go with it. Price for the same 25c and 15c. Mrs. W. R. LeVan will be matron of the kitchen. Mesdames Lewis, Stevens, Ruff and Dean will have charge of the dining room. Mrs. Mackender and Miss Mabel Beeman the fancy booth. Mesdames Hoisington and Coats the fish pond. Mrs. Ryder and Mrs. Kingsley the candy booth. Mrs. King and Mrs. Chilson the vegetable booth. Come and meet old friends and enjoy the fun.

Misses Margaret LeVan and Margaret Holloway gave a Hallow'en party to the seniors at the LeVan home. The house was prettily decorated for the occasion. Hallow'en pranks with a witch to tell fortunes, playing games, etc., all helped to make an evening long to be remembered by the young people. Light refreshments were served.

The young people are very much gratified over the result of their entertainment given in the hall last week Thursday evening, all taking their parts in fine shape. The receipts were fourteen dollars and a half. They talk of giving another in the near future.

The G. A. R. and W. R. C. have their quarterly dinner Tuesday, Nov. 11th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Westfall. All members and their families invited to attend.

Mrs. Ann Farwell visited her brother, Will Knickerbocker and wife at Flint recently.

Mrs. L. Carson who has been making an extended visit with friends in Port Huron arrived home last Saturday.

Mrs. M. A. Armstrong has gone to Ann Arbor for a few days.

Don't forget the fair Nov. 14th. A prize will be given for the best 1/2 bushel potatoes.

Miss Esther Pickett of Ypsilanti, visited her grandmother, Mrs. C. Pickett Sunday.

FRAIN'S LAKE

Gus. Lidke and family spent Sunday at Harvey Proctor's.

Mrs. Tehreasa Lyke has been spending several days with her grandson, Theda Lyke.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Shock spent Monday at Plymouth.

Ed. Lyke is hauling baled hay to Ypsilanti.

Charles Freeman and family spent Sunday afternoon at Cherry Hill.

The Dixboro L. A. S. will give their annual Thanksgiving dinner, at the home of Mrs. Fred Ahrens, Nov. 20. Everybody invited.

George Lyke and Clarence Sherwood spent Sunday at Salem.

Herman Schmidt called at Theda Lyke's Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Judson visited their sister, Mrs. Fred Hasselbeck of Wayne Sunday.

Mrs. William Gale and son LeRoy are having dental work done at Ann Arbor.

Miss Margaret Smith attended the Teachers' Institute at Ann Arbor Thursday and Friday.

How to Care For Milk

The board of agriculture at Washington has promulgated the following rules for care of milk in the house:

1. Keep it cold.
2. Don't expose it to the air.
3. Wash the bottles thoroughly in warm and cold water.
4. If not delivered in bottles, be sure that it is delivered by reliable persons, and in a covered vessel.
5. If you have no ice, keep the milk in a pail of water, preferably running water.
6. If you have no ice-box, make one out of a sawdust-filled box, set a stone crock or pail in the bed of sawdust, place your milk bottle in it, and surround it with cracked ice.

The board of health has received a copy of these instructions and wants to impress on everyone that his duty is to keep the milk clean after it is bought is as great as the milk-dealers in preparing it for sale.

SCHOOL NOTES

For the entertainment and instruction of the readers of our school notes this week, we present a short statement by each of the teachers as to the thing that impressed her most at the great convention held last week at Ann Arbor. The convention, by the way, is the largest teachers' convention in the world. Over 7000 enrolled last week. The different sections, nearly 20 all told, were addressed by some of the strongest men and women in the United States. It was the best array of talent ever put before the Michigan State Teachers' Association.

To attend such a convention as was recently held at Ann Arbor, and to feel that one is a part of the great army of men and women working for the betterment of our boys and girls, is to be filled with new inspiration and new zeal for the work.

Dr. Leonard P. Ayres stated that about 78 per cent. of Michigan's children of school age were in school, leaving one-fifth not in school. From this one-fifth comes Michigan's army of 78,000 illiterates her contribution to the five and a half millions of illiterates in the United States.

Dr. H. H. Goddard in his address on "What the Backward Child has taught Us" said, "The real work of the school is to develop citizens, not students. As every child can not attain to the same mental plane it is the work of the school to help each child find his own mental plane and when that is found to develop the intelligence to its highest degree."

The recent convention at Ann Arbor was very helpful in a great many ways as well as very enjoyable. When you saw Benjamin Chapin in his portrayal of Lincoln, you could realize as never before the spirit of those stirring times and the greatness of Abraham Lincoln.

One of the entertaining features of the State Teacher's Institute at Ann Arbor was the Shakespearean Play, "Mid Summer's Night's Dream" as given by the Ann Arbor H. S. students. The boys and girls had been very well trained and gave the play in a way that would be a credit to more experienced players. One rule of the English department of the Ann Arbor H. S. is that no student shall graduate without taking a part in one of the Shakespearean plays.

A monologue portrayal, "Lincoln, a Study and Impersonation," by Benj. Chapin of New York City, was a great success. When he first appeared, Mr. Chapin looked so much like Lincoln that it was quite a shock, as though Lincoln himself stood before us. During the monologue he made us feel the personality of Lincoln, laugh at his jokes and stories, and also feel a little of the great burden he bore for his country. It was a pleasure never to be forgotten by those who heard him.

(to be continued next week)

WEST PLYMOUTH

Mrs. Ann Pannel died at her home in Detroit last Thursday, Oct. 30, very suddenly, sitting in her chair. The funeral was held Saturday, at 2 o'clock at the house. Mrs. Pannel was well known to the people of this vicinity and often visited Mrs. W. T. Smith and Mrs. Jas. Heaney.

BIBLE STUDENTS.
Services for Sunday, Nov. 9, at I. O. O. F. hall, 2 p. m. Subject, "Spiritual and Human natures separate and distinct." Query—can there be any blending of the two? Will not a miracle be performed upon each one of the "body" members to change them from mortal to immortal in the first resurrection, even as upon our Lord? Were not spirit beings (cherubim, seraphim, angels, etc.) made for the spiritual realm, as man, brute, fool, etc., was made for the earth—of the earth, earthy?" Was there not a great "Glorious" connection with the creation of the first human, Psa. 8:5-8, "when the morning stars (bright ones) sang together, and all the sons of God (angels) shouted for joy?" Could it be that the great Heavenly Father was not still supervising for the good of the human race and when the reign of sin is past He will give back the long lost dominion and re-establish the Human "glory" in a world wide "Eden." Can we not see many evidences of this now on every side. (With sin, sadness, selfishness and death eliminated and perfect weather conditions, in fact, the curse removed, what more could be needed?)

Home Made Cozy and Comfortable on Bleakest, Coldest Winter Days

Let it snow. Let it blow. Let the big north blizzards come. Let the thermometer drop to the zero mark. Let the weather man do his worst. You and your people needn't mind. Not even if the mercury freezes and your house is half buried in snow drifts.
—you will all be comfortable, cozy, warm, and happy if you have a "Garland" Heater or Base Burner in your home.
And when the price of coal and other fuel begins climbing, you will thank yourself a thousand times for having chosen a "Garland"—the kind that saves fuel.
Maybe you think there isn't much difference in stoves.
Well, you just step into our store at the very first opportunity and we'll show you there's a lot of difference.

We'll show you the handsomest Base Burner you ever saw. And then we will show you that it has one-fourth more heating surface than any other Base Burner.
Next, we'll introduce you to a "Garland" Heating Stove—a beauty. You'll like it at first glance; and still better when you note its fuel-saving construction and the price we quote you.
Come in now and see these stoves. We have them in many styles and prices.
If you don't buy, there's no harm done. We're willing to put our time against yours, just to have you see our offering. Don't forget that we deliver and set up stoves any place in town, free of charge. Do it in double-quick time—a clean, neat, attractive job.
Better look at these stoves today. Jack Frost is in the air.

Are We Forgetting Hawaii?

NATIVE WOMEN AT THEIR MEAL OF FISH AND POI

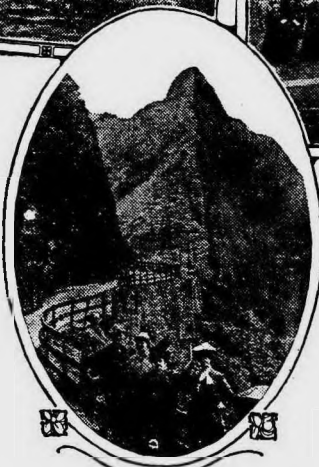

NATIVE POUNDING TARO TO MAKE POI

RIDING THE SURF

PRINCIPAL ST. HONOLULU, H. I.

WHERE THE MOUNTAIN ROAD REACHES THE GAP, HONOLULU, H. I.

THE time of their annexation to the United States much was heard of the Hawaiian Islands as the key to the Pacific, a name which, unlike most tags, seems to be a fairly accurate description. Situated between 19 and 23 degrees north latitude and between 154 degrees 40 minutes and 162 degrees west longitude, they are at the junction of the principal steamer routes across the Pacific and indeed are the only land of any extent within a radius of 2,000 miles. This situation gives them, inevitably, great strategic and commercial importance. To the north the nearest land is Alaska with the chain of the Aleutian Islands, 2,000 miles away; to the east, the North American continent, 2,000 miles, and to the west, the Philippine Islands, 4,500 miles. Honolulu is distant 2,100 miles from San Francisco, 2,460 miles from Victoria, B. C., 4,700 from Manila, 3,400 from Yokohama, 3,810 from Auckland and 4,410 from Sydney.

The American tourist to the Hawaiian Islands will probably take ship at San Francisco, although the steamers from Vancouver are also good. He must remember that on a United States port it is possible to sail to Honolulu only on a ship under American register, unless he has a through ticket to the Orient and plans merely to stop over. The first day or two out of San Francisco are usually cold, so that heavy wraps are essential, but as the rest of the trip is warm, rooms on the starboard side, getting the trade winds, are preferable.

After the hills of the coast range have dropped below the horizon there is almost nothing to see—a wave perhaps, or porpoises, but no land and very rarely a passing ship. But to the man who has never been in the tropics the ocean, so utterly different from the North Atlantic, is a revelation. There usually are no waves, as the Atlantic traveler knows waves, but the whole surface of the sea sways gently in great, silent, lazy swells.

The harbor of Honolulu is not large. The entrance is 35 feet deep and 400 feet wide; the inner harbor is 35 feet deep and 800 feet wide, but this width is being extended to 1,200 feet. The water is always still. Indeed, the name Honolulu means "the sheltered" and is appropriate, since there are few severe storms and no weather affects the safety of the harbor, which in consequence is usually crowded with shipping. As the steamer enters the channel people watch the Japanese and Hawaiian fishing boats, usually dories painted some bright color, that contrast with the gray tenders of the men-of-war. Near the dock the water is alive with Hawaiian boys swimming about and shouting, ready to dive for nickels and dimes, not one of which they do miss. They are marvellously dexterous swimmers and give incoming passengers amusement that is pleasant and more unusual than looking at the undoubtedly practical but also undoubtedly ugly warehouses and United States government storehouses which line the shore.

The streets, in so far as the uneven character of the land permits, are laid out at right angles. Fort street and Nuuanu avenue running from the sea toward the mountains, and King, Hotel and Beretania streets, more or less parallel to the coast, give, as being the principal thoroughfares, sufficient indication of the street plan. All after leaving the business center pass between terraced gardens which are never shut in by walls, but are enclosed only by low hedges, usually of red flowering hibiscus. In many parts of the city the streets are bordered with tropical flowering trees that are a glory in the late spring months. An admirable electric car service covers the entire district of Honolulu, traversing or crossing all the main streets.

Of public buildings the first in importance is the Executive building, formerly the royal palace. This stands near the center of the city, on King street, in its own open park. It is used now as the offices of the governor and of territorial officials and contains also the chambers of the senate and house of representatives. Built in 1880 of blocks of concrete, much overornamented, to suit the king's ideas of beauty, it follows no recognized style of architecture, would be in any northern city amazingly ugly, but standing alone as it does, with no other buildings as contrast, approached on all four sides by short avenues of superb royal palms surrounded by splendid great trees and gay shrubs, cream colored, its wide, cool galleries giving an effect of lightness, it has an appropriateness that makes it almost beautiful.

A building of real interest, constructed of brown lava stone from Punch Bowl and surrounded by striking gardens, is Lunalilo house. This was established by bequest of King Lunalilo and is a home for aged and indigent Hawaiians, and here about a hundred of them live on and on. Some are blind, some deaf, all are decrepit. They sit in the sun under the palm trees and talk of times 70 years ago, quarrel happily and vociferously and sometimes marry—these octogenarians and nonagenarians. They have plenty to eat, comfortable quarters, a weekly excursion to church in an omnibus, and, life being become something nearly approximate to heaven, they see no valid reason for changing their state. Not seldom do they pass the century mark and many remember, or claim to remember, the death of the first Kamehameha.

Private gardens line all the streets, their luxuriant trees and shrubbery happily masking the houses themselves, most of which make no pretense to anything but comfort. People live out of doors, and the result is that broad vine covered verandas or "lanais"—the Hawaiian term is used universally—are the most noticeable and characteristic features of many of the houses. The glory of the gardens is their palms—royal palms and dates principally, but also wide palms and fan palms—and their flowering trees. In the spring the Poinciana regia makes huge flaming umbrellas of orange or scarlet or crimson; the Golden Shower, sometimes a stately tree, is hung with its thousands of loose clusters of yellow bells; the Cacia nodosa spreads its great sheaves of shell pink and white blossoms like a glorified apple tree; the Pride of India is a mist of lavender. But at all times of the year these trees look well, and in addition to them there are gigantic banyans throwing cool purple masses of shade; algarobas with their feathery leaves, through which the sunlight is pleasantly diluted and the insignificant flowers of which supply the tons of honey exported annually to England.

People work in Hawaii. For those whose lots are cast permanently in the islands life is not what it appears superficially to the tourist, one long, happy holiday. Nor is there here, as in so many tropical countries, a three-hour hiatus in the middle of the day, when men and women take their siesta. Hours of business are served they are in New York or Chicago, and life is planned—too completely perhaps—along northern lines. In Honolulu men go usually to their clubs to luncheon—the Pacific, the University or the City club—talk business and hurry back to a long afternoon in their offices. These clubs, it is fair to say, are delightfully arranged buildings with windows on all sides to catch any breeze. Of them the oldest is the Pacific, formerly the British club, on Alaka street. The house has broad verandas on both floors and large, cool rooms. The University club, more especially a resort of younger men, has a pretty cottage near the Hawaiian hotel. Its membership includes a large number of army and navy officers, graduates of West Point and Annapolis, as well as men from America, English and German universities. The City club, much more inclusive in membership, is in a business block in the center of the town. There are also of course, as in all American cities, lodges of various orders, Masons, Odd Fellows, Elks and Red Men.

While men are lunching at their clubs their wives give luncheon parties or go out to luncheons—a form of social entertainment which would seem more suited to a cold climate than to tropical midday. In the late afternoon the Country club in Nuuanu valley or the Pacific Tennis court near the Executive building or the various athletic fields and the bathing beaches at Waikiki are the meeting places of society. At night there are dinners, dances and bridge parties occasionally and much more amusing moonlight surfing and swimming parties. There is no particular social season in Honolulu. More people are out of town in summer, but on the other hand that is the time when boys are at home with their friends from American colleges, and they must be entertained day and night. This, therefore, is the time to see more of the distinctively Hawaiian forms of amusement.

The ancient dances, or "hulas," are not often seen, both because the art of dancing is being lost and because many of the dances, in the motions, which make them up and in the words which accompany them, are from a civilized point of view, indecent. Some of them are occasionally given in an expurgated form at the vaudeville theaters or certain selected dances, as entertainment after private "banquets" and no opportunity to see them should be neglected. More than are often marvellously graceful—more so than are the Arab dances—hand with the monotonous beat of their musical accompaniment are very poetical and quite in a class by themselves.

Of good theaters the islands are destitute. An occasional series of mediocre performances at the Opera house in Honolulu brings out the whole population. Of interest to tourists who have never been in the Orient, however, there are the Chinese and Japanese theaters with their interminably long plays, often gorgeously costumed and probably well acted. Nor is there naturally much opportunity to hear good professional musicians.

For the women of the place housekeeping is none of the easiest. Servants are all Orientals, admirable as far as they go, but with inevitable limitations. The Chinese are faithful, good cooks, and immaculately clean in their work. They are in general preferred to the Japanese, even though during the Chinese New Year, for three days in January or February, they all depart on their annual holiday. During these days no bribe could make them work. They also at that time have the habit of giving to the families for whom they work expensive and usually hideous presents, which must be prominently displayed for months after. An amusing part of the Chinese New Year is the necessity for men of calling on all the Chinese merchants of their acquaintance—ceremonial calls where they are regaled with queer, cloying sweets and champagne. The Japanese are filling the ranks now as house servants, since under the United States immigration laws the Chinese population is gradually dwindling. They are far less reliable, but are often excellent cooks, and Japanese maids in their bright kimonos are picturesque about the house. They can be taught almost anything, and once taught never forget, but unfortunately the knowledge acquired is often of the parrot variety. For example, a lady gave a luncheon and before the guests arrived showed her new Japanese maid exactly how to serve each course and what plates to use. The following week she gave another luncheon exactly like the first, but omitting one course. Her Japanese maid served it perfectly, except that when the time arrived for the course which was left out she brought in all the plates and then carefully removed them empty.

Because of the lack of literature there is no way to get any permanent impression of the charm of Hawaii except by a visit. Its history one can read and can appreciate if one is able to adopt in the reading a sympathetic point of view. The fact that thoroughly American ideals pervade all phases of island industry, of modes of living and of social intercourse may be accepted and theoretically believed. But the Hawaiian flavor, with which these ideals are subtly impregnated and that insensibly affects all who have lived there, is something indescribable, something which seems to emanate from the misty hills, the whispering waters, the exquisite vegetation, the low voices of the people. All this may be grasped only through the senses. The eyes must see from the shores at Waikiki the bright carpet of water beyond which Diamond Head so proudly stands at the gateway of the world beyond. The ears must catch the melody of Hawaiian song and the swish of the wind in the palms. The scent of stephanotis and plumeria and ginger must strike one as it steals through the hibiscus hedges around secluded gardens. The whole body must respond to the tender caress of trade winds that have blown across a thousand miles of warm ocean. Only this is full knowledge—and the sense of this no word can convey.

NOT A VAIN BOAST

By GEORGE ELMER COBB.

"Go tell that to the marines—foot soldiers won't stand it!" The little spare man with soft, dreamy eyes and the face of a poet bowed in a deprecatory manner and left the noisy mess-room of the timberly diamond mines.

One man among the group arose and followed him. He was bronzed, poorly dressed, a generally down-and-out expression in his general appearance, but behind it all was the restless ambitious soul.

"Wait a moment," he spoke, laying a gentle detaining hand on the man who had preceded him.

"What is it you want?" inquired the latter, lifting his stooped shoulders somewhat and turning his face up to the other.

"I heard your story in yonder."

"Well?"

"And I believe it. You want some one to share your venture. I am your man, if you will accept me."

A great calm and soft content overspread the features of the man addressed. He simply put out his hand to clasp that of the other.

"They laughed at me in yonder," he said, "I, who located the big Rhodes claim and have spent ten years in the district. I am still John Brazleton, expert—I still know when I see a bit of glittering spar and a real diamond, even a mile away. There is one at Dykeman's Gulch. I have seen it and it is mine. You heard my story and believe it, you say. Then we become partners."

"To the extent of my limited means—a bare $200, all—all I have in the world."

"It is more than sufficient. All we need is a wagon, a team of mules, some tackle and provisions."

"And then?"

"Patience and—fiches!" Bruce Baresford led his new partner to his room. As they entered it a mid-faced, blue-eyed man arose from polishing a rifle and some pistols at a little table.

"This is my friend and to be trusted. He is Vaclav Polski," introduced Bang! Bang! Bang! Bang!

Baresford. "Now, then, Mr. Brazleton, tell your story over again."

It was a strange, extravagant narrative, but it was told on that strange South African realm of Croesus, where stranger stories had been told. In few words the gem prospector related his story. In a lonely mountain gulch 200 miles away, while camping at night he had awakened to have his eye fixed hundreds of feet up the perpendicular cliff side upon a great lustrous mass of prismatic light.

Just at that phase of the moon, just at that hour the lunar rays rested for perhaps fifteen minutes across a surface, small but distinct, studded with sparkles of prismatic brilliancy.

"Diamonds!" pronounced the old expert positively. "Imbedded in the petrified clay, thrown there by some upheaval of nature they shone down—a promised fortune. Then the glow passed with the shifting moon rays."

"You could not fix the spot?" questioned the interested Baresford.

"How could I? Why, I dared not move to lose the focus I might not later regain. I waited a month. Again the same celestial and terrestrial conjunction, the glow. Even if I could succeed in settling upon the exact spot, I could not climb to it up that sheer perpendicular wall of rock. By a descent from overhead with the assistance of others only could I hope to succeed. I have come to the diggings—I have found my man—you."

"And Vaclav," added Baresford, with a fond glance at his room-mate, who flashed back at him a look full of reverence, dog-like devotion and love.

The plans for proceeding to Dykeman's Gulch were talked over and Baresford pledged himself to the enterprise. He sat meditating over this, his latest move, for a long time. He had spoken truly when he had said that it would take his last dollar, and now a brief cloud crossed his face as he reflected how much that meant to him.

His previous he had left home and pretty Ethel Bayner to seek his fortune. The dull old village was too slow for him. With $3,000 left him as a legacy by a favorite aunt he had made his fangs goodbye, with high glowing hopes of returning with a competence.

Baresford had invested in the Black Hills and lost, then in California, Alaska tempted him to endure its rigors to no profit. He had gone next to Australia. He had landed at Cape Town, penniless. Through hard work in the diamond mines he had accumulated enough to carry him back home. It would be a dreary return. He had lost out. He was an unsuccessful man. And Ethel!

Just after his arrival he had come across a poor fever-stricken wretch, homeless, friendless. This was his present companion, or rather his pensioner, Vaclav Polski. The young man had been a crack target performer with a show that had become stranded. He had been abandoned to his misery and poverty.

Polski was just recovering from his illness. His gratitude, his fidelity towards Baresford was touching. Evenings now he earned little coin collections exhibiting his remarkable marksmanship to idle groups about the mines. He insisted on bringing all his earnings to Baresford. All he asked was to be allowed to remain with the only friend he had ever known.

Two weeks to a day after leaving the mines the little party of three arrived at Dykeman's Gulch. They camped in the valley.

"We have arrived at just the right time," declared Brazleton hopefully. "When the moon has risen two hours we shall see."

The man did not boast in vain. It was shortly after eight o'clock when the moon, clearing a lofty ledge, cast its full radiance upon the face of the great steep bluff.

"It is there—see! look! I have not deceived you!" shouted the exultant expert, as way up the cliff there shot out a thousand rainbow-tinted threads of light.

"If we could only mark the spot!" murmured Baresford. "But I can at least make a geometrical computation," and he prepared to adjust an engineering instrument with which he had provided himself.

Bang!

Baresford turned, startled—bang! bang! bang! bang!—and so a dozen times. He viewed Polski standing with his repeating rifle directed forward.

"It is done!" cried the skilled marksman. "I have marked a circle directly about the focus of light."

"But the marks will not show in the daytime?"

"Plainly," declared the ingenious fellow, "I shot chalk bullets."

And with the dawn the adventurers saw way up there aloft an unmistakable series of plain white marks, denoting the center of the diamond glow.

It was the intrepid Polski who insisted on being lowered over the cliff. It was he who brought aloft a dozen radiant gems by a freak of nature planted far out of ordinary human reach.

A fortune for each of the three adventurers lay in the precious jewels.

"See!" cried Brazleton, as he held the largest of them in his fingers. "A king's ransom. Oh, it is the most beautiful thing in the world!"

"Except Ethel!" breathed Bruce Baresford fervently. "And Ethel means home, friends, happiness and love!"

And Vaclav Polski kissed the hand of his almoner and friend, tears of joy in his faithful eyes, and asked only to go back to civilization, and hope with him.

LIFE IS AN UPWARD EFFORT

Taking General Direction of Its Current It Always Shows Ascent and Growth.

Edouard Le Roy, in his book, "The New Philosophy of Henri Bergson": In the depths of ourselves we find liberty; in the depths of universal being we find a demand for creation. Since evolution is creative, each of its moments works for the production of an indecipherable and transcendent future. This future must not be regarded as a simple development of the present, a simple expression of germs already given. Consequently we have no authority for saying that there is forever only one order of life, only one plane of action, only one rhythm of duration, only one perspective of existence. And if disconnections and abrupt leaps are visible in the economy of the past—from matter to life, from the animal to the man—we have no authority again for claiming that we cannot observe today something analogous in the very essence of human life, that the point of view of the flesh and the point of view of the spirit, the point of view of reason, and the point of view of character, are a homogeneous extension of it. And apart from that, taking life in its first tendency—and in the general direction of its current, it is ascent, growth, upward effort, and a work of spiritualizing and emancipating creation; by that we might define good, for good is a path rather than a thing.

On the Grill.

"Say, you've been talking over that telephone for half an hour. Are you telling somebody the story of your life?"

"No. Only the story of that part of my life I expect to live in the next three or four hours. I'm explaining to my wife why I won't be home to dinner."

WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Here is her own statement.

Cary, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell you that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would be so tired mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and was fat and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. HAWARD SOWERS, Cary, Maine.

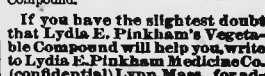

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

ANOTHER SIDE TO MATTER

One Man Has Discovered That Offering Floral Bouquets to the Living is Not All Joy.

"There has been a good deal in the paragraph section of our exchanges for some weeks to the effect that you should give the bouquets now; not wait to lay them on the coffin lid," says Tom Thompson in the Howard Courant. Ella Wheeler before she was a Wilcox wrote a poem on that theme. Chanceller Bradford on the chautauque diagnosed it into us, and most of us have been affected by it. But say, my brother-sister, have you tried it yet? I have—twice. First, I tried it on a very dear friend of the other sex, and she began to get nervous like she thought I was trying to flirt with her. Then I quit, for I am pre-eminently no flirt. Next I tried it on a brother in my lodge and Sunday school, and he shied off like he expected me to ask him for a loan. So after this I shall water my flower beds and raise nice bouquets for funeral occasions exclusively. Very few people know how to receive floral offerings, anyway.—Kansas City Star.

Must Wait a Bit.

The little group at the side of the road waited until Stealthy Stigius returned from the nearby farmhouse. "Poor pickings," he muttered as he threw down a scrawny beef bone and a half loaf of bread. "Where's dat improvement in hand-odds youse promised?" demanded Mugsy Jones. Happy Higgins shook his head reproachfully. "You gottar wait," he said, "till de public adjusts itself to de new tariff."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

His Advantage.

SPEAKS FOR ITSELF

Experience of a Southern Man.

"Please allow me to thank the originator of Postum, which in my case, speaks for itself," writes a Fla. man. "I formerly drank so much coffee that my nervous system was almost a wreck. (Tea is just as injurious because it contains caffeine, the drug found in coffee.) My physician told me to quit drinking it but I had to have something, so I tried Postum. To my great surprise I saw quite a change in my nerves in about 10 days. That was a year ago and now my nerves are steady and I don't have those bilious sick headaches which I regularly had while drinking coffee. Postum seems to have built-up building properties and leaves the head clear. And I do not have the bad taste in my mouth when I get up morning. When Postum is boiled good and strong, it is far better in taste than coffee. My advice to coffee drinkers is to try Postum and be convinced."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for copy of the little book, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms:

Regular Postum—must be well boiled.

Instant Postum is a soluble powder. A teaspoonful dissolved quickly in a cup of hot water and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage.

There's a reason for Postum.

STORIES from the BIG CITIES

Monkey Breaks Jail and Demolishes Bird Store

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—An otherwise law-abiding monkey made a perfectly good jail delivery in a bird store on West Ohio street, the other afternoon—again. For about an hour, till the arrival of A. C. Ward, proprietor, he followed the vagaries of his own inclination which were numerous and startling.

The caged birds, animals, crawling things and little fishes were terrorized. Joco bounded from the floor to the ceiling to escape a Boston bull terrier, landed on a stack of Swiss house bird cages and tumbled them over his canary bird captives to the floor. One lone canary escaped and the monk seized it and yanked out a handful of tail feathers. Whereupon he offered the feathered trophy to a humped-back tortoise who drew his head into his shell and refused absolutely to participate in the festivities.

Why the Turks Fail

THEY LACK THE INSPIRATION OF THE WOMEN.

Everything Done by Christian Europeans is for Sake of a Woman—Mohamets Has No Such Incentive.

The Turks, who are losing power each year, have given to the world no great scientist, explorer, painter, composer—indeed no great leaders in any branch of action or art—save only that of war.

Why is it? The Turks have been Europeans for centuries—their climatic conditions and their environment are western. How is it to be accounted for, then, that they have given no great man to the world—save only soldiers?

Polar Plunge Is the Greatest Dance of the Day

NEW YORK.—Some folks say that the tango is the greatest dance of the day. Others favor the turkey trot and the bunny hug.

They are all wrong. The greatest thing of them all in that line is the polar plunge. All that you need to be able to go through this is a constitution that will stand your jumping into a tank where the ice is beginning to coat the surface and then waiting around.

Silver King, the dancing polar bear of the New York zoological park, discovered the new dance and immediately started to show Matilda, his wife, how the new fad had taken hold on him.

At first Matilda did not like the new dance, but finally she decided to try and be agreeable. After the first lesson she agreed with Silver King that the tank dancing was far superior to that on the hot concrete of the den, and ever since she has been an enthusiastic advocate of the plunge tango.

Sometimes, however, she wants to talk with Mrs. Blinky, the Alaskan brown bear in the next cage, so when young women sat within the glass enclosure. There was a sickening crash and a mournful grinding as the limousine whirled over the pasteboard box. The closed car dashed on, while the young woman occupants looked back, horror-stricken. Where before had been the neatly tied box there was now a heap of broken feathers, straggled plumes, torn ribbons, ragged pasteboard and a large, black, willow form, from which the crown had been all but ripped out.

"A woman's hat!" the crowd sighed. In the meantime the driver of the open car had brought his machine to a halt. Dodging a dozen automobiles, he went back to the scene of the tragedy. For a moment or two he gazed helplessly at the wrecked plumage. Tears appeared in his eyes. Then, as a mother would tenderly pick up an injured child, he gathered the remnants of the ruins into his arms and walked back to his machine. He placed the mangled mass into the tonneau. While the crowd was still sighing he jumped in the front seat and whizzed away.

Boy Sees "Upside Down" and Sings "Topsy Turvey"

BALTIMORE, MD.—The case of a boy who writes upside down and backward, who reads with his book upside down and even sings topsy-turvey, singing high where he ought to sing low, so puzzled the brain and eye specialists of Huntington, W. Va., that they have decided to appeal to the experts of Johns Hopkins hospital for help.

A detailed description of the case will be written by the specialists of Huntington, and sent to Dr. William H. Howell of the Johns Hopkins hospital. Dr. Howell said there have been cases of "mirror vision." In these cases the person sees things backward or upside down and writes as he sees. He explained that "camera vision" is the more accurate term, as the pictures focused in a camera are not only backward, but upside down as well.

SCALP ITCHED AND BURNED

Greenwood, Ind.—"First my hair began to fall, then my scalp itched and burned when I became warm. I had pimples on my scalp; my hair was falling out gradually until I had scarcely any hair on my head. I couldn't keep the dandruff off at all. My hair was dry and lifeless and I lost rest at night from the terrible itching sensation. I would pull my hat off and scratch my head any place I happened to be.

"For several years I was bothered with pimples on my face. Some of them were hard red spots, some were full of matter, and many blackheads. I was always picking at them and caused them to be sore. They made my face look so badly I was ashamed to be seen.

"I tried massage creams for my face and all kinds of hair tonic and home-made remedies, but they only made things worse. Nothing did the work until I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I washed my face with the Cuticura Soap, then put plenty of Cuticura Ointment on. Three months' use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment has made my face as smooth and clean as can be." (Signed) C. M. Skeleton Halted Funeral.

A skeleton in a tomb halted the burial arrangements at a recent funeral at New Orleans, La. The funeral was that of a negro, Savanna Richard son. It was discovered that the tomb into which it had been planned to place the remains was occupied by a skeleton. A large funeral party had accompanied the body to the tomb. When the vault was opened and the skull of a skeleton revealed to their astonished gaze a near panic resulted. The clergymen who were present calmed the frightened members of the party, and the tomb was closed without further commotion. The skeleton was that of a man. The hair appeared intact and the burial robe could be seen by the members of the party. The tomb in which the skeleton rested was one of a long row, about six feet from the ground. It is believed the body was originally buried in a valuable casket, which was stolen from the tomb. The woman's body was buried in another tomb.

"Yes, daughter, that's good stuff. The pain in my back is all gone—I never saw anything work as quickly as Sloan's Liniment." Thousands of grateful people voice the same opinion. Here's the proof.

Relieved Pain in Back. "I was troubled with a very bad pain in my back for some time. I went to a doctor but he did not do me any good, so I purchased a bottle of Sloan's Liniment, and now I am a well woman. I always keep a bottle of Sloan's Liniment in the house."—Miss Mabelle Coates, 304 Myrtle Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Sciatic Rheumatism. "We have used Sloan's Liniment for over six years and found it the best we ever used. When my wife had sciatic rheumatism the only thing that did her any good was Sloan's Liniment. We cannot praise it highly enough."—Dr. Fergus, The Medicine Man.

Sprained Ankle Relieved. "I was hit for a blow that with a severely sprained ankle. I got a bottle of Sloan's Liniment and now I am able to do about and can walk a great deal. I write this because I think it is a fine Liniment on the market and shall always take time to recommend Dr. Sloan's Liniment."—Mrs. One, New York, N. Y.

A Peep at Women's New Autumn Coats

THE Style Store is displaying many smart and exclusive styles so carefully cut and tailored as to look very much more costly than they really are. They leave nothing to be desired by even the most particular. Materials run the whole range of weaves from the most prominent Boucles, Persianas and astrachans to the smooth Velour de laines, Duvetines, Matelasses and Fancy Velours. Colors are the most beautiful in years. Black and navy are relieved by such pronounced colors as French blue, mahogany, taupe, plum and wood brown.

The model illustrated shows a clever manipulation of a soft, handsome boucle cloth. The velvet collar and flounce piping contrast with the fabric tone and two rows of velvet ornaments cover the slashes at the back and give a neat finish to the charming bit of drapery. This model may be taken up with pride and pleasure; it is both stylish and practical. $18.75

Another inexpensive Boucle model contains a number of the exclusive little features that distinguish the highest priced coats. The lining is soft American Beauty satin, and Seal Plush is employed for the cuffs and de Medica collars. Distinctiveness and durability combine in this model. $22.50

For the woman who insists on an all-enveloping full length coat for winter, this semi-fitted Persiana coat will fill the bill perfectly. The shawl collar is generously full and the fronts are gracefully rounded to suggest a getaway effect. The coat is full lined with fine satin and a single ornament of smart design is employed for fastening. $25.00

Fashioning coat models out with much grace of line, embody such clever style ideas of the low belt effects, mandarin sleeves, high buttoning collars and draped designs of infinite variety. $10-$15-$18-$20-$25-$30

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE VILLAGE OF PLYMOUTH, STATE OF MICHIGAN.

Notice is hereby given that a meeting of the Common Council of said Village, held at the Common Council Chamber on the 27th day of October A. D. 1913, it was voted by resolution to submit the proposition of the acceptance and adoption of the hereinafter set forth ordinance or franchise to the qualified electors of said Village, at a special Village election to be held on Monday, the 11th day of November, A. D. 1913, at the Village Hall in said Village. Said ordinance so to be voted upon by said electors is in form and terms as follows:

Ordinance authorizing the manufacture, erection, distribution, operation and installation of gas works, storage and distributing tanks, mains, pipes and conduits in the village of Plymouth, Wayne County, Michigan.

Whereas, it is desirable that the village be furnished with the convenience of gas for light and heat, and WHEREAS, in order to induce any company or persons to install, erect, maintain and operate gas works in said village, and to furnish a supply of gas for public and private use therein, it is necessary to grant and secure to such persons or company certain rights and privileges, subject to certain restrictions, in order to protect the rights of the village and its citizens and of such person or company:

Therefore, the Village of Plymouth ordains: Sec. 1. That the sole right and privilege of erecting, maintaining, continuing and operating gas works, and all other necessary and usual appurtenances pertaining to the manufacture, treatment and storage of gas, and the materials entering into its manufacture, and the laying down and continuing of gas pipes along, across, under and through any and all streets, sidewalks, lanes, alleys and public grounds of said village, and in like manner in the territory which may hereafter be added to the corporate limits of said village, for conveying gas and supplying said village and the inhabitants thereof with gas lights and fuel, and the rights and privileges of manufacturing, receiving, storing and distributing gas in said village for sale for use in said village, and for selling the same, and of supplying the inhabitants of said village, and said village, and the buildings and streets therein with gas for lighting the same, be and is hereby granted to A. L. Moore and Clarence A. Fox, of the City of Pontiac, Michigan, and their successors, associates and assigns, for thirty years from the date of the acceptance by them of this ordinance, subject to the conditions thereof.

Sec. 2. That the above named A. L. Moore and Clarence A. Fox, their successors, associates and assigns, shall within sixty days after the passage of this ordinance by the council of said village, file with the Clerk of said village their acceptance to perform on their part according to the terms and conditions thereof.

Sec. 3. That said grantees and assigns shall supply said village and the inhabitants thereof with gas for light and fuel, and shall continue to supply all persons along the lines of its pipes, who shall suitably supply their premises with service pipes and fixtures for receiving and burning gas, and who shall sign the rules and regulations of said gas company, and who shall require gas and pay for the same. The rate for said gas shall not exceed $1.50 per thousand cubic feet. When twenty-five million cubic feet are sold and used in any one calendar year, the rate shall not exceed $1.30 per thousand cubic feet; when one hundred million cubic feet are sold and used in any one calendar year, the rate shall not exceed $1.15 per thousand cubic feet; when two hundred million cubic feet or more are sold and used in any one calendar year, the rate shall not exceed $1.00 per thousand cubic feet. And this grant is upon the express condition that any and all consumers shall be entitled to and shall receive a discount of fifteen cents per thousand cubic feet from the prices hereinafore named, upon payment being made on or before the fifteenth day of the month following the one for which the bill shall be rendered.

Sec. 4. Said grantees, their successors, associates and assigns, in digging for, laying down, relaying or continuing gas pipes along, across, under and through any and all of the streets, lanes, alleys and public grounds of said village, and in digging for the relaying of said pipes, shall use extreme care not to unnecessarily obstruct or injure any such streets, lanes, alleys, sidewalks or public grounds, and shall with reasonable diligence restore such streets, lanes, alleys, sidewalks or public grounds to as good state of repair and condition as the same were before being disturbed as near as may be, and shall in all respects fully indemnify and save harmless the said village from and against all damage done to or sustained by reason of such digging and excavating.

Sec. 5. Before beginning any work upon any of said streets, lanes, alleys, or public grounds of said village, the said grantees shall deposit with the clerk of said village a sum of not less than $5,000, to be approved by the Common Council of said village, said bond to be conditioned upon the said grantees restoring said streets, lanes, alleys and public grounds to the same condition as when said grantees came upon the same, and conditioned further upon the said grantees fully indemnifying and saving harmless the said village from and against all damage and costs which the said village shall be put to or sustain by reason of such work being done, or from the negligence of said grantees, their assigns, servants, agents or employees, in excavating or attempting to exercise any rights or privileges herein granted, and from all damage that may arise to owners of property because of or by reason of the exercising of rights herein granted, by said grantees, their assigns, servants, agents or employees.

Sec. 6. Nothing in this ordinance shall be construed to prevent the shutting off or refusing the usually supply of gas from or to any person or persons, corporate or otherwise, on account of the negligence or refusal to pay for the same, or on account of necessary repairs or alterations of said gas works, pipes or mains, provided that when gas shall be shut off to make repairs or alterations, as aforesaid, it shall only be for such time as by reasonable diligence such repairs or alterations can be made.

Sec. 7. When said grantees, their successors, associates and assigns, shall open the ground in said village to lay gas pipes, or for any other purpose whatever, they shall open no more space at any one time, nor at any one place, nor keep the same open any longer than is really necessary to execute the work for which the same have been opened.

Sec. 8. Said grantees, their successors, associates and assigns, shall at all time display the necessary danger signals around an excavation, and keep sufficient space in good condition for travel of wagons, teams and vehicles on at least one side of an excavation where practicable in the opinion of the street commissioner of said village. And it is especially required that in all cases where work requires the exercise of skill, as in the laying or relaying of pavement, cross-walks, or sidewalks, the said grantees, their successors, associates and assigns, shall employ all skilled workmen, familiar with the execution of such work.

Sec. 9. That said grantees, their successors, associates and assigns may require, at their discretion, a guarantee deposit from persons proposing to become consumers, not to exceed Five Dollars per meter, for private house, dwelling or flat, and not to exceed Ten Dollars per meter for all stores or public places. Said deposit to be returned to the depositor when he ceases to be a customer, with the legal rate of interest added thereto.

Sec. 10. That no person, company or corporation shall be permitted to tap or make any connection with any of the distributing or service pipes of said grantees, their successors, associates and assigns, or to turn gas in the service pipes unless duly authorized in writing by the said grantees, their successors, associates and assigns.

Sec. 11. Said gas furnished by said grantees or assigns shall have illuminating power of not less than sixteen (16) candle power determined by a test with standard apparatus.

Sec. 12. That said grantees, their successors, associates and assigns shall hold and save harmless the said Village of Plymouth from their negligence of their servants, agents or employees in exercising or attempting to exercise any rights or privileges herein granted, and from all damage that may arise to owners of property because of or by reason of the passage of this ordinance, or to exercise or to attempt to exercise the rights herein granted.

Sec. 13. As a further condition of this ordinance, if the said grantees, their successors or assigns, at the end of two years from the date of the acceptance of this ordinance are not prepared to furnish gas for light and heat, then their rights under this franchise and ordinance shall hereby cease and be at an end.

Sec. 14. This ordinance shall become effective upon its being approved by the qualified electors of said village at an election hereafter to be held to pass upon the same. Made and passed by the Common Council of the Village of Plymouth at a meeting thereof held September 27d, A. D. 1913.

LOUIS HILLMER, Village President.
C. A. HEARN, Village Clerk.

REGISTRATION NOTICE

To the Electors of the Village of Plymouth, Michigan: Notice is hereby given that a meeting of the Board of Registration of the Village of Plymouth will be held at the Common Council Rooms in said Village of Plymouth, on Saturday, November 15th, 1913, for the purpose of registering the names of all such persons who shall be possessed of the necessary qualifications of electors and who may apply for that purpose, including women tax payers who may have the qualifications of male electors, and said Board of Registration will be in session on the day and place aforesaid from 9:00 o'clock in the forenoon until 8:00 o'clock in the afternoon for the purpose aforesaid. Dated October 27th, 1913. C. A. HEARN, Village Clerk.

STARK.

Harmon Kingsley has returned from the hospital and is feeling quite well at present. His friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Hoisington and daughter Hattie entertained the Jolly Larkens Club last Friday for dinner, after which a few Halloween games were played that caused lots of fun. Two prizes were given. Mrs. Smith was awarded first and Mrs. Steever the consolation. All returned to Plymouth on the 5 p. m. train wishing the day had been longer. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Coats spent Thursday and Friday in Detroit. Hazel Fisher spent Sunday at home. Mr. and Mrs. Will Beyer of Perrinville, spent Sunday at Rose Lawn. Joe Huber entertained company from Detroit Sunday.

The good road men started for winter quarters Tuesday. Like the wild geese they went south.

One wishing to check parcels or wraps at the fair can do so at the 5c. and 10c. counter. Also don't forget to subscribe for the Plymouth Mail. You can't afford to be without it. The want ad column is worth the price to anyone. Oct. 14, 1913 to Jan. 1, 1915 for $1.00.

Ed. Hoisington and John Higgins went with the good roads procession. George Griffen and family visited his brother and family in Canton last Wednesday. John Rattenbury and brother Will were in Northville Tuesday.

Last Sunday three foreigners got to much tanglefoot and while driving up the Plymouth road, tipped over in the ditch. Some of the boys helped them out and the man and woman got in the buggy and proceeded on their journey, while the third one was left standing in the road.

LIVONIA CENTER.

Our school closed a part of last week so Miss Adeline Simmons could attend the institute at Ann Arbor.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Willett of Plymouth, visited at Harry Peck's last Sunday.

Mrs. Dora Baze returned home Saturday after a weeks visit with Plymouth friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Chilson visited friends in Lansing a couple days of last week.

We are glad to hear of Harmon Kingsley's return from the hospital so much improved in health.

Miss Lois Soring visited Miss Edna Helm Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chilson attended the funeral of the latter's aunt in the city Saturday.

Will Wolf Sunday with his parents west of the Center.

The cemetery society served supper to a goodly number at the town hall, Saturday evening and everybody enjoyed themselves in the games and other amusements. A nice sum was added to the fund towards keeping up the cemetery. The ladies wish to thank the public for their kindness in every way, especially those who made it a success.

Mrs. M. J. Rivard and daughter, Mrs. Crippo of Detroit, visited at Palmer Chilson's over Sunday.

Miss Ethel Williamson of Ionia, visited her sister, Mrs. Jessie Garchow over Sunday.

The meeting held at the home of Mrs. Newhouse last week was well attended, and a delightful one so reports said. Mrs. Clara Todd and Miss Cora Peiham were the leaders and the program was well carried out. The next meeting will be a tea meeting, Thursday, Nov. 13, at Mrs. Hulda Knapp's, and each member is requested to bring a cup, fork and spoon. Mrs. M. A. Patterson and Mrs. M. S. Wood are the leaders and the subject, "What is meant by conservation." There will also be news from the field. It is generally known what an excellent entertainer Mrs. Knapp is, so it probably will not be forgotten. Supt. Press.
